lives. This may surprise you but the real Yeshua is Orthodox. He adhered to ritual and ceremonial rites, but not to the elevation of the traditions over Laws of G-d. This is what divided him with his peers. That dear Christian is what the majority of Gentile Christian churches have done, are doing, and will continue to do until they are taught better and they repent. Often denominational and non-denominational doctrines contradict the Word of G-d, yet we blindly follow our spiritual leaders as the "parrot" personal visions and goals that when compared with the Bible are shown to not accepted by G-d. Thus the need for Bet Emet Ministries, and those like it throughout the world who bring a cry of repentance to the church before the dreadful day of the Lord.

The irony of this mode of attack is compounded when it is recalled that Yeshua was made by the evangelists to adopt the very "caustic" attitude that the great majority of Rabbinic Sages themselves were taking against pietists and hypocrites among their colleagues. The problem again is lack of understanding of Judaism. Yeshua was not the only critic of "some" false-teachers within Judaism! A few bad apples does not make the whole crop bad! His own words tell us that he came not for those who were "well," but for those who were "ill."

Answer for yourself: Who were the "well"?

There were many who had lived by the Spirit of Torah, and like today there are a few unscrupulously religious charlatans who dot our newspapers and airwaves. These few do not defame the majority of upright and righteous men of G-d, for in Matt. 23 Yeshua says "those who" indicating not all do wickedness and are not needing his rebuke! The Talmud referred to these false-teachers and unrighteous religious leaders as Zebuim or "the Tainted Ones" ("they who preach beautifully but do not act beautifully").

Answer for yourself: Does not that sound familiar in our day?

They were placed in categories by the Rabbis: the ostentatious Pharisee "who carries his mitzvot [commandments] on his shoulder"; the self-preening Pharisee "who knocks his knees together," saying, "Wait for me-I've got a mitzvah to perform"; the "bleeding" Pharisee who, to avoid looking at a woman in order not to get lecherous thoughts, runs helter-skelter against the wall and bloodies his face; the "Pestle" Pharisee who, like a pestle in a mortar, walks with downcast eyes in simulated pious meekness, asking: "Tell me of another mitzvah I have to perform!"; and, finally, the Pharisee who is pious out of fear that G-d will punish him. In conclusion, asks the Talmud, "Who are the genuine Pharisees?" And the answer it gives sounds like the very opposite of what the Gospels made these Sages out to be: "Those who do the will of their Father in Heaven because they love Him!" Remember it is to those who do the will of their Father that Yeshua called "his family."

Answer for yourself: Are you in his family or just live down the block?

If we adhere to a religious belief system, or denomination creed, that is contracted by what Yeshua taught then we are not doing the will of the Father. If we adhere to a religious belief system that is taught by Paul that is contradicted by what Yeshua taught then we are not doing the will of the Father (regardless of what Paul or those who wrote in his name said)! This is the skeleton that resides in the closets of those who practice Gentile Christianity unaware of the true faith intended for them to have; the faith of the Apostolic church before it became a Gentilized mixture of anti-nominianism (anti-Law), paganism, and Judaism...the faith once given to the Saints...Biblical Judaism which has a place within it for the non-Jewish believer.

The abusive treatment given to the Rabbinic Sages in the New Testament in alleged utterances made by the tongue of the "gentle Yeshua" is a matter of anti-Semitic fact and was responsible for much of the uncomplimentary thinking about the Jewish religion, about Jews, and not least, about rabbis, by countless millions of Christians over some seventeen centuries. All one need do is turn to any general dictionary for the meaning of "Pharisee" (which is another word for "Rabbinic Sage"). It defines the term as any strict observer of the outward forms in religion, without the spirit of it; in other words, a hypocrite. The word "Pharisaism"

(which really should be synonymous with "Talmudic" or "Rabbinic" Judaism) is explained as one who practices hypocrisy in religion or self-righteousness in manners, morals, or religion. The clichés of prejudice and ignorance have had an astonishing persistence through the ages, thereby pouring deadly poison in the Christian church and has fanned the fires of anti-Semitism for ages as it artificially creates a separation of Yeshua from his religion. Not all the religious leaders objected to Yeshua as both history and a careful reading of the New Testament will demonstrate despite the attempts of the Gentile Christian leaders filling the Gospel of John with the cliché "the Jews" (as in the Jew's total rejection of Yeshua which is erroneous). So quickly we forget how they welcomed him as he rode into Jerusalem on the donkey in fulfillment of prophecy to the hails and shouts of tens of thousands (for at Passover over 3 million would gather for the Festival) "hosanna," "hosanna," "hosanna" (save us, save us, save us). These were the cries of desperate followers and believers hoping he would now restore the kingdom to Israel as was foretold by the prophets. He would not.

Judging even on the basis of the belligerently anti-Jewish bias of the Gospels, written and edited by Gentile evangelists with an anti-Jewish agenda, who most likely had not even known Yeshua during his lifetime, Yeshua never sought to separate himself from the Jewish community or his faith. It is we Gentile Christians who stand condemned who have done that.

True, Yeshua was apparently a member, or at least connected with an Essenic fellowship that Clement of Alexandria (c.150-215), the Greek Church Father, called "Hemerobaptists" or "Morning Bathers," of whom John the Baptist had been the leader. Yeshua felt that his Messianic evangel was meant for the Jews alone. He declared: "I am not sent except to the lost sheep of the House of Israel." The only time Yeshua is seen talking with a Gentile he calls her a "dog" which is represented of a pagan-heathen (one estranged from G-d).

The odds are that, had not the ambitious, dynamic, and resourceful Hellenistic Jew, Paul (Saul) of Tarsus, entered upon the scene and gone into the world of the Gentiles, seeking greener pastures for his propaganda after being spurned in Jerusalem by the chief priest and other religious dignitaries (this is substantiated in extra-biblical records uncovered by archeologists and explain Paul's bent on the destruction of Judaism), there would have been no Christian religion at all, but only a small, Essenic sect of Jews in Judea who persisted in believing that the crucified Yeshua was the Messiah, and from his Messianic mandate to go into all the world and "teach them to observe those things I commanded you" we would have today what G-d fully intended....a world dominated by ethics, morals, and repentance, instead of a new religion based upon un-meaningful sin, easy forgiveism, and cheap grace.

To these dispersed Jews who were taken captive in the Assyrian exile of the ten northern tribes was Yeshua's message that the Kingdom of G-d is come and His Messiah has arrived. Tragically, through intermarriage with the heathen, the seed of Abraham, became assimilated into Gentile cultures. It is to these the Great Commission was intended for they were truly the "lost sheep of the House of Israel." Mercifully, as this message was to spread, "non Jewish-Gentiles" were to hear the same message be afforded opportunity for faith and repentance as were those of the "lost sheep" for G-d has sheep that were not of the Jewish fold. Thus the mercy of G-d included the inclusion and salvation of Gentiles for the world to come.

GRAFTED INTO ISRAEL?...THEN LOOK LIKE IT!

The Protestant historian of early Christianity, Morton Enslin, notes that:

"Christianity was the child of Judaism . . . which, within a score of years became a Gentile cult . . . adopted new conceptions, took on a totally different character, borrowed from all with which it came in contact."

It is perhaps a double irony of history that the bloody mark of Cain which had been stained upon the Jewish forehead for their everlasting shame by "pious" Christian theology, Church, and State for nineteen centuries in order to justify their persecution of the Jews, was done on the pretext that Jews had "rejected" the teachings of Yeshua the Messiah. In reality, it was Pauline or Gentile Christianity which "rejected" Yeshua the Jew and transformed him instead, by the process of deification, into, the Son of G-d [Son of Ra] which is a pagan invention of both the Egyptian and Greco-Roman religions. This probably sound preposterous to the average Christian. But you have most likely not studied comparative religions and contrasted them with the "Jesus story" in the New Testament. If you want the shock of your life...do it! The shocker is that it was this same belief-system, from Sinai faith, was taken into all the world by the Apostles and in a modified and paganized form by Paul. It is to the modified and paganized form of religious belief I take offense and you should too once you learn the truth that existed that has long been overlooked by those who subjugate obedience to grace. And don't be confused either because the Judaism of today is not the Judaism of the Bible and Yeshua. Until you study such you have no capability to prove or disprove what you read or hear. I hope you question everything I say in my articles...but please question it!!!!!! You blindly listen and believe anything you hear as I did for years until anointed by G-d to be a teacher of "strong meat" to His children. In following that call on my life G-d revealed to me things that I no longer could overlook to "fit in" with the accepted motif of Contemporary Christianity. I truly desire to worship Him (G-d and not Yeshua) in Spirit and in Truth, not in error or traditions.

That both Yeshua and his disciples considered that he was the Messiah, "the son of David," does not at all cancel out his self-identification as a Jew who lived in accordance with the religious precepts of the Torah, with the laws of the (Rabbinic) Oral Tradition, and in group-solidarity with the Jewish community. When Yeshua was asked, allegedly by a hostile scribe: "Which is the first commandment of all?" his reply (in Mark 12:28-31) came in the uncompromisingly monotheistic words of the Shema: "The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our G-d is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy G-d with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these." Amusingly enough, the Gospel of John, innocent of the fact that this was a central doctrine of the Torah (for you would not expect a Gentile writer estranged from Judaism to know such a fact), had Yeshua say (in Chapter 13:34) "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another." This is not new!!!!!! Besides that Yeshua cannot give a "new" commandment for he also has said that no one is to add or subtract from his Father's Word, and for him to do so would make him a liar.

What have we here, if not the quintessential teachings of the Torah in the Shema which is based on the Oneness of G-d and the love of mankind, is the very foundation and source of Rabbinic (Pharisaic) doctrine and ethics which we are made to believe that Yeshua rejected if we see Yeshua creating a new religion and creating a trinity. As if to underscore the completely Jewish identity of Yeshua, he stated categorically (in Matthew 5:17) that it was not at all his intention to found a new religion: "Think not that I am come to destroy the Law (i.e., the Torah), or the Prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill."

Yeshua's whole system of ethics, sometimes even down to the very expressions he used, were drawn from the then current Pharisee teachings and from such apocalyptic and moralistic work by Jews as the Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs. Yet for nineteen centuries, Christians have cultivated the myth that the Jews believed in a G-d of Vengeance and practiced a barbarous "eye-for-an-eye" way of life that Christianity came to save us from.

We are made to believe that Christianity was the first to project a G-d of love, compassion, and ethical conduct. Nothing could be farther from the truth! It was Paul who had abrogated the laws of the Torah as being no longer binding for Christians, since, he taught the truths and revelations of Yeshua superseded them in spiritual authority. The problem comes when we examine Paul opposite Yeshua in their belief systems, for it is Paul who changes the Torah as if his revelations (his oral Torah...his special revelation and gospel..."my gospel" as he calls it repeatedly in the New Testament ) was to be exalted above the Word of G-d. For G-d's sake...Paul is not the Messiah and close examination of his doctrines oppose much of what Yeshua taught.

Answer for yourself: Who are we to follow?

It is past time to return to the churches of Yeshua, and leave the churches of Paul.

It should be quite clear to anyone that without proper language study and a comprehensive historical point of view, such an assumption is without validity. But it is not if you study. Jewish religious and moralistic writings before, during, and after the time of Christ prove this conclusively. Even a close reading of the Book of Acts will show Paul bringing blood sacrifices after the cross as well as the Jerusalem church headed by James proud of the repentance among the Jews because of Yeshua and the fruits of his ministry resulted in a return to the Law of Moses (Acts 21:20). Notice that the church of Yeshua was zealous for the Law thirty years after the cross.

Answer for yourself: Have they misunderstood his message or have we?

Answer for yourself: Should they have listened to Paul or should have Paul listened to them?

Well, Paul had to, for the New Testament teaches us that he had to appear before James on two different visits to give account for his actions!

Answer for yourself: Who was the delegated authority that Yeshua put in charge...James or Paul?

Answer for yourself: Who was submitted to whom?

Paul was submitted to Jerusalem, James, and the Apostles, for if you study closely, Paul continually tries to vindicate his apostleship because he carries a second-class status with the Apostles in Jerusalem. You should ask yourself "why?". These historical statements alone defy Paul's Gospel.

Answer for yourself: I ask you, who has another Gospel....James, Peter, Jerusalem, Rome, or Paul?

Somebody does! Dearly beloved, it grieves me, yet excites my spirit to set the captive free by revealing to you the true Yeshua as he was, is, and will yet to be. He has not changed, it is we who have from what he and his Father intended. Thus the lack of the experiences we read about in Scripture and excuse away by creating an elaborate Christian-Gnostic dualism of angelic warfare this is blamed for their absence.

Answer for yourself: Could it be our disobedience to those things the first century church had right that we have wrong?

Answer for yourself: Could G-d be displeased with a paganized rendition of His truth, so displeased that he withdrew His awesome presence as seen repeatedly in Acts which was "that" which many had waited upon and which fell upon all flesh (which today falls on precious few)?

There are innumerable references in the Pentateuch, in the Prophets, in Psalms, in post-Biblical literature, and especially in the Talmud of the Scribes and Pharisees which condemn hatred, vengeance, cruelty, envy, lying, anger, subtlety, and greed, and, conversely, glorify humility, truth, love for one's fellow men, charity, sincerity, gentleness, generosity of spirit, and forgiveness. The ethics of Yeshua in almost every instance were Jewish, Pharisaic and Essenic, and derived from the cardinal Mosaic commandment: "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

To cite only a few examples: The Book of Proverbs, written centuries before the advent of Yeshua, tried to establish the moral truth that "The reasonable man is noble, he glories in pardoning injury." The prayer uttered by pious Jews before lying down at night extols this particular virtue for all men: "Master of the World,

I pardon every transgression and every wrong done to my person, to my property, to my honor, or to all that I have. Let no one be punished on my account."

A Rabbinical moralist in the Midrash laid down this guiding principle: "Ever shall a man bestow loving-kindness, even on one who does him harm; he shall not be vengeful nor bear a grudge. This is the way of Israel." And although Philo, the first-century Hellenistic philosopher-rabbi of Alexandria, had little contact with the Rabbinic Sages of Judea, he nevertheless drank from the same clear spring of traditional Jewish ethics. He taught: "If you ask pardon for your sins, do you also forgive those who have trespassed against you."

The preoccupation of Yeshua with penitence, the religious urgency of which he preached wherever he went, was characteristically Messianic and Rabbinic. The genuinely penitent person is extolled in the Talmud as standing on the pinnacle of spiritual perfection: "The just, the perfect, will not be worthy to sit with penitents in the World-to-Come."

Love for one's fellow men, a fundamental Mosaic commandment which fanned the core of the Jewish teachings of Yeshua, was in harmony with Rabbinic ethics. The Talmud expresses its amazement that Micah, the idolatrous Jew who continued to worship teraphim (presumably these were tribal household gods), yet went unpunished by Heaven. The Talmud says that the angels came before G-d and said: "See, Lord, the smoke from your altar mingles with that of the offerings to Micah's idols!" And G-d answered them: "Leave him in peace; he gives his bread to poor wayfarers."

And as for Yeshua's preachments about peace, love, justice, and brotherhood-he surely must have been well versed in the Prophet Isaiah's exalted poetic declaration on those themes, and fully cognizant of one of the most celebrated Rabbinic teachings formulated by the Pharisee Scribe, Hillel, which appears in Pirke Avot 1:12 of the Mishnah: "Be of the disciples of Aaron, loving peace and pursuing peace, loving mankind and bringing them near to the Torah."

A recognizable source for many of the preachments of Yeshua on love of people is this gentle sermon from the post-Biblical moralistic work, The Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs written before 100 B.C.E.

Love ye therefore one another from the heart; and if a man sin against thee, cast forth the poison of hate and speak peaceably to him, and in thy soul hold not guile; and if he confess and repent, forgive him, lest catching the poison from thee he take to swearing and so thou sin doubly.

This teaching, it is well worth noting, is also found in paraphrased form in Matthew 18:15-35 and Luke 17:3-4 evangels which were composed at least two hundred years later!

In future articles I will demonstrate to you how Gentile Christians after the first century altered the oral traditions concerning Yeshua, and even went so far as to alter the written accounts of which we have in the New Testament in order to create an artificial condition whereby Yeshua is shown to be rejected by his religious leaders, when in reality, most the events depicted by the New Testament writers NEVER HAPPENED. These false accounts have been used to portray Yeshua as rejecting his own religion and thus giving reason to create a New Religion.....Christianity. Stay tuned.

THE JEWISH ORIGINS OF THE CHRISTIANITY & THE DE-JUDAIZING OF YESHUA BY THE GENTILE CHURCH

Many ways were found by Paul and later Gentile-oriented founders of Christianity to disassociate Yeshua from the Jews and his Jewish religion as far as possible and to bring their new religion into a closer alignment with such favored pagan religious doctrines and practices as were dominant in Greco-Roman antiquity. And even though the great majority of modern Christian believers are unaware of this fact, observes A. Powell Davies, the Protestant commentator on Paul's evangelical labors. "... he [the scholar] has known all along that historically, Christianity is not the religion founded by Yeshua. ..."

Without a doubt the most dramatic and drastic step taken by Paul was to transform "Yeshua the Messiah" which is a Jewish concept, into Yeshua "the Son of G-d," which is a pagan manifestation of G-d that was by no means a mere figure of speech or symbolism but literally meant a pagan conception that was formulated in the famous Gospel declaration by John 3:16: "For G-d so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

While it is not within the province of this brief excursion into Christianity to examine critically its theological dogmas, nevertheless, it is of genuine pertinence to point out that if, with the exception of some small groups, Jews remained impervious to Christian apostolic allurements, it was entirely because they were undeviating believers in the Oneness and "the Onliness" of G-d. The Pauline conception that G-d had a literal "son" was altogether shocking and unthinkable to them. The same conception was, however, entirely acceptable to Gentile pagans in the Hellenistic world, for they had been conditioned to accept such a notion by their own "ages-old religious beliefs and practices." In the mythology of the Greeks and the Romans, for divinity to have offspring by mating with a human being was commonplace. Zeus-Jupiter, the chief of the gods, was singled out for this extraordinary procreative activity with various daughters of the earth such as Leda, who became the mother of the heroes Castor and Pollux, and Europa (the daughter of a Phoenician king), who bore Minos; Apollo, who fathered Linus with Psamanthe, a virgin daughter of the king of Argos; Pluto, who loved Persephone, etc.

Ultimately, the aposthesizing of Yeshua of Nazareth as "the only begotten Son of G-d" was accompanied by the explanation in the New Testament that G-d had sent the Holy Ghost down to earth to effect the Immaculate Conception of Mary, the virginal wife of Joseph. This dogma, held sacred by Christians, is reverently enunciated in the teaching of the Roman Catholic Church: "Christ, conceived of the Holy Ghost, was born of the Virgin Mary, who, by divine intervention, remained a virgin before, during, and after the conception and birth." The view shared by several Protestant denominations today is that Yeshua was conceived in the womb of the Virgin Mary without a human father.

Historians of comparative religions have been marveling over the strong resemblance which exist between the Christian concept of the Holy Trinity-"the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost" and the pattern of divinity that prevailed in the Egyptian religion. It should be noted that one of the most fertile of missionary fields for the early Christian Church was Grecized Egypt, where more than one million Jews lived and where the process of theocrasia (a fusion of the identity of one god with another) had been vastly stimulated by Ptolemy 1, who had introduced (300 B.C.E.) a mixed Greek and Egyptian worship in the Serapeum temple in Alexandria.

The trinitarian arrangement of the deities in ancient Egypt seems to have been traditional. Referring to this design, Samuel Birch, keeper of Egyptian Antiquities in the British Museum during the middle of the nineteenth century, wrote: "In the local worship of Egypt the deities were arranged in local triads; thus at Memphis, Ptah, his wife Merientpah, and their son, Nefer Atum, formed a triad, to which was sometimes added the goddess Bast or Bubastis. At Abydos, the local triad was Osiris [the father], Isis [the mother], and Horus [the son], with [the additional deity] Nephthys, etc."

This divinity pattern appears even more arresting when it is taken into account that the Virgin Mary, too, was accorded an appropriately divine elevation alongside the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost of the Christian Trinity, thus duplicating the exact design made by the Egyptian triad, to which a lesser deity was usually added. It should be said, however, that the prestige of the mother of Yeshua, far from being evaluated as "lesser," has loomed ever larger with the centuries, ultimately occupying, as in Roman Catholicism, the position of centrality with her son in Christianity. Actually, the identity of Yeshua has been so blended with that of the Father as G-d as to make them appear the same.

Mary has been venerated, worshipped, and extolled as the Mater Dolorosa, the Mother of G-d, the Mother of the World, and the Queen of Heaven. Of no little associative significance, suggest some scholars, is the fact that also the Egyptian goddess Isis was hailed as the universal Mother and the Queen of Heaven, and her cult, which endured into the sixth century, was the most formidable rival that Christianity had to compete with for converts in Hellenistic Egypt. It has sometimes drawn the startled attention of students of Egyptian art that in many graphic and sculptural representations of Isis, she is shown holding maternally in her lap the divine child Horus; it immediately brings to mind the classic depiction of the Madonna and the child Yeshua in Christian religious art.

It should be emphasized that there actually were two opposing movements within early Christianity following the crucifixion of Yeshua: One was Gentile oriented, declaring itself to be "the true Israel" and the Jews "the false Israel." This was led by the brilliant Paul and this was the one that ultimately triumphed when Constantine imposed it as the state religion of the Roman Empire in the fourth century. The second was the Jewish-oriented movement in Judea that was piloted by Peter (the Elder of the Twelve Apostles) and James ("the Lord's brother"; i.e., literally the brother of Yeshua); this, within a short time, disappeared due to the intense persecution by the Gentile Church. The several congregations of the Jewish-Christians, which were few in number, resisted every effort by Paul and Barnabas to de-Judaize Yeshua. There are leading Christian scholars today who disbelieve that the Epistles of James and Peter, which are included in the New Testament, were actually written by them either in their entirety, or even at all, but for reasons not clearly definable, had been attributed to them in the canon which was closed early in the third century.

The early Christians of Judea who followed Peter and James could not, strictly speaking, be classified as Christians in the Pauline sense. They considered themselves to be Jews. They adhered faithfully to the Jewish religion, observed the Sabbath (on Saturday), kept all the festivals and fast days, circumcised their male infants, ate kosher food, and, like the Pharisees, fasted on Mondays and Thursdays. They prayed in Hebrew and devoted themselves to Torah study, and when, a generation or two later they no longer knew any Hebrew, they studied the Torah in Aquila's Greek translation. Their one sectarian deviation, which resulted in their ostracism as heretics (minim) from the main body of Jewry, was their fervent belief that Yeshua was the authentic Messiah whom G-d the Father-the One G-d-had sent to redeem Israel, and that although he had died on the cross, he had risen from the grave and would reappear in a Second Coming, whenever G-d willed it. They completely disavowed the "Son of G-d" claim made for Yeshua; they considered Paul an apostate and rejected his writings. The fact should not be minimized that, when the Jewish revolt against the tyranny of Rome broke out in 132 C.E. under the messianic banner of Bar Kochba, there were sectarian Jewish-Christians who also fought in the ranks.

While the Talmud refers to Christians (without attempting to make any distinction between the Jewish-Christians who adhered to the One G-d and the Gentile-Christians who worshipped the Trinity) as Notzrim (Notzri), it has not been conclusively established that this name was derived from Nazareth, the Galilean birthplace of Yeshua. The early-fourth-century Christian writer Eusebius calls these Jewish-Christians in his Ecclesiastical History "Ebionites" (in Hebrew or Aramaic: Ebionim or Ebion, meaning "the Poor"; i.e., those dedicated to poverty). And Eusebius, like his contemporary, Origen, abuses them roundly for denying that Yeshua was the Son of G-d.

During the reign of Trajan (98-117 C.E.), there were some Jewish-Christians who followed the leadership of one Elchasai. They had somewhat different variations in dogma, although they had much in common with the Ebionites in that they stood determinedly in opposition to Gentile Christianity. They too affirmed the existence of One G-d, and believed that Yeshua was human, but a reincarnation of the Prophets of old into whom the Holy Spirit had entered, and that he was the Messiah who was predestined to lead Israel to salvation.

It should be carefully noted that the Judean-Christians, who identified themselves with the Jewish people and who clove to the religion of Israel until the first Nicene Council in 325 obtained their theological and inspirational sustenance from writings said to have been derived from the preaching of Peter (known in Greek as Kerygmata). They spurned the New Testament altogether, indicting those Christians "who have rejected Peter's teachings and have attached themselves to the frivolous teachings of the enemy [this was a reference to Gentile Christianity] which is contrary to the law [i.e., the Torah] ... the Law of G-d which Moses proclaimed, and to whose eternal duration Yeshua attested when he said: 'Heaven and earth shall pass away but not one jot or title shall pass away.' " Rejecting, too, the Pauline claim that Yeshua was divine and "the Son of G-d," the Judean-Christians declared: "Only the G-d of the Scriptures should be called G-d. Nor is it lawful to think that there is any other, or to call any other by that name. And if anyone should dare do so, eternal punishment of soul is his."

In the light of these monotheist views, which presumably represent the Christian thinking of Peter and James, it cannot come as a surprise to read in the Koran (written in the seventh century) the crude but forthright rebuke by Mohammed, who was an uncompromising monotheist: "O Yeshua, son of Mary, hast thou said unto mankind, 'Take me and my mother as two gods beside G-d?'" To the Mohammedans, the Prophet of Allah gave this counsel: "Believe, therefore, in G-d and his Prophets, and say not there are three gods; forbear this, it will be better for you. G-d is but one G-d. Far be it from him that he should have a son!"

The theological detachment of Christianity from its Jewish parent seemed to become even more urgent as time went on. There were some Christians, like the sectarian Gnostics, who actively agitated for a complete divorcement from the Jewish religion. There was even, during the second century, a determined attempt made by a schismatic group of Gnostics (branded as heretics by the Church) under the leadership of Marcion, to eliminate the Jewish G-d from the faith, the Bible from sacred Christian literature, and all institutions and practices in the Church that could be attributable to Jews.

Even in modern times, there has been a sentiment in certain quarters to make Christianity free of Jewish influence. The late Dean W. R. Inge of Westminster, in a sermon he preached in August, 1950, before the Cambridge Conference of the Modern Churchmen's Union, posed this question to the clergy of the Anglican Church: "Do you agree with me that our services are terribly clogged with Judaism?" As indeed they are!

For "unclogging" Christian practice of its Jewish observances there was no want of eager theological hands in early times. Until the end of the second century, Easter, the festival which memorializes the resurrection of Christ, was invariably celebrated on the fourteenth of Nissan-the same day on which the Jewish festival of Passover falls. It took the energetic First Roman Synod, convoked by Pope Victor 1 (189-198 C.E.) to order the Near Eastern bishops to refrain, under pain of severe penalties, from designating that day for the observance of Easter. The Corpus juris Civilis of the Emperor Justinian in sixth century also forbade it. But so persistent was the custom, that in 784, the Second Council of Nicea required of all new converts that they take this oath of abjuration: "We will not . . . celebrate the Passover, the Sabbath, or the other feast days connected with the Jewish religion."

The famous Church historian, Eusebius, noted that during the first three centuries of Christianity, the Jewish Sabbath was observed by the faithful together with "the Lord's Day." It was this "Lord's Day" which was called such in honor of the pagan god Mithras on Sunday. But upon the conversion of the Roman Emperor Constantine, the First Ecumenical Council of the Church, held in 325 in Nicea, abolished the observance of the Sabbath on Saturday and substituted for it the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath-the day of rest-for Christians. Despite their repudiation of the Jewish Sabbath, so strong was the power of custom and habit, that even on Sundays, well into the sixth century, Christians observed Jewish Sabbath laws against making a fire, cooking, working, riding, etc. So stated the Church Fathers.

The Church itself, in its very concept as a house of prayer, in many of its institutions [the congregation, the chanting of prayers, the singing of the Psalms, the reading of Scripture (Gospels), the antiphonal responses, the congregational "Amen!" and the preaching of a sermon based on a Scriptural text followed by its exposition] adopted existing liturgy from the service of the Synagogue.

In several of their traditional elements, the liturgical texts of the Church, too, were adapted from the Synagogue service in the form in which it existed during the first centuries of Christianity. Some of the same literary sources were drawn from by both; not infrequently, the identical phraseology was used. There could be no more monumental irony than that the congregational reading of the Ten Commandments, which formed a high point in the service of the Synagogue, was introduced into the Church service, and when the Rabbinic Sages during the second century were faced with this staggering development, in order to save the simpleminded and unwary from confusing the synagogue with the church, they promptly placed a ban on the public recitation of these central postulates of the Torah of Moses and ordered the Shema read instead!

Padre Martini, the eighteenth-century composer-musicologist, wrote in his Storia della Musica that it was to be expected that the Apostles of Yeshua should have incorporated into the church service the synagogue melodies that they had known since earliest childhood.

Answer for yourself: Weren't those the songs that the Levites used to sing in the Temple in Jerusalem?

Actually, the Jewish musicologist, A. Z. Idelsohn, has been able to trace a number of melodies, still sung today in the synagogues of the Oriental Jews, which bear striking resemblances to the plain chant of the ancient church.

There is no question but that the Gregorian Chant, which is the most pervasive element in the musical service of Roman Catholicism and the Anglican Rite and which exerted such a profound influence on the development of European music, was also derived, as the musicologist Peter Wagner avers, from the "solo-psalmistry of the synagogue." Another authoritative opinion on this subject is given by the Catholic musicologist, Monsignor Dechevrens in his Plain Song: "Gregorian Chant is the music of the Hebrews, and there is for the totality of the Roman Catholic melodies but one modal system, not that of the Greeks, but that of the Hebrews."

To devout Christians, the rite of the Eucharist (Greek, meaning "thanksgiving") is the most awesome and mystical manner of personal communion with Christ. To many of the liberal faithful, it is a symbolic act of personal identification with Yeshua, but to most, especially to Catholics and Lutherans, it is meant to be taken in its literal sense. The Lutheran Church, for example, teaches: "Yeshua said: 'This is My Body' and 'This is My Blood.' These statements should not be rejected, or explained as merely figurative. The Lutheran church teaches that the glorified Christ is able to be present with his Body and Blood, wherever the Lord's Supper is celebrated, and to give them in a real way which we cannot understand, along with the bread and wine as a pledge of our forgiveness." As the ethnologists explain: The Eucharist was conceived of as a rite of magical fellowship, or communion with G-d, by "eating with Him" and also, symbolically, "of Him."

Answer for yourself: What was "the Lord's Supper"?

It is said by many to have been the last meal that the disciples ate with Yeshua before his impending arrest, trial, and Crucifixion. And from the clear-cut statements made in the Synoptic Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and

Luke, it actually was the Passover Seder home-service that has been celebrated for three thousand years in every Jewish home on Passover in commemoration of Israel's liberation from the Egyptian Bondage. The Seder's chief ritualistic symbols are the matzot (the unleavened bread which is, in the Eucharist, the wafer) and the arbah kosot (the four ritual cups of wine in the Passover). But in what strange manner this symbolic Passover food and drink was metamorphosed by Gentile-Christians into holy sacraments remains unknown.

Scholars of comparative religions have discovered that a strong similarity existed between the conception of the Eucharist and certain sacraments that were employed in the cult of the Persian sun-god Mithras, whose "Mysteries" enjoyed enormous popularity in the Greco-Roman world in the time of Paul of Tarsus. This strange resemblance must have perplexed many people. As if in answer to this bafflement, Justin Martyr, early in the second century, blamed it all on the magical foresight of evil spirits who, knowing that someday in the future Christians would consider this sacrament the holiest in their faith, had taught it centuries before to the idolators "out of memory, in the Mysteries and Initiations of Mithras. For in these likewise, a cup of wine, and bread, are set out with the addition of certain words, in the sacrifice or act of worship of the person about to be initiated." This explanation was given even greater prominence by the authoritative Church Father Tertullian in the third century: "The Devil, whose business it is to pervert the truth, mimics the exact circumstances of the Divine Sacraments in the Mysteries of Mithras. . . ."

It should serve as a historical footnote that the Church Fathers and priests of Mithras were in fierce opposition to each other until the fourth century, when the emperor Julian the Apostate made an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow Christianity as the state religion of Rome (it had been established as such by his uncle, Constantine) and tried to supplant it with Mithraism. According to Porphyry, the third-century moralistic-philosopher who was an opponent of Christianity, all the Mithraic writings were hunted down and destroyed by the triumphant Church, which fact explains why so very little is known today about the once popular and worldwide religion of Mithras.

Much has been written about the vicarious sacrifice of Yeshua on the cross in atonement for all the sins of the world which had accumulated since Adam's Fall. The doctrine of "Original Sin" is one which Judaism does not share with Christianity, yet the very notion of atonement is central to Jewish ethical-religious belief; it is an affirmation of the perfectibility of mankind, which learns from its mistakes and corrects them by volitional acts of conscience. Martyrdom (not as atonement) on behalf of others has run a long and heroic course in Jewish history. It has been said that to suffer death deliberately as an atonement-sacrifice for others' sins is not a Jewish notion at all. "May my death be an atonement for all my sin!" This is the abbreviated form of the Viddui-the Jewish confession before death which is designed for the recitation of that dying person whose strength is fast ebbing, but the atonement petitioned is for one's own sins and not for anybody else's, inasmuch as Jews believe that each person is responsible only for his own actions. The Fourth Book of Maccabees recounts in elegiac cadence the martyrdom of Eleazar who, as he lay dying, pleaded with G-d: "Be merciful unto Thy people, and let our punishment be a satisfaction on their behalf. Make my blood their purification, and my soul to ransom their souls." But also the kind of atonement mentioned here is not the predetermined (by G-d) sacrifice of Yeshua for the salvation of mankind in his ritual-drama of the Passion and Crucifixion.

Some scholars (among them the great ethnologist, James G. Fraser) have found a number of analogues in ancient religions for the Yeshua-tragedy with similar themes of suffering, death, and resurrection. In the mystery-cult of Attis, that divinity of Phrygia (in Asia Minor) was the protagonist in an annual ritual-drama of sacrifice, death, and eternal renewal. He was tied to a tree in effigy, pierced with knives by the priests until "he bled to death," and then buried in the ground. But with the spring blossoming of the earth, Attis arose triumphantly from the dead, amidst the rejoicing of all mankind.

This redemption-theme through the self-sacrifice of a divinity is even more explicitly delineated in the ritual-drama of Osiris, the paramount divinity in the religion of Egypt. In order to atone with his death for the human race and thereby bring it to redemption, Osiris achieved incarnation in human form. It was said that he, like Yeshua, had long foreseen the inevitability of his sacrifice, it being recorded in the Egyptian "scriptures" The Book of the Dead: "Osiris knows the day of his sacrifice." His death, by hate and treachery at the hands of the Evil One, Set, was followed by his miraculous resurrection, bringing with it happiness to the human race.

The sacrifice, death, and resurrection of the Greek god Adonis and of the Babylonian divinity Tammuz followed a similar pattern of the eternal renewal of life on the earth in the rites of spring.

THE TRIAL & CRUCIFIXION OF YESHUA

Almost a hundred years after the crucifixion of Yeshua, it was possible in retrospect for several Roman writers to make but the barest reference to it, of such little importance did they regard it. In his work, The Messiah Yeshua and John the Baptist, Robert Eisler mentions two pagan Roman writers of the second century, Celsus and Sossianus Hierocles, who observed about Yeshua that he was "it bandit" and rebel chieftain who had threatened Rome in Judea. Such a view was in line with the official Roman stand taken in several instances of other Jewish "bandits" during the first century. For in the guise of messiahs, those idealistic visionaries who both preceded and followed Yeshua, had organized uprisings in Judea against the tyranny of "Edom," i.e., Rome, as a prelude to the End of Days.

Inevitably, the rebellions were crushed in a general slaughter of their participants and their leaders-each of whom had, in turn, been hailed by his followers as "G-d's Anointed" and as "King of the Jews," and, consequently, as the future ruler of the righteous Kingdom of G-d-were publicly crucified in order to serve as a warning to the revolutionary-minded among the Jews.

The writings of the Roman historian Tacitus confirm that this was actually the attitude the Roman authorities had toward Yeshua and his messianic movement. Although Tacitus was a bitter opponent of the Jews, nevertheless, what he wrote about the execution of Yeshua in the Annals (c. 115 C.E.). He stated: "Christus, the founder of that name, was put to death as a criminal by Pontius Pilate, procurator of Judea in the reign, of Tiberius." His crime, said Tacitus, was that he had led a conspiratorial band of criminals who were "opposed to all mankind." But oddly enough, when the famous apologist for Gentile Christianity, Justin Martyr, was berating the Jews for their wickedness only a few years later-merely echoing the opinions and sentiments of the Synoptic Gospels of Mark, Matthew, and Luke, and of the Acts and Epistles of Paul of Tarsus-he told them: "This very Son of G-d ... was crucified under Pontius Pilate by your [Jewish] nation."

The fateful phrase "under Pontius Pilate" entered into the Apostles' Creed. The difference in implications between the two little words "under" and "by" altered irrevocably the destiny of the Jewish people for nineteen centuries, for by means of them, Rome and Pontius Pilate were declared innocent of the murder of Yeshua, and the Jews were forever-more branded as fratricides and G-d-killers.

That Pilate should have been treated so tenderly in the Gospels is indicative of how history is often written (or rewritten) from the writer's own bias, perhaps to promote some special vested interest-in this particular instance, to convert the pagan Romans to Christianity. Every other contemporary historical reference to Pilate refutes the Gospels' picture of his "fairness" and remarkable judicious restraint. King Agrippa I of Judea had formally complained to the Emperor Caligula in Rome that the procurator he had sent to Judea was "inflexible, merciless and obstinate." Philo of Alexandria, who was a man of the world as well as a Platonic philosopher and rabbi, and who had met Pilate personally, wrote of him that he was rotten with "corruption, violence, robbery . . . oppression, illegal executions, and never-ending most grievous cruelty."

Yet this was the noble, patrician Roman contrasted-to Pilate's advantage, of course-in the Gospels with the sly, demoniacal, clamoring mob of Jews in Jerusalem. In fact, as time moved on, Pilate's moral stature grew perceptibly; he was heaped by the religious leaders of the early Church with virtues unsuspected. The Church Father Tertullian (c. 160 c. 230), although he did not deny that Pilate was a pagan, nevertheless called him "a Christian in his own convictions"! Origen (d. c. 253), another famous patristic writer, went even farther; he called him a believer: "Pilate confessed that Yeshua was the Christ [Messiah]."

Seemingly, the sole aim of this gratuitous "conversion" of the Roman despot was to associate him directly and in a favorable light with Yeshua, demonstrating the existence between the two of a sympathetic bond and thereby, by reflection, lending eminent respectability and prestige to Christianity, which was then engaged in the highly competitive missionary field for Roman converts.

Perhaps the greatest single catastrophe that ever befell a nation was the one experienced by the Jewish people in consequence of the inflammatory account given in the Gospels about the trial and crucifixion of Yeshua.

Answer for yourself: Was the account true?

Much of it has the tragic ring of truth, but there are also elements of verifiable distortion, fantasy, and reconstruction in it, no doubt introduced by the overzealous evangelists to heighten the drama of the events they described as well as to serve the propaganda goals of Gentile Christianity.

Principally, the intention of the gospel writers was to disassociate Yeshua from the Jews. This they tried to do by demonstrating in their scriptural texts (in Greek) that not only had Yeshua not been hostile to the rule of Rome-witness the statement in Mark 12:17: "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to G-d the things that are G-d's"-but that he had been savagely set upon by the Jews, a people, it should be remembered, whom the Roman master-race hated heartily. The Jews were hated because they had been consistently a thorn in the imperial side: They were constantly seething with social unrest and repeatedly rising in armed revolt against Rome tinder the leadership of such firebrand zealot "messiahs" as Judas the Galilean, his grandson Menachem, Theudas, Benjamin the Egyptian, and the most tragic of all Judean 'messiahs" after Yeshua-Simon Bar Kochba.

Answer for yourself: What was the crime that Yeshua committed to merit crucifixion?

Viewing it in historic perspective, from the Roman point of view, it is quite evident that he was charged by Pontius Pilate, the procurator of Judea, with the identical crime that had been charged against all the other captured "bandits": with sedition. He was accused of attempting an armed uprising as "King of the Jews." The historian Tacitus indicates that Yeshua was believed by the Roman authorities to have been the leader of a conspiratorial band. But actually, Yeshua had not planned any rebellion at all. While other messianic leaders before him (such as Judas the Galilean) and also after him (Bar Kochba) were fiery actionists, Yeshua was, on the contrary, the most pacific and gentlest of quietists. An extreme non-resistance to evil seems to have been even more of a dominant principle with him than it was with Mahatma Ghandi. Yeshua preached: "Whosoever smiteth thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also." As an Essene, this was a natural attitude for him to take.

But the hard-headed Romans decided to leave nothing to chance. If subversion was being planned by Yeshua and his followers-and past experience with messianic leaders (zealots) could lead them to no other supposition-then it would be an act of foresight on their part to nip the conspiracy in the bud in the most decisive and prompt manner. So they crucified Yeshua in order to make an example of him-to warn any other would-be "King of the Jews" what end he could expect. The Romans did not at all seem to consider what was the actual implication of that august title; they did not understand that it referred to the Messiah. This can be seen in the "regal" crown of thorns and the derisive sign Pontius Pilate ordered nailed to the cross over the tormented and broken body of the crucified Yeshua: JESUS NAZORAEUS REX JUDAEORUM ("Yeshua of Nazareth King of the Jews"). That's what the procurator thought of Yeshua and that's what he thought of the Jews!

The Gospels, in their treatment of this epic drama, wonderfully written with a simple eloquence and an emotionalism that is genuinely stirring, placed an entirely different emphasis and motivation on its events and the personalities involved. In the Gospel of Matthew (Chapter 27), it was the chief priests and elders of the Jews who "took counsel against Yeshua to put him to death. And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor . . ."

As for the High Priest, Caiaphas, and other high Jewish officials who were said to have delivered Yeshua to Pontius Pilate for trial with the expectation that he would be condemned to death, they were aristocratic Sadducees (and collaborationists of the Romans). As such, they must have been ready at all times to be the "running dogs"-the collaborationists-of the master-race and to do the will of the procurator, even if it was to the hurt of their own people.

"And Yeshua stood before the governor: and the governor asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Yeshua said unto him, Thou Sayest."

So Yeshua stood self-condemned; he was destined for a cross on Golgotha. Pontius Pilate, the symbol and instrument in Judea of the omnipotent power of the Emperor Tiberius, even had he wanted to, had no choice but to execute him as a potential rebel against Rome. Every "King of the Jews" before had been crucified by the Romans as a seditionist.

But the Gospels willed it differently. In them it was Pilate who was moved to admiration by the noble humility of Yeshua and had no desire to crucify him. It was the custom, the Gospels infer, that during the festival of Passover (no such custom on Passover was ever known or recorded in Jewish literary sources) the procurator graciously would pardon a prisoner for whose life the people would ask. It so happened that "a notable prisoner, called Barabbas" was held in custody at that time. Addressing himself to the multitude, and giving it a broad hint and an even broader opportunity to save the life of Yeshua, Pilate said to them: "Whether [whichever] of the twain will ye that I release unto you?" And the people answered-"Barabbas!" "Pilate said unto them, What shall I do then with Yeshua which is called Christ? They all say unto him, Let him be crucified. And the governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified."

When the "saintly" Pilate saw that there was nothing he could do to soften the hard-hearted mob clamoring for Yeshua's death, he took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, "I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it. Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children."

Actually, point out some New Testament scholars, it would be absurd and unrealistic to believe that there was the slightest possibility that the arrogant and despotic Roman procurator, Pontius Pilate, would for one moment have considered delegating his own supreme judicial powers to the Jews, whom he despised and distrusted, especially in a case in which the charge was sedition with conspiracy to revolt.

Answer for yourself: After all, they stress, was it not the Jews with whom he was constantly struggling?

Answer for yourself: Where would be the sense then of allowing these very Jews (in a howling mob) to pass sentence on an alleged "bandit" leader?

Yet all four narratives of the evangelists-the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John-described in an emotionally inflammable setting, bear down inexorably on one premeditated conclusion: that it was not Pilate but the Jews who, in a frenzy of hatred for Yeshua, were responsible for his agony and death on the cross. The diabolical image of the Jews-frightening, cunning, and cruel, as they are collectively depicted-stimulated the imaginative genius of Christian art during the Middle Ages and the Renaissance. The foremost painters and sculptors portrayed the heart-rending scenes along the Via Dolorosa: Yeshua being scourged, "the Jews" abusing and leering villainously at him as he dragged his cross to Golgotha, the "Hills of Skulls," and gloating vengefully as they beheld him, banging shattered, bleeding, and still, nailed to the cross of his martyrdom.

To the Christian who is enlightened and is also knowledgeable about the principles of the Jewish religion and of its moral values, institutions, and practices, such a depiction of the Jews must seem either an absurd libel or a vast distortion. And one need hardly go into the historical record: Christian mobs, howling their hatred for Jews and led by priests holding aloft the cross of the crucified Yeshua to "inspire" them, who had preached love and forgiveness, descended murderously upon helpless Jews everywhere in Christendom. For one Jew-Yeshua-uncounted millions of his fellow Jews had to pay with their lives in a perpetual Jewish Golgotha.

In his monumental work, Mission and Expansion of Christianity, Adolf von Harnack, a prominent leader of liberal German theology, declared with an obvious feeling of regret and contrition: Truly, such an injustice as that done by the Gentile Church to Judaism is almost unprecedented in the annals of history. The Gentile Church stripped it of everything; she took away its sacred Book; herself a transformed Judaism, she cut off all connection with the parent religion. The daughter first robbed her mother, then repudiated her.

The question often asked by thoughtful Christians is: What do the Jews themselves think about the trial and crucifixion of Yeshua

Answer for yourself: Do they consider it just?

When Moses Mendelssohn (Germany, 1729-86), the philosopher and initiator of the Jewish Enlightenment (Haskalah), was asked the question by the Swiss Protestant theologian, Johann Kaspar Lavater, he replied with an evasion: "How do I know what just or unjust judgments were pronounced seventeen or eighteen hundred years ago by my ancestors?" Especially, he added, since it was not even reasonable to expect that he accept responsibility for the trials and sentences issued by the Prussian law courts in his own day.

Whatever the thoughts and feelings of the great majority of Jews toward the Crucifixion-an act that caused unhealing wounds on their souls and maids and countless generations of suffering and humiliation-the astonishing observation has been made that, although they are, understandably, bitter, they seem to bear no rancor or any desire to "avenge " the terrible wrongs their people experienced because of it. In this attitude of most Jews-which is in the gentle spirit of Yeshua himself-can perhaps be seen a vindication of Israel from the libels the Gospel writers wrote against their fore-fathers.

It should not pass unnoticed that, indicative of the average Jew's desire to let bygones be bygones and to seek fraternal relationships with all Christians of good-will, was the declaration made by the Jewish philosopher-rabbi Maimonides (Spain, 1135-1204), who himself was a victim of bitter persecution at the hands of Mohammedans, in his celebrated code, Mishneh-Torah: "The teachings of the man of Nazareth [i.e., Yeshua] and of the man of Ishmael [i.e., Mohammed] who arose after him, help to bring to perfection all mankind, so that they may serve G-d with one consent. For in that the whole world is full of the words of the Messiah, of the words of the Torah and the Commandments. These words have spread to the ends of the earth, even if many deny their binding character at the present day."

Shalom.

HAS GENTILE CHRISTIANITY LED ME TO BELIEVE IN THE WRONG JESUS?

The New Testament embodies a Christian myth of salvation. The previous statement introduces a familiar word, "myth," in an unfamiliar sense. In ordinary speech, a myth is an untrue story. When we say such and such is a myth, we mean that it is untrue and baseless. When scholars who study religion use the word, they understand it rather differently: they mean a story or group of images in which religious energy and emotion are invested. The story tells the members of the community who they are, giving the community its identity and distinguishing it from others. The myth is the charter of the religious community, the energy center by which it lives. This Christian myth deeply colors all we read about Jesus in the gospel story. But the Gospels could not altogether escape from history into myth, for the subject of their myth was a historical person. This fact makes it possible for critical history to recover at least the outlines of the real Jesus and to compare him with the way the myth depicted him. When we do so, we can see that even at the comparatively early stage in its development reflected in the Gospels, the myth was already strongly anti-Jewish.

Answer for yourself: Are you confident, as you understand Jesus, that there is not a great difference between the Jesus of the Christian myth and the real historical Jesus?

Answer for yourself: Are you currently aware that there is, despite what you have heard most likely in your church, a great gulf of historical and factual discrepancies that separate the Christ of faith from the Jesus of history?

Answer for yourself: What will you do when you see these differences, which brings the Christ of faith and its truthful representation into question, substantiate the historical Jesus as the only true Jesus that ever existed?

By the time the Gospels were being written, near the end of the first century, the stories about Jesus had taken on a transcendent and cosmic dimension. No longer a Jewish healer and teacher, but a triumphant hero and a savior figure, Jesus defeats his enemies on the supernatural plane, though defeated by them on the plane of history. Having conquered sin and death, he reigns as King on the right hand of God, while his followers await his triumphant return to history, still imminently expected.

As this myth took form, under various historical pressures, it came to level a deadly case against the Jews.

The case against the Jews turned on two charges:

- It was the Jews (not the Romans, as in historical reality) who were Jesus' earthly enemies, agents in fact of his supernatural foes, the forces of evil. They rejected the more spiritual teaching he brought them because they were attached to their old Law and could not see that Jesus' message of love and forgiveness had made it obsolete.
- Though their own Bible had clearly foretold his birth, death, resurrection, and all his doings, they rejected him as their Messiah because they found his claim to divinity blasphemous, condemning him to death and persuading the Romans to carry out the sentence, since they could not. And so they became the Christ-killers.

We shall look critically at the first of these charges in the present article, and the second in the next.

The myth sets Jesus and his own people at odds with each other, as bitter and irreconcilable opponents. As the developing myth came to exalt Jesus to divine status, his alleged quarrel with Judaism became a divine judgment on a faithless people. Critical history does not find such a quarrel: instead it finds Jesus the Jew, a prophetic teacher who loved the Torah, who wished that everyone would follow it from the heart. And it does not find Christ-killers, but at most, disagreement between Jesus and some other Jews on how best to reclaim sinners.

These are not just academic questions. Because Christians read the New Testament uncritically, through the myth, they came to distrust and often to hate Jews. Seeing the Jews as the Christ-killers, they saw them as belonging to the forces of evil, capable of all kinds of crimes. Viewing them as evil licensed them to inflict evil upon them in their turn. The modern secularized world abandoned the myth, but retained the "knowledge" that the Jews were bad. This "knowledge" made the Holocaust possible.

The rediscovery of the historical Jesus in modern times strikes a blow at the roots of the anti-Jewish myth. That is why it is important for both Christians and Jews, and even for secularized people, to know something of the findings of critical history about the real story of Jesus.

The best historical scholarship now available shows beyond reasonable doubt that both the charges the myth brings against the Jews are false.

Regardless of what your Pastor or Church has taught you, the real Jesus did not teach anything against the provisions of the Torah his people lived by; he lived by them himself-and therefore could not have been opposed by his fellow Jews for what he taught. He was not convicted of blasphemy in their highest court for any messianic claims and his people did not encompass his death on that account, or any other.

In the New Testament, however, the above Christian myth has been read back into the story of his life: many of the details of the story have been altered in the retelling to fit the new demands of the myth, thus producing a false picture of radical opposition between Jesus and other Jews, especially the Pharisees. Later beliefs about Jesus' messianic status were read back anachronistically, so that Jesus is depicted as claiming in his own lifetime to be what Christian theology would make him after his death. The Gospels speak for the Church, already a predominantly Gentile body, fast becoming in its own eyes the true Israel, the inheritor of all the promises, now lost by the Jews because of their unbelief in their Messiah.

All four of the Gospels in the New Testament were written, it now seems likely, by Gentile writers for Gentile audiences belonging to a movement that from its inception had abandoned the Jewish way of life and was unfamiliar with it. They take the stories about Jesus their predecessors had remembered out of their original Jewish context, putting them into a new one, the context of the rapidly growing salvation myth.

Even the original oral traditions, their sources, had no doubt often taken for granted the Jewish context of the stories, and therefore did not need to record it. This context would naturally have been familiar to those who originated the traditions, and to their first hearers, themselves Jewish. Later, Gentile readers of the gospel stories knew little of it. In reporting events in Jesus' life, the gospel writers sometimes display their own ignorance of Jewish beliefs and customs. At other times, they pass over or misunderstand them. They view the traditions they have received about Jesus through the situation of their own church in their own time, a Gentile movement now facing a radical breach with its Jewish parent.

Until modern times, Christians had always read the story of Jesus through this myth. They had learned the myth from parents and teachers before they began to read the New Testament; when they began to do so, their reading strongly reinforced the myth through which they read it. Most Christians still do read the Gospels in this way. Only those belonging to an instructed minority, conversant with the results of critical scholarship, have begun to question the old reading.

For the most part, profoundly ignorant of Judaism, Christians fail to understand the allusions to Jewish faith and life remaining in the Gospels and do not know how to supply them where they are missing. Thus the mythological aspects of the story seem plausible to them. Jewish readers are able to make these corrections, but until modern times they were discouraged from opening the New Testament at all. Even today they are liable to take the New Testament view of Jesus' relationship to his own people as correct, though they will evaluate the apparent conflict in a different way from Christian readers of the Gospels.

To read the stories correctly, we need knowledge and an imagination open to a Jewish world. We must now learn to extract the accounts of Jesus' sayings and doings from the later context of the myth and restore them to their original Jewish context. We will then find that authentic memories of the real Jesus have frequently survived. The outlines of a credible picture begin to emerge. It is not the picture of any kind of Christian but of a great Jew.

Answer for yourself: Are we guilty as Christians in falling into the trap of believing and following a religion based on what we have heard most of our lives in Church, only to find upon diligent study that we have been lied to and misled by our spiritual authorities?

Answer for yourself: Have we listened to others who have read back into the story of Jesus' life inherited fictional details created by the early Anti-Semitic Church?

Answer for yourself: Have we as Christians bought into the false picture of radical opposition between Jesus and other Jews, especially the Pharisees, when knowledge of Judaism reveals otherwise?

Answer for yourself: Have we put our faith into beliefs about Jesus' messianic status which were erroneously read back into his life and thereby accepting a false Jesus as depicted as claiming in his own lifetime to be what Gentile Anti-Semitic Christian theology would make him after his death?

Answer for yourself: Have we learned, before we learned to read and study for ourselves, the Jesus Christian myth from our parents and teachers, only to find when we study for ourselves, that previous beliefs given to us as children has strongly reinforced the myth through which we read the New Testament?

Answer for yourself: Have we been previously programmed to accept a lie foisted upon us by the anti-Semitism of the early Gentile Church?

Answer for yourself: When reading the New Testament, are we aware that the writers of the Gospels are Gentiles instead of Jews, and are we aware that such writers frequently reveal their own ignorance of Jewish beliefs and customs as recorded in the New Testament?

Answer for yourself: When reading the New Testament, are we aware that the Gentile writers of the Gospels frequently reveal their ignorance of Judaism, and that this brings into serious question any attempts to regard this literature as infallible, inerrant, or inspired?

Answer for yourself: Do you, as one who senses the seriousness of what we discuss, desire to go further in your studies in order to know for yourselves the truths concerning the real historical Jesus over against the Christ of faith created by the Gentile anti-Semitic Gentile Church?

The Gospels speak for the Church, already a predominantly Gentile body, fast becoming in its own eyes the true Israel, the inheritor of all the promises, now lost by the Jews because of their unbelief in their Messiah (or at least how it is depicted in the New Testament).

We need to consider some of the most important of Jesus' recorded sayings and doings. Many of the sayings of Jesus have been taken to mean that he intended to supersede standard Jewish teaching with a new message and that he was bitterly opposed for it. This is again the great error of the Christian myth. You will quickly find out for yourselves that those aspects of the Christian myth that present the Jewish people in a hostile light are devoid of historical foundation. Such is the great lie which undergirds all Christian theology today.

THE RELIGION OF YESHUA AND HOW IT CHANGED AFTER THE FIRST CENTURY

Answer for yourself: What would you do if you awoke one morning to find that the world you "knew" had changed?

The family you once had now consisted of "strangers" of whom you don't know. The car you had bought was now a different make from a different manufacturer. The language you had previously spoken was now changed because everyone else spoke a different dialect. The country in which you lived even had changed. Boy, I bet you would be surprised for everything was changed and different from what you had in the beginning. I am sure this would be a real shock to your system.

WELL...THE FAITH INTENDED BY YESHUA FOR THE GENTILE WORLD HAS CHANGED ...AND I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW IT

Answer for yourself: What if you were to study and find out that the faith you now cherish and practice was only a distant "shadow" of what was originally given by G-d in the beginning of the Church?

Answer for yourself: What if you were to find for yourself that "the teachings and doctrines" taken in the Great Commission to the Gentile world was subsequently changed from what was originally given by Yeshua?

Well, the same has happened to "the faith once given to the saints." The religion you practice as a "Christian" today is foreign from what the original church both cherished and practiced, let alone took to the nations of the world in the Great Commission. You may doubt such a broad statement, but if you have not studied or investigated the matter for yourself you are not qualified to judge, only learn and verify if what is said is correct linguistically, culturally, politically, religiously, and historically.

In order to inform you concerning the matter I have presented a list of question to which I will attempt to bring answers to better help your understanding of the corruption of the faith of Yeshua.

Answer for yourself: What biblical evidence do we have that church teachings were changed from what was taught in the 1st Century?

Paul, in 2 Thess. 2:1-2, refers to letters being sent to church members that falsely claim to represent his teaching to the church. (This epistle is generally believed to have been written about AD 52.)

Luke, in Acts 20:25-30, records Paul's farewell address to the Ephesian church elders, in which he warns that there would be men within the Ephesian church who would change church teachings. The irony that most Christians fail to see due to their lack of study and knowledge concerning the "Pauline Problem," is that it was Paul who was ultimately changing the faith of Jesus and the teachings of the Jerusalem church.

Jude, who was the brother of Yeshua, wrote about men within the church who had already changed church teachings, in verses 3 and 4 of his epistle. (This epistle is generally believed to have been written about AD 68.)

A TRUE PICTURE OF THE EARLY CHURCH

Answer for yourself: What are some of the typical beliefs of the early church as recorded in the New Testament?

- They believed in a traditional Jewish concept of G-d, referring to Him with Hebrew terminology. (Mark 14:36, Rom. 8:15, Gal. 4:6). This was an ethical monotheism and not a Trinitarianism.
- They believed in the traditional Jewish concept of man, his mortality and ultimate resurrection from the dead. (Acts 23:8, I Cor. 15:13-17).
- They believed that non-Jews who became Christians were grafted into a pre-existing Jewish relationship with G-d (not separate from Biblical Judaism), responsible for their own specific Covenant with HaShem, and it was understood that the Gentiles could share what had already been made available to the Jews. (Rom. 11:13-22, Acts 11:18).
- They worshipped on the Jewish Sabbath (Saturday and not Sunday), as did the non-Jewish converts (Gentile believers like you and me) who were called "G-d-fearers". (Acts 10:22; 13:16,42-44; 17:2-4).
- They looked forward to the literal fulfillment of prophecies about the Messiah reigning in His kingdom on earth, as promised in the Jewish bible. (Acts 1:6, 2 Tim. 2:8-12; 4:1, 2 Pet. 3:2-4, Titus 2:12-13)
- "The earliest Christians were Jews, and in their new faith they found a continuity with the old. They remembered that their Lord himself said that his purpose was to fulfill, not to abolish the law and the prophets; and it was useless for heretics to deny this saying."
- "The Jewish Christians...continued to observe Sabbaths, circumcision, and other Jewish Feasts...From Irenaeus onwards, Jewish Christianity is treated as a deviationist sect rather than as a form of Christianity with the best claims to continuity with the practice of the primitive Church."

There is an almost universal agreement among scholars in the field that the first Christians considered themselves well within the traditions of Judaism.

THE MAJOR INFLUENCES WHICH MOVED THE EARLY CHURCH AWAY FROM BIBLICAL FAITH

Four major causes of change were:

- Greek ideas about the nature of G-d and man.
- Roman anti-Jewish sentiments.
- Rejection of the seventh day Sabbath.
- Harmonizing the Old Testament with Greek philosophy.

I strongly suggest that as you read the following you ask yourself if you have not been swallowed up in such deception.

Answer for yourself: What was the nature of G-d, as understood by the first Christians?

The Jews and early Christians defined G-d by His actions, and how He related to man. They spoke of His being merciful, loving, faithful, etc. He was personal in that He related to people in a very personal way. He called Abraham His friend and refers to David as a man after His own heart. G-d was seen as a personal and intimate Father, "Abba". Though awesome, He was not a remote figure.

Answer for yourself: What was the contemporary Greek conception of the nature of G-d?

Greek thinkers attempted to define G-d by what He was, as opposed to the G-d of the Bible, who is defined there by what He does. Greek thinkers attempted to define the essence of G-d, rather than define Him by His character. This Greek god was the god of Plato. He was a non-corporeal, remote, and unapproachable being. And while he might not have the wrath of an angry G-d of the Old Testament, he also lacked the warmth and personality of that same G-d. This Greek or platonic god floated far above the affairs of man and he had no body, which differed from the biblical concept that man was made in His likeness.

Answer for yourself: Did Greek philosophy change the traditional Jewish beliefs among the early Christians?

"But the 'de-Judaization' of Christianity was not expressed only by the place accorded to Judaism by Christian theologians. A more subtle and more pervasive effect of this process is evident in the development of various Christian doctrines themselves. Among these, the doctrine of G-d and the doctrine of man bear marks of de-Judaization."

Answer for yourself: How did Plato's concept of G-d influence church teachings?

The influence of Plato on Clement of Alexandria, a well known Christian thinker of the late 2nd century, was so great that "Clement's doctrine of creation in some ways owed more to Plato than to Moses."

"The idea of the immortal and rational soul is part of the Greek inheritance in Christian doctrine."

Answer for yourself: What was the result of mixing Greek philosophy with the beliefs of the early church?

The gnostic heretic Marcion, of the 2nd century, stated that only Paul had transmitted the gospel correctly [what a joke!]. The original intent of both Yeshua and Paul according to Marcion, had been to separate the concepts of law and gospel, and this effort had been thwarted by none other than the other apostles. He taught that the Epistle to the Galatians had been Paul's attack on the other apostles.

"This makes Marcion an important figure, not only in the history of the development of doctrine, but also in the history both of the text and the canon of the New Testament."

"Marcion.....listed 'contradictions' between the old and the new testaments to prove that the G-d of the Jews.....was quite different from G-d, the father of Yeshua."

Answer for yourself: What role did Roman anti-Jewish sentiments play in changing Christian belief and practice?

"What was offensive about Christianity in the eyes of gentiles was what it had inherited from Judaism....Gentile converts to Christianity demanded a decision about just how much of the Jewish tradition they were obliged to retain...

"Virtually every major Christian writer of the first five centuries either composed a treatise in opposition to Judaism or made this issue a dominant theme in a treatise devoted to some other subject...

"The most important early heresies were not Jewish, but anti-Jewish in their inspiration."

Answer for yourself: How were Christians who continued in the beliefs of the early church seen by those who adopted the influence of Greek philosophy?

"The Jewish Christians.....continued to observe sabbaths, circumcision, and other Jewish Feasts. As this distressed many gentile Christians, they (the Jewish Christians) became a lonely unsupported group. From Irenaeus onwards, Jewish Christianity is treated as a deviationist sect rather than as a form of Christianity with the best claims to continuity with the practice of the primitive Church."

Answer for yourself: What contemporary writings of the period expressed anti-Jewish sentiments?

"The Epistle of Barnabas, an early 2nd century document, went so far as to condemn Jewish fasts, as not true fasts, and claimed that G-d had given to the Christians the testament that Moses broke....it claims that the true Sabbath was no longer the seventh day but the eighth. The Epistle of Barnabas.....claimed that the original tablets of the covenant of the Lord were shattered at Sinai and that Israel had never had an authentic covenant with G-d."

"Virtually every major Christian writer of the first five centuries either composed a treatise in opposition to Judaism or made this issue a dominant theme in a treatise devoted to some other subject..."

Answer for yourself: What was the Quarto-Deciman Controversy?

This name derives from the Latin word for fourteen, because Passover is on the 14th day of the first month of the Jewish calendar. There was an effort by a secession of Bishops of Rome to rid themselves of the observance of the Passover ceremony. Anicetus, who was bishop of Rome circa AD 155, tried, around the year AD 160, to outlaw the observance of Passover as a method of avoiding the charge of Judaizing Christianity. He ran into considerable opposition from Polycarp, bishop of Smyrna, a Christian leader of great age and esteem from Asia minor. Polycarp had studied under the apostle John in his youth and was well respected in the Christian community throughout the Roman Empire. Polycarp claimed to observe the Passover because it was taught to him by the Apostle John, who got it from Yeshua Himself.

Answer for yourself: What happened to the practice of Passover observance?

By AD 180, both Anicetus and Polycarp had passed from the scene. Victor, the current Bishop of Rome, excommunicated all who insisted on keeping the Passover. He successfully suppressed the Passover observance, at least in the western part of the empire, and the pagan holiday of Easter was introduced into Rome.

Answer for yourself: What happened to the practice of Sabbath observance?

The diminution of the Sabbath appears to have coincided with the period of the two violent, bloody revolts by the Jewish nation against the Romans in AD 70 and AD 135. It was at that time that anti-Jewish feelings were especially high. It may be easily assumed that gentile Christians had little desire to be painted with the same brush of hatred and Roman approbation which colored their Jewish brethren. This may have been especially true during the AD 135 revolt when emperor Hardrian, outlawed and suppressed Jewish customs and practices. By the time of the council of Laodicea in AD 362, the Sabbath had gone from a commanded assembly, in the early Christian community, to a day which was forcefully condemned by church leaders: "Christians must not Judaize by resting on the Sabbath, but must work on that day."

Answer for yourself: Why was Greek philosophy introduced by Christian scholars?

Christianity, while being a product of the Old Testament and Judaic thought, existed in a Greek world. Greek thought supplied the intellectual foundation for the Roman Empire. It was Roman law and Roman might coupled with Greek thought and philosophy which characterized the 2nd century. Christian leaders in the second century supported the use of Greek philosophy because it provided the intellectual tools to answer questions that did not seem to be adequately answered in the Bible (such as the nature of G-d). But those same scholars expressed caution lest Christianity become a mere play-thing of Greek thought.

Answer for yourself: Why did many lay members of the church welcome the use of Greek philosophy by their church leaders?

Much of the Roman empire was virulently anti-Jewish, especially after the revolts in Judea of AD 70 and AD 135. Christianity was considered a mere schism of Judaism, such that animosity was visited upon Christian and Jew alike. Any effort to move Christianity away from its Judaic roots and its adherence to the Old Testament to a more acceptable and accepted philosophical stance was welcomed by many.

Answer for yourself: What answer was given by proponents of Greek philosophy to those who objected to its use to explain the scriptures?

It was argued that both John and Paul had used some motifs from Greek philosophy in their writings, and that this was the sanction for the wholesale application of Greek philosophy to scripture.

Clement of Alexandria went so far as to offer that just as the scriptures had been given the Jews, philosophy had been given to the Greeks in order to bring all to salvation.

Answer for yourself: What is a concrete example of how Greek philosophy was used to explain the Bible?

The idea of an immortal soul is not found in the Bible, but it is found throughout the writings of Plato and his students. Origen found a way to equate the stories of the resurrection in the Bible with the idea of an immortal soul and thus harmonize the non-biblical teaching of an immortal soul with the scripture.

Answer for yourself: Were there any dissenting voices regarding the use of Greek philosophy to interpret the Bible, during the 2nd Century?

Yes, Tertullian, another church writer of the second century sounded a clear warning of this dangerous tendency by crying to all who would hear: "What has Athens to do with Jerusalem? What concord is there between the Academy and the Church? What between heretics and Christians?" Tertullian, at the time he wrote this, clearly considered the mixing of the Bible with the alien element of Greek philosophy to be heretical.

Answer for yourself: Who was Justin Martyr?

Justin Martyr (100-165) was one of the first church fathers to champion the cause of Greek philosophy. He was a former philosophy student, much taken with the teachings of Plato and the first to suggest that Plato had read the writings of Moses and presumably expounded upon them in his own teachings. (No actual historical evidence suggests that this was true, but Justin's motives were not historical. They were motivated by the effort to have Greek philosophy accepted into the Christian community.) Justin Martyr also stated, concerning his own conversion to Christianity, "I confess that I both boast myself.....a Christian; not because the teachings of Plato are different from those of Christ, but because they are not in all respects similar as neither are those of others." Justin Martyr thereby set out to merge the two "philosophies" of Christ and Plato. The future of Christian thought lay with programs first announced by Justin Martyr, by which the Church would make common cause with Platonic metaphysics and Stoic ethics in an effort to make the transcendent god of Plato as the G-d of the Bible. Justin had taken into Christianity a quantity of Platonic and Stoic philosophy.....(which) raised the question to what extent the Christian church in Justin and his successors, affiliated the church to Greek learning and philosophy, and secondly to what extent this was a bad thing, for it changed the very character of the faith.

Answer for yourself: Who was Clement of Alexandria?

Clement of Alexandria (150-215) was one of the chief architects of the merging of Christianity with Greek philosophy. Clement was a brilliant and prolific writer who has been described in the following manner: "Clement has been represented as a thorough-going hellenizer, who trimmed the Christian faith to suit.....an alien philosophy. (He) therefore appealed to them (Greek Christians) by blending scripture and Homer." Clement said that Greek philosophy was to the Greeks what the Bible had been to the Jews, that is a guide to G-d. Clement was, like Justin, more than willing to blend a lot of Plato with a little Moses. Clement has been called "The connecting link" between Christianity and Greek thought.

Answer for yourself: Who was Origen?

Origen (185-254) was a former philosophy student and resident of Alexandria, Egypt. He was perhaps more brilliant and certainly more daring in his stretching of the boundaries of Christianity than were Justin and Clement. Origen began to look at the Bible as a philosopher would look at any other text. He used biblical text as a springboard from which to leap to higher and more spiritual meanings than might appear on the surface of the text. The entire Old Testament was therefore to be read, not as an historical record but as a kind of message in cipher, to be interpreted by those fit to do so. Origen thus turned all the Bible, and especially the old testament, into a document of symbolism not to be taken historically or at face value by the reader, but to be interpreted by the wise philosopher through platonic thought. Platonic thought did not so much replace the Bible; it simply became its interpreter!

CONCLUSION

Having understood the material presented concerning the origin of Gentile Christianity and its split from Jewish Christianity, it is time to return to "the faith once given to the saints." Whenever and wherever a group of Christians begin to discover the beauty and holiness of meeting together outside of man-made religious traditionalism, they will have a sparkling revival in their souls and an enthusiasm that cannot be abated. They will discover anew the realism and vitality of G-d's Holy Word and turn from every pollution of man's religious invention. Like the kings of Judah of old - Asa, Jehoshaphat, Hezekiah and Josiah - they will clean out of their lives the idolatry and paganism of our modern "high places." In addition they will reactivate for themselves the only efficient system that Almighty G-d has designed - which is the proper spiritual church life as exemplified in the pages of the Greek Scriptures as seen in the "G-d-fearers" within Messianic Judaism. Nor will they hesitate to implement proper disciplinary judgment, that of necessity, must accompany such profession of godliness (see 2 Chronicles 19:5-5 and 1 Corinthians 5:1-13). When this enthusiasm is truly heaven-inspired, unselfish and unprideful, there will once again be granted to them the privilege of functioning in a local congregation as G-d intended it.

HOW DID WE LOSE THE FAITH ONCE GIVEN TO THE SAINTS?

Scholars, historians, and sincere clerics agree that during the first 200 years following the deaths of the Apostles, drastic, un-scriptural changes came about within the early Assembly that would flourish down to our day. It was prophesied in the Bible. But the Bible also speaks of a "remnant" who will be adhering to the original, scriptural truths in these last days. Understand what happened, and the urgent need today to return to the "faith which was once delivered to the saints"! (Jude 3)

"As the apostolic age comes to a close, the Church seems to pass through a dark tunnel. When it comes out at the other side, the original bond of unity, the clear Standards, and the love of [Yahweh] seem to have been replaced by an unsettling, institutionalized spirit of domination and by beliefs which are more Gnostic than Christian. What happened? We are now confronted with the possibility that the original identity and true definition of Christianity have become lost." --The Apostasy of the Lost Century.

Answer for yourself: Has Gentile Christianity since the first century twisted much of the Bible's truth, thereby making itself guilty of teaching another gospel, another doctrine? IT SURE HAS!

Answer for yourself: Can you explain why a movement identifying itself so closely with the Messiah today, Christianity for example, teaches often doctrines opposite of what He taught?

Answer for yourself: Are you even aware that Gentile Christianity is guilty of changing the gospel (good news) and teachings of Yeshua?

THE PREACHING OF ANOTHER GOSPEL

Through much Bible and historical study, I as well as multitudes of others, have drawn conclusions that differed from what is routinely taught in nominal Christianity throughout our land.

Answer for yourself: Should we need a priest or minister to interpret for us what the Bible says?

Surely the Creator of this universe would not leave an instruction Book for man that humble, sincere, truth-seeking people could not properly understand! But one thing is different today. Living in the Western Hemisphere make rendering and interpreting a Hebrew book quite difficult without adequate preparation on our parts.

Answer for yourself: Is truth that leads to salvation so complicated that it can be grasped only by those with seminary degrees in Bible interpretation, and how do we explain the multitudes of diversity in doctrines that exist in more than 2 thousand different and competing Christian denominations?

THE TRANSLATORS HAVE BEEN LESS THAN TRUTHFUL DUE TO ## THEIR RELIGIOUS BIASES

With the help of today's concordances, lexicons, dictionaries, and other Bible study helps, we can come to a better understanding of many archaic words and renditions found in the King James Bible.

As we move closer to the end of the age, knowledge of the Bible's true message shall be increased, Daniel 12:4. At the same time there will be a restoring of original truth neglected through the centuries, Acts 3:21. We see this last-days movement to restore Biblical truth spear-headed in the restoration of the Hebraic Roots to the Gentile Christian church today.

Most of us with a little study can easily find a number of incongruities and even serious errors perpetuated by churchianity.

For example, the name "Yeshua" appears in Acts 7:45 in the King James, which obviously refers to Joshua the son of Nun, the great Israelite general. Hebrews 4:8 is another place where Joshua-or more correctly Yeshua should appear in the King James Bible. The newer Bible versions recognize this error and have since changed the name to the Latinized "Joshua" in both Acts and Hebrews. These are definitive examples revealing that the name Yeshua (later altered to Joshua) was changed wholesale to "Yeshua" by translators!

The average churchgoer has no idea what the word "Christ" means or where it came from. Bible dictionaries show that "Christ" derives from the Greek christos (Strong's Concordance Greek Dictionary No. 5547, from "chrío" meaning to anoint or rub with oil). It means anointed, as does the Hebrew meshiach.

Answer for yourself: Why would a Jewish "Savior", speaking Hebrew, be given the Greek title "Christ?"

Yeshua himself said our salvation is of the Jews (not Greeks, John 4:22). Acts 1:6-7 indicates that the Kingdom will be restored to Israel and not Rome or Athens. Yet English Bibles contain the Greek title "Christ."

Answer for yourself: Why was it not properly translated "Anointed"?

One would be more correct to refer to the Jewish "Savior/Anointed" by His Hebrew title "Messiah" rather than identifying Him by a title that is "Greek" to most people today.

It does seem rather strange that the Greek title "Christos" is transliterated (that is, brought over into English with the same sound), yet the Name of Yahweh and Yeshua are both translated by the English "Lord" in our New Testament. Too often in the King James Version the word "Lord" leaves us in doubt who is meant), Yahweh the Father or Yeshua the Son (see Acts 2:34, Heb. 10:30 and many others).

STRANGE CUSTOMS AND PRACTICES

There is a grass roots religious or spiritual movement afoot around the world to free mankind from the shackles of pagan customs and beliefs. Bet Emet Ministries is one such ministry. This is true not only in the United States, but also in Europe and the Middle East. This spiritual revival seeks the old paths of truth by restoring the Hebrew Roots of Christianity.

The problem with mankind is simply one of human nature and sin. Yahweh clearly defines sin for us:

"Whosoever commits sin transgresses also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law." (1 John 3:4)

We cannot do things as we alone see fit, but are obligated to follow His instructions, living His way. He is the final Judge. When our lives are over and we are in the grave, Almighty Yahweh will be the One who matters.

So we must please Him now, while we can.

As we near the end of the age it appears that Yahweh is moving to clear from the minds of sincere truth seekers the accumulated rubbish of pagan influence that has overwhelmed and saturated the faith once delivered unto the saints.

Religious error is evident everywhere, yet the majority attending weekly church services are ignorant of the subtle and pervasive influence of pagan customs. Christianity perpetuates the error instead of rejecting paganism and retracing its steps back to truth

ITS HARD TO TEACH OLD DOGS NEW TRICKS

It is no secret that the first Israelite Bishops and overseers were replaced at death by converts from paganism. Brumback's History Of The Church states on page 53, "The Roman emperor, by the office of Pontifex Maximus, directed all religious affairs. When Christianity became the state religion, Constantine [ruling 306-337] assumed all of the authority in the church, which he had exercised as supreme director of paganism."

As more pagans were supposedly converted to Yeshua, the true Redeemer of Israel, the more difficult it was to resist the strong influence of pagan practices and customs they brought along. Halley's Bible Handbook includes a section on church history entitled "Paganization of the Church," which aptly details what happened since the time of Constantine who was the first Christian emperor.

While Constantine did not make Christianity the state religion, he favored Christians in official appointments and positions. After his death, other Roman emperors favored Christianity above all else. Note Halley's comments:

"Emperor Theodosius, 378-395 CE, made Christianity the state Religion of the Roman Empire, and made Church Membership Compulsory. This was the Worst Calamity that has ever befallen the Church. The forced conversion filled the Churches with unregenerate people...

"But now the military spirit of Imperial Rome had entered the Church. The Church had conquered the Roman empire, but in reality the Roman Empire had conquered the Church, by making the Church into the image of the Roman Empire...

"The Imperial Church of the 4th and 5th centuries had become an entirely different institution from the persecuted Church of the first three centuries. In its ambition to Rule it lost and forgot the spirit of [Messiah].

"Worship, at first very simple, was developed into elaborate, stately, imposing ceremonies having all the outward splendor that had belonged to heathen temples...

There were mass conversion of the Barbarians. There is only one problem. There was little repentance and instruction, and they amounted to false conversions. The Gothes, Vandals and Huns who overthrew the Roman Empire accepted Christianity; but to a large extent their conversion was nominal; and this further filled the Church with pagan practices..." p. 867, Halley's Bible Handbook.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF JEWISH CHRISTIANITY INTO A GENTILE ABERRATION OF BIBLICAL TRUTH

Historians attest to the change that came over the early fledgling Assemblies following the death of the Apostles, all of whom had been Jews. It is as if a curtain had come down upon their activities, and when it is raised a hundred years or so later, an entirely different situation is seen. Syncretism-the merging of pagan practices with Bible truth-is obvious everywhere. The heathens continued keeping their former pagan ways, but under a new name and with a slightly different meaning.

Man's desire to do things his way, rebelling against the commands of Yahweh, started back in the Garden with Adam and Eve. Rebellion continued, forcing Yahweh to intervene through the flood, the tower of Babel, and even while the Israelites were being fed manna and having Moses lead them to the Promised Land. Isaiah's opening chapter is a condemnation of His chosen people. Rebellion against Yahweh's law continues and is becoming even more evident today.

The point of Isaiah's rebuke and that of Yeshua reveals that the syncretism has continued throughout history. Carnal man has continued to inject his own thoughts and concepts in his worship and thus early on contaminated the True Worship of our pure and holy Creator Yahweh.

WE HAVE FAILED TO LEARN THE LESSONS OF HISTORY

Having come out of Egypt, and recalling that pagans worshipped a golden calf, Israel decided they would have a visible object that they could see, handle and touch to represent the invisible Yahweh, Exodus 32:4. The clear warning in Exodus 20:1-5 was that under no circumstances were they to follow the idolatrous practices of the pagans in the land they were to possess.

Israel's covenant was to follow the teachings of Moses and so be a light to the Gentile nations around them. The Gentile pagan nations were not to be a light to Israel. Israel's mission was to be a model nation and to lead others in the pure worship of Yahweh. This is clear from Isaiah 27:6: "He shall cause them that come of Jacob to take root: Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit."

Psalms 80:8-11 clearly shows that what Yahweh sought from Israel, His vineyard, did not become a fruit of righteousness. His people were soon removed from their favored and unique position among all peoples and sent into exile.

Answer for yourself: What happened?

Israel had become ensnared in the worship practices of the pagans about them. Instead of holding Yahweh's way of life-with its many blessings and security-as an example to the world, Israel took up pagan ways, turning their backs on pure worship given in the Bible.

When Israel finally went into the Promised Land, it was a new generation, a people that had seen the miracle of the daily manna being provided for them, and the presence of Yahweh in the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night.

This new generation of Israelites should have gotten the paganism of Egypt out of their system. They had among them Moses and the tabernacle with a functioning priesthood to keep them mindful of the goodness and bounty of Yahweh's providence. All of this to no avail.

After the death of Moses, Israel, instead of driving out the inhabitants to a man, tolerated pagans, married them, thus absorbing their heathen worship and practices. The Gentile Church as done the same

The pagan nations were still in the land at the time of David and Solomon and were a snare to them.

Eventually, the false religions of the world so corrupted the Chosen People that Yahweh divorced them spiritually.

Answer for yourself: Is G-d the same yesterday, today, and forever?

Now pay attention to the next question.

Answer for yourself: If G-d who is the same yesterday, today, and forever, divorced His people and "cut them off" from Himself and commanded His people to divorce their Gentile wives because of the pagan worship practices that they brought into Israel, can G-d do any less with us who practice and observe pagan holidays in the Church and substitute pagan "sabbaths" for the Sabbaths of G-d? You better think deeply before you give a quick answer.

One only has to read Matt. 7: 18-21 to find that many will come to Messiah Yeshua thinking that they have done many wonderful works in "His name" only to hear "depart from me I never knew you..because you work and practice iniquity." What we fail to understand is that the Greek word for "iniquity" means those who are not submitted to or ignorant of the Laws of Moses, especially Gentiles. If we were not ignorant of such Laws we would see specifically that G-d has commanded how He is to be worshipped, and no where in these Laws and Commandments can we find the holidays observed in the Christian Church today, instead, we find the opposite....a complete calendar of Jewish Holy Days which by in large is neglected.

IF WE DO NOT LEARN FROM HISTORY... IT REPEATS ITSELF

History repeated itself centuries later after the Messiah left His group of 12 disciples and returned to the heavens. The first disciples were all Israelites, as were the first bishops. Within the first hundred years, however, the "called-out ones" no longer were of the characteristic Hebrew flavor. Paganism had moved in and taken over.

Yeshua came to bring us the pure religion of Yahweh, teaching us to follow His ways instead of carnal, human understanding.

Historically we see that Christianity, when it departed from its Jewish Roots rejected the Hebrew religion, which led to a despising of the Mosaic Law given by Yahweh Himself to man (Rev. 22:14). Instead, Gentile Christianity tolerated and absorbed prior pagan customs and teachings in flagrant violation of Scripture.

The Oxford Illustrated History of Christianity, commenting on the widespread infusion of pagan influence, on page 84 states: "The 'opaque' areas of experience, of institutions and daily living, if they had not disappeared by [Pope] Gregory's time had become absorbed into a Christian universe as translucent parts. In principle, there was nothing that could not be absorbed into the radically Christian world."

The religion of modern churchianity has absorbed many foreign doctrines that have no basis in the Bible Yeshua used...but are rooted in Myster Pagan Religions

Answer for yourself: Could many today in the church be likened to the rebellious Israelites who took up whatever new worldly fad or liberal trend came upon the scene? You better believe it! Yahweh is completely out of their thoughts.

"And even as they did not like to retain Yahweh in their knowledge, Yahweh gave them up to a reprobate mind [unfit to pass judgment], to do those things which are not convenient: being filled with all unrighteousness...who knowing the judgment of Yahweh, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them," Romans 1:28-29, 32.

BAPTIZED WITHOUT REPENTANCE....THATS OUR PROBLEM TODAY

Historians attest to the change that came over the early fledgling Assemblies following the death of the Apostles. With the exception of Luke, all the New Testament writers were Jews. They had grown up following Israelite customs, keeping the Saturday Sabbath, the annual Feast Days and hearing the Torah (Law) read to them each Sabbath. Yet, there are those who contend that these Jews were dyed-in-the-wool Christians and wrote their books of the New Testament in Greek! Current scholarship since the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls has proved this 1700 year Catholic tradition totally bogus.

Syncretism (the merging of paganism with Bible truth) is obvious everywhere. The pagans continued keeping their pagan ways, but under a new name and with a slightly different meaning.

The Oxford History of Christianity, on page 85 states, "Baptism turned a pagan into a Christian...What constituted a 'pagan' was a matter of definition by clerical authority; in practice it meant what evaded the bishop's control. Gregory the Great's decision that English converts to Christianity might continue to use their traditional places of worship provided they were sprinkled with holy water was a revolutionary extension of clerical tolerance, with momentous implications for later missionary activity."

All of this is to say the pagans were baptized, but returned to their former houses of idolatry and continue to worship as before. Only the name had been changed to gain larger numbers of converts...we call this event Christianity today

THE FACTS...ONCE YOU KNOW THEM...ARE QUITE DISTURBING

The following is taken from the book, The Jewish Christians of the Early Centuries of Christianity According to a New Source, written by Shlomo Pines. The Islamic historian reveals much about growing dissension between Jews and Christians shortly after Messiah Yeshua's time and the blending of pagan beliefs brought into Christianity by the growing number of gentile converts.

Pines makes revealing comments from his vantage point of an outside spectator, namely, as an observer of the history of the two distinct groups which emerged from Judaism-Christianity and Islam.

First, there were Jewish Christians who adhered to the teachings of Moses. Beginning with the Apostles, the first converts to the Messiah were from Judaism, especially from the synagogues where the Apostles went to preach.

Later came the torrent of Gentile converts who are referred to simply as "Christians." While the Jewish Christians continued keeping of the law and the ways taught by Yeshua the Messiah, those converts coming from non-Israelite nations became known as Gentile Christians (whom author Pines refers to only as "Christians"). These retained their many heathen doctrines, blending them into "Christianity."

Shlomo Pines writes of the early centuries of Christianity and states, "The original Gospel was regarded as written in Hebrew." He goes on to point out what history has verified, that the Gentile converts to the Messiah no longer used the Hebrew texts to bring about the conversion of many other nations. Because of the infusion of foreign doctrines by Christianity, the Gentile bishops and teachers avoided the Hebrew Scriptures, relying mostly on the Greek texts. Pines tells us why in this eye-opening statement:

In their view, this was a deliberate policy on the part of the Christian leaders, who did not want to have their doctrines demolished by the Jewish scholars grounded in the Jewish Scriptures who were numerous among the Jews

It is noteworthy that this Islamic writer is acutely aware of the many un-scriptural doctrines of early Gentile Christianity. Gentile Christians had abandoned the Commandments of the Old Testament (Torah) and substituted alien laws and heathen customs and practices.

Rather than evangelize the nations around them through the authentic Hebrew Scriptures, the Christian leaders from Gentile backgrounds avoided the Hebrew texts because so many of their "Chrisian" doctrines were nowhere found in the Bible Yeshua used

Thus, they avoided any clash with those knowledgeable of the Hebrew Scriptures which condemned taking on any aspect of worship foreign to the Word of Yahweh.

Author Pines contends that Emperor Constantine turned against the pagan philosophers and adds, "The philosophers' books were burnt and monks were lodged in their temples, which were transformed into churches (or monasteries)" p. 30.

UN-SCRIPTURAL TEACHINGS REPLACE G-D'S TRUTH

That the pagan temples were turned into churches or monasteries explains the heathen derivation of the word "church" used in the King James and other Bibles. The Greek word ekklesia literally means "the called-out ones," which carries the same meaning as the Hebrew "kahal." Ekklesia refers to a body of people, not a building. The word "church" is a poor translation of ekklesia. Church refers to the building, coming to us through the Anglo-Saxon circe. Circe was the Greek goddess who turned men into swine. In Scottish the word is kirk, relating to the Hebrew kikkar, meaning a circuit or disc-the sun! The ancient link to sun worship (on Sun-day) is undeniable.

Following are excerpts taken from Pines' work.

"The Romans and the Greeks had a feast called the Nativity of Time, which celebrated the return of the sun in January. They introduced into it various modifications and called it 'The Nativity of [Messiah]' or the Nativity. This feast was unknown at the time of [Yeshua] and of His companions.

"The Jewish Christians...are not vegetarians and they do not reject certain portions of the Old Testament. Like the Jewish Christians of our texts, they are, as far as the observance of commandments is concerned, orthodox Jews...They thus carried on the old tradition of the first Christian community of Jerusalem..."

A footnote on page 39 reveals, "Strecker points out that the Jewish Christian doctrine started out by being the Christian church doctrine and became a heresy only in the wars of historical evolution."

In other words, paganism and worldly doctrines infiltrated the early body of believers and corrupted it. As more pagan converts became "Christians," they flooded the church with their traditional practices that soon were "baptized" by the Christian clergy and absorbed as doctrine. This is how Sunday, New Year's, Xmas, Easter, Lent, Halloween, Valentine's Day, and much more crept into and became "holy-days" (holidays) of churchianity.

THE PARTING OF THE 2 PATHS

The early movement saw one group of Christians as rooted in the teachings of Messiah which still clung to Israelite laws. These converted Jews known as "Jewish-Christians" continued to meet in the synagogues of the Jews as did Paul, Acts 13:14; 15; 42; 14:1.

The other group, composed mostly of Gentile converts, took on Grecian culture and Hellenistic customs and were simply called "Christians." According to Pines, this latter group [Gentile converts] brought about "the abandonment and portrayal of what is regarded as true Christianity and its replacement by Greek notions and ways. It is the relation of a historic failure; victory rests with the agents of corruption," page 14.

In other words, the flood of pagan converts to Christianity soon overwhelmed the pristine truth of the Messiah, and Christianity became tainted.

Christians today, many unknowingly, observe more pagan carry-overs than days plainly commanded in the Bible.

These popular days include Sunday (a day historically set aside in honor of the sun), Easter (the day honoring Astarte, alias Ishtar and Ostra, Chaldean Queen of Heaven) Xmas (midwinter solar-fertility celebration), Lent (40-day fast for Ostra), New Year's (near the midwinter solstice instead of the Biblical spring), Valentine's Day (Roman fertility celebration), Halloween (demonic observance), and many others.

There is no teaching or foundation for any of these "Christian holidays" anywhere in the Bible. They are the concepts and doctrines of men, firmly embedded in Christianity through centuries of tradition and practice.

Pines continues: "After Him [Yeshua] His disciples were with the Jews and the Children of Israel in the latter's synagogues and observed the prayers and the feasts of (the Jews) in the same place as the latter'" (page 41).

The early believers (referred to by Pines as "Jewish-Christians") continued on with the worship of Israel by observing the weekly Sabbath, the annual Holy Days, and heard the preaching of the Old Testament along with the prayers of the Jews. They continued meeting in the Jewish synagogues just as did the Messiah and the Apostles.

A decided difference soon arose between the "Jewish Christians" and "Christianity" itself.

The true believers continued with the "Jewish" worship based on Yahweh's immutable law, while Christianity had amalgamated into its doctrines almost every foreign belief and practice necessary to accommodate the new convert. Accepting Christianity for the pagan was made easy. For him his old ways remained the same, only the names had been changed

TRUE WORSHIPERS WERE ALARMED BY SUCH CHANGES...ARE YOU?

The Jewish Christians were deeply concerned about events that had corrupted many converts to the Messiah through the Roman Caesars and the "'Romanization' of Christianity," according to Pines.

"...Jewish Christian authors of our texts and presumably other members of their sect may have been the only people in the world-at the relatively late period (perhaps the fifth or sixth century) at which these texts were composed-who still deplored the split of Judaism and Christianity, two religions which should have remained one. They also deplored the fact that the Christians (or perhaps only most of them) no longer read the Gospels in Hebrew, the language of [Yeshua], and all the prophets. Quite clearly, these Jewish Christians believed that they preserved and continued (perhaps clandestinely) the traditions of the first not yet corrupted Christian community of Jerusalem founded by the immediate disciples of [Yeshua] who professed His religion, i.e...observed the Mosaic Commandments," p. 65.

Author Shlomo Pines summarizes the accounts of other historians who maintained that the early believers in the Messiah still observed the Sabbaths and the Annual Holy Days.

Paganism proceeded apace and soon overwhelmed Biblical truth, replacing Scriptural customs and celebrations with paganized additions and substitutes

HISTORY DOES NOT LIE

While the comments of historian Pines are revealing, they are by no means unique. Many astute historians who are aware of the vast changes that took place from the time of the Messiah until now corroborate what we have read.

Luther H. Martin's book Hellenistic Religions reads on pages 118-119, "One of the first issues to be debated by Christians was whether they were a new religion... These early Jewish Christians understood Christianity in terms of its Jewish past and they continued their observance of Jewish ritual practices exemplified by dietary requirements and circumcision." Tracing the history of paganism, Martin writes, "...and by the second century, Christianity had assumed many of the forms and practices of the mystery cults" p. 162.

Brumback's History of the Church, referring to the beginning of the true Assembly at Pentecost in 31 C.E., reveals, "In its practices that are common in the religious world today were not found," p. 19. Author Brumback explains that the early church did not celebrate many of the holidays observed by most of churchianity today, which we have mentioned.

Then follows an explanation of the pagan source of Lent. "The word 'Lent' is derived from the old English word 'Lencten' which means spring. It was connected with a pagan feast that was celebrated in honor of the goddess 'Ostra,' the goddess of the east. The sacrifices to this deity were offered just about the time of the Passover and in this way it became associated with the resurrection of [Messiah] which followed the Jewish Passover.

"Not until the Council of Nice (325 C.E.) decreed that Easter should be kept on Sunday next after the full moon on or after the vernal equinox, was there a definite day for the observance of Easter. Here is the evidence that it has a human origin, as it was not known until after the fourth century just when Easter would be," p. 20.

Easter is not a Bible celebration. It is found in only one place in the King James, at Acts 12:4, a woeful mistranslation of the Greek Pascha, or the Passover.

Author Brumback goes on to explain in fuller detail a bit of Easter's history, adding, "Certainly no such day is authorized by the teaching of the Apostles."

"What brought these changes about? Why did disciples submit to having these days set apart as special days for the church? The answer is found in the failure of those who were the people of [Yahweh] to know what [Elohim's] Word taught. Lack of this knowledge made it possible to introduce new doctrines and new practices into the teaching of the church. The apostasy of the church and the corruption of the [evangel] resulted from neglect of the church to study [Yahweh's] Word" p. 21.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF BIBLICAL TRUTH WAS LOST BY NEGLECT

Brumback continues on page 31, "In the beginning the church was pure. The divine plan of the church as revealed in the New Testament was followed. Now the apostasy of which the apostles warned, began to develop."

"Ultimately Christianity overcame paganism and thousands of those who had once opposed the church now became identified with it, without understanding that such a step called for the reformation of life, separation from the world, and devotion to the cause of [Messiah]. Christianity in its purity was thus destroyed by paganism," p. 54.

Widespread neglect of the Old Testament meant that converts were not schooled in the Old Testament and were ignorant of Israelite background and the books of Moses. They simply accepted the Greek Septuagint as their source of Old Testament teaching, but knew little and understood even less of the Feasts and the deep meaning of the sacrificial laws. By and large the Christians detested the Jews and would have none of their teaching or understanding of the Torah.

The New Testament is built upon precepts and teachings of the Old. Paul was inspired to write that salvation is found in the Old Testament: "And that from a child you have known the holy Scriptures, which are able to make you wise unto salvation through faith which is in Messiah Yeshua" (2 Timothy 3:15). The early Apostles based their teachings on the Old Testament to prove that Yeshua was the promised Messiah of Israel. Yeshua confirmed that Himself in Luke 24:44: "...that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the Law of Moses, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning Me."

In Luke 4:4 Yeshua said that man shall live by every word of Yahweh. He constantly referred to the Scriptures, the Old Testament, when answering matters concerning the law, divorce, and personal conduct (the New Testament was not yet in existence at this time! See Luke 24:27).

The last warning of the Bible is that man is not to add to the Bible or to take anything away, on pain of losing salvation, Revelation 22:18. "Scripture cannot be broken," John 10:35. Yeshua said, "Search the Scriptures," John 5:39.

Gentiles did not always comprehend the deep meaning of the Sabbath and knew little of the Feast Days found in Leviticus 23. The Bible calls them "Yahweh's Feasts" and not "Jewish" Feasts. The Gentile Church detested the Jews and would have nothing to do with their practices, nor did they try to understand or study Hebrew. As a consequence of arrogantly ignoring the Old Testament basis of truth, Christianity generally still does not understand the foundation of Scripture

"Now therefore you are...fellowcitizens with the saints...and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets [Old Testament], Yeshua Himself the chief cornerstone," Ephesians 2:19-20.

IS THE BIBLE GREEK TO YOU?

The influence of paganism is easily found in many historical sources. Charlton Laird's book, The Miracle of Language, reveals:

"The Church furthered Greek as well as Latin, the early Fathers of the church wrote Greek, and even as early as the seventh century Greek was being studied in England. Thus Greek words entered the English directly; they became Latin words which were borrowed directly; and they became Latin words which became French words which were borrowed directly" p. 90.

This custom of admitting Greek and Latin names wholesale into English Bibles resulted in replacing and disguising Hebrew names. These names supplanted the true, original names, making them surrogate hybrids with a Grecianized flavor.

Today the claim is made that the entire New Testament was written in Greek, which is disputed by reputable scholars who find an unmistakable Hebrew original underlying the Greek text.

Because early Christian translators were woefully ignorant of Hebrew, Greco-Latin names soon replaced the inspired Hebrew names. Even today the King James uses Esaias for Isaiah, Judas for Judah, Elias for Elijah (Elijah), Urias for Uriah, Ozias for Uzziah, Josias for Josiah, Ezekias for Hezekiah, Idumea for Edom, Paul for Shaul, James for Ya'akov, Peter for Kefa, John for Yochanan, and many others.

The most holy of all words in the Bible, the sacred Name Yahweh, was replaced with kyrios and theos, which the King James renders Lord or G-d-outright substitutes.

Further enlightenment is given on page 118 of The Miracle of Language: "The Anglo-Saxon word for a general director was stigward, the sty-ward, the man who looked after the pigpen, for an Anglo-Saxon capitalist was likely to have his stocks and bonds mostly in the form of razorbacks. We have reduced the word to steward. The boss himself was a hlafward, a loafward, the man who looked after the bread. We cut that word to lord..."

Thus, we can see how the English Bible has reduced the sacred Name of our Creator Yahweh to "keeper of the loaf," or Lord! His holy Name Yahweh is now replaced with an inferior title.

In his History of the Church, Brumback answers the question how pagan ways and pagan days infiltrated the early church. He points out:

The answer is found in the failure of those who were the people of [Yahweh] to know what His Word taught. Lack of this knowledge made it possible to introduce new doctrines and new practices into the teaching and worship of the church. The apostasy of the church and the corruption of the gospel resulted from neglect of the church to study Yahweh's Word"

"Pagans were accustomed to observe a feast to Proserpine with the burning of candles. To make the transition from pagan worship to Christian worship easy, the church in apostasy instituted on the same day a feast to the virgin Mary and burned tapers in her honor. Lactatius, a historian of the church, spoke of this practice as superstition, ridiculing those who lighted candles for [Yahweh], as if He lived in the dark.

"Here were changes that appeared in the teaching and worship of the church as it developed into an apostate institution. Holy water, the burning of incense, the observance of Lent and Easter...were connected with paganism. When the church dropped the guidance of [Yahweh's] word pagan ceremonies found their way into the church and they are today a part of that system of worship which grew out of the apostasy," page 21-22.

THE SUPREME SOURCE OF ERROR

The extent to which non-Biblical doctrines and error have become unquestionably accepted as fundamental truths directly from the Bible has alarmed sincere Bible students.

The Bible as originally given is indeed the pure Word of Yahweh. Man has translated the Scriptures into other languages while viewing the Bible through the eyeglass of human error. Such errors are accepted as the true teachings of the Messiah without further inquiry. Some are outright substitutions with no basis in the truth of the Scriptures.

The anti-Semitic and anti-Judaic Gentile Christian Church of the early centuries after Messiah Yeshua has twisted the minds of some who perhaps unknowingly have accepted error as truth and call truth error. Thus, the masses are led astray (Revelation 12:9). And this began a long time ago. To this sad situation I am glad to say that Yahweh also has His people who are standing fast in His truth and studying the Scriptures to prove whether these things be so.

The purpose of this study is to help us better comprehend the source of error so that we can separate truth from falsity. History shows that all pagan religion has its source in Nimrod's Babylon. The teachings of Babylon have dominated Egyptian as well as Greek and Roman religion.

Teachings right out of Babylon can be found in almost all religions of the world. These abominable doctrines have even undermined the true religion Yahweh gave mankind through Israel. With corrupted doctrines and error, ministers have continued to twist the Bible so that "truth" is no longer Bible truth.

SYNCRETISM: A DEADLY MIXTURE

The Bible when first given to mankind was inspired by Yahweh's Spirit. It was pure, holy and undefiled. Problems began when translations were made from one language to another. Our English Bible, for example, is taken primarily from the Latin. Which was translated from the Greek. Which was translated from the Hebrew, with much being lost along the way. It is like taking change from one pocket to place in another and losing some in the process. This is why it is our goal to return as closely as possible to the original languages.

Through what is known as syncretism, pagan doctrines are merged with Bible teachings and blindly accepted as if from Scripture. Thus, the pristine Truth of the Bible has been adulterated with paganism and unknowingly accepted.

On page 109, The Oxford Illustrated History of Christianity quotes Patrick Wormald on adaptations of Christianity, "Christianity had been successfully assimilated by a warrior nobility, a nobility which had no intention of abandoning its culture or seriously changing its way of life, but which was willing to throw its traditions, customs, tastes, and loyalties into the articulation of the new faith."

While the expressed purpose of the church was to convert pagans and bring them into the fold of Christianity, in reality it was paganism that triumphed over churchianity. It was the church that absorbed and retained the pagan rituals, symbols, holidays, and precepts, but gave them a new name with a new meanings and a "Christian" understanding

Meyers' Medieval And Modern History states on page 42, "Many of our religious ideas, festivals and ceremonies, as witness Easter, and Christmas may be traced back to an origin in the practice and belief of our heathen ancestors."

Thus, pagan converts felt right at home as they retained their worship of the sun on Sunday, observed the re-birth of the sun in December, and called it not "Sol Invictus," but "Christmas." It made for a painless conversion to "Christianity." So the unregenerate pagan was baptized and became a "Christian-but was still a pagan at heart.

Had Israel and churchianity not done what they respectively have done in corrupting of Truth and establishment of falsehood, anti-Biblical sentiment would not be what it is. The conflict between light and darkness is no new conflict. It has carried on ever since sin first entered the Garden of Eden.

Churchianity reads the Bible and sees no parallel between Israel's past dismal history and its own deplorable record

Bible teaching rests upon learning from the examples of others (1Cor. 10). But what if man contends that he needs no examples? With our high-tech society and our sophistication and knowledge, along with our scientific thinking, modern man feels competent to find his way if only given money enough and sufficient time to follow whatever light is given. Man is convinced that he is quite sufficient unto himself, and given time will eventually work things out.

Israel was overwhelmed by the visible power of Yahweh at Sinai (Exodus 19 and 20). The thunderous voice and trumpet, the lightning, the smoking, the rumbling and quaking of the Mount itself was evidence enough. The vaunted ability of man was tested. Israel vowed they would be perfect in everything and be obedient. Yet, when they tried they obeyed in nothing. Israel was pardoned again and again, and each time they continued to transgress.

The Tabernacle (and later the Temple) was right in their midst with the visible priesthood actively carrying out Yahweh's instructions day by day. Instruction, warning, chastisement, and the evident presence of Yahweh in the pillar of cloud by day and pillar of fire by night were of no avail.

THE HOLY SPIRIT GIVEN TO MANKIND TO HELP HIM BECOME OBEDIENT

By himself, man lacks the ability and moral fiber to be holy. This is the primary lesson we are to learn here on earth, namely, that man's way is not Yahweh's way. We are to change our mind, the way we think, by having Yahweh's Spirit dominate our very being. "The carnal mind is enmity against Elohim: for it is not subject to the law of Elohim, neither indeed can be," Romans 8:7.

It is only through the workings of Yahweh's omnipotent Holy Spirit power, which now is available to us, that we can rise above this mundane world. This means obediently following the way of life given us throughout the Bible, for it is through obedience that we are given the Holy Spirit: "And we are his witnesses of these things; and [so is] also the Holy Spirit, whom Elohim has given to them that obey Him." (Acts 5:32)

By professing to be His worshipers, ancient Israel assumed they could obligate Yahweh to tolerate whatever whim their degenerate minds could devise. They mentioned His Name, but their hearts were far from obedience.

"Yea, you took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your deity Remphan, figures which you made to worship them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon. Our fathers had the tabernacle of witness in the wilderness, as he had appointed, speaking unto Moses, that he should make it according to the fashion that he had seen." (Acts 7:43-44)

DOCTRINE AND THE COMMANDMENTS OF MEN

Giving only lip-service is not acceptable to a holy, just, and righteous Yahweh. It never was and never will be. Genuine obedience comes from a contrite heart. Yeshua Himself said, "They worship Me in vain; their teachings are but rules made by men," Mark 7:7, NIV. This is a direct quotation of Isaiah 29:13, condemning the city of David, Jerusalem, for their idolatry and wickedness.

The Savior then castigates the Pharisees and teachers of the law with those same words when the Pharisees heap criticism upon His disciples who apparently paid too little attention to the tradition of the Pharisees and Jewish elders.

The point of Isaiah's rebuke and that of Yeshua reveals that the syncretism (mixing pagan concepts and customs with Bible teaching) has continued throughout history. Unconverted man injects his own thoughts and notions into his worship and continues to contaminate the pure worship of a holy Yahweh.

While we hear much of the error that has crept into the worship of our Creator, many have not studied deeply into the truth of the Bible and are oblivious and unschooled in what is actually taught as Bible doctrine. A growing movement of sincere Commandment keepers with faith in the Savior is prophesied to arise at the end of the age as we see in Revelation:

"Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of Yahweh, and the faith of Yeshua," Revelation 14:12

LET US LOOK AT SOME EXAMPLES OF TRADITIONS OF MEN WHICH HAVE REPLACED THE WORD OF GOD

Few are aware of the many teachings abounding in nominal religion that are contrary to the Bible. I choose not to go in-depth in pointing out these errors, however here are a few simple examples, in which one or two verses of correction follow the erroneous teaching which sadly is accepted as if true today by the majority of Christians:

"The Father, Son and Holy Spirit are three persons in one, and are equal."

"My Father is greater than I," John 14:28. Yeshua Himself acknowledged that the Father was greater. Paul said, "The head of Messiah is Yahweh,"

I Corinthians 11:3.

The Holy Spirit is the power, the force of Yahweh shared by the Son and is not a person--Ruach ha Kodesh.

"We keep Sunday because that is the day the Son was resurrected, and that changed the Sabbath"

"There remains therefore a rest [Sabbatismos, Sabbath] for the people of Yahweh," Hebrews 4:9 (reference to verse 4). There is no Bible justification for changing the day of worship. Sunday-keeping stems from pagan sun worship. Yeshua did not rise Sunday morning, but at the end of the Sabbath, and said nothing about any change whatsoever in the weekly day of worship. Besides that, if you are aware of Hebraic reckoning of time you can easily see that Yeshua was resurrected on Saturday evening, before the dawning of a new day at 6 PM which would be Sunday. He was raised BEFORE Sunday on the Sabbath, a perfect picture of the eternal Sabbath given to mankind in the world to come.

"The Son by His resurrection changed Sabbath to Sunday"

"And it shall come to pass, from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, says Yahweh," Isaiah 66:23. This speaks of the future kingdom. The Saturday Sabbath has never been changed but is in effect now and will be observed in the Millennium.

"The Son was put to death on Friday and arose Sunday morning"

"...in the midst of the week He shall cause the oblation and sacrifice to cease," Daniel 9:27. He was impaled on Wednesday (Wednesday in German is Mittwoch, midweek) and was in the grave three days and three nights. He rose from the grave before sunset on Saturday (Mat. 28:1-"end" is the Greek opse meaning "late on").

"For as Jonas [Jonah] was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth," Matthew 12:40. There is no way one can get three nights from Friday until Sunday morning.

"The Son came to do away with His Father's law by nailing it to the cross "

"Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill," Matthew 5:17. He brought the law to its fullest intent and meaning; He did not destroy it, but lived it as an example for us, John 14:31. Besides the only "handwriting and ordinances" that were "against us" are those which we incur when we disobey, not obey; for the Torah (Law) was given to us as a patten for G-dly life, that when obeyed brings G-d's blessings and not his curses. The death penalty for disobedience is the only thing in the Law which is against us and this was set aside in the sacrifice of Messiah Yeshua!

"The Son cleansed all foods and now all animal flesh like pork and shellfish is good for food"

"They that sanctify themselves, and purify themselves in the gardens behind one tree in the midst, eating swine's flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together, says Yahweh," Isaiah 66:17. This is speaking of the end of the age and those eating swine's flesh will be consumed. Clean food laws are still in effect.

"Man is born with an immortal soul"

"[Yahweh] Who ONLY has immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man has seen, nor can see: to whom be honor and power everlasting," 1Timothy 6:16. We do not yet have immortality but are seeking it, "To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life," Romans 2:7. Why are we to seek for immortality if we already have it? Why a resurrection if we are already immortal and can't die? (1Thes. 4:16)

"Not a dead soul..alive"

The most blatant of all erroneous teachings fostered by churchianity is that man has an immortal soul, a teaching found in most pagan religions. That the soul upon death leaves the body and immediately goes to heaven or hell is not found in Scripture.

Many such errors are accepted as the true teachings of the Messiah without any inquiry. Some are outright substitutions to the Bible and have no basis but lead to a corruption of the truth of the Word.

False teachers certainly have twisted the minds of some who perhaps unknowingly have accepted error as truth and call truth error. Thus, the flesh of man, in opposition to G-d (called Satan in Hebrew as the Yetzer HaRa..the evil inclination in man) "leads the whole world astray," Revelation 12:9.

The purpose of this study is to help us better comprehend the source of erroneous teaching so that we can sift out the truth. Scripture and history show that all pagan religion has its source in Nimrod's Babylon where religious lies have complete sway. The ways of Babylon have dominated Egyptian as well as Greek and Roman religion. Babylonian teaching can be found in almost all religions of the world. These abominable doctrines have even undermined the true religion Yahweh gave mankind through Israel. Yahweh calls Babylon the Mother of Harlots, who has corrupted the earth, Revelation 17-18.

MODERN BLIND GUIDES LEADING THE BLIND

Bible readers today follow the history of Israel and shake their heads in disbelief over the fickleness of the people of Yahweh who were led astray by heathen practices. They read of Israel's falling into pagan idolatry and marvel that Yahweh, full of mercy, always was ready to take Israel back when they repented.

But these same people today (Christians) do not see that they are doing the very same thing and following the same pattern of lawlessness. Today it is not the pagan worship and temples about us that lead people astray. Instead it is those of Gentile churchianity who are supposedly upholding and teaching Yahweh's Word who lead men away from Yahweh, 2 Peter 2.

They preach from the pulpit that Yahweh's law no longer applies to us. Law was only for ancient Israel; we are under grace, and not under the law, say those teaching a modern and up-to-date gospel of love, grace and forgiveness. Being obedient to the law of Yahweh is said to be bondage, and we are not under the bondage of the law, we are told.

Supposedly when the Messiah came to die for the sins of the world, He did away with the law. Now all we need is faith. "Faith alone!" was the rallying cry of the Reformation. But the Bible says that faith alone is meaningless! "Faith without works is dead," James 2:26. You see dear brother and sister in Christ, G-d is concerned how we worship, what days we set aside and make holy, and how we build His kingdom by giving our tithes and offerings. Any old way won't do. Just as Nadab and Abihu. Let us learn from their example lest we follow in the ways and be rejected by G-d.

By twisting the Scriptures and choosing to emphasize certain portions over others, today's preachers strain hard to do away with the law. They especially despise two of the Ten Commandments.

The first tells them that the Sabbath is on Saturday, the seventh day. The second tells us to handle His Name with respect and reverence. Known as the Third and Fourth Commandments, these two "test" commandments show our complete obedience to Yahweh. They are among the first to be rejected by many people. Some ministers seem willing to move heaven and earth to get these two Commandments buried under faith, love, and grace!

Your Bible says that if you break one commandment you have broken them all. That is, unless you keep all Ten, you have fallen short of perfection. Yahweh expects His people to keep His Commandments, for all His Commandments are righteousness, Psalm 119:172.

We read in 1 John 5:3 that the love of Yahweh is the keeping of His Commandments

He loves us in return when we keep His law, John 14:21

Because many have been told from countless sermons that the Savior came essentially to bring a new religion, many simply repeat what they've heard without thoroughly checking their Bibles.

YAHWEH'S LAW WILL NEVER PASS AWAY

"We are a New Testament Church and emphasize the teachings of the Savior Who nailed the law to the cross," they say. The Messiah never said or even intimated that He came to do away with His Father's laws! He said just the opposite. "My doctrine is not mine but His that sent Me," he said, John 7:16.

"Think not I came to destroy the law and the prophets. I came not to destroy but to fulfill," Matthew 5:17. Some attempt to get around this verse by telling us that the Messiah did away with His Father's laws, fulfilling them completely-filled them up-and now has set them aside.

Actually, what He has done is fulfilled them with a greater depth of meaning than before. He shows us the fuller spiritual intent of Yahweh's laws. "Fulfill" is the Greek plerosai and means to conform to or accomplish. Notice how the Savior elaborated on one of the Ten Commandments:

"You have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery: But I say unto you, That whosoever looks on a woman to lust after her has committed adultery with her already in his heart." (Mat. 5:27-28)

Clearly, Messiah Yeshua was emphasizing that the keeping of the Commandments begins with proper and right attitudes, thoughts, desires, and goals. To entertain a wrong thought could well lead to committing the act-sin.

Furthermore, we read in the last book of the Bible that true believers will be keeping the Commandments of Yahweh when Yeshua returns to rule.

"And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went to make war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the Commandments of Yahweh, and have the testimony of Yeshua," Revelation 12:17.

Sadly, there is but a "remnant" of the seed of the true Israel. There is no large multitude following the way of the Bible today, but a "little flock," Luke 12:32. They are also known as the "saints." Don't look for a large group of people to make up the "Bride" at the end of the age. Consider the parable of the five wise and five foolish virgins. Only half of them went in to the marriage supper. The other half was locked out.

Answer for yourself: What about you? Where do you stand?

Answer for yourself: Are you on that downhill, broad and easy road to destruction? (Mat. 7:13-14). Or that narrow, more difficult road that leads to life everlasting? We at Bet Emet ask you to let us help you in your quest for truth.

THE REJECTION OF YESHUA BY BIBLICAL JUDAISM...OR ...GENTILE CREATIONISM IN THE NEW TESTAMENT TO MAKE IT APPEAR THAT WAY.....YOU BE THE JUDGE ONCE YOU KNOW THE FACTS

The opposition of Yeshua to mere formalism in religion, to the observance of the letter of the law while disregarding its spirit, is well illustrated by his exasperated rebuke to a Pharisee critic who had charged him with violating the Sabbath: "the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath," and it finds its identical formulation in the teaching of another Pharisee, Simon ben Menasya, who taught: "The Sabbath is given over to you and not you to the Sabbath." This may be a shock for you but Yeshua is not saying anything new! The anti-formalistic attitude of the major body of Talmudic Judaism (an approach which was patterned upon the tongue-lashings given by the Prophets to the ritual-obsessed pietists and hypocrites) was the source from which Yeshua logically drew his spiritual approach to religion. Yet, in the Gospels it was Yeshua who was represented to have been the initiator of a new religious and moral philosophy in opposition to Rabbinic legalism for they, as we are led to believe, lack the spirit of G-d. This is not the case. This is again not historically accurate for Yeshua is saying nothing new that any Jew would take fault with.

Answer for yourself: So why the conflict?

Again, we find such accounts to be artificially created to separate Yeshua from his religion and his religion from him by the Gentile Gospel creationists over 30 years following the destruction of the Temple (100 A.D.).

Answer for yourself: All the more reason for a new religion..right?

Answer for yourself: For does it not make sense that you cannot have Yeshua creating a new religion about his identity (as the mystery religions did of which Gentiles had been immersed for thousands of years instead of following a religion with a message and life-style of holiness) unless he rejects the one he first was given by having it and its leaders reject him?

DID YESHUA COME TO ABOLISH THE LAW AS WE HAVE IN CHURCHES BEARING HIS NAME TODAY?

Make no mistake about it, Yeshua adhered to cultic Law as part of Orthodox Judaism. He was not a liberal. Let us examine quickly this matter over Yeshua's healing of a leper in Mark. 1:40f.

40 And there came a leper to him, beseeching him, and kneeling down to him, and saying unto him, If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. 41 And Yeshua, moved with compassion, put forth [his] hand, and touched him, and saith unto him, I will; be thou clean. 42 And as soon as he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed. 43 And he straitly charged him, and forthwith sent him away; 44 And saith unto him, See thou say nothing to any man: but go thy way, shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing those things which Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them.

Yeshua commands the man to perform a "Mosaic rite." This is rather strange if we attribute to Yeshua that he was not concerned about the "externals" of religion would you not say? We must face the hard facts, that nowhere does Yeshua absolve anyone of their responsibility to the Law! Yeshua insisted upon ritual purity and strict adherence to the Torah. For Yeshua the Torah is only valid as a "whole" for he never dreamed of any possible cancellation of it in full or in part as we experience today as seen in Luke 16:17:

17 And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass, than one tittle of the law to fail.

Please note the idea of permanence connected to the smallest detail of the Torah (the tittle which are the decorative marks above the Hebrew letters). Also please note the unconditionality of Luke 16:17 for there is no time restraint whereby it would be permissible for either a part or whole of the Torah to pass away. The Talmud states that G-d adds these decorative marks to the living Torah in Heaven. Rabbi Akiva was given the ability to interpret these marks for all mankind. Luke's statement is incredible when you consider that the disintegration of the cosmos is LESS difficult than the change or abolition of any part of the Laws of Moses. This is not "good news" for Gentile Christianity because for the most part it does not uphold the permanency of the Law. It is amazing to me that it was allowed to remain in some copies of fragments from Luke and that not all traces of it was systematically destroyed or altered as so much more of the New Testament was as can be seen when compared with Matt. 5:18:

18 For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice any change?

Please take note that in Matthew a "time limit" has been imposed..."until all be fulfilled." This is not the same as Luke! Where is inspiration, infallibility, and inerrancy for there is no way you can explain away or make the two statement synonymous. This is clearly disharmony.

Answer for yourself: Which served the purposes of the Gentile Church best?

You guess...Matthew of course. Thus Matthew comes first in the Gospels! Gentile Christianity has made a tragic mistake by accepting Matthew's account over Luke's.

Answer for yourself: Thus for the majority of Christians today the Law has passed away but I ask you...has "all" been fulfilled yet?

Read Revelation again! Gentile Christianity, in rejection of Judaism, Yeshua, and the Law, ignored Luke and his unconditional declaration of the permanency and continuance of the Law.

Let us read one verse further in Matthew....5:19:

19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach [them], the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.

Answer for yourself: Does that verse not scare you since, more than likely, most of our readers hold an opposite belief-system?

But Luke is not without its problems also as seen in Luke 16:16:

16 The law and the prophets [were] until John: since that time the kingdom of G-d is preached, and every man presseth into it.

Again we see a conflict as to time "restraints." The Gospels were written in a "post-John" era. That being the case, how can we explain the lack of understanding that the Law had passed away by Yeshua's hand-picked Pastor of the Jerusalem church, as well as both the church and the Messianic community in the first century for Acts 21:20 states:

20 And when they heard [it], they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law:

Please notice: it says "all" and not "some" were zealous for the LAW! Let me remind you that is long after John!

Answer for yourself: Where is the cessation of the Law for them?

Answer for yourself: Are they not the pattern for world-wide evangelism?

It goes without saying that the inclusion of a restriction in duration of the Mosaic Law is an absolute necessity for the Gentile Church to validate its very existence apart from Judaism.

Nowhere do we find a deliberate attempt to deny or alter any commandments of the Torah by Yeshua, only by Paul. We reason many fail to see it is because they lack fundamental knowledge of Scripture, Hebrew and Greek language, Jewish culture, and the socio-political issues of the times of Yeshua. If having that knowledge one will come to the only plausible and reasonable conclusion available....we are in error to day in the church and in desperate need of repentance.

We encounter controversial statements in the New Testament concerning the Law of Moses. We must discern if we are entertaining conflicting laws, or a conflict in priorities in laws, or just a lack of precise understanding of the full extent of the commandments involved when mentioned. We must also consider if what we are encountering is the work of imaginative Gentile creationists with an anti-Judaic agenda. I desire to reveal to you hidden truths concerning Yeshua's attitude towards the Sabbath, Sabbath healings, plucking of heads of grain on the Sabbath, discipleship at the cost of loving kindness, the washing of hands before eating, and the "you have heard it said, but I say unto you sayings." Each of these instances have been used to teach that the religion of Yeshua took offense at Yeshua's teaching on the issue, that Judaism rejected Yeshua, and that Yeshua in response created a "new-oral law" upon the matter that laid the foundation for a new religion...alas..Christianity.

Answer for yourself: What is the truth of the matter?

If I fail to convince you then I am in error and a false prophet and you should not listen to me. If not, however, if I reveal to you proof-positive that errors, additions, deletions, and just plain old "untruths" are recorded in the New Testament in special places to create anti-Judaic doctrines (that have no origin or background in Judaism what-so-ever when supposedly written by Jews) then I prove my case: that the Gospels are Gentile accounts of a non-historical nature created for one intended purpose; mainly to separate Yeshua from Judaism and give credence to the formation of a replacement religion with G-d's sanction. If I can be successful, then you dear Christian need desperately to re-evaluate you belief-system immediately.

Answer for yourself: Is this a fair challenge?

The above issues I enumerated are said by many to be examples where Yeshua disregarded the Law of Moses for a higher teaching, a "spiritual Law" over a "written Law." Many say Yeshua gave us a higher Torah. Many believe Yeshua abolished the Old Law and replaced it with a New Law, even a New replacement religion called Christianity. If so, they say, we have license to disregard the whole Torah, the Old Testament in matters of doctrine and practice, and the Old Covenant. This is what the majority of Christian churches teach for that is what Protestant and Catholic seminaries have taught their preachers for over one hundred years. That has been my experience and probably yours, but not any longer for me, and hopefully not for you. Please take the challenge!

THE SABBATH CHALLENGES...SABBATH HEALINGS

Withered Hand:

Mark 3:1 (KJS) And he entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there which had a withered hand. 2 And they watched him, whether he would heal him on the sabbath day; that they might accuse him. 3 And he saith unto the man which had the withered hand, Stand forth. {Stand forth: Gr. Arise, stand forth in the midst} 4 And he saith unto them, Is it lawful to do good on the sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But they held their peace. 5 And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched [it] out: and his hand was restored whole as the other. {hardness: or, blindness} 6 And the Pharisees went forth, and straightway took counsel with the Herodians against him, how they might destroy him. (see also Matt. 12:9-14, Luke 6:6-11).

Woman With Curved Spine:

Luke 13:10 (KJS) And he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. 11 And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up [herself]. 12 And when Yeshua saw her, he called [her to him], and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity. 13 And he laid [his] hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified G-d. 14 And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because that Yeshua had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day. 15 The Lord then answered him, and said, [Thou] hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or [his] ass from the stall, and lead [him] away to watering? 16 And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day? 17 And when he had said these things, all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

Luke 14:1 (KJS) And it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him. 2 And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy. 3 And Yeshua answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day? 4 And they held their peace. And he took [him], and healed him, and let him go; 5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day? 6 And they could not answer him again to these things.

Man With Dropsy:

Luke 14:1 (KJS) And it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him. 2 And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy. 3 And Yeshua answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day? 4 And they held their peace. And he took [him], and healed him, and let him go; 5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day? 6 And they could not answer him again to these things.

Matthew records that Yeshua questions his own actions by saying "is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath?" That is the real issue in these stories, for we are led to believe that healing is not permitted on the Sabbath from a cursory reading of each of the accounts. I believe the questions was poised by Yeshua to create an opportunity to teach if anything. But we definitely have a conflict as recorded in the New Testament where by Yeshua is challenged and condemned for healing on the Sabbath by his fellow religious leaders which represent Judaism. All three Gospel writers tell us they desire to "accuse" him. We are told that Yeshua gets angry with them and they then set out to destroy or plan his murder. Luke even has the Synagogue leader oppose Yeshua, and Yeshua is made to relate the actions of Satan to those of the Synagogue by their refusal to do good and permit and bless the healing.

Answer for yourself: Is this the synagogue of Satan?

The people are shown to support Yeshua against the religious establishment. The religious establishment of Judaism and their authorities are shown to be ashamed when contending with the higher truths of Yeshua when compared with their old ritualism which is devoid of life. Lastly, human life is shown to be less important to Judaism than the life of even an animal. If these accounts are true, we need a new religion! And remember that this is over "healing" on the Sabbath day.

Answer for yourself: Are these accounts factual?

Answer for yourself: Are they historic?

Answer for yourself: Is there precedence to substantiate the merciless views that are put in the mouths of the opponents of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: What are we to do if we find that Judaism taught the same things that Yeshua said?

Answer for yourself: What if we find we should have no conflict at all with Yeshua and fellow religious leaders of Judaism for the charges against Yeshua are un-foundable when searched for in the tenants of Yeshua's own faith?

Answer for yourself: Where is the origin of such charges if not Judaism?

Answer for yourself: Why the artificial conflict where there is none?

Answer for yourself: What purpose could it serve?

Answer for yourself: Who would be advantaged by such a conflict, the Jewish Church or the Gentile Church?

Answer for yourself: Oh G-d, could this possibly be a false creation to serve the purpose of the Gentile church to show Yeshua rejected by his own faith and thus forced to break from Judaism in order to preach and teach the true Gospel of G-d unhindered, thus providing the impetus for the creation of Gentile Christianity?

Answer for yourself: Was this Yeshua's purpose in providing such a teaching opportunity in the first place?

Answer for yourself: Really now, did Yeshua violate the Law by healing on the Sabbath? Answer for yourself: Did Yeshua know something that they didn't that would allow him to violate the Law without repercussion? Or is this whole account a "non-issue?"

Answer for yourself: We have heard what Yeshua had to say about healing, so what does Judaism have to say about healing on the Sabbath?

Answer for yourself: Is there really a conflict?

Answer for yourself: Do you realize the answer we find can either reinforce your faith in the New Testament or terribly weaken it?

Let's investigate Judaism on the issue of Sabbath healing. A Tannaitic Midrash states: How do we know saving life supersedes Sabbath Law? Answer: Since circumcision destroys part of the body and is legal on the Sabbath, and since execution of criminals which destroys the whole body is legal on the Sabbath, how much more does the saving or the preservation of Life? Likewise Judaism teaches that if there is any doubt that life could be in danger, even a sore throat, then healing is permissible and overrides the Sabbath Law!

Answer for yourself: Did Yeshua need to defend himself because he healed on the Sabbath when it was common knowledge that preservation of life, even a sore throat, warranted overriding any Sabbath Law?

Answer for yourself: How much more then a man with a withered and paralyzed hand, a woman with a curved spine, or a man with dropsy?

Answer for yourself: Can you believe that the religious leaders of Yeshua's day, whom had memorized the book of Leviticus by the age of 5, let alone the Torah by 13, could overlook or be negligent to such an extent to forget something equally as important as Sabbath laws when they took great pains to manipulate them to their own advantage? Hardly!

Answer for yourself: Who could make such an historical error to write of such an account that never could have existed because it was a "non-issue?"

Answer for yourself: Who could possibly have been ignorant of such Sabbath laws and minutiae to have overlooked the obvious that no Jewish child would have?

Who else but a Gentile who wrote these accounts; that can only be the correct answer. All that eludes us now is the purpose for such an account, although inaccurate in many ways.

Answer for yourself: Could possibly Gentile Christianity, unfamiliar with Judaism, need to defend Yeshua's actions which they received from oral traditions handed down to them that they totally misunderstood having no background in the Mosaic Law?

Answer for yourself: Since Judaism taught it was permissible to lift a sheep from a pit on the Sabbath, how much more a human made in the image of G-d?

Answer for yourself: Do you know and see for yourself that the non-Jewish writers and redactors of the New Testament got terribly wrong in ALL THE GOSPELS these facts concerning supposed Sabbath violations?

Healing was NEVER a problem on the Sabbath for healing was NEVER considered as "work" for the Bible teaches that "work" is forbidden on the Sabbath and not speaking a blessing or healing which are NEVER considered categories of "work" in Judaism. Laying on of hands and spoken words of blessings was NEVER considered "work."

Answer for yourself: Do you get it?

These challenges against Yeshua NEVER OCCURRED!

THE SABBATH CHALLENGES...THE PLUCKING OF GRAIN

Mark 2:23 (KJS) And it came to pass, that he went through the corn fields on the sabbath day; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn. 24 And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful? 25 And he said unto them, Have ye never read what David did, when he had need, and was an hungered, he, and they that were with him? 26 How he went into the house of G-d in the days of Abiathar the high priest, and did eat the shewbread, which is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them which were with him? 27 And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath: 28 Therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

Matt 12:1 (KJS) At that time Yeshua went on the sabbath day through the corn; and his disciples were an hungered, and began to pluck the ears of corn, and to eat. 2 But when the Pharisees saw [it], they said unto him,

Behold, thy disciples do that which is not lawful to do upon the sabbath day. 3 But he said unto them, Have ye not read what David did, when he was an hungered, and they that were with him; 4 How he entered into the house of G-d, and did eat the shewbread, which was not lawful for him to eat, neither for them which were with him, but only for the priests? 5 Or have ye not read in the law, how that on the sabbath days the priests in the temple profane the sabbath, and are blameless? 6 But I say unto you, That in this place is [one] greater than the temple. 7 But if ye had known what [this] meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless. 8 For the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath day.

Luke 6:1 (KJS) And it came to pass on the second sabbath after the first, that he went through the corn fields; and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and did eat, rubbing [them] in [their] hands. 2 And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath days? 3 And Yeshua answering them said, Have ye not read so much as this, what David did, when himself was an hungered, and they which were with him; 4 How he went into the house of G-d, and did take and eat the shewbread, and gave also to them that were with him; which it is not lawful to eat but for the priests alone? 5 And he said unto them, That the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

First of all notice that it was the disciples and not Yeshua who plucked the grain. Matthew and Mark both indict Yeshua's disciples for "doing what is not lawful to do on the Sabbath" and we are left to understand from the facts given that the only possible violation which they are doing from the data presents is possibly "eating" because they are hungry, but eating is not a violation of Sabbath law as it does not constitute "work." As stated above when dealing with healings on the Sabbath, hunger is classified under Judaism as a danger to life as hunger leads to starvation and starvation to death, and as previously stated, preservation of life supersedes all Sabbaths laws. Relief of hunger in Jewish Law was not a reason that any Jew would attack Yeshua or his disciples, yet we are led to believe that was the case by both Matthew and Mark. They are both wrong. We are led to believe that Yeshua gave a defense by referring to David as he ate forbidden bread reserved only for priests when he and his men were hungry and appealed to preservation of life to warrant doing so. True, laymen were restricted from eating such "shewbread" according to Lev. 24:5-9, but both accounts make the whole Sabbath issue revolve around eating when "eating because of hunger" was NEVER a reason to impugn anyone over Sabbath observance in Judaism.

Answer for yourself: So why the conflict anyway?

This again is a "non-issue" to any Jew who would have been well aware of Sabbath laws within his own religion, let alone religious leaders! Again, as before, the only plausible reason for such a fictitious creational story that cannot stand the test of scrutiny, was that it was written by Gentiles who were ignorant of the multiplicity of Jewish laws within Judaism and allowances for Sabbath violation without chastisement.

Answer for yourself: Do you find it strange that if Matthew or Mark were written by Jews that they overlooked the only real reason for accusing Yeshua and his disciples...namely "work?"

I find it strange because they attribute the whole incident to a cause that does not exist at all. It never happened that way! Gentile authorship is guaranteed by such a gross error of the facts for no Jew could make such ridiculous statements and surely not under the anointing of the Holy Spirit which is to guide us into all truth and not lies. Notice also that Yeshua states in the Matthew version that plucking grain for a valid purpose such as quenching hunger is no greater infringement on the Sabbath as the Priests who eat on the Sabbath.

Again we find the separation intended by these Gentile authors as we find in the Matthew account the artificial contrast of Judaism as a "merciless" religion when contrasted to the "higher teachings" of Yeshua which are full of mercy and meant to correct Judaism. There again is only one problem...there is no problem. We find a conflict created over an issue that never existed except in the minds of the authors to pit Yeshua against Judaism and Judaism and its leaders against Yeshua. Again, the inescapable conclusion is that Yeshua's higher teachings are not intended to bring repentance to the faith of Moses and Sinai but become the foundation for a departure from it and the creation of a new faith that will accept these higher teachings of Yeshua that the "old wineskins" of Judaism cannot.

Answer for yourself: Does it sound like to you these writers understood Judaism?

Let me reassure you the Jews were not heathens, for let us not forget, they were sent to the heathens with a message of love and mercy, although some failed to respond, not all did. In Judaism, morality always took precedence over ceremonial laws and rites. In all cases, Sabbath observance was meant to be subservient to the well-being of mankind for the Laws of G-d which were to be lived by and not died by. Judaism always taught, and yet does, that the Sabbath may be profaned in order to observe future Sabbaths, so eating on this particular Sabbath was not a problem.

Answer for yourself: This being the case, then why was Yeshua depicted at odds with the Jewish leaders and they with him over Sabbath observance?

On the surface from the Matthew and Mark accounts we must still search to find a cause for Sabbath violation and are led to surmise possibly the eating constituted "theft" since was not their personal field. Again this is not the case, according to Dt. 23:25:

25 When thou comest into the standing corn of thy neighbor, then thou mayest pluck the ears with thine hand; but thou shalt not move a sickle unto thy neighbor's standing corn.

Thus theft cannot be the motive for the Sabbath accusations against Yeshua and his disciples and we are forced to examine Luke to find the possible reason. Only Luke informs us that the disciples were "rubbing" the grains in their hands. It was this "rubbing" that we are led to believe constituted "work."

Answer for yourself: But, was "rubbing" the grain considered "work?"

Yes, rubbing of the grain in this instance would be considered "harvesting" and would be classified as "work." But, again as stated before, "harvesting" would be permissible if hunger was involved, and not greed in the amassing of wealth, as hunger threatened the preservation of life and was understood by all Jews to be an exclusion that would allow for the violation of the Sabbath without accusation.

Answer for yourself: So why the accusation is there is not a problem?

There again is only one inescapable conclusion. Yeshua is not at odds with Judaism and Judaism and its leaders is not at odds with Yeshua.

Answer for yourself: So why the fictitious story and what was its intended purpose?

Answer for yourself: Did Yeshua need to defend himself because he and his men hungered on the Sabbath when it was common knowledge that preservation of life, even "harvesting" for hunger was not a problem because it overrode all Sabbath Laws?

Answer for yourself: Can you believe that the religious leaders of Yeshua's day, whom had memorized the whole Torah by the age of 13, could overlook or be negligent such laws that were even known to the common people who worked in agriculture for the most part?

Contrary to what you know or have been told the common people, let alone their religious leaders were full aware of such laws, and had no foundation for any attack on Yeshua or his men.

Answer for yourself: Who could make such an historical error to write of such an account that never could have existed because it was a "non-issue?"

Answer for yourself: Who could possibly have been ignorant of such Sabbath laws and minutiae to have overlooked the obvious that no Jew would have?

Again, we come to the only conclusion possible, a Gentile wrote the accounts. All that eludes us now is the purpose for such an fictitious accounts and lies.

Answer for yourself: Could possibly Gentile Christianity, unfamiliar with Judaism, need to defend Yeshua's actions which they received from oral traditions handed down to them that they totally misunderstood having no background in the Mosaic Law?

Possibly, but unlikely.

Answer for yourself: Do you know that the non-Jewish writers of the New Testament Gospels got terribly wrong in ALL THE GOSPELS ALL THE ACCOUNTS CONCERNING THE SABBATH VIOLATIONS OF JESUS?

Eating due to hunger was NEVER a problem on the Sabbath even if it required "work" eating was NEVER considered as "work" for the Bible teaches that only "work" that does not preserve life is forbidden on the Sabbath and not that which is recorded for us in the Gospels.

Answer for yourself: Do you get it?

THE SABBATH CHALLENGES...WHAT DEFILES A MAN..OR DID YESHUA SAY IT IS OK TO EAT UNCLEAN FOOD?

Matt 15:1 (KJS) Then came to Yeshua scribes and Pharisees, which were of Jerusalem, saying, 2 Why do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands when they eat bread. 3 But he answered and said unto them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of G-d by your tradition? 4 For G-d commanded, saying, Honor thy father and mother: and, He that curseth father or mother, let him die the death. 5 But ye say, Whosoever shall say to [his] father or [his] mother, [It is] a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me; 6 And honor not his father or his mother, [he shall be free]. Thus have ye made the commandment of G-d of none effect by your tradition. 7 [Ye] hypocrites, well did Esaias prophesy of you, saying, 8 This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoureth me with [their] lips; but their heart is far from me. 9 But in vain they do worship me, teaching [for] doctrines the commandments of men. 10 And he called the multitude, and said unto them, Hear, and understand: 11 Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man. 12 Then came his disciples, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the Pharisees were offended, after they heard this saying? 13 But he answered and said, Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up. 14 Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. 15 Then answered Peter and said unto him, Declare unto us this parable. 16 And Yeshua said, Are ye also yet without understanding? 17 Do not ye yet understand, that whatsoever entereth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught? 18 But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and they defile the man. 19 For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies: 20 These are [the things] which defile a man: but to eat with unwashen hands defileth not a man.

Mark 7:1 (KJS) Then came together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the scribes, which came from Jerusalem. 2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with defiled, that is to say, with unwashen, hands, they found fault. {defiled: or, common} 3 For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash [their] hands oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders. {oft: or, diligently: in the original, with the fist: Theophylact, up to the elbow} 4 And [when they come] from the market, except they wash, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, [as] the washing of cups, and pots, brasen vessels, and of tables. {pots: sextarius is about a pint and an half} {tables: or, beds} 5 Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands? 6 He answered and said unto them, Well hath Esaias prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoureth me with [their] lips, but their heart is far from me. 7 Howbeit in vain do they worship me, teaching [for] doctrines the commandments of men. 8 For laying aside the commandment of G-d, ye hold the tradition of men, [as] the washing of pots and cups: and many other such like things ye do. 9 And he said unto them, Full well ye reject the commandment of G-d, that ye may keep your own tradition. {reject: or, frustrate} 10 For Moses said, Honor thy father and thy mother; and, Whoso curseth father or mother, let him die the death: 11 But ye say, If a man shall say to his father or mother, [It is] Corban, that is to say, a gift, by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me; [he shall be free]. 12 And ye suffer him no more to do ought for his father or his mother; 13 Making the word of G-d of none effect through your tradition, which ye have delivered: and many such like things do ye. 14 And when he had called all the people [unto him], he said unto them, Hearken unto me every one [of you], and understand: 15 There is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him: but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man. 16 If any man have ears to hear, let him hear. 17 And when he was entered into the house from the people, his disciples asked him concerning the parable. 18 And he saith unto them, Are ye so without understanding also? Do ye not perceive, that whatsoever thing from without entereth into the man, [it] cannot defile him; 19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, purging all meats? 20 And he said, That which cometh out of the man, that defileth the man. 21 For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, 22 Thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness: {covetousness...: Gr. covetousness, wickedness} 23 All these evil things come from within, and defile the man.

Today Christianity for the most part maintains that Yeshua "cleansed" all unclean foods and make them allowable to both Jew and Gentile to eat.

Answer for yourself: Is this the case, or do we sin and transgress the Law of G-d each time we as Christians eat bacon and shrimp?

The answer will both surprise you and should anger you for you will quickly see that we have been led astray by our religious leaders.

Let us investigate.

We are first instructed that the Pharisees and their scribes, who were the authorities upon the Laws of Moses, questions Yeshua's disciples for eating without washing their hands which is to be understood as a ceremony or ritual washing prior to eating, thus sanctifying both themselves and their food. The "tradition of the elders" is to be understood as "oral law" bound upon the people in line with the authorization for such from Deut. 17. Yeshua responds by rebuking them for elevating their "oral laws" above the commandments of G-d; thus not obeying the commandments of G-d in lieu of obeying the "oral traditions and laws" instead. Yeshua makes reference to the 5th commandment of the Decalogue: For G-d commanded, saying, Honor thy father and mother...". He reminds them that they say (But ye say..instead of the commandments oral laws) that Corban is to have a higher priority than honoring parents. In Hebrew, the word Corban means "to draw near," and one would draw near to G-d through giving gifts to the Temple and the Priesthood (spiritual leadership). In Hebrew the word Corban also means "honor" and carries with it the obligation to attend financially to the needs of another, in this instance one's parent. In reality Yeshua is saying that you say and teach the flock to give to the Temple and the spiritual leaders (Pastors and Churches) before you teach them to give to their aged parent's welfare, thus you subjugate a written commandment (providing for parental welfare...food, rent, clothes, medicine, etc.) to giving to organized religion (Pastors and Church budgets). Such action is deemed hypocrisy by Yeshua, but was in vogue by the religious establishment. Yeshua reminds them that they believe that they are drawing near to G-d with their gifts to the Temple (Church), but in reality G-d considers it vanity and empty worship, for G-d would rather have them obey His Word and His Commandments that the "traditions and commandments of men" that contradict the commandments of G-d. Then Yeshua makes a rather unusual contrast when saying that it is not what goes into a man that defiles him, but rather what comes from his heart. For in this instance, the hearts of some of the religious leaders were evil and black, full of greed, eagerly read to receive offerings from the people instead of having the moneys directed to the places where G-d had said it was better used, needed, and expected to be given. This is the same problem with the perversion of tithing as practiced by the vast majority of Christian churches in America today. If Yeshua is to be believed, and I say so, then much of our worship in our offerings in the churches of our land is vanity as well, as we continually rob from G-d by robbing from those in need that only we can help, because has entrusted His wealth to us to handle righteously.

Mark adds a interesting twist to the account in a couple of places. He states "and many other such things ye do." For us today, this is a clear reference to Sabbath desecration by the substitution of Sunday for Saturday as well as the replacement of the Hebraic Festival structure in Scripture with the paganized holiday calendar of the church. We likewise are guilty as they, for we have made the Word of G-d of none effect through our traditions that have been delivered by seminaries, colleges, deacon boards, pastors, and teachers, who fail to rightly understand and interpret the Hebrew Scriptures.

Mark, in verse 19 which follows the passage about what does and does not defile a man (ie. nothing entering his mouth defiles) adds a statement in the "red" of my Bible to which I am expected to believe that Yeshua said: "purifying all foods." It is this statement that is taken to mean that since, by Yeshua's own admission that, nothing enters into the mouth of man that can defile, then any and all food are "clean" and suitable for eating. This statement is seen to overrule the Levitical food laws limiting man's diet to clean animals and prohibiting abstention from unclean foods. Thus Yeshua purifies all foods so that it is now permissible to eat ham, bacon, shellfish, shrimp, lobster, catfish, shark, cougar, hawks, ravens, etc.; and with G-d's blessing. Thus the limitations placed upon mankind's diet by G-d in Genesis and Leviticus are rescinded!

Answer for yourself: It this true?

Again we have an addition to the account by Gentiles who fully are unaware of the history as well as the religion of Judaism.

First of all, it was well after 100 C.E. (A.D.) that washing of hands prior to eating was established halakah (law) and practice for laymen such as the disciples of Yeshua. In 20-30 C.E. such a requirement was incumbent only upon the priesthood and the High Priest and not lay people. Whoever wrote this account shows again their lack of familiarity with history as well as Judaism. This is a "non-issue" and would not have been of concern to neither the Pharisees or Yeshua at the time.

Answer for yourself: But more to the point did Yeshua change the Word of G-d by creating his own "oral law and tradition" that abolished the commandments of G-d regarding the eating of "clean" food and the "abstinence from unclean foods"? No way!

Answer for yourself: Let me ask you: since Yeshua just rebuked the religious leaders for elevating their oral traditions over written Laws from the Laws of Moses and the Torah, how could he then immediately turn around and to the same, and do it in the same context without totally losing credibility to both them and us?

Answer for yourself: If Yeshua says that no "jots and tittles" will ever pass away, then how could he in the next breath lie and do otherwise by sanctioning all foods "clean" and permissible for our diets when G-d the Father said otherwise?

Answer for yourself: Remember Yeshua said he only "says what he hears the Father say" so how can he correct his Father?

Not only would Yeshua not do it, he didn't; for again we find the creative imagination of the Gentile church at work in abolishing the Laws that they considered inhibitions to their life-style. The Christian Church inherited their legacy and sins without knowledge today and such saddens G-d.

Answer for yourself: So, what will you order the next time to go to a sea-food restaurant: shrimp or snapper?

Answer for yourself: What does G-d want you to eat for breakfast tomorrow: eggs or a breakfast jack or egg mcmuffin loaded with ham?

Remember, the New Testament defines sin as "transgression of the law." Let us begin a major repentance in our life and begin to choose things that please G-d in our diet as well as our life. Amen!

This is only the "tip of the iceberg!" More to follow as we investigate how a Jewish Rabbi named Yeshua has become a Gentile Savior and G-d-Man. Such is the De-Judaizing of Yeshua.

IS THE NEW TESTAMENT RESPONSIBLE FOR THE THE HOLOCAUST?

Within two decades of the death of Yeshua his followers had begun to attack the Jewish beliefs of their mentor. This phenomenon, by itself, would be worthy of historical inquiry, to determine how the early Christians came to regard the religion of their spiritual founder with such hostility. But the fact of Jew-hating in Christianity is of more than mere psychological or historical interest, for it formed the backdrop to centuries of persecution of Jews and ultimately led to the extermination of over 6 million of them in the Holocaust. One of the purposes of Bet Emet Ministry is to help others look at how the Christian faith formed perceptions of Jews among its adherents and how the attitude of the Church towards them has led to two millennia of strife and agony.

In the wake of the Holocaust Christians and Jews began to search seriously for the factors and causes leading to it. It became apparent to all investigators that the Holocaust could only have occurred in an environment of enormous hatred of Jews and an equal indifference to their suffering by non- participants. For the world allowed this calamity to continue for six years without intervening, as two-thirds of European Jewry was annihilated. While the anti-Semitism of the Holocaust was greater in scope than any previous mass attacks on Jews, it was not different in motive from the Crusades, the Inquisition, or the Eastern European pogroms. Every operation had, as its cause, the hatred of Jews and as its purpose their murder and plunder. In addition to the genocidal scope of the Holocaust, it had one other significant difference from previous catastrophes. There was no physical escape for its victims through conversion as in the preceding anti-Semitic movements. This was anti-Semitism based on racist theory from which there was no escape.

WHAT IS RESPONSIBLE FOR SUCH A CLIMATE OF HATRED TOWARD THE JEWS?

One of the reasons Bet Emet Ministries is devoted to critical study of the New Testament is because it, along with the Gentile Christian Church which created it, is primarily responsible for the deaths of these 6 million Jews plus untoward others through church history. These repeated assaults on Jews are tied to a perception of them as an evil and vicious enemy. As Reverend Robert Everett has pointed out, masses of people have been conditioned to so identify Jews in the course of centuries of Church-inspired vilification of Judaism and its believers. The Church was a seed-bed of anti-Jewish thought for the general populace. In his book, Elder and Younger Brothers, A. Roy Eckardt, minister and professor of religion, asserted that the foundation of anti-Semitism, and the responsibility for the Holocaust lie ultimately in the New Testament. Eckardt further insisted in his book, Your People, My People, that Christian repentance must include a reexamination of basic theological attitudes to Jewry and the New Testament in order to deal effectively with the problem and its prevention. The Catholic theologian and scholar, Father Gregory Baum, wrote, "The Church made the Jewish people a symbol of unredeemed humanity; it painted a picture of Jews as a blind, stubborn, carnal and perverse people, an image that was fundamental in Hitler's choice of the Jews as the scapegoat" (Gregory Baum, Introduction to Faith and Fratricide, p. 7, by Rosemary Radford Ruether). In an editorial Franklin H. Litton wrote, "Without centuries of anti-Semitic Christian preaching, Hitler could never have mobilized passionate Jew-hates and immobilized dispassionate spectators. The image which the Church created could arouse instant contempt and hate of Jews (Franklin H. Littell, "Teaching the Holocaust and Its Lesson" (Editorial), Journal of Ecumenical Studies (21), p. 468, cited in A. Roy Eckardt, Jews and Christians, p. 67). This is what Jules Isaac called "the teaching of contempt" (Jules Isaac, The Teaching of Contempt, p. 34. Translated by Helen Weaver, shorter version of Jesus and Israel).

Jewish refusal to recognize Yeshua as the promised messiah (since misery still prevailed in the world and world peace and resurrection of all the dead did not occur during or after the ministry of Yeshua) produced vehement Christian anger and the ardent desire to negate and abolish Judaism. (Gregory Baum, op. Cit., p. 20).

A fundamental reason for this hostility is Gentile Christianity's dependence on Judaism to validate its beliefs and establish its credibility. We basically resent those we depend on and need. Gentile Christianity needed Israel's antiquity and appropriated the latter's lineage to itself. Gentile Christianity based its canon on Hebrew Scriptures and its religion on the G-d of Israel. The new faith proceeded to adapt those Scriptures and concept of G-d to its own purposes. The Church claimed to be the natural heir of Judaism and denied any discontinuity with the parent. Christians became the New Israel. The New Covenant replaced the Old. When Jews answered that the Law given by G-d could not be repealed, annulled, or replaced, they denied Christianity the proof and authority it needed from Judaism. This denial aroused frustration which translated into antagonism and hostility.

For these and other reasons, Bet Emet Ministries studies in-depth the foundation and very essence of Christianity, the New Testament, and the social-historical elements which influenced its contents. We focus on the overall misinterpretations and misunderstandings in the Christian Scriptures (the Greek Scriptures). There are entire learned works dealing specifically with certain aspects or problems of the New Testament such as pre-Christian philosophies influencing the new religion, the beliefs and impact of the Pharisees during the time of Yeshua, the Sanhedrin's relationship to Yeshua's trial, historical events during and after Yeshua's life, Paul's role in the development of Christianity, and his attitude to the Torah. The articles in this series will be attempts to present in summary fashion pertinent subjects in summary rather than in detail, and footnoted with appropriate documentation.

Too often those who read our articles believe our stance and our position on matters to be just "our opinion." I assure you that when you read our articles you encounter a research paper and not a flippant off the cuff idea espoused by someone who has not done the necessary inquiry to arrive at the facts which determine truth.

In order to understand the tragic history and contemporary problems confronting today's Christian to which the vast majority are unaware, I will attempt in these articles to at first include a brief review of highlights in Jewish history prior to the advent of Christianity. It is hoped that an overall survey of conditions at the time of Yeshua's birth, along with a description of important movements at the dawn of Christianity as a new religion, will provide an adequate foundation to aid us later in further investigation.

SO HOW DID CHRISTIANITY GET SO FAR OFF TRACK?

Basically the New Testament is not a continuation of the Jewish Scriptures regardless of what you may have heard. Most are not aware of this because of their lack of knowledge of the Jewish Scriptures (Old Testament). We are told repeatedly that the New Testament is the Old Testament "fulfilled." Is it really? We accept this stance from our spiritual leaders without question.

You need to understand at the beginning that the authors of the Gospels and the Epistles quoted freely from Hebrew Scriptures, for that was their Bible too and the only one in existence. They used certain techniques, the purpose and effect of which were to discredit the Torah and its followers and to show the superiority of their doctrines over Jewish beliefs. This is not our opinion, but a factual conclusion when all the evidence is presented and evaluated with an open mind. I am sorry to say you cannot read just 4 pages or 9 pages and get it all. But I make a promise to you....if you will be diligent to read these articles in series....and study them...and think about what will be presented....even a blind man could see what I am saying once you have an adequate understanding of the dynamics and deceptions involved in the creation of the anti-Semitic New Testament which is responsible for the shedding of blood of over 6 million Jews.

HOW DID THE ROME AND THE WRITERS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT ACCOMPLISH THE GENOCIDE OF THE JEWISH PEOPLE?

Before we continue let me ask you to be truthful with yourself when answering these next questions for the answer you give will determine if you are capable of learning truth when your now-existing values are challenged.

Answer for yourself: Do you consider yourself an authority on the Jewish Scriptures (the Old Testament)?

Answer for yourself: Do you read and speak Greek and Hebrew and feel confident about your abilities to translate Greek and Hebrew into the English?

Answer for yourself: If you do not read or speak Greek or Hebrew, are you well equipped to use Greek or Hebrew study aids in your study of the Bible?

Answer for yourself: When reading the New Testament, are you aware when reading a text that what you are reading is a quote from the Hebrew Scriptures (Old Testament)?

Answer for yourself: When reading the New Testament when it quotes from the Old Testament, are you confident that the New Testament quote has been quoted accurately?

Answer for yourself: Are you so well versed with the Old Testament that you could spot an Old Testament passage misquoted in the New Testament?

Answer for yourself: Are you so well versed with the Old Testament that you could recognize a New Testament passage as a combination of parts of two different passages in the Old Testament which have not only two different contexts but originally two different intended meanings?

Humbly speaking, this is the advantage that other ministries, as well as Bet Emet, bring to help you, the student, come to a more truthful understanding of your faith as G-d originally intended it. It takes years to develop these above talents, but without them you are literally led astray by the New Testament which was literally created by the Gentile church to serve as their authority to create a new religion that they hoped would replace Biblical Judaism. They have almost succeeded.

If you take what I am saying seriously, then you will come to understand upon reading our articles that a frequently used technique by the writers in the New Testament was to detach verses from their original context in the Hebrew Bible and to attribute an entirely different meaning to them in the New Testament that the original writer never intended.

Answer for yourself: What should be your reaction when you finally begin to see this for yourself?

Another practice was to mistranslate or misquote verses from the Hebrew in order to give them a different meaning which suited the writer and his theology which was different than the original writer's. One of the reasons for this was the use by New Testament writers of the Septuagint, a Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible which had numerous inaccuracies. In fact, other than the first 5 books of the Jewish Scripture (The Torah), no Jew was involved in the translation of the Hebrew into the Greek. Such translation, or should I say "purposeful mistranslation" was entirely a Gentile accomplishment! Thus the garbled verses lost all sense of their original meaning. They were then used to prove or substantiate the thesis of the Gospel or Epistle author in spite of the original intended meaning that was conveyed by the Prophet or Moses.

Answer for yourself: What should be your reaction when you finally begin to see this for yourself?

Sometimes distinct and unrelated passages in the Hebrew Bible were combined to make a continuous sentence which then naturally conveyed a different meaning from that of each of its parts within the original context.

Biblical scholars might protest here that Jews detached verses from their context also in the Midrash and Haggadic sections of the Talmud. However, neither of these bodies of literature are authoritative for Jews. Only the Tanakh (the Hebrew Bible comprising the Law, Prophets, and the Writings) and the Halakhic (or legal) part of the Talmud are authoritative in Judaism. The Gospels and Epistles, of course, cannot say that because they are definitely authoritative for Christianity and are part of the Christian canon. Furthermore, Jewish authorities did not allow the indiscriminate detachment of verses from their context even for homiletic and sermonic purposes. The exegesis had to agree with the Oral Tradition. This put a control and limit on taking verses out of context and misinterpreting them. Gentile Christianity has no such limitations imposed upon their sermonic preaching which easily can be seen today by just a casual listening to tele-evangelists.

Answer for yourself: What should be your reaction when you finally begin to see this for yourself?

Related to this use of quotations from the Tanakh was the employment of Old Testament symbols to fit the doctrines of the New Testament authors which were foreign to the doctrines first connected to the symbols originally.

Besides altering words and meanings, the evangelists, authors of the Gospels, and the apostles, writers of the Epistles or letters, also used Hebrew Biblical symbols in such a way as to contradict and undermine the original Jewish significance. Examples of Hebrew symbols which underwent considerable change in Christian literature were the "suffering servant" and the messiah which ended up in Christian literature with very un-Jewish meanings attached to them which the original writers never intended them to have.

Often passages in the Gospels and Acts were severed from their context and/or mistranslated or misquoted on purpose to serve the religious interests of the Gentile writers and redactors of the New Testament.

Aside from misconstruing verses from the Hebrew Bible, the New Testament authors made direct, hostile charges against Jews and disparaging statements against them. Although the Gospels tell about events which occurred prior to those reflected in the Epistles, most of the latter were written before all the Gospels and Acts were composed. The seven basic Epistles of Paul (I Thessalonians, 1 Corinthians, 2 Corinthians, Philippians, Galatians, Romans, and Philemon) were completed more than a decade before the first Gospel was written. It seems logical, therefore, to discuss those anti-Jewish passages and accusations in the letters of Paul and his contemporaries before examining comparable verses in the Gospels. Furthermore, at least one Gospel writer, Luke, was influenced by Paul and his ideas.

As we progress in this series of articles I will examine and expose those aspects of the Pauline Epistles and other letters which are an expression of the rivalry between the established religion of Judaism and the emerging faith of Gentile Christianity. The letters written by Paul and his allies and adversaries must be viewed in the light of this competition between the two religions and in terms of Paul's cultural roots and religious background. It is easier to understand Paul's statements repudiating the Torah when we appreciate "where Paul is coming from" and where he wanted to go.

Lastly we will deal with those anti-Jewish passages in the Gospels and Acts which reflect not only the animosity of the Gospel writers but the historical events and powerful political movements that influenced them. An example of this type of anti-Jewish accusations is the spurious charge that the Jews crucified Yeshua or were responsible for his death.

Much of the historical material presented in this series of articles comes from contemporaneous writings of Roman and Jewish historians such as Josephus, the writings of the Nazarenes and the early Christians, and Rabbinical tractates in the Mishna and Talmud. The Mishna is actually part of the Talmud. The Mishna is a commentary and codification of Jewish law. It was redacted around 200 C.E. Some material dates from the first century B.C.E. The Mishna and Gemara comprise the Talmud. The Gemara consists of commentary, discussion, interpretation, and elaboration of the Mishna. There are two Talmuds: Babylonian and Jerusalem; each contains a different Gemara. Both Talmuds were developed in great academies of Jewish learning over a period of centuries. The Jerusalem Talmud was completed around the year 400 C.E. while the Babylonian Talmud was completed by about 500 C.E.

Inasmuch as the New Testament covers a wide variety of topics, I have chosen to shorten my articles somewhat by discussing such topics individually and concisely. Hopefully this makes for greater ease in understanding the material involved. Overall those who read our articles voice disagreements because they lack the necessary foundations to make intelligent decisions about much of what they speak. This is understandable since most Christians are acquainted mainly with the New Testament and have such a limited knowledge and understanding of the Jewish Scriptures (Old Testament). I suppose that this should be expected. Still, it makes my job harder and I hope breaking these articles down to “bite-size” tid-bits will help more read and understand the information at hand which is necessary for comprehending the events discussed correctly.

My goal is to present enough information to restore an accurate interpretation of the Christian Scriptures as well as reveal which parts of them, as we have had them passed down to us, are nothing but fraudulent additions of an anti-Semitic Roman establishment intended to replace the religion of Yeshua with a religion about him.

In the articles which follow, after laying a foundation necessary to proceed, we then will compare New Testament text with Old Testament text, line upon line, precept upon precept and see if the New Testament writers did injustice to the Jewish Scriptures. You will be amazed like I was. No longer will you be able to read the New Testament and accept what it says without question. After reading the following articles, you will be able to recognize for yourself the corruption and creationism of the New Testament which does great harm to the true Jewish Scriptures. Just for your benefit let me summarize what we will see when we begin to compare text with text. We will find that the New Testament writers used certain literary techniques, the purpose and effect of which were to discredit the Torah and its followers and to show the superiority of their doctrines over Jewish beliefs. Those will include the following:

- They New Testament writers detached verses from their original context in the Hebrew Bible and attributed an entirely different meaning to them in the New Testament that the original writer never intended.
- The New Testament writers mistranslated verses from the Hebrew of the Jewish Scriptures in order to give them a different meaning which suited the writer and his theology which was different than the original writer's.
- The New Testament writers misquoted passages from the Jewish Scriptures in order to give them a different meaning which suited the writer and his theology which was different than the original writer's.
- The New Testament writers often combined distinct and unrelated passages in the Hebrew Bible to make a continuous sentence which then naturally conveyed a different meaning from that of each of its parts within the original context.
- The New Testament writers employed Old Testament symbols to fit the doctrines of the New Testament authors which were foreign to the doctrines first connected to the symbols originally.

The New Testament writers used Hebrew Biblical symbols in such a way as to contradict and undermine the original Jewish significance.

- The New Testament writers often severed from their original meanings Jewish Scriptures from their original context and/or mistranslated or misquoted on purpose to serve the religious interests of the Gentile writers and redactors of the New Testament.
- Aside from misconstruing verses from the Hebrew Bible, the New Testament authors made direct, hostile charges against Jews and disparaging statements against them.

Answer for yourself: What kind of authority should such a document carry in your religious belief system when you finally see these things in forthcoming articles for yourself?

Answer for yourself: Do you realize that if you were in high-school English class, and you were called on to write a research paper, that if you misquoted your sources, combined quotes from your sources into a single quote and tried to pass it off as if was an original quote as did the authors of the New Testament, yet saying nothing about purposeful mistranslations, then your teacher would have given you a “F” on that paper?

But wait a minute; maybe not. It is possible she was not familiar with your sources and would not have ever noticed. She might have read your paper trusting you for the work you represented. She might have trusted your commitment to truth. She might have trusted the integrity she felt you had. Such is the case with Christianity for the most part and the non-Jews’ unfamiliarity with the Jewish Scriptures.

All along you, who wrote the paper, would feel “safe,” for after all, what are the chances she would look up your references and check you out?

Well, I and many others have checked the original sources and we have found that an “F” is a generous grade for the New Testament considering what we discovered. I cannot take all the credit for coming to these truths, because I was helped along the way by many men and women who prepared the way for me through their diligent study of the documents. To them I give credit. And to you I make my research available. May you be blessed by it. Repentance in our religious belief systems is the order for the day!

Let us begin our quest with the next article in this series.

WHAT IS REPLACEMENT THEOLOGY?

"Replacement Theology is a misguided systematic approach to the Bible that has not only led millions of Christians astray over the years but it has, in addition, birthed evil of the most horrific proportions. Replacement Theology played a role in the persecution of Jews by the church through the centuries, including the Holocaust.."

Replacement theology is the 'opinion' that Israel, having failed G-d, has been replaced by the Church. The Church is now seen as spiritual Israel and spiritual Jerusalem. This theology claims that all the promises and blessings, in fact Israel's entire inheritance, now belongs to the Church. (Israel, however, gets to keep the curses.)

Replacement Theology was first established at the Council of Nicea in 325 AD, but the idea was preached as early as the late first century CE by some of the 'Church Fathers'. During the last 1600 years, Reformations and Revivals have come and gone, new denominations have sprung up, but this root of Replacement Theology which continues to produce its antisemitic fruit, has not been cut off. This is a great stumbling block to the Jews as it prevents them from hearing anything a follower of Yeshua has to say. As the prophet Isaiah says: "...Remove the obstacles out of the way of my people" Isaiah 57:14b.

Christians need to sever themselves from this lie and be grafted into God's true Olive Tree - a tree which is deeply rooted in the unconditional Covenants of G-d. Replacement. Theology robs us from understanding the heart of G-d. It robs us from the security of truly trusting in His faithfulness. By understanding God's everlasting commitment towards Israel, we can rest assured of His commitment toward us also. The Body of Messiah has not been chosen instead of Israel, but called to become part of God's covenants with Israel. To believe in Replacement Theology is to sever oneself from the root.

G-d has in no way either rejected nor replaced Israel and the Jewish people. His covenant with them is unconditional and non-transferable. God's covenants were never based on Israel's good behaviour, but were based on God's faithfulness toward His people. Although the Jewish people have suffered consequences of breaking God's laws, just as we all do, they have not been replaced or rejected. The scriptures make that quite clear.

"But you, O Israel, my servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, you descendants of Abraham my friend, I took you from the ends of the earth, from its farthest corners I called you. I said, 'You are my servant; I have chosen you and have not rejected you.'" Isaiah 41:8,9

"This is what the Lord says, he who appoints the sun to shine by day, who decrees the moon and stars to shine by night, who stirs up the sea so that its waves roar - the Lord Almighty is his name: 'Only if these decrees vanish from my sight,' declares the Lord, 'will the descendants of Israel ever cease to be a nation before me.'" Jeremiah 31:35,36

"How can I give you up Ephraim? How can I hand you over, Israel?..... for I am G-d and not man." Hosea 11:8,9

"I have loved you with an everlasting love.." Jeremiah 31:3

"O descendants of Israel his servant, O sons of Jacob, his chosen ones. He is the Lord our G-d; his judgments are in all the earth. He remembers his covenant for a thousand generations, the covenant he made with Abraham, the oath he swore to Isaac. He confirmed it to Jacob as a decree, to Israel as an everlasting covenant..." 1Chronicles 16:13-17

"For the Lord's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted inheritance." Deuteronomy 32:9

"He remembers his covenant forever, the word he commanded, for a thousand generations, the covenant he made with Abraham, the oath he swore to Isaac. He confirmed it to Jacob as a decree, to Israel as an everlasting covenant..." Psalm 105:8-10

"He has revealed his word to Jacob, his laws and decrees to Israel. He has done this for no other nation." Psalm 147:19,20

"The Lord will not reject his people; he will never forsake his inheritance." Psalm 94:14

"I ask then: Did G-d reject his people? By no means!" Romans 11:1

"Remember that at one time you were separated from Messiah, excluded from citizenship in Israel and foreigners to the covenants of the promise.... Consequently, you are no longer foreigners and aliens, but fellow-citizens with God's people and members of God's household.." Ephesians 2:12 &19

"Do not be arrogant, but be afraid. For if G-d did not spare the natural branches, he will not spare you either." Romans 11:20,21

"The law, introduced 430 years later, does not set aside the covenant previously established by G-d and thus do away with the promise. For if the inheritance depends on the law, then it no longer depends on a promise; but G-d in his grace gave it to Abraham through a promise." Galatians 3:17,18

THE GREATEST STUMBLING STONE FOR THE NON-JEWISH BELIEVER...GENTILE CHRISTIANITY AND ITS HIDDEN ANTI- SEMITISM

The Holocaust took place only a few decades ago under the very eyes of Christian Europe. The Christian clergy looked on while six million men, women, and children were murdered. And as the Jewish extermination program spread from one end of Europe to the other, the Pope sat in the Vatican with his attitude of neutrality concerning Hitler and his victims. There can be no doubt that the mass genocide of millions of Jews all over Europe called for enormous participation by huge numbers of people, both Protestant and Catholic. The horror of these events transcends anything known in human history. That it should have happened at all and in our time, and in a part of the world long thought to be civilized, culturally advanced and "Christian" is incomprehensible.

LET US PONDER SOME IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

Answer for yourself: What would cause such terrible hatred of every Jewish man, woman, and child that they should become the mortal enemy of the populations with whom they had lived for generations?

Answer for yourself: What allowed millions of people who considered themselves to be Christians to participate as perpetrators, collaborators, or silent bystanders, as six million men, women, and children were slaughtered?

Answer for yourself: And how did a competition between two sister religions become so great an abyss that it made mass murder possible?

These are the questions this paper seeks to answer through an understanding of the theology and practice of the Christianity in which these perpetrators, collaborators, and bystanders were raised, and which would support an environment that could allow such a horrific event to take place. In the light of history, one can't help but wonder if the events of this century have had any impact on today's Christian theology students who will be tomorrow's pastors and teachers? As the foundational teachings of the faith and the writings of the Church Fathers and "great theologians" are studied, are they accepted uncritically as indisputable authority.

Answer for yourself: Should they be?

Answer for yourself: And to what extent is the information on Jews and Judaism presented in inadequate, biased, and distorted ways, and can you catch such things when you read various accounts in the Bible?

Answer for yourself: As these "religious" students graduate, will they go on to teach large numbers of Christians who will be even less informed?

Answer for yourself: As they stand in their pulpits and talk about "the Jews," the "Pharisees," the crucifixion of Yeshua, and the early Church, will these pastors and teachers no longer be thinking of Auschwitz?

WHERE IT ALL BEGAN...AND WHERE YOU MUST GO TO UNDERSTAND WHAT YOU ARE INVOLVED IN

To understand the anti-Semitism of Christian Europe of this century, and how the same "spirit" resides in the church where you attend and in the "cherished" New Testament you read, one must look back two thousand years to the birth of Christianity and its separation from its beginnings in Judaism. As we look back to the beginning of the Christian Era, the issues are indeed multitudinous and complex. Only through a knowledge of this critical time of transition can we understand the roots of the prejudice which developed into Christian anti-Semitism.

To understand how a thoroughly Jewish religion of the Nazarene sect became the anti-Jewish religion of the Christian Church, it is necessary to retrace the events of the early centuries starting with Yeshua. It is the intent of this paper to focus on the person of Yeshua and his teaching, the theology and teaching of the Apostle Paul, culminating with the writings and theology of the Church Fathers through the 4th and 5th centuries and how each has or has not contributed to the roots of Christian anti-Semitism. Let me warn you up front: "Truth often hurts and is hard to swallow."

YESHUA....WHO WAS THE "REAL" YESHUA?

Yeshua was born a Jew, on Jewish soil. He was brought up in a Jewish family, taught from the Hebrew Bible, and his followers consisted entirely of Jewish people. He knew not Greek, Egyptian, Roman, or Persian. He spoke only Hebrew and the everyday language of the day...Aramaic. He was a Jew preaching to Jews. Although his teachings had universal implications, he was essentially a partisan and not an internationalist. As far as can be determined, Yeshua was a faithful and righteous Jew, teaching strict adherence to the Torah. His teachings were typically simple, practical, and ethical, without evidence of arrogance or parochialism. "Much of his teaching was Haggadic in character and consisted of parables, legends, and poetic sayings of the great teachers of Israel." Typically his teachings were prophetic in nature with concern for the Kingdom of G-d and the near end of the world. Yeshua frequently made use of the expression...Son of G-d. Bratton asserts that "this expression was a Hebrew idiom referring to the spiritual sonship of every person. The later use of the phrase by Hellenized theologians to indicate Yeshua's divinity as G-d's only son has no source in Yeshua the Semite." From the gospels it is evident that Yeshua actively participated in the culture of his day. It is also evident that he believed in much of the spiritual thinking of his time, such as demon possession, evil spirits, exorcism, and G-d's miraculous intervention in the world. "Practically all of his sayings, including the Lord's Prayer (Math. 6: 9-13), can be found in Jewish writings before his time...the Old Testament, the Apocrypha, Rabbinical teaching, or the Essene literature." The genius of Yeshua according to Bratton, lies in his ability to select and to emphasize. "He selected Jewish ethical principals and revitalized them for his hearers and sharpened their meaning. He reread the law, substituting positive principals for negative commandments, redefining religion along prophetic lines. He taught the potentiality and high worth of every individual, the paramount importance of personal moral integrity, the conviction that there is purpose in life, the idea of altruistic service as the true test of greatness, and the attitude of good will in all human relationships." The Sermon on the Mount in Matthew seems to compile most of Yeshua's principals while Luke illustrates them in parables. Paliakov is also in agreement with Bratton that Yeshua was in fact a faithful Jew. "Nothing in the Nazarene's teachings constituted formal heresy from the Jewish point of view: even at the end of the first century, a doctor of the law, Rabbi Eliezer, considered that Yeshua, too, would have a place in the world to come."

WHY IS YESHUA NOT ACCEPTED BY JEWS?

Answer for yourself: If Yeshua was a loyal and faithful Jew, why then the strange silence on the part of Israel concerning one of her most influential sons?

According to Bratton, the reason for this is twofold:

- "The first was the impossible claims made for Yeshua by certain of his followers that he was the new G-d of the Gentile Christians who spurned the universal G-d of Judaism." One can only imagine how the Jews of Yeshua's time must have felt about this claim, that he should be considered to be G-d himself and a rival of their own G-d. "The exaltation of Yeshua to a deity destroyed whatever interest there may have been on the part of Jews in his teachings."
- The other reason according to Bratton was the Christian persecution of Jews once the Church was in power. Instead of putting the teachings of Yeshua into practice, Gentile Christians began a reign of terror throughout the Roman world. This was to continue down through the centuries. In the name of Christ, Jews were treated with contempt, hunted down, tortured cruelly, and killed.

In 1905, Julius Wellhausen, a distinguished German scholar, declared that "Yeshua was not a Christian, but a Jew." Many a Christian was no doubt surprised, because for 1900 years Yeshua had been considered not as a man, and even less as a Jew, but as the second person in the Trinity, even G-d Himself. "If the Jews had failed to recognize Yeshua as one of their prophets, it was because the organized Church - both Catholic and Protestant - was concerned only with protecting its official portrait of Christ, the G-d, and prohibited any scholarly investigation of Yeshua, the man" (The Fundamental Teachings of Yeshua). The primary thrust of Yeshua's teaching seems to be that of the Kingdom of G-d. Scholars are divided on Yeshua's major emphasis. Some say that the "eschatological element was purely secondary and that Yeshua used the term 'Kingdom of G-d' to refer to the achievement of the will of G-d in individual life and society at large." Others believe that "Yeshua was an apocalyptist and regarded himself as a Messianic figure sent by G-d to announce the near end of the world and the establishment of G-d's Kingdom." At the time of Yeshua, the longing for deliverance from foreign oppression had become an obsession. And it was from Rome that the people sought their deliverance. The most in-depth writings concerning Yeshua come from the gospels. But one must remember that the gospels were not written by historians or biographers, but by theologians. The final editing was to take place by Gentile Christians who were opposed to the law of Judaism and whose chief interest was in attracting other Gentiles to Christianity. It does not appear from the situation at the time that it was Yeshua's intention to institute a new religion. He asked his followers to go beyond the Law in the sense of striving for selflessness and to have the heart of a servant. From the gospel accounts, his concerns were clearly for worship of G-d and justice toward all men. In the gospel of John, "the Jews" are clearly represented as Yeshua's main adversaries. "By the time the 4th gospel was written (approximately 125 C.E. according to modern scholars), the individuals who opposed Yeshua were long forgotten. And after one hundred years they gave way to the generalization 'the Jews.'"

YESHUA AND THE PHARISEES

Because of their portrayal in the gospels as hypocritical and self-righteous, the Pharisees have been looked down on by Christians for almost 1900 years. It is the contention of the gospels that the Pharisees had turned Judaism into a sterile, formal religion that was devoid of life and vitality; that because of them, Judaism had become nothing more than a yoke and a burden to the people. The Pharisees, along with the Sadducees, were descendants of the Hasidim, the loyal supporters of the Maccabean revolt against the Syrians in the second century B.C.E. They were really the founders of many of the religious teachings and ethical principals that have survived in Judaism to this day. Their main contribution was the "interpretation of the Torah and the commentary that accompanied it...later called the Talmud. Their interpretations have stood the test of time and were later to be found in the Mishnah and the Gemarah, giving continued application of the law to Jewish life down through the ages." Travis Herford, an authority on Pharisaism, writes "it belongs to the irony of history that the Pharisees should be charged with a bigoted and stiff-necked hardening and sterilizing of the religion of the Jews, when it was they, as contrasted to the Sadducees and other literalists, and they alone, who gave it the flexibility and adaptability of spirit that enabled it to live and survive." A point of interest, Yeshua himself was a product of the Pharisaic synagogue and frequently taught in it.

YESHUA'S DEATH

Near the end of his life, when Yeshua made his entry into Jerusalem, he was received by a great crowd of people. It was the time of Passover and one can only imagine what a hot bed of agitation Jerusalem could be under Roman rule, which was undoubtedly of great concern to the ruling priests and the Roman prefect. There are more than a few historical scholars who believe that "the movement led by Yeshua was a social and political Messianism and therefore a direct threat to Roman rule, and that Yeshua was arrested and condemned and crucified by the Romans as a political rebel."

Other scholars believe that "those responsible for the condemnation of Yeshua were the leaders of the priestly Oligarchy, belonging to the sect of the Sadducees." These priests held the interests of the upper class and were rigidly orthodox. They hated and feared Yeshua as a revolutionary who was stirring the people up with his dangerous Messianic ideas. Earlier, Yeshua had attacked the temple, the very symbol of the national religion.

Logic and reason do not support, as Christians have claimed through the centuries, that Yeshua was killed and nationally rejected by his people. People from all walks of life seemed to be irresistibly drawn to his teachings and his personality, as is evident from the frequent crowds that gathered around him. And as Morais states "perhaps the best proof that his enemies were a minority, and also of his popularity among the crowds congregated in Jerusalem, is that the ruling council took the precaution to arrest him in a solitary place and late at night, the time always preferred by tyrannical religious and secret police."

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN....AN ACCURATE PICTURE OF YESHUA? DON'T COUNT ON IT!!!

Before leaving Yeshua and continuing to look further into other origins of Christian anti-Semitism, the teachings of the Gospel of John should be further examined. It must be remembered that when the gospels came to be written, the sect of Christians were in open conflict with Judaism. Most scholars agree that the Gospel of John is the latest of the four. According to Morais, "Few Bible scholars accept that it was really written by the Galilean Fisherman who became Yeshua's closest disciple." If in fact the date of the writing of John's gospel is 125 C.E., this would be a major miracle indeed, for the Galilean fisherman to have written such a work. The accounts of Yeshua differ in the gospels, especially concerning the trial of Yeshua. John's gospel, however, is the only one that collectively describes the enemies of Yeshua as "the Jews." In none of the other gospels do "the Jews" demand, en masse, the death of Yeshua. In the other three gospels the plot to arrest Yeshua and put him to death is always presented as coming from a small group of priests and rulers. Whoever was the author of John's Gospel, one thing has become clear: the image of "the Jews" acting collectively as the enemy of Yeshua became fixed in the Christian mind. Successive generations of Christians were to read in the gospels the collective guilt of the Jews in the death of Christ.

A further word needs to be added concerning the guilt of "the Jews" in the death of Yeshua. At the time of the Roman occupation of Israel, there were already more Jews living in the Diaspora than in Palestine. It would not have been possible for all Jews to have been aware of the existence and teachings of Yeshua. Even the community of Galilee (Yeshua's childhood home) was more than a days journey away, and it is doubtful they were even aware that his arrest and crucifixion had taken place until after the fact. The Christian doctrine essentially teaches that G-d had sent his son into the world to save it and that his earthly appearance and death were foreordained. Foundational teachings by the Church Fathers is that salvation for all men came only through Christ. One of the great paradoxes of Christianity that can only be answered by Christians themselves is the argument so well taken by Bratton, who attests: "From the standpoint of common sense, if Yeshua Christ was predetermined and was necessary as the culmination of G-d's plan for the redemption of the world, then those who were supposed to have accomplished that death should be praised rather than blamed. If Christ's death was G-d's will and the only condition for salvation, it would seem unreasonable to anathematize those who helped bring it about. Rather than be castigated, they should be canonized." When Yeshua ended his ministry, it was not yet a religion. It was Jews who first carried his teaching into the Diaspora, where it was to find success beyond their imagination. It was to the Hellenized Jews that the apostle Paul was to bring this message first and also to include the Gentiles.

THE APOSTLE PAUL AND EARLY JEWISH CHRISTIANITY

As recorded in the Book of Acts, the members of the very first Christian community in Jerusalem were strictly observant Jews who observed the law to the last detail and had every intention of continuing to do so. They followed all the requirements of the law, including the observance of Shabbat, circumcision, and the dietary laws. New recruits came only from among fellow Jews. "These earliest Christians had no thought of being anything but good Jews. They were not called "Christians" until after the middle of the first century at Antioch." Up until that time, they were known by various names including the Nazarenes, Ebionites, the Brethren, Followers of the Way, Sons of Light, and Galileans. And among them were diverse points of view and theologies. From the accounts in Acts, it is clear that it was the Greek speaking Jews of the Diaspora, or the Hellenists, whose attitude toward the Gentiles was one of openness and tolerance. It was they who were considered by the leaders in Jerusalem to be the greatest threat to the fledgling group of Nazarenes. After his conversion, Paul the Apostle, was such a Jew. As recorded in Acts, the first great conflict in the history of the Church was this clash between these Hellenized Jews and the more orthodox followers of Yeshua.

The main issues in the conflict were:

- Did salvation through Christ supersede or make optional obedience to the Mosaic Law?
- If Gentiles were already G-d-fearing and converted to Christ, should they be responsible for following the whole of Jewish Law or not?

Because Yeshua's teaching had been strictly to Jews in Israel, the questions posed above had not arisen. The Nazarenes who were led by Peter and James (the brother of Yeshua) did not have to worry about the "Gentiles" as conversion literally made them "Jews" and "acceptable." Little attention was paid to the "G-dfearers" by most Jews. Peter and James presided over the synagogue of Nazarenes in Jerusalem. The Hellenists were led by a religious genius and an outstanding leader: Paul or Saul of Tarsus. Those Jews in Jerusalem held strictly to the Mosaic Law and their tradition; maintaining that circumcision was a necessity for all non-Jews coming to G-d. This included those who came to G-d later through the efforts of those who considered themselves followers of the supposed "Christ."

Now what I say next is very important so read it slowly and carefully. Paul, on the other hand, had undertaken missionary journeys where he had converted Greeks to Christianity. He maintained that the Law was not necessary for Greek converts.

Answer for yourself: But what Law? Paul was speaking ONLY about ONE Law...the Law of Circumcision for the non-Jew. Paul was opposing the bigotry of most Jews who required "circumcision" for the non-Jew before they would accept the non-Jew into their circles (the Israel of G-d). G-d, having never given circumcision as a requirement for the non-Jew to be accepted by Him, never intended that and Paul and others knew this and was honest enough to teach the Covenants correctly. For Paul, the only requirement was to be baptized into the faith (immersion part of "being born again" following one's faith in G-d and repentance). "Law or no Law, he considered his Greek converts to be bona fide Christians."

James and Peter, however, remained insistent that a Gentile had to become a Jew before becoming a Christian. At least they would for a while but we see their views change by the time we come to Acts 15.

THE TWO ACCOUNTS OF THE ACTS 15 COUNCIL....PAUL WINS...OR DOES HE? PAUL.....APOSTLE OR APOSTATE?

Paul set up his headquarters in Antioch, a Syrian city. It was here that the segregation barriers of Jews and Gentiles began to fall, and the Jewish sect of Nazarenes began to be called in Greek, Christianoi, or followers of Christ (Acts 11: 19-26). Because the conflict remained unresolved, the Christian community of Antioch decided to send Paul and Barnabas to Jerusalem for a conference with Peter and James. There are two accounts of this conference.

Let me preface what comes next with this remark: "Winners write history." The Jews lost and the Gentile won. Now let us read look at the two accounts in the Gentile's New Testament.

Galatians 2 is Paul's own account of how he took Titus, an uncircumcised Gentile, along with him to prove his point. Here Paul claims an unqualified victory over the orthodox viewpoint in Jerusalem.

Answer for yourself: How accurate is this "personal" account to what really happened and how can we know the truth behind this story?

The second account is by Luke (Paul's buddy) who reports that an agreement was worked out. In both accounts, there is agreement that Paul won his argument. As a result, Paul and Barnabas became fully accredited as missionaries to the Gentiles. And so in 48 C.E. the Council of Jerusalem established the legitimacy of Gentile Christianity and freed it from the requirements of the Jewish Law. From that time on, Christianity would develop its own vocabulary in Greek and Latin, and also ways of expression which would make it increasingly divergent from those of Judaism and its origins. Leon Poliakov points out that "when Paul made this crucial decision to exempt Christian proselytes from the commandments of the law and from circumcision, he thereby changed the course of world history."

And so Paul became known not only as the Apostle of the Gentiles, but also among his fellow Jews as the "Apostate of the Law." "He had opened the door to the Gentiles without requiring from them obedience to the law of circumcision. But the story does not end here. What began with Paul as "one" Law that need not be obeyed by the non-Jews would later evolve into the need to not obey many Laws. In turn this religious evolutionary pilgrimage of Paul would lead to the introduction into this "new Gentile religion" a host of other abominations - deification of Christ, the cult of the Virgin Mary harking back to the great pagan goddesses, the setting up of images in Churches, which was an open infringement of the second Commandment, and so on." Such compromises became a way to "reach the non-Jew" with the "Pauline gospel." Although Paul and other missionaries continued to preach in the synagogues, the gulf began to widen between church and synagogue. This is understandable when one realizes that "two different gospels were being taught" in Yeshua' name. And although Christianity was birthed in Judaism and was at its inception powerfully influenced by it, it none the less ceased to be Jewish in language and outlook. Judaism, threatened by the popularity of this new religion, reacted by closing its ranks. The Jews established a canon of the Hebrew Bible and condemned the writings of the "Nazarenes," who were in reality the Essenes whom were heavily influenced by Egyptian sun-worship. This explains why we find two different pictures of Jesus in the New Testament. The Synoptic Gospels (Matt., Mark, Luke) present a human Jesus and the Gospel of John presents a "cosmic g-dman" more in tune with the Essene solar myths. "Apparently the final break occurred when the Jewish patriarch, Gamaliel II, included an imprecation against the Christians in the Shemoneh Esreh (Eighteen Benedictions)" ....an important prayer to guard against apostates. At this point, Christians were no longer seen as harmless followers of Judaism, but as grave heretics.

PAUL AND TORAH...THE BIRTH OF ANTI-SEMITISM IN CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE

Many historians believe that Paul never advocated that Jews should stop following the Torah, only that Gentiles could now come into the covenants of Israel without adhering to the Law. The implications of his teachings, however, were to have profound effects upon succeeding generations of Christians. Because of the essential conflict between grace and law, Paul devotes much of his letters to dealing with the issue of the Law and Jewish legalism. The view expressed by Davis is that Paul does not seem to "disagree with individual Jews, but with Judaism itself, saying that Christianity has replaced it. By attacking the Law as such, Paul appears to attack the very essence of Israel and he does so from a position of knowledge." One can only imagine what those early Gentile converts must have thought of Judaism. Paul, the Pharisee, the disciple of the great Rabban Gamaliel, who has experienced the best that Judaism has to offer, has rejected the Law so completely that he does not advocate that Gentile proselytes should adhere to it. In the Pauline letters, Judaism is reflected as a joyless mechanical means of earning salvation by doing the works of the Law. And the G-d of the Jews is portrayed as a remote and gloomy tyrant who lays the burden of the Law on men.

Against this portrayal of Judaism, the gospel of freedom from the Law is indeed welcomed as good news. And only a people who were stubborn and stiff-necked would refuse to be liberated from this burden. When one considers that the three pillars on which Judaism stands are G-d, Torah, and Israel, an attack on any one of them would be considered anti-Jewish. Such doctrines that denigrate the Law and the Torah, or which advocate the replacement of the Torah since it has somehow "ended" or "ceased" are anti-Semitic. Paul is guilty of this and without a thoroughly and comprehensive understanding of Covenants and the Jewish Scriptures, one is easily misled when reading Paul. Without an accurate understanding of what the Jew understood concerning "salvation" one is easily misled when reading Paul and tends to accept everything written or spoken by him as if it is "infallible." Such I have found over 16 years of intensive Biblical study is not wise.

CHRIST IS THE "END" OF THE LAW...OR IS HE?

In Romans 10: 4 Paul declares that "Christ is the end of the Law" and this can be interpreted as the end of the history of Israel as the people of G-d. This was to bring about, beginning from the second century onward, the replacement theory in Christian theology, which essentially states that the Church has now replaced Israel as the chosen people of G-d, and this has been one of to the greatest obstacles in the Christian's understanding of the Jews. From the Jewish point of view, it was Paul's apparent abrogation of the Law which was most disturbing. Jewish interpreters and those who know something of Jewish thought and Torah, felt that "Paul's attacks were not merely unfair, they missed the mark completely.

The Rabbis never speak of Torah as the means to salvation, and when they speak of salvation at all, it is the way of Torah, which is your life." In the eyes of Judaism "faith and works are never seen as opposites, for each would be meaningless without the other." When one considers that most Christian scholars have drawn their primary understanding of the Jewish concept of Torah, not from Jewish sources, but from the pages of the New Testament itself, their ignorance is understandable and not surprising. The result, unfortunately, has been historical inaccuracy and misunderstanding of the religion in which Christianity has its origins.

PAUL'S DIVERGENCE FROM JESUS AND HIS TEACHINGS

Yeshua and Paul seem to be in agreement in basic religious and ethical values. Paul is in agreement with Yeshua on G-d's omnipotence, His fatherhood, His unity, and His benevolence. The difference in their teaching is that Yeshua's theology was theocentric, while Paul's was Christocentric. Once Paul's letters became canonized, this led to the beginning of the process of deification of Yeshua, which ultimately led to the Nicean Creed in the fourth century. It was this divergence between Yeshua and Paul that was to set the pattern for all future Christian thought. Bratton proposes that Paul's theology was neither consistent nor systematic, but rather it was formalized "on the run." "His teaching was a mosaic blending of various elements from his Jewish heritage and his Greek environment (pagan elements were used often as a "bridge" to capture the pagan Gentiles and persuade them to Paul's viewpoints). Paul's speeches in Acts, as compared with his letters, reveal a variety of attitudes toward Jewish Law and toward the place of Jewish history in G-d's plan of salvation. In spite of his opposition to the requirements of the Law for Gentiles, Paul had non-Jewish converts circumcised and also preached to Jews as his first responsibility. His Christology was likewise ambiguous. The impact of pagan thought on Paul's changing intellectual formulations compelled him to see Yeshua as something more than human, and yet as a Jew he could not bring himself to equate the historical Yeshua to G-d. He spoke of Christ as divine Lord, but he cannot be considered a Trinitarian in the fourth century sense of the word." The main factors contributing to the rift from Judaism was the belief by the early Christians in the risen Christ and their rejection of the primacy of the Torah. From there, they were to go on to assert that they were the people of G-d, and that the Old Testament ceased to be important except as a preparation for the New Testament. Paul had laid the foundation, and by the end of the first century the rift was complete.

THE GENTILE-GREEK CHURCH FATHERS AND THE HELLENIZATION OF JEWISH CHRISTIANITY

Were it not for the teachings of Paul, it is possible that the early Nazarene movement might have survived in an atmosphere of coexistence among their fellow Jews. Aside from questions concerning the Messiahship of Yeshua, there were no great conflicts. The questions arose because the Jewish Scriptures and the Jewish prophecies were not fulfilled by Yeshua. What is confusing is that within the New Testament we have Jesus fulfilling prophecies on almost every page. But what the Christian fails to know and understand is that almost every one of these "fulfilled prophecies" is either a purposeful mistranslation, misquotation, or combinations of 2 or 3 of various Old Testament prophecies which have been combined to bring about a different conclusion than what was intended by the original writer. All this is done, mind you, with "prophetic authority" by leading the reader to believe that this or that "prophet" was prophesying concerning Jesus when they were not!

What I have just described is almost too incredible to be believed but one only needs to begin a serious study into how the Jewish Scriptures were corrupted "on purpose" by the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, to both know and see for themselves how the Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures is but an abomination of the Holy Texts and how unfortunately the New Testament quotes these exclusively and NEVER quotes from the Jewish Masoretic text. Such use of these "corrupted and fraudulent" passages in the Greek New Testament is but another example of Anti-Semitism and few know that this has been done throughout the pages of their New Testaments as pagan solar myths have been made to read as if "Messianic prophecies that were fulfilled." If you want to know what the true Messianic prophecies are then you need to purchase a Stone Edition Tanakh along with a book called Anti-Semitism in the New Testament by Lillian Freudmann. Comparing page after page of her book with the Tanakh and your KJV Old Testament and KJV New Testament will show you over and over how the Jewish Masoretic Text was corrupted in the Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures (Septuagint). Knowing this information it is no wonder why the Jews do not accept our "Christian Jesus;" they know better because their Bible is not corrupted!

REPLACING THE RELIGION OF JESUS WITH A ROMAN CATHOLIC VERSION

With the emergence of the early Catholic Church, there lies a vast chasm between it and primitive Christianity. A complete metamorphosis is seen as the teachings of Yeshua became a theological system. The spontaneous enthusiasm of the first age of Christianity has been replaced with a highly organized Church system with authority, creeds, and a canon of scriptures. The religion of Yeshua has been replaced by a religion of blessings, which are received only through sacraments, which are given only by the priests. The key to this transformation is Hellenization. When primitive Christianity broke from Judaism, it was immediately exposed to a world teeming with the Greek, Persian, and Egyptian cults. As Paul and other early missionaries sought new converts, it is not difficult to see how they would naturally and even unconsciously begin to utilize accepted terms in the propagation of their message. It also seems logical to assume that these new converts already had other religious ideas, which they brought with them as they came into the new faith. The mystery religions which were rampant in the Greek world at that time became the medium in which Christianity patterned itself. "The chief mysteries were Eleusinian, Dionysiac, and Orphic (Greek); Isis, Serapis, and Osiris (Egyptian); Mithra (Persian); and Adonis or Tammuz (Syrian). These cults offered man salvation through faith and sacrament. Their devotees conquered sin by obtaining a state of ecstasy or enthusiasm in which they became united mystically with the Savior...G-d." There seems to be a striking resemblance to the Pauline experience called "in Christ." As Christianity grew, the moral message of Yeshua was lost sight of as the mystery of his person became the prime consideration. And as Christianity became more Hellenized and separated from Judaism, it spread more rapidly.

THE CANONIZATION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

During the quarter-century following the death of Yeshua, nothing seems to have been written about his ministry or teachings. At first the sayings of Yeshua were written in Aramaic, then later in Greek. The first Gospel was that of Mark, written about 70 C.E., to be followed by those of Matthew and Luke. By the end of the century, Paul's letters had also acquired scriptural status. There were two reasons for making a new body of scripture. One was the natural desire for a document that would record the events that were happening and to distinguish the new faith from the Jewish religion. The other basic reason for canonization was to separate the orthodox or genuine from the heterogeneous mass of literature that had begun to accumulate in the first two centuries. The process of canonization was determined by two factors: one was automatic and the other arbitrary. Along with the Hebrew Bible, certain books were being used in the services of worship. These books which were read purely for edification were automatically included. "Among the books cited as being regularly used in the period from 100 to 170 C.E. were the Four Gospels, Acts, the Letters of Paul, I Peter and I John." The years 220-400 C.E. saw the acceptance of the above list, plus those books which up to this time had been almost universally rejected, such as James, II Peter, II and III John, Jude, Hebrews, and Revelation. On the other hand, several other books which had previously been regarded as canon were rejected. These include Barnabas, Hermas, the Didache, and I Clement. The authorities of this closing period were Origen from Alexandria; Cyprian, the Bishop of Carthage; Eusebius, the Christian Historian of Caesarea; and Athanasius, Bishop of Alexandria. In 367 they issued for the first time a canonical list that was the same as the present New Testament. Jerome used this same list for his later translation. In 397 the Council of Carthage ratified the list and it became canonized. From this brief outline, it appears that the canonization of the New Testament was purely a human process. The Church was to teach that scripture was an infallible revelation and divinely predetermined, which discouraged any later objective and scholarly investigation from within its own ranks.

THE EMERGENCE OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE REJECTION OF JEWISH FAITH

By the year 300 C.E., the clergy had become a distinct class. It was organized on an hierarchical basis of deacons, presbyters, and bishops. It held complete authority over the laity. When the Council of Constantinople in 381 made the bishop of the principal cities "patriarchs," the Roman bishop refused the title and called himself "Pope" and "Visible Head of the Church." As Christianity evolved into the Catholic Church, there was much disagreement about the nature of Christ. The Latin view of Cyprian and Tertullian identified Christ with G-d as co-equal and co-eternal. On the other hand, the Greek or Eastern Church was divided. The Alexandrian school held Christ to be of the same substance as that of the Father, whereas the Antiochian school subordinated Christ to the Father. The controversy became so intense that Constantine convened the Nicean Council in 325 C.E. This was made possible by the recognition of Christianity as the official religion of the Empire by Constantine in the Edict of Milan in 313. "The so-called Nicean Creed as used today was the one probably adopted at the Council of Constantinople in 381." The Nicean formula decided once and for all the oneness of Father and Son, and it pronounce anathemas on all those who did not accept it. The Latin theologians of the Western Church had prevailed, their leaders were Tertullian, Cyprian, and Augustine. Tertullian (150-225 C.E.), presbyter of Carthage, had been trained for the Law. His approach was rigid and legal. His reasonings were... "Only those who were baptized and followed the prescribed course of penitence could hope for release from punishment" and "Divine revelation not reason is the source of all truth." Cyprian (200-258 C.E.), bishop of Carthage, had been a pupil of Tertullian. He is credited with the much quoted phrase "Outside the Church, there is no salvation." "He instigated the Lord's Supper as a magical rite and the practice of celibacy." Augustine (354-430 C.E.), bishop of Hippo in North Africa, became the Father of Roman Catholic thought. He believed that man's citizenship was already in heaven, and the present life is but a prelude to the heavenly life. But heaven is only for those who G-d has chosen. Some are predetermined, others are not. Leo the Great in the fifth century and Gregory the Great in the sixth century, gave Augustine the official stamp of approval. The transition to the Catholic Church was now fairly complete. Sacrament was now central to the religion and it was grounded in authority. Any inquiry into the basis of the faith was not permitted. By the fifth century, Christianity had rejected the rationalization of the Greeks. It turned it's back on tolerance and rational thinking, embracing legalism, dogma, authority, and sacramentalism. The rejection of Hellenism was to bring on a thousand years of darkness.

THE ANTI-SEMITISM OF THE GENTILE CHURCH

The war of the Christian Church against the Jews began with the Church Fathers' relentless attacks on those Jews who stubbornly refused to accept Yeshua as Messiah. "The unbridled utterances of bigotry and hate coming from the venerated Church Fathers of the early Christian Church raises some doubt as to both their sanity and their saintliness." Despite their belief that Christ's death was necessary and predestined, they denounced the Jews as a "condemned race and hated of G-d." Before expounding further on the anti-Semitism of the Fathers, it is only fair to mention that from the days of Paul onward, there was considerable anti-Christian hostility from among the orthodox Jews because of the claims of Christianity. Because the rapidly growing Church was becoming a real threat to Judaism, fear and hatred of Christianity would not be surprising. It is quite possible that the Jews may have aided and even instigated the early Roman persecution of the Christians in the first few centuries. Because of the growing power of the Church, Christian theology and the Church Fathers were to become more and more obsessed with Jewish guilt. The following teachings of the Fathers were to be handed down throughout succeeding generations in Christendom:

Origen (185-254 C.E.) echoed the growing hostility: "On account of their unbelief and other insults which they heaped upon Jesus, the Jews will not only suffer more than others in the judgment which is believed to impend over the world, but have even already endured such sufferings. For what nation is in exile from their own metropolis, and from the place sacred to the worship of their fathers, save the Jews alone? And the calamities they have suffered because they were a most wicked nation, which although guilty of many other sins, yet has been punished so severely for none as for those that were committed against our Jesus."

The Church, who was now Israel, had to discredit the other Israel. And it did so by making anti-Jewish theology an integral part of Christian apologetics. The Fathers turned out volumes of literature to prove that they were the true people of G-d, and that Judaism had only been a prelude to or in preparation for Christianity.

Justin Martyr along with Hippolytus (170-236 C.E.) was obsessed with the belief that the Jews were receiving and would continue to receive G-d's punishment for having murdered Yeshua. Hippolytus writes: "Now then, incline thine ear to me and hear my words, and give heed, thou Jew. Many a time does thou boast thyself, in that thou didst condemn Yeshua of Nazareth to death, and didst give him vinegar and gall to drink; and thou dost vaunt thyself because of this. Come, therefore, and let us consider together whether perchance thou dost boast unrighteously, O, Israel, and whether thou small portion of vinegar and gall has not brought down this fearful threatening upon thee and whether this is not the cause of thy present condition involved in these myriad of troubles."

As the Church came into power in the fourth century, it turned on the synagogues with even greater intensity. Jewish civil and religious status was deteriorating, thanks to the influence the bishops had in the political arena. Laws were passed making it a capital offense for any Jew to make a convert, they were excluded from various professions, denied all civil honors, and their autonomy of worship was being threatened. In every way, they were being discriminated against. Christians felt that their belief in divine punishment was now supported by this growing evidence. Hilary of Potieres spoke of the Jews as "a people who had always persisted in iniquity and out of its abundance of evil glorified in wickedness." Ambrose defended a fellow bishop for burning a synagogue at Callinicum and asked "who cares if a synagogue - home of insanity and unbelief - is destroyed?"

Gregory of Nyssa (331-396 C.E.) gave the following indictment: "Slayers of the Lord, murderers of the prophets, adversaries of G-d, men who show contempt for the Law, foes of grace, enemies of their fathers' faith, advocates of the Devil, brood of vipers, slanderers, scoffers, men whose minds are in darkness, leaven of the Pharisees, assembly of demons, sinners, wicked men, stoners, and haters of righteousness."

The strongest attacks on Jews and Judaism by the Church Fathers are to be found in the Homilies of Chrysostom (344-407 C.E.) in his Antioch sermons. He is considered to be among the most beloved and admired in Church history. His name translates in Greek as St. John the "Golden Mouthed." His discourses were prompted by the fact that many Christians were meeting on friendly terms with Jews, visiting Jewish homes, and attending their synagogues. Chrysostom said: "The Jews sacrifice their children to Satan....they are worse than wild beasts. The synagogue is a brothel, a den of scoundrels, the temple of demons devoted to idolatrous cults, a criminal assembly of Jews, a place of meeting for the assassins of Christ, a house of ill fame, a dwelling of iniquity, a gulf and abyss of perdition." "The Jews have fallen into a condition lower than the vilest animal. Debauchery and drunkenness have brought them to the level of the lusty goat and the pig. They know only one thing: to satisfy their stomachs, to get drunk, to kill, and beat each other up like stage villains and coachmen." "The synagogue is a curse, obstinate in her error, she refuses to see or hear, she has deliberately perverted her judgment; she has extinguished with herself the light of the Holy Spirit." Chrysostom further said that the Jews had become a degenerate race because of their "odious assassination of Christ for which crime there is no expiation possible, no indulgence, no pardon, and for which they will always be a people without a nation, enduring a servitude without end." He elaborated further on G-d's punishment of the Jews: "But it was men, says the Jew, who brought these misfortunes upon us, not G-d. On the contrary, it was in fact G-d who brought them about. If you attribute them to men, reflect again that even supposing men had dared, they could not have had the power to accomplish them, unless it had been G-d's will...Men would certainly not have made war unless G-d had permitted them...Is it not obvious that it was because G-d hated you and rejected you once for all?" On another occasion Chrysostom is quoted as saying "I hate the Jews because they violate the Law. I hate the synagogue because it has the Law and the prophets. It is the duty of all Christians to hate the Jews."

Chrysostom's Homilies were to be used in seminaries and schools for centuries as model sermons, with the result that his message of hate would be passed down to succeeding generations of theologians. The nineteenth century Protestant cleric R. S. Storr called him "one of the most eloquent preachers who ever since apostolic times have brought to men the divine tidings of truth and love." A contemporary of Storr, the great theologian John Henry Cardinal Newman, described Chrysostom as a "bright, cheerful, gentle soul, a sensitive heart..."

Augustine, the great theologian, was also guilty of the growing hatred. In a sermon on Catechumens, he says: "The Jews hold him, the Jews insult him, the Jews bind him, crown him with thorns, dishonor him with spitting, scourge him, overwhelm with revilings, hang him upon the tree, pierce him with a spear...The Jews killed him." "But when the Jews killed Christ, though they knew it not, they prepared the supper for us." In another sermon he characterized the Jews as "willfully blind to Holy Scripture," "lacking in understanding" and "haters of truth." The Church Fathers had sown the seeds of intolerance and Jews were to become the object of hatred and persecution all over Europe for centuries to come.

CONCLUSION

Many of the sources reviewed in the writing of this article agree that Yeshua was, in fact, an observant Jew and that he was loyal to the faith of his people, as is also my own conclusion. It seems clear that he did not have any concern for starting a new religion or for the conversion of his own people to a faith outside their own. Clearly, his concerns were for the Kingdom of G-d, brotherly love, and for teaching the moral and spiritual implications of the Law (Mat. 5:17). In reading the accounts of Yeshua, some Christians have wrongly interpreted his criticism of the "Pharisees" [which were in all probability Sadducees] and their attention to the fine distinctions of the Law, as an indication that the Law was no longer necessary. Therefore, any Jews who observed Jewish Law would not find favor with Yeshua. To do this is to remove Yeshua from his culture as well as it is to misunderstand what he was teaching. But this alone cannot be used to develop an anti-Jewish theology. As previously stated, if not for the innovations of Paul, it is possible the early sect of the Nazarenes might have survived within Judaism, or at least lived in an atmosphere of coexistence. Paul's innovations were to have such a profound influence that they have effected the course of world history. The position presented in this paper is that it was the Hellenization of Christianity that caused its separation from Judaism. Paul himself, the Apostle to the Gentiles, was a Hellenized Jew from Tarsus in Cilicia. It was the lack of understanding on the part of the Gentiles concerning Jewish Law, Jewish life, and the Jewish mind set that was to cause the reactionary attitudes of early Gentile Christians; attitudes which were first against Judaism and were later to become the anti-Semitic policies of the Christian Church. Paul's mission was to the Gentiles and his position was to simply make the faith accessible to Gentiles whom he felt were not required or obligated to take on the sometimes uncomfortable demands of Jewish Law. For example, by dropping the requirement for male circumcision, he made conversion to Christianity painless. A Christian proselyte could continue to live his life in his own culture without major interruption. And so began a blending process of Jewish and pagan customs and festivals which were later to become institutionalized by the Church, e.g. Sunday observance, Christmas, Easter. Because of this blending and "gentilizing" of Paul's teaching, Judaism seemed to the Gentile Christian mind set to be more and more in error. By removing the requirement for Gentiles to follow Torah, he unwittingly set the stage for the later anti-Semitism of the Church Fathers.

On the other hand, the writings and speeches of the Church Fathers as presented in this paper, clearly speak for themselves as to the blatant anti-Semitism, Jewish hatred, and intolerance that was pervasive by the fourth and fifth centuries. The Church had begun to act in ways that were in diametric opposition to its founder. Yeshua never taught his followers to convert people by force, or to persecute, oppress, or harm people simply because they disagreed with his message. It is not difficult to understand how Christian anti-Semitism has been perpetuated, since the very men who laid the foundational Christian theology and developed the Nicene Creed were, in fact, some of the worst anti-Semites in history.

In the first century C.E. one out of every ten citizens of the Roman Empire

was following Judaism.

It was Judaism that had introduced G-d to the Roman world, but it was Christianity that was to become the state religion. Despite the rapid growth of this new religion, the Jews remained faithful and steadfast in their ancient religion. The people to whom Yeshua addressed his message and to whom he belonged, rejected all Christian claims concerning him. By continuing to keep Torah, the Jews threatened the very truth, if not the very existence of Christianity. If Judaism remained valid and the only path to G-d, then Christianity was invalid. The Church Fathers had a very logical solution to this problem...their apologetics would deny the legitimacy of the Jews and Judaism. The Church promoted itself as the new Israel, and the other Israel had to be discredited. And it did so by citing the Jews own scriptures against them, not just on specific issues, but on the fundamental questions of Israel's status as G-d's chosen people. In the process, the Christian religion became saturated with anti-Jewish sentiments.

The Church Fathers misinterpreted Yeshua's teachings and lacked understanding of his Jewish culture. They assumed Paul's teaching to have universal application to Gentile and Jew alike, while failing to understand that his teaching of not being "under the Law" was not intended as instruction for the Jews but only concerned itself with the commandment of circumcision (which was never required by G-d of the non-Jew according to the Covenant and Laws of Noah). The Church Fathers developed, therefore, an extreme theology that was rigid and intolerant and required the Jews to abandon Judaism or be seen as "foes of grace, enemies of their fathers' faith, and advocates of the Devil."

Persecution followed the Jews wherever they went in the centuries that followed. Over time, three progressively severe policies were to be applied against the Jews: conversion (you can not live among us as Jews), expulsion (you can not live among us), and annihilation (you can not live). It is therefore my conclusion that the Church Fathers bare the major responsibility for the origins of Christian anti-Semitism.

Before closing it is important to point out that Christian anti-Semitism is not simply a shameful blemish on the early Church, but is an underlying element of Christian theology that has endured through the centuries and into modern times. It is tragic that in later times even the well known Church reformer, Martin Luther, was finally seduced by all the anti-Jewish propaganda of his time. Although in his earlier ministry Luther sympathetically acknowledged the shameful way the Church had treated the Jews and urged kind treatment of them, in later life he was to write the complete opposite. Here in part is what Luther wrote in C.E. 1543. Note that Adolf Hitler seemed to use it as a general guide for implementing the earlier phase of his "final solution" against the Jews:

"What then shall we Christians do with this damned, rejected race of Jews? Since they live among us and we know about their lying and blasphemy and cursing, we cannot tolerate them if we do not wish to share in their lies, curses, and blasphemy. . . . We must prayerfully and reverentially practice a merciful severity. . . . Let me give you my honest advice: First, to set fire to their synagogues or schools and to bury and cover with dirt whatever will not burn, so that no man will ever again see a stone or cinder of them. This is to be done in honor of our LORD and of Christendom. . . Second, I advise that their houses also be razed and destroyed . . . Third, I advise that all their prayer books and Talmudic writings, in which such idolatry, lies, cursing, and blasphemy are taught, be taken from them. Fourth, I advise that their rabbis be forbidden to teach henceforth on pain of loss of life and limb . . . Fifth, I advise that safe conduct on the highways be abolished completely for the Jews. For they have no business in the countryside, since they are not lords, officials, tradesmen, or the like. Let them stay at home . . . [We might well ask "What home?", since they were all presumably burned in point two!] Sixth, I advise that usury be prohibited to them, and that all cash and treasure of silver and gold be taken from them, and put aside for safe keeping. Seventh, I recommend putting a flail, an ax, a hoe, a spade, a distaff, or a spindle into the hand of young, strong Jews and Jewesses and letting them earn their bread in the sweat of their brow."

Such is the fruit of the lack of proper understanding of Biblical Judaism and the place of the non-Jew within in

according to the plan and instruction (Torah) of G-d. We see it in the early centuries of the Gentile Church and we see the same on the street corners of our land today. It is way past time that the Gentile believing Christian begins a serious study of his faith and the origin of his cherished Christian doctrines; the vast majority of which Yeshua, a Jew, neither believed nor could endorse today. Belief in such religious tenants is little more than Anti-Semitism dressed in religious grab. It is time to no longer "be ignorant" of the facts of our faith if you are truly a follower of Yeshua. # CHRISTIAN ANTI-SEMITISM...AND YOU THOUGHT YOU WERE NOT ANTISEMITIC?

The differences Jews had with their non-Jewish neighbors led to separate social and religious lives. Intolerance and suspicion of these differences led to fear and hatred. Classical anti-Semitism (hatred of the Jewish people), Christian anti-Semitism and Modern anti-Semitism each have their own basis. In order for the Holocaust to have occurred, it required the perpetrators to have developed and spread the most virulent strain of anti-Semitism, whose roots can be traced back to ancient times.

FACTS CONCERNING ANTI-SEMITISM:

- There were differences between Classical (pagan) anti-Semitism, Christian anti-Semitism and Modern anti-Semitism, although many of the roots of this hate were similar.
- Anti-Semitism developed in the ancient world because of intolerance of the religious differences between pagan (a follower of a polytheistic religion who believes in more than one god) peoples and the Jews.

Answer for yourself: Question...would that characterize Christians?

- Jews were the subject of anti-Semitism by Christians because Jews were viewed as evil and responsible for the crucifixion of Yeshua.
- Despite being outcasts, Jews had their niche in both the ancient and Christian worlds.
- Jews resisted the persecutions they were subjected to, but were the targets of massacres, forced conversions (the act of converting people to Christianity against their will). Jews and Moslems who were forced to become Christians and who secretly practiced their old religion were executed as heretics), segregated in ghettos (section or a quarter of a city where members of a minority group live because of legal, social or economic pressure), suffered expulsions (the act of forcing or driving out people from a city or country) and humiliating degradations.

THE CONSEQUENCES OF BEING DIFFERENT: PREJUDICE TOWARD THE JEWS

Anti-Semitism is the hatred of the Jewish people. The term was first used by a German in 1879, William Marr, who founded the "League for Anti-Semitism." Marr advanced the view that Jews constituted a distinct racial group which was both physically and morally inferior. According to Marr, there was indisputable scientific evidence that the Jews were predisposed to be a "slave race" while the "Aryans" which included the Teutonic and Nordic peoples, were the "Master Race."

Although the term "anti-Semitism" is thus relatively modern, documented prejudice, social and economic isolation, persecution and violence against the Jews predates Marr and his supporters by more than 2,300 years. In what is acknowledged to be the first historical reference to an anti-Semitic act, the Biblical account of the Purim story (the Book of Esther) recounts how the Jewish people narrowly escaped destruction in Persia in the 5th century B.C.E. All Jews in the kingdom were targeted for annihilation because one Jewish official refused to bow to the top aide of the king. Only as a result of the intervention of the queen, a Jew, who pleaded for saving her people, were the Jews saved from mass murder.

Classical anti-Semitism in the pre-Christian world followed along the same lines as the Purim story. For most of recorded history, the Jewish people had been the subjects of conquerors, such as the Persians, Greeks, Babylonians, Assyrians, and Romans. Most Jews refused to convert to the religion of their hosts and instead maintained their own religion, rituals and customs, often at great personal sacrifice.

The Jewish religion forbids Jews to bow down to any person or god other than the Creator. In the story of Purim, the failure of Mordecai, the Jewish, Persian official, to bow down to Haman, the top aide to the king, created conflict. This conflict between observing the Jewish religion and being sensitive to local customs was the basis for much of the anti-Semitism the Jewish people endured.

LOOKING AT EXAMPLES

- Jews observed strict dietary laws. Thus they could not, according to their law, share a meal in their neighbors' homes.
- Jews also could not, according to their law, work on the seventh day. Christians observed Sunday as their Sabbath, and Moslems observed Friday as their Sabbath. As a result, Jews were often "out of step."
- People who observed minority religions were, for the most part, quite willing to make sacrifices to the gods of their host countries, even as they worshipped their own gods. With only few exceptions, Jews refused to do so.
- Also according to their law, Jews were not supposed to marry outside their faith, and most did not. Intergroup marriages often served as a bond in ancient times to promote intergroup harmony. This refusal also retarded any assimilation (to accept the culture of another group while giving up one's own) which would have narrowed the differences between the Jews and their host communities.
- Enlightened ancient political leaders often granted privileges and exemptions to Jews because of knowledge about their religious conflicts. Those who were not granted these privileges and exemptions often resented this special treatment.
- Jews maintained their traditional dress and continued to wear beards and earlocks even when styles changed among their hosts. The result was that Jews became more easily identified as a stereotyped culture which had ramifications beyond religious differences.

HISTORY OF ANTI-SEMITISM

Evidence of anti-Semitism has been found in the writings of those who lived in Alexandria, Egypt, in the 4th century, B.C.E. In the first century C.E., Apion, a writer from Alexandria, wrote the "History of Egypt" which was the source for many of the false accusations about Jewish religious rituals which have plagued Jews throughout later history.

Isolated incidents of persecution against the Jews were recorded in the first century. As many as 4,000 Jews were deported to the island of Sardinia during the reign of the Roman Emperor Tiberius. The first recorded pogrom (an organized massacre, often sanctioned or condoned by the government, which also involves the destruction of property) took place during the reign of the Roman Emperor Caligula in 38 C.E.

Classical Roman writers such as Cicero and Ovid wrote about the differences between Jewish observances and those of the Romans in less than flattering terms.

CHRISTIAN ANTI-SEMITISM

Yeshua of Nazareth was a Jew. His childhood was typical of young Jewish boys of his time. He was circumcised on the eighth day after his birth, received a religious education, learned a trade, kept the law of Moses, and spoke both Hebrew and Aramaic, the languages of the Jews of his day. Upon reaching the age of 30, he began to preach and teach about the kingdom of G-d, calling people to repentance, and ministering to the sick. Many people began to follow him. His inner circle of disciples, who after Yeshua's death became the leaders of the first century church, were also Jews. For a number of years the early believers in Yeshua as the Messiah were culturally and ethnically similar to, and even at times worshipping alongside, their mainstream counterparts. But a number of religious and political events in the latter half of the first century and the early part of the second began to drive a wedge between church and synagogue.

A record of one of the earliest conflicts is recorded in a book of the New Testament called The Acts of the Apostles, chapter 15. A question arose in the church whether Gentile (non-Jewish) believers in Yeshua as the Messiah would be required to follow Jewish practices before being accepted as Christians. The church leaders ruled that they would not have to observe the entire Jewish law, only certain practices. As a result of the ruling on this issue, and the large-scale missionary efforts of the Apostle Paul to the Gentiles, the ethnic composition of the first century church began to rapidly change from a Jewish majority to a Gentile majority. To mainstream Jews, this change appeared as a willingness on the part of the early church to be a lawless society. They also feared this would allow pagan influences into the Jewish-Christian circles and eventually, Israel.

The destruction of the Second Temple contributed both to the growth of the early church and rabbinic Judaism. Demoralized after such a loss of Jewish national and religious life, people were grasping for something to believe in. Hope in a Messiah to save the people from the oppression of Rome began to grow. In 132 C.E., Simon Bar Kochba ("Son of the Star"), previously known as Simon Ben Kosiba, was endorsed by the leading Jewish intellectual of the time, Rabbi Akiba, to be the promised Messiah. Many people were skeptical, but the rabbis followed Akiba's precedent and hailed him as the Messiah. Bar Kochba led a revolt against Rome in 135 C.E. One segment of the population, however, refused to join in the revolt and wage war under the banner of Bar Kochba the Jews who had believed in Yeshua as the Messiah. Bar Kochba killed a number of them, seeing them as enemies, heretics (one who holds beliefs or opinions which differs from accepted doctrine) and traitors to the national cause.

Outraged at this, the growing Mediterranean church began to harbor bitterness against the Jewish people. The surviving Jewish believers in Yeshua, who felt both a loyalty to Israel as well as to the Western church, were being alienated by both groups: by the church because they were Jewish, and by Israel because of their obvious lack of support for Bar Kochba. As a result, two Messianic sects formed, the Ebionites and the Nazarenes, seeking to establish congregations which were more culturally Jewish. Embarrassed by the growing bitter anti-Semitism of the Western church, these sects disassociated themselves from the Western church in the second century. By 450 C.E., these groups had disappeared, and Christianity was becoming less and less tolerant of anything having to do with its Jewish roots. All things Jewish were suspect. The idea of a Jewish Christian maintaining a Jewish life-style became increasingly incomprehensible.

In the second century, theologians and church fathers became more concerned with "making the break" with anything Jewish, beginning to take an uncompromising posture of theological and political opposition. Blanket policies condemning Jews began to color New Testament interpretation. Some examples are: the promises of blessing to Israel in the Hebrew scriptures are now the exclusive property of the Church; G-d has cursed and rejected Israel, and now the Church is the "true" or "new" Israel; and the Jews killed Yeshua; all Jews everywhere forever are responsible for his death.

Within the writings of the church fathers (called "patristic" writings) were three main types which proved to be damaging to Jewish-Christian relations not only at the time they were composed (and sometimes read aloud to Christian congregations) but also in centuries following, as they were often used as a justification for anti-Jewish sentiment and, in the case of John Chrysostom's virulent anti-Jewish sermons, even anti-Jewish legislation:

- Dialogue only served to propagate Christian teaching. One of the earliest (mid-second century) and most important sources is the Dialogue of the church father Justin Martyr with Trypho the Jew. In this dialogue, Trypho is portrayed as being very impressed by Justin Martyr's arguments and nearly coming to accept them.
- Testimony by way of collections of Old Testament texts was to prove different claims connected with the person of Christ and the call of the Gentiles served as a "handy compendium of arguments for possible controversies" with Jews. An example is that of the third century African church father, Cyprian, The Testimonies against the Jews.
- Sermons or homilies were a group of writings which was "especially directed against the Jews". They served to warn Christians of the dangers of associating with the Jewish people and were developed as an absolute condemnation of the Jewish people, religion, and cultural practices. An example is that of Church Father John Chrysostom Adversus Judaeos, which are eight sermons preached at Antioch in 386-388 C.E.

By the second century C.E., both Judaism and Christianity were trying to distinguish each from the other in the eyes of Rome, as both had unique political concerns. Judaism by then had attained legal status in the Roman world as a religion and did not want Christianity, with its loyalty to a King other than Caesar, to be associated with it. The church, now largely Gentile, also wanted to obtain legal status in the eyes of Rome so that it would not be identified with the Jews, who had rebelled against Rome under Bar Kochba. Once it was clear to Rome that Christianity was not a sect of Judaism, Christianity was regarded as an illegal sect and was no longer under the protective umbrella of the legal status of Judaism. With the establishment of Christianity as the official religion of the Roman Empire by Constantine in the fourth century, however, Christianity soon began to enjoy a position of superiority over Judaism which caused serious consequences for Judaism.

The new "Christian" empire began to enact such changes as:

- 1). The removal of former religious and governing privileges
- 2). The curtailment of Rabbinical jurisdiction
- 3). Prohibition of missionary work
- 4). Jews were no longer allowed to hold high offices or have military careers (e.g. legislation in 537 C.E. which prohibited local Jewish people from serving on municipal bodies).

Negative theological attitudes began to abound, such as the idea that Jews had lost their right to exist; Jews only exist as a testimony to the truth of Christianity; Jews are suffering justly at the hands of the Gentiles because G-d is angry with them, etc. Various church councils drew up damaging anti-Jewish legislation such as:

- 1). Banning contact with Jews
- 2). The forbidding of the reading of the Torah exclusively in Hebrew (553 C.E.)
- 3). Confiscation of Jewish property
- 4). The prohibition of the sale of Christian property to Jews (545 C.E.).

Subsequent writings by church fathers (and church leaders throughout church history) condemned Jews, accusing them of being idolaters, torturers, spiritually deaf, blasphemers (words written or spoken which express contempt or irreverence about G-d), gluttons, adulterers, cannibals, Christ-killers, and beyond G-d's forgiveness. Church Father John Chrysostom in particular pushed the idea of Jewish sensuality, gluttony, stubbornness and rejection by G-d.

With the rise of the Church-State, certain religio-political attitudes such as Yeshua ruling the world through the Roman Christian government became evident in the Church. This attitude of superiority, flamed by the ever-increasing integration of the Church into Roman government, continued on into the Middle Ages (the historical period between the fall of Rome at the end of the 5th century and the start of the Renaissance in the 14th century) and was translated into repeated actual restrictions on Jews, as is evidenced by the following examples.

THE JUSTINIAN CODE

The Justinian Code was an edict (a formal decree or proclamation issued by an authority which has the force of law) of the Byzantine Emperor Justinian (527-564). A section of the code negated civil rights for Jews. Once the code was enforced, Jews in the Empire could not build synagogues, read the Bible in Hebrew, gather in public places, celebrate Passover before Easter, or give evidence in a judicial case in which a Christian was a party.

VARIOUS "ANTI-SEMITIC" DECREES BY THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

- Synod of Elvira of 306 (a council or assembly of churches or church officials) prohibited intermarriage and sexual intercourse between Christians and Jews, and prohibited them from eating together.
- Council of Orleans (533-541) prohibited marriages between Christians and Jews and forbade the conversion to Judaism by Christians.
- Trulanic Synod (692) prohibited Christians from being treated by Jewish doctors.
- Synod of Narbonne (1050) prohibited Christians from living in Jewish homes.
- Synod of Gerona (1078) required Jews to pay taxes to support the Church.
- Third Lateran Council (1179) prohibited certain medical care to be provided by Christians to Jews.
- Fourth Lateran Council (1215) required Jews to wear special clothing to distinguish them from Christians.
- Council of Basel (1431-1443) forbade Jews to attend universities, them from acting as agents in the conclusion of contracts between Christians, and required that they attend church sermons.

CRUSADES

The Catholic Church launched a series of nine holy wars from 1096-1272. The purpose of these wars was to march to the Holy Land of Palestine and liberate it from Moslem "infidels." Along the way, the crusaders (nine wars waged by European Christian rulers between 1096 and 1291 to win the Holy Land from the Moslems) massacred all "infidels" in their path who refused to be baptized on the spot to Christianity. Thousands of Jews were massacred in Germany and France.

BLOOD LIBEL AND THE BLACK DEATH

In the Middle Ages, Jews were accused of all kinds of slanders and were scapegoats for the problems of the day. In 1144, a myth began in England that Jews murdered Christian children (Blood Libel-the accusation that Jews used the blood of non-Jewish children to bake matzah, their Passover bread). This myth was expanded to become an accusation which persisted for centuries that the Jews used the blood of Christian children in the preparation of their Passover unleavened bread (matzohs). This "blood libel" was ironic in that the consumption of any blood is expressly prohibited by Jewish law.

The bubonic plague, the cause of the Black Death (a pandemic of the bubonic plague which killed about a quarter of the people of Europe between 1347 and 1350) that liquidated a quarter of the population of Europe in the 14th century, was blamed on the Jews in Europe and Asia. The Pope (the bishop of Rome and head of the Roman Catholic Church) issued a bull (a formal document issued by the Pope) declaring that Jews were not responsible for the plague, but not before many Jews were burned alive or hanged by enraged mobs.

During this period, Jews were permitted to be moneylenders and act as financiers, only because this activity, while necessary for a prosperous economy, was viewed by the Church as sinful. Because Jews enjoyed a monopoly over an activity viewed as sinful, a Jewish stereotype was perpetuated.

THE INQUISITION

The Inquisition was a religious court instituted by Pope Gregory IX in 1233 to investigate and punish heresy among Christians. It was officially called Congregation of the Holy Office which was a tribunal established in the Middle Ages (13th Cent.) by the Catholic Church in Rome designed to suppress heresy. In 1233, Pope Gregory IX formally established the papal Inquisition and sent Dominican friars to South France and Northern Italy to conduct inquests. The Dominican order had set as one of their goals the conversion of Jews to Christianity. This aim, backed by the power of the Inquisition, brought on a wave of persecution.

Torture was not an approved method of extracting confessions of guilt from heretics, yet it was practiced and finally approved by Pope Innocent IV. The goal of the Inquisition was not the destruction of the heretics but rather their repentance. Burning at the stake was not common. The ordinary penalties were penance, fines and imprisonment. Penalties were often carried out by the local government, especially the death penalty. Because the fines extracted and the property of the accused were turned over to the local government which often returned a portion to the Church, graft, bribery and blackmail were common.

The church rulers were often satisfied with assurances of goodwill. The secular rulers, however, used the persecution of heresy as a weapon to further their own designs.

Unlike the Medieval Inquisition, the Spanish Inquisition was established in 1478 by King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella with only the reluctant approval of Pope Sixtus IV. The Roman Church's only hold over the Spanish Inquisition was the appointment of the inquisitor general, the first of which was Toms de Torquemada. The popes never reconciled themselves to the practices of that inquisition. Attempts by Sixtus IV to interfere with an inquisition that had become too severe were thwarted by Ferdinand and Isabella who now had a potent tool to subvert the population of Spain.

"The purpose of the Spanish Inquisition was to discover and punish converted Jews (and later Muslims) who were insincere. However, all Spaniards began to fear its prying eyes. The death penalty was used more often than in the Roman Inquisition, and rules that condemned one for heresy were far stricter, often outlawing things the Roman Church approved.

"For centuries, the Jewish community in Spain had flourished and grown in numbers and influence, though anti-Semitism had from time to time made itself felt and pressure to convert was brought to bear on the Jews. Nominal converts from Judaism were called Marranos (Jews who had been baptized under duress, but were believed to be still surreptitiously practicing Judaism). After... the marriage of Ferdinand and Isabella (1469), the Marranos which were the baptized Jews of Spain and Portugal who were accused of secretly practicing Judaism (in Spanish, "marrano" literally means "pig" or "hog") were denounced as a danger to the existence of Christian Spain." Suspected Marranos were tortured until they confessed to practicing Judaism, and then were burned to death en masse at an auto-da-fe (the public ceremony at which sentences were pronounced against those who had been tried and found guilty by the Inquisition). This was followed by execution of the sentence by the secular authorities. The sentence was usually death by burning at the stake. After some fourteen years of torture and death by burning, in 1492, by edict, the Spanish Jews were given the choice of exile or baptism. Almost all Jews chose to leave at this time.

THE PROTESTANT REFORMATION

Answer for yourself: First of all what is the reformation?

It is the effort in the 16th century to reconstitute the life and teaching of Western Christendom, resulting in the separation of the Protestant churches from the Roman Catholic Church. Within it Martin Luther (1483-1546) founded a new Christian faith, Protestantism, in the 16th century. He had been an ordained priest, but disputed Church policy with respect to the sale of indulgences (a partial remission of the punishment for a sin). Once a supporter of the Jews, he was frustrated by their unwillingness to embrace his own religion. Martin Luther became one of the most intensely bitter anti-Semites in history. His writings described Jews as the anti-Christ, worse than devils.

Jews were prisoners, ritual murderers, and parasites, he preached, and they should be expelled from Germany. His view was that synagogues should all be burned to the ground, and all Jewish books should be seized.

Answer for yourself: With this understanding is it any wonder why the contemporary Christian Church has lost its Jewish Roots which were the foundation of the early church of Yeshua which was built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets and not the early Greek Gentile Catholic Church or the Reformation?

ANTISEMITISM AND REPLACEMENT THEOLOGY...THE TERMINAL SICKNESS OF GENTILE CHRISTIANITY

"Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you." (1 John 3:13 KJV)

I'm heavy in heart today as I write this newsletter. Last night I received further proof that hatred still exists in this world; not just in the world of narrow bigotry and small minded hatred, but in people of the kingdom of G-d. In study last night, I ran across no fewer than five web sites calling for the genocide of the Jewish people, and one of them was made by Evangelical Christians.

HOW COULD THIS BE?

Answer for yourself: What erroneous teachings have led people who look to Yeshua as an example to imitate and propose such horrendous actions be taken against his own people?

A long time ago, a bizarre forgery was made called "The Protocols Of the Learned Elders Of Zion", a document which purports that Jewish bankers and politicians were the tools of a conspiracy to conquer the world and enslave the Gentile races. That anyone could have believed such a document was true still amazes me. That anyone believes it today, and has established web sites full of quotes to "back it up" frightens me. Oh G-d in heaven forgive them. That Christians who should know better are assisting in this proposed genocide of the Jewish people frightens me even more.

Answer for yourself: Have any of these Evangelical Christians that read that article noticed that the only Hebrew word in the entire document is "Goyim" (Hebrew for Gentiles)?

Answer for yourself: Have they noticed that not one Rabbi or Rebbe is quoted in it?

Answer for yourself: Have they noticed that not anything is quoted as coming from Jewish Responsa, the Talmud, the Mishna, or Mishnah Torah, or even Dvar Torah?

Answer for yourself: Have they never noticed that the majority of the "Protocols" expressly violate the teachings in the Jewish Torah, Talmud, and Mishnah, let alone the teachings of such great men like Rambam, Vilna Gaon, and the Baal Shem Tov?

Answer for yourself: How can Christians truly believe that this document is genuine?

Please don't misunderstand me, for the authors of these Anti-Semitic Web sites quote Jewish sources to prove its genuineness; unfortunately, all of the quoted sources were made before the forgery of "The Protocols" was made.

Answer for yourself: How then can it be believed, especially by Evangelical Christians

The "Protocols" were used sixty years ago to excuse the planned Genocide of the Jewish people, in conjunction with the writings of Martin Luther. Scholars try to tell us now that Hitler never planned to destroy the Jewish people until late in the war; yet his own writings and quotes from others show he was deadly serious about it even back in his early days in Vienna. This is a subtle form of "Revisionism History", which says the Holocaust never happened. I've seen many videos and pictures of Jewish people with numbers tattooed on their bodies (don't tell me they all decided to go to the same tattoo parlor one day and get sequential serial numbers tattooed on them) which is in itself a violation of Torah commandments (which a Jew would never submit to unless under duress).

Answer for yourself: What happened to six million to eight million Jews?

Answer for yourself: Who were all those bodies found at Bergen-Belsen, Dachau, Aushvitz?

Answer for yourself: How do you discount millions of eyewitnesses (German, French, Greek, Hungarian and Polish civilians, British, Russian and American soldiers and POW's, Gypsies, Freemasons, Jehovah's Witnesses, and Jews themselves)?

Answer for yourself: Had they had mass hallucinations?

Answer for yourself: How do you discount the confessions of Eichmann and Hoess, let alone the tons of documentation found, and miles of film, much of it done by the Nazis themselves? Science fiction? I doubt it.

I'm ashamed that people can be so blind, after witnessing in our own lifetimes such atrocities. I've heard of no less than three genocidal attempts (Falashim in Ethiopia, Muslims in Serbia, and Rwanda) in my own lifetime. And people still tell say that the Jews are paranoid because nobody's going after them again because they are too obvious a target. My response was, "Would you bet your life on it? They have to." No other people in the world has so many damning texts, such as the "Protocol" forgeries, as well as numerous Christian writings from such leaders as Luther, Origen, Augustine, Chrysostom, and others. I'm ashamed at times when driving down the street when I see a Ford, which was created by a man who was an Anti-Semite, especially when I read on the Christian web page a quote from Henry Ford supporting the "Protocols".

Answer for yourself: How can bigots call for a second extermination when they don't believe the first happened? Come On!

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN CHRISTIANS ARE ANTI-SEMITIC?

Many Christians I know of are deeply wounded merely at the suggestion that evangelical Christians could be anti-Semitic. Let us briefly look at the biblical evidence for the "identity" of the people of G-d.

"Now the LORD had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee: And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed. (Gen 12:1-3 KJV)

"And I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a G-d unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their G-d." (Gen 17:7-8 KJV)

"And G-d said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee in their generations. This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee; Every man child among you shall be circumcised. And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be a token of the covenant betwixt me and you. And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is not of thy seed. He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised: and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant." (Gen 17:9-13 KJV)

"And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation. But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, which Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year." (Gen 17:20-21 KJV)

"And G-d heard their groaning, and G-d remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob." (Exo 2:24 KJV)

WHAT IS THE COMMON THREAD?

The Covenant is established with the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob [which are the Jews] and NOT WITH GENTILES! The Children of Jacob are the Jews.

Answer for yourself: Are All The Children Of Abraham Blessed In This Covenant?

No, only the Children of Isaac.

ARE ALL THE CHILDREN OF ISAAC BLESSED THROUGH THIS COVENANT?

No, only the children of Jacob. Only, the Jewish People (all thirteen tribes: Judah, Dan, Naphtali, Levi, Simeon, Manasseh, Ephraim, Zebulun, Asher, Gad, Issachar, Benjamin, and Reuben. All are Jews, because the halakhic ruling about Maternal descent had not been established yet). The Jews, and all who join themselves to them (this SHOULD be the Christian's position). This includes Evangelical Christians, because according to Romans, they are ingrafted into the true vine of Israel.

Has The Gentile Christian Church Become The "New Israel", With Physical Israel Inheriting Only The Curses And Spiritual Israel Inheriting The Blessings?

I find no biblical evidence of this; indeed, the opposite:

"I say then, Hath G-d cast away his people? G-d forbid. For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. G-d hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Know ye not what the scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to G-d against Israel, saying, Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they seek my life. But what saith the answer of G-d unto him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal." (Rom 11:1-4 KJV)

"I say then, Have they stumbled that they should fall? G-d forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fullness?" (Rom 11:11-12 KJV)

"For if the first-fruit be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches. And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree; Boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee. Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off, that I might be grafted in. Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not high-minded, but fear:

For if G-d spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee." (Rom 11:16-21 KJV)

DO YOU THINK THAT YOU CAN BE IMMUNE TO THE PENALTY OF GEN. 12:3?

This is the penalty you risk for anti-semitism, including replacement theology! Does it not say, "And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee (Gen. 12:3)?

This line refers to the Jewish people! "Behold therefore the goodness and severity of G-d: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off. And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for G-d is able to graft them in again. For if thou wert cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature, and wert grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree?" (Rom 11:22-24 KJV)

"For the gifts and calling of G-d are without repentance." (Rom 11:29 KJV).

And most importantly, "What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of G-d. For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faith of G-d without effect? G-d forbid: yea, let G-d be true, but every man a liar; as it is written, That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged." (Rom 3:1-4 KJV).

But still I hear a lot of this:

"For he is not a Jew, which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh: But he is a Jew, which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of G-d." (Rom 2:28-29 KJV), and...

"There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." (Gal 3:28 KJV)

"Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all." (Col 3:11 KJV).

I tell you, read the Entire verse.

These verses are about spiritual rebirth, not physical rebirth! Such as...

"Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds; And have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him: Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all." (Col 3:9-11 KJV)

"For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." (Gal 3:27-29 KJV).

Only in the rebirth (born from above) and the mikveh (immersion) is there no difference between Jew and Gentile, and in the New Israel.

Why the New Israel? Because the believing Gentiles have been grafted into the true vine!

Well then, what about "Thus saith the Lord GOD; No stranger, uncircumcised in heart, nor uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary, of any stranger that is among the children of Israel." (Ezek 44:9 KJV)

"And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from G-d, Having the glory of G-d: and her light was like unto a stone most precious, even like a jasper stone, clear as crystal; And had a wall great and high, and had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel." (Rev 21:10-12 KJV).

OFTEN FORGOTTEN VERSES BY BLINDED...BIGOTED...AND HATRED FILLED PEOPLE

"And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him." (1 John 2:3-4 KJV).

"Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3:15 KJV)

"If a man say, I love G-d, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love G-d whom he hath not seen?" (1 John 4:20 KJV)

CONCLUSION

"But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; And shall begin to smite his fellowservants (the Jews), and to eat and drink with the drunken; The lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of, And shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." (Mat 24:48-51 KJV)

"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats: And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren (Yeshua's brethren are the Jewish people), ye have done it unto me. Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: For I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not. Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee? Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." (Mat 25:31-46 KJV)

I frankly confess that I have been greatly shocked as a result of my study and examination of Anti-Semitism, especially at what I found that originated and continues under the guise of Christianity. I deem it to be my duty as an honorable man to make amends for the wrong done to the Jews as fellow men and brothers by Anti-Semitic and Anti-Judaic Christianity by asking their forgiveness for the harm that both I and my forefathers have unintentionally and intentionally committed as typical Christians when we accepted Anti-Semitic doctrines taught to us without our personal inquiry to substantiate them. The sad fact is that I had failed to study for myself to see if "these things be so." After spending time in study of the Bible, language, history, etc., I quickly learned for myself that what I had been hearing in "sermons" was just denominational rhetoric and not fact! Thus, convicted of my sin of bigotry against the Jewish people, I have devoted my life to the discovery and return of the Hebraic Roots of the Early Church, by retracting so far as lies within my power the offensive charges laid on the Jewish people by well-meaning, but poorly informed Christians. Besides that, I am happy to give the Jewish people the unqualified assurance that henceforth they may look to me for friendship and good will. Shalom.

ANTISEMITISM IN CHURCH HISTORY

Non Jewish people know very little of the ugly history of anti-Semitism. They know even less of the part played by the historical churches in this sad story because it does not appear in school history books. It is shocking and unpleasant to recall but everyone who claims to be a follower of Yeshua should be aware of what has been done to His people even by so-called Christens

IT BEGAN A LONG TIME AGO

Answer for yourself: What is the "main" source of anti-Semitism?

Answer for yourself: Could it be that the "main" source of anti-Semitism is the Christian Church along with it's "replacement theological doctrines?"

To understand this basic question we have to go back to the beginning of Christianity. In the first century, Christianity was considered a branch of Judaism; Jews and Christian prayed together and shared synagogues. But that was not to last long. Almost from the beginning, Christianity split into two competing sects: the Jewish sect called Ebionites, headed James the brother of Christ and Gentile churches headed by Paul from Tarsus. The two group competed for converts, and there was a strong "tension" between the two wings of the Yeshua Movement.

In the quest for converts, the Pauline Christians adopted the Hellenistic culture, abandoned the requirements for circumcision, and abandoned the dietary laws and disregarded the ethical teaching of Judaism. "I came to liberate you from the curse of the Law," declared St. Paul in his epistles to the Romans. After the destruction of the Jerusalem Temple in the year 69 AD, it was necessary for the Church to denounce Judaism and diminish the guilt of the Romans for the crucifixion, by passing the guilt onto the Jews. The Jews became the G-d killers.

Answer for yourself: How could Rome eventually build a religion upon Jesus and at the same time admit that it was the Romans, like themselves, who killed Yeshua? Thus the "texts" were altered to reflect otherwise.

Next, came the assertion that the Jews, by rejecting Christ the Messiah, broke the covenant with G-d, thus losing their state as the chosen people. The Scriptures were "twisted" to prove the wickedness of the Jews. The anti-Jewish bias became part of the Christian faith and is reflected in the synoptic Bibles. Each consecutive version is more virulent toward the Jews.

After Christianity became the state religion, (313) the Jews were treated as pariahs and became the scapegoats for all the ills of the society. Founding Fathers of the Church like St. Chrysotom and St. Ambrose of Milan (379-395 AD.), advocated Jewish persecution, teaching the gospel of hate: The Jews are the most worthless of all men. They are lecherous, greedy, rapacious. They are perfidious murderers of Christ . . . The Jews are the odious assassins of Christ and for killing G-d there is no expiation possible, no indulgence or pardon. Christian may never cease vengeance, and the Jews must live in servitude forever. G-d always hated the Jews. It is incumbent upon all Christians to hate the Jews.

The anti-Semitism is also reflected in the writings of Great Catholic theologian, Father of the Church - St. Augustine: The true image of the Hebrew is Judas Iscariot, who sells the Lord for silver. The Jew can never understand the Scriptures and forever will bear the guilt for the death of Yeshua. St. Augustine, Bishop of Hippo, Father of the Church.

The purposefully and negative projection of Jews continued for ages. In the XIII century Pope Innocent III (1198-1216) defined explicitly the Jewish position in the Christian world: The Jews' guilt of the crucifixion of Yeshua consigned them to perpetual servitude, and like Cain, they are to be wanderers and fugitives . . . the Jews will not dare to raise their necks, bowed under the yoke of perpetual slavery, against the reverence of the Christian faith.

When one undertakes such a study to trace where the faith of Yeshua was actually changed one finds the motives for such a change as well. When the data is researched and sifted one finds that the cause is rather simple. It all comes down to the Gentile's hatred and animosity toward the Jews. In fact one will find that anti-Semitism began in the Hellenistic culture several hundred years before the birth of Yeshua. By this time, as a result of the Babylonian dispersion, Jewish communities had appeared in the pagan cities around the Mediterranean.

Believing in the one true God and continuing to acknowledge Jerusalem as the Holy City, Jewish people avoided social contact with their heathen fellow citizens and lived separately in sections of the cities all their own. Greeks considered this refusal to accept common religious and social standards as aloofness and conceit. Such was the fruit of the sanctification of the Jew before his G-d.

In the struggle for economic existence, conflicts arose when natives competed with the intelligent people they regarded as arrogant Jewish foreigners. After the Bible was translated into Greek, many Greeks were attracted by the high moral concepts of the God of Israel and converted to Judaism. Greek leaders, who were trying to Hellenize the world, saw Judaism as a threat to their culture and to their multi-god pagan deities.

After the Maccabean victory over the occupying Seleucids, the Jewish nation launched a proselytizing effort against the Hellenistic wave that was threatening to engulf them. Many more Greeks converted to Judaism and proselytizers on both sides were attacked and sometimes killed. Based on the death of a Greek in one of these clashes, the story was exaggerated. Greek orators made anti-Jewish speeches, which included the false charge that every seven years the Jews seized a Greek, fattened him in their temple, and then killed him as a sacrifice. Similar stories were told and re-told. After the fall of Greece, Roman historians (as factual) picked them up.

Rivals on its frontiers in the Middle East constantly threatened Rome. If Rome lost control of Judea, enemies could easily march down Roman roads to Syria, Greece and the other eastern provinces. Therefore, Judea was kept under tight control and heavily taxed to support a large military garrison. Jewish people revolted several times. The Romans reacted severely because revolution in such a strategic area was an alarming threat to the security of the Empire. The troublesome Judeans were denounced in the Roman Senate, adding to previously established anti-Jewish attitudes.

THE BEGINNING OF THE CHURCH

It was at this time that Yeshua ministered among the Jewish people. Many believed him to be "the" Messiah. After his death and the failure of the Jewish prophecies to be fulfilled, he along with his followers were denounced by the religious leaders. Yet this "messianic movement" within Judaism of the first century was the beginning of what was later called Christianity (from the Greek Kristos, meaning Messiah), but it was at first

Messianic Judaism. Christians today should be aware that its origin is totally Jewish.

For many years, before non-Jews, or Gentiles, ever came into the picture, all the followers of Yeshua were Jewish. Messianic Jews worshipped in the synagogues, in the Temple, kept the Sabbath and observed Passover and all other biblical holidays and customs of the times. It has been estimated that approximately one million Jews believed in Yeshua as Messiah, by the end of the first century. To these early Messianic Jews, it was simply a turning back to God, at a time of secularism and hypocrisy among many of their religious leaders a reformed continuation of Judaism under the New Covenant.

After the gospel was taken to the Gentiles, Jewish congregations and Gentile congregations developed within the loose body of Messianic Judaism. As they rapidly grew, Gentiles began to outnumber Jews in many Jewish congregations. In the Greek New Testament, the passages condemning hypocrisy among religious leaders were seen by those Gentiles with inherited anti-Jewish attitudes as a condemnation of all things Jewish. Where John's Gospel said the Jews did this or that to Yeshua, John was referring to the religious leaders (the corrupt Chief Priest and Sadducees and not the Pharisees; many of which endorsed and supported Yeshua during his life), not the Jewish people as a whole. John himself was a Jew.

Several things happened to the original Messianic Jews after the destruction of Jerusalem. They were branded as traitors by their fellow Jews for not taking part in the defense of Jerusalem. However, at this time, Messianic Jews were expecting Yeshua's immediate return and were following his counsel to flee when they saw approaching armies, as recorded in Luke 21: 20. Messianic Jews courageously fought Romans later in the revolt led by Bar Kochba. But when Bar Kochba himself was proclaimed to be the Messiah, the Messianic Jews pulled out, and most were killed in Bar Kochba's eliminations of all non-supporters.

The definitive separation of Rabbinical Judaism and Messianic Judaism began in the year 80 when the Sanhedrin at Jabne (Yavne) sent letters to congregations throughout the world declaring that Yeshua was a charlatan and that his body had been stolen from the grave by his disciples. Reacting to what they saw as insults to the person of Yeshua, Messianic Jews turned farther away from the organized leadership of Rabbinic Judaism. Opposed by Rabbinic Judaism, which because the mainstream of Jewish religious thought and practice after the destruction of the Temple and alienated by many anti-Jewish Gentiles in early Christianity, Messianic Jews nevertheless endured until Muslims destroyed their communities in the seventh century.

When the Romans destroyed Jerusalem and the Temple, most of the remaining Jewish people were further scattered throughout the world. As before, their biblically correct refusal to accept pagan gods and associate with idol-worshipping heathens created resentment and suspicion wherever they settled.

ACCEPTANCE OF CHRISTIANITY BY THE ROMAN STATE

Messianic Judaism or early Christianity vigorously proselytized and rapidly grew in the first century. All believers in Yeshua as Messiah, Jewish and Gentile were severely persecuted by the Romans. Never the less, after three hundred years of unsuccessful attempts at obliteration, the Roman government, under Constantine, embraced, for political reasons, what was now known as Christianity. And here is where Christianity, mixed with paganism, turned radically anti-Jewish.

In order to make the new state religion acceptable to the Roman public; it was modified to fit pagan concepts. Statues of saints replaced pagan idols. Pagan festivals became Christian holidays. The drunken festival celebrating the winter solstice around December twenty-fifth became Christmas. Worship of the pagan fertility goddess Ishtar and its emphasis on the egg was modified to become Easter. Inherited anti-Jewish attitudes strongly influenced the new Roman religion. A corrupted and diluted form of what was originally Messianic Judaism was established in the Roman world.

The following examples from anti-Jewish church leaders are just a few of hundreds that have been documented in books such as The Anguish of the Jews by Flannery (a Roman Catholic), The Causes and Effects of Anti-Semitism by Grosser and Halpern and others. If you want to verify any of the sources they all have extensive bibliographies that will lead you to the original documents.

In the year 325 Constantine convened the Council of Nicea, which enacted several anti-Jewish church positions, including the false concept of Jewish responsibility for the Crucifixion. The Council of Nicea also decided that the Resurrection would no longer be celebrated during Passover.

The following quote from Constantine set the course for the Christian Church down through the ages. This quote comes from Constantine's Easter Letter:

"For it is unbecoming beyond measure that on this holiest of festivals, we should follow the custom of the Jews. Henceforth let us have nothing in common with odious people."

St. John Chrysostom, Patriarch of Constantinople, was known as the Bishop with the Golden Tongue. He possibly wrote with the most animosity toward the Jews than any other of the early fathers of the Church. Here is a quote from St. John Chrysostom, the Bishop of Constantinople, who frequently attacked the Jews in his fiery sermons.

"The Jews are the odious assassins of Christ and for killing God there is no expiation possible, no indulgence or pardon. Christians may never cease vengeance and the Jews must live in servitude forever. God always hated the Jews, so it is incumbent upon all Christians to hate the Jews."

St Augustine said,

"The true image of the Hebrew is Judas Iscariot who sells the Lord for silver. The Jews can never understand the scriptures, and forever bear the guilt of the death of (Yeshua)."

The Council of Laodicea decreed that Christians could no longer observe the Sabbath because Jews kept the Sabbath.

The Council of Orleans commanded Christians not to take part in any Jewish feasts such as Passover, and Jewish people were not allowed to appear in public during the Easter season.

The Byzantine Emperor Leo the Third outlawed Judaism, and herded all Jews who refused to accept the Eastern Orthodox faith into their synagogues, where they were burned alive.

Pope Benedict the Seventh decided that local Jews who supposedly drove a nail through a communion wafer caused an earthquake and a hurricane that struck Rome in 1021. After confessing under torture, these Jews were burned alive. Excruciating, painful torture was the method of interrogation, so it should be no surprise that Jews and non-Jews confessed to any charge if enough torture was applied, no matter how untrue the charge may have been.

The concept of transubstantiation officially adopted by the church in the thirteenth century said that the wafer used at Mass was miraculously transformed into the body of Yeshua. The incredible idea then arose that since the wafer was the living body of Christ, the host, would not the Jews, who had once crucified Him, wish to torture and kill Him again. People actually believed that wafers were stolen from the church and sold to Jews, who then pierced the wafer as part of their religious practice. This fantastic, false charge officially known as host desecration resulted in the murder of thousands of innocent Jewish people.

THE CRUSADES

The Crusades brought even more suffering. Though some Crusaders were spiritually motivated and followed the ideals of Knighthood, many took advantage of an opportunity for adventure, plunder, and an escape from death or bondage. The idea soon appeared that if it was God's will to kill infidels in the Holy Land, He would also want to punish those infidels at home and along the way. From January to July in 1096, over ten thousand Jewish women, children and men were slaughtered in Northern France and Germany by mobs aroused by the Crusades.

Later that same year, Count Emerick of Leningen led German Crusaders on an anti-Jewish drive through the Rhine and Mosel valleys, where they slaughtered more than twelve thousand.

Crusaders captured Jerusalem in 1099. After all the Muslim defenders were executed; the Jerusalem Jews were herded into a synagogue which was set on fire. Crusaders then sang hymns while the screaming occupants were burned alive.

THE MIDDLE AGES

On the eve of Easter in 1144, the body of a young man was found in the woods near Norwich, England. The Jewish community was accused of enticing him into their synagogue where he was supposedly killed to commemorate the crucifixion. Ninety-eight innocent leaders of the Jewish community were hanged. This was another official church charge known as "ritual murder" This ridiculous accusation resulted in the slaughter of thousands. According to this incredible concept, Christians were ritually killed in synagogues and their blood was used for Passover

The Fourth Lateran Council in 1215 forbade Jews to practice the same trade and occupations as Christians and ordered them to wear distinctive clothing and badges so they could be distinguished from Christians. Jews were forced to become peddlers, pawnbrokers and moneylenders. Christian theology of the time condemned: Money lending for an interest charge as an evil occupation; but with the growth of cities and the increasing number of city dwellers engaging in commerce, the lending of money was necessary for society to function. The huge cathedrals of Europe were built with capital furnished by the Jewish moneylenders. Many Jewish moneylenders charged exorbitant interest rates, further inflaming anti-Jewish passions. But can you blame the moneylenders for striking back in a small way at their oppressors?

The Council of Vienna ordered all Jews to wear horned hats to fit the false concept that they were offspring of the devil.

In 1298, a report of host desecration in Rottingen included the rumor that blood had spurted from the wafer. A small army marched through Bavaria, Austria and Franconia for six months, slaughtering more than one hundred thousand Jewish people in its path: Between 1347 and 1350 the Bubonic Plague (or Black Death) killed a third of the European population. Now forced to live in ghettos, and abiding by dietary laws that dictated high levels of hygiene, Jewish people did not suffer as much from the plague. Thus, they became suspects and were accused of poisoning wells and springs to exterminate Christians.

An entire Jewish congregation was burned alive in southern France. The same thing happened in Zurich. Three thousand were burned at the stake in Strasbourg, six thousand in Mainz, three thousand in Breil. The list goes on.

After the plague passed from Europe, Jews along with non-Jews faced the fury of the Inquisition. Pope Nicholas the Fifth directed that particular attention (should) be paid to the Jewish people.

A mob led by the clergy murdered the entire Jewish community of Nordlingen, Germany. A mob attack on the Jewish community in Prague lasted twenty-four hours. Thousands were slaughtered. Approximately four thousand Jewish men were killed in Seville, Spain; the women and children were sold as slaves to Arabs.

It would take hours to name all such incidents, but it should be noted that not all church leaders were anti-Jewish. Some priests, bishops and popes were true men of God and tried to protect Jewish people from mob violence, but their efforts were unable to stop the wave of anti-Semitism that had been released in the world.

THE REFORMATION

The Reformation of the 1500's, with Protestant interest in the Old Testament, helped to change the negative image of Jewish people in Europe. However, even Martin Luther, who was at first a defender of Jews against Catholic persecution, turned anti-Jewish in his later years. Among other things, he advocated that:

"Synagogues and Jewish homes be burned, rabbis be forbidden to teach, Jews not be allowed to travel or charge interest on loans to Christians, that their properties be confiscated and that they be expelled from provinces where Christians lived."

Even the Reformation did not improve the situation of the Jews. At the beginning, Martin Luther, expecting mass conversions of the Jews, wrote: The Jews are blood-relations of our Lord; if it were proper to boast of flesh and blood, the Jews belong more to Christ than we. I beg, therefore, my dear Papist, if you become tired of abusing me as a heretic, that you begin to revile me as a Jew.

When the mass conversion of the Jews did not materialize Luther felt betrayed and his acceptance of the Jews turned into loathing. Luther declared:

Know Christians that next to the devil thou hast no enemy more cruel, more venomous and violent than a true Jew.

With the spread of Christianity, anti-Semitism became embedded into the Western culture. Whenever there was a social upheaval, the Jews were persecuted. The Jews were blamed for the plague in the Middle Ages. . . for losing of the WWI by Germany . . . for the excesses of communism in Poland. Anti-Semitism became a cultural phenomena.

IN EASTERN EUROPE

Jewish people who had moved East to escape the Crusades and Inquisition now faced even more terrible persecution in Russia and Poland. For a century, Polish kings and nobles had ruthlessly exploited the Ukrainian valleys of the Dnieper and the Deniester. The native population bore the intolerable burdens of forced labor and heavy taxation to support the estates of the Polish nobility. Stewards, many of whom were Jewish, administered and operated the estates, mills, dairies and distilleries. In addition, they collected taxes; further inflaming handed down anti-Jewish attitudes.

When Cossacks and Tartars defeated the Polish army in 1648, mobs of peasants joined in to plunder Polish estates, murdering thousands along the way, especially Jews. Except for the Nazis, few examples in history can match the brutal tortures inflicted on Jewish people in 1648 and 1649 under the leadership of the Cossack, Bogdan Zeimovi Khmelnitzki. Eyewitnesses reported incidents where skin was ripped from living backs and fed to dogs. Hands and feet were chopped off. Children were split open like fish in front of their parents. The bellies of pregnant women were cut open, the unborn babies killed, and live clawing cats were sewed up inside the still living mothers.

Between 1648 and 1656 an estimated three hundred thousand to five hundred thousand Jewish people were slaughtered in Poland and the Ukraine.

Violence against Jewish people diminished in the 1700's and 1800's, but hatred had been taught for centuries and anti-Jewish attitudes did not disappear.

Industrialization and urbanization presented many opportunities for enterprising Jewish people, who were now freed from the ghetto and skilled in all forms of commercial practice. Well accustomed to hard work and constant struggle against adversity, Jewish people quickly occupied prominent places in all walks of urban life, creating jealousy and resentment in much of the Non-Jewish population. Anti-Jewish attitudes continued to be passed on to succeeding generations.

In the infamous Dreyfus Affair, an honorable French Jewish officer was court-martialed for a security crime he did not commit, on the basis of evidence falsified by fellow anti-Semitic officers.

I could go on and on but you get the point. If it had not been for the hatred and animosity of the early Church leaders toward the Jews then anti-Semitism would not be the scourge that it is today. As a follower of Yeshua you cannot change history, but you can study the origin of your faith and see for yourself how the faith of Yeshua that went into all the world in the first century to the Gentile nations was not Christianity but Biblical Judaism where the non-Jew was engrafted into the Israel of G-d and practiced the same faith as the Jew, went to the same synagogues, kept the same holy days and Biblical Festivals, etc. Today very Christians if any do this.

If you have the courage you should ask yourself before G-d: "Why don't I if I am a follower of Yeshua?" "What kind of religion am I practicing in his name?"

The horrible answer to the last question is that you practice Sun-Worship before G-d and don't know it. This is the horrible fruit you have eaten from the tree of anti-Semitism of the Gentile nations.

ANTI-SEMITISM AND ITS ROOTS IN CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY

At its roots, anti-Semitism in Christian civilization springs from Christian theological anti-Judaism, the German professor told the audience. From the cruel taunts of children, to pogroms, the crusades, the Spanish Inquisition and the Holocaust, the Gospel accounts of Jesus' arrest, trial, abuse, and crucifixion - still read in churches today - have served as a fountainhead of anti-Semitism.

Basically anti-Semitism arose in the early Christian church as a reaction against Judaism over the concept of the Messiah as well as the Law.

Anti-Judaism developed theologically in Christianity as the left hand of Christology, the branch of theology dealing with the person and the deeds of Jesus Christ as the son of G-d....anti-Judaism was the negative side of the Christian claim that Jesus was the Christ.

Christianity saw itself as the fulfillment of Judaic messianism, but since the Jewish tradition rejected this claim, Christianity developed a polemic against the Jewish tradition to explain how Christianity could be the fulfillment of a Jewish religious tradition that Jews themselves had rejected.

It was Christian theology which developed the thesis of the eternal reprobate, the damned status of the Jew in history, and laid the foundation for the demonic view of the Jews which fanned the flames of popular hatred, . ...This hatred became incorporated into the structure of Christian canon law and civil law formed under Christendom...

It is important for Christianity to deal fully with its role in the history of anti-Semitism. Christian churches have to break with the theology of triumphalism and work towards a theology of hope.

THE FRUIT OF GENTILE CHRISTIANITY: ANTI-SEMITISM #1

There is an ancient G-dless heresy that is raging through the Church masquerading as truth. This heresy is now being presented under many names, (Kingdom Now, Kingdom Age, New Wave and New Age) but its prevailing amillennial, allegorical message is;

- The Church must know that she is the true Israel!
- The Jews do not have a claim to the land of Israel!

"ISRAEL IS NOT BLESSED ABOVE ALL NATIONS"... IS THIS A TRUE STATEMENT?

In growing up in the Baptist Church as a child and young person I often heard things like this:

- Israel is not reborn and they are without salvation!
- The Jews rejected Jesus and should be punished.
- The Jews are the Christ killers, well poisoners, plague carriers, host defamers, and sons of the devil!
- The Old Covenant is Dead and replaced by the New Covenant!
- The Jews are our misfortune and have not blessed the nations of the earth!

This is the message of anti-Semitism! Webster defines "anti-Semitism" as "one who is hostile to or discriminates against Jews." It is now being preached from Christian pulpits Sunday after Sunday, from coast to coast, to a laity that has been duped into believing the pastor or priest speaks only the truth!

The truth is not what your pastor says it is, the truth is not what your priest says it is, the truth is not what I say it is, the truth is what G-d's Word says it is! "Let G-d be true but every man a liar" (Romans 3:4).

This heresy of hatred is being taught in Sunday Schools to young impressionable minds that are learning to "hate thy neighbor" in the name of G-d. There is a generation of children growing up in America's Sunday Schools believing that the heartless Jews captured and crucified the only begotten Son of G-d. (This Christian myth will be scripturally destroyed later in the text and has been so previously in many of our articles dealing with "who" really killed Jesus...request a copy if you like).

I know, many of you are already saying to yourself "I am not anti-Semitic...he's got it all wrong and is off on some tangent." Dear child of G-d, anti-Semitism is the basic foundation for many of the "doctrines" you hold sacred today which were never given by G-d but were "interpretations" given by an early Gentile anti-Judaic

Christian Church of the earliest centuries after Messiah Yeshua. Today, in the disguise of Church doctrines, anti-Semitism is being proclaimed by pastors and priests as a Christian virtue, who claim they are "defending the faith" and "fighting the devil" when they attack the Jews.

Adolf Hitler felt the same way. He said, "I am acting in accordance with the will of the Almighty Creator: by defending myself against the Jew, I am fighting for the work of the Lord" (Dawidowicz, Lucy S., "The War Against the Jews 1933-1945 Bantam Books, 1975, pg. 27).

CHRISTIAN ANTI-SEMITISM

Anti-Semitism has its origin and its complete root structure in Christianity! Until anti-Semitism is stopped in the Church through in-depth study and repentance towards errors taught as lies, anti-Semitism will not be stopped on the face of the earth!

The very phrase "Christian Anti-Semitism" is an absolute contradiction in terms. Anti-Semitism is a synonym for hatred. Christian is a synonym for love. An anti-Semite is a dead Christian whose hatred has strangled his faith.

The Christian doctrine of love was first taught by a Jewish Rabbi from Nazareth saying; "Love thy neighbor as thyself" (Matthew 19:19). "Love one another as I have loved you" (John 15:12). "By this sign shall all men know that you are my disciples if you have love one to another" (John 13:35). "Love your enemies" (Matthew 5:44). St. Paul said, "Love worketh no ill toward his neighbors" (Romans 13:10).

Answer for yourself: When did this doctrine of hate toward the Jewish people begin?

It did not begin with the Holocaust and Adolf Hitler who said, "I am only continuing the work of the Catholic Church" (Runes, Dagobert D., "The War Against the Jew," Philosophical Library, New York, 1968, pg. 114).

It did not begin with Martin Luther who said, "Know Christian, that next to the devil thou hast no enemy more cruel, more venomous and violent than a true Jew" ((Dawidowicz, Lucy S., "The War Against the Jews 1933-1945 Bantam Books, 1975, pg. 29).

Luther died a vicious and bitter anti-Semite because the Jews would not accept his new brand of Christianity!

Anti-Semitism did not begin with the "Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion," a diabolical lie contrived by the Russian Czarist Secret Police in 1905. anti-Semitism did not begin in America when Henry Ford published those "Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion" which many Americans believe to be an authentic document. The Protocols described an alleged international takeover of the nations by the Jews.

Answer for yourself: Logic demands these questions be asked: "If the Jews controlled the nations of the earth, how in the name of G-d did they manage to get six million of themselves killed in the Holocaust?

Answer for yourself: How is it, since 70 A.D. when Titus invaded Jerusalem, the Jews have been scattered among the nations of the earth, denied legal rights, denied the right to own land, denied to practice their faith, denied their very lives by religious mad men who demanded they "convert to Christ or be killed?" Is that control?

Answer for yourself: Where are the Jews of Spain? They were murdered in cold blood by the Roman Church!

Answer for yourself: Where are the Jews of Portugal? They were murdered in cold blood by the Roman Church!

Answer for yourself: Where are the Jews of Italy and France? They were murdered in cold blood by the Roman Church!

Answer for yourself: Where are the Jews of Austria and Hungary? A G-dless theology of hate that no one dared try to stop for a thousand years which was engineered by Gentile Catholic priests and teachers, produced a harvest of horror.

When the Pale Rider of Death thrust in the sickle, the rivers of Europe turned red with the blood of the Jews. They were all killed in the name of a loving G-d!

Answer for yourself: How did this anti-Semitic hatred get into the blood stream of Christianity?

Men are not born with hate in their blood. This infection must be acquired by contact; it may be injected deliberately or even unconsciously, by parents, preachers or teachers. This disease may spread throughout the land like a plague, so that a class, a religion, a nation will become the object of popular religious hatred without anyone knowing exactly how it all began. The end result is a message of "hate thy neighbor."

ADVERSUS JUDAEOS

Anti-Semitism in Christianity began with the early Gentile Catholic Church Fathers ... Eusebius, Cyril, Constantine, St. John Chrysostom, Augustine, Origen, Justin, and Jerome who published papers and pamphlets historically known as Adversus Judaeos. This stream of venom out of the mouths of spiritual leaders to virtually illiterate congregants, sitting benignly in their pews, listening to their pastors label the Jews as "the Christ killers, plague carriers, demons, children of the devil, blood thirsty pagans who look for an innocent child during the Easter week to drink his blood, money hungry Shylocks, who are as deceitful as Judas was relentless. The church fathers spelled his name "Jewdas." As Pope Gelasius I (492-496) philosophized: "In the Bible the whole is often named after the part; as Judas was called a devil and the devil's workman, he gives his name to the whole race." The church fathers did not tell you who to kill; they told you who to hate!

Answer for yourself: Every Christian of conscience must answer this question; "How did it happen that the first church, begun by a Jewish Rabbi and his twelve Jewish disciples, within two hundred years of the resurrection began to kill Jews as a matter of church policy?"

Answer for yourself: What happened to the family of our Lord Jesus Christ after the resurrection?

Answer for yourself: What happened to his brothers and sisters that were born to Mary and Joseph? What happened to the disciples, their wives and their children and their children's children? They were all Jews!

When General Titus came marching from Rome in 70 A.D., the Jews were crucified on Roman crosses while their wives and children were forced to watch. This bloody demonstration of mass crucifixion was brutal proof that no one could resist mighty Rome and live!

Answer for yourself: What happened to the family of our Lord when Hadrian came from Rome in 135 A.D. to crush the Second Revolt?

How dare these stubborn monotheistic Jews, loyal to the G-d of Abraham, refuse to bow their knees to a pagan culture that served hundreds of gods? The sons of Israel fought valiantly until one-half million perished at the point of Rome's sword!

Constantine, a Roman emperor who ruled in 306-337 A.D., "Christianized" the Roman Empire. In one day, with one swing of the pen, he made Rome's version of Christianity the official state religion. That religion was and is full of idolatry! The monotheistic Jews refused to worship statues of men, birds and animals. The words of G-d as given through Moses still rang in their ears, "Hear O Israel, the Lord our G-d, the Lord is one" (Deuteronomy 6:41. "Thou shalt have no other G-ds before me" (Exodus 20:3).

The theology of the devout Jews was more than pagan Rome could understand and certainly more than it would tolerate. The Roman conclusion was; "The Jews are just stubborn, rebellious people!"

Constantine and his clergymen at the Council of Nicea quickly began enacting a series of restrictive edicts against the Jewish people. His purpose was to separate Gentiles and Jews from worshipping together.

In his words, he considered the Jews an "evil and perverse sect . . . let us have nothing to do with the Jews who are our adversaries, in order that we no more have anything in common with these parasites and murderers of our Lord" (Kaplan, Gil, "Israel's History of Persecution," pp. 23).

THE GOLDEN MOUTH

The venom of Christian hatred for the Jews reached its crescendo with the coming of St. John Chrysostom (387-407 A.D.), a raving anti-Semite who is known historically as the "Golden Mouthed Orator." His blazing Jew hating sermons were classic Christian reading for centuries. Chrysostom ranted, "How can Christians dare 'have the slightest converse' with Jews, 'the most miserable of all men' (Homily 4:1), men who are' . . . lustful, rapacious, greedy, perfidious bandits.' Are they not 'inveterate murderers, destroyers, men possessed by the devil' whom 'debauchery and drunkenness have given them the manners of the pig and the lusty goat. They know only one thing, to satisfy their gullets, get drunk, to kill and maim one another . . . ' (1:4). Indeed 'they have surpassed the ferocity of wild beasts, for they murder their offspring and immolate them to the devil' " (1:6).

Chrysostom said of the Synagogue . . . "not only is it a theater and a house of prostitution, but a cavern of brigands, and a 'repair of wild beast' (6:5), 'the domicile of the devil (1:6), as is also the souls of the Jews' (1:4 & 6). Indeed Jews worship the devil; their rites are 'criminal and impure;' their religion is 'a disease' (3:1).

Their synagogue is 'an assembly of criminals . . . a den of thieves . . . a cavern of devils an abyss of perdition' (1:2 & 6:6).

Answer for yourself: Why did Chrysostom hate the Jews? "Because of their 'odious assassination of Christ' (6:4). This supreme crime lies at the roots of their degradation and woes (6:1). And for this deicide (G-d-killers), Chrysostom declares, there is 'no expiation possible, no indulgence, no pardon' (6:2). 'G-d hates the Jews and always hated the Jews' (6:4 & 1:7). 'I hate the Jews also because they outrage the law . . . ' " (6:6).

The words of this honored clergyman rang in the ears of Christianity for 1600 years. "G-d hates you . . . and I hate you."

The natural progression for popular hatred is action. Religious belief fosters deep feeling, and deep feeling demands action to be taken to support that basic belief. Christian action toward the Jews exploded with a demonic violence beyond comprehension.

At Easter, when the Christian clergy would inflame the passions of the faithful with the vengeful message that "the Jews are the killers of Christ," the saints (sic) would race out of the church toward the Jewish quarter with clubs and beat Jews to death for what they did to Jesus on the cross.

It became an annual custom at Easter to drag a Jew into the church and slap him on the face before the altar. "This ceremony was sometimes carried out with excessive vigor; on one occasion, recounts a monkish chronicler (without, however, expressing any disapproval), a distinguished nobleman who was taking part of chief celebrant 'knocked out the eyes and the brains of the perfidious one (disbelieving Jew), who fell dead on the spot . . . his brethren from the synagogue took the body out of the church and buried it' (Hay, Malcomb, "The Roots of Christian Anti-Semitism," Freedom Liberty Press, New York City, pp. 37).

THE CRUSADES

The perfection of Christian hatred gave birth to the Dark Ages and the Crusades. During the First Crusade to the Holy Land, in 1096, the Crusading armies called "Knights of the Cross" left a trail of Jewish blood across Europe. Within a three month period, 12,000 Jews were slaughtered in Germany as the Crusaders screamed "The Jews have killed our Savior. They must convert or be killed."

Some Jewish communities were given the opportunity to save their lives by meeting the Crusaders demand for huge amounts of gold and silver. Those Jewish communities who could not meet the ransom demand were butchered by the "will of G-d. " Others ran to the synagogue, locked the doors, said a final prayer and killed their wives and children mercifully and quickly, lest the cross carrying Crusaders butcher them. The fathers committed suicide to preserve the sanctity of the name of Jehovah G-d.

The Crusaders were not holy men on a holy mission. They were a motley mob of thieves and robbers whose sins had been forgiven in advance by the Pope. Any man who "answered the call of the Crusade" could consider all his financial debts to any Jewish creditor canceled. It was a quick way to get out of debt. As a bonus, the Crusaders were permitted to rob the Jews of their possessions on the road to and from Jerusalem. If they murdered the Jews, and raped their daughters and wives, all was forgiven in advance by the Pope before they left on the Crusade. This was done because "it was the will of G-d."

It is no wonder that the word "crusade" makes the Jews of the world nauseous. A Christian sees the Cross and thinks of forgiveness of a sin; a Jew looks at a Cross like an electric chair in the death house.

When the First crusade under Godfrey reached Jerusalem in 1099, the Crusaders invaded the city through the Jewish quarter. In a desperate attempt to save their lives, 969 Jewish men, women and children ran for the synagogue for protection, locking the doors behind them. The Crusaders promptly set fire to the synagogue and listened to helpless women and innocent children scream in horror, begging for mercy as they were burned alive. The Crusaders marched around the synagogue singing triumphantly, "Christ, We Adore Thee" as more than nine hundred members of the family of our Lord were cremated.

G.K. Chesterton (1874-1936), Catholic author whose works are used in parochial schools, expressed his regret "that the Crusaders who slaughtered Jewish men, women and children could not be canonized" (Runes, Dagobert D., "The War Against the Jew," Philosophical Library, New York, 1968, pg. 34).

Jesus Christ of Nazareth, a prominent New Testament Jewish Rabbi said, "Inasmuch as you have done it unto the least of these my brethren, (the Jews) you have done it unto me" (Matthew 25:40).

THE FOURTH LATERAN COUNCIL OF 1215

The Fourth Lateran Council met in November of 1216 in response to the call of Pope Innocent III. There were more than a thousand Church delegates who met in four stormy sessions to determine what the official relationship between Christians and Jews should be, as approved by the Roman Church. The official Christian policy that came out of the Fourth Lateran Council was a formal declaration supporting the conduct of the Roman Church toward the Jews for centuries prior. It would be the officially approved standard of conduct for European Christians toward Jews until Adolf Hitler came to power. The Fourth Lateran Council decided that all Jews must wear.

THE BADGE OF SHAME

Concerned that Christians and Jews would engage in sexual intercourse, the Church fathers forced the Jews to wear distinctive clothing so that they could be recognized on sight. "That the crime of such a sinful mixture shall no longer find evasion or cover under pretext of error, we order that the Jews of both sexes, in all Christian lands and at all times, shall be publicly differentiated from the rest of the population by the quality of their garment, especially since this is ordained by Moses . . ." (Encyclopedia Judaica, Keter Publishing House, Jerusalem, 1978, Vol. 10, pp. 1446 and Vol. 4, pg. 64).

The reference to "this is ordained by Moses" refers to the fact that Moses instructed the men of Israel to make

Prayer Shawls (Numbers 15:37-41) that were to be worn by all adult men from "generation to generation." Jesus Christ wore a Prayer Shawl from his thirteenth birthday until the day of his crucifixion.

The Church fathers used Moses' description of a Prayer Shawl as scriptural justification to force all Jews of "both sexes in all Christian lands" to dress distinctively.

When Adolf Hitler came to power, he used this long established Roman Church policy to force the Jews to wear the Yellow Star of David, marking them for abuse and execution.

The Fourth Lateran Council Also ruled that the Jews must tithe to the Roman Church.

TITHE TO THE ROMAN CHURCH

The Jews were ordered by the Council to pay tithes (ten percent of their gross income) to the Roman Church because the Jews were now owners of lands that had previously belonged to Christians. The Roman Church could not afford a loss of revenue just because a Christian had sold his property to a Jew. The exact reading of the Council edict states: "And under the threat of the same penalty (social and economic boycott by the church) we decree that Jews should be compelled to make good the tithes and dues owed to the churches which the churches have been accustomed to receive from the houses and other possessions of the Christians before they came into possession of the Jews, regardless of the circumstances, so that the church be preserved against loss." This ecclesiastical edict was nothing short of extortion It was economic control of the Jews via law!

On April 1, 1933, sixty days after Adolf Hitler had sworn before the German people to "conduct my affairs of office impartially and with justice to everyone," declared a general boycott of every Jewish business in the Third Reich. It was economic control of the Jews through law!

Jews were ordered to paint a Yellow Star of David in the front window so that all good Germans would know to boycott that store. Signs were also hung on the stores which said in large bold letters, "Germans! Don't buy from Jews!" With the Jews now under boycott, Hitler turned his attention toward the Civil Service.

On April 7, 1933, the Third Reich passed a law with the pompous title, "Law for the Restoration of the Professional Civil Service." The lofty sounding piece of legislation was the legal instrument through which the Nazis dismissed every Jew working a civil service job in Germany. Thousands of Jews were without jobs overnight. It was economic control of the Jews through law, a long standing Roman Church policy!

The Fourth Lateran Council also decreed that Jews could not hold public office and called upon the secular powers to "exterminate all heretics. When Hitler came to power he dutifully followed all four of these Roman Church policies.

THE SPANISH INQUISITION

The Spanish Inquisition began in 1481, striking the Jews like a bolt of thunder out of the blue heavens.

For years the Jews of Spain were under pressure to convert to the Roman Church. Many did and were called "Marranos" (Spanish word for pigs). They were hated by the Jews for being traitors to Judaism and were hated by the Roman Church which believed these "converts" were practicing Judaism secretly while pretending to be good Catholics.

All attempts to separate the new converts from Judaism via legislation, ghettoization or education were fruitless. From the second half of the 15th century, public discussions were conducted to determine what to do about this religious and social problem.

In 1474, when Ferdinand and Isabella ascended the throne of Castile, the opportunity for a radical solution was at hand. They could not have consolidate their political rule without the assistance of the Church. In exchange for the support of the Church, Ferdinand and Isabella introduced a series of restrict orders against the Jews.

Religious fervor mounted until Ferdinand and Isabella appealed to Pope Sixtus IV in 1477 to establish an Inquisition. The point must be made that this inquisition was established by the Roman Church and received its power directly from the Pope. Its purpose was to purge the Church of Jews whose conversion were in question.

Two Dominican monks, Miguel de Morillo and Jut de San Martin were appointed to lead the Inquisition on September 27, 1480. They demanded that Judaizers who had fled the country in terror be delivered into their hands for trial. The wealthy notable personalities of the Jewish community were brought before the religious court where hundreds were burned alive at the stake and thousands returned to the church in terrified obedience.

The Inquisition was extended in October, 1483 and under the fanatical leadership of Tomas de Torquemada reached levels of torture the Jews would not experience again until Hitler's sadistic Nazi SS Corps blossomed into its highest level of madness. Pulitzer Prize winning historian, John Toland, records that, "the black clad Nazi SS was purposely constructed by Himmler, born and bred a Catholic, on Jesuit principles by assiduously copying the service statutes arid spiritual exercises presented by Ignatius Loyola." (John Toland "Adolf Hitler" Vol. 2, pg. 869)

In the fanatical effort to determine who was truly a loyal Catholic and who was not, Jewish children were choked to death in the presence of their parents. The naked breast of women were shriveled with hot irons to make them betray their husbands. The bodies of the husbands were stretched on the rack where they were pulled in half forcing them through excruciating pain to denounce their wives and children as false converts.

A major emphasis of the Inquisition was to steal the wealth of the Jews for the benefit of the royal court and the Roman Church. The faithful became so enthusiastic in the expropriating of Jewish wealth and property that the bones of dead Jews were dug lip for "trial" so estates could be confiscated from their heirs.

Manuals of the Inquisition were published which gave hints on how to spot a "backsliding" Jew and how to extend and intensify the suffering of the Jewish subject by flame, garrote, rack, whip or needle. This cruelty, in the name of Christ, reached an art that left Heydrich and Eichmann little to add for the Third Reich.

Historian Dagobert Runes writes, "Neither illness nor pregnancy could spare a woman from the bite of the Inquisition instruments wielded by the protectors of the loving Christ. Since all the property of the convicted fell to the Inquisition corporation, to be shared equally by their majesties, there was an added incentive to intensify the Inquisition. Denouncers were well rewarded, and a person denounced was a person indicted and convicted, since no living creature could withstand the refined methods of punishment the clerics had devised. Every single part of the human anatomy had been carefully studied and experimented upon to find those most sensitive to pain" (Runes, Dagobert D., "The War Against the Jew," Philosophical Library, New York, 1968, pg. 87).

The Spanish Inquisition gave birth to the phrase "limpieza de sangre" (meaning purity of blood). The purity of blood was the major consideration in the racial background of the accused Jew. Those who could not prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that they had blood-pure Christian descent for three generations were doomed to a death of unspeakable horror.

It is to be noted that Hitler's blood-purity rule in which Germans had to prove they had no Jewish blood for three generations was clearly formulated by the Roman Church in Spain five hundred years before Hitler came to power.

Before we turn our attention to the second in this series of articles, I think it is important to understand that these abuses to which I have documented, were the sole fruit of anti-Semitism of earlier Gentile Church leaders which, after the destruction of the Temple in 70 CE, created a new religion which replaced the faith of Jesus and which labeled all Jews as "Christ-killers". To ensure their success, manuscripts within their control were altered and revised with each successive Catholic Church Council. The Jewish faith of Jesus became a Gentile faith created with the empowerment of racial bigotry and religious anti-Judaism. Now, let us continue the study of the legacy of Christianity.

THE FRUIT OF GENTILE CHRISTIANITY: ANTI-SEMITISM #2

MARTIN LUTHER - SAINT OR ANTICHRIST?

"The worse evil genius of Germany," wrote Dean Inge, "is not Hitler, or Bismarck, or Frederick the Great, but Martin Luther."

Luther's hatred for the Jews "was intensified by his intellectual vanity and the vigor of his faith, which, like that of many others before and since his time, was united to an equally unshakable conviction that anyone who did not agree with him was an obstinate enemy of the Holy Spirit who deliberately closed his eyes to the truth" (Hay, Malcomb, "The Roots of Christian Anti-Semitism," Freedom Liberty Press, New York City, pp. 160).

Martin Luther had just introduced the Reformation and was convinced that the Jewish people would be delighted with his new brand of Christianity and would join him in his assault on the Roman Church. He was wrong! In the beginning, Luther made complimentary remarks about the Jewish contribution to Christianity. When they did not join him, he turned on them with a vulgarity and vengeance that greatly appealed to the German people.

Luther said of the Jews,

"All the blood kindred of Christ burn in Hell, and they are rightly served, even according to their own words they spoke to Pilate" (Ibid, pg. 167).

His doctrine provided many suitable texts for Hitler's program of extermination.

"Verily a hopeless, wicked, venomous and devilish thing is the existence of these Jews, who for fourteen hundred years have been, and still are, our pest, torment and misfortune. They are just devils and nothing more."

"The only Bible you have any right to, he told the Jews, is that concealed beneath the sow's tail; the letters that drop from it you are free to eat and This was Luther's crude description of the Jewish people eating the waste and urine of swine."

The most vicious, Jew hating statements Luther made were to be found in his tract entitled "Concerning the Jews and Their Lies. Luther's tract reads as follows:

"Let me give you my honest advice. First, their synagogues or churches should be set on fire, and whatever does not burn up should be covered or spread over with dirt so that no one may ever be able to see a cinder or stone of it. And this ought to be done for the honor of G-d and of Christianity in order the: G-d may see that we are Christians . . . Secondly, their homes should be broken down and destroyed. Thirdly, they should be deprived of their prayer books and Talmuds in which such idolatry, lies, cursing and blasphemy are taught. Fourthly, their Rabbis must be forbidden under the threat of death to teach any more . . . Fifthly, passport and traveling privileges should be absolutely forbidden the Jews. Let them stay at home. Sixthly, they ought to be stopped from usury. For this reason, as said before, everything they possess they stole and robbed from us through their usury, for they have no other means of support. Seventhly, let the young and strong Jews and Jewesses be given the flail, the ax, the hoe, the spade, the distaff, and spindle, and let them earn their bread by the sweat of their noses as is enjoined upon Adam's children. We ought to drive the lazy bones out of our system. If, however, we are afraid that they might harm us personally, or our wives, children, servants, cattle, etc., then let us apply the same cleverness (expulsion) as the other nations, such as France, Spain, Bohemia, etc., and settle with them for that which they have extorted from us, and after having it divided up fairly let us drive them out of the country for all time. To sum up, dear princes and nobles who have Jews in your domains, if this advice of mine does not suit you, then find a better one so that you and we may all be free from this insufferable devilish burden—the Jews" (Encyclopedia Judaica, Keter Publishing House, Jerusalem, 1978, Vol. 3, pp. 103).

Two days later after writing this vicious attack on the Jews...Martin Luther died!

When the Nazis placed the Jews in ghetto stables and camps, they only followed Luther's precept; when they burned Jewish synagogues, homes and schools, they only carried out Luther's will; when the Germans robbed the Jews of their possessions, they only did Luther's bidding; when the Germans reduced the Jews to concentration camp slavery, they merely followed the teaching of Luther: Make the Hebrews slaves of the serfs!

Adolf Hitler loved Luther's theology. His Nazi murder machine showed "a proper appreciation of the continuity of their history when they declared that the first large-scale Nazi program (violent physical persecution of Jews), in November, 1938, was a pious operation performed in honor of the anniversary of Luther's birthday" (Hay, Malcomb, "The Roots of Christian Anti-Semitism," Freedom Liberty Press, New York City, pg. 169).

ADOLF HITLER

Adolf Hitler's atrocities toward the Jews have been chronicled by the world's finest scholars. There is no purpose in retracing his bloody steps that dragged Europe and the world into the bowels of Hell for twelve years of an unspeakable nightmare.

What is pertinent to this text is to demonstrate how that Roman Church policy which was an extension of their religious doctrines (established from the second century onward) shaped the policy of the Third Reich. When Hitler signed the Concordant with the Roman Church he said, "I am only continuing the work of the Catholic Church" (Runes, Dagobert D., "The War Against the Jew," Philosophical Library, New York, 1968, pg. 114).

Let's examine the historical record of Church Policy and Nazi Policy which is taken in part from J. E. Scherer, Die Rechtsverhältnisse der Juden in der deutsch-österreichischen Landern (Leipzig 1901), pp 39-49.

- Hitler's "Final Solution" called for the systematic slaughter of every Jew in Europe. He took their homes, their jobs, their possessions (even their gold filled teeth), their names and finally their very lives. His justification? "It's the will of G-d" and "it's the work of the Church."

The Holocaust did not begin with Hitler lining the Jews up for the gas chamber. It began with religious leaders sowing the seeds of hatred within their congregations toward the Jewish people.

A TERRIBLE ERROR IN BIBLE INTERPRETATION-CAUSED BY GENTILE ANTI-SEMITISM-IS TO BLAME

Hosea is a book in the Judeo-Christian Bible, and official Jewish and Christian teaching has always held that it is a message from G-d. Yet it is in the part of the Bible that most Christians call "old." It is a sad message about the sin and sorrows of a generation and culture far removed from ours. Why would G-d want Christians today to study it? Simply to avoid the mistakes that I enumerate below.

OLD PEOPLE OF GOD VS NEW PEOPLE OF GOD....SIMPLY SAID IT IS REPLACEMENT THEOLOGY (GOD IS DIVORCED?)

One key to our motivation to study the so-called "Old Testament" books like Hosea involves our perception of our relationship to the Family of Israel. Since the second century A. D., the traditional Christian viewpoint concerning Israel has held that the Jewish People are the "old" People of G-d. This mistaken viewpoint suggests that one day the "old" People of G-d sinned one time too many, so G-d broke all His promises and covenants with them, selected Himself a "new" people, and gave them a "New Testament". No wonder most Christians consider the Hebrew Scriptures obsolete! And no wonder Jews (including many who follow Yeshua) don't feel welcomed at church!

What I am about to say may sound blasphemous, but I do not intend it that way. It is offensive to me to write it, and may be offensive to you to read it; but it needs to be clearly communicated all the same: In the symbolism of the Book of Hosea, this "replacement" interpretation of God's People is, in effect, saying that G-d is divorced and remarried.

GOD HAS TWO PEOPLES-NOT ONE-ACCORDING TO DISPENSATIONALISM (GOD IS A BIGAMIST?)

In modern times, a new hypothesis about God's People has emerged, one that takes the Scriptures themselves much more seriously. Technically called dispensationalism, this new perspective suggests that Israel and the Church are two unrelated Peoples of G-d, with different promises and commands, and used by G-d for His purposes at different times of history. This viewpoint preserves the insight that God's love and His promises are both unconditional and irreversible. In Hosean terms, however, it still makes G-d out to be a bigamist (which, from a biblical but not a modern perspective, is better than being divorced and remarried, but far from ideal). And the part of the Bible written to the "other" People of G-d (including the Gospels!) is still treated as more-or-less irrelevant to Christians.

ISRAEL IS THE SAVED OF GOD AND THOSE GRAFTED INTO HER (GOD IS MONOGAMOUS!!!!!!!!!!!!!!YOU BET!!!!!!!!!!)

But a third perspective is available, which honors both G-d and His Word. According to one historical covenant view, there is only one Family of G-d, the People of Abraham, Isaac and Israel. Since the time of Joseph and his brothers, the majority of those born into the Family have always been in rebellion against the Father and under His wrath, but they are still family members and beloved for the sake of the patriarchs. And starting with Abraham himself, G-d has been adopting non-Jews into His Family, bringing them into all the rich heritage, and all the other privileges and responsibilities of being in the People of Israel.

And since those of us who are not Jewish by birth are naturalized by the King into His Kingdom, the Kingdom of Israel, we are no longer aliens and foreigners, no longer walled out of His holy Temple. The patriarchs are our new ancestors. The entire Bible is not only the Word of G-d but also our family album. To be sure, we are rejected by our new brothers and sisters who are still in rebellion, but the Father has accepted us fully, eternally and unconditionally as His very Own. We are grafted into the vine of Israel, which finds its true Roots and deepest Identity in the quintessential Jew, the Messiah Himself. And we long desperately for the dead branches around us to come into a living relationship with that truest and deepest Reality of Jewish identity.

From that perspective, the Book of Hosea can become living reality in our lives. God's wife, wayward now as then, is now our Mother, whom Messiah will soon bring into glorious renewal, a Bride without spot or wrinkle. The Land of Israel is our Land, where we will reign with our Father forever. The children are each of us Jews individually, whether born by natural birth into the Family or grafted in, and whether alive through vital trust in Him or spiritually dead and in need of that renewal. And just as we participate in the pain, sorrow, and confusion today of our Family's present dysfunctions, so much the more we will soon share in the eternal joy and consolation of restoration. Today He is beginning to bring Mom back home to the Land, and also bringing more and more of her children into right relationship with Him through faith in our Father and Elder Brother the dual-Nature Messiah. Tomorrow Mom's great Heart will be firmly, fully, finally, and forever turned back to her Magnificent Husband. Then death and sorrow will completely end; Heaven and earth will be one; and we will be there, loving each other and Him and her much more perfectly than we can today. And that is why Hosea's message is so important to you and me right now, regardless of our ethnic backgrounds.

The spirit of anti-Semitism and anti-Judaism as found in doctrines emanating from Replacement Theology and Dispensational Theology is lacking totally from an correct historical interpretation of Scripture and the failure to interpret this correctly does great injustice to the Bible. Proper understanding of the non-Jew and how he is to relate to the Israel of G-d reveals that the Gentile believers have always been grafted into Israel (the saved people of G-d as taught by Paul as well as taught in the doctrine of Mikvah which addresses being born again from a Jewish perspective) and non-Jews will always be added unto the Lord this way. Such corrupt teachings as we find on our airways like: "the Church must know that she is the true Israel, the Jews do not have a claim to the land of Israel, Israel is not blessed above all nation, Israel is not reborn and they are without salvation, the Jews rejected Jesus and should be punished, the Jews are the Christ killers, well poisoners, plague carriers, host defamers, and sons of the devil, the Old Covenant is Dead and replaced by the New Covenant, and the Jews are our misfortune and have not blessed the nations of the earth would never have been taught are outright lies and perversions of the Bible and what it teaches (when correctly understood historically and linguistically)!"

Hitler being influenced by such religious lies from the early Gentile Church quoted the Bible, chapter and verse, to justify his attack upon the Jews. It requires no genius to find a "proof-text" for hatred in the name of G-d. It's been done for centuries . . . and it's happening again! One cannot help but wonder if men like Chrysostom and Luther don't share some of the blame for Hitler's atrocities against 6 million people because of their hateful and anti-Semitic rhetoric against the Jewish people. Let us never lose sight of the fact of such erroneous Biblical interpretation that not only had consequences during the early centuries following Jesus but equally has consequences in our day as well.

"In our own day, and within our own civilization," writes Dr. James Parkes, "more than six million deliberate murders are the consequence of the teachings about the Jews for which the Christian Church is ultimately responsible, and of an attitude to Judaism which is not only maintained by all the Christian Churches, but has its ultimate resting place in the teaching of the New Testament itself" (Hay, Malcomb, "The Roots of Christian Anti-Semitism," Freedom Liberty Press, New York City, pg. 11).

"I am convinced," wrote Pierre van Passen, "that Hitler neither could nor would have done to the Jewish people what he has done ... if we had not actively prepared the way for him by our own unfriendly attitude to the Jews, by our selfishness and by the anti-Semite teaching in our churches and schools'" (Ibid, pg. 12).

When a German General was asked at the Nuremberg Trials for Major War Criminals how six million people could be systematically murdered by a German people who were among the world's most advanced societies, he said, "I am of the opinion that when for years, for decades, the doctrine is preached that Jews are not even human, such an outcome is inevitable."

Christians have difficulty understanding why Jewish people think of Adolf Hitler as a Christian. The Jews think Adolf Hitler was a Christian for the same reason the Southern Baptists think Billy Graham is a Christian.

Billy Graham attended and graduated from a Christian school and gives dynamic public testimony that he is a Christian in good standing with the Southern Baptist Convention. When Billy Graham preaches in the Rose Bowl, he quotes the Bible and announces that he is called of G-d to carry out his mission. Billy Graham's life and ministry verify he is a man of G-d.

Adolf Hitler also attended a Christian school under the tutelage of Padre Bernard Groner. Hitler told a friend that as a small boy, it was his ardent desire to become a priest. After he had written Mein Kampf, a text of his political and personal philosophy including his desire to exterminate the Jews, he gave public testimony that "I am now as before a Catholic and will always remain so" (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 326).

He gave his testimony in December of 1941 when he announced his decision to implement the "Final Solution" after the bombing of Pearl Harbor. He ordered that the "killings should be done as humanely as possible. This was in line with his conviction that he was observing God's injunction to cleanse the world of vermin. He carried within him the Catholic teaching that the Jew was the killer of G-d. The extermination, therefore, could be carried out without a twinge of conscience since he was merely acting as the avenging hand of G-d" (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 803).

The Jewish people consider Hitler a Christian because the princes of the church scrambled to secure his favor. " 'Hitler knows how to guide the ship,' announced Monsignor Ludwig Kaas." 'Even before he was Chancellor, I met him frequently and was greatly impressed by his clear thinking, by his way of facing realities while upholding his ideals, which are noble . . . It matters little who rules so long as order is maintained.'

The Vatican was so appreciative of being recognized as a full partner that it asked G-d to bless the Reich. On a more practical level, it ordered German Bishops to swear allegiance to the Nationalist Socialist regime. The new oath concluded with the significant words: 'In the performance of my spiritual office and in my solicitude for the welfare and interest of the German Reich, I will endeavor to avoid all detrimental acts that might endanger it' (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 331).

The Jewish people consider Hitler a Christian because the Roman Church honored Hitler on his fiftieth birthday. Special votive masses were celebrated in every German church "to implore God's blessing upon the Fuhrer and the people. The Pope did not fail to send congratulations" (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 617).

When Hitler's blitzkrieg invaded Austria he was met by Cardinal Innitzer who "greeted him with the sign of the cross and gave assurance that so long as the Church retained its liberties, Austrian Catholics would become 'the truest sons of the great Reich' into whose arms they had been brought back on this momentous day " (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 481).

The Jewish people consider Adolf Hitler a Christian because when he narrowly escaped the assassination plot by his officers, Pope Pius XII sent his personal congratulations. The Catholic press throughout the Reich piously declared "that it was the miraculous working of Providence which had protected the Fuhrer" (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 687).

When Hitler's War machine crushed the brave but ill prepared Polish Army, Nazi press carried a photo of the debris with the scripture beneath: "The Lord defeated them with horse, horsemen and chariot." When Hitler gave speeches in public, he was anointed with a supernatural demonic spirit in which he quoted sacred scripture to justify his messianic mission to purge Germany and Europe of the Jews "once and for all." His mesmerizing voice would thunder over the heads of his electrified audience, "I'm doing the will of G-d."

After more than forty years following the Allies liberation of the Jews from the living Hell of Auschwitz, not one word of official condemnation or excommunication has been expressed by the Vatican concerning Hitler. Why? The simple fact of history is that six million people were systematically murdered in our generation by baptized Christians in good standing with the Church.

During our generation, one third of the Jews of Europe were choked to death on Zyclon B gas, as one thousand years of Christian anti-Semitism came into full bloom. When Adolf Hitler signed the Concordant of Collaboration with the Vatican on July 20, 1933 he said, "I am only continuing the work of the Catholic Church: to isolate the Jews and fight their influence." Hitler described the Concordant as an "unrestricted acceptance of National Socialism by the Vatican."

Hitler was not wrong! Under the terms of the Concordant, Hitler's portrait was hung in a place of respect in every Catholic parochial and Sunday school room, the bells of the church rang in celebration on each of his birthdays, as they rang throughout Germany whenever the last Jew was deported to a horrible death in the extermination camps.

Never, after the signing of this infamous Concordant, did the Church speak one word of protest against Hitler or his barbarian'. The Bishops of Austria and Germany blessed the Swastika Flags of the Third Reich and pledged their loyalty "voluntarily and without duress." The Vicar of Christ looked out his window from the Vatican and watched the Nazis drag helpless women and innocent Jewish children from their homes, load them into trucks like cattle for transport to a death of horror in the extermination camps.

What happened to those Jewish children? Here are some of the answers to this question which were given at the trial of major war criminals at Nuremberg:

"They killed them with their parents, in groups and alone. They killed them in children's homes and hospitals, burying them alive and in graves, throwing them into flames, stabbing them with bayonets, poisoning them, conducting experiments upon them, extracting their blood for the use of the German army, throwing them into prison and Gestapo torture chambers and concentration camps where the children died from hunger, torture, and epidemic diseases." (Trial of the Major War Criminals, I, pg. 50).

"Very frequently women would hide their children under their clothes, but of course when we found them we would send the children in to be exterminated." (Ibid I, pg. 251).

"Mothers in the throes of childbirth shared cars with those infected with tuberculosis or venereal disease. Babies, when born, were hurled out of these cars' windows." (Ibid III, p. 439).

"At that time, when the greatest number of Jews were exterminated in the gas chambers, an order was issued that the children were to be thrown into the crematory ovens, or into the crematory ditches, without previous asphyxiation with gas ... The children were thrown in alive, their cries could be heard all over the camp." (Ibid VIII pg. 318,319).

If Jesus and his twelve disciples had lived in Berlin, Germany in 1940, they would have been prodded into cattle cars at bayonet point and shipped to Auschwitz. They were all Jews!

Arriving at Auschwitz they would have been ushered into a gas chamber en masse to scratch and claw at the walls in terror as they frantically gasped for breath. The gas chamber was camouflaged as a shower room. It was an ordinary room, fitted with sealproof doors and windows, into which gas piping had been laid. The compressed gas containers and the regulating equipment were located outside and operated by the Nazi doctor on duty.

Jesus Christ, along with Peter, James, and John, etc., would have been led into the shower on the pretext that they needed a shower after their long train ride from Berlin to Auschwitz.

They would have slowly choked to death on the Zyklon B gas for fifteen long minutes, still standing grotesquely erect because they were packed too tightly to fall. They would have been covered with sweat and urine. Their legs would have been covered with their feces. This Nazi "Final Solution" was being carried out by baptized Christians. Their preachers and political leaders had told them, "This is the will of G-d."

Next the teeth of Jesus and his disciples would have been broken out with pliers or hammers for the gold fillings; their hair cut off to make mattresses and their very flesh skinned for the Nazi lamp shades. Their remains would have been thrown into an oven and cremated with the stench belching out the massive smoke stacks covering the countryside.

At night, the skies over Auschwitz were red with the ashes of dead Jews . . . the family of our Lord. Those ashes were used to make soap or fertilizer for the Third Reich. Think of it! Fertilizing your roses with the ashes of the Virgin Mary's family! Soaping your body down with the remains of the family of our Lord. Sleeping on a mattress of human hair provided by the family of St. Peter.

It makes an entirely different story when you see the Jewish people as the family of Jesus Christ. Hitler's propaganda machine separated Jesus from his Jewishness. In Hitler's writings, Jesus Christ was in fact the first Jew hater. "Christ was the greatest early fighter in the battle against the world enemy, the Jews," ranted Hitler. (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 233).

Preachers in America are now attacking the Jews and Israel under the banner of "this is the will of G-d." They are desperately trying to separate Jesus Christ from his Jewishness and the Jewish people, calling the Jews "our dilemma." They are trying to pit the Church against the Chosen People by saying that the "church is the only true Israel" and "we must save the Jews before the end of the Millenium." Thank G-d they failed to indoctrinate the Jews with their pagan doctrines. They are attacking the Jews as the Christ rejecting killers of G-d.

Hitler knew that when his goose-stepping Nazi killers knelt to pray in St. Matthew's Cathedral, they must not see St. Matthew as Jewish. How could they possibly leave the sanctuary of worship and then savagely machine gun naked Jews into an open blood filled ditch if the Jews were seen as the family of our Lord?

How could they kneel at the statue of the Virgin Mary, a Jewess, holding the Christ child in her arms, and then mercilessly slaughter 1.5 million innocent Jewish babies if these babies were perceived as being the descendants of Jesus Christ?

How could Hitler's mindless monsters kiss the toe of St. Peter, a very prominent Jew in Christian theology, and then go shove the living kinsmen of our Lord into the gas chambers at Auschwitz? The Messiah of Germany made it easy by officially declaring, "Jesus is not a Jew!"

And now in the eighties, more than forty years after the Beast of Berlin committed suicide and was burned to a char, his ghost is walking the platforms of America's churches as preachers are saying once again:

The Church must know that she is the true and only Israel. Hitler said, "the first and greatest lie," that the Jews are "a religious community . . . the Mosaic religion is nothing other than a doctrine for the preservation of the Jewish race" (Dawidowicz, Lucy S., "The War Against the Jews 1933-1945," Bantam Books, 1975, pg. 25).

Jesus did not identify with "the Jews." Hitler said, "Jesus was a Mischlinge (German for half-breed) who was conceived of G-d, had but two Jewish grandparents (Mary's parents), did not practice the Jewish religion nor did he marry a Jew (Toland, John, "Adolf Hitler," Doubleday and Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, 1978, Vol. I, pg. 593).

The Jews rejected Jesus as Messiah and Christians should punish the Jews economically by not going to Israel (Paulk, Earl, "To Whom Is G-d Betrothed?" K Dimension Publications, Atlanta, Georgia, 1985, pg. 43) for rejecting the Son of G-d. Hitler's economic punishment of the Jews has been historically validated!

The Old Covenant is dead and is replaced by the New Covenant. Hitler said, "the Mosaic religion is nothing other than a doctrine for the preservation of the Jewish race."

The Jews have no claim to the land of Israel!

Hitler was dead before May 15, 1948 when Israel was reborn. Had he been alive he would have agreed. His Nazi officers led the Arab attack on the Jews the day after the U.N. officially recognized the state of Israel!

A choice has to be made by every Bible believing Christian! Who are we to believe? Who are we to follow? The Word of G-d or these misguided messengers?

THE WORD OF GOD SAYS:

- The Jewish people are the apple (pupil) of God's eye (Zechariah 2:8).
- The Jewish people are loved of G-d right now! (Romans 11:1 and 11:11).
- Of all the people on the face of the earth, G-d chose the Jewish people for his own personal inheritance (Psalm 33:12 and 78:71).
- The Jewish people are the Chosen People (Deuteronomy 7:6).
- Those who attack the Jews will come under God's judgement (Genesis 12:3 and Matthew 25:40-46).
- God's covenant with the Jewish people is everlasting and unconditional (Psalms 89:30-37).
- The borders of national Israel are completely defined. The U.N. and anti-Semites may be confused about the exact borders of the nation of Israel . . . but G-d is not! (Genesis 15:18-21, Exodus 23:31 and Ezekiel 47:13-48:35).
- The Jews have a Biblical right to the land of Israel! (Genesis 13:14-17 and Genesis 15:18 and Genesis 17:8).
- Christians are commanded to "pray for the peace of Jerusalem" (Psalm 122:6) and "comfort my people" (Isa. 40:1).
- All Israel shall be saved (Romans 11:25).
- Men and Nations that bless national Israel will have God's blessing and favor (Genesis 12:3 and Luke 7).
- The Jews will return to the land of Israel (Amos 9:11-15).
- The city of Jerusalem will be returned to the Jewish people (Luke 21:24).
- Israel is the only nation on the face of the earth that was created by a sovereign act of G-d (Genesis 15).
- G-d has personally sworn to protect Israel (Ex. 23:27-28, Deut. 28:7, Psalms 122:4, Zech. 12:2-10, and Isa. 49:25 which says "I myself will fight against those who fight you").
- Israel will become an agricultural miracle (Isa. 22:6, Isa. 41:18-19 and Amos 9:13).
- All nations will worship the Messiah in the city of Jerusalem (Zechariah 8:2-3 and 14:6).
- The Jewish people have the Biblical right to Judea and Samaria which is referred to in the media as the "West Bank." (Jer. 31:2-5, Psa. 69:35, and Jer. 33:6-12).

CHRISTOLOGY AND SOTERIOLOGY: ROOT CAUSES OF GENTILE CHRISTIAN ANTI-SEMITISM AND ANTI-JUDAISM #1

The Holocaust has raised serious questions for Christianity and Judaism; calling into question the nature of a G-d who could permit such evil in the world. For Christianity today there is a fundamental challenge. The Shoah (Holocaust) has highlighted the urgent necessity for a revised Christian theology of Biblical Judaism. To deal with anti-Judaism within the teachings of the Christian Church the church has to reappraise its Christology (doctrine of Messiah concerning ideas such as deity) as well as its Soteriology (doctrine of salvation). In the light of Auschwitz, a profound reassessment of Christian teaching is required because the horrors of Auschwitz are directly traceable to the fruit of Christianity and its currently held doctrines of Christology and Soteriology.

The anti-Semitic heritage of Christian civilization is neither an accidental nor a peripheral element. It cannot be dismissed as a legacy from 'paganism', or as a product of purely sociological conflicts between the church and the synagogue. Anti-Semitism in Western civilization springs, at its root, from Christian theological anti-Judaism. It was Christian theology that developed the thesis of the reprobate status of the Jew in history and laid the foundations for the demonic view of the Jew that fanned the flames of popular hatred. This hatred was not only inculcated by Christian preaching and exegesis, but it became incorporated into the structure of canon law (the New Testament) and also the civil law formed under the Christian Roman emperors, such as the Codes of Theodosius (AD 428) and of Justinian (sixth century). These anti-Judaic laws of the church and the Christian empire laid the basis for the debasement of the civic and personal status of the Jew in Christian society that lasted until its emancipation in the nineteenth century. These laws were, in part, revived in the Nazi Nuremberg Laws of 1933.

THE DOCTRINE OF CHRISTOLOGY

Besides the typical Christian's understanding of salvation, the understanding of Christology is, I believe, at the heart of the problem of anti-Semitism and anti-Judaism. Theologically, anti-Judaism developed as the left hand of Christology. Anti-Judaism was the negative side of the early Gentile Christian affirmation that Jesus was the Christ. Gentile Christianity claimed that the Jewish tradition of Messianic hope was fulfilled in Jesus. But since the Jewish religious teachers rejected this claim since worldwide peace was yet to be realized (besides a host of other Messianic Scriptures that have yet to be fulfilled), the early Gentile Church developed a polemic against the Jews and Judaism to explain how the church would claim to be the fulfillment of a Jewish religious tradition when the Jewish religious teachers themselves denied this.

At the root of this dispute lies a fundamentally different understanding of the Messianic idea that developed in Christianity, in contrast to the Hebrew Scriptures and the Jewish teaching tradition concerning the Messiah. Judaism looked to the Messianic coming as a public, world-historical event, which unequivocally overthrew the forces of evil in the world and established the reign of G-d in a universal manner. Originally Jewish Christianity also understood Jesus' Messianic role in terms of an imminent occurrence of this coming reign of

G-d. But when this event failed to materialise, Christianity pushed it off into an indefinite future, that is, the Second Coming, and reinterpreted Jesus' Messianic role in inward and personal ways that had little resemblance to what the Jewish tradition meant by the coming of the Messiah. An impasse developed between Gentile Christianity and Judaism, rooted in Gentile Christian claims to Messianic fulfillment and supersession of Judaism, that were not only unacceptable but incomprehensible in the Jewish tradition. The real difference between these two views has never actually been discussed between Christians and Jews in any genuine fashion because, at an early state of development, these growing differences of understanding of Messianic advent were covered over with communal alienation and mutual polemic.

Gentile Christian teachers sought to vindicate their belief in Jesus as the Christ by reinterpreting Hebrew prophecy to accord with Gentile Christian view of Christ. This Christian exegesis also denied ability of the Jewish teachers to interpret their own Scriptures. Jews, Gentile Christians said, had always been apostate from G-d and teachers spiritually blind and hard of heart. In effect, Gentile Christian theology set out to demonstrate the rejected status of the Jewish people and the spiritual blindness of its exegesis and piety in order to vindicate the correctness of its own exegesis and its claim to be the rightful heir of Israel's election.

According to Gentile Christian teaching, it is the Christian Church which is the heir to the promises to Abraham. For the Gentile Christians, it is the Gentile Church which had become the spiritual and universal Israel as foretold by the prophets, while the Jews are the heirs of an evil history of perfidy, apostasy, and murder. As a result the Jewish people have been cut off from their divine election. Divine wrath has been poured down on them in the destruction of the temple and the national capital city of Jerusalem. They have been driven into exile and will be under a divine curse as wanderers and reprobates until the end of history, when Jesus returns as the Christ and the Jews finally have to acknowledge their error.

In effect, the church set up its polemic against the Jews as a historical task of Christians to maintain perpetually the despised status of the Jews as a proof of the Jew's divine reprobation. At the same time, the Gentile Church taught that the Jews must be preserved to the end of history as "witness" to the ultimate triumph of the church. This theological stance was expressed in the official policy of the Gentile Church toward the Jews through the centuries, combining social denigration with pressure for conversion. It also unleashed waves of hatred and violence that were seldom controllable within the official church policy of minimal protection of Jewish survival. In Nazism the Gentile Christian demonization of the Jew's spiritual condition was converted into a demonization of their biological condition. Hence the Nazi final solution to the Jewish question was not religious conversion but physical extermination, to make way for the millenium of the Third Reich.

THE DOCTRINE OF SALVATION

Along with Christology the Christian concept of Salvation is a second reason for anti-Semitic teachings that find a home in the Christian Church today. Any new Christian theology of Judaism must re-examine traditional exclusive understandings of salvation.

Along with Christology I suggest that it is soteriology (salvation), and not absolutist Christology alone, which has led to anti-Judaism in Christian theology. Besides the disagreement between Jews and Christians over the Messiahship of Jesus which has led to the denigration of Judaism, Christians have been taught to believe that Jews had wilfully rejected and killed their Messiah, which is interpreted meant all the promises made to the Jews in the Scriptures were forfeited. Christians in accepting the Messiahship of Jesus had become the true heirs. Christian anti-Semitism forthwith was always focused on the Jewish rejection of Jesus, and it was from this disagreement that the Church developed various myths of deicide, Jewish blindness and depravity, the mark of Cain, and ritual murder. Christology and anti-Judaism had become so intertwined that now it may seem impossible to pull up the weed without uprooting the seed of Christian faith as well.

There are two problems with linking of Christology alone with anti-Judaism; first, many who do hold an ontological, absolutist Christology are trying not to denigrate the status of Judaism. There were, and still are, other options available to the Church; namely two-covenant theology, inclusivism, and pluralism. Second, it seems odd to say that a simple disagreement over the status of Jesus is denigrating. Why should the fact of disagreeing with a different tradition be viewed as so insulting? The fact that I disagree with a person does not mean that I am denigrating her. Take Islam for example, we have a prime example of a faith which disagrees with Christianity over the status of Jesus, but one has not denigrated the other. Disagreements in themselves between different religious traditions should not be construed as denigration.

I suggest that the difficulty lies not with a disagreement over Jesus but with traditional understandings of salvation. Theoretically, the Church has for centuries defended the idea that there can be no salvation apart from conscious knowledge of Christ. An ultimate disagreement arose between Jews and Christians over the nature of salvation. According to certain strands of the Christian tradition, Judaism had forfeited its right to be the people of G-d by rejecting Christ and no longer had the power of salvation. All the promises in the Scripture had been transferred to the Church in effect making Judaism worthless and therefore dispensable. This disagreement over salvation led to the denigration of the Jews because the very idea of saving the other mean that the other has no separate validity and is deemed to be inferior. Given this theological outlook it was difficult for the Gentile Church to appreciate Judaism.

The denigration of Judaism was not in the early days focused on a absolutist Christology. It was later that Christology became blurred with soteriology. The Greek Church Fathers developed a fulfilment Christology which fully expected the Jews to convert to Christianity. This exclusivist position necessarily led to an active mission to convert Jews. In making Christianity a viable option on the mission field it was necessary to view Judaism as sinful and to ultimately deimonize and satanize it. Christian hostility often intensified when Jews refused to convert and the Jewish faith itself was still attracting considerable numbers of Gentiles. Historically, this linking of mission and soteriology had severe consequences for Judaism: leading directly to periods of forced conversion forced baptisms, legislation against Jews, the development of certain myths about Jewish depravity, and an overall denigration or persecution.

This link between salvation and denigration of Jews was particular evident in the life of Luther who initially appeared to understand why the Jews had not previously converted to Christianity, i.e. because Papal interpretations of the Gospel. The younger Luther had high hopes that once the Christian message was stripped of the misleading Roman Catholic influence then the Jews would see the truth of Protestantism and convert to the true faith. But this very attitude contained within itself the seeds of his later disappointment. For he was to spend his life expounding justification by faith in Christ, only to discover that the Jews still did not convert. Within twenty years his attitude towards them had turned violently hostile and bitter. In his work On the Jews and their Lies he accused them of being wilfully blind, renewed the charge of deicide (killing G-d), and accused them of ritual murder. It was his defence of an exclusivist concept of salvation which drove him to the ultimate demonization and denigration of Jews. This led to his suggestion to the secular authorities that they should burn Jewish homes and synagogues; Jewish travelling privileges should be 'taken away; and all Jews should be expelled from Germany. Luther provides just one example of the consequences for Judaism of a Gentile Christian theology which is based on an exclusivist soteriology.

It might be objected that if disagreement over christology is not necessarily denigration, then why does a disagreement over soteriology lead to denigration? Why can't a Hindu explain that the problems of karma are best dealt with by meditation? I have argued that soteriological disagreement necessarily implies the other is either satanic, sinful, or both. This is clearly denigration of the other and therefore any tradition which believes itself to be the universal path of salvation tends towards denigration (exclusivist view of salvation). A further objection might be that in fact if the Christian narrative is true then it is not denigration to inform others. So for example, if a person is drowning it does seem odd to say that saving them is denigration. However, this analogy makes my point clear. The soteriological claim implies that another religious tradition, in its entirety, leaves its faithful adherents drowning (or in effect without salvation). It is just like a person who is standing on one island and tells the occupants of the other islands that they are drowning and ought to join her on her island. It would be implying that they need 'saving from' the faith of their culture. This is denigration and cannot be true primarily because, as Hick has pointed out in his books Unanswered Questions and Interpretation of Religion, if the Christian soteriological claim is true then we would expect it to be significantly better at producing saints than other faiths. There is in fact no evidence to suggest that Christianity is more advanced than other traditions.

So against the rather simplistic link of Christology and denigration I suggest that the main problem is found in exclusivist concepts of salvation. This remains within much of the Christian approach to the Jew today, which I fear could again provoke the ultimate denigration and demonization of the Jew. I suggest that if Christianity wishes to combat anti-Judaism then it must re-examine its soteriology.

For us, who live after the Holocaust, after the collapse of Christian eschatology into Nazi genocidal destruction, profound reassessment of our whole Christian heritage becomes necessary. Although Nazis hated Christians as well as Jews, the church nevertheless must take responsibility for the perpetuation of the demonic myth of the Jew that allowed the Nazis to make them the scapegoat of their project of racial purity. This Christian tradition also promoted an antipathy in Christians, who too often felt little need to respond to the disappearance of their Jewish neighbors. We have to examine the roots of the theological patterns that fed this demonic myth of the Jew and its perpetuation, even in liberal theologies, today.

CHRISTOLOGY AND SOTERIOLOGY: ROOT CAUSES OF GENTILE CHRISTIAN ANTI-SEMITISM AND ANTI-JUDAISM #2

Jews and Christians share a common hope for the redemption humankind. Both acknowledge that personal salvation can be achieved in the here and now and that full redemption for the world is yet to come. Both await the messianic fulfilment at the end of time, whether conceived of in terms of a personal messiah or a messianic age. However, despite these similarities, there are fundamental differences Jewish and Christian concepts of salvation. Although the same terminology is often used, Christians and Jews have different frameworks into which this language fits.

A QUICK BACKGROUND OF OPPOSITE VIEWS

For Judaism, salvation is available to Jews in this life through their faithful observance of Torah. Jews prefer to use the phrase 'have a share in the world to come' rather than 'salvation'. Redemption (a share the world to come) is available through the quality of Torah-living and not through belief in a particular saviour-figure. Contrary to popular Christian stereotypes, to the Jew it is faith and not works which is the key to personal redemption in Judaism. Good deeds are important as a means to faith but they are not a substitute for it. Redemption is not earned through the quantity of good deeds but through faithfulness to G-d. One's faithfulness is measured by the degree of one's obedience to the Word of G-d. Torah (containing the commandments of G-d which are to be obeyed as an indice of one's faithfulness to G-d) is the instrument by which Jews express and demonstrates their faith in G-d. In terms of other faiths, Judaism recognizes that the righteous of all rations "have a share in the world to come". Redemption is available outside Jewish faith by faithfulness to G-d through a person's particular religious tradition. As we will see shortly Judaism stipulates that for Gentiles to become 'the righteous of the nations' there are seven laws, the Noahide Laws which are related to a non-Jew and salvation. These laws provide the minimum requirements by which non-Jews can share in the world to come.

For Christianity, traditionally, salvation is only possible through Christ. The Church believes that Jesus' death on the cross was once-for-all sacrifice that, in some mysterious sense, atoned for the sins of humanity. Traditionally, personal salvation is attained through the conscious acceptance of Christ as saviour and Lord; therefore those without Christ face eternal damnation. This is technically called an exclusivist approach to salvation. Today, however, two alternative Christian approaches to other faiths have emerged. These are the inclusivist and pluralist positions. Instead of seeing other religions as demonic, some Christians want to affirm them. There are nuances within inclusivism and pluralism, but in general it would be fair to say that inclusivists argue that the creator G-d is working through every religion. Christ is saving the adherents of other religions without them realizing. When Christians encounter a person from another faith, they are to assume that G-d is working anonymously through Christ in their lives. This is the official position of the Catholic Church. On the other hand the pluralist theologian would affirm that salvation is available apart from belief in Christ. Each religious tradition can effect salvation for its adherents if they turn from self-centredness to God-centredness. Although many Christians are sympathetic to pluralism, the official position of most Christian churches is either exclusivist or inclusivist.

JEWISH CONCEPTS OF SALVATION AND REDEMPTION

For the Jew, while redemption is a future, undisclosed hope, salvation is a gift made immediately accessible in the present. Through Jewish teachings and instructions—through Torah—a Jew becomes a ben Olam Haba (son of the world to come, i.e., member of those worthy of salvation). While Torah is the means to salvation, the measure of a person's worth is not the quantity but the quality of Torah living. Some people attain in one moment of self-sacrifice what it takes others a lifetime to achieve. Faith rather than works is primary as the story of Elazar teen Durdia makes clear. Elazar teen Durdia was a well-known reprobate who frequented every house of ill repute. Once after traveling far to a famous courtesan he was moved to repent and cried aloud until his heart broke and he died. A heavenly voice at once declared, 'Rabbi Elazar ben Durdia is a ben Olam Haba'. In amazement Rabbi Judah the Prince remarked: 'Not merely is a penitent accepted into the world to come but he is also called rabbi' (TB Ta'anit 16a). The highest merit a person can acquire depends on the movements of faith, not on quantitative accumulation of deeds.

Judaism posits a subtle connection between personal salvation and national redemption.

Transformed human beings do become the basis for God's gracious redeeming acts as seen on a corporate level. Joshua ben Levi living in a time of Roman domination and suffering under Roman siege once demanded when the Messiah would come. The answer was given through Psalm 95:7 "Today, if only you would harken to God's voice" (TB Sanhedrin 98a). A world obedient to G-d is a world in which messianic fulfillment is more possible. A Hasidic rabbi once commented on 1 Samuel 20:27, "Why has not the son of Jesse come ...either yesterday or today?" (Martin Buber, Tales of the Hasidim). The messianic redemption has not occurred because we today are no different from what we were yesterday. Personal acceptance of religious responsibility becomes the prerequisite for God's redemption of the entire national body.

The Jew does not earn either salvation or redemption, but Jewish deeds are understood as the preparation for each. Torah prepares an individual to turn in faith to G-d; the turning of individuals to G-d prepares the way for God's gracious act of redemption. The stress in Judaism is on discovering opportunities in personal life for the response of faith and opportunities in political life for God's reaching out of redemptive power. This emphasis on the need to create opportunities, to prepare the way for both human response and divine activity, helps explain why Jews find the existence of the modern State of Israel so important in the context of both salvation and redemption. The Jewish State is first and foremost a spiritual opportunity. Within its borders a Jew can experience an all-embracing Jewish life. Sabbaths and holidays, laws regarding the land of Israel itself, communal obligations and social injunctions from Torah can be fulfilled and observed in a Jewish political setting. Zionism is not a human attempt to usurp the divine prerogative. It rather offers a unique opportunity for faithful turning to G-d and the unique challenge of constructing a political system ready to respond to the divine redemptive act. Modern statehood is thus neither the fulfillment of messianic hopes nor a substitute individual salvation. It is rather a reflection of modern political realities which dictate that neither salvation nor redemption can be possible without a concrete framework of Jewish existence, a framework which must be assured in these post-Holocaust days by a secure national body and communal structure.

Christians in dialogue with Jews often confuse this emphasis on the need for concrete opportunities in which personal salvation and national redemption can take place with a humanistic arrogance on the part of Jewish people. True ecumenical sharing can begin only when the spiritual element of the Jewish hope for salvation and redemption is clearly understood. Christians need to realize that Judaism stresses deeds as a means to faith, not as substitutes for it. Salvation is made possible because G-d graciously gave a Torah in which opportunities for a faithful turning to G-d are numerous (613 opportunities for obedience). The Jew does not earn salvation by multiplying large quantities of sterile actions. Only one action, faithfully performed, is sufficient. God's grace, however, has made the faithful turning possible through the instrument of Torah which was given to man to delineate the many opportunities G-d provided to bring the practical and the divine into unity and realization.

A second important issue in the Christian-Jewish discussion concerns life in an unredeemed world. The Jew refuses to acknowledge that this world of war and tension is God's promised redemption. The biblical messianic expectations are still unfulfilled from the Jewish point of view. Life in an unredeemed world, however, does not preclude individual salvation. The Jew finds personal self-fulfillment possible even in a world which is not yet touched by God's final act of political and social redemption.

Lastly, the Torah presents the child of G-d with opportunities for turning to G-d in salvific faith. All human beings, however, are graced with opportunities of their own. At the very least the seven divine instructions given to Noah provide non-Jews with such opportunities. A basic Jewish presupposition is that the righteous from all nations inherit the world to come (cf. TB Sanhedrin 105a). While redemption may be national and particular, salvation because it is individual and personal is universal. The Jew denies salvation to no human being. Religious traditions may vary, but salvation is possible for the non-Jew no less than for the Jew.

THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN SIN AND REDEMPTION

For Jews, the view that the six million victims murdered by the Nazis went directly from Hitler's ovens to eternal hell-fire is morally offensive. It must be noted that the Christian's teaching of the certainty of damnation without faith in Jesus is understood not as a function of the individual's sin but rather as a fate preordained by the sin of Adam, whose fall and guilt is carried by all human beings at birth, making them worthy of hell even before they have had a chance to sin at all. Judaism rejects such a concept of original sin.

Judaism, too, takes sin very seriously. From the beginning, the Hebrew Bible documents man's recurring disobedience to the commands of G-d and the punishments meted out to him as a result of his disobedience as a consequence of his choice. It is true that Judaism does not interpret the sin of Adam to mean that every subsequent human being starts his life with the verdict of guilty entered against him. Nevertheless, the Bible as well as subsequent Jewish history, shows that sin is an ever-present human temptation to which we succumb far too often. The prophets of Israel interpret the various calamities that befell the people of Israel as the result of the people's sin. Similarly, the rabbis interpreted the destruction of the Second Temple in 70 CE as resulting from Israel's sin.

It is further true that sacrifice plays an important role in the forgiveness of sin. The Temple in Jerusalem, built on the spot where Abraham prepared to sacrifice his son Isaac until commanded, at the last moment, not to do so, was and remains the holiest spot on earth for Jews. It is plain to any reader of the Pentateuch that G-d commandeered a whole system of sacrifices to play a role in the atonement of sin. Because this is so, there is no doubt that the destruction of the Temple in 70 CE (not to speak of the earlier destruction) was a great problem for Judaism. What effect would the discontinuation of the sacrifices have on Israel's relationship with G-d? Could sins be forgiven without sacrifices? Could Judaism survive in exile, without a Temple and with Jews living in many different countries?

Before going any further, we must now speak of the traditional Christian explanation of how the death of Jesus took the place of the sacrifices offered in the temple so that no further temple sacrifice has been needed since this final sacrifice. This view is most clearly expressed in Hebrews 9:13-14, where we are told:

For if the blood of goats and bulls and the sprinkled ashes of a heifer have power to hallow those who have been defiled and restore their external purity, how much greater is the power of the blood of Christ, a spiritual and eternal sacrifice; and his blood will cleanse our conscience from the deadness of our former ways and fit us for the service of the living G-d.

The argument is that the sacrifices brought in the Temple had only limited efficacy because they had to be repeated periodically, while the death of Jeus (as a sacrifice) was perfect and was therefore the sacrifice to end all sacrifice.

Judaism rejects this view on simple grounds. The G-d of Israel forbids human sacrifice. Again and again, in the Hebrew Bible, G-d condemns the sacrificing of children to Moloch with particular vehemence (e.g., Leviticus 18:21, 20:2-5 among others). While God's command to Abraham to sacrifice Isaac perhaps established in principle God's right to demand human sacrifice, his last-minute intervention established his firm desire that not human beings but animals be sacrificed to him. Once this is grasped, it becomes impossible for the faith of Israel to accept the account of a human sacrifice as conforming to the will of G-d. It can be argued that the death of Jesus was not a sacrifice in the sense in which human sacrifice is forbidden, since it was voluntary on his part and those who killed him did not do so for the sake of bringing a sacrifice. But if that is so, then the death of Jesus can only be considered a sacrifice metaphorically and cannot substitute for, and certainly cannot terminate, the sacrifices specifically commanded by G-d in the Hebrew Bible. Many Jews and Christians see the reestablishment of the State of Israel as the beginning of the redemption of the Jewish people as foretold by the prophets of Israel.

These same prophets foretold the rebuilding of the Temple and resumption of the sacrifices (e.g., Zechariah 14:21, Isaiah 60:7, Malachi 3:1-4), a resumption for which traditional Jews have prayed since the time of the destruction.

- Zech 14:21
- 21 Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be holiness unto the LORD of hosts: and all they that sacrifice shall come and take of them, and seethe therein: and in that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the house of the LORD of hosts.
- Isa 60:7
- 7 All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister unto thee: they shall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the house of my glory.
- Mal 3:1-4
  - 1 Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me: and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the LORD of hosts.
  - 2 But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' soap:
  - 3 And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.
  - 4 Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the LORD, as in the days of old, and as in former years.

These prophecies in themselves indicate that the Hebrew Bible never envisioned any event that would make the reestablishment of the sacrifices in Jerusalem unnecessary, and if this is so, then the death of Jesus cannot be considered the sacrifice to end all sacrifice.

Nevertheless, the seriousness of sin and the need for its forgiver remain. For the Christian mind, this is accomplished by the death Jesus. How does Judaism deal with this problem?

It does so through the idea of repentance. It is the basic teaching of G-d in the Hebrew Bible that G-d does not will the death of the wicked but their repentance (Jeremiah 18:1-10). Ezekiel 18:21-23 expresses this most clearly:

It may be that a wicked man gives up his sinful ways and keeps all my laws, doing what is just and right. That man shall live; he shall not die. None of the offenses he has committed shall be remembered against him; he shall live because of his righteous deeds. Have I any desire, says the Lord G-d, for the death of a wicked man?

Would I not rather that he should mend his ways and live?

Repentance involves recognizing that one has done wrong, being sorry for having done so, and asking G-d sincerely to forgive one's sins. Any Jew who does so will be forgiven by G-d.

REPENTANCE OR SACRIFICE?

Many scholars consider repentance a higher and more spiritual relationship to G-d than the offering of sacrifice. Frequently, the great prophets of the Hebrew Bible criticized those who brought sacrifices while continuing their evil deeds (e.g., Amos 5:21-22).

- Amos 5:21-22
- 21 I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies.
- 22 Though ye offer me burnt offerings and your meat offerings, I will not accept them: neither will I regard the peace offerings of your fat beasts.

The conclusion that many Christian scholars draw from the prophetic denunciations of sacrifice without repentance (repentance not only means saying you sorry, but also changing your conduct) was that the prophets considered sacrifice primitive and unnecessary. This is not the case at all! The truth is that the prophets denounced sacrifice without repentance, but they deeply respected sacrifice combined with repentance. The prophets had the highest respect for the Temple and its divinely ordained sacrifices, and expressed great sadness about the time after the exile when Israel could no longer fulfill its sacrificial obligations (Hosea 9:4).

- Hosea 9:4
- 4 They shall not offer wine offerings to the LORD, neither shall they be pleasing unto him: their sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners; all that eat thereof shall be polluted: for their bread for their soul shall not come into the house of the LORD.

But that time came, and while we reject the view that the prophets considered sacrifice unnecessary even while the Temple stood, we cannot overlook the emphasis that the prophets laid on repentance.

It is perhaps in Psalm 51:18-21 that the matter is best summed up. The Psalm starts with the expression of a sense of sin which weighs heavily on the writer. He begs G-d to cleanse him of his sin and then continues:

For thou delightest not in a sacrifice that I would bring; thou hast no pleasure in burnt offering. The sacrifices of G-d are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart, O G-d, Thou wilt not despise. Do good in thy favor unto Zion; build thou the walls of Jerusalem. Then wilt thou delight in the sacrifices of righteousness, in burnt offering and whole offering; then will they offer bullocks upon shine altar.

When sacrifice is possible it is necessary, though useless without repentance (thee 'broken spirit' and 'wounded heart'). When sacrifice is nor possible, G-d forgives those who sincerely repent. This is a message few Christians today have heard or undersand.

Judaism thus looks to G-d for forgiveness. In his infinite mercy G-d waits for man's return to him through repentance and obedience, and when this happens, G-d forgives all his sins. The rabbis taught that not only are the sins of a repentant sinner forgiven, they are turned into virtuous deeds. So great is the power of repentance.

THE SEVEN LAWS OF THE CHILDREN OF NOAH

Judaism allows for genuine faith in G-d to exist in other religious traditions. There has always been a positive attitude to those people who were referred to as 'God-fearers'. Although pre-existing since the time of Noah, it was during the second and third centuries CE, possibly as a reaction to Christian views of mission and salvation, that Judaism formulated a strict code of practice to clearly define how a non-Jew can attain redemption. The Seven Laws of Noah, the Gentiles being the children of Noah, were formulated. These seven Laws of Noah are believed to be inherent in human nature:

- With respect to God's commandments, all of humanity is divided into two general classifications: the Children of Israel and the Children of Noah.
- The Children of Israel are the Jews, the descendants of the Patriarch Jacob. They are commanded to fulfill the 613 Commandments of the Torah.
- The Children of Noah comprise the seventy original nations of world and their branches. They are commanded concerning the Seven Universal Laws, also known as the Seven Laws of the Children of Noah or the Seven Noahide Laws. These Seven Universal Laws pertain to idolatry, blasphemy, murder, theft, sexual relations, eating limb of a living animal, and establishing courts of law.
- All Seven Universal Laws are prohibitions. Do not wonder at this. Negative commandments are of a higher order than positive commandments, and their fulfillment, which takes more effort than positive commandments, earns a greater reward.
- Men and women are equal in their responsibility to observe seven commandments.
- It is a matter of dispute as to when a person becomes responsible for his or her actions under these laws. One opinion holds that it depends on the intellectual development of the individual. According to opinion, as soon as a child has attained the maturity to understand meaning and significance of the Seven Universal Laws, he is obliged to the fullest extent of the law. The other opinion is that a boy reaches the age of legal responsibility at his thirteenth birthday and a girl at her twelfth birthday.
- The Children of Noah are permanently warned concerning Seven Universal Laws. This means that ignorance of the law is no valid defense. One cannot claim, for example, that he did not know that idolatry was one of the seven commandments. Nor can he claim that he did not know that bowing down to an idol constitutes idolatry. (He can, however, claim that he did not know that such-and-such was an idol, for this is not ignorance of the law.) Therefore, one is duty bound to study the Seven Universal Laws to the best of one's ability and to teach the knowledge of them to one's children.
- When one of the Children of Noah resolves to fulfill the Seven Universal Commandments, his or her soul is elevated. This person becomes one of the Chasidei Umot ha-Olam, the Pious Ones of the Nations, and receives a share of the Eternal World. The Holy Scriptures call one who accepts the yoke of fulfilling the Seven Universal Laws a ger toshav, a proselyte of the gate. This person is permitted to live in the Land of Israel and to enter the Holy Temple in Jerusalem and to offer sacrifices to the G-d of Israel.

CHRISTIAN CONCEPTS OF SALVATION

Salvation is described in the New Testament through a variety of images. Jesus' proclamation that salvation was at hand was always woven into his teaching of the kingdom of G-d. For Jesus salvation has a religious and communal, individual and social dimension. It is both a present and future reality. After Passover (Easter) the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ becomes the dominant image of salvation. The Golgotha event became identified with salvation. But nobody had noticed that salvation was at hand already! Hans Ucko, the Executive Secretary for Christian-Jewish relations for the World Council of Churches says "Although salvation takes place in history— 'suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried'—it yet happens without and outside any human involvement. Those people who contribute actively to the death of Jesus are extras, spectators at a cosmic drama of salvation where there is no room for any human contribution. We are invited to collect the fruits of salvation, but we are unable to share with the Saviour in his saving act. Suddenly, without our knowing it, the table of salvation is set before humanity."

Judaism accords a major role for the Jewish people in the drama of salvation. Israel is to contribute to it. The salvation offered by G-d to Israel takes place in history, but Israel must not only look upon it as a spectator; Israel must be prepared, and equipped, to play their part. When the angel of G-d passes over the homes of the Israelites, it is because they have prepared themselves for salvation by spreading the blood of the lamb on the door-posts (prepared themselves for salvation by prior obedience)! When with his strong and powerful hand the Lord saves the people from the power of Egypt, the people are prepared to let salvation take place. They have given thought to what they are to bring along for their salvation. Bread for the way. As it turned out they could not wait until it was leavened. They take the kneading bowls in their mantles on their shoulders. They bring along their belongings and go out of Egypt, and salvation, takes place. In the desert of Sinai salvation takes place as Israel lifts the Torah upon its shoulders. Israel simply stands by. Salvation is Israel going out of Egypt and into the world with the Torah scrolls on its shoulders. Without the words of Israel, 'All that the Lord has spoke we will do' (Exod. 19:8), there would be no salvation.

Thus salvation in the Jewish tradition is not primarily a theological concept, related to a theological understanding of the human predicament. Salvation in the Jewish tradition is not primarily deliverance from sin and sinfulness and fallen world, or an antidote to original sin. Salvation in the Jewish tradition is not an escape of striving towards the Beyond as we remove ourselves from the present reality of this world with its many problems needing a remedy only we can bring. The earth is not an alien place where human beings do not belong and from which we need escape (rapture). Salvation means being set free to be involved in this world through obedience to Torah commands whereby we help perfect the imperfect and fix the broken, because there is none other, only this earth which is part of God's creation.

In the tradition of the church there are several ways of interpreting the concept of salvation. One sees salvation as the process by which human beings, through the death and resurrection of Christ, are restored to the image and likeness of G-d. Another focuses on the distinctive significance of Christ's death as expiation for human sin. Christ dies for our sins; the forgiveness of our sins is the result of death. Our debts are wiped out. Christ came to repair the damage caused by Adam and to make us, as it were, go back to square one, back to Eden. The going back to Eden leans on a tradition, well document from the middle ages but probably older. Here salvation is deliverance. We are being lifted out of life, freed from a corrupt world, where violence reigns and poverty, hunger and disease are rampant. Salvation means the possibility to enjoy a heavenly kingdom beyond and away from this 'vale of tears'. Salvation becomes something separate from ordinary human life, a distinctive religious phenomenon. Such images of salvation as the regaining of a lost state of mind, a lost paradise or the return to Eden, are utopian. They have little to do with liberation and injustice, from hunger and thirst, from nakedness and imprisonment. Such a Christian interpretation of the work of Christ turns the attention of Christians to the past instead of orienting them for the present and future. Such a Gentile Christian concept of salvation contradicts the meaning the Bible gives to the intervention of G-d. When G-d intervenes, he does not re-establish or restore, but he creates anew. God's interventions in history are meant to bring about a new humanity, making us truly human, our becoming what we are supposed to be, 'the image of G-d', in communion with our Creator.

Salvation as liberation is yet another interpretation of salvation, based on the heritage from the Jewish tradition which sees salvation as involvement. In Christian thinking the attention is turned to the person of the earthly Jesus, his preaching, action and religious attitudes. Following Jesus is "salvation". Salvation concerns the whole person, has to do with social justice, is liberation from oppression and exploitation. Salvation is a total event and embraces society and social structures. Ethics and salvation are interlinked.

In the Jewish tradition salvation is dependent on conversion and a life in accordance with the Torah. The aim of salvation is the creation of a holy people marked by righteousness and peace. The rabbis said that creation was not really completed until Israel, saved from Egypt, received the Torah in Sinai, and shouldered the yoke of the kingdom of heaven and walked away as a people of G-d, assigned to be instruments of peace and righteousness. When the people at the foot of Mount Sinai say, 'All that the Lord has spoken we will do', they signal their preparedness to mirror G-d in the world. Because of that affirmation now salvation is at hand.

In the church there have been at least two ways of interpreting the mission of Jesus as a way to salvation, two dominant Christologies among many others, with two distinct emphases. One was to follow and imitate what Yeshua taught and lived and the other was to be "saved" by what Yeshua the Christ did for those who believed in him as raised from the dead. In shorthand, the former could be called the "teaching Yeshua" and the latter the "taught Christ" or the "Christ of faith".

SACRIFICE: THE RESTORATION OF HUMANITY'S RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

At the heart of Judaism and Christianity lies some notion of sacrifice. In both traditions sacrifice provides a symbol for connecting a person to G-d: it makes possible repentance and a restored relationship with G-d. Jewish and Christian notions of sacrifice and salvation were affected by the destruction of the Temple in 70 CE. This event provided a key shift in their understanding of atonement. For Judaism, sacrifice was not necessarily to be viewed as an external religious ritual but a matter of the heart—in line with the biblical prophetic tradition. For Christianity, Jesus became the sacrifice which replaced all Temple sacrifices. Christ's death became the sacrifice which provides for personal repentance.

The point of departure between the early Jewish Christians and Pharisaic Judaism was twofold. Firstly, the Christians made Jesus' death the atoning sacrifice; and secondly, they made it universal in scope rather than particular:

The link between the Jewish and Christian views of atonement lies in the concept of sacrifice. The notion of sacrifice seems very distant from most modern Western people, but that may be because they do not understand its purpose. Many people seem to view cultic sacrifice as a practice of superstitious primitive peoples who think that their gifts can placate the divine wrath or make up for their sins. Viewed as such, sacrifice indicates an amoral understanding of God's justice and human guilt.

However, this interpretation misunderstands the nature and purpose of sacrifice. Primarily, it is neither propitiation of the gods' anger nor satisfaction for sin but sacrifice is a medium whereby the worshippers are related to the divine, a 'ferry-boat between heaven and earth'. This is true of all religions that have used sacrifice, including the religion of ancient Israel. They performed sacrifices as part of the process of atonement, but they did not believe that their sins were magically removed when an animal was slaughtered on the altar, as if something took place that made their own moral actions irrelevant. Dear Christian, if this was the belief of the first followers of Yeshua it should also be our belief as well. That means we need to focus on a renewed value for repentance in a believer's life in response to the Commandments of G-d. Sacrifice was understood as the ritual that symbolically connected the sacrificer to their G-d (the animal on the altar was symbolic of the sacrificer's soul on the altar, which could only be there because the sacrificer had previously repented and made himself right with G-d and his fellowman). Such was an external witness to all of effective repentance and right standing before G-d. Sacrifice is not then to be viewed as an alternative to repentance but as that which makes sacrifice and right standing with G-d possible. Godfrey Ashby noted that 'expiatory sacrifice should never be seen as a rival to other means of response, such as expressions of repentance, but as the provided vehicle for confession and reparation.' Sacrificial acts show the penitence of the sinner and give concrete expression to his or her desire to repent (it is an external work that demonstrates an internal work). In this way, the sacrifice is part of the process whereby the sinner is reconciled to G-d.

This understanding of the process of atonement did not change when the Second Temple was destroyed in 70 CE. The Jews soon realized that they would somehow have to preserve their religion without the temple sacrifices. The rabbis turned to the fact that sacrifice was never effective as an external rite in itself without repentance and the internal work within a man's heart, as if it could automatically cleanse people apart from their own repentance. Atonement cannot be effective without the genuine expression of sorrow for sin and a sincere desire to reform. The rabbis, in absence of the Temple and the external demonstration of one's internal repentance as seen in sacrifice, therefore put forward the view that atonement is still possible through the individual confession of sins and repentance as it always had, apart from any cultic ritual or priestly sacrifice. Some changes were necessary, and Scriptural authority for such changes can be found in Deut. 17. The high priest no longer confesses for the people on Yom Kippur; now it is the duty of all Jews to confess their own sins. This confession is no longer externalized in ritual form with animal sacrifices but in deeds of lovingkindness done for one's neighbor. The way to this life of righteousness and love is to be found through following the Torah.

The rabbis supported this view by quoting the prophet's words that 'G-d desires mercy and not sacrifices'. However, this is not meant to imply a rejection of sacrifice as such. One should realize that, when the prophets said G-d took no delight in the offerings of Israel, this was only a rejection of sacrifice performed without the right intention. 'The call from the prophets is to perform sacrifice, not to abolish it. It is sacrifice emptied of its content and detached from its context (contrite heart) that is denounced by prophets and psalmists. To have condemned all offering of sacrifice would have been, in effect, to have condemned all public worship.

Likewise, in quoting the prophets, the rabbis were not claiming that sacrifice was immoral or undesirable. They were simply trying to deal with a situation in which they could no longer offer sacrifices, which forced them to reconsider the deeper understandings of atonement. Therefore, they stressed the human intention to repent that underlay the sacrifice and that remains in effect even without the ability to sacrifice which was imposed upon them from without.

This does not mean that the idea of sacrifice has completely disappeared from Judaism. The prayer service itself was constructed as a form of sacrifice so that, as the rabbis said (quoting Hos. 14:2), 'we will offer the fruit of our lips'. Furthermore, traditional Judaism looks forward to a restoration of physical sacrifice in the new Jerusalem, demonstrating that the cult had a role that has remained unfulfilled since the destruction of the temple. Michael Wyschogrod has claimed that the cultic aspect of Judaism cannot be replaced by ethical and rational categories, because a religion must make it possible for the holy to appear to the believer' as it does in cultic worship. Without the cult, the 'personal relationship with the lawgiver' is lost. In his view, Judaism has retained sacrifice as part of the process of atonement, in that the commemoration of the cult (which includes the hope for its renewal) is 'itself a form of the practice of the cult'. There is a sense, then, in which Judaism has continued to be a religion of sacrifice, even though sacrifice is no longer offered physically. Repentance requires some form of 'sacrifice' as its external expression, just as sacrifice requires repentance as its internal basis. Neither can exist without the other.

Sacrifice is also essential to the Christian concept of atonement. The first Christians were Jews who were familiar with the temple cult in Jerusalem as the means of atonement. Therefore, it is not altogether strange that they applied the language of sacrifice to the death of Jesus. They believed that Jesus was like the high priest at the temple, interceding with G-d on their behalf, making a holy offering to overcome the gap that separated them from G-d. Like the high priest, Jesus did not provide a substitution for their own moral efforts to atone for their sins (failure of the second Tablet of the Law). Like other Jews, the first Christians believed their own repentance was essential to appropriate the value of the sacrifice. This does not mean that they thought the purpose of Jesus' sacrifice was merely to prompt them to repent; rather, they believed his sacrifice provided the external form (just as animal sacrifices had done previously) in which their desire to repent and be forgiven was expressed.

In the Christian view, Jesus' sacrifice and human repentance are inseparable, so atonement occurs in one's own personal appropriation of Jesus' work. The Christian identifies with Jesus' work through faith in him; hence, one's own obedience and suffering is included in acceptance of his suffering on one's behalf. Jesus is in this sense not a substitute for us, who acts without our participation, but a representative of us who reconnects us to G-d. The first Christians believed sacrifice requires our response of repentance to be effective, just as repentance requires sacrifice. The two are concurrent in early Christian thought just as they are in Judaism, because the Christian view evolved out of the Jewish concept of sacrifice.

Although the Christian view of atonement was rooted in Judaism, there were still differences in the way the doctrine developed in the two traditions. One obvious difference between the sacrifice of Jesus and that offered by the high priest is that the former offered up his own life as the sacrifice. One might claim that this idea clearly separates the Christian view of atonement from the Jewish view, but this is not strictly true. The idea that one may suffer (suffer and not die) for the sins of another is found already in Isaiah 52-53, the "suffering servant" poem to which early Christians so often referred. Even before Jesus' lifetime, other Jewish writings proposed the idea that the death of martyrs could atone for the sins of Israel (notice atone for Israel and not Brazil or Spain). The idea was developed more extensively during the period of persecution in the first and second centuries CE.; one can find numerous references to it in the Jewish literature of the times. It was believed that the righteous ones who die for their faith not only cleanse themselves from sin but are also able to intercede with G-d on behalf of all Israel. In this sense, their lives are a sacrifice for the sins of others. Even though this idea was formulated most explicitly in texts written after Jesus' lifetime, it did not appear then for the first time, so it is probable that the early Christians were familiar with it. The belief in the atoning power of Jesus' death, then, is not cordant with Judaism, for it evolved out of a Jewish understanding of martyrdom as a form of representative atonement.

YET THERE ARE DIFFERENCES

In spite of this similarity, however, there were two crucial differences that separated the early Christian conception of atonement from ideas of other Jews: it made the death of one individual the central act of atonement, and it made this atonement universal in scope.

First, by making the death of Jesus central, Christians separated themselves from those Jews who either had no personal relationship to Jesus or could not see why he had to be the central means of salvation from sin. Christians claimed that Jesus was central to salvation because he was the messiah, but this claim involved a view of the messiah that was very different from the typical Jewish view. In the view of most us, the messiah was to be the agent of God's rescue of Israel from suffering, not one who atoned for their sins. Christians, however, viewed the mission of the messiah as sacrificial, first and foremost. Only through his death and resurrection could he redeem Israel. By interpreting the concept of the messiah and applying it to Jesus in this way, the first Christians gave a significance to his death above all other atoning sacrifices.

Second, the messianic significance attributed to Jesus' death led to the view that the atonement he brought is universal in scope. The first Christians expanded the message of salvation beyond the boundaries of Israel in that Jesus was said to have died for the sins of everyone in the world. It was this idea that made the mission to the gentiles possible, and very soon the idea was being translated into terms that made sense to them. There were already many popular myths of gods who die and are reborn to bring new life to the world, and the gentiles may have understood Jesus' death in such mythic terms.

At the same time, we should realize that the sacrificial concept of Jesus' death was not developed in response to gentiles ideas but, rather, as a Jewish conception of the righteous one who reconciles us to G-d by his sacrifice of suffering and death. Although the centrality and universality attributed to Jesus' death distinguished Christian views firm those of non-Christian Jews, these ideas did not negate the Jewish form and content of their understanding of his sacrifice. If we do not understand the Christian view of atonement as originally Jewish, we cannot explain its development within the primarily Jewish community of the early Christians.

WAS THE HOLOCAUST G-D'S PUNISHMENT ON THE JEW FOR REJECTING YESHUA AS "THE" MESSIAH?

There is a huge difference between consequence and punishment. If a parent tells their child not to play with matches, for example, and still the child does, the harm which follows is the consequence of disobedience. The parent has not burned the child, the child has burned him or her self.

Throughout history, G-d warned the Jewish people that their disobedience would remove them from His protection. The consequence would be that they would be attacked and removed from their land. After the destruction of the Temple in 70 CE, the Jews were scattered among the nations. They remained in Diaspora (dispersion) for almost 1900 years. In these last days, G-d is bringing them home, back to safety and under His protection.

Unfortunately, during this time of scattering, the Gentile Church took it upon herself to inflict punishment upon the Jews for their crime of 'crucifying Christ'. Not only that, but there also arose a theology of expectation which stated that the Jews deserved what they got. This mentality caused Christians to remain silent whenever Jews suffered. We witnessed the climax of this silence during the Holocaust and even today many will say: "Well, they had it coming!"

Our responsibility as followers of Yeshua, is to help the afflicted and to comfort Jerusalem and her people. We are called to have mercy, to heal and restore, rather than adding to the affliction. The Jews have never suffered so much as they have at the hands of the Church. Throughout history, Jews were given the option of "conversion" to a pagan system of religion called "Christianity," or death. The Jews, faithful to God's holiness, chose death. If we did nothing but comfort them for the next 2000 years, it would not be enough. It is up to G-d to discipline His children in whichever way He chooses. We are always called to intercede, comfort, and mind our own business.

- "If anyone attacks you, it will not be my doing; whoever attacks you will surrender to you". Isaiah 54:15
- "For they persecute those whom you have struck down, and those whom you have wounded, they attack still more". Psalm 69:26 (RSV)
- "For they pursue and persecute him whom you have smitten, and they gossip about those whom you have wounded, adding to their grief and pain." Psalm 69:26 (Amplified Bible)
- "You should not look down on your brother in the day of his misfortune, nor rejoice over the people of Judah in the day of their destruction, nor boast so much in the day of their trouble. You should not march through the gates of my people in the day of their disaster, nor look down on them in their calamity in the day of their disaster, nor seize their wealth. You should not wait at the crossroads to cut down their fugitives, nor hand over their survivors in the day of their trouble. The day of the Lord is near for all nations. As you have done, it will be done to you..." Obadiah 1:12-15
- "This is what the Lord Almighty says: 'I am very jealous for Jerusalem and Zion, but I am very angry with the nations that feel secure. I was only a little angry, but they added to the calamity'''. Zechariah 1:14,15

It is not my intention to deal with this matter at this time, as I have done so elsewhere in this website as well as others, but the real Jewish Scriptures and prophecies were not fulfilled and in the absence of them being fulfilled the Jews could not any longer believe in the Messiahship of Yeshua. Falsifying them as has been done in the Christian's Bible and creating "false fulfilled prophecies" as also have been done does not make Yeshua the Messiah. This is a very difficult subject for the Christian to begin to study; but once the Christian learns how his Bible has been falsified when compared with the true Jewish Masoretic text, he should stop immediately and begin an immediate and intense study into the truths concerning Yeshua and who he really was and what his mission really was.

Finally, we cannot close this issue without mentioning the infamous scripture which is used to justify the slaughter of Jews throughout the last two millennia: "And all the people answered, 'Let his blood be upon us and on our children.'" Matthew 27:25. What millions of Christians fail to realize is that those words, if really spoken at all, were by a few involved in mob violence in the dead of the night while the multitudes who had just thrown their prayer shawls at his feet at his entry into Jerusalem slept. Scholars who know better than you and I, and who do manuscript studies, tell us that this terrible passage, along with others, are fake and introduced into the "Jesus story" at a later date to serve their own theological interests. Even it were true, it is a good thing that G-d doesn't always keep us at our word! I think we can all be grateful for that. A few hours after some of the Jews might have even possibly said those infamous words, Yeshua was nailed to a vertical stake (not a cross) where the love of G-d would cause him to say: "Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing." Luke 23:34

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH...THE TRUTH ABOUT ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #1

As a Christian you hear others often speak about Isaiah 53 and make connection with Jesus as if this passage was prophetic for Jesus. In fact, often you may encounter questions from Jews referring to Isaiah chapter 53 who are involved in or considering Christianity. And definitely when evangelizing others or in attempting to convert the Jew to Christianity one chapter is the main topic of the Christian's focus and conversation. Among these questions, one chapter from the Old Testament of our Christian Bible keeps coming up: Isaiah 53. Before we examine Isaiah 53 verse by verse some preliminary issues must be considered and affirmations made.

The Book of Isaiah contain four passages commonly known as the Servant Songs: (1) Isaiah 42:1-4, (2) Isaiah 49:1-6, (3) Isaiah 50:4-9, (4) Isaiah 52:13-53:12. Three of these four Servant Songs, Isaiah 42:1-4, Isaiah 49:1-6, and Isaiah 52:13-53:12, explicitly use the Hebrew term , ("avdi"), My servant, while in Isiah 50:4-9, such terminology does not appear at all. Yet, the description of the subject's characteristics in Isaiah 50:4-9 is so exceedingly similar to those of the one to which the other three passages refer as, (avdi), My servant, that it is included in the set of four. These four Servant Songs are considered as passages of phenomenal beauty (especially in the Hebrew language) and great religious depth. Important for us to note is that in the Fourth Servant Song (Is 52:13-53:12), commonly referred to as "Isaiah 53", all of the Jewish sages of history and even presently all agree on the identity of the servant being the righteous remnant of Israel, henceforth referred to as Israel. Consequently, "Isaiah 53" is not Jewish messianic text in the Jewish faith although it is considered as such by traditional Christianity.

By contrast, many Christians, particularly evangelical Christian, consider the Fourth Servant Song to be one of the most important Christian messianic prophecies, a so-called "proof text", in the Bible. The New Testament, with its many references to "Isaiah 53", provides for them a record of the fulfillment of the prophecy of a suffering and dying Messiah and his eventual return, triumph, and glory. Curiously, though, this is all being believed even though the common reference terms used in the Hebrew Bible for the promised Messiah, such as David, son of David, or king, are conspicuously absent from the Isaiah Hebrew texts. Moreover, a suffering and dying Messiah is not part of the traditional Jewish messianic pattern, which describes a Messiah that shows up only once, and one who will succeed in executing the messianic agenda, as it is described in the Hebrew Bible, during his reign as king of a unified Israel.

It is interesting to note that not all Christians hold this traditional view on "Isaiah 53". Some prominent Christian sources agree with the common Jewish perspective that the suffering servant in the Fourth Servant Song is collective Israel, the Jewish people. Namely, Christian Bibles, such as the New Revised Standard Version (NRSV) Bible, The New Jerusalem Bible, and The Oxford Study Bible, identify Israel as the suffering servant of "Isaiah 53".

The overall goal of this study is to determine the identity of the servant, the subject in the Fourth Servant Song. We will, by the conclusion of this study, know for certain if Isaiah 53 and God's servant is the historical Jesus or if we have mistakenly misinterpreted and misunderstood this section of the Hebrew Bible our whole lives and mistakenly identified the "Suffering Servant" as Jesus instead of the whole of the Jewish people down through history.

Isaiah 53 is only understood and interpreted properly when read in not only in the Hebrew Bible but in the context of the Hebrew Scriptures and the history of the Jewish Nation. Reading the chapter from the Hebrew/English Bible, like the Stone Edition Tanakh, while comparing line upon line and precept upon precept between the Hebrew and later Greek, Latin, and English versions, is an eye-opening experience that can change your whole life. If we do this then we see that Hebrew Scriptures in the Jewish Bible are incredibly corrupted in the later "supposed Christian translations" of the Greek, Latin, and English versions of our Bibles. What I just mentioned may be doubted by many at first but when you examine text upon text and compare the Hebrew Scriptures with the corresponding later Greek, Latin, and English "so called "translations then you will completely understand why I said it above. When undertaking the comprehensive study of Isaiah 53 from the Hebrew Bible during the 4th year of my Pastorate I began to notice things I never saw before while in Seminary; let alone ever heard coming from the pulpit.

I noticed first of all the unique position of Isaiah chapter 53 in relationship to the contexts of other Scriptures. First of all in chapter 52, for example, I noticed that Israel is described as "oppressed without cause" (v.4) and "taken away" (v.5), yet God promises Israel a brighter future ahead, one in which Israel will again prosper and be redeemed in the sight of all the nations (v.1-3, 8-12). Then I noticed that Chapter 54 further elaborates upon the redemption which awaits the nation of Israel. Speaking clearly of the Jewish people and their status (even according to all Christian commentaries), chapter 54 ends as follows: "This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord and their vindication is from Me, 'declares the Lord.'" Strangely sandwiched between these promises of a brighter future ahead for Israel and this future redemption of Israel falls a chapter that appears, according to Christianity's exegesis and interpretation for 1,800 years, to be the supposed stumbling block of the whole Jewish nation; namely, the presentation of Jesus as Israel's messiah who they have appearingly rejected for an equally long 1,800 years. This appeared odd to me that God will promise a bright future and a future redemption to a nation that rejects, again according to typical Christian interpretation, the only Salvation given mankind, both individually and corporately.

One more thing I noticed that is of great importance. In the original Hebrew texts, there are no chapter divisions, and Jewish and Christian scholars agree that chapter 53 is actually a continuation of the prophecy which begins at 52:13. Therefore our study must begin there and not at 53:1. Accordingly to the many Hebrew sources I consulted the unanimous opinion of these scholars was that one's analysis of the 53rd chapter of Isaiah must begin at that verse. 52:13 "Behold, My servant will prosper."

Notice the key word "servant" in this verse. It appears that what follows is about God's "servant"; the only problem is just whom is the true "servant": Jesus or the Nation of Israel. I would discover in my studies in Isaiah 53 that the corporate nation of Israel, numbering in the hundreds of thousands in captivity, is repeatedly referred to in the "singular tense" repeatedly by the author and is called God's "servant" throughout Isaiah, both explicitly (Isa. 41:8-9; 44:1-2; 45:4; 48:20; 49:3) and implicitly (Isa. 42:19-20; 43:10). But at other times the same author would use "plural pronouns" in describing this corporate nation of Israel as well. From previous studies had already noticed that other references to Israel as God's servant include Jer. 30:10 (note that in Jer. 30:17, the servant Israel is regarded by the nations as an outcast, forsaken by God, as in Isa. 53:4); Jer. 46:27-28; Ps. 136:22; Lk. 1:54. So before us we have the nation of Israel called by both "singular and plural" pronouns all the way between Isa. 40 through Isa. 66. Not only that the corporate nation is repeatedly not only described by both "singular" and "plural" pronouns but called God's "servant" over and over again. In spite of this evidence Christianity maintains that these verses are about one sole individual who lives some 2,000 years ago and died on a old rugged cross as an atonement for the sins of mankind. Should one approach this chapter with the preformed idea that all singular references between Isa. 44-66 are intended to refer to but one person then he would be making a serious miscalculation as to the intent of the author. So with this as a background we need to give serious attention and study to this "Servant of God" in Isaiah 53 in order to determine for certain if these passages we read in our Christian Bibles today originally meant to refer to a "single" person or if they were originally meant to refer to a "corporate nation" as God's "servant". In such a study we will get to see with our own eyes how the Hebrew Scriptural texts were tragically and pathetically altered by later Roman monks to change the entire focus and message of Isaiah the Prophet.

We now begin our serious examination of Isaiah chapter 53 where we will see with our own eyes that the Jewish people and their scholars had always had the understanding that Isaiah 53 was understood as referring to the whole of the Jewish people all along. It's not an idea invented by Rashi in the Middle Ages. Most interesting are the scattered comments of early Church fathers like Origen who reports that this "corporate understanding" of Israel as the subject of Isaiah 53 was the Jewish understanding in his time, hundreds of years before Rashi (Contra Celsum). Not only will we see that Origen is correct but our eyes will be opened to the fact that Rome and early Church Fathers will borrow from the ancient Spiritual Wisdom, the ancient Spiritual allegories, Divine metaphors, and Sacred Wisdom myths of the nations concerning the "descending and dying rising gods and goddesses" (called Krst/Karest/Christ). It is these gods and goddesses, symbolic for and personifying the Divine One God, who, incarnating into "matter" and the "flesh of humanity", were interpreted as having "died" on the "cross of matter and Spirit/Energy" for mankind; a god whom you could experience by eating his flesh. You can read all about this radical reinterpretation of the Hebrew Scriptures in our websites; especially when we deal with comparative religions in our studies of the mythologies of Mithra, Osiris, Krishna, Tammuz, Adonis, Dionysus, Bacchus, Isis, etc.. It is in such a study that we find the unbelievable parallels between the ancient Sacred Divine Spiritual Wisdom which was always understood to be allegorical of the descent of both Soul and Christ and the later Roman "literal" reinterpretation of it where it become the very foundation for Rome's later "literal" and "historical" account of their "Jesus Story". Such a descent of God as Divine Mind into "matter" through His "Christ" for the salvation and Spiritual evolution of the previously incarnated Soul, was lifted by Rome from Divine Allegory and moved into the realm of "literalism" and "supposed history" and such "literalized concepts" were written into and backwards and read into and interpreted into the earlier Hebrew Texts which later deceptively become Scriptures and quotes in Rome's New Testament. You can read all about this Roman plagiarism and reinterpretation of the ancient Spiritual Wisdom of the Soul in the mythologies of Mithra, Osiris, Krishna, Tammuz, Adonis, Dionysus, Bacchus, Isis, etc. All of this has played a huge part in Christianity approaching the Hebrew Scriptures over the last 1,800 years and reading Isa. 53 and interpreting the texts as referring to a dying god for our sins when in fact nothing could be further from the truth as we shall now see beyond any doubt.

We at Bet Emet Ministries hope to assist you, the "truth-seeker", in correctly interpreting a chapter in our Christian Bible which has become a cornerstone of Christian theology; a chapter which complete misunderstood and misinterpreted by mainline Christianity today for over 1,800 years.

Answer for yourself: Wasn't the Prophet Isaiah, in fact, referring to Jesus in the 53rd chapter of Isaiah?

Answer for yourself: And didn't all Jews before the Middle Ages recognize this chapter as "messianic"? If so, as we hear from many Christian authors, then why don't the Jewish people, their Rabbis and scholars of their own Scriptures accept Jesus as their Messiah today?

Answer for yourself: After reading these articles please answer for yourself: should Isaiah 53 be used in such a manner any longer by Christians? On with the study.

Jewish sages teach that "whoever saves a single Jewish soul is considered as if he had saved an entire world." How precious is the human soul! We hope that you too will value your soul highly enough to prayerfully ponder that which follows. God's truth is not always easy to discern, but we are possessors of a Divine promise; "you will find Him if you search after Him with all your heart and all your soul" (Deut. 4:29). As faithful child of God you know that it's worth the effort. And now - on with the search!

Before engaging in an examination of Isaiah 53 itself, some preliminary issues must be considered.

First is the issue of circular reasoning. Even if we interpret the chapter as most Christians do (forgetting for a minute the mistranslations and distortions of context which will be noted below in the following articles), the most that could be said is this: Isaiah 53 is about someone who dies for the sins of others.

Answer for yourself: People may have seen Jesus die, but did anyone see him die as an atonement for the sins of others?

Of course not; this is simply the meaning which the New Testament gives to his death, and that only many years later as his followers try to explain his death in light of the failure of his return as prophesied by him and others earlier. Only if you already accept the New Testament teaching that his death had a non-visible, spiritual significance can you then go back to Isaiah and say, "see - the Prophet predicted what I already believe." Isaiah 53, then, is in reality no "proof" at all, but rather a contrived confirmation for someone who has already chosen Christianity and chooses to read into the text what they wish regardless of what the Prophet intended to confer in his original message.

DID THE FOLLOWERS OF JESUS AND OTHER JEWS OF THE TIME VIEW ISAIAH 53 AS A MESSIANIC PROPHECY?

Second (and consistent with all Jewish teaching at the time), Jesus' own disciples didn't view Isaiah 53 as a messianic prophecy. For example, after Peter identifies Jesus as the Messiah (Matt. 16:16), he is informed that Jesus will be killed (Matt. 16:21). His response: "God forbid it, lord! This shall never happen to you" (Matt. 16:22). See, also, Mk. 9:31-32; Mk. 16:10-11; Jn. 20:9. Evidently this was "news" to him and something that he was not aware of as an adult Jew which was most assuredly familiar with his own religion.

DID JESUS VIEW ISAIAH 53 AS A MESSIANIC PROPHECY?

Even Jesus didn't see Isaiah 53 as crucial to his messianic claims - why else did he call the Jews children of the devil for not believing in him before the alleged resurrection (Jn. 8:39-47)?

Answer for yourself: And why did he later request that God "remove this cup from me" (Mk. 14:36) - didn't he know that a "removal of the cup" would violate the Gentile understanding of Isaiah 53 which his church would come to realize later after his death?

Answer for yourself: And third, even if we accept the Gentile Christian interpretation of Isaiah 53, where is it indicated (either in Isaiah 53 or anywhere else in the Hebrew Scriptures) that you must believe in this "Messiah" to get the benefits?

THE CONTEXT OF ISAIAH 53 IS COMPLETELY OVERLOOKED BY CHRISTIANS TODAY

Since any portion of Scripture is only understood properly when viewed in the context of God's revelation as a whole, some additional study will be helpful before you "tackle" Isaiah 53.

Look at the setting in which Isaiah 53 occurs. Earlier on in Isaiah, God had predicted exile and calamity for the Jewish people. Chapter 53, however, occurs in the midst of Isaiah's "Messages of Consolation", which tell of the restoration of Israel to a position of prominence and a vindication of their status as God's chosen people. In chapter 52, for example, Israel is described as "oppressed without cause" (v.4) and "taken away" (v.5), yet God promises a brighter future ahead, one in which Israel will again prosper and be redeemed in the sight of all the nations (v.1-3, 8-12).

Chapter 54 further elaborates upon the redemption which awaits the nation of Israel. Following immediately after chapter 53's promise of a reward for God's servant in return for all of its suffering (53:10-12), chapter 54 describes an unequivocally joyous fate for the Jewish people. Speaking clearly of the Jewish people and their exalted status (even according to all Christian commentaries), chapter 54 ends as follows: "'This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord and their vindication is from Me,' declares the Lord."

ISAIAH 53...A QUICK OVERVIEW BEFORE WE BEGIN

In the original Hebrew texts, there are no chapter divisions, and Jew and Christian alike agree that chapter 53 is actually a continuation of the prophecy which begins at 52:13. Accordingly, our analysis must begin at that verse.

52:13 "Behold, My servant will prosper." Israel in the singular is called God's servant throughout Isaiah, both explicitly (Isa. 41:8-9; 44:1-2; 45:4; 48:20; 49:3) and implicitly (Isa. 42:19-20; 43:10) - the Messiah is not.

This is of major importance for our study.

Other references to "Israel as God's servant" include Jer. 30:10 (note that in Jer. 30:17, the servant Israel is regarded by the nations as an outcast, forsaken by God, as in Isa. 53:4); Jer. 46:27-28; Ps. 136:22; Lk. 1:54. The "servant" is the nation of Israel and not one individual!

Answer for yourself: Given the Christian view that Jesus is God, is God His own servant?

52:15 - 53:1 "So shall he (the servant) startle many nations, the kings will stand speechless; For that which had not been told them they shall see and that which they had not heard shall they ponder. Who would believe what we have heard?" Quite clearly, the nations and their kings will be amazed at what happens to the "servant of the Lord," and they will say "who would believe what we have heard?". 52:15 tells us explicitly that it is the nations of the world, the gentiles, who are doing the talking in Isaiah 53. See, also, Micah 7:12-17, which speaks of the nations' astonishment when the Jewish people again blossom in the Messianic age.

53:1 "And to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?" In Isaiah, and throughout our Scriptures, God's "arm" refers to the physical redemption of the Jewish people from the oppression of other nations (see, e.g., Isa. 52:8-12; Isa. 63:12; Deut. 4:34; Deut. 7:19; Ps. 44:3).

53:3 "Despised and rejected of men." While this is clearly applicable to Israel (see Isa. 60:15; Ps. 44:13-14), it cannot be reconciled with the New Testament account of Jesus, a man who was supposedly "praised by all" (Lk. 4:14-15) and followed by multitudes (Matt. 4:25), who would later acclaim him as a prophet upon his triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Matt. 21:9-11). Even as he was taken to be crucified, a multitude bemoaned his fate (Lk. 23:27). Jesus had to be taken by stealth, as the rulers feared "a riot of the people" (Mk. 14:1-2).

53:3 "A man of pains and acquainted with disease." Israel's adversities are frequently likened to sickness - see, e.g., Isa. 1:5-6; Jer. 10:19; Jer 30:12.

53:4 "Surely our diseases he carried and our pains he bore." In Matt. 8:17, this is correctly translated, and said to be literally (not spiritually) fulfilled in Jesus' healing of the sick, a reading inconsistent with the Christian mistranslation of 53:4 itself.

53:4 "Yet we ourselves esteemed him stricken, smitten of God and afflicted." See Jer. 30:17 - of God's servant Israel (30:10), it is said by the nations, "It is Zion; no one cares for her."

53:5 "But he was wounded from (NOTE: not "for") our transgressions, he was crushed from (AGAIN: not "for") our iniquities." Whereas the Gentile nations had thought the Servant (Israel) was undergoing Divine retribution for its sins (53:4), they now realize that the Servant's sufferings stemmed from their OWN actions and sinfulness against the nation. This theme is further developed throughout our Hebrew Scriptures - see, e.g., Jer. 50:7; Jer. 10:25. ALSO: Note that the Messiah "shall not fail nor be crushed till he has set the right in the earth" (Isa. 42:4). This is serious business, as you can see; when Messiah comes he will a major bone to pick with the Roman Church which spawned both anti-Semitic Catholicism and his child Protestantism.

53:7 "He was oppressed and he was afflicted, yet he did not open his mouth. Like a lamb that is led to slaughter, and like a sheep that is silent before its shearers, so he did not open his mouth." Note that in the prior chapter (Isa. 52), Israel is said to have been oppressed and taken away without cause (52:4-5). A similar theme is developed in Psalm 44, wherein King David speaks of the corporate nation of Israel and her faithfulness even in the face of gentile oppression (44:17- 18) and describes Israel as "sheep to be slaughtered" in the midst of the unfaithful gentile nations (44:22,11).

Regarding the claim that Jesus "did not open his mouth" when faced with oppression and affliction, see Matt. 27:46, Jn. 18:23, 36-37.

53:8 "From dominion and judgment he was taken away." Note the correct translation of the Hebrew. The Christians are forced to mistranslate, since - by Jesus' own testimony - he never had any rights to rulership or judgment, at least not on the "first coming." See, e.g., Jn. 3:17; Jn. 8:15; Jn. 12:47; Jn. 18:36.

53:8 "He was cut off out of the land of the living."

53:9 "His grave was assigned with wicked men." See Ez. 37:11-14, wherein Israel is described as "cut off" and God promises to open its "graves" and bring Israel back into its own land. Other examples of figurative deaths include Ex. 10:17; 2 Sam. 9:8; 2 Sam. 16:9.

53:8 "From my peoples' sins, there was injury to them." Here the Prophet makes absolutely clear, to anyone familiar with Biblical Hebrew, that the oppressed Servant is a collective Servant, not a single individual. The Hebrew word "lamoh", when used in our Scriptures, always means "to them" never "to him" and may be found, for example, in Psalm 99:7 - "They kept his testimonies, and the statute that He gave to them."

53:9 "And with the rich in his deaths." Perhaps King James should have changed the original Hebrew, which again makes clear that we are dealing with a collective Servant, i.e., Israel, which will "come to life" when the exile ends (Ez. 37:14).

53:9 "He had done no violence." See Matt. 21:12; Mk. 11:15-16; Lk. 19:45; Lk. 19:27; Matt. 10:34 and Lk. 12:51; then judge for yourself whether this passage is truly consistent with the New Testament account of Jesus.

53:10 "He shall see his seed." The Hebrew word for "seed", used in this verse, always refers to physical descendants in our Hebrew Scriptures. See, e.g., Gen. 12:7; Gen. 15:13; Gen. 46:6; Ex. 28:43. A different word, generally translated as "sons", is used to refer to spiritual descendants (see Deut. 14:1, e.g.).

53:10 "He will prolong his days."

Answer for yourself: Not only did Jesus die young, but how could the days be prolonged of someone who is alleged to be God?

53:11 "With his knowledge the righteous one, my Servant, will cause many to be just." Note again the correct translation: the Servant will cause many to be just, he will not "justify the many."

The Jewish mission is to serve as a "light to the nations" which will ultimately lead the world to a knowledge of the one true God, this both by example (Deut. 4:5-8; Zech. 8:23) and by instructing the nations in God's Law (Isa. 2:3-4; Micah 4:2-3). This mission, however, has been tragically circumvented by the Roman Church throughout history by the editing and adulterating the documents we call the New Testament today. What was once a Torah centered faith has become a religion based upon "believing in the identity of a man" instead of "living a life in obedience to the Law/Commandments of God." Today "grace" had completely nullified "personal accountability before God." Needless to say the "light" of Divine Truth as been replaced by Gentile Christianity's Catholic Church Council's decisions upon the "identity" of Jesus as it evolved over the first 500 years of the church. The identity of the Servant of God, the Jewish People, who paid in their blood the price that I might know God today, has been completely obliterated by Christian theology whereby "one man" has replaced an entire nation.

53:12 "Therefore, I will divide a portion to him with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the mighty."

Answer for yourself: If Jesus is God, does the idea of reward have any meaning?

Answer for yourself: Is it not rather the Jewish people who righteously bore the sins from and of the world and yet remained faithful to God (Ps. 44)? Is it not rather the Jewish Nation who will be rewarded, and this in the manner described more fully in Isaiah chapters 52 and 54?

In the following articles in this series we will examine in-depth many of the above items for your study and evaluation. When we finish you will no longer have any doubt or confusion regarding the correct interpretation of Isaiah 53 and whether it refers to Jesus or not. Who Is The Servant of God.

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH...THE TRUTH ABOUT ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #2

ISAIAH'S USE OF "THE SERVANT" AS REFERRING TO THE "WHOLE NATION" OF ISRAEL AND NOT TO A SINGLE PERSON

In order to begin our in-depth study with the proper background it is important that you familiarize yourself with the following Scriptures and the meaning of the prophet Isaiah in writing them. The following are every mention of "servant" from Isaiah. 40-66. Please read each of them and see for yourself if Isaiah is consistent throughout them by describing the nation of Israel as the servant and not a man.

This proper understanding of the identity of the "servant" and the proper understanding of the context intended by the prophet Isaiah is crucial to our efforts to arrive at the proper identity of the subject of Isaiah 52, 53, 54, as well as throughout the whole of the chapters 40-66. Due to the improper teaching that we have received from inherited Roman Christian traditions let alone incorrect preaching from our pulpits our whole lives we have been preconditioned to "read into these passages" meanings and identities, like Jesus, which were never intended by the prophet Isaiah.

I ask that you take the time to read each of the verses below as well as chapters from which they were taken in order for you to get the correct context in your minds properly. Then, and only then, can you be certain that the "servant" in question is not an individual or solitary man, but a collective of people: namely; the people of Israel. Isaiah never intended anyone to read his Book and obtain such a meaning, a meaning imposed only upon one person to the exclusion of the whole of the Jewish people.

First of all note with me that there 5 passages in the Book of Isaiah and in these Servant Songs in which God's servant is explicitly identified as the corporate nation of Israel:

Isaiah 41:8-9 - (8) But you, Israel, are My servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham My friend. (9) You whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called you from its farthest corners, and said to you, "you are My servant; I have chosen you and I [will] not cast you away".

Isaiah 44:1-2 - (1) Yet hear now, O Jacob My servant, and Israel, whom I have chosen. Thus says the Lord your Maker, and He who formed you from the womb shall help you. (2) Fear not, My servant Jacob, and Jeshurun whom I have chosen.

Isaiah 44:21 - (21) Remember these, O Jacob and Israel, for you are My servant; I have formed you; you are My servant, O Israel, you shall not be forgotten of Me.

Isaiah 45:4 - For the sake of My servant Jacob, and Israel My chosen one, I called to you by your name

Isaiah 49:3 - And [God] said to me: "you are My servant, O Israel in whom I will be glorified!"

Answer for yourself: Did you notice the use of both terms "Jacob" and "Israel" in the above verses which are defined as God's "servant", both Northern and Southern Israel. Did you notice that these two nouns representing the whole of the people of Israel are again referenced by the use of a singular noun, the word "servant"? Did you see that both Northern and Southern Israel are used to refer to the single noun "servant"? Here again is the use of plurality and singularity to refer to the whole of a nation and not just one person.

If we look to the whole of the Book of Isaiah then there are nine instances, including the four Servant Songs, that positively identify the servant as Israel.

Finally, let us take note of the fact that the subject in the two adjacent chapters that "sandwich" Isaiah and the Fourth Servant Song, namely, Isaiah 52 [through verse 12] and Isaiah 54, refers again as well to the restored and redeemed nation of Israel. Everywhere we look, taking note of the use interchangeably of both plural and singular pronouns and sounds we see the corporate nation of Israel being the subject of Isaiah the prophet and not a solitary individual, let alone the later Jesus of the New Testament.

This preliminary identification that I have made, that Israel is the "Suffering Servant" in the Fourth Servant Song of Isaiah and not Jesus, must now be tested by a verse by verse analysis of the entire Fourth Servant Song. Only in this way can we determine for certain if Jesus is the subject of Isaiah 53 and is a sacrifice for sin or if Israel is the "Suffering Servant" and suffered as a result of the sins of the Gentiles. It is to this we now devote the rest of these articles.

Let us begin such an analysis by reading the "Servant Scriptures" and becoming familiar with them.

9 Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away. (KJV)

Isa 42:1

1 Behold my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles. (KJV)

19 Who is blind, but my servant? or deaf, as my messenger that I sent? who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the LORD's servant? (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Does the words "blind" and "deaf" as referring to the "servant" of God conjure up a picture in your mind of the perfect Jesus of the New Testament? Either used as allegories of "Spiritual blindness or deafness" or if taken "literally" here in concrete evidence that the "servant of the Lord" is not the perfect God-man Jesus as depicted for us in the New Testament.

10 Ye are my witnesses, saith the LORD, and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Did you notice the use of both singular and plural pronouns to refer to the "singular" reference to "the servant"? Here we find that "the servant" is described by using both plural pronouns "ye" as well as plural nouns like "witnesses" but the intent of the whole verse is to refer to the whole of the Jewish Nation. That the servant is spoken of in the singular is not an issue here in terms of whether the servant can only be a single individual or may be a compound entity, such as a nation. For example, as can be seen from the context and poetic motif surrounding "Isaiah 53", the prophet refers to the servant in the "singular", "My servant", as God's witnesses (plural), "eidai", "My witnesses", and he uses verbs that are conjugated in the 2nd-person plural form! We must take note of the importance of how these words are used. Plural words, plural nouns, and plural pronouns exclude the solitary Jesus from being the "Suffering Servant"; not only of the "Servant Songs", the "Suffering Servant", but the subject of Isaiah 53 entirely!

1 Yet now hear, O Jacob my servant; and Israel, whom I have chosen: (KJV)

Isa 44:2

2 Thus saith the LORD that made thee, and formed thee from the womb, which will help thee; Fear not, O Jacob, my servant; and thou, Jesurun, whom I have chosen. (KJV)

Isa 44:21

21 Remember these, O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant: I have formed thee; thou art my servant: O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. (KJV)

Isa 44:26

26 That confirmeth the word of his servant, and performeth the counsel of his messengers; that saith to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be inhabited; and to the cities of Judah, Ye shall be built, and I will raise up the decayed places thereof: (KJV)

20 Go ye forth of Babylon, flee ye from the Chaldeans, with a voice of singing declare ye, tell this, utter it even to the end of the earth; say ye, The LORD hath redeemed his servant Jacob. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Did you notice the use again of "ye" which is the "plural nominative" which again Isaiah uses to indicate the whole corporate nation of Israel and not a single person? And when did Jesus "flee from the Babylonians", a nation that oppressed Israel 600 years before the time for his life according to the New Testament?

3 And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified. (KJV)

Isa 49:5

5 And now, saith the LORD that formed me from the womb to be his servant, to bring Jacob again to him, Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD, and my God shall be my strength. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: When if ever do we find the New Testament Jesus "Spiritually apart" from God and needing to be brought "back to God" or "return back to God" or "exiled apart from the land of Israel" as we do again Isaiah's "servant" above?

6 And he said, It is a light thing that thou shouldest be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth. (KJV)

Isa 50:10

10 Who is among you that feareth the LORD, that obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness, and hath no light? let him trust in the name of the LORD, and stay upon his God. (KJV)

Isa 52:13

13 Behold, my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high. (KJV)

11 He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities. (KJV)

Let us reflect upon what we have seen and read so far. Looking at all the references for the "servant" or "Suffering Servant" from Isaiah 40-66 we saw repeatedly that both singular and plural pronouns like "ye" and even plural nouns like "witnesses" were used to identify this "servant of God". This indicates to the "thinking-believer" that the identify intended by the Prophet Isaiah for the "Suffering Servant" which we find in Isaiah 53 is not a single individual but rather is reflective of the whole Nation of Israel. We saw also that the two nouns, Israel and Jacob, reflecting both Northern Israel and Southern Israel, were used by Isaiah to define this "Suffering Servant". We saw as well that this "servant of God" was both "blind" and "deaf". We saw that even such terms if understood allegorically for Spiritual blindness and Spiritual deafness hardly could be mistaken for the God-man Jesus of the New Testament. Such terms, even if taken "literally" of physical disabilities, could never be used for the perfect God-man Jesus of the New Testament. We saw that this "Suffering Servant" flees from the invading Babylonians and this sets the time frame from to 597 B.C.E. or there abouts; again excluding application to the New Testament Jesus in the time frame given for his life. We saw that this "servant of God" was needing to be "brought back to God" since Spiritually apart from God. Again this is easy to see that this cannot refer to the Messiah of Israel or let alone the Jesus of the New Testament as we see him depicted. Also we saw that this "servant" was exiled from the land of Israel in need of a return to the very land itself; again such facts as taken from the comprehensive description of the "Suffering Servant of God" as given by Isaiah from chapters 40-66 exclude any link with the later New Testament Jesus. To say that Jesus is this "Suffering Servant" or saying that this perfect God-man of the New Testament is the subject of Isaiah 53 is a total denial of the Hebrew Scriptures and one of the greatest misunderstandings of the Bible which one can make. If we fail to understand Isaiah 53 correctly then will fall into even greater error when we come to the New Testament and its depiction of "the Christ".

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH...THE TRUTH ABOUT ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #3

I suppose Isaiah 53 is possibly the most misunderstood and misused passages in the whole Bible. The reason as you will quickly come to see is partly due to the purposefully misquoting of the Hebrew and Jewish Masoretic text whereby the verses have been terribly altered and purposefully corrupted and mistranslated when translated into the Greek and later Latin and English translations. This not only destroys the original meaning intended by Isaiah but substitutes a "foreign" meaning instead. In so doing we are slowly led by such endeavors to fall prey to a replacement religion and this has happened to millions of people who have died never knowing the Divine Truth about "the Christ" let alone the "Messiah" of Israel.

Ever since I was a child I was told to believe that this passage, Isaiah 53, referred to Jesus and the New Testament fulfillment of Jesus being the Jewish Messiah who dies for the sins of the world.

Answer for yourself: But does it? Was the Messiah of Israel supposed to die?

Having previously looked at the workings and dynamics of the Sacrificial System and how the "blood" functioned within it did we not see that "blood" was the passive agent in the atonement process and never actually atoned for sin; rather, it was the "life" or "Soul" that was "in the blood", according to Leviticus 17:11, the Soul of each person who atoned for their own sin? Did we not see that atonement was obtained before the person actually brought the animal to the Temple and that the blood of the innocent animal was but a "symbol" and "picture" of the repentant Soul who had turned from his sin, was remorseful for his sin, confessed his sin, prayed, and did acts of righteousness and almsgiving so that "at-that-moment" he could demonstrate to God and to mankind, by applying the blood of an innocent animal on the altar, that he, like that animal, stood before God forgiven and accepted by God? We sure did.

Answer for yourself: How can we come to the truth of the matter when considering Isaiah chapter 53? Did we not just see that this "suffering servant", the subject of Isaiah 53, referred to the whole corporate Nation of Israel and not one person? We sure did. As our knowledge and factual evidence mounts that show us that we have grievously misunderstood and tragically been led in a horrific misunderstanding of Isaiah 53 then should we not "change our thinking" on these subjects we study and bend our knees to this higher Spiritual Truth, especially since we know that God is aware that we have learned the errors we have unknowingly inherited and see the higher Spiritual truth of the matter? How can we continue to deny such plain facts of Biblical History, the forgery of the Hebrew Scriptures as found in our Bibles, and outright facts of Hebrew Scriptural study, like the "plurality" of the "suffering servant", and yet hold to an "inherited faith in Jesus" when the facts so demonstrably prove such faith unworthy of belief for anything?

You might be surprised at what you find when you embark upon such in-depth study. Only setting in the pew of your Church, never cracking scholarly books, guarantees that you will never come to "full age" and be able to discern "truth" from "fiction". If you undertake to read this series of articles the results of your study will lead to you discover a completely different understanding from what many of you supposed that Isaiah was teaching. As we examine the forthcoming purposefully corrupted Hebrew Scriptures which later find their way into our Bibles you will be broken to the core to realize that you have never read the true Word of God before; that instead you like myself years ago, had fallen into darkness and the Roman lies that litter the pages of its Book intended to deceive the world and lead such readers away from Jerusalem and to Rome. They have succeeded beyond their wildest imagination. Besides of the reason "highlighted" above, another reason why we do not understand these passages in Isaiah 53 correctly is that most of us grew up in churches where our spiritual authorities chose to "read into the text" of Isaiah 53 concepts and ideas that could not be "drawn from the text". Let me explain.

In Seminary I learned that there are Laws of Interpretation concerning the proper interpretation of Biblical Scriptures. No one ever told me that after graduation we can forget them and make these Scriptures say whatever we want them to say. These Laws of Biblical Interpretation is called the study of Hermeneutics. These Laws of Biblical Interpretation must be correctly and artfully applied to the text of Scripture if one wants to arrive at the truth of what the passage is truly saying. There is only one problem outside of the Seminary classroom; namely few pastors or church adhere to such rules and laws of interpretation of Scripture. I learned in Seminary that there is a big difference between "exegesis" and "eisegesis. Sadly, we don't follow these Laws of Interpretation from the pulpits of our Churches. Let me explain by looking at the definitions of these two very important words.

- Exegesis, [from exegeomai in the Greek, to explain-ex, and hegeomai, to lead, to guide] The exposition or interpretation of any literary production, but more particularly the exposition or interpretation of Scripture; also the principles of the art of sacred interpretation of the ancient texts as given by those who came before; exegetics; hermeneutics.
- Eisegesis noun : personal interpretation of a text (especially of the Bible) using your own ideas. In other words, reading "into the text" concepts and ideas totally foreign to the text; ideas that you want the text to convey.

As you can see for yourself if we follow the laws of eisegesis we can be assured of arriving at an erroneous interpretation of the text and lose the truths the prophet or writer intended to convey. Conversely, only by rigid application of the laws of exegesis can we be assured of arriving at the truths God desires we both understand and possess let alone "pattern" our lives after. Let us go on.

Since this article is intended for Christian readers, I will not go into depth regarding the traditional interpretation that the "Suffering Servant" that has been taught for over 1,800 years; namely that this "Suffering Servant" who dies for the sins of the world is this New Testament Jesus. This has been the standard "eisegesis" and interpretation since the rise of Roman Orthodoxy and the Early Church Fathers who "reedited" the First New Testament of the Gnostic Chrestians who taught otherwise. Following the ancient Sacred Wisdom these Gnostics followed the ancient Laws of Interpretation since ancient Egypt and in so doing taught a completely different "Christ" and "allegorical death and incarnation of Christ" than Rome will teach later. Altering Hebrew Scriptures like Isaiah 53 will provide Rome the Old Testament foundation needed to carry over their deception to their reworking of their Second New Testament and in so doing cite Isaiah 53 and other like-altered Hebrew Scriptures for their authority for the new Roman "radical reinterpretation" of all that came before them. I would only ask that you read these series of articles closely and limit your "eisegesis" (reading into the text your personal interpretation received through a life full of sermonizing) and let the truths of the passage derived from "exegesis (whereby we explain, interpret, and critically examine the text) speak to you and in this light let these true Hebrew unaltered Scriptures determine what your religious belief system should be in light of the facts since such findings are "taken from the passage" and not "read into" the passage. After you have completed these articles the decision will be up to you what you believe Isaiah 53 is teaching. But until you continue to read these articles and see this information mount for yourself you are limited by the knowledge withheld from you and are sadly unable to make an intelligent decision. With this as my motive let us begin a critical examination of the texts.

ISA 52:13---ISA 53:12...(AS TAKEN FROM THE MASORETIC TEXT [THE JEWISH BIBLE] AND NOT THE ALTERED OLD TESTAMENTS FROM MOST CHRISTIAN'S BIBLES (THE KJV FOR EXAMPLE))

Since the Hebrew Scriptures has no chapter divisions we must begin our study at Isaiah chapter 52:13 if we ever hope to see just whom is really speaking later in Isaiah 53. Common opinion concerning chapter divisions in the Bible attributes them to Cardinal Hugo of Saint Cher for use in his concordance to the Latin Vulgate (1240 A.D., first printed, with modification, at Bologna, 1479 A.D). Amazing that it took over 1,200 years to "cut up" the Bible in such a way as to confuse the people more as if Rome had not done enough before them. Let us see this "purposeful confusion" first hand and no greater example could be cited that Isaiah 52 and 53 as you will now see.

13. Behold, My servant shall prosper; he shall be exalted and lifted up, and shall be very high.

14. As many wondered about you, "How marred his appearance is from that of a man, and his features from that of people!"

15. So shall he cast down many nations; kings shall shut their mouths because of him; for what had not been told to them they shall see; and that which they had not heard they shall consider.

Let me interject that the word for "nations" in the Hebrew is as follows:

1471 gowy rarely (shortened) goy- as a noun, masculine: nation, people

- a) nation, people
- 1) usually of non-Hebrew people
- 2) used of descendants of Abraham
- b) used of a swarm of locusts or other animals (figurative) as a proper noun, masculine:
- c) Goyim="nations"

Let us notice if we will the different readings of this verse between the Hebrew Scriptures and the later Christian KJV:

Isaiah 52:14 - As many wondered about you, "How marred his appearance is from that of a man, and his features from that of people!"

Isaiah 52:14 (KJV) - As many were astonished at thee; his visage was so marred more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men:

The two renditions are quite similar, though the Jewish version is clearer on who is speaking, and of whom this is being spoken. It is worth noting that in several Christian renditions a subtle contextual change in this verse is effected by switching the pronoun from "you" to "him", something that is acknowledged via a footnote by some Christian Bibles like the NIV and RSV. Good for them and their honesty; that is more than we can say for most of the other alterations in our Bibles which are not noted. In the previous verse, Isaiah 52:13, Isaiah prophesies that, in the end, Israel will prosper and take its rightful place in God's plan. In Isaiah 52:14, the prophet foretells that this event will cause much surprise and astonishment among the (Gentile) nations, since they habitually looked down upon the Jewish people. Still being the narrator here and speaking for God, Isaiah quotes what the (Gentile) nations will be saying about Israel in their astonishment. The dismayed (Gentile) nations will see a people, thought to be disfigured and "sub-human", being exalted and successful, a people who have God with them and not against them (e.g., Is 52:9-10). Isaiah reassures his people, Israel, that those who had such visions of them will be stunned when they see that Israel is the one who will be exalted in the end.

Now back to the text....as we take up with Isaiah 53:

1. Who bath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?
2. And he came up like a sapling before it, and like a root from dry ground, he had neither form nor comeliness; and we saw him that he had no appearance that we should have desired him.
3. Despised and forsaken by men, a man of pains and accustomed to illness: and as one who hides his face from us; despised, and we esteemed him not.
4. Indeed, he bore our illnesses, and our pains - he carried them, yet we accounted him as plagued, smitten by God and oppressed.
5. But he was pained from our transgressions, crushed from our iniquities; the chastisement of our welfare was upon him, and with his wound we were healed.
6. We all went astray like sheep, we have turned, each one on his own way, and the Lord accepted his prayers for the iniquity of all of us.
7. He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he would not open his mouth; like a lamb to the slaughter he would be brought, and like a sheep that is mute before her shearers, and he would not open his mouth.
8. From imprisonment and from judgment he is taken, and his generation who shall tell? For he was cut off from the land of the living; because of the transgression of my people, a plague befell them.
9. And he gave his grave to the wicked, and to the wealthy with his kinds of deaths, because he committed no violence, and there was no deceit in his mouth.
10. And the Lord wished to crush him, He made him ill; if his soul makes itself restitution, he shall see seed, he shall prolong his days, and God's purpose shall prosper in his hand.
11. From the toil of his soul he would see, he would be satisfied; with his knowledge My servant would vindicate the just for many, and their iniquities he would bear.
12. Therefore, I will allot him a portion in public, and with the strong he shall share plunder, because he poured out his soul to death, and with transgressors he was counted; and he bore the sin of many, and interceded for the transgressors.

Answer for yourself: Who is speaking in this passage? Is this Isaiah as we are traditionally told or expect since the Book carries his name? Could it be another and we not know it? Are you aware that if we get the identity of the speaker incorrect in Isaiah 53, as 99% of all Christians do, then we again are set up to misunderstand the identity of "the Servant"? How can we find for certain whom is speaking in this 53rd chapter of Isaiah? Well we have to back-track to get this information since the chapters have been "cut" and "separated". You need to ask yourself if this division between Isaiah 52 and Isaiah 53 was done on purpose at this particular position in order to deceive the reader as to whom is speaking. The Hebrew Bible never did this 2,000 years ago. It was much harder then to get confused as to who was speaking than today. We normally open our Bibles and read starting at 53:1 and "assume" that Isaiah is speaking, for after all the Book carries his name. It seems so simple and plain. It is not. Let us continue to study and I will show you.

WE MUST DECIDE WHO IS DOING THE “SPEAKING” IN THESE VERSES IN ORDER TO INTERPRET THEM CORRECTLY

Now we come to a significant discrepancy in the Christian translation of the Hebrew Scriptures worthy of our intense scrutiny.

Isaiah 52:15 - So shall he cause many nations to be startled; kings shall shut their mouths because of him, because that which had not been told to them they saw, and that which they had not heard they perceived.

Isaiah 52:15 (KJV) - So shall he sprinkle many nations; the kings shall shut their mouths at him: for that which had not been told them shall they see; and that which they had not heard shall they consider.

Notice if you will the discrepancy between the Jewish and KJV renditions of the Hebrew term "yazeh" meaning "shall he cause". Again the Hebrew has it correct but the Christian translation has completely altered its meaning; changing "shall he cause" to "shall he sprinkle". Since this is a significant discrepancy, it requires further analysis. Note if you will the idea of "sprinkle" connotes ideas of the Sacrificial System and the priests "shaking" the blood upon the altar and the mercy seat. The Christian KJV mistranslation is purposeful owing to the fact they are trying to make it appear as if the "Suffering Servant" is doing the sprinkling, and in this case, the sprinkling of "blood". The act of sprinkling is a direct result of a shaking motion by the agent who does the sprinkling. But this "shaking" that is associated with the context of Isaiah 52:15 is not the result of the one doing the sprinkling but other; in context the kings of the Earth when the Divine purpose of God in the Jewish people is made know to them. The Hebrew has it correct again and not our KJV. Consequently, the Jewish rendition of "yazeh" in Isaiah 52:15 as, "... shall he cause ... to be startled ...", or any number of commonly found variations of it, turns out to be the contextually proper translation. Although the KJV and most other Christian Bibles mistranslate this term, some Christian translations either agree with the Jewish rendition (e.g., AMP ["startle"], RSV ["startle"], Darby ["astonish"]), or acknowledge it via a footnote (e.g., NIV ["sprinkle"; footnote: Hebrew; Septuagint so will many nations marvel at him], NLT ["startle"; footnote: Or cleanse], NKJV ["sprinkle"; footnote: Or startle]).

The intensity of the surprise these (Gentile) nations will experience at finally seeing that they have persecuted God's Light sent to themselves, the Nation of Israel down through history, will not only startle them, but it will cause them to be dumbfounded. and their knees will knock and their legs "shake". They will observe events that were previously beyond their imagination, and their shock upon witnessing the exaltation of Israel is foretold in the Hebrew Bible:

In sharp contrast to the reaction of the (Gentile) nations, the prophets never foretell that the Jewish people will ever proclaim shock or will need to admit a mistake to the (Gentile) nations. or need to convert to Christianity for salvation. In fact, just the opposite is prophesied in the Hebrew Bible:

Zechariah 8:13,23 - (13) And it shall come to pass that, [just] as you were a curse among the nations, O House of Judah and House of Israel, so will I save you, and you shall be a blessing; fear not, may your hands be strengthened! (23) So said the Lord of hosts: 'In those days, when ten men of all the languages of the nations shall take hold of the garment of a Jewish man, saying: 'Let us go with you, for we have heard that God is with you'.'

The Hebrew Bible makes it very clear who made the mistake. The mistaken ones are the (Gentile) nations, not the Jewish people!

Answer for yourself: What should this teach us?

As has been demonstrated here and elsewhere, a thorough knowledge and understanding of the Hebrew language and of the Hebrew Bible are necessary, not optional, resources when attempting to develop a correct interpretation of any passage in the Hebrew Scriptures let alone any reference, true or otherwise, as used in the Christian English Old and New Testaments.

Now let us look at these texts again and reflect.

Isaiah 52:15-53:

- *Isa. 52:15. So shall he cause many nations to be startled; kings shall shut their mouths because of him, because that which had not been told to them they saw, and that which they had not heard they perceived.
- *Isa. 53:1. Who hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

Notice first with me "certain key" words. These "key words" are in the "plural." Notice from Isa. 52:15 and onwards it is the Gentile Kings of nations (Gentile kings of non-Jewish nations) and not the Jewish people who are speaking here in Isaiah chapter 52 with numbed astonishment. It is not the Jewish nation, a Jewish prophet, or any Jewish person who is speaking in Isaiah 52:15 and onwards including later in Isaiah chapter 53! The Rabbis, the interpreters of their own Hebrew Scriptures, teach this very same interpretation of these texts as well. If we miss the true identity of whom is speaking we will miss the whole of the proper interpretation of what is being later said in Isaiah chapter 53. We must approach everything that follows Isa. 52:15 and onward from the mindset and view of the Gentile's perspective concerning Israel and not the Jewish perspective of Israel and the "suffering servant". This will be startling for our understanding of what comes next in Isa. 53 but remember there were no chapter divisions when these Hebrew Scriptures were written and that being so it was much more difficult than today to read Isaiah 53 and be confused as to whom is speaking let alone the message intended by the Hebrew Prophet Isaiah. What we find in this "numbed astonishment" of the Gentile Kings of the nations and what they are finally hearing, witnessing and understanding regarding Israel what they had never heard or read, they are seeing concerning Israel what they had never seen or even imagined could be true; but it is. They are coming to a realization for the first time in their lives that everything that they had heard and been taught about Israel from a Gentile perspective is incorrect and inaccurate. If you read our articles on the Sacrificial System and the role of "blood" in it then you are a fulfillment of this passage occurring not only in your life as well but in the life of the "non-Jew". Everything that these Gentile believed they knew "religiously" about Israel and the Jews is shown to them to have been erroneous and counterfactual. Everything they had accepted and believed "by faith" concerning Israel was false and their religious belief system regarding Israel, its Messiah, and its Sacrificial System stands before their enlightened understanding as wrong! The true identity and purpose of Israel as God's servant now is shown to them and their new enlightenment stands in stark contrast to everything they had previously heard and considered about Israel or even heard preached and believed about the Jews. Understandably, the first question on their lips is, "Who would have ever believed such a thing?" These Gentile leaders and "kings" are utterly astounded that the Jewish people, whom all the non-Jewish nations have together despised and molested for thousands of years, now stand before their newly enlightened Spiritual understanding vindicated and they see in contradiction to what they erroneously learned in their own deviant theologies that like themselves the Jewish nation enjoys the promised salvation of God. This newly enlightened understanding of Israel is totally foreign to their prior theologies and what they were accustomed to hearing taught and preached and what they expected to happen to the Jewish people. In other words these thoughts and beliefs about the fate of the Jewish people and their salvation have been totally in error as held by these non-Jewish people and their "kings" and religious and political leaders. Understand that the vast majority of Christianity today, if asked, will say the Jewish people are damned to hell if they don't believe in Jesus as the Jewish Messiah and that the blood of Jesus is the only atonement for the sin of the world; the blood of which is appropriated to this world solely upon one's faith in the "theologies" surrounding the Jesus of the New Testament. Let us go on.

The conspicuous shock that the gentile nations will experience and express at the end of days is a common theme throughout the Bible. But this fact can only be known if you spend a lot of time in the Hebrew Scriptures, and let's face the truth, most Christians today spend the vast majority of their time reading only the New Testament and find little use for the Hebrew and Jewish Scriptures. This I assure you would not be the case had they sufficient knowledge of the Hebrew Scriptures corruption as it now stands today in our Christian Old and New Testaments.

Bear in mind that nowhere in the Hebrew Scripture do the prophets foretell that the Jewish people will ever proclaim shock, or admit any theological or religious mistake to the gentiles in the messianic age. On the contrary, the Bible clearly testifies that in the messianic age ten gentiles of different languages will grasp the shirt of a Jew and say:

Zech 8:23 23 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: In the above verse whom does it appear is "leading" whom; the Christian Church with its Rome theology that contradicts the ancient Spiritual Wisdom and the Hebrew Scriptures or the Jewish nation who is guiding the non-Jews of the world to God? Remember, this is believed by all to be a picture of the events of the "Millennium" which is yet to be a future experience on our world.

Micah 7:15-16

15 According to the days of thy coming out of the land of Egypt will I show unto them marvelous things. 16 The nations (non-Jewish peoples) shall see and be confounded at all of their might: they shall lay their hands upon their mouth, their ears shall be deaf.

Isaiah 41:11

11 Behold all those who were incensed against you shall be ashamed and confounded; those who quarreled with you shall be as naught and be lost.

Jeremiah 16:19

19 O Lord, my strength, and my fortress, and my refuge in the day of affliction, the Gentiles shall come unto thee from the ends of the earth and shall say, "Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things wherein there is no benefit.

Please listen. As a Seminary graduate with a Master's degree no less, the tools I received while at Seminary were put to further use after I graduated since my questions and prior concerns observed in Seminary prompted me into daily serious study to the find the answers for what I saw was often contradiction and confusion of theologies. My unquenchable desire for the truth caused me to devote myself daily to in-depth study of Biblical language, Biblical history, Biblical cultures, archeology, especially Biblical Judaism, the textual integrity of the Hebrew Scriptures in comparison to the later Greek and English translation, comparative religion and its parallels to our "Jesus Story", the ancient Egyptian religion, Gnosticism, astronomy, etc. I must admit that upon 20 years of in-depth research and study, sometimes up to 10 hours a day, I have found that I have fulfilled Jeremiah 16:19-20.

I have come to affirm the truth of the conclusion Jeremiah makes in the above Scripture in 16:19 which I found to my revulsion is totally correct: my non-Jewish forefathers, during the 2nd through the 5th centuries, having accepted the legacy of Nicea and Constantine, and many others who followed in his footsteps, replaced a Jewish faith with one of Rome's invention whereby Rome altered the sacred Hebrew Scriptures and manuscripts to make sure that all subsequent non-Jewish followers accept "their" Roman brand of religion, propagated religious lies, vanity, and vain worship and like us today, they never knew the difference! Faced with such startling knowledge which most Christians have never had the opportunity to be exposed to, I endeavor to reach out to others to inform them of these truths long held from the Christian community in order that their knowledge and faith in both

God and Christ/Messiah be accurate and correct and not a travesty of Divine Truth created in the wake of the traditions of men with Spiritual and political agendas like we find with Rome!

REGARDLESS OF WHAT YOU HAVE HEARD PREACHED IN YOUR CHURCH....WHO DOES ISAIAH IDENTIFY AS "THE SERVANT"?

Isaiah 41:8-9

But thou, Israel, art My servant, Jacob whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham My friend. 9 Whom I grasped from the ends of the earth, and from it nobles I called you, and I said to you. "You are My servant"; I chose you and I did not despise you.

Isaiah 44:1-2

1 Yet hear now, O Jacob My servant and Israel, whom I have chosen. So said the Lord your Maker, and He who formed you from the womb shall aid you. 2 Fear not, My servant Israel, and Jeshurun whom I have chosen.

Isaiah 44:21

21 Remember these, O Jacob and Israel, for thou art My servant, I have formed thee; thou art My servant, O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of Me.

Isaiah 45:4

4 For the sake of My servant Jacob, and Israel My chosen one, and I called to you by your name...

Isaiah 48:20

20 Leave Babylon, flee from the Chaldeans; with a voice of singing declare, tell this, publicize it to the end of the earth; say, The Lord has redeemed His servant Jacob."

Isaiah 49:3

3 And said to me, thou art My Servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified!

Psalms 136:22

22 Even a heritage unto Israel His servant; for His mercy endures forever

Jeremiah 30:10

10 Therefore fear not, O My Servant Jacob, says the Lord, neither be dismayed, O Israel: for, behold, I will save you from afar....

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that consistently the writers call "Jacob" and "Israel", the corporate nation of the Jewish people, God's "Servant"? When was Jesus fleeing from the Chaldeans? This had to be the nation of Israel of whom Isaiah spoke and only the whole nation of Israel which is made up of every Jewish person, man, woman, and child. This "servant" was never intended to be limited to but one person as has been done by the theologies of the Gentile. As Isa. 52 attests there is coming a day that the eyes of the non-Jew will open and he will stand amazed before God and the Jewish people and utter: "Surely my non-Jewish fathers have inherited lies, vanity and things in which there is o benefit"!

Answer for yourself: So what do we learned and reaffirmed in this article about the identity of the "Servant" of God?

The Suffering Servant of God is the nation of Israel and not an individual; that is, the Suffering Servant of God is a collection of people and not just one person.

Answer for yourself: What are the implications of this knowledge as we approach chapter Isaiah 53? Is Isaiah chapter 53 about one person as the suffering servant or about a whole nation of suffering servants of God? According to all these Scriptures and the writing style of the writer beyond any doubt we approach Isaiah chapter 53 fully convinced in mind and Spirit that this suffering one must be the corporate nation of Israel, and not one person, let alone one of Rome's invention.

Before we delve any deeper in the examination of Isaiah 53 itself, some preparatory issues must be thought-out. First let us deal with the issue of circular reasoning. Even if we interpret Isaiah chapter 53 as typical of Christianity and forgetting for a minute the many mistranslations and distortions of context which will be noted below as our studies advance, the most that could be said is this: Isaiah 53 is about someone who dies because of or from the sins of others.

Answer for yourself: According to the New Testament narrative the people surrounding the cross saw this Jesus die, but did anyone see him die as an atonement for the sins of others? As we have seen repeatedly in our study of the dynamics of the Sacrificial System this was not possible and no Jew viewing this death or not could have made such a serious blunder and misinterpretation of their own Jewish faith to believe that anyone could die for the sins of another. So, no Jew alive at that time would have believed such. Such an idea is simply the meaning which the New Testament writers back-writes into his death centuries later. Only if you already accept the New Testament teaching that Jesus' death had a non-visible, Spiritual significance of some sort can you than go back to Isaiah and say, "see - the Prophet predicted what I already believe." Isaiah 53, then, in tradition Christian translation and interpretation is in reality no "proof" at all, but rather a contrived and invented confirmation for someone who has already chosen Christianity and who is at the present time totally ignorant as to the workings of the Sacrificial System. But we need say more. Even close examination of the New Testament texts show us that Jesus' own disciples didn't view in their day that Isaiah 53 was a messianic prophecy. For example, after Peter identifies Jesus as the Messiah (Matt. 16:16), he is informed that Jesus will be killed (Matt. 16:21). Peter's response: "God forbid it, lord! This shall never happen to you" (Matt. 16:22). This is not the only reference for such a statement and belief. One only needs to look at:

Mark 9:31-32 31 For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him; and after that he is killed, he shall rise the third day. 32 But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him. (KJV)

Mark 16:10-11 10 And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. 11 And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not. (KJV)

John 20:9 9 For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead. (KJV)

Here we have 3 passages yet remaining in the Gospels which should cause us to think and begin serious inquiry into our "Jesus Story", but since not possessing adequate knowledge of Biblical Judaism little do we know that a 5 year old Hebrew child had memorized the entirety of the Book of Leviticus and at twelve years of age was proficient with the first 5 Books of Moses. Had there existed in normative Biblical Judaism in the first century a Biblical Scripture or teaching that the Messiah of Israel was to die and rise in 3 days everyone would have know it; but we see that those of the highest Spiritual nature and development and who devoted their lives to follow this would-be Messiah knew nothing of such a passage. Unlike the picture of the disciples in our New Testament whom are made out to be slow, short sighted, stupid, unlearned, and ignorant of the Hebrew Scriptures, Jewish history tells us a different story as does Biblical Judaism itself. No follower of some supposed Messiah would be ignorant of a Scripture that supposedly said that "the Messiah must rise from the dead" but yet we find that and are taught to believe this never checking out the validity of such Spiritual darkness engrafted upon the followers of this Messiah. Even today Jews don't know of this passage of Scripture because it simply does not exist. Thus it follows that believing not that the Messiah has been raised from the dead is not out of character since the Messiah was not expected to die in normative conservative Judaism. No wonder the disciples like Peter and others express wonder at the idea that the Messiah was to be killed and rise again; this idea and passage is totally foreign to the earliest Messianic Idea of Israel and only develops in some quarters much later in the wake of the failed appearance of the Messiah of Israel. Only much later were such concepts adopted by only a few to explain Israel's failure to merit the appearance of their Messiah. Even Jesus didn't see Isaiah 53 as crucial to his messianic claims or believe the Messiah was to die for the atonement for the sins of the world!

Answer for yourself: How do we know? Why did Jesus later request that God "remove this cup from me" (Mk. 14:36)? Did not the supposed Messiah of Israel know that he had come to die for the sins of the world as Rome would later teach? Did not Jesus know that a "removal of the cup" would violate the gentile understanding of Isaiah 53 render the world in a state of eternal sin debt and doom everyone to Hell, past, present, and future as Rome will later teach?

Answer for yourself: Even even if we accept the gentile Christian interpretation of Isaiah 53, where is it indicated (either in Isaiah 53 or anywhere else in other Hebrew Scriptures) that you must believe in this "Messiah" to get the benefits of God's blessing or salvation?

Christianity has for centuries falsely claimed that it is only with the commentary of Rashi (1040-1105), seeking to refute the Christian interpretation, that the Jews began to interpret Isaiah 52:13-53:12 as referring to the entire nation of Israel.

Answer for yourself: Is this true? No more so than the bulk of its own invented theologies. Let me show you.

This misconception perhaps owes its origin to Edward Pusey, who maintained in his 1876 introduction to The "Suffering Servant" of Isaiah According to the Jewish Interpretations (trans. Driver and Neubauer, [reprinted] New York: Hermon Press, 1969) that "The new interpretation began with Rashi" who lived between 1105-1040 A.D. (p. XLIV). Mr. E. Pusey is dead wrong! He needs to study more before he errs to such a degree which will sadly mislead millions because of his error. The interpretation of the corporate nation of Israel as God's "Suffering Servant" was neither new, nor did it began with Rashi. This supposed belief and allegation that Rashi, just 1,000 years ago, developed such an interpretation of Isaiah 52 and 53, is refuted even by a Christian source. In Contra Celsum, written in 248 C.E. (some 800 years before Rashi), the great Church Father Origen records that Jews contemporary with him interpreted this passage as referring to the entire nation of Israel. Here from the testimony of an early Church Father writing in 248 C.E./A.D. he wrote: I remember that once in a discussion with some whom the Jews regard as learned I used these prophecies [Isaiah 52:13-53:8]. At this the Jew said that these prophecies referred to the whole people as though of a single individual, (personification) since they were scattered in the dispersion and smitten, that as a result of the scattering of the Jews among the other nations many might become proselytes. In this way he explained the text: "Thy form shall be inglorious among men"; and "those to whom he was not proclaimed shall see him"; "being a man in calamity" (Origen, Contra Celsum, trans. Henry Chadwick, Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, Book 1.55, 1965, p. 50) This shows that Jewish biblical exegesis subscribing to the belief that the people of Israel was and has always been God's "suffering servant" as spoken of throughout the entire passage of Isaiah pre- dates Rashi by many centuries and proves that the Jewish people did formulate such an understanding later in order to refute the "Jesus Story" sold to the world by Rome.

Additionally, the history of Israel, down through the last two thousand seven hundred years and even longer, shows that the servant is, none other than the nation of Israel personified. Chapter 53 of Isaiah reiterates this fact by providing an historic overview of the tragedies and jubilations of the servant, Israel, throughout its history.

Answer for yourself: Who would believe that this exiled nation, this humiliated loathsome Jewish people would be fated to survive the vicissitudes of its historical suffering and sins meted out to them which they bore at the hands of the Gentiles and the Gentile Kings to once more have a future entailing prominence, hope, and joy? This is the cause of the "numbed astonishment" of the Gentile Kings of the Earth we saw in the beginning of this article when looking at Isa. 52:15.

Simply, said, we as Christians are guilty of not drawing out of these Hebrew Scriptures as taken from the unaltered Hebrew/English Bible the intended meaning of the prophet (exegesis), but rather, misinterpreting the passage not only because so many of them are altered as they exist and forged in our Christian Bibles but also by "reading into" these passages a preconceived religious belief imposed upon us from repeated pulpit sermons. We have fallen into the trap of believing what others have said (eisegesis) more than what we believe from digging out the Divine Truths from the unaltered Hebrew Scriptures themselves (exegesis). What we have heard erroneously preached and taught our whole lives from our pulpits cannot be supported by critical examination of the Hebrew Scriptures let alone Biblical Jewish history. Our Christian religious belief system is in error, and often this leads us to unknowingly into vain worship and there is no doubt about this if you seriously study the issues I bring forth!

Answer for yourself: If we read "Jesus" into Isaiah 53 and not understand that the "suffering servant" is the collective nation of Israel, then are we not guilty of "reading into the text our personal interpretation" irrespective of the intended meaning of the prophet and guilty of "eisegesis"? By doing so do we not guarantee that we will never arrive at the Spiritual Truth intended by Isaiah the Prophet? We sure do.

THE ONLY CONCLUSION WE CAN RIGHTFULLY DRAW FROM TRUTHFUL EXAMINATION OF THE TEXT IS THAT THE IDENTITY OF THE "SERVANT" IN THE PROPHET'S FOURTH SERVANT SONG, ISAIAH 53, MUST BE THE NATION OF ISRAEL AND NOT ONE INDIVIDUAL OR A SINGLE PERSON NAMED JESUS

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT...THE TRUTH ABOUT ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #4

In the previous article I made a strong case for correctly interpreting the “Suffering Servant” of Isaiah 53 in the plural tense and not the singular tense [the "servant" of which the Prophet Isaiah speaks is the corporate nation of Israel and not a single individual]. That means if we want to correctly interpret the Bible we cannot continue any longer to read the New Testament “Jesus” into Isaiah 53 no matter what our theology might be at the present. Let us now examine more concrete testimony which validates the interpretation of Isaiah 53 as referring to the nation of Israel as God's "Suffering Servant" and not just one man.

THROUGHOUT THE SERVANT SONGS THE “NATION OF ISRAEL” IS SPOKEN OF IN THE SINGULAR...BUT THE PRONOUN IS UNDERSTOOD AS THE "NATION"

As I grew up in the church I was continually told that since Isaiah 53's references to the Servant is in the singular that this conclusively proves that this chapter is speaking of a single individual rather than the entire nation of Israel. By default this always was made to apply to the Jesus of the New Testament and never to the personification of the corporate Nation of Israel through the use of the singular pronouns. We saw in the earlier articles that to say that the “singular” reference, as applied to the Suffering Servant in Isaiah 53, definitely refers to a later historical Jesus disregards the entire context and surrounding poetic motif of Isaiah 52-54.

I cannot ask you to believe this unless I can prove it to you. So let us investigate the matter in detail.

In Isaiah 43:10, the prophet clearly identifies the "servant" (singular) as God's "witnesses" (plural).

Notice that the “servant” again is described as "witnesses"; a word used in plural tense thus referring to more than one individual. Also, all Christians agree that the two chapters that sandwich Isaiah 53 (52 and 54) consistently speak of the Jewish people as a single individual but yet want to think that the middle chapter, Isaiah 53, all of a sudden refers to a "single individual". This destroys the whole context of what Isaiah is describing and relating. When considering that "Isaiah 53" actually begins in the latter part of the 52nd chapter, Christianity's argument becomes increasingly weak. Furthermore, as I will show you momentarily, the prophet alternately speaks of the servant in Isaiah 53 in both the singular and plural tenses interchangeably.

10 Ye are My witnesses saith the Lord, and My servant whom I have chosen: that you may know and believe Me, and understand that I am He: before Me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after Me.

Notice how the plural "witnesses" refers to only "one servant" ... "My servant" which again is used in the "singular".

As the book of Isaiah progresses from the 52nd, 53rd, and into the 54th chapter, it continues to speak of the Jewish people as though they are a single individual. This barren woman, a picture of a tormented Israel at the hands of its Gentile persecutors, will be saved from her affliction and jubilate wholeheartedly in her final vindication.

As more of a review let us recall that we saw in the earlier articles the importance of knowing the identity of the "speakers" in Isaiah and this was pointed out at the start of our analysis. The opening segment of the Fourth Servant Song, Isaiah 52:13-15, was in the "voice" of God. As Chapter 53 opens, an abrupt change occurs in the "voice", and the prophet conveys the words of the Gentile nations. In the present segment, Isaiah 53, the (Gentile) nations are still "speaking", confessing their guilt and admitting the unjust mistreatment of the servant of God, Israel, at their hands. It is related that at an appointed time the Gentile nations will begin to recognize Israel's proper place and role in history and how they have suffered as God's servant at their hands. The Gentile nations will at an appointed time come to the realization that they have on their hands the blood of God's "Suffering Servant" whom they mistakenly persecuted and killed days without number. One only has to read his newspaper or see the news to see the conditions of which Isaiah speaks which are yet being fulfilled in our day and time regarding the Jewish people at the hands of the non-Jewish nations world wide.

Now let us examine various texts as our exegesis continues. Let us set the stage for our forthcoming examination of the Hebrew Scriptures as contrasted to their purposeful corruptions at the hands of the non-Jews.

1 Awaken, awaken, put on your strength, O Zion; put on the garments of your beauty, Jerusalem the Holy City, for no longer shall the uncircumcised or the unclean continue to enter you. 2 Shake yourselves from the dust, arise, sit down, O Jerusalem; free yourself of the bands of your neck, O captive daughter of Zion.

The holiness and freedom of Jerusalem is emphasized in Isaiah 52:1-2. This passage sets the stage for Isaiah 53. Jerusalem in that day will become the Holy City, and nothing unholy will ever enter into it (v. 1). It will be further characterized by freedom, for the Times of the Gentiles will be no more, and never again will Jerusalem be subject to bondage at the hands of the non-Jews (v. 2).

"Sing you barren woman who has not born, burst out into song and jubilate, you who have not experienced birth pangs, for the children of the desolate one are more than the children of the married woman," says the Lord.

Isaiah also pointed forward to the ultimate deliverance of the entire nation of Israel which would come thorough the "Suffering Servant" (49:1-53:12). The glory that would accompany this great work is anticipated in chapters 54:1-57:21. The book closes with pleas for immediate repentance on the part of Isaiah's contemporaries (58:1-59:15) and with a realization that things will not be made fully right until the Messiah of the Jews appears on the scene (59:16-66). Let us take time to reflect that for over 2,000 years the Jewish people, their Rabbis and scholars, have maintained that the "unforged" Hebrew Scriptures have not been fulfilled and the true Jewish Messiah has not appeared and Israel has not been delivered from the bondage and persecutions of the non-Jews. The eyes of the non-Jews have not been opened nor have their hearts repented of their hatred for the Jewish people nor have their murderous actions ceased. One only needs to examine what has happened recently with the Shi'a Islamist militant organization Hezbollah based in Lebanon and its actions, let alone the actions of Syria and Iran to understand that these prophecies of Israel's deliverance and safety has not yet been fulfilled; neither has their Messiah come. It is our failure to competently understand the Hebrew Bible and the corruptions of its Sacred Scriptures as they exist in our Christian Old and New Testaments that has caused us to greatly err in our understanding of Messianic Prophecies as well as the true identity of this Jesus of Rome's New Testament.

DOES THE WRITER OF THE GOSPEL OF MATTHEW TAKE VERSES OUT OF CONTEXT TO CREATE HIS UNIQUE THEOLOGY? YES...HE DOES!

The writer of the Gospel of Matthew does to Hosea precisely what other Christians do to Isaiah. He alters its original understanding. In Hosea 11:1, the prophet is referring to national Israel (plural) and personifies it in the "singular" by representing the nation as God's son. The writer of the Gospel of Matthew 2:15 takes half the verse out of context, and quotes this verse as if it is speaking about the Messiah (singular).

Similarly, the context of Isaiah 53 reveals that Isaiah is speaking of national Israel (many people) in the singular, yet I was led to believe in my Christian upbringing and pulpit sermons that this chapter is speaking about Jesus. Such is not the case as we shall continually see.

Hosea 11:1-2, 5

1 When Israel was a child, then I loved him, and out of Egypt I called my "son" (singular but referring to a nation). 2 The more they (the Prophets) called them, the more they (the Jewish nation) went from them, they (the Jewish nation) sacrificed unto the Baalim, and offered to graven images.

5 He shall not return into the land of Egypt, but the Assyrian shall be his king, because they refused to return.

Again you can see that the prophet is referring to the nation of Israel (numbering in hundreds of thousands) in the singular with the use of "him" and "he" along with the plural use of "they."

Exodus 4:22

22...thus saith the Lord, Israel is My son, My first born.

Israel is clearly defined in this and other Hebrew Scriptures to be God's son. This verse pertains to the descendants of the patriarch Jacob: "Then you [Moses] shall say to Pharaoh, 'Thus says the Lord, 'Israel is my firstborn son, and I [the Lord] say to you, 'Let my son go that he may serve me.' So you can see that the nation, numbering hundreds of thousands, is referred to collectively in the singular tense by using a singular noun. Thus the "Suffering Servant", as revealed to us being the nation of Israel, continues to be the collective people of Israel throughout Isaiah 40-66 and in chapter 53 as well. To take one chapter out of 26 chapters and change the whole of the context and maintain that here Isaiah departs from this "pattern" of description which has remained unchanged over 26 chapters and to make in spite of the textual evidence which we have seen refer to the New Testament solitary individual named Jesus to the exclusion of the whole Jewish nation is a grievous error of interpretation. To discount the very words and tenses of the Hebrew Scriptures in order to maintain some sort of prior accepted Christian theology, a theology which is exposed as false when examining the texts as we have seen, guarantees that your desire for truth is lacking. Once seeing these things I challenge you to realize that God now knows you have seen this and to continue in such a religious deception once seeing the truth of the matter for yourself seriously challenges your love for God and His Spiritual Truths.

LET US NOT FORGET WHO IS SPEAKING IN ISAIAH 53...WHO IS?

As we prepare to delve into the text of Isaiah 53 we must at the beginning come to an accurate understanding of who is speaking. Without such an understanding we can be assured we will interpret the passages of Isaiah 53 incorrectly and thereby attribute meanings to them that the original author never intended.

Let me state right up front that the original manuscripts, even copies of manuscripts we have discovered, never had chapter divisions within them. These were added much later by the Church. So often we find chapter divisions put in the most unlikely of places. Sometimes the chapter division obscures the meaning of the text as well as who is doing the actual speaking as I will show you in Isaiah 53. Failure to notice who is speaking in Isaiah 53 is compounded by the chapter division which was artificially created centuries after the text was originally written. Search as you will, you will not discern the identity of the speaker by reading Isaiah 53 because the identity of the speaker is given in the verses above the chapter division of Isaiah 53. Failure to look to Isaiah 52 to discern the true speaker will cause you to believe that since Isaiah is the writer, he must be speaking himself and we erroneously connect such a concept in our minds to the idea that he is speaking representing the Jewish nation of Israel. Nothing could be further from the truth. To this very important issue we now turn.

The following is taken from the Jewish Scriptures and the Tanakh [and not the corrupted Old Testaments in the Christian Bibles]

Indeed, My servant shall prosper. Be exalted and raised to great heights. 14 Just as the many were appalled at him So marred was his appearance, unlike of man, His for, beyond human semblance- 15 Just so he shall startle many nations. Kings shall be silenced because of him, For they shall see what has not been told them, Shall behold what they never heard.

Now notice the next verse...called Isaiah 53:1

“Who can believe what we have heard? Upon whom has the arm of the LORD been revealed?...

Answer for yourself: Did you notice anything different when you looked up this verse in a Jewish or Hebrew translation of the Bible and compare it to your Christian translation? Well, you need to or at least read about it in a Jewish commentary. There is a big, big difference as to who we approach this verse based upon the translation in the Tanakh versus the Christian's KJV or other translations.

Christians assume that the speaker in Isaiah 53 is the nation of Israel or, even more generally, is all of mankind. However, by starting with the previous chapter, where this particular episode about the "servant" actually begins, we see in verse 15 that the speakers are the Gentile rulers and kings of other non-Jewish nations.

The Tanakh makes note that Isaiah 53:1 is a quote from the Gentile kings and nations. What follows in Isa. 53 is the testimony of the Gentile Kings which represent the Gentile Nations. The Christian Bible, the KJV, does not make this as plain and we tend to think that Isaiah is speaking; thereby making the following testimony apply to the Jews when it refers to the non-Jewish world! This is very, very important!

One immediately notices, since put on the alert as to what to look for it, that the speaker is designated in Isaiah 52 just a few verses before Isaiah 53. The kings/rulers of the nations are engaged in a dialogue concerning the Jewish people. It is the Gentile kings of the nations which are speaking and not the Jewish people. For too long now Christians read Isaiah 53 without noticing in the latter part of Isaiah 52 that the speaker is not Isaiah or the Jewish people, but rather the Gentile nations. Failure to notice this guarantees misinterpretation of Isaiah 53!

Not only should we notice this, but in the Jewish translation given above we should take note of the quotations surrounding the verses which literally convey that the Gentile kings are speaking. This change of speaker in Isaiah 53 further makes certain that we understand that the following dialogue is from a Gentile's perspective and not a Jewish perspective. This again is of paramount importance. The "incrimination" of the testimony that follows in Isaiah 53 is not the testimony of the Jews, and their "sins" but rather the testimony of the Gentiles of the world regarding the nation of Israel and their sins committed against the Jewish people, God's "Suffering Servant"! Such quotations are absent in my Christian KJV bible. The failure to note this helps one mistranslate Isaiah 53.

Bearing constantly in mind that the servant of God has, and will be shown to be corporate Israel, let us look at some passages in a KJV Christian Bible.

Isaiah 52:13-15

Behold, my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high.

As many were astonished at thee: his visage was so marred more than any man, and his form more than the sons of men:

So shall he sprinkle many nations ; the kings shall shut their mouths at him: for that which they had not been told them shall they see; and that which they had not heard shall they consider.

Answer for yourself: Could this reference to "that" mean the truth concerning the Jewish people and Israel as God's "Suffering Servant" let alone the truth concerning the later purposeful mistranslations, misquotations, and pure inventions of the Hebrew Scriptures by Rome in their forgery of the Christian Bible where they remanufactured the Jewish Messianic concept and in so doing gave the world through forged texts a "literalized" godman and put millions under the sin of idolatry in their worship of God? In so doing, does Rome "radically reinterpret" and destroy the Ancient Spiritual Wisdom and true message of God for the Soul which was intended for all mankind? Yep!

We are told that the nations of the world (non-Jewish nations) along with their kings/rulers will consider God's servant. We are told they are in line for enlightenment and revelation concerning God's servant (Israel). Understanding that this "Suffering Servant" is again the Jewish people, then there will come a time when the non-Jewish people and their political and religious authorities will come to an awakening and renewed understanding concerning the Jewish people that they did not possess earlier. Their renewed and enlightened perception and awareness of their mistakes, persecutions, harassing and oppressive treatment toward the Jewish nation is enumerated for us beginning at Isaiah 53:1. This new awareness is given through the mouth of the non-Jews as they speak to all about their sin towards the Jewish people down through history.

The following summary puts into perspective the confession of guilt and admission of unjust mistreatment of the servant by the (Gentile) nations as they begin to realize Israel's proper place and role in history. Throughout their exile, the social rating of Jews was often placed beneath that of domesticated animals. Jews have been demonized and vilified in terms of many non-human forms. Such characterizations of the Jewish people have caused their blood and life to become cheap and of no value. Much of this is traced to ideas and teachings of the New Testament. Jews have been pictured with large hooked noses and hunched backs, and perceived as having an odd, characteristic Jewish bodily odors. Even more, Jews have been accused of sacrificing Christian children to the devil, who allegedly controls them, and using the blood of these children in the preparations for Passover. This was called the "Blood Libel" down through history. Jews have been accused of poisoning wells and desecrating hosts and even their very skin has been used to make lampshades, and the hair to make cloth. To those who have hated the Jews, they Jewish people have been stereotyped to be less than human. The Jewish people have bore much suffering at the sinful hands of the non-Jewish people of the world throughout their history, and to metaphorically say that the Jewish visage has been scarred and marred from all the suffering endured at the hands of their host countries is certainly appropriate. In fact, considering the many medical experiments tried on Jews by the Nazis during the Holocaust, the "marred appearance" (Is 52:14) can even be literally construed. The Kings and people of the non-Jewish nations will have to one day face their horrible sins and give an account of the blood of the Jewish people on their hands.

Isaiah 53:1

Isaiah 53:1 (Tanakh) Who would have believed our report, and to whom was the arm of the Lord revealed?

Isaiah 53:1 (KJV) Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed?

Here we find a light variation in tense but no significant theological difference between this verse as found in the KJV and the Hebrew Tanakh.

Here before us is the opening verse of a passage in which the Gentile nations compare their former scornful attitude toward the Jewish people (Is 53:1-3) with their new realization of Israel's grandeur (Is 53:4-7). The leaders of the Gentile nations express the enormousness of their shock at the received news with the information about the servant's greatness. Thus, the answer to the opening question in this verse, "Who would have believed our report?", is, "No one would have believed it." The report of Israel's greatness and mission from God which was denied by all was too incredible to be believed.

But there is a second question here as well: "to whom was the arm of the Lord revealed"? Here we find an anthropomorphic reference to "the arm of the Lord".

The common anthropomorphic reference to the arm of the Lord throughout scripture signifies the spiritual and military salvation of the Jewish people from the gentile nations.

Answer for yourself: Did you hear that? This is salvation from gentile nations and gentile theology!

The Hebrew Bible contains numerous metaphoric references to God's arm, hand, and finger and they frequently point to God's direct action, and to His acts of vindication; in this case to His workings through the Jewish nation. The answer to this second question is sad. Only Israel sees the truth of the matter, only Israel sees her call as a nation to be God's servant and no Gentile nation has had the "arm of the Lord" revealed to them. No non-Jewish nation recognizes Israel as the "arm of the Lord" and no Gentile nations ever merited the manifestation of God's power as Israel has down through history.

Israel's final vindication and redemption in the eyes of the world's non-Jewish nations is the central theme of the last 27 chapters of the book of Isaiah (40-66).

We have begun to look at Israel's redemption and final vindication which is to be witnessed and recognized by the (Gentile) nations. Notice once again this same theme in Isaiah 53 which "sandwiched" between Isaiah 52 and Isaiah 54. It is to this surprise and astonishment by the Gentile nations which we find is the recurrent central theme of the last 27 chapters in the Book of Isaiah. If you recall as we mentioned before the two adjacent chapters to Isaiah 53, Chapters 52 and 54, which speak of the salvation of the afflicted Jewish people in the presence of their persecutors, the (Gentile) nations.

Remembering chapter divisions are artificial creations, if we read Isaiah 52:13-15 consecutively along with Isaiah 53:1 we see the beauty of the continuing story. The kings/rulers and Gentile nations will see what they had not previously seen and will hear what they had not previously heard; namely the truth. Understanding these Gentile kings and nations get revelation concerning the Jewish people we have their response to such new insights beginning in Isaiah 53:1. The KJV does not put this verse in quotes as noted earlier. Had this been done as found in the Hebrew Scriptures which Christians were to faithfully "translate" then we would not be deceived at the "get-go". We find this quote from the Gentile Kings regarding their terrible treatment of the Jewish nation beginning in verse 1 of Isaiah 53 through verse 9. The Jewish Scriptures does contain this quote for the Rabbinical scholars have always and will always be the best interpreters of their own Hebrew Scriptures! Isaiah 53 needs to be understood as the Gentile response to new revelation as God lifts their blindness toward the Jewish nation and allows them to see and understand the role of God's servant, Israel, through the ages. This new insight goes against what they had previously been told to believe and against their inherited religious traditions. The hatred of the Jewish nation now ends! Such an awakening will hopefully be your response as well as you see this for yourself and your eyes are opened to the truth of the text!

These Gentile kings are literally saying "who is going to believe this...who is going to believe what we see now in light of what we were taught about the Jewish people?" These Gentile rulers and nations are literally saying "who else sees the truth considering the Jewish people to which we were once blinded but now see?" These Gentile kings and nations begin in Isaiah 53:2 to delineate the role of Israel as they now comprehend it in new truth. This new enlightenment concerning Israel as the servant of God causes a massive repentance in both their perspective and religious belief system. These Kings of Gentile nations [in Isaiah 53] recount for us the tragic story of Israel at their hands and how she has been mistreated, persecuted, and rejected by the Gentile nations throughout history. These Gentiles admit their guilt. Line upon line of Isaiah 53 is the unfolding of the tragic truth concerning the barbarism of the Gentile nations toward their Jewish neighbors. Yet the role God gave Israel as a "Light unto the nations" has never changed. She was faithful to be a light to the non-Jewish nations even at the cost of many lives and the slaughter of millions. With this understanding, all of Isaiah 53 must be re-read, for if we fail to remember who is speaking verse after verse, which is easy to do because of our past erroneous Christian teachings and forged texts, we will miss entirely what God wished we see through the eyes and pen of the Prophet Isaiah.

CHRISTIANITY WILL HAVE TO FINALLY ADMIT THEY WERE WRONG...ABOUT THE JEWS AND ABOUT THEIR "THEOLOGY"

Notice that the surprised kings of nations will witness the final vindication and salvation of Israel irrespective of what they thought or believed about the Jews previously; or what they were taught in Church and from a Book of Isaiah in the Christian Bible which has over 6,000 alterations in it when compared to the Hebrew Book of Isaiah. That means our narrow theology as Christians, and that of our religious leaders and their teaching regarding the salvation of the Jewish people will one day crumble in the light of God's truth which will finally be forced upon the non-Jewish nations by Divine intervention and the ultimate salvation of Israel will be seen by all. Woe to men like the early anti-Semitic church fathers, and men like Irenaeus, Justin Martyr, Ignatius, Cyprian, Chrysostom, Constantine, Luther, Calvin, and a host of others which helped shape this awful Christian theology today which denies the people of Israel their place in God's plan of salvation of the world.

With that understanding let us continue noticing who is speaking in these verses.

Isaiah 53:1

1. Who hath believed our (non-Jewish nations) report, and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?

Isaiah 52:9-12

9 Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted His people, He hath redeemed Jerusalem. 10 The Lord hath made bare His Holy Arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God! 11 Turn away, turn away, get out of there, touch no unclean one; get out of its midst, purify yourselves, you who bear the Lord's vessels. 12 For not with haste shall you go forth and not in a flurry of flight shall you go, for the Lord goes before you, and your rear guard is the God of Israel-

Isaiah 54:7-10

7 "For a small moment have I forsaken you, and with great mercy will I gather you. 8 With a little wrath did I hide My countenance for a moment from you, and with everlasting kindness will I have compassion on you," said your redeemer, the Lord. 9 "For this is to Me [as] the waters of Noah, as I swore that the waters of Noah shall never pass over the earth, so have I sworn neither to be wroth with you nor to rebuke you. 10 For the mountains shall depart and the hills totter, but My kindness shall not depart from you, neither shall the covenant of My peace totter," says the Lord, Who has compassion on you.

So you see that throughout the chapters that surround Isaiah 53, the prophet is speaking of the salvation of the afflicted Jewish nation in the presence of their persecutors, the gentile nations with their anti-Semitic hatred for the Jewish people.

Deuteronomy 7:19

19 The great miracles that you saw with your own eyes - the signs, the wonders, the mighty hand and the outstretched arm with which God brought you (the nation, not one person) out of Egypt.

Again, the subject is the nation and not an individual. Thus the astonishment of the Gentile rulers and kings, including the religious rulers among the Gentiles, when God supernaturally intervenes and saves the nation of Israel despite what the Gentiles and Christianity in particular have taught theologically about the Jewish people over the last several thousand of years.

THROUGHOUT THEIR PERILOUS EXILE, ISRAEL (THE NATION AND NOT JUST ONE PERSON) STRUGGLED AS A YOUNG TREE GROWING ON A PARCHED LAND

Isaiah 53:2

Isaiah 53:2 (Tanakh) And he came up like a sapling before it, and like a root out from dry ground; he had no features and no splendor; and we saw him that he had no appearance; and how could we desire him?

Isaiah 53:2 (KJV) – For he shall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: he hath no form nor comeliness; and when we shall see him, there is no beauty that we should desire him.

When we look at these two comparison Scriptures we find a very significant difference.

Answer for yourself: Do you see it?

The Christian KJV changes the past tenses of the Hebrew verbs into future tenses. Of course they had to if they want to make it appear as if Isaiah was speaking about a future Jesus of Nazareth as the Jewish Messiah and Savior. Since Isaiah 52:15 clearly indicates that the text which follows it is spoken sometime in the future from a past tense perspective, the KJV translation is in error by projecting the context of this verse into the future.

Again we find the writer using metaphors. Isaiah 53:2 begins to describe the reasons and grounds for the Gentile nations' disbelief of Israel being God's servant as expressed in the preceding verse by the (leaders of the Gentile) nations. Throughout the Jewish nation's harsh and dangerous exiles, the Jewish people struggled and endeavored to exist and live like a young tree growing on parched land. This imagery of a tree struggling to grow in dry earth is often used in the Hebrew Scriptures metaphorically for Israel's struggle to survive in their exiles. Many examples could be cited but let us only look at one:

Ezekiel 19:10-13 – (10) Your mother is like a vine in your likeness, planted by the water, fruitful and full of branches from the abundance of water. (11) And it had sturdy rods for the scepters of rulers, and its stature was exalted among the thick branches, and it could be seen because of its height with its multitude of tendrils. (12) But it was plucked up in fury and it was cast down to the ground, and the east wind dried up its fruit; its sturdy rods were broken and withered – fire consumed them. (13) And now it is planted in the wilderness, in a dry and thirsty ground.

Now you are beginning to see that this chapter, Isaiah 53, does not refer to a later supposed historical Jesus, but the Jewish people in total.

Answer for yourself: Does Christianity today desire to learn from the Jewish people? Do they read Rabbinical commentaries on the Old Testament to see what God's true message was through Israel before Rome changes the Hebrew Scriptures as found in our Old and New Testaments like they exist today? Are you beginning to see these things for yourself?

Answer for yourself: Does Christianity today desire to keep the Jewish Sabbath which is different from their own which can be shown to be a creation of Rome in reaction to the Jewish Sabbath?

Answer for yourself: Does Christianity today desire to keep the Biblical Festivals or does it have its own Roman calendar filled with pagan holidays to which Jesus' name has been added?

Let it not be misunderstood that for the most part, non-Jewish Christianity today views the nation of Israel no different than the historical perspective of these Gentile kings mentioned in Isaiah 53. Israel is and will always be God's "Suffering Servant", even if Christian theology sees little within it that they desire.

Hosea 14:6-8

6 I will be as the dew unto Israel: he shall grow as the lily, and cast forth his roots as Lebanon. 7 His branches shall spread, and his beauty shall be as the olive tree, and his smell as Lebanon. 8 They that dwell under his shadow shall return; they shall revive as the corn, and grow as the vine: the scent thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon.

Again further proof that the nation of Israel [corporate] is described in the singular [see above the "his" and its connection with "Israel"]. But also notice this, those who allow the branches of Israel to spread whereby they dwell under Israel's shadow shall return.

Answer for yourself: Return to what?

The true faith of God where we are truly grafted into Israel and we must correctly understand the Hebrew Scriptures if we ever hope of coming to the truth about Rome's Jesus in the New Testament

Answer for yourself: Why do we as former Christians need to return to the faith once given to the saints?

Simply...

19 O Lord, my strength, and my fortress, and my refuge in the day of affliction, the Gentiles shall come unto thee from the ends of the earth and shall say, "Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things wherein there is no benefit. 20 Shall a man make Gods unto himself, and they are no Gods?

One such lie is that Isaiah refers to Jesus as God's only Suffering Servant in Isaiah 53. Hopefully by now God is opening your eyes to the beauty of the Jewish people and their Torah and the wonderful role they play and always have played at God's true Suffering Servant.

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH...THE TRUTH ABOUT ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #5

I need to preface that this study with a statement as to interpretation before we go on. All that follows is to understood and done from a "literal-historical" perspective of a supposed "historical Jesus" and I chose to approach this study in this manner in order to contrast the differences between the Jewish views of the human Messiah and Messianic prophecy as found in the true Hebrew Scriptures and not the later corruptions of them at the hands of Hellenized Essenes with their forgeries in the Greek Old Testament as well as the later Gentile Roman corruptions the Jewish Messiah and Messianic prophecy which we find in our Old and New English Testaments today. This might sound strange that I would make such a declaration but for now we cannot devote time to the critical problem of a "historical Jesus" and loose our focus upon Isaiah 53. We live in a world where 2.5 billion Christians believe in a "historical Jesus" and look to passages like Isaiah 53 as well as the whole of the New Testament and their corrupted quotes of these Hebrew Scriptures as proof that this Jesus who "saves them" is a real person. Know this in passing however; when your studies evolve to the point where you can tackle the historical reliability of the whole of the New Testament, its alterations and corruptions of a prior Gnostic New Testament with the synonymous examination of the over twenty or more ancient "Jesus Stories" since ancient Egypt down through history recorded in Comparative Religions and their Sacred Books as well as the ancient Divine Spiritual Wisdom and Spiritual allegories of the "Descent of the Soul and Krst/Karest/Christ" into "matter" and "flesh/humanity" then you will completely understand my preface above. We all start our reading of this Bible and interpretation of it at a "literal" and "historical" perspective long before we mature to the point, if we ever do, to see it completely as a Metaphysical Divine Revelation of this cosmos and the Living Energy we call God who descended into all material manifestations. For now, however, in order to correctly understand Isaiah 53 and the New Testament's theology concerning this "Jesus", we must begin at the beginning and adopt this assumed "literal-historical" perspective. This is critical and necessary in order to substantiate the truth of Biblical Judaism and its Hebrew Scriptures in light of their later corruptions and gross disfigurement and alteration at the hands primarily of Rome in their rejection of anything "Jewish". Now let us move on.

In our previous articles we have demonstrated that the Suffering Servant in Isaiah is to be understood as the collective peoples of Israel and not just one person. Thus to say that Isaiah 53 refers to solitary individual names Jesus is to misinterpret the intended meaning of the prophet Isaiah.

As we continue along we noticed that the Gentile rulers, both political and spiritual will be utterly amazed as the events in the future when God intervenes and saves and vindicates not only the Jewish people but vindicate the whole of their Religious beliefs in spite of what Christianity has taught about the Jewish people and them being "blinded" which we find in later additions to Epistle of Romans. Things like this was necessary in order to safeguard anyone looking to Jerusalem and Judaism for anything, let alone the "Egyptian Roots" behind the whole of this even. You have heard its said: "All roads lead to Rome" and alteration of the Sacred Texts of the Jewish nation was but one way that Rome endeavored to make sure than none miss this "Roman Road to Salvation".

By way of review, let us never forget that we previously showed again and again that both singular and plural pronouns are used interchangeable between Isaiah chapters 40-66 to describe the whole Nation of Israel and this understanding is critical to our correct understanding of the identity of the "Suffering Servant" when we come to Isaiah 52, 53, and 54. We saw repeatedly not only that the "Suffering Servant" of these Servant Songs is the collective nation of Israel but that such interchangeability of singular and plural pronouns and nouns in Isaiah 52-54 rule out the subject of these Scriptures being a single individual like Jesus. This means that all theology which interjects Jesus into Isaiah 53 is erroneous to the facts demonstrated and such a depiction as found in later Roman New Testament texts is equally erroneous.

Now in this present article we will deal with common misconceptions and misinterpretations of Isaiah 53 which erroneously have been applied to Jesus, when again if we correctly interpret the passage, refers to the corporate nation once again.

THE NATIONS OF THE WORLD DESPISED, ABANDONED, AND AFFLICTED ISRAEL...NOT ONE PERSON [JESUS]

Isaiah 53:3

Isaiah 53:3 (Tanakh) He was despised and forsaken by men; a man of pains, and accustomed to illness, and as one from whom we would hide our faces; he was despised, and we had no regard for him.

Isaiah 53:3(KJV) – He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not.

Answer for yourself: Do you see a problem existing between these two Scriptures? Did you notice that again there is a purposeful change of tenses in the later Christian translation of the prior Hebrew Scripture?

Answer for yourself: Who is being described as "forsaken" in these verses? Does this refer to a single man or a nation?

Isaiah 49:7 – Thus said the Lord, the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, to him who is despised of men, to him who is abhorred by nations, to him who is a slave of rulers, ...

Here we find just previous to Isaiah 52-54 the same writer, in the same book, identify the corporate nation of Israel as being "despised" and "abhorred" by the non-Jewish nations. This same sentiment is found only 3 chapters later repeated again. Let us never forget who again is speaking in this passage. Contrary to previous thought we read reading texts reflecting the non-Jewish nations and their view of Israel. It is the non-Jew who, when looking at the Jewish people, thought them "despised", "forsaken", a "hurting people", a "diseased people", and worthy of "no regard" by any others. But God sets us right in our mistaken perspectives only a few chapters later.

Isaiah 60:15 – Instead of your being forsaken and hated without a passerby, I will make you an everlasting pride, the joy of every generation.

Isaiah 53:3 describes the one whom the (Gentile) nations characterize as having been despised, as being a "man of pains" who is accustomed to illness, and similar pictures were drawn elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible. The lesson here is that all this has been going on for thousands of years, for centuries. Therefore, these descriptions can only be of a people, not of a single individual.

Answer for yourself: With the understanding brought by the previous two articles, can you begin to see that the singular “man” and “him” must refer collectively to the nation of Israel as shown in the previous two documents?

Answer for yourself: Can you now better understand why I began the first article with stressing the differences between eisegesis and exegesis (reading into the text something not there or allowing the texts and context surrounding the Biblical text to define its meaning)?

ISAIAH 49

The 49th chapter of Isaiah stands out as one of the most stirring sections of the Bible, and continues to set the stage for Isaiah 53. Its verses contain a moving conversation between Israel and God. As in all the Servant Songs, Isaiah repeatedly refers to nation of Israel in the singular.

Throughout this chapter the Jewish remnant cries out to God; the nation feels forsaken, afflicted, and abandoned. These passages do not refer to Jesus (one person) and his passion but the Jewish peoples of all ages. These are the very same descriptions of torment that the "Suffering Servant" endures in Isaiah 53.

In response to their agony, the Almighty reassures His distressed nation that His love for His people even exceeds the intense affection a new mother feels for her hurting infant. As in Isaiah 53, the final vindication and salvation of the Jewish people and nation is the chapter's central theme.

Isaiah 49:3, 7-8, 13-15

3 And said to me, thou art My servant, O Israel in whom I will be glorified!

7 For so said the Lord, the redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, about him who is despised of men, about him whom the nation abhors, about a slave of rulers, "Kings (understood as nations) shall see and rise, princes, and they shall prostrate themselves, for the sake of the Lord Who is faithful, the Holy One of Israel, and He chose you (understood as the nation and not one person)." 8 So said the Lord, "In a time of favor I answered you, and on a day of salvation I helped you; and I will watch you, and I will make you for a people of a covenant, to establish a land, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages. 13 Sing, O heavens, and rejoice, O earth, and mountains burst out in song, for the Lord has consoled His people, and He shall have mercy on His afflicted. 14 But Zion said, "The Lord has forsaken me, and the Lord has forgotten me." 15 Shall a woman forget her suckling child, from having mercy on the child of her womb? These too shall forget, but I will not forget you (again referring to the nation).

Isaiah 54:4-7, 11, 14, 17

4 Fear not, for you shall not be ashamed, and not embarrassed, for you shall not be put to shame; for the shame of your youth you shall forget, and for the humiliation of your widowhood you shall no longer be remembered. 5 Nor your maker is your husband; the Lord Hosts is His name, and your redeemer the Holy One of Israel shall be called the God of all the earth. 6 For like a wife who is forsaken and afflicted in spirit has the Lord called you, and a wife of one's youth who was rejected, said your God. 7 For a small moment have I forsaken you, and with great mercy will I gather you.

11 O thou afflicted, who was not consoled, behold I will lay thy stones with fair colors, and lay thy foundations with sapphires.

14 With righteousness shall you be established, for you will be far from oppression, for you will not fear; and from ruin, for it will not come near you.

17 No weapon that is formed against you will prosper, and any tongue that rises against you in judgement, you shall condemn; this is the heritage of the servants of the Lord and their righteousness is from Me, says the Lord.

Understandably, one's familiarity with the chapters that precede and follow Isaiah 53 will determine the conclusions that one will come to regarding this crucial Scriptural text. If you never knew of these interchangeable singular and plural pronouns they you would never see it but once you do then your enlightenment can lead you down the road of truth. Those who are familiar only with the chapter of Isaiah 53 often wonder how anyone can conclude from a simple cursory reading of this English version of Isaiah 53 that anyone could conclude that Isaiah is speaking of anyone else but the New Testament Jesus, all the while failing to realize that unlike themselves who are preconditioned to "read into the texts" the idea of Jesus, the Jewish people, lacking such indoctrination, fail to do so and have for over 2,800 years to date. This should make you wonder "what do the Jewish people know that I don't"? But since "blinded" in Romans 11 by adding to Paul's Romans Rome has successfully affixed our gaze upon Rome instead of Jerusalem. One the other hand, those who read Isaiah 53 in context, with its surrounding chapters as a backdrop to Isaiah 53, have difficulty understanding how anyone can honestly read these same texts and conclude that Isaiah 53 is speaking of anything else but the corporate nation of Israel. I learned in Seminary the importance of the context surrounding the Scriptures we read but tragically once graduating it appears that most ministers go off to their ministries "brain dead" and loose the very ability to consider such Laws of Scriptural interpretation when opening this Bible. Scripture must be read in its proper context. Taken out of context, the Scriptures can be twisted to say just about anything. And going to Churches who stress preaching and not teaching guarantees you will be led astray since the are taught to preach by taking "one" or maybe "two" Scriptures and elaborating upon them; lost in the translation is the context from which this Scripture is found and most always in place of Scriptural truth preconditioned theology about Jesus one way or the other seems to always finds it way into the text whether it belong there of not.

Isaiah 60:14-15

14 The sons of them (Gentiles) that afflicted you shall come bending unto you; and all they that despised you shall bow themselves down at the soles of your feet; and they shall call you, the city of the Lord, Zion of the Holy One of Israel. 15 Whereas you have been forsaken and despised, with no passerby, I will make you an everlasting pride, the joy of every generation.

Isaiah 40:2

2 Speak to the heart of Jerusalem and call to her, for she has become full from her host, for her iniquity has been appeased, for she has taken from the hand of the Lord double for all her sins (from the Gentiles).

Zechariah 1:15

15 And I am very angry with the nations that are at ease, for I was wroth a little, and they helped to do harm.

Isaiah 52:4-5

4 For so said the Lord God, "My people first went down to Egypt to sojourn there, but Assyria oppressed him without cause. 5 And now, what have I here," says the Lord, "that My people have been taken for nothing, his rulers boast," says the Lord, "and constantly all day My name is blasphemed."

Isaiah 62:2-4, 12

2 And the Gentiles shall see your righteousness, and all kings your glory, and you shall be called a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall pronounce. 3 And you shall be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord and a Kingly crown on the land of your God. 4 No longer shall "Forsaken" be said of you, and "Desolate" shall no longer be said of your land, for you shall be called "My desire is in her," and your land, "Inhabited," for the Lord desires you, and your land shall be inhabited.

12 And they shall call them the holy people, those redeemed by the Lord, and you shall be called, "Sought, a city not forsaken."

These above passages, some before Isaiah 53, and some afterwards, all show one thing. The Gentile nations of the world despised, abandoned, persecuted, afflicted and have tried to destroy God's Servant. All passages have one thing in common as well. Those who were called "desolate, forsaken, afflicted, humiliated, despised", etc., refer to the collective people of Israel and cannot be applied as if referring to one single man let alone this Jesus of the New Testament.

HAS THE TRANSLATION OF ISAIAH 52 IN YOUR CHRISTIAN BIBLE BEEN ALTERED FROM WHAT IT ORIGINALLY READ IN THE HEBREW MANUSCRIPTS FROM WHICH IT WAS TRANSLATED? YEP!

It is sad to say, but attempts of many Gentile Christians over the ages, in order to change the original messages of the Hebrew prophets, have altered the text of your Bible and its translation to create their own theology. This is every evident to the "informed believer." You can investigate this for yourself not only below in this website when we deal with the alteration of the "Messianic prophecies" in the Christian's Bibles, but at the following websites:

Let us investigate on a smaller scale in this article.

It was shocking for me to finally admit that many Christian Bible translators have altered and terribly corrupted the texts Scriptures contained in my Christian KJV Bible for ulterior motives and goals. If you think that this pertains to only the KJV you have another think coming. Such corruptions in our Christian Bible It occurs way more often than you could imagine. For example, Isaiah 52 was altered by Christian translators because this chapter is crucial as it serves as an indictment against the Christianization of Isaiah 53. The close relationship between Isaiah 52 and 53 is outstanding because the theme, poetic structure and motif of Isaiah 53 closely mimics the illustrative language of Isaiah 52. In addition, the chapter break between Isaiah 52 and 53 is completely artificial. If Isaiah 52 is translated correctly, it is difficult to ignore the parallelism between these two chapters. Corresponding to Isaiah 53, Isaiah 52 clearly identifies Israel in the singular, suffering innocently as a result of the destructive arrogance and spiritual recklessness of the gentile nations as well as Gentile Christianity.

Most fervent Christians of all varieties believe that the Bible, especially the New Testament, is the inspired written words of God. They believe that those words were in some shape or form sent down directly from Heaven by God via the equivalent of e-mail or fax, or were communicated through the direct inspiration of every word written down by the authors of the biblical books. Unfortunately we do not have those original copies of any of the books of the Bible, not even of the New Testament. What we do have are multiple generations of error-ridden copies of those originals. For the first three centuries of its existence Christianity was an illegal and fugitive religion. What copying of the original documents took place was done by amateurs, in far from ideal circumstances, however diligent and devoted the copiers themselves undoubtedly were. This is where the rub comes. Comparison of these New Testament fragments shows over 400,000 variations among them. This does not occur when we look at the Hebrew Sacred Texts of which we are supposed to have a reliable translation. The Old Testament in our Christian Bibles fare not as good as we would like either. The original versions of the books of the New Testament as we have them were written in Greek, and they were unprofessionally copied throughout the first 300 years before Christianity became the state religion under Constantine. About 5,700 Greek manuscripts of the Bible survive today, even though some manuscripts only contain small fragments of the texts. Of these texts only ten contain the full bible as we know it today, and only four of these are earlier than the tenth century! Some of these alteration of the Hebrew Scriptures were deliberate changes to accommodate different theological points of view, or to ensure that Sacred Hebrew Scripture were so altered in order to corresponded to the anti-Jewish teachings of the early church. This is completely the reverse of what one thought would have been the correct procedure! You just don't know this happened or the degree to which it has when you read your Bible. In that collection of manuscripts some scholars estimate that there are as many as 400,000 places where the manuscripts are at variance with each other, or to put it in context as one noted biblical scholar expressed it, there are more variations of the text of the New Testament than there are words in the New Testament.

Answer for yourself: So in what sense can we claim to have in the English Scriptures the inspired written words of God, since there is so much uncertainty about what the correct words are? The only way to be sure is to compare them to the Hebrew Scriptures from which they are supposed to come and see if truly we have an accurate translation line for line, and religious precept after religious precept, or if we do not. I write these informative articles for other Christians like myself to know that "we do not have an accurate Christian translation of the Hebrew Scriptures in our Old and New Testaments as they stand today since Rome decided to radically reinterpret the ancient Divine Spiritual Wisdom" and in so doing bring the whole of the world through their "door of salvation". All you needed was fear and ignorance and Roman preaching provided that for centuries.

The (KJV) King James Version of the Bible and the (NIV) New International Version translators were certainly concerned about how Bible readers would accept the notion that Isaiah 53 is referring to Jesus, when Isaiah 52 so clearly describes the corporate nation of Israel as a single individual, innocently suffering as a result of the iniquity and sinful behavior of the nations of the world.

Answer for yourself: How did Christianity deal with this when printing their own Bibles; the Bibles like you most likely carry?

Get ready! Unscrupulous Christian translators, in effort to preserve their theology over truth, reconstructed crucial parts of the first half of Isaiah 52 so as not to resemble Isaiah 53's theme and poetic language. You only have to compare the Hebrew Isaiah 52 with the later English Isaiah 52 to see this for yourself!

For example, in Isaiah 52:4 the prophet recounts that "Assyria oppressed him [Israel the corporate nation as again spoken of in the singular] without a cause". As I have already attested, this concept that the nation of Israel innocently suffering as a single individual in Isaiah 52 is precisely the underlying theme of Isaiah 53. Surely you would never think that Assyria oppressed the supposed "historical" Jesus of Nazareth. The time frame is complete off. The reference here is 883 B.C.E. and not the first century in which the supposed historical Jesus was to have lived.

Again, in Isaiah 52:4 the prophet speaks of the Jewish people in the singular as does Isaiah 53. Thus the NIV altered the Hebrew text by removing the most offensive words of this verse. The NIV therefore reads: "lately, Assyria has oppressed them." The crucial words "without cause" have been removed.

Again, and even more important, the KJV as well as the NIV change the singular pronoun "him", referring to Israel being the "Suffering Servant" in this verse to "them."

Answer for yourself: Why would they change the Hebrew "him" into "them" in Isaiah 52:4?

Answer for yourself: Again, can you begin to see that we who owned Christian Bibles were set up in hopes that when we read Isaiah we might not make the connection that the singular pronoun "him," as used in such close proximity to Isaiah 52 where it means the corporate nation of Israel, would carry over in our thoughts when we read Isaiah 53? If we connect the idea that Isaiah is using the singular pronoun "him" to refer to the whole Jewish nation with the "him" in Isaiah 53 then this close proximity between Isaiah 52 and 53 would indicated that the whole nation of Israel is again being focused upon with the use of "him" again in Isaiah 53. Thus the need to change the "him" to "them" in the Christian translation in Isaiah 52 in order to make it more difficult to make the reader see that the subject, the whole nation of Israel as the "Suffering Servant", is again the subject of concern in Isaiah 53 as well. Think on this for a second and realize how you have been manipulated when reading your Bible and how the tenses of pronouns and plurality of nouns have been changed in our Christian translations in order to direct the reader to arrive at a completely different theological understanding of the Scriptures than God intended!

In Isaiah 52:5 the Hebrew word "moshlov" means "his rulers," referring to the nation of Israel's rulers. The nation of Israel once again is spoken of in the singular "his". Therefore, the KJV and NIV translators again change the singular pronoun "his" into the plural "them."

Isaiah 52:4 in the Hebrew Tanakh and Bible:

Assyria oppressed him without cause

Now notice if you will how Isaiah 52:4 reads in the Christian KJV:

the Assyrian oppressed them without cause

Now notice if you will how Isaiah 52:4 reads in the NIV:

lately, Assyria has oppressed them

Answer for yourself: Do you see for yourself the efforts spent in changing the Word of God so as to destroy your ability to connect the singular pronouns of Isaiah 52 and 53 with corporate nation of Israel?

Isaiah 52:5 in in the Hebrew Tanakh and Bible:

his rulers boast

Now notice if you will how Isaiah 52:5 reads in the Christian KJV:

they that rule over them make them howl

Now notice if you will how Isaiah 52:5 reads in the Christian NIV:

and those who rule them mock

Answer for yourself: Can you again see such lengths taken in changing “his” [singular] to “them [plural] by Christian Bible translators in order to change the Holy Word of God so that the reader will accept a later Christian reinterpretation (that Isaiah 53 refers to a single Jesus instead of the nation of Israel)? Can you see that you have been taught a lie instead of what God originally intended these Scriptures to teach?

Answer for yourself: Can you begin to see how such drastic steps were take as altering, adding, and deleting from the Word of God in order to make sure that when your read Isaiah 52 as well as Isaiah 53 you don't interpret the Suffering Servant as the nation of Israel? Can you see that in such purposeful mistranslation the sins of the world have been erroneously placed upon a single man when they never should have been there in the first place?

Answer for yourself: Have you read our atonement articles and already seen this in your studies of the role of "blood" in the Sacrificial System? Have you seen that a correct understanding of the Sacrificial System makes it impossible for anyone, let alone Jesus, to be the final sacrifice for another's sin?

they that rule over them make them howl

The irony of all this Bible-tampering is that these Christian translators changed the singular reference to Israel in Isaiah 52 into the plural and the plural references in Isaiah 53 into the singular. All this was done in the name of religion. Such is the very depth and strength of anti-Semitism masquerading in the Christian religion as holy religious beliefs given by God. Now you know differently!

Answer for yourself: So how come as Christians we don't know this when we read our Christian Bibles?

The answer is quite simple. When we bought a Bible we went to a Christian Book Store and bought what we were told and believed to be the "infallible written Word of God". Now you know that our English translations of the Bible are not "infallible" at all but a "worked over" piece of anti-Semitic theology crafted by Rome over hundreds of years. But as I have shown you, unless you compare the Old Testament passages and Scriptures in your Christian Bible with those of Hebrew-Jewish Scriptures found in the Hebrew Tanakh (Hebrew-English Bible), you cannot know if there are errors or changes in your Christian Bibles that have caused you to be led astray from the intended meaning of the text when first given by God to the holy men of old. Not knowing this you read these altered texts never knowing that you are being fed a bunch of "bull" and stand before God with religious beliefs that are 180 degrees opposed to what you should have been taught and believed about doctrine after doctrine. We are just touching the tip of this deception in Isaiah; the full implication and understanding of this great travesty and loss of Divine Truth comes to hit home like nothing you ever could believe when you look at the Messianic Prophecies that are altered to make it appear in the New Testament that Jesus is the fulfillment of the Messianic Prophecies and the Messiah of Israel. We will one day get to these prophecies but my website details this in great depth for those "truth-seekers" who cannot wait. I suggest that you finish with us this study in Isaiah before you embark upon another study but remember you can find it at this link at a later time.

Answer for yourself: How many of you can actually say that when you go to church you compare every passage quoted in the New Testament with the Hebrew Scriptures and the Jewish Tanakh (Bible).

Answer for yourself: Before now, were you aware that such alterations, additions, and deletions occurred in your Christian Bibles? How much of our current religious belief system as crafted by Rome and its altered Bible is false and you don't know it?

Answer for yourself: Can we be confident that when reading from a Christian Bible that the passage we are reading in the Old Testament in our Christian Bible is accurately translated from the Hebraic original? The examples given in this article are again but the tip of the iceberg! If you have any doubt then the other articles on Bet Emet's websites should enlighten you to the degree of the deception to which we have been exposed in the Christian Church and our Christian Bibles.

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH: THE TRUTH ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #6

Now in this article we will continue to deal with common misconceptions and misinterpretations of Isaiah 53 which erroneously have been applied to Jesus which rightfully apply to the collective nation of Israel and all the people of that nation. We will discover that it was not Jesus who suffered as a result of the iniquity of the world, but that the nation of Israel suffered as the result of the sins of the Gentile nations. We will also examine if it was Jesus who interceded for the world or if it was the nation of Israel. Lastly we will examine if Jesus was the sacrifice Isaiah 53 was speaking about, or if the remnant of Israel was the one massacred like sheep for the slaughter by the Gentile "anti-Semites" of the world.

- In our previous articles we have demonstrated that the "Suffering Servant" in the Book of Isaiah is to be understood as the "collective peoples of Israel" and not just one person. Thus to say that Isaiah 53 refers to a single person, in this instance to Jesus, is to totally misinterpret the Hebrew Scriptures and meaning intended by the Prophet Isaiah when he wrote these passages.
- As we continue along we noticed that the Gentile rulers and nations of the world despised, abandoned, and afflicted Israel. We noticed that the imagery as well as the pronouns used by the prophet in Isaiah 52 through 54 applied to the nation of Israel and not to only one man. We noticed that although Christianity does not interpret Isaiah 53 correctly today, that both the world political and spiritual leaders will one day be utterly amazed at the events in the future when God intervenes and saves the Jewish people in spite of what Christianity has taught about the Jewish people.
- Finally we have showed repeatedly that pronouns used in Isaiah 52, 53, and 54, which normally seen as used in the "singular", in reality in the contest of the passages they are used, are to be understood in the "plural" where they refer to the collective peoples of the nation of Israel.

Now let us continue this "eye-opening" study from the Hebrew Scriptures.

ONE DAY CHRISTIANITY AND ALL GENTILE WORLD LEADERS WILL REALIZE THAT THE NATION OF ISRAEL AND THE JEWISH PEOPLE SUFFERED AS A RESULT OF THEIR SINS

To make sure we don't lose focus of who is speaking in Isaiah 53 let me ask again this simple question which was already asked.

Answer for yourself: Let us ask once again...who is speaking? The Gentile political and spiritual leaders of the world.

I want to refocus upon Isaiah 53 but our focus now will not be upon the interchangeability of the singular and plural pronouns but on the context as seen from the Hebrew and later English translations in our Christian Bibles:

Isaiah 53:3 (Tanakh) He was despised and forsaken by men; a man of pains, and accustomed to illness, and as one from whom we would hide our faces; he was despised, and we had no regard for him.

Isaiah 53:3(KJV) – He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not.

As was the case with the previous verse, once again there is the a problem of different tenses concerning the verbs in the KJV rendition. The past tense "was" is mistranslated as "is" in the Christian Bible. This only substantiates Rome's Replacement Religion as the "New Israel" since, according to the Christian Bible, Israel "is" still despised and forsaken of men instead of respected and esteemed.

Israel is described as being despised elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible:

Isaiah 49:7 – Thus said the Lord, the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, to him who is despised of men, to him who is abhorred by nations, to him who is a slave of rulers, ...

Nehemiah 3:36 – Harken, our God, for we have been despised, and return their reproach upon their head, and make them despised in a land of captivity.

Israel is described as being forsaken:

Isaiah 60:15 – Instead of your being forsaken and hated without a passerby, I will make you an everlasting pride, the joy of every generation.

Israel is described as being afflicted, with the adversities often likened to injuries and diseases:

Isaiah 1:5-6 – (5) Why are you beaten when you continue to rebel? Every head is [afflicted] with illness and every heart with malaise. (6) From the sole of the foot to the head, nothing in him is whole; only wounds and contusions and fresh sores; they have not been treated, and they have not been bandaged, and [the wound] has not been softened with oil.

Jeremiah 10:19 – Woe is to me for my hurt; my wound is acute, and I said [to myself], "This is but an illness, I will bear it".

Isaiah 53:3 describes the one whom the Gentile nations characterize as having been despised, as being a "man of pains" who is accustomed to illness, and similar pictures were drawn elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible regarding the whole nation of Israel as mistakenly viewed by the non-Jewish nations. This tragic forgery and alteration of the Hebrew Scriptures and the resultant misinterpretation of the Jewish nation can be laid at the feet of Rome and the Christian Bible. This has been going on now for over 1,800 years and until Christians begin to compare the Hebrew Scriptures from a Hebrew-English Bible like the Stone Edition Tanakh then there is little hope that they will ever come to the truth about Judaism, the Hebrew Scriptures, and the tragic mischaracterization of the New Testament Christ at the hands of Rome. Therefore, these descriptions can only be of a people, not of a single individual.

Now let us advance in our studies and remember the Gentile nations and their Kings and rulers are speaking. A new "voice" appears in Isaiah 53:1 – the "voice" of the Gentile nations or, perhaps, the "voice" of a spokesperson for them or their leaders. Given this change in "speakers", and based on their contextual consistency with the teachings of the Hebrew Bible and the historical record, the following exposition of the texts continues to confirm the validity of the hypothesis that Israel, as God's servant, is the subject in the Fourth Servant Song.

Isaiah 53:4

Isaiah 53:4 (Tanakh) Indeed, he [corporate nation of Israel] bore our illnesses, and our pains – he [corporate nation of Israel] has carried them, yet we had regarded him [corporate nation of Israel] plagued, smitten by God, and oppressed.

Isaiah 53:4 (KJV) Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted.

Here, the KJV suddenly reverts to the past tense, which makes it somewhat more consistent with the Jewish translation and with the Hebrew text.

Answer for yourself: Coming to the awareness of Israel as the true servant then what are these Gentile nations actually saying about Israel?

Here we find the Gentile nations saying that they saw nothing worthwhile in the Jewish people, so they despised them. Eventually, the Gentile nations thrust their own troubles on them, using the Jewish people as a convenient scapegoat, thereby allowing themselves to escape their own problems and blaming the Jewish people for everything. They would go on to say that now they realize that, in . In other words the Jewish nation and the Jewish people suffered directly from the actions and sins of the Gentile nations toward them. They go on to declare that as they witnessed the suffering of the Jewish people they told themselves that God was the one who caused this pain toward the Jewish people and they got what they deserved. Yet, in truth, the Jewish people suffered at the hands of the non-Jewish nations due to their ignorance of the ways of God; not because of God but because the Gentile nations knew not the God of the Bible. Religion is a poor substitute for knowledge about God and a relationship with God based upon truth instead of forged texts which have for the last 1,800 years served to produce not only political but military activity against the Jewish people and the nation of Israel.

The prophet Jeremiah alludes to the actions of the (Gentile) nations when he speaks of the redemption of God's servant, Israel:

Jeremiah 30:10,17 – (10) "And you, fear not, My servant Jacob," says the Lord, "and do not be dismayed, O Israel, for behold, I am saving you from afar and your seed from the land of their captivity, and Jacob shall again be at peace and tranquil, and none will frighten him."

(17) "For I will bring healing to you, and of your wounds I will heal you," says the Lord, "for they called you an outcast [saying], 'she is Zion for whom no one cares'."

The Gentile nations acknowledge that Israel was the victim who bore the dire penalties which the iniquities of others have incurred. The Gentile nations' own misdeeds, and not God punishing Israel for its sins, inflicted the suffering on Israel. The Jewish people have been forced to carry ills and pains caused by the direct actions of the Gentile nations. They have borne the consequences of the Gentile nations' sickness, and have suffered and continue to suffer because of them. The Gentile nations have held that the Jewish people are cursed by God, and they were and still are determined to see that they suffer the consequences of this alleged curse.

Answer for yourself: Most likely your whole life you have been told that Isaiah 53, when it said “he bore our illnesses” and “was smitten by God and oppressed,” was referring to Jesus. Now what do you think since reading the past five articles?

Answer for yourself: When Isaiah [as shown repeatedly before in the first five articles when he repeatedly uses singular pronouns to refer to the corporation nation of Israel], refers to God’s Suffering Servant as the singular nation of Israel, whose identity are we now to think of [Jesus or Israel] when we see the prophet saying “he was wounded because of our transgressions, crushed because of our iniquities; the chastisement of our welfare was upon him, and with his wounds we were healed”?

"ARE" HEALED OR "WERE" HEALED?

The importance of knowing the identity of the "speakers" was pointed out at the start of the analysis. As Chapter 53 opens, we saw that an abrupt change occurs in the "voice", and the prophet conveys the words of the Gentile nations. In the present segment, Isaiah 53:5-8, the Gentile nations are still "speaking", confessing their guilt and admitting the unjust mistreatment of the servant and nation of Israel at their hands, as they begin to recognize Israel's proper place and role in history.

Isaiah 53:5 (Tanakh) But he was pained because of our transgressions, crushed because of our iniquities; the chastisement of our welfare was upon him, and with his wounds we were healed.

Isaiah 53:5(KJV) – But he was woundedfor our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that there are significant and very meaningful differences between the two translations?

The first problem concerns the expressions "because of" in the Hebrew Scriptures and the translation of "because of" as "for" in the Christian KJV interpretation, which are not interchangeable in the context of this verse. The Hebrew Scriptures relates that the servant was hurt due to the sinful acts of the Gentile nations, i.e., the cause was the behavior of the Gentile nations against and toward the servant, and the effect was his being hurt and injured. The Christian rendition attempts to convey the message that the servant vicariously took on the sins of the people, which caused him, and not them, to bear the consequences. In other words, the servant took on the iniquities and sins of others and, thereby, causing their sins to be expiated through his suffering. This idea of vicarious atonement, of course, is diametrically opposed to the teachings of the Hebrew , where human vicarious atonement is strictly forbidden; every person is responsible for his or her own sins (e.g., Exod 32:31-33; Num 35:33; Deut 24:16; 2 Kgs 14:6; Jer 31:29 [30 in Christian Bibles]; Ezek 18:4,20; Ps 49:7-8). Again I refer to the atonement teaching articles that brings this out so clearly when looking at the Sacrificial System and the "passive" role of the blood and the "active" role of the Soul.

But there is another great problem. In the closing phrase of the verse, a change in tenses occurs in the KJV relative to the Jewish translation. The KJV has "... we are healed ...", while the in the Jewish translation we find "... we were healed ...". The application of the root verb, (rapha), "[to] heal", is common in the Hebrew Bible. However, the phrase (nirpa-lanu) is an idiomatic expression that occurs only once, at Isaiah 53:5. The first word in this phrase, (nirpa), is the 3rd-person, singular, masculine, past tense conjugation of the root verb in the niph'al stem (a passive construct), giving it the meaning "[he/it] was healed". The second word in the phrase is (lanu), meaning "to/for us". Thus, the literal translation of the phrase (nirpa-lanu) would be "[it] was healed for us", referring to an illness, and from which the idiomatic expression that means we were healed was formed.

Finally, the KJV and the Jewish translations differ on the way they render a term that derives from the Hebrew word (havurah). The KJV renders it as a stripe (plural, stripes), meaning a blow or a stroke (as from a whip), while the Jewish translation renders it as a wound (plural, wounds). The KJV rendition in Isaiah 53:5 not only differs from the correct translation, but also is inconsistent with its own renditions of this term in six other instances where it is again used in the English Old Testament.

The meaning of this verse, with Israel as the servant, is consistent with the history of the Jewish people, and with their promised future, as was already shown before. The Gentile nations are realizing that their own sickness of anti-Semitism became the vehicle for their oppression of the Jewish people throughout the years. They brought suffering on the Jews for their own selfish purposes; it was not, as they had claimed, God punishing Israel for its own sinful behavior, such as the claim by some of the Gentile nations regarding Israel's rejection of Jesus. Whereas the Gentile nations believed that Israel was undergoing divine retribution for sins, they now realize that the suffering of the servant was also due to their actions and sinfulness.

Jeremiah 10:25 Pour out Your wrath upon the nations that do not know You and upon the families that have not called in Your name, for they have devoured Jacob and consumed him and destroyed him, and have wasted his dwelling.

Jeremiah 50:7 All who found them devoured them, and their adversaries said, "We are not to blame because they sinned against the Lord, the Abode of justice and the hope of their forefathers – the Lord."

Previously it was demonstrated how Israel is often spoken of as bruised and wounded due to the acts of the Gentile nations. The healing they have experienced may be the end of this anti-Semitism once they will have had this magnificent revelation about Israel.

So now you see that in order to stress the ongoing and ever-current atonement of Jesus according to Roman theology, the Roman Christian Bible has to incorrectly translate "with his wounds we are healed," in the present tense. Actually, the nations are speaking here of Israel's past suffering, therefore the verse correctly reads "we were healed".

Answer for yourself: Oh, by the way have you ever studied the true Biblical Atonement and understood it correctly? Well, if you have not, then now is your chance and after having done so then you will see for certain that it is impossible to connect "atonement", vicarious or not, to the death of another for one's personal sins. This again is an unbelievable "eye-opening" study worthy of your consideration but I recommend that you finish the Isaiah 53 study first then by all means next do the atonement studies. Then you begin to see why I have dedicated my life to teaching the truth to my brothers and sisters in Christianity about God and the "Jesus Story" and why I no longer could continue as a Pastor at a mega church which teaches these errors.

Ezekiel 36:6-9, 6 Therefore, prophesy about the land of Israel and say to the mountains and to the hills, to the streams and to the valleys: Thus says my Lord, God: Behold! In My jealousy and in My anger I have spoken, because the shame of the nations you have borne. 7 Therefore, thus says my Lord, God: I have lifted My hand in an oath. Surely the nations which surround you - they will bear their shame. 8 But you, O mountains of Israel - you shall shoot forth your branches and bear your fruit for My people Israel, when they are about to come. 9 For behold! I am for you, and I shall turn to you; then you shall be tilled and sown.

Ezekiel 15:6 6 And I shall no longer cause the ridicule of nations to be heard about you, and the shame of the nations you shall no longer bear, of your nations you shall never again be bereaved - the word of my Lord, God.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that there is a time limit for Israel carrying the iniquity of the nations as well as carrying the sins of the nations upon herself?

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that there is a time limit where Israel will no longer bear the shame of the nations?

Jeremiah 30:8-13 8 And it shall be on that day, says the Lord of hosts, (that) I will break his yoke off your neck, and I will break your thongs, and strangers shall no longer enslave them [the nation of Israel].9 And they shall serve the Lord their God and David their king, whom I will set up for them. 10 And you [servant nation], fear not, My servant Jacob, says the Lord, and do not be dismayed, O Israel, for behold I save you from afar and your seed from the land of their captivity, and Jacob shall again be silent and at ease, and no one will frighten them. 11 For I am with you, says the Lord, to save you, for I will make an end of all the nations where I dispersed you, but of you I will not make an end, but I will chasten you in measure, and I will not completely destroy you. 12 For so said the Lord: Your bruise [the nation's bruise] is painful, your wound [nations's wound] grievous. 13 No one deems your wound [nation's wound] to be healed, you have no healing medicines.

As you can readily see the evil manner in which the Gentile nations, as well as Christianity over the centuries, have treated the Jewish people have contributed to the sufferings of Israel. Such sufferings at the hands of Gentiles and Gentile nations is described in Isaiah 53:4-5 ....(my paraphrase)...”Israel bore the pains inflicted upon them by the Gentile nations who misunderstood them, and such suffering was incorrectly interpreted by the oppressors as if Israel had been forsaken by God. Because of the Gentiles’ sins against Israel the peoples of God were crushed, and the Gentiles thought they were doing God a favor by persecuting and killing the Jewish people”.

IN SPITE OF SUCH CRUEL TREATMENT BY THE GENTILE NATIONS OF THE WORLD...ISRAEL PRAYED FOR THEIR OPPRESSORS

Remembering what we have already learned that singular pronouns in the Servant Songs of Isaiah refer to the nation of Israel and not to only one person like Jesus, we find the following verses even the more astonishing.

Isaiah 53:6

Isaiah 53:6 (Tanakh) We all went astray like sheep, we have turned, each one on his way, and the Lord inflicted upon him [or, accepted his prayers for] the iniquity of all of us.

Isaiah 53:6 (KJV) – All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.

The last phrase of this verse may be translated in two ways, as shown in the Jewish rendition. While the common rendering is similar to the KJV translation, it does not convey the message of vicarious atonement that is being promoted in the KJV. When God punished Israel, He often used the Gentile nations as His "rod of discipline":

Isaiah 10:5 – Woe that Assyria is the rod of My wrath, and My fury is a staff in their hand[s].

Habakkuk 1:12 – Are You not from everlasting, O Lord, my God, my Holy One? We shall not die. O Lord, You have ordained them [the Chaldeans] for judgment, and, O Mighty God, You have established them for correction.

The Gentile nations were used by God to punish Israel, but they overstepped their license, thereby causing Israel to suffer more than was intended.

The alternate translation, in which the phrase "... inflicted upon him ..." is replaced with the phrase "...

accepted his prayers for ...", is also plausible in terms of the parameters of the Hebrew language. The verb used here, (hiphgi'a), is the 3rd-person, singular, masculine, past tense conjugation of the root verb (paga) in the hiph'il stem (an active verb construct). The root verb (paga) has common Biblical applications in the context of [to] hit, [to] hurt, [to] inflict, [to] insult, and less common applications in the context of [to] bid, [to] pray, [to] request, [to] supplicate (e.g., Gen 23:8; Jer 7:16, 27:18; Job 21:15; Ruth 1:16). Therefore, according to this interpretation, the Gentile nations, like stray sheep, left the path of goodness to do whatever they wanted, and through it all, the Jewish people prayed and interceded for them. An example of such action is demonstrated in Jeremiah's letter to the Jewish exiles in Babylon, wherein he conveys to them God's message to pray for the peace of the cities in which they dwell:

Jeremiah 29:7 7 And seek the peace of the city where I have exiled you [nation of Israel] and pray for it to the Lord, for in its peace you shall have peace.

Now let us never again under estimate the importance of the prayer service in the Jewish synagogues of the world for by it atonement came for Gentile sins.

THE REMNANT OF ISRAEL HAS BEEN MASSACRED LIKE SHEEP FOR THE SLAUGHTER

Answer for yourself: Are we not led to believe, according to Christianity that Jesus as Messiah was rejected by the people of Israel and ultimately killed by them? We sure are but we need to reconsider this in light of what we have seen and will continue to see.

Although the Bible explicitly and repeatedly describes the Jewish people [Suffering Servant as corporate Israel] as afflicted and despised by the Gentile nations, there is not even one clear reference to the Messiah as afflicted or despised anywhere in all of the Jewish Scriptures.

In light of what we have discovered about singular pronouns referring to corporate Israel, it is easy to see that it was the nation of Israel again which was afflicted. Just a brief overview of anti-Semitism from the annals of Church history is enough to make you sick. Notice the references below which describe the Jewish nation as afflicted by the Gentile nations.

Isaiah 53:7

Isaiah 53:7 (Tanakh) He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he would not open his mouth; like a lamb to the slaughter he would be brought, and like a ewe that is mute before her shearers, and he would not open his mouth.

Isaiah 53:7 (KJV) – He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth: he is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth.

The remnant of Israel has been massacred like sheep being slaughtered. This symbolism, of Israel being slaughtered like sheep, is common in the Bible. Here is but two of many examples:

Zechariah 11:4-7 – (4) So said the Lord, my God: "Tend the flock of slaughter, (5) whose buyers shall slay them and not be guilty; and whose sellers shall say, 'Blessed be the Lord, for I have become wealthy'; and whose shepherds shall not have pity on them. (6) For I will no longer have pity on the inhabitants of the land," says the Lord. "And behold! I will deliver the men, each one into his neighbor's hand and into his king's hand. And they shall crush the land, and I will not save [them] from their hand[s]. (7) And I tended the flock of slaughter; indeed, the poor of the flock. And I took for Myself two staffs; one I called Pleasantness, and one I called Destroyers; and I tended the flock."

Psalms 44 vividly portrays for us the the recurring oppression and persecution of the Jewish people in exile, with Israel pleading for strength to endure until they are redeemed. The fact that the Jewish people have suffered through and because of the sins of the Gentile nations is hardly disputable. Yet, in spite of all the troubles that befell the Jewish people throughout their history, there always existed a righteous remnant who never blamed God for their troubles. As far as their relationship with God was concerned, they voiced no resentment and, though led to their deaths, they remained meek as sheep.

Psalm 18:28 29 For you will save the afflicted nation; and you will bring down haughty looks.

Here is a few more examples taken from the Psalms:

Psalm 44:12, 14-15, 22:12 You have delivered us like sheep for the slaughter, and among the gentiles you have scattered us.

14 You made us a disgrace to our neighbors, the mockery and scorn of those around us. 15 You made us a byword among the nations [Gentile nations] to shake their heads.

22:12 Because for Your sake we are killed all day long, we are considered as sheep for the slaughter.

Psalms 44 describes the plight of the righteous remnant of Israel. Notice how the language used above so accurately describes the condition of the Jewish people and parallels that of Isaiah 53 as well, again reflecting the whole of the nation of Israel and not a lone person.

Answer for yourself: Is it not interesting to note that the Jews were both shorn and slaughtered in the Nazi death camps? And when they were led on their death marches to the gas chambers or to the front of mass grave pits to be shot, all they had on their lips is the Shema (Deut 6:4).

Here are a few more examples.

Ezekiel 34:15-16 15 I will tend My sheep, and lay them down-the words of my Lord, God. 16 The lost, I will seek out; and the banished, I will retrieve; the wounded, I will heal, and the frail, I will strengthen. But the fat one and the strong one, I will destroy. I will shepherd them with justice.

Zechariah 11:4-5, 7 4 So Said the Lord, my God: Tend the flock of the slaughter, 5 whose buyers shall lay them and not be guilty; and whose sellers shall say, "Blessed be the Lord, for I have become wealthy"; and whose shepherds shall not have pity on them.

7 And I tended the flock of slaughter, indeed, the poor of the flock.

THE GENTILE NATIONS ACKNOWLEDGE THAT AS A RESULT OF THEIR INIQUITY TOWARD THE JEWS (THEIR BOTHERS) THAT ISRAEL SUFFERED

Isaiah 53:8 [REMEMBER THE GENTILE KINGS REPRESENTING THE GENTILE NATIONS IS DOING THE SPEAKING IN THESE VERSES]

Isaiah 53:8 – From imprisonment and from judgment he was taken, and his generation who shall tell? For he was cut off from the land of the living; because of the transgression of my people, a plague came upon them.

Isaiah 53:8 (KJV) – He was taken from prison and from judgment: and who shall declare his generation? for he was cut off out of the land of the living: for the transgression of my people was he stricken.

Except for the last phrase in the verse, the two renditions are reasonably similar. A significant difference exists in the way the Hebrew word (lamo) is translated in the respective versions of the last phrase. The Jewish version renders the word as upon them, while the KJV renders it as he. This difference in translation also creates a significant difference in the context of the phrase. In the Jewish rendition, the context points to a nation that was stricken. In the KJV translation, the context points to an individual who was afflicted. Since both versions cannot be simultaneously valid, we must look again to the Hebrew from which we find that in the Christian translation we purposefully find that "them" was altered to "he" thus emphasizing a solitary "Suffering Servant" instead of the nation. But the Hebrew never said "he" or reflected the singular in this verse as you now see. Again our Christian Bible is forged on purpose to promote a "Jesus theology" instead of the truth. A closer look at the word "lamo" helps resolve this issue. A good Hebrew-Hebrew dictionary will identify the word "lamo" as a synonym for the word "lahem", meaning, them(selves), for them(selves), to/unto them(selves), they [have] (particularly in Biblical Hebrew). Again we find a purpose mistranslation for theological reasons by later Christianity.

In all but two cases, the KJV translation of "lamo" is in the plural and reasonably close to the correct context. The two exceptions are found at Isaiah 44:15 & 53:8 where the Christian translators had no other choice than to change the texts to support their existing "Jesus theology". Had they not then cracks would be seen by any reader and a questioning inquiry into such irregularity would have broken this textual deception wide open and other verses would then be suspect. Sooner or later more would see such problem texts and serious investigation and comparison with the Hebrew Scriptures would eventually prove the fallacy of interpreting Isaiah 53 as it refers to Jesus instead of the whole nation of Israel.

The KJV rendition provides a contextually incorrect translation for this passage and, therefore, the reader may get the wrong impression that this particular application of "lamo" is in the singular and not in the plural.

Answer for yourself: Who is again speaking in Isaiah 53? The rulers and kings of the Gentile nations.

Answer for yourself: Whose transgressions? The Gentile nation's and their sins toward the Jewish people!

Answer for yourself: Can you see for yourself that one day the Gentiles will face up to what they have done to the Jewish people and how they have sinned against them and altered their Jewish Scriptures?

Answer for yourself: To whom did a plague fall? The Jewish people. The nation of Israel who happens to be the subject of the Servant Songs of Isaiah.

So we see the prophet's use of the word "lamo" for "them" as a plural pronoun for the Suffering Servant presents a monumental problem for Christian Bible translators committed to making Jesus fit the Servant of Isaiah 53. Poetically, the prophets often speak of the Jewish nation in the singular to accentuate the nation's distinctive corporate destiny. The prophets, however, never speak of an individual in the plural. Therefore, the use of the Hebrew word "lamo" or "them", for the Servant of Isaiah 53, reveals that the Servant is NOT a single individual and these texts cannot and never did refer to Jesus.

The KJV, and NIV and other Christian Bibles solve this problem by mistranslating the word “them” as “him” in the singular.

Since discovering that the Hebrew Scriptures correctly render “lamo” as “them,” then let us look at how the Christian Bible does great injustice to the text by purposely mistranslating the verse to fit their erroneously theology. They change "them" to "him"!

Answer for yourself: In the following Scriptures we find "he" is the translation of the Hebrew "lamo" or "them". In each of these following Scriptures the Hebrew says "them" but our Christian translations do not; instead they have "him" instead. Why?

Isaiah 53:8b KJV for the transgressions of my people was he stricken

Isaiah 53:8b Modern Readers Bible for the transgression of my people was he stricken

Isaiah 53:8b NIV for the transgression of my people he was stricken

Isaiah 53:8b Living Bible it was their sins that he was dying for - that he was suffering their punishment

Nowhere in these above examples was the pronoun "lamo" intended to be rendered in the singular as “he;” rather, the correct interpretation is the plural as “them.”

Answer for yourself: Who changed the Hebrew Scriptures and why?

If we fail to realize who is speaking in Isaiah 53, then it is easy to see why Christians try to make this death spoken of in Isaiah 53 atone for the sins of the Jewish people, when in reality it is the death of the righteous remnant of Israel [corporate nation] which was due to the result of the sins of the Gentile nations committed against them.

But you see, if somehow you make Isaiah 53 to refer to Jesus [by failing to understand who is doing the speaking in Isaiah 53 and who is making a confession of "guilt" toward the Jewish people as well as changing the pronouns "them" to "him"] which I repeatedly have shown you occurred then and only then can you make a case for Jesus being the "subject" of Isaiah 53. But you have to change the Word of God to do that and forge the Hebrew Scriptural translation; something that has been done by Rome and few Christians ever find this out!

Dear ones, tampering with the Holy Word of God to make our "theology" fit is a sin and brings God's anger because of us changing His Word [your shall not add or take away...remember?!]

WE SEE THAT CHRISTIAN BIBLE TRANSLATORS CHANGED THE HEBREW WORD “LAMO” WHICH MEANT “THEM” TO THE SINGULAR “HE” IN ISAIAH 53 BECAUSE OF THEIR THEOLOGY...DID THEY DO THE SAME ELSEWHERE? ....NO...SO

WHY IN ISAIAH 53?

Well the answer is simple. Isaiah 53 did not serve Rome's "theological" purpose so it had to be changed.

Let us look at other KJV Scriptures where Bible translators corrected translated "lamo" correctly. We should wonder then why they could not or would not do the same when it came to Isaiah 53.

Deuteronomy 32:35 (King James) 32...for the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste.

Deuteronomy 33:2 (King James) 2 ...He shined forth from Mount Paran, and he came with ten thousands of saints: From His right hand went a fiery law for them

Job 6:19 (King James) 19 The troops of Tema looked, the companies of Sheba waited for them

Job 14:21 (King James) 2 His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them

Job 24:17 (King James) 17 For the morning is to them even as the shadow of death: if one know them...

Psalms 2:4 (King James) 4 He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: the Lord shall have them in derision.

Psalms 44:4 (King James, 44:3) 4 For they got not the land in possession by their own sword, neither did their own arm save them

Psalms 119:165 (King James) 165 Great peace have they which love Thy law: and nothing shall offend them

Isaiah 16:4 (King James) 4 Let Mine outcasts dwell with thee, Moab, be thou a covert to them from the face of the spoiler: for the extortioner is at an end, the spoiler ceaseth, the oppressors are consumed out of the land.

Isaiah 23:1 (King James) 1 The burden of Tyre. Howl, ye ships of Tarshish, for it is laid waste, so that there is no house, no entering in: from the land of Chinim it is revealed to them

Isaiah 44:7 (King James) 7 And who, as I, shall call, and shall declare it, and set it in order for Me, since I appointed the ancient people? And the things that are coming, and shall come, let them show unto them

Isaiah 48:21 (King James) 21 And they thirsted not when he led them through the deserts: He caused waters to flow out of the rock for them: He calve the rock also, and the waters gushed out.

Lamentations 1:19 (King James) 19 I called for my lovers, but they deceived me: my priests and mine elders gave up the ghost in the city, while they sought their meat to relieve their souls.

Habakkuk 2:7 (King James) 7 Shall they not rise up suddenly that shall bite thee, and awake that shall vex thee, and thou shalt be for booties unto them?

I find it amazing that the same Bible translators who changed the meaning of the Hebrew pronoun for “them” to “he” in Isaiah 53 in order to read into the text the identity of Jesus [individual instead of a corporate nation] instead of the correct meaning of the nation of Israel which the prophet intended, did not follow their own laws of interpretation elsewhere when confronted with the same word. For in the examples given above, they saw no need whatsoever to change the plural “them” to “he” as they did in Isaiah. It was not that they were unfamiliar with the word and made a simple mistake; no, this was done on purpose to deceive and mislead the reader and hold back from him Divine Truths!

Answer for yourself: How reliable are our Christian Bibles when those we trust to accurately translate the Scriptures are changing the very tense of the words to match their pre-formed theologies? Could our beliefs concerning Jesus as connected with Isa. 53 be wrong as Christians?

Answer for yourself: If the Christian Gentile Bible translators had not wished to read into Isaiah 53 the identity of Jesus, do you think they would have felt the need to change the tense of the pronoun from “them” to “he” in Isaiah 53?

The bottom line for all Christians to understand is that we have heard way too much preached about Jesus and far too little studied from the texts of the Jewish Bible and the ancient Spiritual Divine Wisdom which tell us exactly whom this "Krst/Karest/Christ" actually is and what truly is his message to mankind! If we had studied the original sources available to us instead of focusing our whole lives upon one book, a forged one as well, then we would not be so mixed up theologically in Christianity today which boasts over 2000 different denominations all maintaining they have the truth about Jesus while at the same time possessing the distinction of being the most violent and crime ridden nation in the world. May God forgive our laziness to let others tell us what to believe instead of us studying to show ourselves approved unto God.

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH...THE TRUTH ABOUT ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #7

I believe it is time for a summary of what we have learned from the earlier articles in is series on Isaiah 53 as taken from the Hebrew Scriptures and not the late forged Christian texts in the Bibles we have today.

- In our previous articles we have demonstrated, beyond any doubt, that the "Suffering Servant" in Isaiah is to be understood as the collective peoples of Israel [the nation] and not just one person. Thus to say that Isaiah 53 refers to Jesus is to misinterpret the intended meaning of the prophet Isaiah.
- As we continue along in our studies we noticed that the "speaker" in Isaiah 53 is not Isaiah, or the Jewish people, but rather that the speaker was the Gentile Kings and rulers of the world.
- We also saw that Isaiah is a "testimony" or "confession" from these Gentile leaders amounting to the fact that they had totally misunderstood the Jewish people and their "religious ideas" concerning them had been wrong.
- We saw that the Gentile rulers and nations of the world despised, abandoned, and afflicted Israel. The history record testifies to this.
- We noticed that the imagery as well as the pronouns [the use of "singular" pronouns to represent the "corporate" nation] used by the prophet in Isaiah 52 through 54 applied to the corporate nation of Israel and was not meant to apply to only one man. We showed repeatedly that pronouns used in Isaiah 52, 53, and 54, normally in the singular, in reality does not refer to Jesus but to the collective nation of Israel.
- We noticed that although Christianity does not interpret Isaiah 53 correctly today, that both the world political and spiritual leaders will one day be utterly amazed at the events in the future when God intervenes and saves the Jewish people in spite of what Christianity has taught about the Jewish people.
- We noticed that the "transgressions" of Isaiah 53:8 refer to the sins of the Gentiles of the world committed against the Jewish people and not the sins of the Jewish people.
- We saw how the Christian Bibles and their translation of Isa. 53 purposefully alter the pronouns by using "him" for "them" in order to make it more difficult for the reader to see that Isaiah was speaking about the whole nation of Israel and not speaking about one individual as the "Suffering Servant." We saw by falsifying and corrupting Isaiah 53 the Christian Bible translators artificially made the text refer to "one" person and of course that person is to be Jesus of Rome's creation and as you have seen from this irrefutable evidence taken from the Hebrew Scriptures the character of Jesus was never the "message" or subject of Isaiah in the first place.

Now in this article we will continue to deal with common misconceptions and misinterpretations of Isaiah 53 which erroneously have been applied to a New Testament Jesus which rightfully apply to the nation. We will examine if Jesus died once or many times. This may sound preposterous but just wait. Also we will examine if Jesus' blood or the knowledge of God that went to the Gentile world because of his death brought vindication to the world. This is very important information for the Biblical believing Christian and goes to the very heart of his religious belief system as well as his standing before the God of the cosmos.

THROUGHOUT THEIR PERILOUS EXILE THE JEWISH PEOPLE ENDURED MARTYRDOM FOR THEIR FAITH

The importance of knowing the identity of the "speakers" in these Scriptures was pointed out at the start of these articles. In the opening segment of the Fourth Servant Song, Isaiah 52:13-15, we saw that the prophet Isaiah conveys the words of the Gentile nations. A diversity of opinions exists among the Jewish commentaries concerning the "voice" at the start of the final segment, at Isaiah 53:9. One opinion holds that Isaiah 53:9 is a continuation of the confession of the Gentile nations who, in the previous verses, have realized that the servant Israel suffered because of them and their cruelties inflicted upon the Jewish people and nation. Another opinion is that the "voice" has switched to that of the narrator, Isaiah, who is summarizing the impact the Gentile nations' iniquities had on the servant Israel and the people of Israel. It depends not on which of the first two possible "speakers" that you might choose here, the results of their descriptions of the cruelties perpetrated against God's servant Israel are the same. Another opinion is, and the one that will be followed here, that this is the speakers' "voice" is now the Divine Mind of God as He starts to respond to the Gentile nations with a description of what happened to the servant because of their sins. This "voice", conveying God's response, continues to the end of the Fourth Servant Song.

As has been done to many verses previously when examined where we saw the many textual irregularities in our Christian Bibles when exposed and compared with the prior Hebrew Scriptures, the "plural references" to the Servant of Yahweh is once again deliberately altered by Christian translators down through the centuries into the "singular tense" when in fact the Hebrew uses the "plural" tense. Now we pick up with new material that only confirms what we have said from the beginning; namely, that Isaiah 53 is about the nation of Israel as God's "Suffering Servant" and not about a single person or even Jesus as found depicted in the New Testament.

ISAIAH 53:9 FROM THE HEBREW SCRIPTURES...& NOT FROM THE CHRISTIAN'S CORRUPTED OLD TESTAMENT

Isaiah 53:9

Isaiah 53:9 (Tanakh) And he gave his grave to the wicked, and to the wealthy in his deaths, because he committed no violence, and there was no deceit in his mouth.

Isaiah 53:9 (KJV) – And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth.

A very alarming and significant discrepancy exists between the Jewish and KJV translations of the Hebrew term "bemotav". The Jewish rendition of the term, "in his deaths", indicates a plurality, while the KJV rendition, "in his death", is in the singular form, and appears to be designed to support a Christological message that will develop much later and before the canonization of the Roman Old and New Testaments. Thus the necessity again of altering the tense of the Hebrew words in order to create a completely different theology than than expressed in the Hebrew Scriptures.

The term "bemotav" is a compound expression, a combination of a preposition and a (conjugated) noun. The preposition, (be-), is used in multiple applications in the Hebrew Bible, generally having any of the meanings, "in", "with", or "at". The noun, "motav", is the conjugation in the possessive 3rd-person, singular, masculine gender, of the plural noun "motim", which translates as "his deaths". This term appears only once in the entire Hebrew Bible, and only one other related term appears in the Hebrew Bible in the plural form and in a compound expression, "motei areilim", at Ezekiel 28:10. Interestingly this phrase is correctly translated in the KJV at Ezekiel 28:10 as the "deaths (plural) of the uncircumcised" but for theological reasons incorrectly translated in Isaiah 53:9 in the same KJV and by the same Bible translators.

Thus we see that the Hebrew word (bemotav), for the word "deaths" in Isaiah 53:9, is plural in tense and correctly translated means "deaths." The KJV, NIV and other Christian translations of Isaiah again change the tense of the word in order for the passage to read "death instead of deaths"; again purposefully altering the Hebrew Scriptures in order to conceal the identity of the Servant as the nation of Israel as a "plurality" and not just "one" person as Christian theology maintains.

Answer for yourself: Does any man, let alone Jesus, die once or twice, or three times or more than that? Did Jesus die a "death" or did he die "deaths"?

Answer for yourself: How many times did the supposed historical Jesus die on the cross and other than crucifixion is there recorded for us a different type of death that he endured?

Answer for yourself: Presuming you have read the prior 6 articles in this series, are you better equipped now to properly understand that the "deaths" spoken of in the plural in this verse describes the deaths of the Jewish people at the hands of the Gentile nations who misunderstood them or rejected them and their ways of godliness?

Answer for yourself: Did you ever read a Christian translation of Isaiah 53:9 and notice the word used in the plural as "deaths"? No and you never will; not until the translators of the Christian Bible deal honestly with the Hebrew Scriptures. Do you see why that if you read a Christian Old Testament and not a Hebrew-English Bible that you will never see these corruptions as they exist in our Christian Bibles? Again we see that the Christian text purposefully mistranslate the word and the tenses of many other nouns and pronouns in order to "maintain" the accepted Roman religious tradition and "theology" concerning Jesus even when the Hebrew text says otherwise.

Answer for yourself: Does the truth seem to matter to Christian interpreters or does it to you?

As has been done to many verses before as I have carefully documented for you in the previous articles in this series, the understanding of the plural references to the Servant of Yahweh is once again deliberately altered by Christian translators into the singular tense. In this instance the plural "deaths" in the original become the singular "death" in the Christian Bible. Let me state again the fact that the Hebrew word (bemotav) is plural and correctly translated means "deaths." The KJV, NIV and others change it to read "death" in order to conceal the identity of the Servant as the nation of Israel.

Follow with me if you will. With both (bemotav) and (lamo) being plural terms, and noting how both verses, Isaiah 53:8 and Isaiah 53:9, interchangeably refer to the servant in the singular (collective noun) and in the plural, it follows that the servant cannot be an individual. Therefore, the servant must be a compound entity, a plurality, and it so doing rules out any application to a later single Jesus as depicted in the New Testament!

Add to this the testimony of the historical record which testifies that many Jews chose to die like public criminals rather than renounce their faith and accept a false New Testament "Suffering Servant"; and many wealthy Jews were killed in many different ways, as seen from the previous verses, not because of any crimes or violent acts they committed, but for no reason other than to enable their murderers to rob them of their possessions. These words of Isaiah are reflected in numerous scenes today as shown in photographs displayed at the National Holocaust Museum where Jews are shown to be kneeling before a trench while Nazis Christians were aiming their weapons at them. In most cases, the Jews did not even put up any resistance to being murdered. Most died with the Shema on their lips, and not with any form of deceit on them to accept doctrines and beliefs about gods that their Jewish forefathers had not known. Such courage and fidelity to Scripture and Divine Truth cannot be said about Christians because for starters that have a forged and flawed Bible. Oh yes, many have died, but among these many have died for lies and not truth since our Scriptures are forged making their sacrifice meaningless before God since dying for lies and not Divine Truth.

IS THERE ANY OTHER REFERENCES TO THE SUFFERING SERVANT OF GOD AS THE NATION OF ISRAEL NOT HAVING DECEITFUL SPEECH?

12 And I will leave over in your midst a humble and poor people, and they shall take shelter in the name of the Lord. 13 The remnant of Israel shall neither commit injustice nor speak lies; neither shall deceitful speech be found in their mouth [notice the plural once more], for they shall gaze and lie down, with no one to cause them to shudder. 14 Sing O daughter of Zion! Shout, O Israel! Rejoice and jubilate wholeheartedly, O daughter of Jerusalem! 15 The Lord has removed your afflictions; He has cast out your enemy. The king of Israel, the LORD, is in your midst - you shall no longer fear evil. 16 On that day it shall be said to Jerusalem, "Have no fear! O Zion, Let your hands not be slack. 17 The LORD thy God is in your midst - a Mighty One Who will save. He will rejoice over thee with joy. He will be silent in His love.

19 He will jubilate over you with song." Behold, I wreak destruction upon all those who have afflicted you at that time. And I will save the one who limps, and I will gather the stray one, and I will make them a praise and a name throughout all the land where they suffered shame. 20 At that time I will bring them, and at (that) time I will gather you, for I will make you a name and a praise among all the peoples of the earth when I restore your daughters before your eyes, said the Lord.

Answer for yourself: Are you beginning to see that what you have been mistakenly taught that Isaiah 53 refers to Jesus and that the honest truth is that it really does not but rather to the whole of the nation and not one person?

As you can see for yourself here the prophet Zephaniah describes vividly the righteous remnant of Israel [corporate Israel and not a single person] in precisely the same fashion as the prophet Isaiah did in his 53rd chapter: "The remnant of Israel [afflicted Israel by the Gentile nations] shall neither speak lies; neither shall deceitful speech be found in their mouth."

TO THE REPENTANT GOD PROMISES CHILDREN IN ISAIAH 53, LONG LIFE, AND DIVINE HELP

Answer for yourself: In contrasting Isaiah 53:10 in the Jewish Scriptures vs Isaiah 53:10 in the Christian Bibles what is the truth?

Let us look at the Hebrew:

Isaiah 53:10 (Tanakh) And the Lord wished to crush him [corporate Israel..remember?], He made him ill; if his soul would acknowledge guilt, .....he shall have descendants [or, he shall see progeny], he shall prolong his days, and God's purpose shall prosper in his hand.

Isaiah 53:10 (KJV) – Yet it pleased the LORD to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the LORD shall prosper in his hand.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice the big word "if"? in the Hebrew text above that is missing in the Christian version of Isaiah 53:10? What is this "guilt" that is mentioned in the Hebrew Isaiah 53:10 that is lacking in our Christian mistranslation of the passage? How could any guilt apply to the sinless Jesus of Christian theology?

The portion of the verse that follows the initial declaration about God punishing the servant is constructed as a conditional statement, namely, "IF" and "THEN". In other words, if a certain condition is satisfied, by Israel, then a certain outcome will occur. Here before us is another great significant discrepancy encountered between the two translations of this verse. This discrepancy is between the phrase "... if his soul would acknowledge guilt ..." from the Hebrew Scriptures and Jewish translation, and "... when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin ..." from the KJV rendition. The statement in this phrase represents this first condition. The KJV translation presents the phrase in such a way as to continue with its message of a vicarious atonement by the servant; a concept that is disgusting and loathsome with respect to the teachings of the Hebrew Bible, wherein it is strictly forbidden. The problem stems from the KJV translation of the Hebrew term "asham" as an offering for sin, a word that has two distinct applications in the Hebrew Bible. First, it is used to refer to a guilt offering brought by a sinner for as part of the atonement of any one of a number of sins committed with intent (e.g., Lev 5:15; Num 6:12). Second, it is used to refer to a sin or an iniquity committed with intent (e.g., Jer 51:5; Pr 14:9). In the correct context of the Hebrew phrase, and being consistent with the teachings of the Hebrew Bible, it is impossible for someone to bring himself or herself as a guilt offering. As we saw earlier in the atonement and Sacrificial System articles and the role blood within them, only the innocent animal could be a fitting representation of the repentant Soul of the sacrificer and then and only then could the blood of animal, containing its very life and Soul, be a fitting symbol and representation of the repentant Soul of the person "if" he, as this text in Isaiah 53:10 maintains, had admitted his guilt before God and repented of his intentional sin.

Clearly, the context of Isaiah 53:10 is that there is a reward being promised to the servant Israel if he admits his guilt and repents.

Answer for yourself: Of what use would a reward be to the servant if he were to submit himself to be sacrificed? What is this reward? This reward is (symbolically) described in the remainder of the verse in Isaiah 53:10 (offspring, seed, progeny and long life for the nation).

We next come to view two additional significant differences between the Christian and Jewish views apply to the reward to the servant. The first component of the servant's reward is that "... he shall see his seed ..." according to the KJV, or that "... he shall have descendants [or, see progeny] ..." according to the Jewish rendition. On the surface, the two renditions appear to be similar. But there is a major difference between them in perspective which comes from the way in which the Hebrew term "zera", seed, is interpreted. According to the Christian view, the servant's seed refers to his figurative children, i.e., his spiritual children, his followers. According to the Jewish understanding, "seed", as it is used in the Hebrew Bible, refers exclusively to the servant's biological offspring, i.e., his physical descendants, his progeny. An important fact about the application of this term "seed" in the Hebrew Bible is that, when used in reference to "generic" offspring, the term is implicitly plural. Clearly, as you now can see these two views cannot both be correct.

It can be easily demonstrated that, when "zera" and "seed" is used in the Hebrew Bible in reference to children, it exclusively refers to biological descendants. In Isaiah 53:10, however, the term "zera" is not a "stand alone" noun; it is an idiomatic expression that involves a verb in conjunction with the noun, i.e., the Hebrew expression is "yir'eh zera", literally, "[he] (again a single pronoun reflecting the corporate nation of Israel) shall see seed". The Christian KJV translation has added the term "his" before the word "seed".

Answer for yourself: Do we find the word "his" in the Hebrew Scriptural text of Isaiah 52:10? No. Here we have a clear and certain "addition" to the Christian translation of Isaiah 53:10 again for "theological reasons". The Hebrew term for "his seed" is the word "zar'o", which is not the word that appears in this verse of Isaiah 53:10 when examined in the Hebrew. When idiomatic expressions in the Hebrew Bible are formed by combining a verb with the compound noun "zera", whatever its application may be, the reference is always to physical seed.

It is also important for us to note the fact that "zera" is the Hebrew term for "semen/sperm", which supports the notion that the term "zera" exclusively refers to progeny, to real, physical descendants, and not to figurative Spiritual children or followers as Christianity maintains. So we see that the Jewish understanding of the term "zera" in Isaiah 53:10 is the correct one since, when used with regard to people, it refers to people who are natural descendants of their ancestors. Again the Christian translation is in error and a purposeful mistranslation and even "invention" of Scripture by the addition of "his" when in fact the Hebrew Scriptures do not contain the word.

Let us deal now with the context. Isaiah is speaking of Israel's responsibility of "restoring to the rightful owner, God, something that has been taken away, lost, or surrendered" by their disobedience toward God for which they are being presently judged and facing captivity. The word means also to "return to or restoration of a previous state or position". Israel's sin, in particular the sins of the Second Tablet of the Law, between brother toward neighbor, had brought the judgment of God down upon Israel. Repentance and restoration to those injured by Israel's sin was required by God "if" Israel was yet to prosper in spite of the judgment falling upon them. The penalty of God's judgment could be abated to a degree if Israel responded with a contrite and broken heart in this matter.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that the promise of "seed" or children and "long life" is conditional to repentance, restitution and obedience?

Answer for yourself: Did Jesus live a long life and have children and a biological family? Is this text about one man named Jesus as Christian commentators and Pastors have maintained and preached now for 1,800 years? It sure appears as if it is not and most assuredly refers to the nation of Israel itself. But now you are seeing over and over when examining the Hebrew Scriptures when compared with the later Christian forgeries in our Bibles that this deception of Divine Truth is not new to our Christian Bibles and their mistranslation of the Hebrew Scriptures as the hands of Rome.

Answer for yourself: Did you know before now that the Christian translations of Isa. 53:10 is completely different than what the Hebrew Scriptures state in this verse? Why is that? Let us examine this text once again the KJV version of Isaiah 53:10 as taken from my personal Christian Bible.

Isa 53:10-11 10 Yet it pleased the LORD to bruise him; he hath put him to grief: when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, ...(KJV)

Answer for yourself: Where does the idea of "atonement" and "making a soul an offering for sin" in some vicarious form come from when it is not in the Jewish Bible and the Hebrew Scriptures?

Answer for yourself: Did someone make this up vicarious offering of one's Soul for the sins of others when they translated the manuscripts from the Hebrew or added it later in the text? Where is this vicarious offering to be found in Isaiah 53 when the Hebrew text refers to one repenting, admitting his guilt, and making restitution for ones' own sins? Where does Rome get off changing this verse and implying that one can atone for the sins of others let alone a whole world when the original Hebrew says completely opposite? If you doubt this then read the atonement articles and learn the dynamics and workings of the Sacrificial System and the role of blood as the "passive agent" within it. Then your understanding will be enlightened as you see that all sacrifice is the work of the individual Soul of a person and not the work of another.

But there is another problem in this verse which we must address. The second component of the servant's reward, though rendered essentially in the same fashion by both Jewish and Christian translators, "... he shall prolong his days ...", is understood completely differently by Jews and Christians. Christians generally view this phrase as being synonymous theologically with eternal life, while Jews see it as a long mortal lifetime. Once again, both of these interpretations cannot both be true. The Hebrew idiomatic expression rendered as "... he shall prolong his days ..." is 'ya'arich yamim'. This expression, as seen in its various conjugations and in several variations, is relatively common in the Hebrew Bible. In each case, the context makes it clear that the phrase refers to prolonging a person's lifetime on Earth and not to eternal life.

Relating this verse to the understanding that it is the nation of Israel whom is God's servant, only reinforces what we have seen since the beginning of this study; namely, that God continues His response to the non-Jewish nations and affirms that some of Israel's suffering was, indeed, punishment for it's own sins, but not all. Much of it can be laid at the feet of the Gentiles who went far beyond what God intended as chastisement of Israel for its sins by His agent, the Gentile nations. However, when Israel, as a nation, will acknowledge its iniquity by repenting, the Jewish people will be redeemed and rewarded with growth in numbers, prolonged life, and success as God's light unto the nations.

Answer for yourself: So, is someone attributing to Isaiah the prophet things he did not say to give Prophetic authority to religious doctrines, like a false atonement connected to Jesus, that were never written in the Hebrew Scriptures by Isaiah in the first place? They sure are.

Answer for yourself: Now, has God previously told "corporate Israel" the same thing; namely, that if they were obedient to Him then they would prosper and see their "seed?" He sure has!

Deuteronomy 30:8-10, 19-20 8 You will repent and obey God, keeping all His commandments, as I prescribe them to you today. 9 God will then grant you a good surplus in all the work of your hands, in the fruit of your womb, the fruit of your livestock, and the fruit of your land. God will once again rejoice in you for good, just as He rejoiced in your fathers. 10 All this will happen when you obey [conditional] God your Lord, keeping all His commandments and decrees, as they are written in this book of the Torah, and when you return to God your Lord with all your heart and soul.

Deuteronomy 30: 19-20 19 I call heaven and earth as witnesses! Before you I have placed life and death, the blessing and the curse. You must choose life, so that you and your seed will survive. 20 If you choose to love the Lord your God, to obey Him, and to attach yourself to Him. This is the sole means of survival and long life when you dwell in the land that God swore to you' fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, [promising] that He would give it to them.

So we find nothing new here to force upon the interpretation of Isaiah 53:10 a meaning foreign to the text. The message is simple. If the children of God as God's Servant, Israel, obeys Him and His commandments, they will prosper both physically (offspring--see their seed) as well as Spiritually. "If" his Soul (Israel) makes restitution (repents) then He (God) shall prolong his (the nation of Israel) days in the land and receive blessing. If not, then further exile. What we must never fail to remember is that God often used Gentile nations to chastise His people and bring them to repentance. Such is the message hidden within Isaiah 53.

WITH HIS KNOWLEDGE THE SERVANT-CORPORATE ISRAEL-BRINGS VINDICATION TO ALL MANKIND...THAT MEANS THE GENTILES OF THE WORLD (ie. Christians, "if" they will listen and study)

Isaiah 53:11

Isaiah 53:11 (Tanakh) From the toil of his soul he (the Gentiles) shall see [and he shall] be satisfied; with his knowledge My servant will vindicate the righteous before the multitudes, and their iniquities he shall carry.

Isaiah 53:11 (KJV) – He shall see of the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities.

Maybe you need to read that again.....now understanding that the "subject" of Isaiah 53 is the corporate nation of Israel and not just "one person," Isaiah is specifically saying that through the knowledge of the Jewish nation (their Torah and their Hebrew Scriptures knowledge of the Covenant given the non-Jew) Israel will VINDICATE and BEAR THE INIQUITIES of many.

There is again a huge discrepancy between the two translations of the phrase that involves the expression "avdi", "My servant", with the KJV modifying the translation as, "my righteous servant". According to the Hebrew syntax, the term "righteous" is an invented and misplaced term in the KJV rendition; it is not the servant who is described here as righteous, "tsadiq", but rather the non-Jew who accepts the knowledge of the Jew and the Hebrew Scriptures. The phrase conveys the idea that the servant Israel will justify the righteous, "yatsdiq tsadiq", the righteous again being those who accept the revelation of God through the Jewish nation. The KJV rendition continues to associate the idea of a righteous or "sinless" individual bearing the iniquities of others as a way to justify those others via the vicarious atonement obtained through his death. This is, of course, contrary to the teachings of the Hebrew Bible as has been previously noted repeatedly.

The servant Israel will eventually discover and understand that God has had a special purpose in allowing such wickedness by the non-Jewish nations toward them, and will not challenge God's actions. The servant will vindicate mankind through his knowledge of God and Torah, a theme often encountered in the Hebrew Bible in terms of Israel being a light unto the Gentile nations and teaching them (e.g., Exod 19:5-6; Is 42:6, 60:3, 61:6-9; Zech 8:13, 23):

Exod 19:5-6 5 Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: 6 And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel. (KJV)

Isa 42:6 6 I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; (KJV)

Isa 60:3 3 And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising. (KJV)

Isa 61:6-9 6 But ye shall be named the Priests of the LORD: men shall call you the Ministers of our God: ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves. 7 For your shame ye shall have double; and for confusion they shall rejoice in their portion: therefore in their land they shall possess the double: everlasting joy shall be unto them. 8 For I the LORD love judgment, I hate robbery for burnt offering; and I will direct their work in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them. 9 And their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the LORD hath blessed. (KJV)

Zech 8:13 13 And it shall come to pass, that as ye were a curse among the heathen, O house of Judah, and house of Israel; so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing: fear not, but let your hands be strong. (KJV)

Zech 8:23 23 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you. (KJV)

Also, as was noted in the analysis of Isaiah 53:4, Israel was the victim who carried and bore the dire penalties, incurred by the iniquities and sins of others toward them. The Gentile nations' own crimes and offenses were the cause of the excessive suffering laid on Israel. The Jewish people have been forced to carry ills and pains because of the direct actions of the non-Jewish nations throughout history. The Jews have suffered and continue to suffer the results of the Gentile nations' sickness of anti-Semitism. The (Gentile) nations have held that the Jews are cursed by God, and they were and still are determined to see that the Jews suffer the consequences of this supposed curse that is upon them. One only needs to read the newspaper daily or the television news to see this occurring in our day and time as well.

Answer for yourself: What does it mean "With his knowledge"?

In Christian theology it was not Jesus' knowledge that vindicated the world. It was, according to Christian theology it was his blood. Isaiah is not, however, speaking of a crucified messiah in his 53rd chapter. The prophet is referring to the Almighty's Servant Israel and not just one person, who, by their corporate knowledge of God and His precious Torah and Divine Spiritual Wisdom are witnesses to the world that there are no other gods (Isaiah 43:10-11) and through this Torah (Hebrew for instruction) they, by both witnessing it and sharing it with others (me and you) help redeem the world (conditionally "IF" they accept and believe it and live it)!

Answer for yourself: How can we be, as Christians and followers of the example of the New Testament Christ, this personified Jesus, which are to be enlightened by Israel's light, their Torah, their Bible, and by Israel as God's Priesthood, make sure that our lives are acceptable before God when the translations of our Bibles are, as you now see, tragically flawed and corrupted by the many forgeries that line the pages of our Bibles when compared to the Hebrew Scriptures from which they were to be translated correctly?

Answer for yourself: How can we be ministered to by God's "Royal Priesthood" when our translations of their Holy Book are corrupted on purpose in order to infect us with a "literalized" and "historicized" solar and sun-worship in the character of a Roman historical Jesus which, although dressed up like Judaism in the Roman New Testament, yet in "key" places has a completely different Spiritual message than that which comes from the unaltered Hebrew Scriptures?

Answer for yourself: How can we "go by their light", the Jewish nation, when we don't have it in our Christian translations and our Bible and when we even try to read our Bibles we don't know that we are reading purposefully corrupted passages and texts that leads us far from the truth that Isaiah originally communicated to others that he received by revelation of HaShem?

WHAT YOU WERE NEVER TAUGHT BY YOUR CHRISTIAN CHURCH...THE TRUTH ABOUT ABOUT ISAIAH 53 #8

We continue our exposition of Isaiah 53 in this next to last article in this series. We pick up with Isaiah 53:12:

Isaiah 53:12 (Tanakh) Therefore, I will allot him a portion among the multitudes, and with the mighty he shall share booty, because he has bared his soul to death, and with transgressors he was counted; and he bore the sin of many, and he will [continue to] intercede for the transgressors.

Isaiah 53:12 (KJV) – Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong; because he hath poured out his soul unto death; and he was numbered with the transgressors; and he bare the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

Except for a change in tenses in the last phrase, the two translations are pretty much consistent. The Hebrew phrase that appears in Isaiah 53:12, "asher he'erah la'mavet naphsho", is generally rendered in two ways by Jewish sources:

"... because he has bared his soul to death ...", and

"... because he poured out his soul to death ...".

The KJV renders it, "... because he hath poured out his soul unto death", which agrees with the latter of the common Jewish translations. The somewhat difficult to perceive difference here does not significantly impact the context of the verse between the Hebrew and KJV translation. The latter of the two Jewish renditions "bared his Soul to death" contains the idea of exposing that which was contained hidden within" or "exposing something". Therefore, when one examines all of the uses of these two different renderings it is reasonable to conclude that the former of the above two Jewish renditions of the term in Isaiah 53:12, "... because he has bared his soul to death ...", is more consistent with its general usage both by Isaiah and throughout the rest of the Hebrew Bible. This rendition also removes the subtlety built into the Christian interpretation aimed at advancing the concept of human vicarious atonement.

The last phrase of the verse, rendered as "... and he will [continue to] intercede for the transgressors" in the Jewish translation, and as "... and made intercession for the transgressors" in the KJV, requires that we address the differences. We encounter this same word "paga" in Isaiah 53:6 where the root verb "paga" is applied in two different contexts in the Hebrew Bible. The Hebrew word "paga" carries two connotations: first as "to hit", "to hurt", "to inflict", or "to insult" and less commonly it carries another connotation "to pray", "to intercede", to request", or "to supplicate". Both translations agree on its application here in Isaiah 53:12, in regard to its meaning "to pray"but they disagree as to the tenses. The verb used here, which is highlighted in the Hebrew text "he will (continue to) intercede" and corresponding translations is "yaphgi'a", the 3rd-person, singular, masculine, future tense conjugation of the root verb "paga" in the hiph'il stem (an active verb construct). The significance of the tense here is that, in His response to the Gentile nations, God expects His servant, the nation of Israel, to continue in his role as intercessor on behalf of the non-Jewish nations "since they know not what they do". This praying for the Gentiles is, in fact, the case today as well in which the Jewish nation prays for the Gentiles, their persecutors, each Sabbath Day as well as during the High Holy Days and Yom Kippur.

So again we see this same message repeated over and over again; namely, that Isaiah the prophet foretells that the people of Israel, as God's servant, will be compensated for having had to carry the Gentile's ills and sins that have afflicted them throughout the ages, and will be rewarded for choosing this fate rather than abandon the Jewish faith and following other gods their Jewish forefathers had not known. As was previously noted, the idea that Israel has borne the results of the wicked acts of others is not a new concept, neither is the fact that the exiled Jews have interceded and prayed on behalf of those who ruled over them. The Jewish people will finally be vindicated, a vision that Ezekiel expresses so meaningfully:

Ezekiel 34:27-30 – (27) "And the tree of the field will give forth its fruit and the land will give forth its produce, and they will know that I am the Lord when I break the bars of their yoke and rescue them from those who enslave them. (28) And they will no longer be a prey to the nations, and the beasts of the earth will not devour them, and they will dwell securely, with no one frightening them. (29) And I shall establish for them a plantation for renown, and they will no longer be hidden because of hunger in the land, and they will no longer bear the disgrace of the nations. (30) And they will know that I, the Lord their God, am with them, and they are My people, the house of Israel," says the Lord God.

In this final passage of the Fourth Servant Song, God responds to the Gentile nations with a description of what happened to the servant because of their sins, and then switches to a description of the rewards that await the servant Israel for the suffering experienced at the hands of the Gentile nations. Based on its consistency with the teachings of the Hebrew Bible and the historical record, this segment continues to confirm the validity of the hypothesis that Israel, as God's servant, is the subject in the Fourth Servant Song. We have seen conclusively that "My Servant" is a reference by God to one of His servants, in particular as used in Isaiah this "Servant" is the corporate nation of the whole Jewish people. We have seen now conclusively that the identify of the servant of God is the corporate nation of Israel and not a solitary person named Jesus in the later production of Rome's New Testament.

Contrasted to our findings when scholarly examining the Hebrew Scriptures as well as the later Christian translators' purposeful mistranslations of Hebrew Scriptures as they currently stand in our Christian Bibles, Christianity continues in spite of the facts shown here to you, the reader, to hold the "party line" that Jesus is the fulfillment and subject of Isaiah 53. Christianity, in spite of a more accurate exegesis of the Hebrew Scriptures, remains steadfast in adhering to their traditional "inherited" traditions of interpretation of the Isaiah 53 and that the Messiah Jesus, not the nation of Israel, is the subject of Isaiah's Fourth Servant Song. Steadfastly Christianity maintains that it is this Jesus of the Roman New Testament which is the subject of Isaiah 53 and not the nation of Israel. We have together, from examining the Hebrew Scriptures in contrast to their Christian purposeful mistranslations and misquotations, seen that this traditional Christian interpretation of Isaiah 53 is simply not true when reading from the Hebrew Scriptures and not the forged ones which we were given by Rome. We have seen that in spite of Christianity's claim that Isaiah 53 is "messianic" and that supposedly that Isaiah 53 speaks of the Messiah and of messianic times that in fact it does not and such a thought was never in the mind of Isaiah the Prophet. We can now stand together in a common truth regarding Isaiah 53 and know for certain that Isaiah 53 is definitely not a prophetic passage about the life, suffering, and supposed atoning sacrificial death, and eventual resurrection and triumph of a later Jewish person named Jesus, Christianity's Messiah. We can now, since having done these studies together, stand hand in hand declaring the truth of Isaiah 53. We can both agree without a doubt that Isaiah 53 is not the description of a humble deliverer and sin-bearer who, after being sacrificed as a guilt offering for the sins of others, sees the result of his atoning work and is satisfied. When you take the knowledge gleamed from this series of articles and couple them with the knowledge gleamed from the Sacrificial System articles and the articles dealing with how "atonement" was actually obtained in the Sacrificial System then there is no way in Heaven or in Earth than any New Testament Jesus has a role to play in either of these subjects.

When we read Christian commentators or other authors reflecting the Christian position we are heavily influenced by such great men like Matthew Henry (18th century C.E.) who himself comments upon Isaiah 52:13-15. What we don't know when reading these numerous Christian commentators down throughout history is that their knowledge of Judaism, Messianism, and the Sacrificial System and its true operations is lacking if not almost absent. We read their mistaken theological positions which are based upon not only unfounded and untruthful inherited oral traditions from previous Christian positions but beliefs obtained from reading a Christian Bible that is full of purposeful mistranslations and misquotations of the Hebrew Scriptures intended to deceive and mislead the reader.

Answer for yourself: What are your thoughts now when reading a man like Matthew Henry when he say: "This prophecy, which begins here and is continued to the end of the next chapter, points as plainly as can be at Jesus Christ; the ancient Jews understood it of the Messiah, though the modern Jews take a great deal of pains to pervert it, and some of ours (no friends therein to the Christian religion) will have it understood of Jeremiah; but Philip, who hence preached Christ to the eunuch, has put it past dispute that of him speaks the prophet this, of him and of no other man, Acts 8:34, 35"?

Now, seeing the evidence from the study undertaken in these articles can we not help but wonder why Matthew Henry and other supposed great Christian authors failed to study to the degree necessary in order to not make such egregious theological blunders that thrust millions of other Christians and their Spiritual lives upon the rocks of gross error?

When these elaborate commentaries and other written materials by those endorsing the Christian traditional interpretation of Isaiah 53 as being messianic or about Jesus are subjected to careful scrutiny, they all are found plagued by common flaws and shortcomings, such as the following:

- The Christian position is based not upon the Hebrew Scriptures but on the later mistranslations and misquotations and pure Scriptural invention of the Hebrew Scriptures. Instead such Christian positions are maintained from the forged Christian translations which are generally replete with Christological biases.
- Their authors make assumptions that are inconsistent with the teachings of the Hebrew Bible, such as the divinity of Jesus (i.e., being "the only begotten son of God"), his having vicariously died for the sins of others, and that he is the Messiah who died and resurrected, and who will return in a "second coming". Again such assumptions are derived from purposefully misquoted and mistranslated Hebrew Scriptures and these forgeries serve to lay the foundation for our Christian theology today.
- The propagation of certain false notions which, through their continuing repetition from Church pulpits and in written form, have become mispercieved as if they were factual and "the true". The highlighted portion in the above quote from the Matthew Henry commentary "the ancient Jews understood it of the Messiah, though the modern Jews take a great deal of pains to pervert it" is a perfect case-in-point, one which has been quoted by Christian missionaries as being factual. Modern versions of this deception contend that it was Rashi [Rabbi Shlomo Ben Yitzhak, the great Jewish Sage of the 11th century C.E.], or the generic "Rabbis", who invented the idea that Israel is the "Suffering Servant in "Isaiah 53" as an attempt to deny that which is so obviously Jesus to Christians. Of course it appears that way because we are reading as Christians purposefully mistranslated, misquoted, misinterpreted, and outright Scriptural inventions in our Christian Bibles. Although ancient Jewish sources (such as the Zohar on Exodus and Midrash Rabbah on Numbers) can be used to refute this claim, perhaps the most effective way to expose the lie is to refer to the works of early Christian theologians. One such person, Origen, the late-second-early-third century C.E. Greek Church Father, quotes in his Contra Celsum the ancient Jewish understanding of "Isaiah 53" as referring to the Jewish people and their suffering [editorial comments in brackets and highlighting added for clarity]: 1:55. I remember that once in a discussion with some whom the Jews regard as learned I used these prophecies [referring to Isaiah 53]. At this the Jew said that these prophecies referred to the whole people as though of a single individual, since they were scattered in the dispersion and smitten, that as a result of the scattering of the Jews among the other nations many might become proselytes. [Henry Chadwick, Cambridge Press, Page 50].

By stating concerning Isaiah 53 that "...the ancient Jews understood it of the Messiah, though the modern Jews take a great deal of pains to pervert it", Matthew Henry is guilty of perpetrating the very same act which he falsely charges "modern Jews" as having likewise done. This is an obvious perversion of the facts!

COME LET US REASON TOGETHER...

As I grew up in church as a child, and even as a young adult, I was assured repeatedly by my spiritual leadership in our church that Isaiah chapter 53 referred to Jesus. It seems that this one chapter from the Jewish Scriptures kept coming up in church regularly for discussion. In sermon after sermon, I heard that the Prophet Isaiah was referring to Jesus in this chapter and that Jesus "fulfilled" Isaiah chapter 53. After all little did I know at that time in my life how the writer of Isaiah used interchangeably both singular and plural pronouns to describe the corporate nation of Israel from chapter 40-66; neither did my Pastor. I heard over and over setting in the pew that Jesus is the "Suffering Servant" of Isaiah chapter 53. In fact I was told that I was to use this particular chapter in witnessing to unbelievers; it seemed so plain reading the many "his" and "him" references in Isaiah 53, it just had to be this Jesus. I was even told that all Jews before the Middle Ages recognized this chapter as "messianic," but due to the efforts of a Rabbi Rashi that belief changed. In fact that is what the Christian group "Jews for Jesus" claim and publish in their literature. There is only one problem with what "Jews for Jesus" teach regarding this and other things; it is a lie and it can be proven so by reading the ancient Hebrew Scriptures as well as the history of the Jewish people and the ancient writings of the Rabbis which state differently than what the modern Christianized "Jews for Jesus" proclaim. We will look at Rashi and the misrepresentation of him and the Jewish beliefs in the nation of Israel being the "Suffering Servant" in the next and last article in this series. But to a more important matter, these "Jews for Jesus" have fallen into the same problem that you and I do, not being Jewish we don't read the "Hebrew" and being secularized Jews they have lost the same ability to read their native tongue and are relegated to reading the corrupted English versions which are purposeful distortions of the Hebrew texts. We will look more in-depth into this "Rashi problem" in a concluding article on this subject in the next and last article on Isaiah. I suppose if you have an "organization" you can say what you will and people will believe you. Christendom has done that for centuries.

I can remember also being told when I was young that the moon was made out of cheese. Seriously, I was willing to accept all these above statements about Jesus as fact without a personal inquiry on my part to see if these things be so. After many years of Bible study and research I realize that such beliefs attached to Isaiah 53 were in error, and most likely, you have made the same mistake. Later in life, following Seminary and during the earliest years of my Pastorate I examined Isaiah 53 in detail for myself as well as the whole book of Isaiah [from the Jewish texts and not just from my Christian sources], and the results I found are the subject of these informing articles. We at Bet Emet Ministries would like to share with you our research in hopes of assisting you in coming to the correct interpretation of a chapter which has become the cornerstone of Christianity let alone evangelism to the Jewish people for centuries. Our desire is not to "prove Christianity wrong"; rather to present the Divine Truth especially as it impacts mankind's atonement for his sins before God; a great thing to have taken care of before you die! Terrible it is to pass on into the Presence of God with a false atonement and a life lived in the clutches of idolatry because of a forged book and a false "Jesus Story" in this Roman anti-Semitic Bible you and I inherited from Rome. Please understand that if what we have been told or read in our Christian Bibles as supposedly referring to Jesus as being the subject of Isaiah 53 cannot stand the test of critical inquiry, then the very foundation of Christianity and their atonement message of Jesus is rocked and crumbles to the ground in light of the Divine Truth that comes from not only the Hebrew Scriptures but the Jewish nation and their history of interpretation of their own Sacred Scriptures as well. Maybe, oh maybe, the Jewish people and scholars have been right all along. Yes they have! And they died by the millions at the hands of Rome and others because of it.

Rom 3:4 4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a liar; as it is written, ...(KJV)

Answer for yourself: Do you ascribe to the above phrase? If you do then we deserve and should demand a Bible that is accurate to the translations of the Hebrew Scriptures and if shown we do not then we should shout it from the rooftops that our Roman Christian Bible is a fraud!

The Jewish sages teach that "whoever saves a single soul is considered as if he had saved an entire world." How precious is the Soul! How precious is the Truth. Though the Bible study which you have begun I want you to understand that we have prepared it realizing that the subject matter is of a very sensitive nature, and that most will not take kindly to someone tampering with their religious belief system, let alone showing them that the very core of their religious belief system taken from this Christian Bible is totally incorrect and misunderstood. We at Bet Emet hope that you too will value your Soul highly enough to prayerfully ponder that you find expressed in these articles. God's truth is not always easy to discern after it has been altered and mutilated for centuries, but we are possessors of a Divine promise; "you will find Him if you search after Him with all your heart and all your soul" (Deut. 4:29). As faithful Jews have attested for over 3500 years, such fidelity to Divine Truth it's worth the effort and always will be.

Right now I have to pose for you some very big questions.

Answer for yourself: Understanding that the Jewish people were competent with interpretation of their own Hebrew Scriptures and familiar with their own Hebrew texts and prophecy, then when this New Testament Jesus is crucified, did the people who watched this death perceive they were watching the fulfillment of Hebrew Scripture and the fulfillment of Isaiah 53? Did they and their Rabbis expect the Sacrificial System to cease because of the death of this one man? History shows us that there was no such belief by anyone following the death of Jesus and we see that even his closest followers, James and Paul and others in the early Church, continued to bring flood sacrifices and atonement offerings as if this death of Jesus changed nothing!

Answer for yourself: Did the people standing there supposedly watching the death of this Jesus have any knowledge what so ever that he was dying for their sins and the sins of the world? Where in the Hebrew Scriptures were they Jewish people and their Rabbis ever told that the Sacrificial System, repentance, confession, prayer, and righteous deeds were ever to be replaced by the substitutionary death of a Messiah for the sins of the Jews let alone the sins of the Gentile world? The Jewish people and their Rabbis know nothing of this death of another or Messiah for the sins of the Jews let alone the world. In fact the Hebrew Scriptures teach just the opposite!

Answer for yourself: Did the people who watched Jesus die understand his death as the fulfillment of Isaiah 53, or was this interpretation of the death of this "Christ" for sin later conceived in such a way by the Gentile Church to reflect a "literal" understanding of a person instead of a whole nation? Could it be that Rome will take the ancient Spiritual Wisdom, going back tens of thousands of years, and radially reinterpret the "descent and death of the descending incarnating Mind of God, this Logos, this Savior, this Krst/Karest/Christ" into "matter" and so alter it & change it from an originally pure Spiritual Concept of the Creator-God coming to dwell in the whole of mankind to where it now is to be understood as if limited to but one person; a supposed "historical and literal" person whom access to and the salvation of the Souls of mankind was obtained only through the Roman Church?

Answer for yourself: Could it be that over time this "death of the Christ", now a supposed "literal person" instead of a Divine Essence within the hearts of every human being, was read backward into history and oral traditions of "the Christ" handed down to mankind since ancient Egypt? Could it be that over time this new Roman interpretation of "the Christ" (same word as Messiah), was read back into Jewish history as a "literal reality" since the Jewish Messiah never appeared? Could it have been that easy, especially after Rome burned all the libraries of the known world to erase from mankind any knowledge of the indwelling Krst/Karest/Christ, that the death of the incarnating Logos-Christ in mankind was reinterpreted to have been limited to but a single literal and historical person (Jesus) and in so doing was as well projected backwards into the Jewish time line to presumably be the hoped for Jewish Messiah which must have died sometime in the war with Rome since never appearing as hoped by the Jewish Scriptures? Could it be in the absence of knowledge and the world's libraries that over time Rome's new interpretation of "the Christ" and mankind's salvation came to rule the day in the wake of the dispersion of the Jewish nation and the loss of the truth of the Sacrificial System, the Jewish Messiah, and the Temple?

Answer for yourself: Could it have been the very absence of the coming of the Messiah to the Jews which became the focal point to which Rome will attach their "literal-historical" Christ? Could it have been in this manner that Rome not only radically altered the ancient Mystery Religions since the beginning of time which all taught a Metaphysical Cosmos and the merging of Divinity & Infinite Mind with the body of the whole of mankind; so radically altering this Divine Spiritual Concept to where man no longer looked within himself for the presence of his God and Creator, but now gazed above in the deepest Sky for a God separated from himself since taught that a "literal God-man" supposedly ascended to the Heavens by Rome? Could it be that Rome, the ultimate opportunist, took advantage of the presumed death of the Jewish Messiah and his failure to be manifested to the Jewish people due to their sins and failure to merit the appearing of God's Messiah? Did the Divine God in you and me become limited to a supposed "literal-historical" Christ-man of Rome's invention?

Answer for yourself: What we need to ask in light of these many alterations made to the Hebrew Scriptures is if there was a false theology created long after Isaiah concerning the ancient's understanding of the "death of the Krst/Karest/Christ" as taken from the ancient Spiritual Wisdom as far back as ancient Egypt some 10,000 years B.C.E.? We find when we study that this "death of Krst/Karest/Christ" refers in the ancient Spiritual Wisdom to the "descent and death of the Krst/Karest/Christ" and "Divine Mind of the Logos" in its incarnation into "matter" (humanity). We find this yet hinted at in the New Testament in Philippians 2:6-8. This Metaphysical Concept of the "fall of Divinity into matter" was later altered by Rome, literalized and historicized, and in so doing this "descent into matter and humanity" by the Christ/Logos/Divine Mind was read backwards into a Jewish time-line by Rome and presented as a supposed single historical and literal Christ in their forged Bible. This might sound simple but many years of hard-nosed study uncovers this Roman deception. This deception of humanity by Rome began with the alteration and forgery of the Biblical texts like those we say in Isaiah 53 in the current study. Once the ancient Scriptures were forged and the libraries of the known world burned down and destroyed then there was little truth left that man could find that proves the Roman radical reinterpretation of the ancient Divine Spiritual Wisdom and "the Christ" to be the most devilish of deceptions every foisted upon the human race; and all of this mind you was catalyzed by fear and ignorance than brought the Souls of man seeking salvation through the Roman Christian Church.

Hard questions I admit, but when you continue to study with Bet Emet you will see beyond any doubt that this is EXACTLY WHAT HAPPENED!

Having lost the "keys" to properly interpret this ancient Divine Spiritual Wisdom along with ancient knowledge of the "death of Krst/Karest/Christ" in his descent from Heaven into flesh as well as the corresponding "death of the Soul" when equally "impregnated and incarnated into matter" as both are repeatedly described and exist in the ancient Divine Spiritual Wisdom and Sacred Books since the beginning of time, then it becomes very hard for us to recognized this ancient allegorical Metaphysical Divine Concept of Soul and Krst/Karest/Christ for what it really originally meant when referred to in our Christian Bibles in a "literal manner"; Bibles which have been so terribly distorted, mistranslated, and corrupted in our current versions of our Christian Scriptures.

Harder still is to even fashion the proper questions let alone find the answers to them when you begin to see for the first time that the ancient hoary Metaphysical Divine Concept of a "descending and dying Christ on the cross "and crossifying" of Spirit Energy/"matter" was never meant to be "literalized" except in you and me. By forging the Hebrew Scriptures, Isaiah for instance, a nation was made into a "literal man" by textual manipulations. Rome creates this "solitary human being" as the fulfillment of the Hebrew Scriptures when no such idea as ever present in the mind of Isaiah nor the texts he wrote. Hard to accept is accepting the reality of such an event when first seeing this alteration of a prior ancient Divine Concept regarding a Spiritual Concept applying to all of humanity being in the hand of Roman monks being radically reinterpreted into apply ONLY to a solitary person through textual manipulation through the agency of literalization and historicization of "the indwelling Christ" by Rome. Hard to believe is that Rome could do such a thing; forge multiple translations of the Hebrew Scriptures in order to create a solitary entrance for mankind's Salvation through only the doors of the Roman Church. Seekers to the answers of these questions and deceptions find in time abundant evidence that Rome corrupted the ancient Divine Spiritual Wisdom as well as the Hebrew Scriptures and purposefully misinterpreted and mutated then in order to create a supposed "literal" Savior who's offer of salvation comes only through the doors of the Roman church. Fear, ignorance, untruths and deception became the creative tools of organized Religion to rule a world and increase the might and strength of the Mighty Roman Empire. We find upon such inquiry that the ancient allegorical and symbolic concepts of the Indwelling Christ presented in the Divine Spiritual Wisdom of the ancient nations for thousands of years has been so terribly and purposefully distorted by its mischaracterization by Rome and their forged texts that millions mistakenly misunderstand and so misconceive the original Spiritual Idea and Concept of the indwelling Christ which lies so blurred in their own Bibles today that they wander through their whole lives never coming to the truth of the matter; namely, that they are gods in progress, they are this birthed "Christ in matter", born in swaddling clothes representing the allegorical death of incarnation, living out their lives in hopes of awaking to the Divine Goal of developing the Christ Consciousness within them which has been crucified "on the cross of matter" as the ancients so stated for thousands of years. All mankind is in need of "awakening" to the Christ-Mind within, the true "Born Again experience".

Not possessing the "keys" to the ancient Spiritual Truths that man is a "god in an animal body" as Plato states, he follows the wrong path due to forged Scriptures, like Isaiah 53, where he wanders down the road of forged Scriptures which "literalize" and "historicize" this indwelling Christ given to all of humanity and so limit it to but one when it is the gift of God to all.

Answer for yourself: Could hiding the truth of man as a developing "god in animal bodies" intent of progressive Spiritual perfection be one of the reasons why this information has been kept from us? Could Rome, with the world's most invincible army, not consider righteous living and transformation by the renewing of their mind and Soul in this animal body their top priority when world conquest lies at their feet for the taking? Could these and even more factors be the reason as to why the Hebrew Scriptures were altered almost beyond recognition by Rome and why they burned all the ancient libraries to the ground to cover up the "Christ within the whole of humanity" and thus pave the way to giving the world a solitary "Christ of their own making" whereby access to this Jesus Christ comes only through the Roman Catholic confessional?

Now you got it right and we read the alteration of the Divine Spiritual Wisdom in our "Jesus Story" every day of our lives; a Divine Allegory of both Soul and Christ having fallen from Heaven, our God and Father, into "you and me" and made to look as if this "God/Christ" is separated from us and whose only access is thought the organized Religion of Rome and its Protestant offspring! Central to the ancient Spiritual Wisdom is the concept of the Divine Spark or seed buried within each person, in indwelling "Krst/Karest/Christ" awaiting mankind to awake from the slumber of "matter" to its presence within each child of God. It was the purpose of the ancient mysteries to bring to life this Divine Spark so that it would illuminate life on this earth. This Divine Spark was symbolized by various figures at different times down through history and in different places. Their names were Horus, Orpheus, Dionysus, Mithra, Krishna, Adonis, Tammuz, Hercules, Jesus and so on. They were all "pagan" Christs. The philosophers of the ancient world knew that these figures were symbolic, and not historical men as Rome's radical reinterpretation of Isaiah 53 tried to convince otherwise but knowledge of the Hebrew Scriptures before they were altered teaches differently as I have shown you over these last eight articles.

Some 2,000 years ago in the area of the eastern Mediterranean, the Divine Soul or Spark within was called the Christ (from Karast or Krist, Egyptian for the anointed mummy). Early Christianity was a re-statement of the ancient wisdom. "...Christians of any intelligence during the first two centuries at least did not regard their movement as the bearer of the first light into the heathen darkness, but only the republication of very ancient truth". Alvin Kuhn quotes Augustine and Eusebius to support this truth (Alvin B. Kuhn, The Shadow of the Third Century: a revaluation of Christianity, Academy Press, 1949. p.27). "The indwelling god is himself being brought to birth within the womb of humanity. Each individual is gestating a divinity within the depths of his own nature. Christianity has fervently exhorted us to look into the empyrean to find the unapproachable God. All the while the infant deity slumbers unheeded within the heart. Christianity has largely nullified the force of St. Paul's almost frantic cry to us: 'Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is within you?'" (Kuhn, A.B. The Lost Light: an interpretation of ancient scriptures. Academy Press, 1940. pp.44-72).

In place of the truth of this ancient Divine Wisdom we have been given today by the early Church Councils and the handiwork of Monks a forged translation of not only the Hebrew Scriptures but one which regrettably so mutilated the Divine Spiritual Wisdom forging the translations of the Hebrew Scriptures. Basically the concept of a suffering nation chosen by God to reveal the "God within all humanity" has been so mutilated by Rome in presenting a false "Christ" apart from man instead of awaiting awakening inside man, than the world has been plunged into the most oppressive darkness imaginable. We call this great darkness Roman and Protestant Christianity today with is "substitute literalized Christ" supposedly setting on the right hand of God somewhere someplace instead of in your heart where the Christ truly lives today oblivious to most.

Answer for yourself: If Jesus' death was the "final sacrifice" for sins according to the Hebrew writer, a much disputed book by the way, then why does James, the head of Christ's church, instruct Paul to fulfill a nazirite vow in Acts 21:23-24 fully knowing that the fulfillment of which a vow required that Paul had to bring sin and trespass offerings, atonement offerings and blood sacrifices for atonement? Did James, Paul, and the Jerusalem church just "forget" that Jesus blood was the supposed sacrifice for their sin as the writer of the Book of Hebrew maintained and that Jesus, not Israel, was the "Suffering Servant" of Isaiah 53 all of a sudden? Did James and Paul momentarily have amnesia and forget and not know that the death of their friend and Master, this Jesus, some 30 years earlier, as a supposed "literal-historical" person as Rome maintains, was the long awaited fulfillment of Isaiah 53 where Isaiah's "Suffering Servant" is this "Messiah" and not the nation of Israel? Did James and Paul forget here in Acts 21 that Isaiah was supposedly speaking of but one person and not the corporate nation as the abundant Hebrew texts which we earlier looked at appear to indicated? Maybe you should put together Numbers chapter 6 and Acts 21 and see what the "picture" tells you and see that atonement, sin offerings, and blood atonement was still be practiced by "believers in the Christ"!

Answer for yourself: Could it be, oh could it be, that the New Testament is the personification of the ancient Divine Sacred Wisdom expressing the Spiritual Concept of the indwelling Christ in mankind as was only to serve as the "pattern for both Soul and Christ" which is to be our example and our path to emulate and follow in our live? Could it be that the relegation of an indwelling Christ when presented as a solitary and a literal-historical person by the alteration of pronouns and nouns as seen in Isaiah 53 is a travesty of the Spiritual Wisdom given all mankind? Is this Christ in this personified Spiritual Allegory in the New Testament your story? Is is my story? Is it mankind's story? One thing is for sure as your studies advance and this become apparent to as your understanding grows concerning the ancient Spiritual Wisdom and the textual forgeries in our Bibles and that is the leaders of the Jerusalem Church sure did not consider this Jesus a historical person whose literal death was a sacrifice for any sin whatsoever. The actions of James and Paul, hidden under the surface reading of the texts, proves so!

Those who crafted, created, butchered, mutilated, and forged the Hebrew Scriptures in the creation of a "literal crucified Messiah/Christ" in this New Testament and its replacement theology should have done a better job ridding themselves of such incriminating facts that can be obtained by some inquisitive study of what lies beneath the surface of the texts and their context. Granted such knowledge is buried beneath the context of Acts 21 but it is there if you study and compare texts and most of all use your minds to "think" about what you uncover in such studies.

Answer for yourself: For a moment do you think James would have instructed Paul to continue to bring sin and trespass offerings that required the shedding of blood as part of their sin's atonement if they at the same time believed that Jesus' death was the fulfillment of Isaiah 53, in particular Isaiah 53:10 which says as taught in the KJV: "thou shall make his Soul an offering for sin"? Does it not stand more to reason that they both believed the Hebrew Scriptures existing in their day that says "if he acknowledge his guilt (referring to a whole nation)" instead of "his Soul as an offering for sin" which we find centuries later in the Romanized corruption of the Hebrew Scriptures?

Answer for yourself: Do you think that James, the Spirit-filled leader of Jesus' church, thought, believed in or knew for example that Jesus' death was some form of atonement and the long-awaited fulfillment of Isaiah 53 but yet in spite of this Soul saving belief he would do and command completely otherwise in Acts 21 for Paul and the Jerusalem Church by commanding continual adherence to blood offerings and atonement offerings long after Jesus' death? Would James have done such a thing and commanded continual sin offerings and blood atonement offerings be brought if he believed that Jesus' death was the fulfillment of Isaiah 53? Does it appear to the "thinking believer" knowing what lies behind Acts 21 that James and Paul believed what the Roman church has taught for the last 1,800 years in their forged Bible, that the sacrifice of Jesus' life was acceptable for the sins of the world? Should we not view that James' and Paul' actions reveal just the opposite of what Christianity teaches today from the later Roman corrupted New Testament; namely, than that James and Paul did not believe that Jesus and his death was the fulfillment of Isaiah 53 as God's "Suffering Servant" for the world's sin? James and Paul did quite otherwise in their actions as if there was not any opposing belief existing in their time that taught that Jesus was the fulfillment of Isaiah 53 let alone that any such final sacrifice or atonement had ever been offered by Jesus or his death since James and Paul both showed no hesitancy in surrendering to the demands of the Sacrificial System. Having no forged Hebrew Scriptures, and no confusion as to the truth of the matter, James and Paul hesitated not in quickly obeying the Word of God in Numbers 6 in relationship to the cleansing of the Soul through the operations of the Sacrificial System.

Answer for yourself: Does not James' actions, likewise Paul's actions, which are both hidden under the context of Acts 21 where we saw they were still offering blood sacrifices and sin offerings over 30 years after the death of this Jesus, prove to us that the Jews of the first century, as well as other Jewish believers in "the Messiah-Christ", held no such religious beliefs similar to which we as Christians today are told to believe by Christianity for our Soul's salvation and which are derived again solely from this Roman New Testament which you have seen in these Isaiah articles alone is an outright religious Christian lie founded upon the forgery and corruption of the Hebrew Scriptures?

You see from such analysis that the Jews of the first century and those even hoping for the appearance of a human Jewish Messiah in the line of King David, held no such beliefs about Jesus and his death as a sacrifice for sin like that we find written into this Roman New Testament and the forged Old Testament in our Christian Bibles. We are told since childhood that we have to accept and believe this "dogma" of belief in Jesus and his death as the fulfillment of Isaiah 53 as well as Jesus' death being our sin offering or else risk splitting Hell right open by Roman Christianity and their forged Bible. The Jewish people and Rabbis did not believe such "Jesus theology" in the first century nor that his death was a supposed atonement for sin prophesied supposedly in Isaiah 53 simply because in that time period of the first century the Hebrew Scriptures were not corrupted in a Christian Bible and spread over the world like they would later be at the hands of Rome during the 2nd through the 5th century; corruptions mind you that find their way into the Roman Bible when canonized in 380 A.D. No Jew held a religious belief about some Jesus in the first century being the fulfillment of Isaiah 53 nor held any belief that the "literal" death of "the Christ" could or would ever atone for the sins of others. But the Hebrew Scriptures are forged today and they have been so corrupted and purposefully "reconstructed" as to make it appear, not only in the Christian Old Testament but in their subsequent quotes in the New Testament, that such a belief is religious belief is given by God and stated in the Hebrew Scriptures let alone believed in the first century by the Jews when such is not the case! You can and will believe anything if you read corrupted translations and forgeries of true Divine Scriptures collected in a book by forgers called "Holy" with a shiny black leather cover holding it all together. Doesn't the leather cover smell so good?

Answer for yourself: Would you have done the same as James and Paul, bring blood sacrifices as part of your repentance and atonement, having only the Hebrew Scriptures as your guide which teaches and commands such and not having in your possession a much later created document full of purposeful forgeries and mistranslations of the Hebrew Scriptures which are 180 degrees opposed to what they Hebrew Scriptures originally accurately said and taught? Are you beginning to see how the Divine Revelation given to man by God concerning his sin and how to atone for it has been radically corrupted and in its place you have received a substitutionary belief and religion focused on "faith in a Jesus" of Rome's invention in which his supposed death and blood" supposedly provided atonement for your sin? If you had lived in the first century, then would you have most likely followed the Hebrew Scriptures as did James and Paul since not being conditioned, deceived, and brainwashed by a complete forgery of the Hebrew texts which was unknown and did not exist in their day as it does in our day? Can you see that later over the following centuries in Greek speaking parts of the world, the Jewish people, no longer possessing abilities to read Hebrew but rather Greek, could easily fall for a false translation of their Bible since they and many of their Jewish Rabbis could no longer speak or read Hebrew and no longer had the ability to compare texts from the Hebrew with the later Greek, Latin, and English translations in hope of discerning truth from error?

Answer for yourself: Having never read or known the Hebrew Scriptures and the truth about Isaiah 53 which we have both seen together in these articles then can you now see how you were set-up to believe an untruth by Rome through their corruption of the Hebrew Scriptures? Do you see how the very foundation of the Hebrew Scriptures had to be forged if ever there was a way by which Rome could appeal to the authority of the Old Testament for their later New Testament interpretations? Having never read or known the Hebrew Scriptures and the truth about Isaiah 53 which we have both seen together then now can you begin to see how the most important thing in your life; namely, your faith, obedience, and relationship and standing before God is founded upon lies in the Christian Bible concerning this Jesus and God's atonement message? Can you see how Rome has held back the Divine Truth of God from you and me?

Notice again that Paul did obey James in the nazirite vow and brought sin offerings and blood sacrifices over 30 years after the supposed death of a supposed "historical" and "literal" Jesus; thus negating any belief that the death of Jesus was the final atonement for sin let alone that Jesus is the intended subject of Isaiah 53. Paul knew the truth of the matter; something lacking in Christianity today regarding atonement and the Sacrificial System as well as the subject and true message of Isaiah 53.

Answer for yourself: More importantly people may have seen Jesus die, but did anyone see him die as an atonement for the sins of others?

James and the first church sure did NOT believe that Jesus' death was an atonement for their sins nor the KJV Scriptures (in places where the texts were not superficially altered and where we saw the hidden truth in Acts 21 for example). Acts 21 holds the "hidden key" to this truth about Jesus, his hidden true personified identity, and the truth about God's atonement for mankind which lies buried beneath the context of the forged New Testament Scriptures; buried from the eyes of the ancient Monk's trickery with the ancient Divine Wisdom and Hebrew Scriptures. Acts 21 is our clarion call to awaken to the reality of our New Testaments and its unreliability as well as the great need for serious study of the New Testament as it exists today in order for the reader to discern truth from error when reading it. We can forge a plain reading of a translation, that is easy, but the Monks overlooked the hidden truths buried under the context of many texts which opens our eyes to the real truths of the Divine Realm if we but look. Thus the Jewish people and their Rabbis, as well as believers in the coming of the Jewish Christ in the line of King David, yet followed the Hebrew Scriptures some 30 years after the supposed death of this Jesus, not being deceived nor having in their possession like we do corrupted Hebrew translations of Isaiah and many other Hebrew Scriptures which have been altered to make it appear that they say otherwise than what they originally taught in the original Hebrew language and not the later altered Greek, Latin, and English translations. Unknown to this early Jewish nation of the first century was a forthcoming corrupted New Testament with a completely different understanding of the Sacrificial System as well as a completely different understanding and interpretation of Isaiah 53. I call it Rome's "radical reinterpretation". One only has to investigate the extreme hatred of the Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures, termed both the Septuagint or the LXX, by the Jews of Israel because of the forgeries in it at the hands of the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, when looking at the whole of it minus the first five books, Genesis through Deuteronomy, which only was translated by the Rabbis of Jerusalem. The first five books is all that the Rabbis of Jerusalem translated into the Greek (no problems here with the texts); the rest of the Hebrew Bible as it existed in that day and time was not translated by the Jewish Rabbis. Seeing this later perversion of the Hebrew Scriptures at the hands of the Essenes first, we find 3 later attempts were made to correct the forgeries in the Greek by the Rabbis of Palestine but owing to the Temple's destruction and subsequent dispersion such attempts ultimately failed.

Answer for yourself: Don't you think that within 30 years or so the Holy Spirit would have told James and the mother church the "facts" about Jesus' death if it altered in some way the current Jewish understanding of the Sacrificial System or the interpretation of Isaiah 53? Don't you think that our God "who changes not" had an obligation to inform the religious leaders of Israel and the emerging Jesus Church of such a change had there been one? Don't you think that God would have notified James, Paul and others that Jesus was the fulfillment of Isaiah 53 if he were? But the historical record is that there has been no change over 2,000 years and the Jewish people have maintained this Divine Truth at the cost of their own deaths in numbers uncountable to the modern mind.

We don't see the Roman understanding of Jesus' death as the fulfillment of some atonement relating to Isaiah 53 or otherwise from the picture given us in Acts 21 we we look under the context of these verses let alone the historical record of the early Messianic Jewish branch within Judaism. That should make us wonder as to the validity and truthfulness of the New Testament picture shown us elsewhere which we have been given by Rome depicting Jesus not only as the fulfillment of Isaiah 53 but the atonement for the sins of the world found in other altered Gospel and Pauline passages. But there is no such change or voice echoing such a change in the subject of Isaiah from a corporate nation to a solitary Jesus emanating from Jerusalem then let alone over the last 2,000 years from Judaism; all we see is the rivers of Jewish blood shed in holding fast to the unchanging Divine Truth of the Hebrew Scriptures, Isaiah 53 included, which just so happens to agree with the ancient Divine Wisdom going back 10,000 years B.C.E. and the great Egyptian Religion.

Answer for yourself: So has the ancient Divine Wisdom teaching of a "indwelling Christ" in the bosom of all mankind been surgically removed from the Sacred Scriptures by Rome through abundant textual forgery and in so doing mutated the Divine Concept of the "Christ within"? Has the "Christ within" been re-presented to mankind in the form of a supposed "literal and historical" Jesus Christ as the Jewish fulfillment of the Hebrew Scriptures when the Suffering Servant" has always been understood by the Jewish nation and her Rabbis as corporate Israel? and never a solitary individual or even the "Messiah"?

Answer for yourself: Has the corporate nation of Israel as God's "Suffering Servant" been replaced by a solitary individual in the person of a supposed historical-literal Jesus Christ? Add to this that we find the equivalent of "Jesus Christ" in the ancient Egyptian hieroglyphs dating to 10,000 B.E.C. then what does this ancient "Jesus Christ" of the Egyptian religion actually mean? Did this point to a historical Jesus Christ that was to appear 10,000 years later as a Jewish Rabbi or a Divine Concept indwelling mankind that was much later "historicized and literalized" as the Jesus Christ of Rome's invention?

DID THE JEWS ALWAYS INTERPRET ISAIAH'S SUFFERING SERVANT OF CHAPS. 52 & 53 AS THE NATION...OR DID RASHI CHANGE THE INTERPRETATION AS CHRISTIANITY & JEWS FOR JESUS MAINTAIN?

Jews for Jesus Jews for Jesus is a Christian evangelical organization based in San Francisco, California, whose goal is to convince Jews that Jesus is the Messiah and God. It also promotes awareness of the Jewish roots and heritage of the Christian faith. While Jews for Jesus says that its followers are "living out their Jewishness" and self-identifies as Jewish, virtually all Jewish denominations, Jewish groups, national Jewish organizations, the State of Israel, and many others reject this classification and regard the group as Christian. That being said Jews for Jesus publish in their literature that Rashi, a Jewish Rabbi around 1000 A.D., is responsible for the altering of the interpretation of Isaiah 53 for all of Israel whereby they, after his influence, no longer interpreted Isaiah 53 as an "individual" but as a "nation."

Answer for yourself: Is such a statement made by Jews for Jesus accurate?

"Now I remember that, on one occasion, at a disputation held with certain Jews, who were reckoned wise men, I quoted these prophecies (Isaiah 52:13-53:8); to which my Jewish opponent replied, that these predictions [referring to Isaiah 52 and 53] bore reference to the whole people, regarded as one individual, and as being in a state of dispersion and suffering, in order that many proselytes might be gained, on account of the dispersion of the Jews among numerous heathen nations. And in this way he explained the words, "Thy form shall be of no reputation among men;" and then, "They to whom no message was sent respecting him shall see;" and the expression, "A man under suffering." Many arguments were employed on that occasion during the discussion to prove that these predictions regarding one particular person were not rightly applied by them to the whole nation. And I asked to what character the expression would be appropriate, "This man bears our sins, and suffers pain on our behalf;" and this, "But He was wounded for our sins, and bruised for our iniquities;" and to whom the expression properly belonged, "By His stripes were we healed." For it is manifest that it is they who had been sinners, and had been healed by the Saviour's sufferings (whether belonging to the Jewish nation or converts from the Gentiles), who use such language in the writings of the prophet who foresaw these events, and who, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, applied these words to a person. But we seemed to press them hardest with the expression, "Because of the iniquities of My people was He led away unto death." For if the people, according to them, are the subject of the prophecy, how is the man said to be led away to death because of the iniquities of the people of God, unless he be a different person from that people of God? And who is this person save Jesus Christ, by whose stripes they who believe on Him are healed, when "He had spoiled the principalities and powers (that were over us), and had made a show of them openly on His cross?" At another time we may explain the several parts of the prophecy, leaving none of them unexamined. But these matters have been treated at greater length, necessarily as I think, on account of the language of the Jew, as quoted in the work of Celsus."

Now if you read this close you see two opinions concerning the interpretation of the text:

- the Jewish and
- the Gentile Church Fathers.

But without a doubt, the Jews and the nation of Israel, at this early date of 248 A.D., believed that the Isaiah 52 and Isaiah 53 passages dealt with corporate Israel and not an individual and to say that Rashi changed the traditional interpretation of Isaiah 53 because of Jesus is a lie of the greatest magnitude and one made routinely by "Jews for Jesus". Unaware of the facts surrounding this then Christians are led into gross deception and error about this "Jesus Problem". Not only that all theological positions held by Jews for Jesus are based off corrupted Christian translations of the Hebrew Scriptures such as we have seen previously earlier in our Isaiah 53 studies in articles 1 through 9.

This is all the more important because the Christians [Jews for Jesus] teach that the Jews interpreted Isa. 53 as referring to the Messiah (individual) until the medieval commentator Rashi who began to explain it as referring to the people of Israel, thus changing the prior interpretation that the passages referred to only an individual. Nothing could be further from the truth. The evidence speak for itself. So when Christians claim that it was only with the commentary of Rashi (1040-1105) that the Jews began to refer to Isaiah 52:13-53:12 as referring to the entire nation of Israel then they are in error and their message is false .

This misconception began with Edward Pusey, who wrote in his 1876 introduction to The Suffering Servant Of Isaiah According To Jewish Interpretations (trans. Driver and Neubauer, New York: Hermon Press, 1969) that "The new interpretation began with Rashi" (p. XLIV).

As you have seen the interpretation of corporate Israel for Isa. 52 and 53 is neither new, nor did it begin with Rashi. Over 800 years before Rashi the Church Father Origen records for us that the Jews contemporary with him interpreted this passage as referring to the entire nation of Israel.

This material can be found on the Internet or by obtaining Contra Celsum, trans. Henry Chadwick, Cambridge: Cambridge Univ. Press, Book 1:55, 1965, p. 50).

So the bottom line is this: Jewish Biblical exegesis of the unforged Hebrew Scriptures subscribing to the belief that the people of Israel was the "Suffering Servant" of Isaiah 53 spoken of throughout the entire passage pre-dates Rashi by at least seven or more centuries and Jews for Jesus, or anyone who says different is simply wrong and distort the truth of the matter.

Looking at this whole series of articles it now become painfully apparent for the Christian that in no way can Isaiah 53 be considered a prophecy of a later Jesus of Nazareth let alone a prophecy of the world's atonement accomplished by the death of one person. A person who reads these articles and takes them to heart should come away from this with their eyes opened that abundant textual and Scriptural forgeries are contained in the Christian translation of Isaiah 53 and should expect to find more of them the more his studies advance. One will come to see in time that the whole of the New Testament's Messianic Prophecies making the character Jesus of Nazareth the Messiah of Israel are purposefully mistranslated and misquoted as well. Such is not a pretty sight for the Christian who has believed in Jesus his whole life but understand that God's love and forgiveness for us is much, much larger than our mistaken theologies. The goal is to love God in Spirit and in Truth and maintaining a belief in a theological lie does not demonstrate our love of God. Truth is the highest religion ever given mankind by God our Creator.

did the jews always interpret isaiah's suffering servant as "the nation" or did rashi change it?

DANIEL 9:17-27: THE SEVENTY WEEKS OF DANIEL CHAPTER 9...INTRODUCTION

Of all the Old Testament scriptures quoted (or misquoted) by Christian evangelicals in hopes of finding validation to their Gentile Christian religious doctrines, Daniel 9:17-27 and Isaiah 53 are perhaps the two most popular. In both cases, Christianity relies on a claim that the only reasonable interpretation of those scriptures is theirs.

Answer for yourself: But is that really true? Have you ever invested thirty minutes in reading a Hebrew/English Bible and compared it to the Greek Septuagint (Greek/English Bible) or even the English of your KJV in order to see if your Christian Old Testament reads like the Hebrew texts that Jesus used?

Well you would be in for the shock of your life if you did! Our Christian Bibles and translations of the Hebrew of Daniel are changed from what the original Hebrew said and this was done so by Christians redactors of the texts very long ago to make Daniel's prophecy appear if fulfilled by Jesus. Well don't believe me; you need to see the evidence of this forgery of the Hebrew Bible by Gentile Christianity for yourself and this is what this website will show you.

Over the last twenty years as a Seminary student and Pastor I have done many such comparisons of religious texts in our Christian Bibles with the Hebrew, Greek, and English and let me say to you that what I found upon years of intensive and unbiased study is the reason for the multiple websites provided by Bet Emet Ministries because I realized quite quickly that I had not been taught the truth about the Hebrew Scriptures since childhood and sadly was rendered an idolator and blasphemer by what I was taught by Gentile Christianity because our forged and manipulated religious documents are taught and accepted without question or critical examination by most. It might be too late for me and you to remove the stain of such hideous sins as idolatry and blasphemy which we inherited from Western Gentile Christian dogmas and doctrines from these forged religious documents but hopefully as you see these truths for yourself you can prevent the same "unforgiveable" sin infecting your children. Therefore, the need for a voice crying in the wilderness of Christian neo-pagan idolatry; the need for ministries like Bet Emet and others which reveal the alteration of the Hebrew Scriptures that Jesus read and the falsification of the Greek and English translations of them which Gentile Christianity espouses today as "inspired, infallible, and inerrant."

Meanwhile, if you have read our research into Isaiah 53 and the forgery of the Hebrew Scriptures when translated into the Greek and later the Latin and English in these verses as well, then you have already seen how Isaiah 53 easily refers to the suffering servant nation, Israel, and that nowhere in the original Hebrew before it was altered can any verses truly be said to refer to Jesus of Nazareth alone. Now it is time to see the original meaning of Daniel's verses and compare them with Christian theology to see if we have been taught the truth concerning this prophecy by Gentile Christianity?

DID THE RABBIS TRANSLATE ONLY THE FIRST 5 BOOKS OF THE GREEK BIBLE?

As legends would have it the Jews are credited with translating the Jewish Scriptures in the Greek; thus giving the world the Greek Old Testament. In reality, this is just not so. Only when one come to the correct understanding of history and the origin of the LXX can one explain why this Greek OT deviates in hundreds of places from the Masoretic Hebrew Text. Often men will say that the LXX is a faithful translation of the Jewish Masoretic Text, but personal research into the true history will reveal to the serious student the fallacy of such false traditions. This explains the hundreds of purposeful misquotations and mistranslations that litter the pages of the LXX. The problem is no one knows, unless he compares line upon line and precept upon precept with the Jewish Tanakh. Such research will reveal to you how, among other things how “young woman” becomes “virgin” in Isaiah. I have done such homework. Have you? So let us study Josephus and see what he has to say on the matter of the translation of the Jewish Scriptures into the Greek.

THE ANTIQUITIES OF THE JEWS...PREFACE

1. THOSE who undertake to write histories, do not, I perceive, take that trouble on one and the same account, but for many reasons, and those such as are very different one from another. For some of them apply themselves to this part of learning to show their skill in composition, and that they may therein acquire a reputation for speaking finely: others of them there are, who write histories in order to gratify those that happen to be concerned in them, and on that account have spared no pains, but rather gone beyond their own abilities in the performance: but others there are, who, of necessity and by force, are driven to write history, because they are concerned in the facts, and so cannot excuse themselves from committing them to writing, for the advantage of posterity; nay, there are not a few who are induced to draw their historical facts out of darkness into light, and to produce them for the benefit of the public, on account of the great importance of the facts themselves with which they have been concerned. Now of these several reasons for writing history, I must profess the two last were my own reasons also; for since I was myself interested in that war which we Jews had with the Romans, and knew myself its particular actions, and what conclusion it had, I was forced to give the history of it, because I saw that others perverted the truth of those actions in their writings.
2. Now I have undertaken the present work, as thinking it will appear to all the Greeks (2) worthy of their study; for it will contain all our antiquities, and the constitution of our government, as interpreted out of the Hebrew Scriptures. And indeed I did formerly intend, when I wrote of the war, (3) to explain who the Jews originally were, - what fortunes they had been subject to, - and by what legislature they had been instructed in piety, and the exercise of other virtues, - what wars also they had made in remote ages, till they were unwillingly engaged in this last with the Romans: but because this work would take up a great compass, I separated it into a set treatise by itself, with a beginning of its own, and its own conclusion; but in process of time, as usually happens to such as undertake great things, I grew weary and went on slowly, it being a large subject, and a difficult thing to translate our history into a foreign, and to us unaccustomed language. However, some persons there were who desired to know our history, and so exhorted me to go on with it; and, above all the rest, Epaphroditus, (4) a man who is a lover of all kind of learning, but is principally delighted with the knowledge of history, and this on account of his having been himself concerned in great affairs, and many turns of fortune, and having shown a wonderful rigor of an excellent nature, and an immovable virtuous resolution in them all. I yielded to this man's persuasions, who always excites such as have abilities in what is useful and acceptable, to join their endeavors with his. I was also ashamed myself to permit any laziness of disposition to have a greater influence upon me, than the delight of taking pains in such studies as were very useful: I thereupon stirred up myself, and went on with my work more cheerfully. Besides the foregoing motives, I had others which I greatly reflected on; and these were, that our forefathers were willing to communicate such things to others; and that some of the Greeks took considerable pains to know the affairs of our nation.

3. I found, therefore, that the second of the Ptolemies was a king who was extraordinarily diligent in what concerned learning, and the collection of books; that he was also peculiarly ambitious to procure a translation of our law, and of the constitution of our government therein contained, into the Greek tongue. Now Eleazar the high priest, one not inferior to any other of that dignity among us, did not envy the forenamed king the participation of that advantage, which otherwise he would for certain have denied him, but that he knew the custom of our nation was, to hinder nothing of what we esteemed ourselves from being communicated to others. Accordingly, I thought it became me both to imitate the generosity of our high priest, and to suppose there might even now be many lovers of learning like the king; for he did not obtain all our writings at that time; but those who were sent to Alexandria as interpreters, gave him only the books of the law, while there were a vast number of other matters in our sacred books. They, indeed, contain in them the history of five thousand years; in which time happened many strange accidents, many chances of war, and great actions of the commanders, and mutations of the form of our government. Upon the whole, a man that will peruse this history, may principally learn from it, that all events succeed well, even to an incredible degree, and the reward of felicity is proposed by God; but then it is to those that follow his will, and do not venture to break his excellent laws: and that so far as men any way apostatize from the accurate observation of them, what was practical before becomes impracticable (5) and whatsoever they set about as a good thing, is converted into an incurable calamity. And now I exhort all those that peruse these books, to apply their minds to God; and to examine the mind of our legislator, whether he hath not understood his nature in a manner worthy of him; and hath not ever ascribed to him such operations as become his power, and hath not preserved his writings from those indecent fables which others have framed, although, by the great distance of time when he lived, he might have securely forged such lies; for he lived two thousand years ago; at which vast distance of ages the poets themselves have not been so hardy as to fix even the generations of their gods, much less the actions of their men, or their own laws. As I proceed, therefore, I shall accurately describe what is contained in our records, in the order of time that belongs to them; for I have already promised so to do throughout this undertaking; and this without adding any thing to what is therein contained, or taking away any thing therefrom.

4. But because almost all our constitution depends on the wisdom of Moses, our legislator, I cannot avoid saying somewhat concerning him beforehand, though I shall do it briefly; I mean, because otherwise those that read my book may wonder how it comes to pass, that my discourse, which promises an account of laws and historical facts, contains so much of philosophy. The reader is therefore to know, that Moses deemed it exceeding necessary, that he who would conduct his own life well, and give laws to others, in the first place should consider the Divine nature; and, upon the contemplation of God's operations, should thereby imitate the best of all patterns, so far as it is possible for human nature to do, and to endeavor to follow after it: neither could the legislator himself have a right mind without such a contemplation; nor would any thing he should write tend to the promotion of virtue in his readers; I mean, unless they be taught first of all, that God is the Father and Lord of all things, and sees all things, and that thence he bestows a happy life upon those that follow him; but plunges such as do not walk in the paths of virtue into inevitable miseries. Now when Moses was desirous to teach this lesson to his countrymen, he did not begin the establishment of his laws after the same manner that other legislators did; I mean, upon contracts and other rights between one man and another, but by raising their minds upwards to regard God, and his creation of the world; and by persuading them, that we men are the most excellent of the creatures of God upon earth. Now when once he had brought them to submit to religion, he easily persuaded them to submit in all other things: for as to other legislators, they followed fables, and by their discourses transferred the most reproachful of human vices unto the gods, and afforded wicked men the most plausible excuses for their crimes; but as for our legislator, when he had once demonstrated that God was possessed of perfect virtue, he supposed that men also ought to strive after the participation of it; and on those who did not so think, and so believe, he inflicted the severest punishments. I exhort, therefore, my readers to examine this whole undertaking in that view; for thereby it will appear to them, that there is nothing therein disagreeable either to the majesty of God, or to his love to mankind; for all things have here a reference to the nature of the universe; while our legislator speaks some things wisely, but enigmatically, and others under a decent allegory, but still explains such things as required a direct explication plainly and expressly. However, those that have a mind to know the reasons of every thing, may find here a very curious philosophical theory, which I now indeed shall wave the explication of; but if God afford me time for it, I will set about writing it (6) after I have finished the present work. I shall now betake myself to the history before me, after I have first mentioned what Moses says of the creation of the world, which I find described in the sacred books after the manner following.

SO WHY SHOULD THIS MATTER TO THE CHRISTIAN?

First of all you should desire as truthful translation of the Jewish Scriptures Yeshua used as possible. For over 200 years the Greek translation had been in existence and falsely translated by the Greek-Jews of Alexandria for theological purposes who patterned YHVH's Messianic predictions after their pagan gods. Such is the fruit of Hellenization on the Jews. In many places the Word of YHVH has been altered to make the Messiah conform to the pattern of mystery religions. As it that was not enough, when one's religious belief system includes a belief about Yeshua, then understand prophecies altered in the LXX (the Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures) would mistakenly be applied to him which have little relevance to his historical existence. False beliefs are attached to Yeshua let alone the Jewish Messiah. Many of these beliefs, all stemming from a fraudulent translation, are in the Words of the Jewish Scriptures considered sin by YHVH because they indoctrinate one into idolatry.

And if that is not enough, this falsified Greek translation, in which the Jewish Rabbis only translated the first 5 books, has become the substrate for all Greek New Testaments which follow. If the Greek NT is based off a fraudulent translation of the Palestinian Masoretic text in hundreds of places because of the theological agendas of these Greek-Jewish Pythagorean-Buddhists of Alexandria, Egypt, in the first two centuries B.C.E. as well as the futher corruptions by the monks during the Church age, then understand the Christian Bibles we have are false as well in these places since they are all based off the Greek or the Latin which contain these forgeries. That means many places in our English Bibles we have forgeries of the Hebrew Scriptures that pass for "God's Word" to the unsuspecting reader. Thus many of our beliefs attached to Jesus are simply wrong!

The quest for you is to divide the truth from the chaff. Such is an absolute impossibility without years of intense study in manuscript evidences. I have devoted much of my life to such a purpose and share these findings with you in hopes you, the reader, will understand that such alterations pass off today as truth and the sad fact of the reality of the matter is that God never gave it and Yeshua never believed it. Thus when alluding to the Scriptures in his day, Yeshua on two occasions mentions that the Palestinian text, and not the LXX, refers to him. Without a doubt Yeshua knew of the problems with the Greek translation in his day. So did the Rabbis. That is why the Jews of PALESTINE refused to use the Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures; they knew it was a forgery in their day. Sadly the Jews of the diaspora, who had long since lost the ability to read Hebrew, fell prey to such deception and this has unfortunately today infected the Christian Church as well owing to Rome following in the Essene's steps since they both had sun worship as the center of their faith.

Answer for yourself: And does it matter to you?

The bottom line in all of this dear one, is that unless you have the Palestinian text, the true Masoretic did the rabbis translate only the first five books of the greek bible?

text, you have never read the unadulterated Word of God yet in you life. You have accepted in total faith a religious propagandist document full of hundreds of mistranslations, misquotations, and verses lifted out of context which has almost destroyed the true revelation of the Messiah given to Israel. That is why the Jews and their scholars of today, who since recovering the ability to read Hebrew, refuse to use the corrupted Greek Old Testament and refuse the Christian teaching concerning Jesus as their Messiah. Their prophecies read completely different regarding the Messiah than does the Christian forged versions of the Hebrew Scriptures that have been handed down by Rome for the last 1700 years. If this touches your heart let us hear from you as we can help you better worship the Father in Spirit and in Truth and not through corrupted pagan texts mixed with some truth as found in your Christian Bibles. Shalom.

DANIEL'S PROBLEM....CONFUSION OVER THE "WORDS" OF JEREMIAH

Often in Bible study we over look the "keys" given to us which assure we arrive at the correct interpretation of the Biblical text at hand. This happens to the best of us; even Daniel the prophet as we shall see. No greater example exists than that of the Book of Daniel and the Seventy Weeks prophecy. At the beginning of the chapter, Daniel mentions the "word of the Lord" that came to the prophet Jeremiah. Daniel was agitated because of his misunderstanding of the prophecies of Jeremiah which foretold the captivity of Israel in Babylon and Israel's subsequent deliverance and return to their own land. This was the future salvation of the Jewish people after their repentance in captivity and is to be understood as their "salvation."

The prophecies that we need to look at are found in chapters 25 and 29 of the book of Jeremiah.

Jeremiah 25

8 ¶ Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts: Because ye have not heard My words, 9 behold, I will send and take all the families of the north, saith the LORD, and I will send unto Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon, My servant, and will bring them against this land, and against the inhabitants thereof, and against all these nations round about; and I will utterly destroy them, and make them an astonishment, and a hissing, and perpetual desolations. 10 Moreover I will cause to cease from among them the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the sound of the millstones, and the light of the lamp. 11 And this whole land shall be a desolation, and a waste; and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years. 12 And it shall come to pass, when seventy years are accomplished, that I will punish the king of Babylon, and that nation, saith the LORD, for their iniquity, and the land of the Chaldeans; and I will make it perpetual desolations.

Compare the following passage from Jeremiah 29:

Jeremiah 29

10 For thus saith the LORD: After seventy years are accomplished for Babylon, I will remember you, and perform My good WORD toward you, in causing you to return to this place.

We need to understand that the subjugation of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, occurred in the Hebrew year 3320. According to Jeremiah's prophecy, the captivity would last 70 years and therefore end in the year 3390 which is some 70 years later. Now let us understand that according to the first verses of chapter 9, Daniel was praying in the first year of the reign of Darius the son of Ahasuerus. Darius became king in the year 3389.

We can now understand why Daniel was so upset as the text relates. According to Daniel's understanding of Jeremiah's prophecy the captivity of Israel was about to end. This normally should have been good news for Daniel but it was not as you shall see. However, Daniel saw no indication that the Temple was about to be rebuilt or his people being freed and returning to their land. This was bad and Daniel was fearful. Therefore, Daniel thought that the sin of the people was so great that God had decided to extend the captivity or had possibly canceled the prophecy altogether. This is why Daniel was fasting and praying in sackcloth and ashes.

Daniel was NOT praying for the coming of the Messiah - indeed, there was no allusion to the Messiah in any of Jeremiah's prophecies. Daniel was praying that God would honor His promise to restore Israel and the Temple. Daniel's error was that he thought that the prophecies of Jeremiah 25 and 29 were the same and spoke of the same "seventy year period." In fact, as you will see, the prophecies of Jer. 25 and Jer. 29 were not the same. This is where Christian exegesis begins to jump the track because their accurate dating of the prophecy of Daniel cannot be correct unless this fact is taken into consideration as we will see shortly.

A very important point that needs to never be forgotten is that Jeremiah 25 does not mention the restoration of the Jewish people to the Land. This prophecy specifically refers to the 70 years attached to the domination of Babylon which began in the year 3320. It is Jeremiah 29 that refers to the destruction of the First Temple in 3338 and the promise that it would be rebuilt 70 years later.

Answer for yourself: How can we know that this seventy years period mentioned twice in Jeremiah is not the same?

We only need look at some other passages that are directly related to the restoration and the rebuilding of the Temple.

Ezra 1

1 ¶ NOW IN the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying: 2 'Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia: All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD, the God of heaven, given me; and He hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. 3 Whosoever there is among you of all His people--his God be with him--let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the LORD, the God of Israel, He is the God who is in Jerusalem.

2 Chronicles 36

19 And they burnt the house of God, and broke down the wall of Jerusalem, and burnt all the palaces thereof with fire, and destroyed all the goodly vessels thereof. 20 And them that had escaped from the sword carried he away to Babylon; and they were servants to him and his sons until the reign of the kingdom of Persia; 21 to fulfil the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had been paid her sabbaths; for as long as she lay desolate she kept sabbath, to fulfil threescore and ten years. 22 ¶ Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying: 23 'Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia: All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD, the God of heaven, given me; and He hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Whosoever there is among you of all His people--the LORD his God be with him--let him go up.'

Previously I took notice of the mention of the "word" in both Jeremiah 25 and Jeremiah 29. Our attention need to focus on Jeremiah 29 & the reference to "the WORD." This is God's word that the Temple would be rebuilt and is significantly different from the prophecy concerning the subjugation of Jerusalem found in Jeremiah 25.

Daniel was counting 70 years from the subjugation of Jerusalem beginning in 3320 and ending in 3390. This was Daniel's mistake. In order to determine when the Second Temple would be rebuilt Daniel should have started the count from the destruction of the first Temple which took place in 3338, 18 years after the subjugation of Jerusalem. In order to straighten Daniel out due to his confusion God would send him an angelic messenger with the divine interpretation of this prophecy because Daniel had not understood it properly.

Daniel 9

21 yea, while I was speaking in prayer, the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, approached close to me about the time of the evening offering. 22 And he made me to understand, and talked with me, and said: 'O Daniel, I am now come forth to make thee skilful of understanding.

Like Daniel, as we see, neither has the vast majority of Christain commentators today understood Daniel chapter 9 and the Sevent Weeks prophecy as well. This we will see very clearly as we continue our study.

Let us proceed.

DANIEL'S 70 WEEKS AND JESUS? FULFILLED OR UNFULFILLED? #1

Well I knew the time would eventually come. I would have to finally deal with Daniel's 70 weeks and do a series of articles on this very important part of Biblical prophecy. I had declined up to now because this is not only a task of great importance but the difficulty in presenting all the problems that are connected with this prophecy is no small thing to deal with. You will see as we begin to get into this serious issue and I will make a dedicated effort to present the information in such a way that the average reader will not only comprehend the truths concerning this prophecy but the problems surrounding it and the reasons for them. So let us begin with some introductory remarks as we begin.

The Book of Daniel is one of the more controversial books in the Tanakh (the Hebrew Bible). Aside from the great differences in understanding between Jews and Christians, Biblical scholars are at odds with each other as well, specifically concerning authorship and the dating of the work.

Christians cite many passages of the Hebrew Scriptures to attempt to prove that Jesus of Nazareth is the Messiah spoken of by the prophets. If you have been reading our articles up to now then you know that Bet Emet Ministries has dealt with the corruption of the Hebrew Bible in detail as we have shown repeatedly how the Hebrew Scriptures were corrupted, adulterated, and purposefully mistranslated and misquoted to teach things concerning the Messiah and later Jesus which were never in the minds of the original writers. In other words G-d's Word as it originally existed has been terribly altered for theological purposes down through history and we today are hard pressed to find the Bible Jesus; in fact it does not exist outside of Biblical Judaism.

One of the more frequently cited passages for proving Jesus is the Messiah is the ninth chapter of the Book of Daniel. Their assertion is that this chapter predicts the coming of the Messiah before the destruction of the Second Temple, which occurred in the year 70 CE. and since Jesus is believed by many to be "the" Messiah then he has to be the fulfillment of Daniel chapter 9. The main verses cited from Daniel 9 to support this assertion are verses 24-27.

Answer for yourself: Is such circular reasoning to be trusted and can examination of the Biblical texts as found in the Hebrew when contrasted with the Greek and later English translations shed any light upon this matter?

As I have been saying and teaching for years the grammar of a Biblical text in it's original language as well as the "CONTEXT" of a Biblical passage along with it's surrounding verses are extremely important for understanding the meaning of any Biblical text.

In order to gain a outlook on the context of Daniel 9 it would be helpful to read through the entire chapter. But then the problems only begin for there are existing today not only the version in the Jewish Bible but multiple variations in the Christian Bible and the confusion only commences as to the original meaning of the passage. Often it is almost, notice I said almost, impossible to gain truth regarding the Biblical texts when so much variety abounds among successive translations with all the manipulation of the Biblical texts by men throughout history which have had various "theological motives. Daniel chapter 9 is not exception as you will quickly see.

If you are a reader of these articles then I presume you are a seeker of truth. It is not my intention to "make" Jesus "the Messiah" nor is it my intention to prove Jesus is "not the Messiah." It is only my intention to examine the Biblical texts as they existed in the days of Jesus for truth as well as examine the path of their textual corruption by the Gentile Church and their "theological" agendas whereby the Hebrew Scriptures were altered to force "fulfillments of prophecy" and attach such "fulfillments" to Jesus when the original writer did not intend such fulfillments in the first place. This is what I have discovered in the fifteen plus years of scholarly research into my faith both during and following Seminary and the years of my Pastorate. You the readers are the final judge as you evaluate the evidence that Bet Emet Ministries will present in these forthcoming articles. I have full faith that when the facts are presented to you in such a manner then you will be able to make an intelligent decision once you see the whole ball of wax so to speak.

What we will see in the forthcoming articles is a verse by verse and text by text exposition of Hebrew words and phrases along with attention paid to grammar and punctuation of the Hebrew Scriptures in translation as well as these same parameters affecting the Greek and English texts of these same Hebrew passages in the various Christian translations. What we need find if we can is continuity in the presentation of the same ideas expressed in context within the Hebrew Scriptures. We either have a faithful translation in our Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures or we don't and this of course affects the Latin and English translations that emanate from the Greek as well. Said another way: "We as Christians and followers of Jesus" either have the truth of created fiction" as the fruit of purposeful mistranslation and misquotation and adulteration of the Hebrew Scriptures by the Gentile Christian Church down through recorded history. Unlike before when the Gentile nations of the Dark Ages could neither read nor study the Hebrew and the Hebrew language became a "dead" language even to the Jewish people we today are fortunate to live in an age where the Hebrew language has been revived and the discoveries of the Dead Sea Scrolls confirm the accuracy and authenticity of the 9th and 10th century Masoretic texts. Before the discovery of the Biblical texts as Qumran in 1949 know today as the Dead Sea Scrolls these Hebrew Masoretic texts from the 9th and 10th century were discounted by the Christian world because they read different from the famous Greek translation from the 2nd century B.C.E. It was assumed by Christendom that these Masoretic texts were "deJesusized" and this was the standard answer as to why these Hebrew Scriptures from the 9th and 10th century read so differently than the Greek translation supposedly taken from them. But upon discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls we find that the Essenes of Qumran had two Bibles: a Greek text and a Hebrew text and they do not read the same and are startlingly different in many "key" places.

Answer for yourself: Don't you find that quite odd that the Essenes of Qumran would have two very "conflicting" Bibles?

Well it is not my intention to deal with this issue at this time as I have on other websites to anyone's satisfaction. But what we find is that the Essenes of Qumran had their own theology and it contradicted and opposed much of the religious beliefs of the Hebrew Scriptures and one only need to begin an investigation as to what was really found at Qumran to see this for yourself.

As we begin serious study into Daniel chapter 9 and the Seventy Weeks of Daniel and it's Messianic implications let us remember these two passages:

Deut: 4:2 Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you.

Deut. 12:32 (13:1) All this word which I command you, that shall ye observe to do; thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.

Our task is simple. We must discover upon study and examination what the true Biblical text of Daniel 9 was in the days of Jesus as well as it's interpretation by the normative Jews of Jesus day. Then we have to make sure that we as Christians and followers of Jesus have been taught the same things and if we find out that we have not we need find the answers as to "why not?".

It is to these issues we now turn.

HISTORY OF INTERPRETATION OF THE BOOK OF DANIEL: CHRISTIAN VS JEW

Needless to say the Book of Daniel is one of the more polemical and controversial Biblical books in the Tanakh (the Hebrew Bible). History is dotted with numerous examples detailing great differences in both the understanding and interpretation of the book between Jews and Christians. As if that is not enough Biblical scholars are at odds with each other as well, specifically concerning authorship and the dating of the work. In the following articles I will address in my opinion the most important of these areas of contention in the interpretation of the book of Daniel pertaining to chapter 9 and the Seventy Weeks.

The prophecy concerning the Seventy weeks of Daniel (Dan 9:24-27) is perhaps the most contested verses of the Bible as to interpretation. Rabbinic Judaism would purport the prophecy was already fulfilled based on the reading and the punctuation in the Hebrew Masoretic text, while Christian notables such as Adam Clarke in their interpretations of the Christian texts of Daniel 9 state the Christian interpretation is in keeping with the Septuagint (the Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures). Yet these Jewish and Christian interpretation of Daniel chapter 9 and the Seventy Weeks are completely opposite!

Answer for yourself: How can that be?

The Rabbinic Jews would then further assert that the Septuagint only consisted of the Pentateuch and that the other books such as Daniel were falsely translated and altered not only before but after the time of Christ Jesus. Of course, the Christians say "not so" and that all of the books of the Bible were translated at least fifty years prior to Christ Jesus' advent, that the Greek speaking Jews themselves used the Septuagint until AD 200, and the Masoretic text was falsified as to these passages. On and so forth the arguments go. And not only are the texts controverted between Christian and Rabbinic Jew, but the application of the Christian translations are so controverted between various camps of Christian that is a wonder today than anyone can find the the truth concerning Daniel chapter 9 and the Seventy Weeks.

It would do us well to understand that the prophecy of Daniel does include some specific date setting by God, Himself, and not to mull over it some would be perhaps a bit negligent. But our problems start right in the beginning as to which Bible we are to "trust;" the Jewish Bible or the various Christian translations of Daniel 9 which don't agree with it at all.

Christians are taught to believe according to their Christian and Greek translations of the Hebrew Masoretic texts that the exact time for the coming of the Messiah and the kingdom are given by Daniel and "fulfilled" by none other than Jesus. Of course the Jews and their scholars say that is nonsense because the Hebrew Masoretic text does not say that.

Answer for yourself: So what is the truth of the matter? Did Jesus fulfill Daniel's Seventy Weeks and is this proof that he is Israel's Messiah? And if so then how could the Jewish people and their Torah scholars miss this most important point in their own Hebrew Scriptures?

Christians cite many passages of the Hebrew Scriptures to attempt to prove that Jesus of Nazareth is the Messiah spoken of by the prophets. If you have been reading our articles up to now then you know that Bet Emet Ministries has dealt with the corruption of the Hebrew Bible in detail as we have shown repeatedly how the Hebrew Scriptures were corrupted, adulterated, and purposefully mistranslated and misquoted to teach things concerning the Messiah and later Jesus which were never in the minds of the original writers. In other words G-d's Word as it originally existed has been terribly altered for theological purposes down through history and we today are hard pressed to find the Bible Jesus; in fact it does not exist outside of Biblical Judaism.

DANIEL 9....AND LOOKING FOR THE END DAYS MESSIAH

One of the more frequently cited passages for proving Jesus is the Messiah is the ninth chapter of the Book of Daniel. Their assertion is that this chapter predicts the coming of the long expected Messiah before the destruction of the Second Temple, which occurred in the year 70 CE. and since Jesus is believed by many to be "the" Messiah then he has to be the fulfillment of Daniel chapter 9. The main verses cited from Daniel 9 to support this assertion are verses 24-27.

Answer for yourself: Is such circular reasoning to be trusted and can examination of the Biblical texts as found in the Hebrew when contrasted with the Greek and later English translations shed any light upon this matter?

As I have been saying and teaching for years the grammar of a Biblical text in it's original language as well as the "CONTEXT" of a Biblical passage along with it's surrounding verses are extremely important for understanding the meaning of any Biblical text.

In order to gain an outlook on the context of Daniel 9 it would be helpful to read through the entire chapter.

But then the problems only begin for there are existing today not only the version in the Jewish Bible but multiple variations in the Christian Bible and the confusion only commences as to the original meaning of the passage. Often it is almost, notice I said almost, impossible to gain truth regarding the Biblical texts when so much variety abounds among successive translations with all the manipulation of the Biblical texts by men throughout history which have had various "theological motives. Daniel chapter 9 is not exception as you will quickly see.

Now let us continue.

DANIEL'S 70 WEEKS AND JESUS? FULFILLED OR UNFULFILLED? #2

Now we begin a very important piece of text that is used by Christians to prove that Jesus is the Jewish Messiah. It achieves its importance because the Christians say that these verses "specifically" mentions that "THE MESSIAH" is to come and die before the destruction of the Second Temple and for them they ask "Who else could that have been Jesus?". For Christianity as you can see this becomes a key text in their belief that Jesus is the Messiah. Of course Biblical Judaism has a completely different interpretation and understanding for these Hebrew Scriptures in Daniel chapter 9. As we study we will come to see clearly who has the right interpretation of these Hebrew Scriptures and who does not.

WEEKS AND WEEKS OF YEARS

To understand this prophecy correctly we need to become familiar with some Hebrew words and concepts. Daniel chapter 9 deals with some very important language that most Christians are not familiar with. Daniel uses a language unfamiliar to most Christians as we need only look at the verse and the Hebrew words within it to see this clearly.

25 Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the word to restore and to build Jerusalem unto one anointed, a prince, shall be seven weeks; and for threescore and two weeks, it shall be built again, with broad place and moat, but in troublous times.

The Hebrew word for "weeks" according to the Strong's Concordance:

7620 shabuwa` (shaw-boo'-ah); or shabua` (shaw-boo'-ah); also (feminine) shebu` ah (sheb-oo-aw'); properly, passive participle of 7650 as a denominative of 7651; literal, sevened, i.e. a week (specifically, of years): KJV--seven, week.

So we see that a "week" refers to "7" and as used by Daniel he is referring to 7 years to "one week." This terminology might be new to the reader but this is a literary technique used by Daniel to describe a "seven year" period of time. Thus we find Daniel using the terms "week" and "weeks." For us we think in 7 days periods but Daniel uses weeks of years (seven years/week) and not week of days.

- One week for Daniel is 7 years
- 7 weeks are 49 years
- Sixty two weeks are 434 years
- Sixty nine years are 483 years
- Seventy weeks are 490 years

So we now understand when Daniel mentions "one week" he is referring to 7 years and when Daniel mentions "7 weeks" he is referring to 49 years and when Daniel mentions "sixty-two weeks" he is referring to 434 years and so forth.

Answer for yourself: Why would Daniel use such a bizarre language to describe 7 years, 49 years, 434 years, 483 years, and 490 years? Why not just say "seven" or "434" years?

Answer for yourself: Where does the Bible elsewhere describe concepts where the Bible describes years as weeks and not days? Where did Daniel get such a concept as he used in Daniel 9?

THE SPECIAL COMMANDMENT OF KEEPING AND OBSERVING THE SHEMITTAH

In Judaism we find a concept called the "Sabbatical Year" which is called in Hebrew "shemittah" which is the seventh year of rest for the land. The Bible proclaims every seventh year "a sabbath of the Lord" (Lev. 25:1-7, 18-22) during which the soil of the land of Israel must rest and lie fallow.

1 ¶ And the LORD spoke unto Moses in mount Sinai, saying: 2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them: When ye come into the land which I give you, then shall the land keep a sabbath unto the LORD. 3 Six years thou shalt sow thy field, and six years thou shalt prune thy vineyard, and gather in the produce thereof. 4 But in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of solemn rest for the land, a sabbath unto the LORD; thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard. 5 That which groweth of itself of thy harvest thou shalt not reap, and the grapes of thy undressed vine thou shalt not gather; it shall be a year of solemn rest for the land. 6 And the sabbath-produce of the land shall be for food for you: for thee, and for thy servant and for thy maid, and for thy hired servant and for the settler by thy side that sojourn with thee; 7 and for thy cattle, and for the beasts that are in thy land, shall all the increase thereof be for food. 8 ¶ And thou shalt number seven sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years; and there shall be unto thee the days of seven sabbaths of years, even forty and nine years. 9 Then shalt thou make proclamation with the blast of the horn on the tenth day of the seventh month; in the day of atonement shall ye make proclamation with the horn throughout all your land. 10 And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof; it shall be a jubilee unto you; and ye shall return every man unto his possession, and ye shall return every man unto his family. 11 A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be unto you; ye shall not sow, neither reap that which groweth of itself in it, nor gather the grapes in it of the undressed vines. 12 For it is a jubilee; it shall be holy unto you; ye shall eat the increase thereof out of the field. 13 In this year of jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession. 14 And if thou sell aught unto thy neighbour, or buy of thy neighbour's hand, ye shall not wrong one another. 15 According to the number of years after the jubilee thou shalt buy of thy neighbour, and according unto the number of years of the crops he shall sell unto thee. 16 According to the multitude of the years thou shalt increase the price thereof, and according to the fewness of the years thou shalt diminish the price of it; for the number of crops doth he sell unto thee. 17 And ye shall not wrong one another; but thou shalt fear thy God; for I am the LORD your God. 18 Wherefore ye shall do My statutes, and keep Mine ordinances and do them; and ye shall dwell in the land in safety. 19 And the land shall yield her fruit, and ye shall eat until ye have enough, and dwell therein in safety. 20 And if ye shall say: 'What shall we eat the seventh year? behold, we may not sow, nor gather in our increase'; 21 then I will command My blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth produce for the three years. 22 And ye shall sow the eighth year, and eat of the produce, the old store; until the ninth year, until her produce come in, ye shall eat the old store.

The farmer is forbidden to plant, sow or plow, but has to rely on the bounty of God to provide him with a threefold harvest in the sixth year to tide him over until the harvest of the eighth year becomes available (Lev. 25:22). The land was required of God to just lay there...you could not do anything to the land but let it rest and enjoy its sabbath. The harvest of the seventh year is to be regarded as the common property of all -- rich and poor, stranger and slave. When all had had their fill, the remainder was to be left for the domestic and wild animals (Lev. 25:4). All debts were canceled in that year, the creditor being admonished not to dun the debtor or harbor the unworthy thought of refraining from lending him money because the sabbatical year was pending (Deut. 15: 1-11). As explained by Rabbi A.I. Kook, like the Sabbath itself, the Sabbatical year represents a respite from mundane toil, from getting and spending with everything tainted with business, when both land and people can spiritually recuperate -- "a foretaste of a utopian world where inequalities are erased" (Shabbat ha-Aretz, p. 8).

We learn from the Torah that if Israel fails to live up to its obligations before God, punishments will be forthcoming. Throughout Leviticus 26 there is the admonition that the people would be punished "seven ways" for their sins (vs. 18, 21, 24, 28). The Jewish commentators saw this as being applied to this 70-year punishment, not only for the transgression of the law of shemittah, the Sabbatical Year, but for other sins that Israel had committed during the time of the First Temple. Among the other sins cited in the Talmud (Yoma 96) are idolatry, licentiousness and bloodshed.

The primary reason the First Temple was destroyed was due to Israel's failure to observe this commandment

But for our purposes the law of shemittah states that once every seven years the land must lie fallow and not be cultivated.

The Sabbatical year was originally part of a 50-year cycle (Lev. 25:8-17). The climax of this sevenfold seven cycle was the 50th or Jubilee year when all land was returned to its ancestral owners and Hebrew slaves who had insisted on remaining in service after the biblical six-year maximum, were released (Ex. 21:1-6). The Bible ordained exile as the punishment for neglect of the Sabbatical year; indeed, the Babylonian Exile was described as extending the "threescore and ten years (70 years) until the land had paid back its Sabbaths" [one year of captivity for each cycle of 7 years that the land was not allowed to lie fallow in that 7th year] (II Chr. 36:21).

21 to fulfil the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had been paid her sabbaths; for as long as she lay desolate she kept sabbath, to fulfil threescore and ten years [70 years in captivity to pay back one year for each 7 years the land was not allowed to rest and lay fallow...thus 70 years in captivity to pay back the 70 years the land did not rest during 490 years when Israel broke the commandment of shemittah]

The Jubilee years, however, lapsed with the return of the exiles from Babylonia and the rebuilding of the Temple, as it was regarded as binding only as long as the majority of the Jewish people were settled in Erets Israel and the tribal allocation of land was still in force. Nevertheless, the returning exiles solemnly undertook to "forgo the seventh year crop and the exaction of every debt" (Neh. 10:32). The Mishnah Shevitt reflects the attempts to institutionalize the observance of the Sabbatical year and apply it meticulously to the agriculture of the time. Alexander the Great and subsequent benevolent rulers are recorded as having waived the royal tax during that year. Hillel circumvented the problem of the reluctance to lend money as the Sabbatical year approached by instituting the prosbul. After the destruction of the Temple, rabbinic authorities waived the Sabbatical year observance when dire punishment awaited those who would refuse to pay the tax imposed by hostile rulers during these years. It was only with modern Zionist agricultural settlement beginning in the late 19th century that the practical observance of the Sabbatical year once again became relevant. The religious Zionist Mizrachi movement committed itself to the fictional heter sale to a non-Jew during the Sabbatical year to allow cultivation to continue "so as not to endanger the whole Zionist enterprise." However, the heter was bitterly opposed by other rabbinical authorities, especially among the non-Zionists. In the State of Israel, the Ministry of Religious Affairs has been invested with the authority to execute the ritual sale of all state lands to non-Jews during these years. Modern agricultural techniques such as hydroponics, pre-sabbatical sowing, and multiple harvesting varieties of crops have been resorted to, in order to avoid violating the basic biblical prohibitions. Official planting ceremonies do not take place during the Sabbatical year (the last Sabbatical year was in 1986- 87). Harvesting and marketing operations of seventh-year produce is done in the name of the Israeli ecclesiastical court and the religious kibbutz movement allocates a percentage of its Sabbatical year produce to welfare causes in order to fulfill the spirit of the biblical ordinance.

DANIEL 9 IN A TYPICAL CHRISTIAN BIBLE

So we find the Jewish people went into captivity and the Hebrew Bible tell us the reason why the Jewish people went into captivity and exile is that they have abandoned and violated the law of 7 of shemittah therefore the Jewish people went into Babylon for 70 years. So Daniel uses the language of shemittah to express the punishment given Israel for their transgression of Lev. 25:1-22. In using this unique language Daniels tell us as found in a typical Christian Bible that a special period of time consisting of 490 years has been decreed for Israel and her people and upon the holy city of Jerusalem to make reconciliation for the iniquity of breaking shemittah for 490 years and this punishment will be the exile of the Jewish people for 70 years where the land will be allowed to lie fallow one year for each 7 that Israel broke shemittah. Seventy years of captivity where the land lies fallow will be a pay-back to the land for the years she was not allowed to lie fallow during 490 years of Israel's history. Coupled with this is the prophecy that at the end of 483 years of another length of time consisting of 490 years that begins with the going forth of some sort of "word" will be a Messiah who will come and die for others!

"Who else" Christians ask "could this one who was to die for others be but Jesus"? On the surface it looks somewhat convincing until you begin to do some serious study.

Answer for yourself: Does this prophecy refer to Jesus and is Jesus the fulfillment of Daniel 9?

WHAT IS TO BE ACCOMPLISHED WITHIN THIS 490 YEARS/7 WEEKS?

This is the most amazing thing if you stop and think about it but Daniels' prophecy states that within this time frame of 490 years several things are to be accomplished:

- to finish the transgression,
- and to make an end of sin,
- and to forgive iniquity,
- and to bring in everlasting righteousness,
- and to seal vision and prophets,
- and to anoint the most holy place.

Since we now understand Israel's failure to observe and keep "shemittah" then the context of Daniel 9 becomes relatively easy to comprehend. The failure to observe "shemittah" would end upon Israel's captivity and exile and then the sin and transgression of failing to allow the land to lay fallow would cease upon Israel's captivity and removal from the land. Israel's captivity will bring to end this sin and the punishment for this sin along with Israel's repentance will bring forgiveness for this sin. Once Israel as God's Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood had atoned for her sins in this regard through the 70 years that she would spend in captivity then the Messianic Kingdom could begin and God could bring to mankind and the world everlasting righteousness and in so doing God would as well "fulfill" all the prophecies and visions given to Israel and God would once again return to the planet in form of the Shekinah as He had previously resided and in so doing He would anoint the Third Temple. Understand in closing that the Rabbi and the Jewish interpreters of the Hebrew Bible stress that "to seal the vision and the prophets" means that all the Biblical prophecies would be fulfilled. At least that was the plan but as you know it did not happen. We need to find out why and we have on other websites detailed the reasons behind the failure of the Messianic prophecies to be fulfilled. But that is another study and space does not allow for dealing with that in this article.

Well we now know "why" Israel went into captivity in Babylon and why it was seventy years. We also know now why Daniel chose such strange concepts to reveal his revelation as he was somewhat ironic in choosing the concept of shemittah which has been transgressed by Israel to express the punishment for such transgression (weeks of years and not weeks of days). As we move to the next article we will begin to examine the texts in various Christian Bibles as well as the Hebrew Masoretic text and look to see if our Christian Bibles are faithful to the Hebrew Scriptures in translating Daniel 9. Remember if our translations are incorrect or purposefully forged then our understanding is wrong as well as our religious belief systems. Such error leads us unknowingly into idolatry and blasphemy because of the replacement religious doctrines taught in place of the truth as found in the Hebrew Scriptures when rightly translated.

DANIEL'S 70 WEEKS AND JESUS? FULFILLED OR UNFULFILLED? #3

It is assumed that you have read the first two articles in this series before you begin reading this third article as the background information previously presented is mandatory to your continued proper understanding of the texts to which we now turn our attention.

EXAMINING THE 20TH CENTURY KING JAMES BIBLE

Let us look at the text under consideration as found in the 20th century King James Bible: Daniel 9:25-27

Dan 9:25-27 25 Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks [69 weeks or 483 years]: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times. 26 And after threescore and two weeks [62 weeks or 434 years] shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. 27 And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate. (KJV)

So we see that after 483yrs after a command to build Jerusalem and the Temple the Messiah will be cut off or killed.

What we just read is one of the most exotic reconstructions of the Jewish Scriptures that exist today in our Christian Bibles. Yet millions read this text and have not one clue of the purposeful corruption of the Hebrew Scriptures that they just read.

We need to focus our attention first on the reference to "Messiah" as found in verse 25 and as found in verse 26. I will present only verse 25 as we can learn what we need to from the first presentation of the word "Messiah."

"... unto the Messiah the Prince ..." (v.25) The Hebrew word mashiach means "anointed."

We need to look at this word "mashiach" as translated from the Hebrew:

First we will look at the Strong's Concordance:

4899 mashiach (maw-shee'-akh); from 4886; anointed; usually a consecrated person (as a king, priest, or saint); specifically, the Messiah: KJV-- anointed, Messiah.

Next let us look at Thayer's Greek Lexicon:

4899 mashiach- the anointed, the anointed one

- a) used of the Messiah, Messianic prince
- b) used of the king of Israel
- c) used of the high priest of Israel
- d) used of Cyrus
- e) used of the patriarchs as anointed kings

Answer for yourself: When reading the Bible done by Jewish translators do you know how many times does the word "Messiah" [capitalized mashiach] appears in the Jewish Bible? ZERO

Answer for yourself: When reading the Bible done by Christian translators do you know how many times does the word "Messiah" [capitalized mashiach] appears in the Christian Bible? TWICE....IN DANIEL 9:25 AND 9:26 ONLY!

The word "Messiah" is really a Latin word. Christos is a Greek word for "Messiah." The Hebrew word is "mashiach" and it is always uncapitalized.

Answer for yourself: How many times do we find the Hebrew word "mashiach" used in the Hebrew Scriptures? You only need to get out your Strong's Concordance and look up the word and the Strong's number [4899] and count the times. We find the Hebrew word "mashiach" used a total of 39 times in the Hebrew Scriptures.

In the above definition we find the word "mashiach" is used for the kings of Israel, the high priests of Israel, and of course the hoped for "messiah" of Israel. But notice also something rather strange. We find a Persian King named Cyrus that is responsible for allowing the Jewish people to return to their land following their victory over Babylon where the Jewish people had been exiled as punishment for failing to observe "shemittah" and letting the land lay fallow for 490 years.

Of the 39 times mashiach is used in the Hebrew Scriptures, the KJV translates it correctly as "anointed" 37 times correctly and does not capitalize it. In each of these 37 instances these same KJV translators translate this Hebrew word correctly as "anointed." Let us look at some of the examples.

- Exod 29:2 2 And unleavened bread, and cakes unleavened tempered with oil, and wafers unleavened anointed with oil: of wheaten flour shalt thou make them. (KJV)
- Exod 29:29 29 And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his sons' after him, to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated in them. (KJV)
- Isa 61:1 1 The Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me; because the LORD hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound; (KJV)

In the references given above the word used for "anointed" is the same Strong's number [4886] that we find in Daniel 9 used twice. The KJV translators demonstrate that they know how to correctly translate the word "mashiach" and do so correctly 37 times in the KJV but as stated above they deviate from accepted laws of hermeneutics and interpretation twice in Daniel 9 by forcing a capitalization of the word only in these two instances!

Answer for yourself: Why?

Let us remember that the Hebrew Scriptures do not capitalize words but yet we find the Hebrew word "mashiach" translated as "Messiah" [CAPITALIZED] in the Christian translation of Daniel in verses 25 and 26 and strangely we find it capitalized only twice in the whole of the KJV and we find that it is here in these verses in Daniel but these same translators choose not to capitalize it in the other 37 uses.

Answer for yourself: Don't you think it rather strange that the uncanceled words in the Hebrew Scriptures are capitalized in these "key" places in Daniel dealing with the Messianic age but the same translators did not choose to capitalize the same word in 37 other places?

Answer for yourself: Could we be deceived into falling into a certain theological agenda of the translators of the KJV and read into these verses certain concepts concerning "mashiach" that Daniel never intended?

We sure are because of this forced capitalization of uncanceled works in the Hebrew manuscripts and we are led due to the theological agenda of the Christian Scriptures and the Gentile Church into reading the concept of the ultimate "Messiah" into these verses when this was never the intention of Daniel. Daniel made no distinction whatsoever in singling out the "anointed one" of which he wrote concerning in his letter. For Daniel this "anointed one" was no different from other "anointed ones." Daniel took no special pains as found in the Hebrew manuscripts to say "Look now...this is the long awaited Messiah of which we have yearned." Not only that but because of the christology surrounding Jesus who was made God at the Council of Nicea in 325 C.E. then we are brainwashed into connecting the capitalized "Messiah" with the prior teachings we have heard most of our lives that Jesus is God and that Jesus is "the" Messiah. So instead of exegesis where we draw out of the Biblical texts what it says we are led by the KJV translators to read into the passage concepts that simply don't exist in the passage in the original Hebrew. We end up with false religious beliefs about Daniel's Seventy Weeks let alone about the true Messiah of Israel and Jesus as well.

If we went back into Temple times and walked the streets of Jerusalem and approached a Jewish man or woman as asked: "Where is the "mashiach" they would ask us in return "Which 'mashiach' are you talking about?" The word "mashaich" only meant "anointed" ones and as shown above could have meant a reference to a Jewish King, a Sadducee Priest, or even a Gentile King like King Cyrus. We even find that the whole of Israel is called the "anointed" of God as seen in Hab. 3:13

13 Thou art come forth for the deliverance of Thy people, for the deliverance of Thine anointed; Thou woudest the head out of the house of the wicked, uncovering the foundation even unto the neck. Selah.

As we are so distant from the language of Scripture living in America today that we honestly don't have a chance of interpreting our Christian Scriptures properly when only read in the English.

The word "mashaich" is NEVER used in the Hebrew Bible about who you and me refer to as the "Messiah" who is to come at the end of days!

The very first time we find the word "mashaich" used for the person that we expect to come at the end of days is the first century BCE! The 54 translators of the KJV Bible knew that the concepts surrounding the Jewish Messiah were much different in their day than in the first century and they took full advantage of this by choosing to capitalize "mashaich" and introduce concepts and meanings into Daniel 9 that Daniel never intended. Understand when our Christian Bibles were translated by the KJV translators theology had been evolving concerning Jesus and the Jewish "Messiah" and these concepts were easily introduced into the KJV translation of Daniel 9 by the capitalization of "mashaich" when as shown above the Hebrew Scriptures never translated word let alone "mashaich." These KJV translators Hey knew the word "Messiah" meant more in their day than before; that the word in their day referred to the one coming from the House of David that would usher in a utopian society and bring peace to the whole world.

So we find that in reading Daniel 9 in our Christian Bibles is that we are led to believe that we are speaking of the anointed one who is to come at the end of days and usher in the Messianic Kingdom when the original ideas of Daniel 9 as taken from the Hebrew words does not carry that idea whatsoever. We as Christians are led to believe we are reading about an eschatological anointed one who is to come as God's Messianic representative and die when this idea is totally foreign to the Hebrew Scriptures and the Bible Jesus used. We have to wait for the forged Christian Bibles to get this idea and having inherited such corrupted translations then we rehearse error over and over again our whole lives.

Answer for yourself: Who is responsible for corrupting our Bibles? Why has not our Christian Pastors and teachers found this out in their study of God's Word? Do they even study..and if so are they really studying the texts in the original languages? If they are not qualified in Biblical languages and cannot deal with the Biblical texts in their original languages are they qualified to teach you?

In closing I have a few more things to bring to your attention. The Hebrew word "mashaich" does not mean "THE" Messiah. The word "ha mashaich" means "the mashaich" or "the messiah." But there is no "ha" in the texts in the original Hebrew. Yet in the KJV in verse 25 of Daniel 9 we see "the Messiah" with a capital "M."

Answer for yourself: Do you understand what is being done with the mind and souls of the readers by the traslators of the KJV? They are being lied to about Gods' Word!

Because Christians cannot read Hebrew or are familiar with Jewish works expounding these Hebrew nuiances in the texts we are totally ignorant to what is going on behind the words of our Bibles. We grow up buying KJV Bibles and are brainwashed to think since childhood that the KJV is the "only" Bible from God. The debates about the primacy of the KJV rage today. We are told since childhood that our Christian Bibles are inspired, infallible, and inerrant but when one gets serious about Bible study we find such problems as these and the countless others dealt with on this and other websites by Bet Emet Ministries.

You and I are guilty of only one thing. We want the truth but don't have it. And with the reinforcement of antisemitic religious beliefs over and over in our Gentile Churches we are taught by bogus documents written after 180 A.D. that the Jews are blinded.

Rom 11:7 7 What then? Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the rest were blinded (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that Romans 9-11 was not in the first collection of Romans in 150 A.D. but only surfaced after 180 A.D. in reaction to Marcion's first New Testament? Documents like this that label the Jewish nation and scholars as "blinded" have achieved its intended purpose. The Jewish people and their scholars and their Bible are not sought by Gentiles who need to know the truth about God.

Answer for yourself: What can you learn about God or should you even try from supposedly "blinded" Jews? Surely they don't have any "truth" do they since being "blinded" for not accepting this dying "Messiah" of Daniel 9 which just so happens to not be in the text at all..or do they?

Answer for yourself: Could it be that it is we Christians who are "blinded" by the antisemitic KJV translators who purposefully manipulated & corrupted the Biblical Hebrew texts to suit their pagan religious agendas which are grounded in dying solar Godmen that all said "eat my body" and "drink my blood?"

Answer for yourself: Has this dying solar Godman from Sun worship been written into Daniel chapter 9 in the Gentile's Christian Bibles through the purposeful mistranslation of the Hebrew word "mashaich" and its forced capitalization and through the insertion of the definite article "the" before it?

Answer for yourself: Do you see the irony and the seriousness of this? I hope so.

DANIEL'S 70 WEEKS AND JESUS? FULFILLED OR UNFULFILLED? #4

Now we must move on in our study as the problems involved in Daniel 9 are by no means over. We must not deal with the grammar and punctuation of Daniel chapter 9 as found in the Hebrew Scriptures as compared with our Christian Bibles.

COMPRESSION OF TIME

Let us look at Daniel 9:25-27 as found in the KJV and let us notice how time is measured by the KJV translators.

Dan 9:25-27 25 Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks [69 weeks or 483 years]: the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times. 26 And after threescore and two weeks [62 weeks or 434 years] shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself: and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. 27 And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Don't you think it is a little odd to say the number "69" as 7 + 60 and 2?

Nobody talks like that. What the KJV translators did was compress two different time periods into one and they accomplished this by using a "COMMA" between "seven weeks" and "threescore and two weeks." Instead of the "seven weeks [49 years]" being set apart from the "threescore and two weeks [483 years]" as found in the Hebrew Bible and Hebrew manuscripts the KJV translators added these two time periods together as if Daniel was prophesying about one long time period before the unveiling of "the Messiah."

You by now know from the previous article that through the artificial capitalization of "mashaich" and the insertion of the definite article "the" before the Hebrew word ""mashaich" the KJV translators tried to make the passage in Daniel chapter 9 and the prophecy of the Seventy Weeks refer to the eschatological last days "Messiah" who was to come and bring peace to the world. But we saw that the Hebrew Scriptures contained no such idea and that the "anointed one" was not understood by Daniel to be this end time figure. But let us assume for the sake of argument that this "anointed one" is to be "the Messiah." That being the case for our further discussion then we now see more clearly the rationale for the failure of the KJV translators to separate the "seven weeks [49 years]" from the "sixty two weeks [434 years]." The KJV translators had a problem on their hands in trying to make this prophecy of the Seventy Weeks come to fruition in the days of Jesus and in order to "stretch" the time period of Daniel 9 to the days of Jesus they resorted to creative dating of the beginning of the prophecy as well as creative punctuation of the texts. For this reason they would not acknowledge that the "seven weeks [49 years]" was separated in time from the "sixty two weeks [434 years]" as found in the Hebrew manuscripts.

Answer for yourself: What was the KJV translators trying to make sure that the reader of Daniel 9 does not see? By such manipulation of the texts and the failure to recognize a separation in time between the first 49 years and the second 434 years the KJV translators were not only trying to make the reader not see that these time periods were separated but that each of them has their own "anointed one" or "messiah." In other words Daniel 9 in the Hebrew Scriptures refers to two different "messiahs" or "anointed ones." Of course this is very problematic if you are looking to Jesus to be the "one" Messiah or at least the end days anointed one which is supposed to come. Daniel was referring to the unveiling of two different "anointed ones" at two different times.

Answer for yourself: Does Daniel describe these two different "anointed ones" differently? He sure does.

The first "anointed one" which is to come after the first week [49 years] is called a "prince."

The Strong's Number is:

5057 nagiya (naw-gheed'); or nagiya (naw-gheed'); from 5046; a commander (as occupying the front), civil, military or religious; generally (abstractly, plural), honorable themes: KJV-- captain, chief, excellent thing, (chief) governor, leader, noble, prince, (chief) ruler.

It is evident that this "first" anointed one that is to appear after 49 years is royalty. He is a captain, a special leader, or governor or leaders. He is royalty and operates in some sort of civil government. This surely does not meet the description of Jesus in the New Testament. When Daniel mentions the second "anointed one" then there is no reference to this royalty. This leads us to believe when coupled with the artificial punctuation and separation of the two periods of time to come to the conclusion that Daniel is definitely speaking of two different "anointed ones" and not one.

Answer for yourself: Why is reference made in Daniel 9:24-27 to "mashaich" or "Messiah" twice? This is so simple as you are beginning to see when you learn these things. Daniel was speaking of "two" different "anointed ones" or "messiahs."

This again is a problem for Jesus. If this prophecy according to Christian exegesis is speaking of Jesus then there is only one "anointed" one but Daniel is speaking of two. This makes it less likely that Daniel could have any reference in this prophecy concerning Jesus. Daniel is saying that the "first" anointed one comes after 7 weeks [49 years] and the "second" anointed one comes after 62 more weeks [434 years]. Daniel again teaches us that the "first" anointed one is royalty and the "second" anointed one is not.

WHAT DOES THE HEBREW SCRIPTURES DO WITH THE TIME PERIODS IN DANIEL CHAPTER 9?

We need to now examine the classical Jewish translation of these verses and notice any similarities and diversities and when we encounter differences in the Hebrew text from its supposed faithful translations we need to stop and examine them and try to ascertain the reasons why the concepts in the Hebrew Scriptures were not translated correctly in the later Greek and English translation. Now the text:

25 Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the word to restore and to build Jerusalem unto one anointed, a prince, shall be seven weeks; and for threescore and two weeks, it shall be built again, with broad place and moat, but in troublous times. 26 And after "the" threescore and two weeks shall an anointed one be cut off, and be no more; and the people of a prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; but his end shall be with a flood; and unto the end of the war desolations are determined. 27 And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week; and for half of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the offering to cease; and upon the wing of detestable things shall be that which causeth appalment; and that until the extermination wholly determined be poured out upon that which causeth appalment.'

The authors of the KJV chose to disregard a definite article here. It should be "and after *the* threescore and two weeks."

Answer for yourself: Why did the KJV have to do this?

If they left the definite article in, then it would direct attention to the fact that the 7 weeks and the 62 weeks should be regarded separately.

There are many things to observe in the above Hebrew rendering of the verse. Notice first of all that between "shall be seven weeks" and "and for threescore and two weeks" we find a SEMICOLON AND NOT A COMMA as we do in many English translations. This is done because the writer of the Hebrew Scriptures is denoting a change in time periods in the Hebrew; instead of one long time period of 69 weeks (483 years) he is saying that this civil ruler or King will come after 7 weeks from the going forth of the "WORD" to restore and build Jerusalem and then another time period begins consisting of 62 weeks then another anointed one will be cut off.

Answer for yourself: Is there proof that this Hebrew interpretation is correct? Yes.

First of all direct your attention to the next verse.

What does it say: "After sixty-nine" weeks or "sixty-two" weeks? It says "and after threescore and two weeks" or sixty-two weeks and NOT sixty-nine weeks which tells us again that Daniel had already envisioned at this time that the first week or seven years had already elapsed therefore in the continual counting then we have only sixty-two weeks and the final week or 7 years remaining. The sixty-two weeks and seven weeks are not to be put together as one consecutive period of time but rather two different periods of time.

But as if that is not enough we also have what is called an esnachta in this verse when read in the Hebrew. In order to understand the function of this esnachta we need look at the KJV for one second more:

"... shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks:" (v.25) Notice first of all that separating "seven weeks" & "and threescore and two weeks" is a "COMMA" in the KJV and most Christian translations of this verse. The use of a "COMMA" in this instance means that the periods of time run consecutively and are not broken. In the Hebrew Masoretic text however, there is a small diacritical mark called an esnachta which separates these two phrases. In order to understand this in your reading of the passage then you have to be able to read Hebrew which few Christians and Christian commentators are capable of it seems or at least know that this exists in the Hebrew manuscripts. An esnachta (a mark appearing as an inverted "u" beneath the next to last consonant of a word) is roughly equivalent to a semicolon and signals that a phrase ends at this point and that the next word is the beginning of a new thought.

NOTICE again that in the KJV the use of this semicolon is absent and the writer fails to separate these time periods by using a comma but the Hebrew translation and the Hebrew writers does not fail to use this diacritical mark to denote a change in time periods.

The presence of this esnachta in Hebrew teaches us that the Hebrew manuscripts, unlike like the Greek or Christian translations, definitely points to a BREAK IN TIME AND EVENTS BETWEEN THE FIRST "SEVEN" WEEKS AND THE FOLLOWING "SIXTY TWO WEEKS." In this verse the esnachta is found in the first occurrence of the word "weeks." In light of the reference in verse 26 to the sixty-two weeks as a separate unit of time with a completely different and separate "anointed one", then we should understand the separation of the phrases as indicated by the esnachta and this means that we are dealing with two different time periods of times and two different "anointed leaders" and not "one." We have in the Hebrew "two" anointed ones and not "one." Said another way we have "two messiahs" and not one.

What you just saw is what few Christians writers or preachers know or seem to acknowledge if they do; namely, that the Christian translations of Daniel chapter 9 have been again forged on purpose to bring meanings totally foreign to the intent of Daniel. But Christianity is doing better it seems today for among the fifteen translations which take this into account and correctly punctuate the verse are the Revised Standard Version (RSV), New English Bible, Anchor Bible, the New RSV, and the Expositor's Bible.

The KJV translates Daniel 9:27 as "And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week, and in the midst of the week he shall cause the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate...." The structure of verse 27 is almost exactly the same as in verse 25. Therefore, if the authors of the KJV were consistent, they would have translated verse 27 as they translated verse 25 as "And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week and a half week..." And that could be a correct translation if there was no punctuation there. But there is an atnah separating the "week" and the "half week."

Answer for yourself: Why did the authors of the KJV ignore the atnah in verse 25 but didn't ignore the atnah in verse 27?

Today's KJV ignores the fact that in the Hebrew there is a "atnah" or an "esnachta" that separates the 7 and 62 weeks, but the original KJV did not Answer for yourself: What about the translation in the original KJV of 1611?

It is interesting to note that the original translation of the KJV (1611) separates the "seven weeks" from the "threescore and two weeks" correctly; sadly however it still capitalizes "mashiach" when the Hebrew does not but "one out of two" is not bad. The original KJV written in 1611 reads as follows "...shall be seven weekes; and threescore and two weekes, the street shall be built againe..." And the 1885 revised KJV reads as follows "...shall be seven weeks: and threescore and two weeks, it shall be built again..."

Here are a list of more Christian translations that correctly separate the 7 and 62 weeks: New English Bible, Revised English Bible, Revised Standard Version, New Revised Standard Version, The Bible: An American Translation, The Modern Reader's Bible, The Bible: A New Translation, The Anchor Bible, , New American Bible, The Expositor's Bible, The Good News Bible: Today's English Version, A New Commentary on Holy Scriptures, The International Critical Commentary, The Abington Bible Commentary.

Answer for yourself: So what exactly is the Hebrew texts telling us that most Christian Bibles fail to translate properly?

What we find in the Hebrew Scriptures that Jesus read is that there are TWO DIFFERENT PERIODS OF TIME IN WHICH REFERENCES IS MADE TO TWO DIFFERENT "ANOINTED ONES" THAT WERE TO COME AND NOT ONE!

In fact, there is an esnachta in verse 27 as well. In this instance the KJV does take it into account and correctly separates the one week from the half-week in that verse. Let us look at the verse from the KJV:

Dan 9:27 27 And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: [COLON] and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Did you notice how the KJV translators in verse 27 interprets the esnachta correctly by it's use of a "COLON" after "for one week" thereby meaning a "separation" of time and events?

Answer for yourself: Do you find it strange that the KJV translators included the esnachta in verse 27 but chose not to in verse 25 yet there was one there as well? Was this done on purpose? Did they just not see?

Answer for yourself: Do you think that "theological agendas" were at play in the KJV translators failing to acknowledge this break in time in verse 25 and the esnachta which if they had they would have had to admit that the prophecy of the 70 weeks in Daniel chapter 9 vs. 24-27 referred to two "messiah" and that the time did not run consecutively?

Answer for yourself: Have all Christian translations of these Hebrew Scriptures omitted referencing this "esnachta." No..in fact the KJV 1611 version did not fail to notice it but included it. Let us see these verses from the KJV 1611:

Dan 9:25-26 25 Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks; and threescore and two weeks, the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that the 1611 KJV translated the Hebrew correctly for following the "seven weeks" we find a "semicolon" and not a "comma" as we would later?

"mashaich" But did you catch the mistake that the 1611 KJV translators did make?

They capitalized "Messiah" when the Hebrew texts never did! Let us remember what was said before:

"... unto the Messiah the Prince ..." (v.25) The Hebrew word mashiach means "anointed." Of the 39 times mashiach is used in the Hebrew Scriptures, the KJV translates it "anointed" 37 times. Let us remember that the Hebrew Scriptures do not capitalize words but yet we find the Hebrew word "mashiach" translated as "Messiah"[CAPITALIZED] in the Christian translation of Daniel and strangely we find it only twice in the whole of the KJV and we find that it is here in these verses in Daniel.

As noted the KJV versions of the Bible we Christians and followers of Jesus carry today does not read like the 1611 KJV.

Answer for yourself: Who tampered with and changed the 1611 KJV? Who changed it and why? Could it have been a "theological agenda" at work trying to pass off Jesus as the fulfillment of these passages when as I am showing you that was never the intention of the original writers. The later editors of the KJV altered it to compress these two different time periods together to stretch the time period to the days of Jesus. By compressing the seven week period with the sixty-two week period into one period of sixty-nine weeks by failing to take into account this Hebrew esnachta these later KJV translators make sure that when you are reading Daniel 9:26-26 that you don't see:

- An anointed ruler come after 49 years (1 week)
- Another anointed one who is cut off following 434 years (sixty-two) weeks

In failing to interpret the Hebrew correctly they fail to render accurately Gabriel's message to Daniel that there are two anointed ones spoken of in Daniel 9:25-26.

Answer for yourself: When did this revision of the KJV occur?

Well it is hard to state for sure but if you consult the 1885 revision of the KJV 1611 Bible you will find that this version is even more correct to the Hebrew than the original 1611 version. This 1885 revision has a "colon" following "seven weeks" and unlike the 1611 that artificially capitalized "mashaich" as "Messiah" this 1885 revision translates "mashaich" correctly as "anointed one" without such artificial capitalizations. So we see that this revision and corruption of the KJV was done following 1885 A.D.

Answer for yourself: Could this continued tampering with the KJV and forced capitalization be for a "theological agenda"? You bet!

In this verse the word mashiach does not carry with it a prefix for the definite article ["THE"]; therefore, the correct translation should read, "an anointed one, a prince." This same error occurs in verse 26.

Additionally, since there are no capital letters in the Hebrew alphabet we can conclude that this may have been an attempt by the translator to impose an interpretation which is not supported by the text.

What you just saw is what few Christians writers or preachers know or seem to acknowledge if they do; namely, that the Christian translations of Daniel chapter 9 have been again forged on purpose to bring meanings totally foreign to the intent of Daniel. But Christianity is doing better it seems today for not all of our Chistian Bibles today translate this verse incorrectly when compared with the Hebrew.

Answer for yourself: So what exactly is the Hebrew texts telling us that most Christian Bibles fail to translate properly?

What we find in the Hebrew Scriptures that Jesus read in his day is that there are TWO DIFFERENT PERIODS OF TIME IN WHICH REFERENCES IS MADE TO TWO DIFFERENT "ANOINTED ONES" THAT WERE TO COME AND NOT ONE!

In fact, there is an esnachta in verse 27 as well. In this instance the KJV does take it into account and correctly separates the one week from the half-week in that verse. Let us look at the verse from the KJV:

Dan 9:27 27 And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week: [COLON] and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Did you notice how the KJV translators in verse 27 interprets the esnachta correctly by it's use of a "COLON" after "for one week" thereby meaning a "separation" of time and events?

Answer for yourself: Do you find it strange that the KJV translators included the esnachta in verse 27 but chose not to in verse 25 yet there was one there as well? Was this done on purpose? Did they just not see?

Answer for yourself: Do you think that "theological agendas" were at play in the KJV translators failing to acknowledge this break in time in verse 25 and the esnachta which if they had they would have had to admit that the prophecy of the 70 weeks in Daniel chapter 9 vs. 24-27 referred to two "messiah" and that the time did not run consecutively?

Answer for yourself: How would they have been able to stretch the prophecy to the days of Jesus if they had acknowledged this correctly?

"... shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself ..." (v.26) Once again, the verse should not read "Messiah," but "an anointed one" as we have discussed the absence of capital letters in the Hebrew texts above. Additionally, the Hebrew phrase translated here as "not for himself" should read, "and there will be nothing to him" or "he will have nothing." Even the conservative Christian scholar, Dr. John Walvoord, states that the phrase "is probably best translated 'There is nothing for him'" (Walvoord, John. Daniel, p. 230) The significance of this will be discussed further on.

THIS SECOND ANOINTED ONE IS TO BE "CUT OFF"

There is also the issue concerning the Hebrew word karet, which means "to cut off."

Answer for yourself: Christians claim this refers to the execution of Jesus; but does it?

There are two instances in the Hebrew scriptures when this word refers to a righteous person (see 1 Kings 18:3,4; Jer. 44:7). Now hear this! In all other instances karet refers to an unrighteous person or to someone who has committed an unrighteous act. In the context of this verse, it seems clear that the one being "cut off" is not righteous, as the qualifying phrase, "he will have nothing," would be difficult to consider as referring to a righteous person.

The word in Hebrew is "karet," which literally means "separate." The only execution it could refer to is beheading (separating the head from the body). The word is often used to express spiritual excision/separation of a Jew from the rest of Israel. Sometimes this happens "after" criminal execution (e.g. Leviticus 20:2-3), so obviously it can't be the same thing as criminal execution. Often the word is used to indicate the separation of someone from his position. The Tanach repeatedly says that if a descendant of David is righteous, he will not be cut off (karet). For example, see 1Kings 2:4, 8:25, 9:4-5; Jeremiah 33:17; 2Chronicles 6:16, 7:18. But if a descendant of David or priests are unrighteous, they will be cut off (karet). For example, see Jeremiah 33:18; Joel 1:9. Therefore, if this verse is speaking of Jesus being karet, then that must mean he was unrighteous and was cut off from his (supposed) royal heritage.

Answer for yourself: Looking at the Bible itself and how the words are used within it does it not seem peculiar that this word for "cut off" that refers to one who is "unrighteous" is so eagerly being applied to this "anointed one" by Christiaity which sees it's fulfillment in Jesus?

We will return to this point later in our studies when we deal with the identities of these two "anointed" ones.....one righteous and one unrighteous.

The verse continues: "...but not for himself;..." The Hebrew "v'ayn lo" does not mean "not for himself." The word "ayn" means "there isn't." The word "lo" means "to him." So the phrase should be translated "there is nothing to him," or "he has nothing."

I find it rather amusing that the second "anointed" one that was "to have nothing" left to himself was unrighteous and that Christian commentators for centuries wish to make this be fulfilled in Jesus. Kind of ironic when you think of it.

The verse goes on: "...and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary..." There is a very interesting and subtle illusion created here. Read the following 2 translations:

"And after threescore and two weeks shall the an annointed one be cut off, and he will have nothing; and the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary;"

"And after threescore and two weeks shall an annointed one be cut off, and he will have nothing; and the city and the sanctuary will be destroyed by the people of the prince that shall come."

Neither translation is more or less correct than the other, but they give different impressions. In the second translation, which is more similar to the structure of the original Hebrew, it is clearer that the cutting off of the annointed one and the destruction of Jerusalem happen at the same time. The first translation separates the events on paper thereby giving the impression that they are also separated in time. This is necessary in Christian translations because Jesus was killed 40 years before the destruction ## of Jerusalem.

Answer for yourself: So what have we seen here?

As Bet Emet has stated over and over again to our readership it is IMPOSSIBLE to arrive at the meaning of a Biblical text is one omits considering the context of the verse, the grammar of the passage, and the original meaning of the word and how the word under consideration is used in other places in the Hebrew Scriptures. As an ordained Pastor who knows of these things from years of study it pains me to say this but such poor exegesis is a trademark of Gentile Christianity and it is reinforced by our forged texts which cause us to believe lies instead of truths. I challenge anyone to learn and look at the Hebrew texts and tell me that these things listed above are "not so" and that we as Christians and followers of Jesus have a faithful, truthful, and accurate translation of Daniel 9 in our beloved & forged KJV and the host of other Christian translations that are equally purposely fabricated.

We are dealing with God's Word here folks.....God does not need to be misquoted or lied about! I want the truth about what Jesus believed and his Bible. I don't want a fake and I don't want to believe untruths about Jesus or God's revelation to me. I want to know the truth about the Jewish Messiah and if the shoe fits Jesus "well and good" and if not then "why not?"

Answer for yourself: Do you want such truth...or is the status quo acceptable where you sit in your churches and hear half-truths to which you and your pastors give "amens" while God weeps in Heaven for what has been done to his Holy Word and the truth concerning His Messiah? Well such truth begins with the Jews like Jesus and their Holy Word and only this way will we come to see how the apostate Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt and later Rome butchered the Bible Jesus used.

I hope that this has not thrown you into a spin. If you decide to get mad at anyone after reading this then your anger needs to be directed to the antisemites and Essenes who first corrupted the Hebrew Scriptures and later taught the Greek and Latin fathers more of their heresies. I hope you take this to heart and tell your pastors, families, and friends of the efforts made by Bet Emet Ministries to recover the truth about Jesus and God's revelation to mankind in an age of religious pluralism we live in today. Shalom.

DANIEL'S 70 WEEKS AND JESUS? FULFILLED OR UNFULFILLED? #5

Well we are moving on in study of Daniel chapter 9 and there is yet much to learn as we turn to the context of the passage in more detail.

Answer for yourself: Did you know that the prophet Daniel was confused over the books and certain prophecies of Jeremiah? He confused two prophecies of 70 years as if they were one and the same. We will see that in a minute.

Daniel has a very serious problem trying to understand the prophecies of Jeremiah. Daniel lived between the destruction of the First Temple and the building of the Second Temple. Unlike today when we don't know when the end day Messiah will come Hosea 3:4 says that it will be "many days" before the coming of the Messiah. It does not tell us how long but only that it will be a long time.

4 For the children of Israel shall sit solitary many days without king, and without prince, and without sacrifice, and without pillar, and without ephod or teraphim;

Today we don't really know when the end days "anointed one" of YHWH will come but in the days of Daniel he knew that Jeremiah has prophesied that it would be 70 years from the destruction of the First Temple until the destruction of Babylon. One year after Jeremiah's prophecy king Nebuchadnezzar came into Jerusalem and subjugated the whole city and the Jewish people lost all of their autonomy and this would be eleven years before all the prophets would be carried out and the First Temple destroyed. It was a total of eighteen years from Babylon's first entry into Jerusalem before the actual destruction of the First Temple.

DANIEL'S PROBLEM & THE NEED FOR DIVINE UNDERSTANDING

Daniel knows of two very important prophecies and these are the one giving Daniel a problem: Jer. 25:12 and Jer. 29:10.

Jer. 25:12 12 And it shall come to pass, when seventy years are accomplished, that I will punish the king of Babylon, and that nation, saith the LORD, for their iniquity, and the land of the Chaldeans; and I will make it perpetual desolations.

Jer. 29:10 10 For thus saith the LORD: After seventy years are accomplished for Babylon, I will remember you, and perform My good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place [restoration]

Each of these two verses speak of "seventy years" and each of them speak of the desolation of Babylon but only one of the verses speak of the restoration of the people of Israel back into their land (29:10). The verses look almost identical but are not. Daniel made a mistake in his understanding of these two prophecies. Daniel thought that Jeremiah's 70-year prophecies were identical. This misunderstanding caused Daniel to come to a number of conclusions that were in error.

- Daniel had incorrectly thought that the point to begin counting the 70-years for both prophecies was the year 3320, when Babylon subjugated Jerusalem
- Daniel incorrectly thought that both those prophecies must therefore end 70 years after Jerusalem's subjugation in the year 3390, when Darius the Mede succeeded the throne
- Daniel incorrectly thought that because Jeremiah's second prophecy of 29:10 spoke of God restoring Israel after the completion of 70 years, Daniel anticipated that the second Temple would certainly be built in the year 3390, in the first year of Darius the Mede..and he saw nothing happening

When Daniel saw the year 3390 was at hand, and there was no sign of the impending redemption, he became very upset. H thought the sins of Jewry had caused the date to be delayed, or worse - canceled. This terrifying thought forced Daniel to fast and pray (9:4-20) for the restoration of Jerusalem and it's Temple. It is therefore in this chapter that Daniel is made to understand that the two prophecies are NOT identical, and that they each speak of two separate 70-year periods of time. Whereas the prophecy of Jeremiah 25:12 was indeed referring to the 70-year time span that began in the year 3320, when Jerusalem was subjugated, the prophecy that referred to the restoration of the Jewish people to the land (29:10) was not.

So the Jews knew that after seventy years the Jews were going to go back to their land but this is where Daniel has his problem. Daniel was contemplating these two prophecies while standing in the first year of Darius the Mede's reign after Persia conquered Babylon. Daniel thought that the Jews should already be returning to their land but were not. The time frame was about 69 years following the subjugation of Jerusalem by Babylon and nothing was being done about returning the Jews to their land. Babylon had been destroyed as the prophecy of Jer. 29:10 had predicted but nothing was happening concerning the Jews. Daniel was worried that the return of his people had been delayed and that the "evil" spoken of in the Laws of Moses had been fulfilled concerning Israel.

WAS THE RETURN OF THE JEWS TO THEIR LAND POSTPONED OR CANCELED?

Lev. 26 and Deut. 28 are two difficult chapters in the Bible that describe horrible things that can happen to Israel if they turn away from God. Lev. 26:18 states:

18 And if ye will not yet for these things hearken unto Me, then I will chastise you seven times more for your sins.

Daniel feared Israel's punishment had been multiplied seven times by God. Daniel feared that God had thought that Israel continued to sin in Babylon and not the 70 year exile would be turned into a 490 year exile. Daniels begins to pray for his people and the sins of his people unknowing that Cyrus was coming in just one year. Daniel is confused but comes to understand the "counting" of the years that starts from the going forth of the "WORD."

Answer for yourself: What is the "context" of Daniel 9:1-20? Is Daniel concerned about the coming of the "last days" messiah or is he concerned about the sins of his people Israel and the payment of their sin debt to God and the return of Israel to their land and the restoration of the Temple? Well one has to read Daniel 9:1-20 to understand that answer so please take time now to read that for yourself.

Having read Daniel 9:1-20 you saw that the subject is not "the Messiah" but the sins of the people of Israel. Daniel make an abundant confession of sins and the guilt for the sins of the Jewish people and pleads for God's forgiveness and the return to the land of Israel and the rebuilding of the Temple. When the prayer is finished the angel Daniel comes to give Daniel a vision and wisdom necessary to understand the vision.

The angel Gabriel now related to Daniel that in order to correctly ascertain when the Second Temple would be built and to bring understanding to Daniel regarding his problem with these two prophecies of 70-years of Jeremiah, he must begin counting the 70 years "from the going forth of the WORD [debar] (9:25)," which is "the WORD of Jeremiah" that begins "at the destruction of Jerusalem (9:2)" in the year 3338. In fact, Jeremiah's prophecy of restoration (29:10) was fulfilled in the year 3408, 18 years later than Daniel had originally thought.

HOW THE KJV CONFUSES THE DATES

The KJV renders it differently:

"... that from the going forth of the commandment ..." (v.25) The Hebrew word for "commandment" is mitzvah. The Hebrew word translated here in this verse in Daniel 9 incorrectly as "commandment" is debar, which means "word."

Answer for yourself: Has the KJV translators completely changed the word? Yes.

As we shall soon discover, this is a reference to God's word concerning the rebuilding of the Temple. We need to look at the Hebrew word used for "word" in the above text as it's importance will be readily seen:

1697 dabar- speech, a word, speaking, a thing a) speech b) a saying, an utterance c) a word, words d) business, occupation, acts, matter, case, something, manner (by extension) 1697 dabar- speech, a word, speaking, a thing a) speech b) a saying, an utterance c) a word, words d) business, occupation, acts, matter, case, something, manner (by extension)

THE TIME LINE AS DANIEL WAS TO UNDERSTAND IT

Gabriel responds to Daniel's prayerful inquiry of God by carefully describing to Daniel the course of events that were to unfold over a crucial period of time that was to span 490 years, or "70 weeks."

Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon, destroyed the First Temple in the year 3338, 18 years after he subjugated Jerusalem in the year 3320.

The prophet Jeremiah envisioned (25:12) the termination of Babylon following a period of 70 years. The prophecy of Jer. 25:12 and it's 70 years began with Babylon's subjugation of Jerusalem in the year 3320, and ended when Cyrus called for the rebuilding of Jerusalem and a temple (Isa. 44:28-45:1) in the year 3391. Here we find the first 70-year prophecy of Jer. 25:12 being fulfilled but again this prophecy did not refer to the restoration of Jewry. Thus the prophecy of Jer. 25:12 was fulfilled in 3390 when Darius the Mede conquered Babylon and again Daniel had confused this 70-yr period with the other one in Jer. 29:10.

We need to remember that the punishment of Israel consisted not only of the Babylonian exile which was 70 years but also the 420 years that the Second Temple stood (490 years total). So we see Jer. 29:10 begins at 3338 with the going forth of 'the WORD' which coincided with the destruction of the First Temple and is fulfilled in the year 3408 at the building of the Second Temple (70 years).

Not only was the angel going to inform Daniel of when the Second Temple would be restored, but when it would be destroyed as well. Gabriel also reveals to Daniel that once these Seventy Weeks were completed, the Messianic Age would begin. Thus in verse 24 the angel describes six elements that will characterize the world in the Messianic Age:

- to finish the transgression,
- and to make an end of sin,
- and to forgive iniquity,
- and to bring in everlasting righteousness,
- and to seal vision and prophet,
- and to anoint the most holy place.

Thus Daniel 9:24 decrees that 490 years are decreed upon Israel and Jerusalem, after which, the Messianic age can begin. The verses that follow are a detailed description of what would transpire during these 490 years, spanning from the destruction of the First Temple until the destruction of the Second Temple (3338-3829) in 70 A.D.

The angel Gabriel reassured Daniel that after a full "7 weeks," or 49 years had passed - counting from the "going forth of the WORD" (which is from the destruction of Jerusalem 9:2) - an anointed ruler would enable the Jewish people to return and rebuild Jerusalem (9:25). Indeed, a short time after 49 years had passed, Cyrus, who God declared as His "anointed one," (Isa. 45:1), gave the orders to return and rebuild Jerusalem and the holy Temple (Isa. 44:28-45:1; Ezra 1:2-3; 2 Chron. 36:22-23). This occurred in 3391.

Now the separate time of 62 Weeks begins or 343 years in the year 3391. Gabriel goes on to tell Daniel for a little less than four and a half centuries, the city of Jerusalem would be "rebuilt, street, and moat." Gabriel adds, however, that throughout these 62 weeks, the Holy City would constantly have to endure "troubled times" as part of the punishment of the 490 years. Indeed the Second Temple period was a time marked with spiritual and political disturbances. In verse 26, the angel goes on to inform Daniel how 62 weeks would tragically conclude with two terrible events.

- First, an anointed one (the High Priests who were also anointed) would be cut off, and would no longer have any priestly function.
- Second, the "people of the prince" (the legions of Vespasian and Titus) would come to destroy the Holy City and its sanctuary.

Both of these tragic events occurred simultaneously, shortly after the 434 years, or "62 weeks" were completed.

This left one "week" or 7 years remaining out of the 490 to be fulfilled. This was the last 7 years before the Temple was destroyed. Rome agreed to permit the Jewish rulers to maintain the Temple sacrificial services. The Romans did not abide by their promise or covenant in this matter. They broke their promise, abolished the sacrifices and the offerings 3 and 1/2 years before Titus razed Herod's Temple (Daniel 9:27).

And once these 490 years are completed, it would indeed be up to each subsequent generation to turn back to God in order to bring about the glorious arrival of the Messiah.

Now we better understand that Gabriel begins to inform Daniel that if you are to understand this prophecy correctly then you need to know that you are standing here in the first year of Darius, the son of Ahasuerus, and this first year of his reign is basically 50 years following the destruction of the First Temple and 69 years since the subjugation of Jerusalem. The time is almost here for Cyrus to come with his decree. Daniel's confusion between these two prophecies is almost over.

2 in the first year of his reign I Daniel meditated in the books, over the number of the years, whereof the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah the prophet, that He would accomplish for the desolations of Jerusalem seventy years.

Answer for yourself: How long did the First Temple stand? It stood 410 years and was destroyed by Babylon.

Answer for yourself: How long did the Second Temple stand? It stood 420 years and was rebuilt after the return from Persian victory over Babylon in the 2nd year of Persian control.

Answer for yourself: How long was the Babylonian exile? 70 years

Answer for yourself: What is the total of these 70 years of exile and the standing of the Second Temple for 420 years? What is the significance of 490 years? It was the time period beginning with the Babylonian captivity to the destruction of the Second Temple in 70 A.D.....there is one of the 490 years.

Daniel was beginning to see that another 490 year period refers to the time period from the destruction of the First Temple which included the Babylonian captivity up until the destruction of the Second Temple

These times had to be fulfilled. Although the Jewish people deserved to be in captivity for 490 years God's mercy allowed the Second Temple to be rebuilt "but in troubled times." Thus even the Second Temple Period was part of the punishment.

24 Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sin, and to forgive iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal vision and prophet, and to anoint the most holy place.

MORE KJV ERRORS

Before we continue, let's take a look at some of the errors in translation and interpretation surrounding verses 24-27 as found in the highly revered King James Version that are purposefully made for the purpose of theological agendas when compared with the Hebrew Scriptures:

"... and to anoint the most Holy." (v.24) The expression translated "most Holy" which is often associated with Jesus should be translated "Holy of Holies," a reference to the inner sanctum of the Temple where the Ark of the Covenant rested and this means that this phrase is not supposed to refer to a man nor Messiah. I hope you remember that the 490 years again covered the time from the First to the Second Temple. So in keeping with the prophecy the expected anointing of the Holy of Holies was expected in 70 A.D. since during the Second Temple Period there was no Shekinah in the Holy of Holies as had been during the First Temple. The Messianic Age cannot begin until these 490 years are completed and the expected building of the Third Temple.

Answer for yourself: Did Jesus live and die before 70 A.D. when according to Daniel the Messianic Age would begin?

Daniel 9:25 25 Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the word to restore and to build Jerusalem unto one anointed, a prince, shall be seven weeks; and for threescore and two weeks, it shall be built again, with broad place and moat, but in troublesome times.

We saw the same word previously in the same 9th chapter of Daniel in verse 2:

2 in the first year of his reign I Daniel meditated in the books, over the number of the years, whereof the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah the prophet, that He would accomplish for the desolations of Jerusalem seventy years.

Again this is the same word in Hebrew: 1697 dabar- speech, a word, speaking, a thing a) speech b) a saying, an utterance c) a word, words d) business, occupation, acts, matter, case, something, manner (by extension) 1697 dabar- speech, a word, speaking, a thing a) speech b) a saying, an utterance c) a word, words d) business, occupation, acts, matter, case, something, manner (by extension)

The "going forth of the word" begins with the destruction of the Temple and ruins of Jerusalem. The expected "first" anointed prince or ruler labeled "anointed one/messiah" [NOT CAPITALIZED in the Hebrew Scriptures] is expected to appear 49 years later.

Answer for yourself: Who is this anointed ruler of royalty that we saw earlier that appears? It is none other than King Cyrus.

Answer for yourself: Is Cyrus called a "mashiyach"? Yes he is.

ISA. 44:28 28 That saith of Cyrus: 'He is My shepherd, and shall perform all My pleasure'; even saying of Jerusalem: 'She shall be built'; and to the temple: 'My foundation shall be laid.'

ISA. 45:1 1 ¶ Thus saith the LORD to His anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden, to subdue nations before him, and to loose the loins of kings; to open the doors before him, and that the gates may not be shut:

ISA 45:13 13 I have roused him up in victory, and I make level all his ways; he shall build My city, and he shall let Mine exiles go free, not for price nor reward, saith the LORD of hosts.

Let us look at the Hebrew word used for "anointed" in the above verse from the Strong's Concordance.

4899 mashiyach (maw-shee'-akh); from 4886; anointed; usually a consecrated person (as a king, priest, or saint); specifically, the Messiah: KJV-- anointed, Messiah.

This above is a derivative of the other Hebrew word used for anointed we saw earlier as used in Daniel 9: 25 & 26 as seen below.

4886 mashach (maw-shakh'); a primitive root; to rub with oil, i.e. to anoint; by implication, to consecrate; also to paint: KJV-- anoint, paint.

Cyrus was a king and it was customary to consider kings "anointed" by God as His rulers by proxy.

Answer for yourself: What other testimony do we have to Cyrus being the "first" anointed that Daniel prophesied about?

1 ¶ NOW IN the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying: 2 'Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia: All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD, the God of heaven, given me; and He hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. 3 Whosoever there is among you of all His people--his God be with him--let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the LORD, the God of Israel, He is the God who is in Jerusalem.

THE KJV ALTERS THE ORDER OF THE OT BOOKS FOR A REASON

Answer for yourself: Why did the KJV translators move the book of Ezra from after Daniel as found in the Hebrew Bible to after 2 Chronicles in their Christian Bibles?

If someone were to read Ezra chapter 1:1-3 which speaks of the "And in the first year of Cyrus, the king of Persia, at completion of the WORD [1697 dabar] of the Lord from the mouth of Jeremiah" after reading Daniel 9 "Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the word to restore and to build Jerusalem unto one anointed, a prince, shall be seven weeks; and for threescore and two weeks, it shall be built again, with broad place and moat, but in troublous times" then there would be no doubt to the identity of the first "anointed one" in Daniel 9 and all hopes of it referring to Jesus would be dashed. But remember it was never meant to refer to Jesus in the first place! This is why the Gentile Church rearranged their Bibles and buried Ezra out of it's proper sequence of books in the Old Testament.

2 Chronicles 36:21-23

21 to fulfil the word [1697 dabar] of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah, until the land had been paid her sabbaths; for as long as she lay desolate she kept sabbath, to fulfil threescore and ten years. 22 ¶ Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word [1697 dabar] of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying: 23 `Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia: All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD, the God of heaven, given me; and He hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Whosoever there is among you of all His people--the LORD his God be with him--let him go up.'

These are the last words of the Bible. Daniel was now understanding that his count was to begin "when the word goes forth" [3338 and not 3320] and Daniel 9:2 tells use explicitly that this is at the destruction of Jerusalem & the Temple as he had mistakenly thought the count began 18 years earlier but it had not. Having done this Daniel thought the exile had been extended. So Daniel fears that God had prolonged the exile in Babylon were unfounded once he came to understand this revelation. Daniel now understood that there were two different periods of 70 years; there is Daniel's mistake. Daniel had mistakenly counted from Jer. 25:12 which also mentions "seventy years" but there is no "debar" in that passage and no promise of return for the Jewish people. Daniel came to realize the count for these "seventy years" begins as Jeremiah 29:10 stated in Daniel 9:2 at the ruins of Jerusalem and not the subjugation of Jerusalem which was much earlier.

THE SECOND "ANOINTED ONE" WHO WAS CUT OFF

Well now; we know who is the "first anointed" who was to come after 49 years so now let us focus out attention on the "second" who was to be "cut off" at or near the destruction of the Second Temple at the culmination of the 490 years.

The KJV translators render v. 26 the following way:

"... shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself ..." (v.26). Once again, the verse should not read "Messiah," but "an anointed one" as we have discussed the absence of capital letters in the Hebrew texts above and past articles. Additionally, the Hebrew phrase translated here as "not for himself" should read, "and there will be nothing to him" or "he will have nothing." Even the conservative Christian scholar, Dr. John Walvoord, states that the phrase "is probably best translated 'There is nothing for him'" (Walvoord, John. Daniel, p. 230) The significance of this will be discussed further on.

There is also the issue concerning the Hebrew word karet, which means "to cut off." Although there are a couple of instances in the Hebrew scriptures when this word refers to a righteous person (see 1 Kings 18:3,4; Jer. 44:7), in all other instances karet refers to an unrighteous person or to someone who has committed an unrighteous act. In the context of this verse, it seems clear that the one being "cut off" is not righteous, as the qualifying phrase, "he will have nothing," would be difficult to consider as referring to a righteous person. We will return to this point later in our studies when we deal with the identities of these two "anointed" ones.....one righteous and one unrighteous; one royalty and one not.

I find it rather amusing that the second "anointed" one that was "to have nothing" left to himself was unrighteous and that Christian commentators for centuries wish to make this be fulfilled in Jesus. Kind of ironic when you think of it.

26 And after the threescore and two weeks shall an anointed one be cut off, and be no more; and the people of a prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary; but his end shall be with a flood; and unto the end of the war desolations are determined.

This 62 week period begins with Cyrus's (the Lord's first anointed) one year after Darius roughly in the year 3389. If we are to count these 434 years we come roughly to 3823 or so which is about 7 years before the destruction of the Second Temple. Without an understanding of who is anointed and Biblical history of the period then it is impossible to understand the events that unfolded in the fulfillment of this prophecy.

The original Hebrew refers to "an anointed" or a "messiah" first coming after 49 years following the decree and not some 483 years later as the Christian interpretation of these same Hebrew texts leads up to believe. The Hebrew texts also refer that 62 weeks or 434 years following this first "anointed one" that a second "anointed" will be cut off. This happens 3 1/2 years into the last week of years when the Temple sacrifices were stopped by Rome and the function of the Priesthood ceases. More on that in a minute.

Another major difficulty is that according to the simple, untwisted translation of verse 26, two events were to occur after the 62 weeks:

- another anointed one would be cut off,
- and the city and the sanctuary would be destroyed.

We must stop and notice that again the grammar is very important for Hebrew translation we find a "comma" used connecting two events in the same time period: the cutting off of an anointed at the same time the sanctuary is destroyed.

As you know, Jerusalem was destroyed in 70 A.D., which is 38 years after the death of Jesus which is more than five "weeks" off [over 38 years late]. The death of Jesus and the destruction of the Temple & Sadducee Priesthood were not a the same time period and passage as you can see cannot refer to Jesus as the fulfillment. Besides that Jesus did not come 49 years following the decree to restore and build Jerusalem. So on both counts so far Jesus cannot be the fulfillment of the Hebrew Scriptures according to the Hebrew Scriptures.

There is no acceptable answer for these missing five weeks according to the Christian interpretation and this other event of an anointed being cut off as applying to Jesus cannot possibly be the fulfillment at it happened 38 years too early!

Another difficulty is that the Jewish year is not really 360 days long. While the months are based on the lunar patterns, the years must coincide with the solar system. You only need consult Maimonides, Laws of Kiddush HaChodesh 1:1, 2 to see this, or simply study the Jewish calendar. You will see that since the solar year exceeds the lunar year by around 11 days, there will be an extra month added around every three years. Thus 445 B.C. plus 483 years (69 X 7) ends up 38 A.D., and by then everyone admits that Jesus was already dead.

BUT WHAT ABOUT THAT LAST WEEK...THAT LAST 7 YEARS?

Answer for yourself: So knowing this who is this "anointed" who is to be "cut off" in 70 A.D.?

Answer for yourself: When the Temple was destroyed in 70 A.D. what else ceased?

Well it should not be that hard to figure out when you realize that only 3 things were anointed by the L-rd in the Old Testament times:

- Prophets
- Kings
- Priests

Answer for yourself: So since Israel did not any longer have a King and since according to the Rabbis the Spirit of Prophecy has ceased in Israel then what remains as the only possible thing that was "anointed"? The Sadducee priesthood ceased at the same time as the destruction of the Temple. There you have the complete understanding of the "anointed" which was "cut off" in 70 A.D.

In closing let us look at the Hebrew word of "cut off":

If we look at the Strongs' Lexicon we find:

3772 karath (kaw-rath'); a primitive root; to cut (off, down or asunder); by implication, to destroy or consume; specifically, to covenant (i.e. make an alliance or bargain, originally by cutting flesh and passing between the pieces): KJV-- be chewed, be con- [feder-] ate, covenant, cut (down, off), destroy, fail, feller, be freed, hew (down), make a league ([covenant]), X lose, perish, X utterly, X want.

Answer for yourself: What do you see in this word study? You should see two basic ideas:

- destruction and utter consumption of something
- covenant

No where in this word is the idea of murder or killing of an individual that can be applied to a person but instead we find the idea of the destruction of a covenant.

Answer for yourself: Did the Sadducee Priesthood have their own special covenant with God? They sure did and it goes all the way back to the Levites and their refusal to worship the golden calf and God separated them out for His very own ever since. And following 70 A.D. the Sadducees (the Priests) & their Covenant with God ceased to exist as did their function in Israel since the Temple was destroyed. Since Priests were anointed then we clearly see how these "anointed ones" were destroyed along with the Temple and both events happened at the same time as the Hebrew prophecies said they would. To make this refer to Jesus again makes such fulfillment occur some 35 years or so too late! The Priesthood vanished along with the Temple and the prophecy of Daniel 9 was fulfilled: first with Cyrus in 49 years and the Priesthood being destroyed much later.

Another difficulty is that the Christians, for lack of a better answer, claim that the 70th week will take place when Jesus returns in his second coming as a king. The problem was caused because Daniel mentioned a total of 70 weeks, and then he specified 7 plus 62, leaving one remaining. The traditional Christian interpretation says that the first 69 weeks were consecutive, then there is at least a 1900 year gap, and sooner or later the 70th week will occur. This is obviously a very forced explanation, born of desperation. Again not only the grammar and punctuation of the Hebrew Scriptures reveal no break in the sequence of time here as it did before with the use of a "semicolon." The time runs consecutively according to Hebrew exegesis.

Answer for yourself: But what of the last 7 years period?

Well this is where you need to know Biblical history in order to understand this part of the prophecy. Roman and Jewish history records for us that 7 years before the 2nd Temple was destroyed Rome, who was occupying Palestine, agreed to allow the Jewish people and priests to maintain the sacrificial system and services. Joseph records that Nero wanted to stop these sacrifices and the sages of Israel pleaded with Nero that they be allowed to continue the sacrifices. Nero relents and allows Israel and the priesthood to continue the sacrificial system. Then 3 1/2 years later, in the middle of the Hebrew week of years, Rome broke that covenant and agreement that they had made with Israel and the priesthood.

27 And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week; and for half of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the offering to cease; and upon the wing of detestable things shall be that which causeth appalment; and that until the extermination wholly determined be poured out upon that which causeth appalment.

What we find here is that again this prophecy was fulfilled when Rome violated their agreement or covenant if you wish with the priests of Israel. "He" refers in this passage to the picture of Rome in the use of a singular pronoun which is not uncommon in Hebrew. It is recorded that the Jews often traded with the Romans for lambs so that they could continue the sacrifices but as the soon as the lambs ran out the only animal that they had was pigs and the sacrifices was stopped. This [only having pigs to offer as sacrifices] refers to the "deestable things shall be that causeth appalment" to the sad condition to which Israel and the Temple had fallen. But this was not the end. The "extermination wholly determined" upon Israel had yet to be played out and this further degradation of the Temple and Israel causes "appalment." Hadrian would erect upon the site where the Temple had stood and idol worship would not take place on the very spot where God's Shekinah had once resided.

Now you know the truth about Daniel 9.

Please share this article as well as our other articles with your friends and Pastors as it is way past time to find out about the corruption of the Hebrew Bibles in it's translation and the forgeries and doctored versions we have today that force "fulfilled prophecies" and apply them to Jesus when they never referred to or were fulfilled by him in the first place. Let us both desire to want to know the truth about Jesus, the true Messianic prophecies, and why they were not fulfilled by Jesus or anyone else for that matter and what implications that holds for Jesus as the possible Messiah in waiting....waiting for us to merit the Kingdom of God and Israel's King.

BUT WHAT OF THE CHRISTIAN DATING?

At least three possible decrees may serve as the "terminus pro quo" (starting point) of the 70 "weeks"

- 1) The decree of Cyrus (539-538 BC) - cf. Ezr 1:1-4 a) To rebuild the temple (and the city, cf. Isa 44: 26-28; 45:13)

This is the viewpoint that I believe is most accurate and discussed in this paper.

- 2) The decree of Artaxerxes (457 BC) - cf. Ezr 7:13-14

a) For Ezra to restore the Law and its worship b) Starting here, 490 Julian years would end the 70 weeks around 33 A.D. c) But 490 lunar years end the 70 weeks around 26 A.D. (seven years too early for Jesus' death) -- This decree is preferred by some amillenialists who hold to a literal 490 years, but not lunar years (Haley's Bible Handbook) But if we take into consideration what we learned in the Hebrew texts about the breaks in the 490 years by the diacritical Hebrew markers then such dating is worthless.

- 3) The second decree of Artaxerxes (445-444 BC) - cf. Neh 2:1-8

a) For Nehemiah to build the city b) Starting here, 490 lunar years end the 70 weeks around 38 A.D. c) This would place the start of the 70th week near the beginning of Jesus' public ministry (ca. 30 A.D.) d) There are problems with the first 7 weeks ending around 396 B.C., which some contend is too late for the restoration of the city. But if we take into consideration what we learned in the Hebrew texts about the breaks in the 490 years by the diacritical Hebrew markers then such dating is worthless.

So for obvious reasons I believe the Jewish interpretation of their own history and Bible is the most correct!

CONCLUSION

Over the last several articles we have seen how Christendom claims that the "end days Messiah" had to have come before the destruction of the Second Temple and this Messiah could only be Jesus of Nazareth. They used Daniel 9 in the KJV and other Christian translations for their understanding of this belief. The problem with this as I have shown repeatedly in these articles is that the texts of the Christians are manipulated and altered in order to slant the reader to assume these prophecies refer to Jesus when they don't. But when reading Daniel 9 and not knowing the Hebrew language nor reading the Hebrew Bible and texts and only reading the KJV or other Christian translations then it is easy to read these altered English translations and assume Jesus is the fulfillment of the passage.

However, we have seen repeatedly in these articles that upon close scrutiny and examination we found that Daniel 9 is a prophecy that deals mainly with the Babylonian exile, the punishment upon Israel for breaking the Sabbath year, and culminates with such punishment with the destruction of the Second Temple. Along the way we saw God's mercy and his justice; namely releasing Israel to return to their land in only 70 years but again enduring punishment during the Second Temple period that finally culminates in its destruction as well as the anointed Priesthood (the second anointed that is cut off). , Any allusion to the Messianic Age is secondary and nowhere do we find any reference to the person of the "end days Messiah" or his death. Therefore, Daniel 9 cannot be used honestly to demonstrate a Messianic prophecy fulfilled by Jesus.

WHEN DO WE BEGIN THE COUNT IN DANIEL 9 CONCERNING THE SEVENTY WEEKS?

25 Know therefore and discern, that from the going forth of the word to restore and to build Jerusalem unto one anointed, a prince, shall be seven weeks; and for threescore and two weeks, it shall be built again, with broad place and moat, but in troublous times.

The Hebrew word used for "word" in Daniel 9:25 above is: 1697 dabar- speech, a word, speaking, a thing a) speech b) a saying, an utterance c) a word, words d) business, occupation, acts, matter, case, something, manner (by extension)

WHAT AND WHEN WAS THIS "WORD" & WHEN DO WE BEGIN THE COUNT?

Up front understand that most Christian translations purposefully mistranslate the word as "commandment" instead of "word" for reasons that will become most obvious in just a moment. Let us look at the NIV for another example of "creative translation."

Daniel 9:25: "Know and understand this: From the issuing of the decree to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until the Anointed One, the ruler, comes, there will be seven 'sevens,' and sixty-two 'sevens,' It will be rebuilt with streets and a trench, but in times of trouble. NIV

According to Sir Robert Anderson (Robert Anderson, The Coming Prince, Kregel. Reprinted in 1984) the time that the prophecy begins is in Nehemiah in which he asks for a letter from the King for safe passage to Jerusalem. Notice that in Nehemiah 2:7 he asks for a letter. However, when we get to Daniel 9:25 we find that in many Christian translations the Hebrew word for "word" [dabar] has been translated as "decree" as seen in the above quote. As many point out, this "letter" from the King can hardly be called a decree, so we must assume that it must be another decree that Daniel is talking about. This rules out Nehemiah 2 and the second decree of Artaxerxes being the starting point of the prophecy which so many choose in order to try to get the years to overlap with the time that Jesus lived. But more on that in a minute

When we look at the meaning of the Hebrew word "dabar" that Daniel uses in 9:25, we find that the word can be used for decree but this word is usually translated as "word" or "command". Daniel uses the proper words for "decree" in Daniel 6:26, 6:15, 6:13, 6:12..., however, these earlier chapters were written in Aramaic. So if the writer of Daniel wanted to express the idea of a "decree" he has already demonstrated that he knows the Hebrew word for "decree" but chooses not to use it here in Daniel 9:25 as he has already done earlier in the book. Hebrew uses different words for decree. Daniel 2:4-7:28 was written in Aramaic which is a close cognate language to Hebrew.

Answer for yourself: When do we begin the counting for the Seventy Weeks of Daniel? When did this "word" go forth and what exactly is this word?

The answer to the above question determines if you get the understanding of the prophecy correct.

Let it be said in the beginning that if you remember in the former articles Daniel was concerned not about a future prophecy of Cyrus or his "word" that would later come to allow the Jews to return, or of a first or second decree of Artaxerxes (THINK!). Daniel was confused about two prophecies of Jeremiah the Prophet as we saw earlier: Jer. 25:12 and Jer. 29:10 and we saw that it was in Jer. 29:10 that we find the Hebrew word "dabar" which is translated "WORD"! We will see in a minute that this Hebrew "word" [dabar] is connected with Jeremiah and not with Cyrus or Artaxerxes.

CONFUSION EXITS AS TO THE TIME TO START THE COUNT

It seems that we have to have Jesus fulfill everything in the Bible as if everything is about him. Well everything is not about Jesus as you have seen if you read the prior articles on Daniel alone let alone the many articles dealing with the corruption of the Hebrew Bible. That being the case let us look at the various decrees or going forth of "words" to build and restore Jerusalem to determine when the clock starts ticking. This is so very important because of the unique and creative attempts to shorten the time of this prophecy to coincide with the days in which Jesus lived as we shall quickly see.

At least four different scenarios exist that serve as the "terminus pro quo" (starting point) of the 70 "weeks"

THE DECREE OF CYRUS (539-538 BC) - cf. Ezr 1:1-4

1 ¶ NOW IN the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, [NOTICE AGAIN THE REFERENCE TO DABAR BY JEREMIAH] the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation [NOT A "DABAR"] throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying: 2 'Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia: All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD, the God of heaven, given me; and He hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. 3 Whosoever there is among you of all His people--his God be with him--let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the LORD, the God of Israel, He is the God who is in Jerusalem. 4 And whosoever is left, in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place help him with silver, and with gold, and with goods, and with beasts, beside the freewill-offering for the house of God which is in Jerusalem.'

Cyrus' decree involves the rebuilding of the temple (and the city, cf. Isa 44: 26-28; 45:13). If one starts here, then the 70 weeks could not be 490 literal years, for that would place the end of the 70 weeks around 55 B.C. which is much too early for the destruction of the Temple as the whole of the prophecy declares. The appeal of using this decree as the starting point consists in that it is the most well-known decree regarding the restoration of Israel and it was given about the time Daniel received his vision of the 70 weeks. This decree is preferred by many who do not hold to a literal 490 years but that is what Daniel said and again we need not forget that dating from Cyrus means we end up the 490 years about 15 years too soon.....15 years before the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D. when the "second" anointed one is to be "cut off" at the same time the Temple is destroyed. Therefore this dating cannot be correct.

THE DECREE OF ARTAXERXES (457 BC) - cf. Ezr 7:13-14

13 I make a decree [NOT A DABAR], that all they of the people of Israel, and their priests and the Levites, in my realm, that are minded of their own free will to go with thee to Jerusalem, go. 14 Forasmuch as thou art sent of the king and his seven counsellors, to inquire concerning Judah and Jerusalem, according to the law of thy God which is in thy hand;

This decree concerns the restoration of the Law and its worship. If one starts with this decree by Artaxerxes in Ezra 7:13-14 then 490 Julian years would end the 70 weeks (490 yrs) around 33 A.D. Now we have a match to Jesus...almost! But the 490 years prophecy also included the destruction of the Temple and the Temple was not destroyed in 33 A.D. so this dating is not what Daniel had in mind and the "decree" or "word" is not the first decree of Artaxerxes!

Answer for yourself: But what is our other big problem? The Jewish people counted years in "lunar years" and not "Julian years." Such a 490 lunar year period ends the 70 weeks around 26 A.D. which is seven years too early for Jesus' death and again does not take into consideration the destruction of the Temple which coincides with the "cutting off" of the anointed one.

Answer for yourself: But what about the 69 weeks if counted in succession which makes 483 years?

We demonstrated conclusively in earlier articles that in the Hebrew manuscripts and language there is a definite "stop" after the first 7 weeks or 49 years so the time period cannot be counted as if consecutive or even two different periods (69 then 7). The Hebrew shows us conclusively that there is "7" followed by "62" plus "1" week totaling 490 years.

But regardless of this the Christians commentators paid no attention to the Hebrew and reckon time the way they want to in order to make the years "overlap" with Jesus if possible.

The decree of Artaxerxes to rebuild Jerusalem was given, according to profane history, BC 457. Gentile Christian commentators have frequently multiplied 69 (weeks) by 7 (years) to give a period of 483 day/years that were to elapse before this "anointed one" was to be "cut off." Again notice they do not recognize the "break" in the Hebrew language after the first 7 years nor take into consideration the whole of the events that were prophesied to occur within these 490 years which included the destruction of the Temple and we all know the Temple was not destroyed in 33 A.D. nor in 40 A.D. if one adds the "last week" or 7 years.

However, as stated, Jewish time is often reckoned in Lunar cycles rather than Solar, as Europeans are accustomed to. On the basis of Lunar time, 69 weeks of years comes out at 486.5 Lunar years. Allowing for a BC/AD calendar inaccuracy of 4 years, this brings us to AD 33.5 for the time of Jesus' death (being cut off); which is exactly when Jesus was crucified, 33.5 years after his birth but again fails to take into account the destruction of the Temple.

But in order to arrive at this scenario they have to do several things that are not proper:

- They choose to neglect that the Hebrew has a break after the first 7 weeks (49) years when the

- first "anointed" is revealed who is Cyrus as shown in prior articles
- They choose to run the time consecutive in order to deal with only "one" anointed one which is for them Jesus when there are two "different anointed ones" as shown in the prior articles
  - They choose to arbitrarily choose as the "word" a decree by Artaxerxes which allows for proximity to the date for the death of Jesus while neglecting the "word" of Jeremiah which was the real problem facing Daniel that prompted the angel Gabriel to come to explain this confusion
  - They choose to use Julian years instead of Lunar years which Israel used and in so doing arbitrarily fix the end of the 490 years since Artaxerxes decree ends around Jesus' death but yet they neglect that the death of the "anointed one" was to coincide with the destruction of the Temple which was in 70 A.D.....37 years later; thus the Julian year dating is unworkable
  - Others convert to Lunar years to stretch the 69 weeks (483 yrs) of years out to 486.5 Lunar years which comes again close to Jesus' death but in so doing they again run the time consecutively and not allow a break for the first "anointed" after the first week (49 years until Cyrus) nor allow for the fact that the dating of such lunar conversions from the date they select falls in 33.5 A.D. but in order to do so they do not explain why they separate the death ("cut off") of the anointed from the destruction of the Temple...again some 37 years later; therefore this Lunar year dating is also unworkable
  - They choose to neglect the fact that in the Hebrew "cut off" as used throughout the Hebrew Bible in all but 2 places refers to one who is "unrighteous" and this is supposed to be the end days Messiah and Jesus no less...is "the" Messiah to be "unrighteous"?

As we see very clearly then the first decree of Artaxerxes is not what Daniel had in mind to start the count and since the prophecy does not line up with the years and time of both Jesus' death as well as the simultaneous "death/cutting off" of the anointed at the same time of the destruction of the Temple...then this prophecy is not about Jesus.

THE SECOND DECREE OF ARTAXERXES (445-444 BC) - cf. Neh 2:1-8

1 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to me, saying: 2 Go, and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, saying: Thus saith the LORD: I remember for thee the affection of thy youth, the love of thine espousals; how thou wentest after Me in the wilderness, in a land that was not sown. 3 Israel is the LORD'S hallowed portion, His first-fruits of the increase; all that devour him shall be held guilty, evil shall come upon them, saith the LORD. 4 Hear ye the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob, and all the families of the house of Israel; 5 Thus saith the LORD: what unrighteousness have your fathers found in Me, that they are gone far from Me, and have walked after things of nought, and are become nought? 6 Neither said they: 'Where is the LORD that brought us up out of the land of Egypt; that led us through the wilderness, through a land of deserts and of pits, through a land of drought and of the shadow of death, through a land that no man passed through, and where no man dwelt?' 7 And I brought you into a land of fruitful fields, to eat the fruit thereof and the good thereof; but when ye entered, ye defiled My land, and made My heritage an abomination. 8 The priests said not: 'Where is the LORD?' And they that handle the law knew Me not, and the rulers transgressed against Me; the prophets also prophesied by Baal, and walked after things that do not profit.

Answer for yourself: Now notice we have a "dabar" in this verse but is it the one that Daniel was concerned over? Let us see if it was.

We have a decree before us for Nehemiah to build the city. By starting here, the 490 lunar years end the 70 weeks around 38 A.D. and we know the Temple was not destroyed then nor the "anointed" one "cut off" at that time. This dating of Nehemiah would place the start of the 70th week [last 7 years] near the beginning of Jesus' public ministry (ca. 30 A.D.) but in so doing we force the destruction of the Temple around 37 A.D. and we know that is not correct.

Each of these three starting dates has its problems as you can see but as shown in the previous articles when you consult the Rabbis then the problems disappear as I will now reiterate.

THE JEWISH RECKONING OF THE TIME

To understand a passage, one must always study it in context. In the beginning of Daniel chapter 9, we find: Daniel 9:2

In the first year of Darius' reign, I, Daniel, considered in the books the number of years about which the word of the L--rd came to Jeremiah the prophet, which must pass before the end of the ruins of Jerusalem, namely seventy years.

Daniel was living in Babylon in the exile after its army destroyed Jerusalem and the First Temple. The prophecies Daniel was considering were: Jeremiah 25:12 & Jeremiah 29:10. In Daniel 9:3-20 Daniel prays for the Jewish people, praising God and imploring Him to end the exile and rebuild the Temple and Jerusalem. He concludes: Daniel 9:21-23

While I was speaking in prayer, the man Gabriel [an angel], whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, came to me in swift flight about the time of the evening sacrifice. He made me understand, and talked with me, and said: "O Daniel, I have now come forth to give you wisdom and understanding. At the beginning of your supplications, a word went forth, and I have come to tell it to you, for you are greatly beloved; therefore, consider the word, understand the vision."

The angel Gabriel then explained the major events that would occur during the first 490 years after the destruction of the First Temple:

Daniel 9:24 ... Seventy weeks are decreed upon your people and upon your holy city....

A "week" is a seven--year period:

Leviticus 25:8 ... And you shall number seven weeks of years, seven times seven years; and there shall be to you the days of seven weeks of years, even forty--nine years.

Therefore, "seventy weeks" equals 490 years.

Daniel 9:24 ...to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sin, and to atone for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness....

During this 490-year grace period, the Jewish people could have proven its loyalty to G--d and His Torah by repenting. Had the Jews done so, the Messiah would have ushered in the Messianic Era and these blissful promises would have been fulfilled. Unfortunately, this opportunity was squandered. Consequently, 490 years later, the then-rebuilt Temple was destroyed and they were again exiled from the Holy Land.

Daniel 9:24 ...and to seal vision and prophet....

During this 490-year period, vision and prophecy ceased with Malachi.

Daniel 9:24 ...and to anoint the most holy place.

This was the building of the Second Temple.

Daniel 9:25 Know, therefore, and discern that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem until an anointed prince, there shall be seven weeks....

Seven weeks of years after the destruction of the First Temple, this anointed prince was revealed:

Isaiah 45:1 Thus says the L-rd to His anointed, to Cyrus....

When Cyrus, king of Persia, conquered Babylon, where the Jews were exiled after the destruction of the First Temple, God chose him to proclaim their liberty:

Isaiah 45:13 I have aroused Cyrus in righteousness, and I will straighten all his ways; he shall build My city and set My exiles free, neither for price nor for reward, says the L-rd of hosts.

This prophecy was fulfilled:

Ezra 1:1, 3 Now in the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia, in order that the word of the L-rd by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the L-rd stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, king of Persia, and he made a proclamation.... "Whoever there is among you of all His people, his G--d be with him and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the House of the L-rd, the G--d of Israel; He is the G--d Who is in Jerusalem."

Daniel 9:25 ...then for sixty--two weeks, it shall be built again, with broad place and moat, but in troublous times.

Jerusalem endured this entire period, despite the troubles caused by the surrounding enemy nations.

Daniel 9:26 And after the sixty--two weeks, an anointed one shall be cut off and be no more....

JEWISH INTERPRETATION IS DIVIDED HERE

If you remember we found out that only Priests, Prophets, and Kings were anointed by God. That being so and with the cessation of prophecy in Israel we need look at only two; namely a Priest or a King which was anointed which was to be "cut off." In this instance we find that the events of 70 C.E. "cut off" both the Priesthood and the King. We have mentioned the Sadducees and their total destruction at 70 A.D. with the destruction of the Temple previously so now I want to deal with the Jewish understanding of King Agrippa II of Judah and his demise.

According to many Rabbinical sources this second "anointed one" was King Agrippa II of Judah. Rashi, one of the leading Rabbis of Jewish history. writes that this was he of whom the prophecy spoke. At the destruction of Jerusalem and the slaughter and exile of its inhabitants in 68 C.E. , Agrippa's rule came to an abrupt end. Josephus, in Wars of the Jews, book 6, chapter 9, sec. 3 says: Now the number of those that were carried captive during this whole war was 97,000; as was the number of those that died during the whole siege, 1,100,000,...

Daniel 9:26 ...and the people of a prince who shall come shall destroy the city and the Sanctuary....

Jerusalem and the Second Temple were destroyed by the Roman army, which was under the command of this third prince, Vespasian, the king of Rome.

Daniel 9:26 ...and its end shall be with a flood; and until the end of the war, desolations are determined. Jerusalem's end was like a flood.

Compare:

Nahum 1:8 But with an overrunning flood, He will make a full end of its place....

Daniel 9:27 And he shall make a firm covenant with many for one week; and for half the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the offering to cease....

Vespasian made a peace agreement with the Jewish leaders in the seventieth "week," which concluded the total period decreed (9:24). However, the Romans violated this covenant after the first half week (three-and-a-half years) and prohibited sacrifices. Hence the Jews were forced to resort to bribery, lowering two baskets of gold coins daily over the wall to the Roman soldiers, who in turn hoisted up two lambs. Thus the obligatory daily offering continued until the destruction of the Temple (Jerusalem Talmud, Taanith 4:5). For the remaining week, Jerusalem was under siege for three years by Vespasian, and for half a year by his son, Titus.

According to the Hebrew Bible, these weeks of years begin with the destruction of the First Temple. We saw that in the previous articles if you remember. Therefore, since Jesus died about 27 C.E. which was forty-one years (six weeks of years) before the destruction of the Second Temple then he could not have been any one of these two "anointed" individuals; let alone the one "cut off" in 70 A.D. at the destruction of the Temple. Jesus was born prior to 4 B.C.E., the year in which Herod died (Matthew 2:1). And he was about 30 years old when he started his public ministry (Luke 3:23). Most scholars say that he died one year later.

CALCULATION OF DATES ACCORDING TO JEWISH RECKONING

Jewish dates have been used (rather than the Christian ones) because they can be verified by means of the Hebrew Bible.

After Creation

3338 TO 3408 The "70 years" prophecy from the destruction of the First Temple to the rebuilding of the Second Temple. (Jeremiah 25:12, 29:10; Daniel 9:2)

The exodus from Egypt occurred in 2448, as is clear from the lifetimes of the following men (as recorded in Genesis and Exodus): Adam (1-930), Methusaleh (687-1656), Shem (1558-2158), Jacob (2108-2255), Amram (2255-2392), Moses (2368 + 80 [his age at the time of the exodus] = 2448). So we see according to the Bible that the Exodus occurred in the year 2448. Construction of the First Temple began in the fourth year of King Solomon's reign, i.e., 480 years after the exodus (I Kings 6:1). Solomon reigned for another thirty--six years, (I Kings 11:42) whereupon a succession of kings occupied the throne for 374 years, until the First Temple was destroyed (II Chronicles 12:13 to 36:11). Thus,  $2448 + 480 + 36 + 374 = 3338$ . Thus the year of the destruction of the First Temple is 3338.

Let us also remember these 490 years were to be from the destruction of the First Temple to the destruction of the Second Temple.

3338 TO 3828 70 weeks (the total 490 years) from the destruction of the First Temple to the destruction of the Second Temple. (Daniel 9:24--27) Thus we see that the destruction of the Second Temple was in the Jewish year 3828 which is exactly 490 years since the destruction of the First Temple. Here is the punishment upon Israel for failure to observe the Sabbatical Year.

Of these 70 weeks:

3338 TO 3390 7 weeks (52 years was the actual time) from the destruction of the First Temple to the Edict of Cyrus, the first Prince. (Daniel 9:25) [7 weeks x 7 = 49 years]. The remaining 3 years (52-49) are carried forward.]

3390 TO 3828 Plus 62 weeks (438 years) From the Edict of Cyrus to King Agrippa II-The second anointed. (Daniel 9:25--26) [62 weeks x 7 = 434 years. The extra 4 years (438-434) are carried forward].

3821 TO 3828 The last 7 years of the 70th week involved the third prince, Vespasian, and the destruction of the Second Temple. (Daniel 9:26--27)

The above 7 surplus years (3+4) make up this last week of years. This 70th week does not fit in with Christian calculations, therefore, they have -- without Scriptural foundation -- assigned it to the time of Jesus' "second coming". The failure of Christianity to see and accept the Jewish interpretation of their own history and fulfillments of this prophecy has necessitated the casting into the future of the last week of 7 years in order to hold out hope that Jesus might yet be the fulfillment of this prophecy but in so doing they turn their heads and minds from the facts given in these series of articles. Such is willful blindness to the facts and the "blind follow the blind."

AGRIPPA II OR THE PRIESTHOOD?

I have shown you that Rashi and other Rabbis see that the "second anointed" referred to King Agrippa II. Other Rabbis see the destruction of the Sadducee Priesthood at the Temple's destruction the fulfillment of the "cutting off" of the second "anointed one" of Daniel's prophecy. Regardless the events happened almost simultaneously so for me it makes little difference since both were "anointed." What we need keep in focus is that the 490 years were to run up until the destruction of the Second Temple and this precludes any chance of Jesus being the fulfillment of this prophecy. We must rightly divide and interpret the Word of God.

As you can see for yourself as we have extensively looked at the Hebrew in determining the "truth" concerning Daniel 9 and the identity of the "anointed ones" or "messiahs" and we found that neither of them were the "last days" Messiah hoped for by Israel. We have looked at the dates of the prophecy in detail and seen that the decrees of Cyrus and Artaxerxes (first and second) cannot be used for the dating of the prophecy and none of the above three can be honestly made to "fit" the days of Jesus nor make him the fulfillment of this prophecy. One last thought. I find it shameful what has been done to the Word of God in trying to make Jesus the fulfillment of such prophecies when they were never meant to refer to him in the first place. God surely hates His Word being butchered and manipulated for theological agendas and all the while the blind follow the blind and miss the truths that God so loved the world that He wished to share with His children. May we find the courage and the love for God to demand the truth and never settle for lies. Surely belief in such lies neither honors Jesus nor God. Let us think on that for a while. Shalom.

DOES THE SEVENTY WEEKS OF DANIEL 9 START COUNTING DOWN FROM 444 B.C.E. AND END WITH THE DEATH OF JESUS AROUND 30/33 C.E.?

Most Christian commentators prefer to start the Seventy Weeks countdown with 444 or 445 B.C.E. because it brings their calculations closer to the time period in which Jesus died (30/33 C.E.). A far better starting date is the decree of Cyrus (537 B.C.E) upon which all subsequent grants of approval were based (Isaiah 44:28). A correct reading of the passage and some simple arithmetic dispels any attempt to claim 444 B.C.E. as a starting date and Jesus' death in 30/33 C.E. as a terminus.

- First, as shown in the prior articles, the seven weeks and the sixty-two weeks are really two separate periods and speak of two separate "anointed" ones and not one
- Second, even if we were to count 483 years from 444 B.C.E. we get to the year 38 C.E. Jesus is crucified in the period ranging from 30 to 33 C.E. which is too early for this interpretation to be correct

With that in mind we still have one week of years to contend with. But, the text of Daniel 9:26 says, "And after the sixty-two weeks (after a total of 69 weeks...or 483 years) an anointed one shall be cut off." This again is after, according to Christian exegesis, Jesus death and cannot be applied to him! Christendom's exegesis of this passage is faulty no matter what types of alteration of the Hebrew texts they apply or unique exegesis. It simply does not apply to Jesus.

This shows that if we use 444 B.C.E. as a starting date according to Christianity's interpretation of the text then the alleged second "anointed one" was "cut off" in the period following the year 38 C.E. (that is, "after the sixty-two weeks"). Since Jesus was crucified as testified by almost all Christian commentators in 30/33 C.E. then there would be no connection to anyone "cut off" prior to that year nor any possible reference to Jesus in this passage.

TO FINISH THE TRANSGRESSION...TO ATONE FOR INIQUITY...WHICH INIQUITY?

We saw in an earlier article that the Seventy Weeks of Years (490 years) of punishment upon Israel was due primarily due to their failure to observe the commandment of the "Sabbatical Year" which is called in Hebrew "shemittah" which is the seventh year of rest for the land. The Bible proclaims every seventh year "a sabbath of the Lord" (Lev. 25:1-7, 18-22) during which the soil of the land of Israel must rest and lie fallow.

We learn from the Torah that if Israel fails to live up to its obligations before God, punishments will be forthcoming. Throughout Leviticus 26 there is the admonition that the people would be punished "seven ways" for their sins (vs. 18, 21, 24, 28). The Jewish commentators saw this as being applied to this 70-year punishment, not only for the transgression of the law of shemittah, the Sabbatical Year, but for other sins that Israel had committed during the time of the First Temple. Among the other sins cited in the Talmud (Yoma 96) are idolatry, licentiousness and bloodshed.

The primary reason the First Temple was destroyed was due to Israel's failure to observe this commandment

This 490 year time of punishment upon Israel (490 years) would one day culminate and then the Messianic hope for Israel could begin. What is critical about this is that the Messianic age could not begin until this 490 years of punishment ended. Again what is critical for us is the correct dating of this punishment as found in the prophecy for when correctly understood we find that the culmination of the punishment is in 70 C.E. with the destruction of the Second Temple and COULD NOT have begun any earlier and this means it could not have begun during the days of Jesus life upon this earth!

DANIEL 9:24..THE CONTEXT IS VERY IMPORTANT FOR CORRECT UNDERSTANDING

Daniel 9

24 Seventy weeks are decreed upon thy people and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sin, and to forgive iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal vision and prophet, and to anoint the most holy place.

We need to closely consider the words "to finish the transgression, to put an end to sin, and to atone for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal both vision and prophet, and to anoint a most holy place." Since Israel has transgressed the "Sabbatical Year" which is called in Hebrew "shemittah" which is the seventh year of rest for the land then it stands to reason that the iniquity that had to be atoned for was sin of the failure to obey the commandment of the Shemittah. The Seventy Weeks of Daniel concerns the atonement of Israel for failing to let the land observe it's Sabbath. That should scare the dickens out of Christians who themselves according to Gentile theology do not observe the Sabbath as well which is the 4th Commandment. Such is the legacy we inherited from antisemitic Rome and Constantine. But here the angel Gabriel alludes to not only the length of the punishment (490 years) but also the beginning of the Messianic Age and the six things that will come about when the Messiah is finally revealed. In other words, the angel revealed that once the 490-year period was finished, which included the destruction of the Temple, the hope of the ultimate redemption could begin and the appearance of the Messiah be revealed. What Christians fail to understand is that the two references to the other "anointed" ones that appear along the way during this 490 years are not the End Days Messiah. This End Days Messiah can only appear after the destruction of the Second Temple following those 490 years of punishment that culminate from the destruction of the First Temple to the destruction of the Second Temple. The final exile would finish the transgression, and serve as the atonement for sin and iniquity. It would end with the anointing of the Holy of Holies in the Third Temple.

The reference to the sealing of "vision and prophet" signifies the fulfillment of all the promises and tidings predicted by the prophets and again this only could begin following the 490 years of punishment upon Israel again which end in 70 C.E.

Hopefully now you can see the difference between what the context of Daniel 9 says about the particular sin being atoned for here versus the idea of Western Christianity that this atonement is for universal sin of all mankind. Such foolish reasoning by Christianity destroys the whole context of Daniel 9 and what God was saying to the Jewish people in these Scriptures.

THE BABYLONIAN TALMUD AGREES WITH THE PROPHETS ON THIS AS WELL

An example of the Messianic hope brought about by the destruction of the Second Temple is found in the Babylonian Talmud in a story about Rabbi Akiva. This incident took place on the occasion of a journey to Rome, approximately 25 years after the Temple was destroyed.

Rabban Gamliel, Rabbi Elazar ben Azariah, Rabbi Joshua and Rabbi Akiva were coming up to Jerusalem together and just as they came to Mt. Scopus they saw a fox emerging from the Holy of Holies. They fell weeping and Rabbi Akiva laughed. Wherefore said they to him: Why are you laughing? Said he: Why are you weeping? They said to him: a place of which it was once said, And the common man who goes near (to the Holy of Holies) shall be put to death (Num 1:51) is now become the haunt of foxes, and should we not weep?

He said: This is why I laugh. For it is written: And I will take to Me faithful witnesses, Uriah the priest and Zechariah the son of Jeberechiah (Is 8:2; cf. Zec 1:1). Now what connection has this Uriah the priest with Zechariah? Uriah lived during the times of the First Temple, while [the other] Zechariah lived [and prophesied] during the second Temple. But the Torah linked the [later] prophecy of Zechariah with the [earlier] prophecy of Uriah. In the earlier prophecy [in the days of] Uriah it is written: Therefore shall Zion, because of you, be plowed like a field (Mic 3:12; Jer 26:18-20). In Zechariah it is written: Thus saith the Lord of Hosts. Yet shall old men and women sit in the broad places of Jerusalem (Zec 8:4). So long as Uriah's [threatening] prophecy had not been fulfilled, I was afraid that Zechariah's prophecy would not be fulfilled. Now that Uriah's prophecy has been [literally] fulfilled, it is certain that Zechariah's prophecy also is to find its literal fulfillment. They said to him: Akiva, you have comforted us! Akiva, you have comforted us!

We can see from this passage that there was the expectation that the Third Temple of the Messianic Age could now become a reality. In other words, once the Second Temple was destroyed, the ultimate redemption could come at any time.

In case you did not notice it this time for possible beginning of the Messianic redemption to begin is roughly 37 to 38 years AFTER the death of Jesus!

PROBLEMS SURROUNDING JEWISH AND CHRISTIAN DATING OF THE PROPHECY OF DANIEL 9 & THE SEVENTY WEEKS

The year 1998 C.E. is equivalent to the Jewish year 5758, according to the reckoning of the Hebrew calendar. It is accepted that the Second Temple was destroyed in approximately the year 70 C.E., 1,928 years ago. This would correspond to the Hebrew year 3830. If there was a period of 490 years between the destruction of the First Temple and the destruction of the Second Temple, then the First Temple was destroyed in the Hebrew year 3340.

Just when you thought it was simple somebody has to throw a monkey wrench into it. So here goes. Secular dating puts the first destruction at 587 B.C.E., this should correspond to the Hebrew year 3173 and not 3340. This is a difference of approximately 167 years, a considerable amount of time. The discrepancy between the chronology of the Seder Olam and conventional dating actually goes back as far as the capture of Jerusalem by King David. Conventional dating places this event around the year 1000 B.C.E., while the Seder Olam places this event at approximately 867 BCE. See M. First, Jewish History in Conflict.

Answer for yourself: Why is there such a difference between Hebrew and conventional dating?

Answer for yourself: And which one is most accurate? Since scholars on both sides are so divided on this point it is beyond the scope of this short article to thoroughly investigate this issue. However, for the sake of adding some clarity to the prophecy of Daniel 9, we will briefly examine several possible answers to these questions.

- The first possibility is that Daniel 9 refers to the time of the Maccabees. Some scholars believe that at least chapters 7 through 12 of the book of Daniel were written at the time of the reign of Antiochus IV Epiphanes, around 170 BCE. Alexander A. Di Lella states, "The Book of Daniel as a whole may rightly be viewed as a pacifistic manifesto of the Hasidim, which was composed and widely circulated to urge and encourage the faithful Jews to remain steadfast in the practice of the religion of their fathers during the brutal persecution of Aniochus IV Epiphanes, particularly in the last years of his reign, from 167 to 164 B.C." (Hartman and Di Lella, Daniel, p. 43).
- The second possibility is that Daniel 9 does refer to the end of the Second Temple period and the conventional dating is correct. However, if this is the case, it leaves us with dates that have no real significance in terms of the meaning of the fulfillment of the prophecy. If we date the destruction of the Second Temple at 587 BCE and count 490 years, we come up with the date 97 BCE - a year that has no particular significance in the history of the Temple or in Jewish history in general.
- A third possibility is that Daniel 9 does refer to the end of the Second Temple period and the Hebrew dating is correct.

The oldest record of Jewish chronology is the Seder Olam Rabbah. It was edited by Jose ben Halafta, who died in the year 160 C.E. According to this chronology, the First Temple was destroyed in the Hebrew year 3338. The Second Temple was built in the year 3408 and stood for 420 years; it was destroyed in the year 3828. The Seder Olam counts a total of 490 years between the destruction of the First and Second Temples, which would account for the 70 sevens of Daniel's prophecy.

Michael Drazin, in his book, Their Hollow Inheritance, identified the following Biblical timeline based on the dating of the Seder Olam:

The exodus from Egypt occurred in 2448, as is clear from the lifetimes of the following men (as recorded in Genesis and Exodus): Adam (1--930), Methusaleh (687--1656), Shem (1558--2158), Jacob (2108--2255), Amram (2255--2392), Moses (2368 + 80 [his age at the time of the exodus] = 2448). Construction of the First Temple began in the fourth year of King Solomon's reign, i.e., 480 years after the exodus (I Kings 6:1). Solomon reigned for another thirty--six years, (I Kings 11:42) whereupon a succession of kings occupied the throne for 374 years, until the First Temple was destroyed (II Chronicles 12:13 to 36:11). Thus,  $2448 + 480 + 36 + 374 = 3338$ . (Drazin, Their Hollow Inheritance, p. 90-91)

Unlike the Christian dating of Daniel 9 the prophecy of Daniel 9 works out very accurately according to the chronology of the Jewish Seder Olam and Jewish interpretation of their own Bible.

However, the question of the discrepancy between Hebrew and conventional dating still remains. Edgar Frank, in his book Talmudic and Rabbinical Chronology, states

It is a well known fact, for instance, that the First Temple was destroyed in 586 and the Second Temple consecrated in 516 BCE and destroyed in 70 CE. The Second Temple, therefore, stood 585 years, while according to Jewish chronology, it stood only 420 years ... According to the SO [Seder Olam] and Ab.Zar. [Abodah Zara] 9a, during the Second Commonwealth the Persians reigned 34 years, the Greeks 180, the Hasmoneans 103 and the Romans 103 years, which gives us a total of 420 or, compared with 585 years, a difference of 165 years. This mistake seems to lie in the time of the reign of the Persians which was much longer than 34 years (Frank, Talmudic and Biblical Chronology, p. 9, n. 1).

Scholars in support of conventional dating cite fourteen kings (some identify as many as seventeen) that reigned for approximately 207 years during the Persian empire. However, in defense of the Jewish view, some Hebrew scholars and commentators note that Daniel 11:1-2 refutes this claim.

Daniel 11:

*1 Also I in the first year of Darius the Mede, even I, stood to confirm and to strengthen him.
2 And now will I shew thee the truth. Behold, there shall stand up yet three kings in Persia; and the fourth shall be far richer than they all: and by his strength through his riches he shall stir up all against the realm of Grecia.*

Here we find the author of Daniel identifying only three kings that reigned during the Persian empire. According to Rashi, the "three kings in Persia" are identified as Cyrus the Persian, Ahasuerus, and Darius the Persian. The fourth king includes the first Darius, Darius the Mede. Alternatively, Ibn Ezra rejects this interpretation. "In his opinion, three more kings excludes Cyrus, in whose reign this vision took place. This is indicated by the word od, more. And the fourth includes Cyrus as the first. The chronology of the kings is 1. Cyrus; 2. Ahasuerus (the husband of Esther) who is identical with Artachshasta of Ezra 4; 3. Darius, under whose rule the Temple was rebuilt; 4. Artachshast (in Ezra 6-8, Nechemiah 2 and 5), under whose rule Nechemiah rebuilt the walls of Jerusalem. Since he is the last of the Persian kings, and must therefore be the king who was beaten and killed by Alexander, he must also have been named Darius, since this is known to be the name of the Persian king defeated by Alexander. He thus arrives independently at the same conclusion as the Sages (Rosh HaShanah 2b) that Artachshast was a generic name used by all the Persian kings [as the Egyptian kings were all titled Pharaoh]." Goldwurm, p. 282-3.

Other Jewish commentators believe that the Jewish sages who wrote the Seder Olam purposely altered their chronology so as to confuse anyone who might try to predict the time of the coming of the Messiah. They supposedly did this in accordance with a command found in Daniel 12:4, which states, "But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end ..." But again this refers specifically to the 12th chapter of Daniel and not to the 9th chapter.

Rav Shimon Schwab, one of the proponents of the theory that the Sages hid these missing years, writes,

In Sanhedrin 97b we find a stern condemnation of all those who conjecture the Messianic date from the last chapter of Daniel. ["What is meant by 'but at the end it shall speak and not lie'? R. Samuel ben Nahmani said in the name of R. Jonathan: Blasted be the bones of those who calculate the end. For they would say, since the predetermined time has arrived, and yet he has not come, he will never come. But [even so] wait for him, as it is written, Though he tarry wait for him." Sanhedrin 97b.] These mysteries are to remain "closed and sealed until the end of time." Had it not been for the fact that important parts of those prophecies had been left out or were purposely obscured, the clues for the Messianic date found in Daniel might have yielded the desired results. This was rendered impossible through the hiding of certain data and chronological material (Schwab, Rav Shimon, "Comparative Jewish Chronology?" in Selected Speeches, p. 270).

Rav Schwab goes on to explain that the Sages introduced a new system of counting years called, minyan shtaros, the "Era of Contracts." It is also referred to as the Seleucid Era and began in 312-311 BCE. This non-Jewish accounting was in use by the Sages until the Middle Ages and is still used by some Eastern groups to this day. According to Rav Schwab, the adoption of a non-Jewish calendar for religious documents was "part of the scheme to 'close up the words and seal the book.'" (ibid., p. 271-2).

Rav Schwab offers his views as only a possibility and as a way to "compile a comparative chronology acceptable to Orthodox Jewry and secular historians alike" (ibid., p. 261). In conclusion he states, "Our traditional, universally accepted Jewish way of counting the years lvre't haolam (Heb: from the beginning of the world) is sacred territory which only fools do not fear to tread upon" (ibid., p. 284).

As the controversy between the Hebrew and conventional chronology has yet to be resolved, we are left with two choices. We can accept the interpretation that Daniel 9 refers to the abomination of the statute of Zeus set upon the altar of sacrifice by Antiochus in the year 167 BCE. Or, we can accept the chronology of the Seder Olam and the interpretation that Daniel 9 refers to the period between the destruction of the two Temples. It should be noted that even historians who agree with the conventional chronology contradict one another at various points. For example, aside from the uncertainty about the number of Persian kings who reigned during this period, there is also disagreement as to the year Cyrus began his reign, some placing the date at 539 BCE, others as early as 559 BCE. In the end, neither of the possibilities lend any support for the Christian messianic interpretation of Daniel 9. It would seem that once again Jewish exegesis is correct and Gentile Christian interpretation of the Hebrew Scriptures flawed. So what else is new?

THE REINTERPRETATION OF DANIEL 9 IN THE NEW TESTAMENT FOLLOWING THE FAILURE OF JESUS TO RETURN

Mark chapter 13 is called in New Testament studies the "Little Apocalypse" and it is basically a remez of prophetic Scripture from Daniel (hinting back to Daniel 9 as we shall quickly see).

The allusion to Daniel 9 that is found in the New Testament in Mark 13 along with parallel passages in Matthew 24 and Luke 21.

Mark 13:14-19 1

4 But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing where it ought not, (let him that readeth understand,) then let them that be in Judaea flee to the mountains: 15 And let him that is on the housetop not go down into the house, neither enter therein, to take any thing out of his house: 16 And let him that is in the field not turn back again for to take up his garment. 17 But woe to them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days! 18 And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter. 19 For in those days shall be affliction, such as was not from the beginning of the creation which God created unto this time, neither shall be. (KJV)

Matt 24:15-21 15 When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation, spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth, let him understand:) 16 Then let them which be in Judaea flee into the mountains: 17 Let him which is on the housetop not come down to take any thing out of his house: 18 Neither let him which is in the field return back to take his clothes. 19 And woe unto them that are with child, and to them that give suck in those days! 20 But pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, neither on the sabbath day: 21 For then shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world to this time, no, nor ever shall be. (KJV)

Luke 21:20-22 20 And when ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh. 21 Then let them which are in Judaea flee to the mountains; and let them which are in the midst of it depart out; and let not them that are in the countries enter thereinto. 22 For these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled. (KJV)

NOW IT IS TIME TO THINK

As I read this passage many years ago my mind was opened by God to consider if this passage really referred to me, a Gentile Christian, living in the United States because it mentioned several things that simply did not apply to me:

- I live in Dallas, Texas, but the prophecy tells only those living in Judaea to flee and not Texans or all mankind all over the world to flee; only those in Judaea!
- It warns those that experience this abomination of desolation that they better hope this does not befall them on the Sabbath when they have according to the Law restrictions on travel which would affect their ability to fight or to flee. As Christians we don't recognize the Sabbath or observe it so this again could not apply to me in America.
- Luke makes the parallel to "SEEING" the abomination of desolation which is spoken by Daniel with "Jerusalem being compassed with armies" which means that THE ABOMINATION OF DESOLATION IS THE SAME AS JERUSALEM BEING SURROUNDED BY ARMIES yet I live in Dallas, Texas, and this event happened in 70 C.E. long ago....this means that the abomination of desolation has already occurred just like Jesus said it would to "that generation" which was alive in his day.
- The reference is repeatedly to those alive in that day when Jesus spoke which will see these things happen to Jerusalem in Judaea and not Texas or other parts of the world.
- And lastly the time of the abomination of desolation is described as occurring in the middle to time and not as the end of time as we know it since the prophecy promises that such a time "not shall ever be again" like that time prophesied which means that time has to continue like before if such a comparison is to be real.

My mind was spinning and I realized that the traditional dispensational approach to this prophecy of Daniel and most all other Christian apocalyptic interpretation is bogus!

THE DISCIPLES WERE CONFUSED AS WELL

As we look at the context of these parallel verses, we find that the disciples of Jesus have just asked him an important question:

Mark 13:

1 And as he went out of the temple, one of his disciples saith unto him, Master, see what manner of stones and what buildings are here!

2 And Jesus answering said unto him, Seest thou these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

3 And as he sat upon the mount of Olives over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew asked him privately,

4 Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign when all these things shall be fulfilled?

The parallel passage in Matthew has the disciples asking Jesus specifically about his return.

Matthew 24:

3 And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?

Jesus and his followers believed, according to Jewish theology of their day, that the coming of the Kingdom of God was "at hand" (Matt. 4:17, 10:7, 16:28; Luke 21:31; Phil. 4:5; 2 Thess. 2:2; 1 Pet. 4:7) and that, according to these passages in Mark, Matthew and Luke, one of the signs of the end would be the destruction of the Temple, in addition to a great "tribulation." This tribulation is referred to in the Hebrew scriptures as the "time of Jacob's trouble" (Jer. 30:7).

As alluded to previously, Jesus states that the generation that would see these events would be the generation that would see the fulfillment of his mission (Mark 13:29-30; cf. Mark 9:1).

Mark 13:29-30 29

So ye in like manner, when ye (those alive to whom Jesus spoke) shall see these things come to pass, know that it is nigh, even at the doors. 30 Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass, till all these things be done. (KJV)

Mark 9:1 1

And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That there be some of them that stand here (those who heard Jesus speak), which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power. (KJV)

It is no wonder that after the Temple was destroyed and the end of the first century came and went and Jesus had not yet returned, the Gentile Church needed to reinterpret the references to Daniel 9. They did this separating the 70th week from the 69th week in Daniel 9:25 and this was done by altering the Hebrew Scriptures and failing to observe the punctuation of the texts, and thereby pushing the 70th week some 2000 years into the future to a distant and uncertain time. In so doing the problem of the failure of Jesus to reappear as he said and of an imminent "second coming" was solved.

WHAT IS BIBLICAL RIGHTEOUSNESS...EXPOUNDED

Righteousness, as defined by the Encyclopedia Judaica, is the fulfillment of all legal and moral obligations. Righteousness is not an abstract notion but rather consists in doing what is just and right in all relationships:

Ps 106:3 3 Blessed are they that keep judgment, and he that doeth righteousness at all times. (KJV)

Isa 64:5 5 Thou meetest him that rejoiceth and worketh righteousness, those that remember thee in thy ways: behold, thou art wroth; for we have sinned: in those is continuance, and we shall be saved. (KJV)

Jer 22:3 3 Thus saith the LORD; Execute ye judgment and righteousness, and deliver the spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor: and do no wrong, do no violence to the stranger, the fatherless, nor the widow, neither shed innocent blood in this place. (KJV)

Ezek 18:19-27 19 Yet say ye, Why? doth not the son bear the iniquity of the father? When the son hath done that which is lawful and right, and hath kept all my statutes, and hath done them, he shall surely live. 20 The soul that sinneth, it shall die. The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither shall the father bear the iniquity of the son: the righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him. 21 But if the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die. 22 All his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mentioned unto him: in his righteousness that he hath done he shall live. 23 Have I any pleasure at all that the wicked should die? saith the Lord GOD: and not that he should return from his ways, and live? 24 But when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? All his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned: in his trespass that he hath trespassed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die. 25 Yet ye say, The way of the Lord is not equal. Hear now, O house of Israel; Is not my way equal? are not your ways unequal? 26 When a righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and dieth in them; for his iniquity that he hath done shall he die. 27 Again, when the wicked man turneth away from his wickedness that he hath committed, and doeth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive. (KJV)

Ps 15:2 2 He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart. (KJV)

Righteous action results in social stability and ultimately in peace: "And the work of righteousness shall be peace" Avot 2:7).

Isa 32:17 17 And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever. (KJV)

Hosea 10:12 12 Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground: for it is time to seek the LORD, till he come and rain righteousness upon you. (KJV)

In the Bible righteousness bears a distinctly legal character; the righteous man is the innocent party, while the wicked man is the guilty one:

Deut 25:1 1 If there be a controversy between men, and they come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them; then they shall justify the righteous, and condemn the wicked. (KJV)

Exod 23:7 7 Keep thee far from a false matter; and the innocent and righteous slay thou not: for I will not justify the wicked. (KJV)

2 Sam 15:4 4 Absalom said moreover, Oh that I were made judge in the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me, and I would do him justice! (KJV)

Isa 5:23 23 Which justify the wicked for reward, and take away the righteousness of the righteous from him! (KJV)

Righteousness requires not merely abstention from evil, but a constant pursuit of justice and the performance of positive deeds (Deut. 16:20; Jer. 22:3; cf. Prov. 16:17; Gen. R. 30:9; Jub. 7:20; Tob. 3:2; Kid. 40a).

The meaning of righteousness is broadened to include actions beyond the letter of the law in the realms of ethics and ritual (Ezek. 8:5; Tob. 1:10–12; Eccles. 7; Lev. R. 27:1).

Paralleling the concept of righteousness is that of wickedness (see Zedakah and Rish'ah). Failure to perform obligations leads indirectly to the upsetting of social stability and, ultimately, to the deliberate undermining of the social structure (Isa. 5:23; Hos. 10:13; Amos 5:12; Avot 5:18; Sanh. 101b; RH 17a).

Against the juridical background of righteousness, the paradox of divine justice comes into prominence. A doctrine of exactly balanced rewards and punishments contradicts the reality in which the just man suffers in consequence of his very righteousness (Eccles. 7:15; cf. Gen. 18:23; Jer. 12:1; Hab. 1:13; Mal. 3:15; Ps. 32:10; Job, passim; Wisd. 2–3; Lev. R. 27; Ber. 7a; Shab. 55b; Hor. 10b).

This individual problem takes on a national character in Jewish history, throughout which an innocent nation is constantly being persecuted (Wisd. 10:15; IV Ezra 10:22).

The paradox becomes even more striking in view of the legal character of the covenant between God and His people: "And I will betroth thee unto Me in righteousness and in justice" (Hos. 2:21).

Attempts to come to grips with this paradox account for the notion that the righteous man suffers for and with his generation, and that his death expiates for their sins (MK 28a; Ex. R. 43:1; cf. Gen R. 34:2; Sanh. 108a). Often, however, man's anger and righteous indignation in the face of overwhelming injustice causes him to invoke that absolute righteousness which rests only with God: "for Thou art righteous" (Neh. 9:8; cf. II Chron. 12:6; Isa. 5:16; 45:22–25; Ps. 89: 16; II Macc. 12:6; Hag. 12b).

Because righteousness is not an inherent human characteristic, but rather a learned trait resulting from sustained performance of obligations, man can never attain the peak of righteous perfection: "For there is not a righteous man upon earth that doeth good and sinneth not" (Eccles. 7:20; cf. Ps. 143:2; Job 4:17; 15:14; Dan. 9:18). The impossibility of achieving absolute righteousness, however, does not preclude the constant striving toward this end. The Jew emulates the Patriarchs, conscious that God evaluates even their righteousness in relative terms (Gen. R. 30:9; Shab. 55a; Sanh. 107a; cf. Hab. 2:4; Yoma 38b; RH 16b; Sanh. 93a; Num. R. 3:1; Song R. 3:3; Zohar, Gen. 9). Judaism holds in contempt those who assume a pretense of piety and righteousness: "Be not righteous overmuch neither make thyself overwise" (Eccles. 7:16; cf. Eccles. 7:5; Nid. 30b), while, on the other hand, it exalts the zaddikim nistarim ("the hidden righteous") of each generation (Suk. 45b; Hul. 92a; Gen. R. 35:2).

The prophets conceive of the ideal society in terms of righteousness (Isa. 28:17; 60:21; Jer. 23:5-7; Hos. 10:12; Zech. 8:8; Ps. 7:10; 18:25; Dan. 9:24). Subsequent attempts to formulate a code for an ideal society rest heavily on practical principles of daily righteous conduct (En. 10:21; 13:10; Ps. of Sol. 17:27; Meg. 17b; cf. the teachings of the "Teacher of Righteousness" in the Dead Sea Scrolls). Eschatologically, righteous action within a righteous society will restore peace in the world and will reestablish Jerusalem as the citadel of righteousness: "And I will restore thy judges... afterward thou shalt be called the city of righteousness" (Isa. 1:26-27; Jer. 31:22). [Z.Sz.]

In rabbinic literature the term zedakah means "charity," "almsgiving," "practical benevolence," but does not refer to righteousness in general for which there is no special term. However, the name zaddik, "righteous man" (pl. zaddikim), is found throughout rabbinic literature denoting the good man, the man free from sin, the one who carries out his obligation to God and to man by obeying the precepts of the Torah. Occasionally in the literature the term zaddik denotes the specially pious, the man of extraordinary goodness, the holy man or saint, as when it is said that there are never less than 36 zaddikim in the world who see the Divine Presence each day (Suk. 45b). But in general the term zaddik does not necessarily suggest unusual piety, but simply the carrying out of God's will. This can be seen from the division of men (RH 16b) into the thoroughly righteous (zaddikim gemurim), the thoroughly wicked (resha'im gemurim), and the average persons (beinonim). In one passage (Ber. 61b) the distinction is made that the zaddikim are governed by the good inclination, the wicked by the evil inclination, and the average by both inclinations. When Rabbah commented that he was an average person Abbaye objected that this would mean that most people are wicked. The term "righteous" is used of women as well as of men (Song. R. 1:17; Sot. 11b). The zaddikim among the gentiles have a share in the world to come (Tos. Sanh. 13:2).

The zaddikim, in their humility, promise to do only a little for others but in reality do much (BM 87a). The zaddikim are so scrupulous in avoiding the slightest taint of theft that their honestly acquired property becomes dearer to them than their own person and they risk their lives to preserve it (Hul. 91a). They have a strong social conscience. They rise up early in the morning to attend to the needs of the community (Yalkut, Ex. 264). Even at the time of their death they worry not about their own affairs but about their communal responsibilities (Sifrei, Num. 138).

Even when they are dead the zaddikim are called "living," unlike the wicked who are called "dead" even while they are still alive (Ber. 18a). When a zaddik resides in a city he adorns that city so that when he departs its glory departs with him (Gen. R. 68:6). The very stones of a place quarrel among themselves for the privilege of serving as a pillow for the zaddik who is obliged to sleep out of doors (Hul. 91b). Beauty, strength, riches, honor, wisdom, old age, gray hairs, and children are comely to the zaddikim and comely to the world (Avot 6:8). But the zaddikim suffer in this life. Whenever they wish to have a life of comfort Satan complains that they ought to be satisfied with the reward stored up for them in the hereafter and not wish to enjoy, too, the ease of this world (Gen. R. 84:3). God causes the zaddikim to suffer in this world to purge them of the few sins of which they are guilty, just as when a tree stands in a clean place with its branches overlapping an unclean place the branches are lopped off so that the whole tree can stand in a clean place (Kid. 40b). In another passage, however, it is said that Moses received no answer when he asked God why it is that one zaddik meets with good fortune in this world while another meets with evil (Ber. 7a).

A man can repent sincerely in his heart of the sins he has committed and by so doing change his status from that of rasha ("wicked") to that of zaddik. Thus if a man who is thoroughly wicked betroths a woman on the understanding that he is a zaddik the act is valid. Conversely, if a known zaddik betrothed a woman on the understanding that he is a rasha the act is also valid because he may have been guilty of an acceptance of idolatry in his heart and this would change his status (Kid. 49b). A man who has been a perfect zaddik all his life and is sorry for the good deeds he has done thereby cancels out all those good deeds. Conversely, a complete rasha who repents of his evil deeds at the end of his life cancels out thereby all those evil deeds (Kid. 40b). Nevertheless, a good deed is not disqualified by any self-seeking motive. For example, a man who gives charity so that his children may live or that he may have reward for it in the hereafter can still be considered a perfect zaddik (Pes. 8a–b).

In medieval Jewish thought a definite tendency can be observed to extend the scope of righteousness. Not only is greater inwardness demanded of the zaddik, but he is expected to observe as the norm rules of conduct which in rabbinic literature are set down as the ideal for the especially pious. The medieval moralistic literature consists mainly of such demands classified and codified as standards to which all should aspire. A typical example is the anonymous work with the revealing title of Orhot Zaddikim, "The Ways of the Righteous" (tr. S. Cohen (1969)). Thus the saying of R. Yose, who is described (Avot 2:8) as a hasid ("saint"), that all man's deeds should be for the sake of heaven (Avot 2:12), is formulated in the Codes (Tur, OH 231) as the rule for all men. When a man eats and drinks, for example, it should not be in order to enjoy his food and drink but to have strength for God's service. The same applies to his working, sleeping, marital relations, and conversing with others. All should be done for the sake of heaven and not for personal gratification.

In Maimonides' writings the life of righteousness is made to embrace the Greek ideal of harmony and balance in choosing the middle way. The good man should be neither too prone to anger nor as indifferent to insult as a corpse; neither too ambitious nor too lazy; neither frivolous nor melancholic; neither greedy nor a spendthrift (Yad, Deot 1:4–5). Man is free to choose the way he wishes to follow. It is given to every man to be as great a zaddik as Moses or as great a rasha as Jeroboam (Yad, Teshuvah 5:2). Maimonides defines the zaddik as the man with more good deeds to his credit than bad. The rasha has more bad deeds than good ones, while the average man (beinoni) has his good and bad deeds equally balanced. The same assessment is made by God of a country and of the world as a whole. But it is not the mere quantity of the deeds which counts in this assessment. A good deed can be of such quality that it can succeed in outweighing many bad deeds, and the converse is also true (Yad, Teshuvah 3:1–2).

Among the kabbalists the term zaddik is given, as in a few instances in rabbinic literature, the meaning of "saint." The zaddik is no longer simply the ordinary good man but a holy man of elevated degree. In the Zohar, zaddik is the name of one of the Sefirot—Yesod, "foundation." This is the creative principle and is symbolized by the phallus. Consequently, the zaddik on earth is especially careful to avoid any flaw in the "sign of the covenant," i.e., he keeps himself free from all forms of sexual impurity. "One who does not guard the sign of the Covenant as he should cannot be called a zaddik" (Zohar, Gen. 94a). Among the biblical heroes, the counterpart of Yesod is Joseph who refused to yield to the blandishments of Potiphar's wife and who, as a result, is called "Joseph the zaddik" (Zohar, Ex. 23a). In Hasidism, too, the Zaddik is the miracle-working saint and holy man, the hasidic master. The term hasid could not have been applied to him since this was the name given to his followers, the hasidim. Once the term had been used in this sense the rabbinic references to the zaddik were interpreted in the Hasidic literature as referring to the holy man. In Habad theory the terms zaddik and rasha are acknowledged to be used in the rabbinic literature, in some instances in the loose sense of one who is acquitted in judgment by God and one who is declared guilty. But the true definition of the zaddik is that he is the man "who has no evil inclination because he has killed it by fasting" (Likkutei Amarim, I, 1). The prescriptions for leading the good life found in the classical sources are not for such rare souls who do not need them, but for the "average men" (beinonim). The beinoni is now, in fact, not "average" at all but the righteous man who struggles against the evil within him in order to do God's will.

The pursuit of righteousness was the aim of the Lithuanian Musar movement but the approach was decidedly non-mystical. In response to the claim of Hasidism that the Zaddik is invested with the power to cause harm by his curse, Israel Salanter, the founder of the movement, is said to have retorted that if that were so, the zaddik can be a danger to others and should be obliged to pay for any harm he may do in this way. The followers of Israel Meir ha-Kohen (the Hafez Hayyim) used to say that while it was the boast of the hasidim that their zaddik decrees and God fulfills, of the Hafez Hayyim it was rather true that God decrees and the zaddik fulfills.

The righteous man, according to the Musarists, is other-worldly, ascetic, profoundly concerned with his ethical obligations, and devoted to the study of the Torah and the practice of the precepts. The Musar leaders and teachers were frequently referred to as ha-rav ha-zaddik, "The rabbi, the zaddik..."

In modern writings on Jewish religious thought, especially those in Western languages, the emphasis is chiefly on the ethical and moral content of righteousness and on its universal application. [Louis Jacobs]. Now given this understanding, let us enlarge our understanding of the truth concerning "righteousness" as defined in the Bible. It is time to learn of a new concept in the Bible which is seen from cover to cover but seldom recognized. By this I mean "tzekekah."

BIBLICAL CHARITY-"TZEDAKAH"-TRUE BIBLICAL RIGHTEOUSNESS

The Biblical word in Hebrew for charity is TZEDAKAH, which literally means "righteousness." Ever since the Jews began to lead their own ethnic group-life in ancient Israel, they have shown an unending concern for helping those less fortunate than themselves. These have included the hungry, the sick, and the old, as well as all the other needy and helpless. This activity in benevolence and mutual aid intensified and kept pace with the growing difficulties of the Jewish people. The development of an ethical consciousness in the plain folk played no small part in the rise of this universal philanthropy. In the Hellenistic age, it was noted, and not always with a flattering intention by many non-Jews, as one of the identifying marks of the Jewish character. To some sophisticated Romans who had close contact with Jewish life, it appeared as a most curious, even an incredible, preoccupation.

There is a notation in the Talmud about an argument between Rabbi Akiba and Turnus (Tineius) Rufus, the governor of Judea. The Roman asked Rabbi Akiba: "If, as you say, your god loves the poor, why then does he not support them?" A reasonable question, certainly! Rabbi Akiba replied that if God left the care of the poor to the benevolence of the Jews themselves it was purposely "so that we may be saved by its merits from the punishment of Gehinnom [Gehenna or Purgatory]." On what authority did the Rabbi base this assumption about God's intention? Akiba cited this passage:

Isa. 58:7

Is it not to day thy bread to the hunger, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? When thou seest the naked, that thou cover him, and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?

It is for a very special reason that the obligation of giving charity is accorded such an important place in the teachings of the Rabbinic moralists. Not only did they assume that an act of charity saved the giver from the fires of Gehinnom, but they lauded it as an activity that "uplifts the soul," and one that is "equal to the merit of all the other mitzvot [the 613 precepts of the Torah]." Most important of all, they claimed, "it brings the Redemption nearer."

At every Jewish burial all over the world today, as the collectors of charity move among the mourners, they shatter the silence of grief with the urgent proclamation: "Tzedakah tatsil mi-mavet!" ("Charity saves from death!").

An index as to how Jews regard the giving and the taking of charity may be found in the very meaning of its Hebrew equivalent: tzedakah. Although the word actually means "righteousness," it also carries the connotation of justice. In other words, what is given to the poor and is accepted by the poor belongs to them by moral right! By right? What right? This is the way the ancient Rabbis tried to explain it: If poverty existed, it was society that was principally at fault, since it permitted the oppression of the poor and the weak. Such a condition was considered to be a violation of natural law, and the widespread practice of benevolence merely served as one form of atonement and amelioration. When the Psalmist sang: "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof," the principle of that right was clearly noted. The same principle was given the force of law by the Scriptural text: "Mine is the silver and mine is the gold, saith the Lord of Hosts." And, since, obviously, God gave the earth and "its fullness thereof" (its silver and its gold) only to the rich and to the powerful, the Sages deduced from that fact that God owed a material debt to the poor because they were left empty-handed, Accordingly, to have this debt repaid by the rich to the poor would constitute an act of "justice" and, therefore, of "righteousness."

Furthermore, they believed that when God gave wealth to the rich, he did not give it to them outright, nor did he do so to reward them for their actions or for any special merit. He merely gave it to them in trust for the poor! Thus the rich were only, so to speak, God's fiscal agents on earth for the poor. To extend tzedakah "with a full hand" to the poor, therefore, fulfilled its true inner meaning as an act of "righteousness." From this was developed the axiom that, if the rich were really honest and God-fearing, they would eagerly distribute the wealth they were holding in trust from God to God's innumerable creditors-the poor, the sick, the helpless, the needy, etc.

The Rabbinic teachers, who were men close to the people, argued that if this debt to the poor was not paid, thus being dishonestly withheld by "God's agents," then the poor, whenever they were driven to desperation by the wretchedness of their condition, had every right to raise their voices to Heaven in bitter complaint. Said Judah ben Simon (Palestine, fourth century): "The poor man sits and complains to God: 'Why am I different from the rich man? He sleeps in his bed, and I? I sleep here [in the street]!,,, Should the rich close their ears to this justified complaint then, warned the Rabbis, they sin in the gravest way against God and the natural law. "It is not written," they pointed out "the poor man," but "your brother," in order to show that both mean the same thing.

While the most advanced among the Rabbinic teachers had an indestructible faith in the compassionate impulses of the heart, they were at the same time also sober-minded men with a few illusions. Even if their teachings were trained on soaring objectives and were designed to awaken the slumbering conscience, nevertheless, their methods were firmly planted in reality. Consequently, they considered it wise to formalize the practice of benevolence as a religious obligation. Without the pressure of religious law, they realized, many ungenerous or unjust individuals might be tempted to conveniently avert their gaze from the unfortunate and the needy. Therefore, the warning of the second-century Mishnah Sage, Joshua ben Korha:

"He who turns his eyes away [from a needy person] is to be considered as a worshiper of idols!"

The Sages took the realistic view that, being what they were, human beings could not be expected to behave like the proverbial angels. In any design for ethical living, their frailties and contradictory drives had to be considered, and with more objectivity than harshness. This same view had to be applied even to the measure of righteous conduct (all too pitifully small) that was expected from the pious in their fulfillment of the ethical commandments and precepts of the Torah. True, the teachers of Jewish ethics felt it their duty always to point up the purest and the noblest possibilities in conduct to the individual. Yet they were not unmindful of the need of dangling before him the expectation of some concrete reward, whether the promise of prosperity in this life or the certainty of bliss in the World-to-Come. For in doing good, as in everything else, it did seem that men required incentives (even invisible and future ones).

There was also a reverse side to the problem of tzedakah. This will sound startling to Christians today who are unaware of the truth of the origins of Christianity, but Jews (and this also included Jesus and other early Jewish-Christians) believed that works of charity brought forgiveness of sins. Consequently, there were, and for that matter still are, people who gave charity out of the promptings of a guilty conscience. They regarded their acts of charity as placatory acts of expiation to God or as amends for the wrong they had done to their fellow men. This kind of giving was merely a new form for an older and more primitive practice: In Temple days, expiatory "sin-offerings" were brought constantly upon the altar; but when the sanctuary on Mount Zion lay in ruins, the Sages warned against the disasters which would overtake those who failed to help "God's needy."

The Jewish moralists also had to face the presence of the motive of vanity in many givers. Certain people derive a sense of power and pleasure from their ability to give to charity-publicly! Sadly, they are looking forward to the pathetically brief burst of applause it brings from their fellow men. Oddly enough, much of the time Jewish tradition treated such givers of charity "with charity". The rabbis did not always condemn them, nor did they moralize too much about their motives. On the contrary, they deliberately encouraged all giving, whatever the reason behind it! They understood well enough that people often act out of mixed, and sometimes contradictory, motives. What if an individual did perform a benevolent act out of some unworthy calculation? They saw nothing flagrantly wrong in any act so long as it led to good results. And to help the suffering and the needy was the greatest good that could be desired! For that reason, it was not difficult for a Talmudic Sage to state: "He who says, 'I am giving this money as charity in order that my sons may live,' or, 'I am giving this money that I may inherit Eternal Life,' such a man is to be considered as perfectly righteous." We only need to look to the 19th chapter of the Gospel of Matthew to confirm such teachings by Jesus as well.

The Sages were sound educational psychologists. They believed fervently in man's ability to improve. Doing good is a habit, they thought, a pattern of conduct which can become spontaneous after long and sustained practice. "Let a man ... perform good deeds, even if at first it is not for their own sake. In time, he will come to do them for their own sake." Again Jesus teaches us the same thing, for he said "where your treasure is...there is your heart also." The hidden meaning is that if we put our treasure where God instructs through discipline, even if our emotions tell us otherwise, then in time our hearts will follow our gifts and our motives will change and embrace that to which we give.

It should not come as a surprise, therefore, that on account of such indoctrination and conditioning by daily practice, there have always been an astonishingly large number of Jews devoted to works of benevolence for benevolence' sake alone. This attitude, characterized as "the purity of the intention," became early a powerful tradition in Jewish life, and it has endured down to our own time. The passionate brother-feeling and respect for the human personality was eloquently expressed in the apocryphal Testament of Issachar, a Hebrew work written, significantly enough, perhaps two centuries before Jesus: "If any man was in distress, I joined my sighs with his, I shared my bread with the poor . . . I loved the Lord; likewise also every man with all my heart."

Even the poor, for the same moral reasons, were expected to dispense charity to those equally poor or even poorer than themselves. There was also a practical reason for actively involving the poor in the miseries of their brethren. Following the large-scale massacres and persecutions during the Middle Ages and as late as the seventeenth century, there were few really rich Jews left in Europe. The word "wealth" became a relative term when used in the ghetto. It had almost an ironic connotation. A Jew was considered rich only by virtue of the fact that he was perhaps one degree or two less poor than the great mass of his pauperized fellow Jews! From a practical point of view, little reliance could be placed on the philanthropy of the small number of wealthy men who did exist. The poor, for the sake of their own survival, had to learn to help one another. The proverb, "The poor help the poor," acquired the bitter but heartening ring of truth. This is also, no doubt, one of the main reasons why the Talmudic teachers of morality translated the urgent need for the practice of mutual aid from the poor to the poor into a religious obligation.

The Babylonian Rabbinic jurist, Mar Zutra, rendered this legal opinion: "Even the poor man, who himself is supported by charity, should give charity to those who are in need." And should the poor man be so poor that he has absolutely nothing to give away, he is reminded that he still has the compassionate warmth of his heart left to offer his brother in distress. He is advised to say to him, speaking in the true spirit of tzedakah: "My brother, my heart goes out to you, but I have nothing to give you."

To enable even the poorest to help other poor, the Jews of latter-day Poland established an ingenious device. The communal authorities had a coinage of their own minted which they sold for coin of the realm to the pious. These were just crude bits of brass that were stamped with the Hebrew word "perutah." (In Talmudic times, the perutah was a coin of the smallest monetary value.) The Jew asking aid from his fellow Jews in Poland would be given a perutah from the charitable, and after he had accumulated a sufficient number of these trifling coins, he would present them to the gabbai (the treasurer of the Jewish community) for exchange into legal tender.

The Marranos of Portugal (intimidated converts to Catholicism who, nevertheless, stubbornly observed the Jewish religion in secret) had a poignant saying: "The name Jew is derived from the fact that we assist one another."

Perhaps the highest development in the ethical philosophy of benevolence and in the institutional forms of its practice occurred during the Rabbinic period in Judea. At that time, philanthropic activities had become so widespread, as well as urgently necessary for the Jews in the Roman Empire, that they even drew tribute from a Greek religious competitor of the Jews in Athens, the Christian missionary, Aristides Mareianus (c. 125). In his apologia for Christianity which he addressed to the Emperor Antoninus Pius, he observed about the Jews: "They have compassion on the poor; they release [ i.e. ransom] captives; they bury the dead; and they do other things similar to these such as are acceptable before God and also well pleasing to man."

Needless to say, the Jewish philosophy and practice of ma'asim tovim ("good works") were carried over into Christianity through the traditional Jewish teachings of Jesus and the evangelism of the Apostles.

The paramount importance given to works of benevolence by the Jewish religious teachers during the last centuries of the Second Commonwealth let loose a flood of self-injuring actions on the part of many of the generous and devout. The Sages, somewhat alarmed, then began to consider the inherent truth of the adage that too good is not good at all! A religions law to curb over-enthusiastic philanthropy seemed to be required for the protection of the kind-hearted against themselves. During the second century B.C.E. a moralist in the Book of Enoch warned: "If a man gives an alms of his heart-murmur [i.e., he gives at the point when he has nothing more to give but his heart-murmur], he commits a double sin: he ruins himself and his contribution."

About three hundred years later, following the bloody crushing of the revolt led by Bar Kochba against the Romans in Judea, an assembly of the foremost rabbis met in Galilee to consider the proper means of alleviating the widespread need and hunger among the people. It was finally resolved: "A man's benefactions should not exceed a fifth of all his possessions. . . . While the giving of charity is obligatory, it has its limits. If a man will give away all he possesses, he will only make a pauper of himself, and that is forbidden."

This ardent feeling for "doing good" overflowed narrow group loyalties to take in other than Jews. While it is true that, when the Jews were fragmentized as a people and dispersed with the ill winds of chance, Jewish charity was wholly designed to help Jews, for what Gentiles were there willing to help them? Nonetheless, Jewish ethical practices were never allowed to relax and to become parochial; they required that all needy non-Jews living among Jews had to receive benevolence equally with them. Charity knows neither race nor religion, advised the Talmud. It drew its authority for this view from the Torah: "God loves the stranger (Gentile). . . . Love ye also the stranger." Under Mishnaic as well as under Biblical law, the Gentile poor were to share with the Jewish poor in the gleanings of the harvest. They were to be given food, shelter, and clothing, when they required them. Their sick were to be visited, aided, and comforted. And when they died, they were to be given decent burial if there was no one of their own to perform this last act of human kindness for them.

In his book about the rites and ceremonies of the Jews, Rabbi Leone da Modena of early seventeenth-century Venice, states: ". . . they do upon all occasions help any object of charity, let him be what he will."

Beginning with the Middle Ages, Jewish charitable societies with wide-ranging fields of specialized welfare service made their appearance in the collective life of Jews everywhere. There was, and still is, no Jewish community in the world, however small, that has not always hummed like a beehive with benevolent projects of every imaginable kind. In the words of the Mishnah, with reference to the social setting of the period preceding the final national tragedy in 70 C.E., there existed in every community many organized societies which directed their efforts to "the practice of charity . . . hospitality to wayfarers, visiting the sick, dowering the brides, attending the dead to the grave . . ."

There also were societies for the care of orphans and the aged; for assisting widows; for waiting on expectant and new mothers before, during, and after childbirth, and engaging wet-nurses for ailing mothers; and for providing medical treatment and medicines for those unable to pay (in later centuries, such societies established hospitals and clinics). Other groups, in response to desperate situations, undertook to collect the unconscionable fines and levies that were constantly being demanded of Jewish communities by the Christian rulers and local municipal councils. Special organizations, at no small risk to themselves, were formed to succor the survivors of massacres and to give Jewish burial to those who had fallen, to give aid to refugees in flight, to extend plague, fire, and flood relief, to ransom captives, and to free slaves by purchase.

There were other specialized charitable societies devoted strictly to religious goals and ritual observance. They provided free mezuzot, Sabbath and Channukah candles, matzot and wine for Passover, oil (and in later ages, candles) for the illumination of synagogues, Houses of Study, and religious schools. There were societies in every community tirelessly working for the support of the educational institutions like the Talmud Torahs and yeshivot (institutes of higher learning), including those in the Holy Land.

Perhaps closest to the hearts of the devout in bygone times was the religious instruction of the young. This was motivated by the national resolve of the Jewish people, one that was continuous since the Rabbinic age, never to allow "the light of the Torah to be diminished" in Israel. To this end, too, there were groups which were exclusively dedicated to the buying (and keeping in repair) of religious works for the libraries of the Houses of Study and the yeshivot.

The voluntary collector of charity among Jews has been the most admired and, in some instances, also the most disliked or, more truly, feared, of individuals. Entering into the homes of the generous, no matter how poor, he always seemed a messenger of righteousness in the service of his unfortunate fellow men. To the miserly and the flint-hearted, on the other hand, he appeared like a specter and an unwelcome reminder of their guilty consciences.

With the bewildering number of charitable projects constantly in progress among Jews (and so many of them lying outside of official communal activities) the collectors of charity were faced with a staggering task. Because there were so many societies, dedicated to every imaginable kind of poor relief, the number of collectors was virtually legion. One might almost say that practically every Jew and his cousin was a collector for some charitable cause or another! Competition for a pitiful coin was keen. It is amazing that, considering the usually fantastic poverty of the Jewish masses, they were able so successfully to pursue their benevolent objectives in such a bewildering variety of directions. Despite the best intentions in the world and the most stringent of personal sacrifices, there simply were not enough coins to be collected from or to go around among the dwellers of the ghetto hovels!

Clearly, under such circumstances, the lot of a charity collector was an unenviable one. His solicitation of funds was marred by much unpleasantness; sometimes by humiliation or even abuse. Nonetheless, out of a holy dedication, the pious did not flinch from their tasks. The mere certainty that they were performing a mitzvah (a good deed on behalf of the needy) was a sufficient reward for their efforts. Perhaps it was to encourage the sensitive and the faint-hearted among collectors that a Sage of the Talmud offered these words of comfort with this prayerful hope for himself: "May my lot be cast among those who collect charity rather than among those who give it!"

Without any exaggeration, no sacrifice of pride or sensitivity was considered too great for the dedicated collector to make, providing it resulted in a donation. There is the story of a Chasidic tzaddik who once was reproached by his disciple who thought that the holy man was demeaning himself when he solicited a donation from a miserly man. The rabbi laughed, "My dear son," he asked with a wink, "if you want to milk a cow, don't you have to stoop a little?"

It is most engaging to discover that the charity collector's chore of "milking the cow" was valued in Jewish tradition as one of the most exalted forms of charity. Sometimes the role of the collector took on an astonishing character. It is recounted in the Talmud how Rabbi Zechariah, the son-in-law of the Sage, Joshua ben Levi, used to accept charity together with all the indigent. His neighbors were both shocked and amazed. Many muttered unkind words against him; they very well knew that he did not stand in need of public assistance. However, when Rabbi Zechariah died, it was discovered that not only had he not used for himself any of the charity money he had accepted, but he had distributed it secretly among those of the poor who were too proud to ask for public assistance. He had humbled himself in order to protect their pride.

However deeply furrowed may have been the field of benevolence in Jewish life by individual charity and by the semiofficial charity societies, the most effective work in poor-relief in other centuries was done then, just as it is today, by the Jewish community (the kahal) itself. Communal charity was already in existence in Mishnah times among the Jews in Judea, Syria, Babylonia, Egypt, Rome, Cyrenaica, and other far-off places. Each community had a fund called the kuppah which was supervised by financial overseers (gabbaim). These officials assessed the wealth (or lack of it) of every individual in the community, levying periodic proportionate tithings of 10 per cent of them in order to cover the needs of all public charitable and religious enterprises. No one was exempted from this taxation, not even the old and the sick, or the women and children.

It is touching to find, in Jewish writings of several centuries ago many bitter references to the overseers of charity and to the harsh methods they occasionally adopted; no doubt more often out of desperation than hard-heartedness-toward those unable to pay the communal tax. It sometimes happened that the most important household possessions, such as the Sabbath candlesticks, the silver Kiddush cup, or even the bedding, were "sequestered" by the kahal officials and held, so to speak, in "custody" so these officials could exert effective pressure for the payment of taxes in arrears. There are still extant folk songs in Yiddish which berate the communal bigwigs and tax-collectors for their unfeeling hearts toward the desperately poor.

There were a hundred different "voluntary" ways by which the hard-worked kuppah in the community could be replenished. There was no occasion, whether of rejoicing or of sorrowing, of good fortune or of had, when tzedakah was not collected. Contributions came from fond parents whose "cup [of joy] runneth over," as they celebrated the birth of a child. They gave at a circumcision party, at a Pidyon ha-Ben (the ceremony for the redemption of the first-born son), at a Bar Mitzvah, at a betrothal, at a wedding. The beginning of a hazardous journey was prayerfully marked by a donation as was the safe arrival at journey's end. Whenever an individual or any member of his family emerged alive from sickness, an epidemic, or a pogrom, he made a charity donation during the service of thanksgiving with the congregation. Even when a man had a dream and woke up safe and sound, he often celebrated his joy at being alive with a contribution to the charity fund.

Other sources of revenue for charity were the not unsubstantial "honors" conferred at services in the synagogue on the Sabbath and on holy days during the reading of the Torah. These honors were auctioned off to the highest bidders among the worshipers, and the money accruing from them was dedicated to the alleviation of human misery and to the various religious institutions and enterprises of the community.

Then, too, for a variety of reasons, there were charity collections on feast days and on fast days. Yahrzeit (the annual memorial day for departed loved ones) was another occasion. Even during week days, and without any specific reason, some congregates would drop coins into the charity-box as they left the synagogue at the conclusion of the prayer service. Often there were several charity-boxes serving several purposes. For example, in the synagogue at Mantua, Italy, in 1630, the worshipers were confronted by the imperious demands of seven separate charity-boxes: one each for the Holy Land, for burial purposes, for the care of the sick and the aged, for dowries for poor brides, for relief of the needy, for the support of the Talmud Torah, and for the redemption of captives.

A memorable line from The Song of Songs, although it referred merely to a lover's devotion, became most fittingly the motto of Jewish collectors of charity in their tireless labors: "I sleep, but my heart waketh."

What if an individual was so penurious that he would not make any donation at all, as so frequently happened? That was, indeed, a bitter pill for the kindhearted to swallow.

The following folk story illustrates what the folk-Jew thought of the illimitable resources of giving after there was nothing more to give.

When an orphan asylum was in danger of closing down because it lacked a certain sum of money, the rabbi of the community urgently implored the richest man in town to make up the deficit. But the wealthy man promptly refused. "I will sell you my share in Paradise if only you will give me the money," pleaded the rabbi out of desperation. The rich man was delighted with the "bargain" and gave him the money. And so the orphan asylum was saved, but the collector was without his portion of bliss in the World-to-Come. The rabbi's disciples were aghast when they heard of his "deal." They remonstrated with him: "Oh, Rabbi! how could you do a thing like that since you, a holy man was sure to enter Paradise!" The rabbi replied: "Twice each day I repeat in my prayers: `Love thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy possessions. My sons, I'm only a poor man. What are 'the possessions' with which I can serve God? All that I possess is my share in Paradise, and to serve God's children, the orphans, I am ready to part with even that."

The teachers of Jewish ethics placed great emphasis not only on the need for giving charity, but also on how to give and how not to give. The delicacy of feeling shown for the unfortunate and the needy, which was a powerful tradition among Jews since Maccabean times, is mirrored in the Rabbinic concern to protect the receivers of charity against the possible arrogance and vulgarity of some of their "benefactors."

The Sages decreed that no act of charity had any religious merit if it was unaccompanied by compassion for a fellow creature in distress. The Talmud makes this point abundantly clear, time and time again, citing numerous Rabbinic opinions and reflections on it. "Even if one speaks only a single kind word to comfort the poor and those who are in distress, he has given in true charity indeed." What did the Torah have to say on the subject? "Because of this compassionate word, God will bless you!" However, "compassion" always was more than a mere word to upright Jews. It represented part of their way of life. "Soils of Compassionate Fathers" is one traditional name Jews have called themselves collectively.

The subject of how not to give received equally exhaustive treatment in the Talmud. "A man may give charity lavishly, yet, because he gives without brotherly love, he wounds the hearts of the poor," gloomily observed one Disciple of the Wise. Of what use, in a moral sense, were such benefactions? The somber conclusion was that they were worthless since they never even acquired the true character of ordinary charity; that is, they were devoid of all righteousness and justice! However, observed the Rabbis consoling, "A man may give only a little, but if the sentiment of the heart goes along with it, both he and his giving are blessed, indeed!"

The Sages also took severely to task those who give publicly and ostentatiously to an unfortunate person in order to direct flattering attention to themselves, for the net result is that then they succeed only in humiliating and degrading the object of their "generosity." The Talmud relates how a Rabbi once saw a man give a zuz (a small silver coin) with a munificent gesture to a needy person. The Rabbi rebuked the donor: "Far better if you had given him nothing at all than that the whole world should watch you hand him alms! See what you have done with your charity! You have humiliated the poor man with it!"

With the insensitive among the rich in mind, the Talmud suggested a supplementary prayer for daily recitation: "O God, grant that we may not have to ask help from others. Let not our sustenance depend on their bounty, for though their benevolence is small, the shame they inflict is indeed great." And so, in order to protect the sensitive and the proud, the Rabbis decreed: "A benefaction to the poor must be made privately, with no one else present."

It is recorded that Rabbi Abba was in the habit of helping the proud poor in a singular way. He would tie some money in a kerchief and then proceed to "lose" it in the vicinity of the needy person he wished to help. Mar Ukba, another religious luminary of ancient Babylonia, was careful to slip, unobserved, the sum of four zuzim under the door of a poor neighbor each day. This "technique" of giving became a continuous tradition in Jewish life. It is told of Rabbi Elimelech of Lizhensk, the Chasidic tzaddik of eighteenth-century Galicia, how he would disguise himself as a peasant and would dump a load of firewood, a bag of flour, or a sack of potatoes before a needy widow's door. He would then make good his departure before he could be questioned about it.

The Sages summed up their praise for anonymous giving, thus: "He who gives charity in secret is as great as Moses."

But the requirements of communal benevolence in the more complicated Palestinian society during the third century C.E. led Chiyya bar Abba to counsel: "The best way to give charity is to deposit the money in the collection box. In this way, the giver does not know whom he gives, nor does the poor man know who the giver is."

However severely the miserly or ostentatious givers of tzedakah were lectured by the Rabbis, the characterless takers of charity were not spared either. Censorious sounds the Shulchan Aruch, the sixteenth-century code of Jewish law:

"One should always avoid accepting charity and rather roll in misery than depend upon the help of others. And thus our Sages commanded: 'Rather turn your Sabbath into a weekday than be dependent on others.' "

I close this article by including the Eight Degrees of Tzedakah as enumerated by Moses Maimonides as recorded in his Mishneh Torah.

What you need to know: Ascending Order Of Righteous (Kal v'omer)

- The person who gives reluctantly and with regret.
- The person who gives graciously, but less than one should.
- The person who gives what one should, but only after being asked.
- The person who gives before being asked.
- The person who gives without knowing to whom one gives, although the recipient knows the identity of the donor.
- The person who gives without making one's identity known.
- The person who gives without knowing to whom one gives. The recipient does not know from whom he receives.
- The person who helps another to support oneself by a gift or a loan or by finding employment for that person, thus helping that person to become self-supporting.

Things to remember:

- The dignity of the poor must always be respected.
- Helping people to help themselves is the greatest form of tzedakah.

THE TORAH INSTRUCTS US CONCERNING "RIGHTEOUS" GIVING

We learned, if you read some of the previous articles, of the Hebrew concept of "Tzekakah." If you have not read this article yet you need to do so before continuing in this study.

Adopting a more Biblical life-style often means learning and exploring moral issues that before I would have ignored. One of the most important concepts in the Bible is Charity, called Tzedakah in Hebrew. You may not be aware of this but every child of God is obligated according to the Jewish Scripture and the Bible Yeshua used to give between 10% and 20% of his income.

Answer for yourself: But to whom? This is the $64.000 question.

This article is my attempt to answer this question with halakhic guidelines, with the goal of assisting myself and others in making sure that our giving of alms and our tithes is in obedience to the Word of God.

TO WHOM TO GIVE? THE COMMON APPROACH

Answer for yourself: How do most of us give charity?

If you're like me, you receive dozens of requests, pleas, and sad stories in the mail, and when one of them finally manipulates you out of your complacency, and you haphazardly give $30 here, $100 here, $50 there. You have no overall plan for how you give. Tzekakah (understood as active righteousness), is a concept so important to God that He give His people a plan. Believe it or not God commands that we do not give to certain needs. Let us see why.

In the Sh'ma (Deut. 6:4...), we are directed to love Ha'Shem with all our might or "possessions." Giving the right amount of charity means nothing or is even harmful if we do not direct it well. When the poor are not properly supported, they risk death; when education is not supported properly, it also risks death. It also shows a lack of respect to property when money is given away so whimsically.

TO WHOM TO GIVE? TESTING THE WATERS

Answer for yourself: Our question then becomes to whom does the Torah (the Bible used by Yeshua) tell us to give charity?

My American "egalitarian" background speaks to giving to the random homeless person on the street, and equally to both Jews and Gentile. My initial investigation into Biblical and Jewish sources supported this view. Regarding giving equally to Jew and Gentile alike, I found:

- "A Jew should give charity to poor non-Jews." --Rambam, Mishneh Torah
- "Poor Gentiles should be supported along with poor Jews; the Gentile sick should be visited along with the Jewish sick; and their dead should be buried along with the Jewish dead, in order to further peaceful relations." --Gittin 61a

- "The poor of all nations must be supported like poor Israelites, for the sake of peace." --Kitzur Shulhan Arukh

Although these excerpts might lead one to believe there is an equal obligation to Jew and Non-Jew, there is not!

Giving charity to a non-Jew is under a completely different category than giving to a Jew, namely, for the purpose of "darkei shalom" (keeping peace with our neighbors). Giving for the purpose of keeping peace with our neighbors became necessary in the Diaspora to prevent persecution by Gentiles. This is not comparable to the Torah obligation requiring saving/helping our Jewish brethren.

It still seems a little strange in that every man was one of God's creatures whom we must try to save (at Pesach Jews wept for the Egyptians who died in the Red Sea!). But it is an issue of priorities.

TO WHOM TO GIVE? THE TORAH'S PRIORITIES...SHOULD THEY NOT BE OURS AS WELL?

Below is my effort to produce a concise list summarizing many of the halachic decisions regarding the priority with which "Maaser" (the Tithe) should be given. All the people below refer to Jews, and where not stated, assumes all other properties are equal. Food, I believe, refers to any life saving cure and clothing to any semi-basic item that is not exclusively life saving.

- A person's own essential needs have greater priority than anyone else's, where essential needs are minimum food, shelter, and clothing (Rabbi Yaakov -- Tur, written in the name of Rabbi Saadiah Goan).
- Within a category a Woman always takes precedence over a Man, a Torah Scholar over a Non-Scholar (Yoreh De'ah 251:9).
- Redeeming captives (pidyon shevuyim) has the highest priority. This refers to paying a ransom amount (or perhaps a bribe) when someone is kidnapped or wrongly imprisoned. Your wife has higher priority than you in being redeemed, and you greater than your Rebbe or Father (Yoreh De'ah 252). Prisoners in civilized countries also qualify (Rabbi Moshe Feinstein).
- Based on lineage, the order of priority is Kohen, Levi (teacher/musician), People of Israel, then Convert (Shulchan Aruch -- Horayut 13.a, Yoreh De'ah 251:9)
- A person who needs food has a greater priority than one who needs clothing (Yoreh De'ah 251:7).
- Scholarship is more important than lineage, and a Mamzer Torah Scholar has priority over an ignorant Kohen Gadol. A Torah Scholar who needs clothing has greater priority over a Non-Torah Scholar who needs food (Rema -- Horayut 13a, Yoreh De'ah 251:9). [Please notice the importance given to attaining Biblical knowledge for blessing].
- Relatives only have priority over others in the event there is no Imminent Danger to Life (HaRav Unterman, Former Chief Ashkenazic Rabbi of Israel). When there is Imminent Danger to Life, priority is not given to Relatives but to Lineage and Torah Scholarship (Talmud -- Horayut 13a).
- A Relative's or a Rebbe's (teacher's) needs are greater than anyone else's needs (Matanot Aniyim 7:13). [Should we not support those who teach the truth of God's Word before we support those in other nations?]
- Based on relationships/geography, the order of priority is Parents, Children, Brothers, Other Relatives, Neighbors, Locals, and then Other Non-Locals (Yoreh De'ah 251:3). [Should we not support with out giving our parents before we support strangers?]

- Brothers on the father's side precede those on the mother's side and the poor of Israel before the poor of other towns (Rema -- Yoreh De'ah 251:3).
- The poor of Jerusalem have precedence over all other towns in Eretz Israel (Rabbi Moshe Sofer, Responsa Chatham Sofer 233, 234).
- Today the poor of Old and New Jerusalem have the status of citizens of Jerusalem (Rabbi S.Z. Auerbach)
- A Relative has priority over all persons (Ramban -- Matanot Aniym 7:13). The poor Relatives take priority even over the local poor who have greater needs (Panim Yafot, Deuteronomy, Parashat Re'eh, also cited by Responsa Chatam Sofer, Yoreh De'ah 231).
- Non-Locals who need Food have greater priority than Locals who need clothing (Sifre, Baal HaFla, Chofetz Chayim, Chatam Sofer).
- A Neighbor must refer to one with whom there has been a personal relationship, not to just a spatial Residential Proximity (Rema -- Chosen Mishpat 253:29).
- In order of priority, your House, Parents, Brothers and Sisters, Relatives, Neighbors, and those who live on the Same Street (Midrash Tana Devei Eliyahu Ch. 27).

From this I learn that the term Neighbor refers to two different people: a Friend (emotionally a Neighbor), and someone who lives nearby (geographically a Neighbor), with the first having greater priority. Additionally, we see that your entire household has priority over your Parents. The exception seems to be Maintaining Children. Maaser money may not be used for the purpose of Maintaining Children, who are dependent, unmarried, and live with their parents (Rabbi Moshe Feinstein, Maaser Kesafim p. 100).

- The needs on one who previously extended graciousness to a person has priority even over the request of a Torah Scholar who is a stranger (HaGoan Rav Yitzchok Hutner -- Pachad Yitzchok; Rosh HaShannah -Maamar 3:1).

This seems to be putting friends above Torah Scholars who are strangers, and can be resolved by breaking Torah Scholars and Neighbors each into two categories: Torah Scholars into those who are Known and Unknown; and Neighbors into those who are friends and those who live nearby. The priority for these four groups would then be: Known Torah Scholars, Friends, Unknown Torah Scholars, and then Geographical Neighbors.

- If there are no other funds available to him, a child not only has a halachic permission to utilize his charity funds to support his Parents but is under a mandatory obligation (Chatam Sofer of Pressburg). However, it is humiliating to the child to have to use charity funds to support Parents (Rabbi Yaakov -- Tur, written in the name of Rabbi Saadiah Goan).

HOW MUCH TO GIVE: THE TORAH'S PRIORITIES

Below are some guidelines summarizing how much Maaser [that portion of the Tithe destined for the poor] should be given, to each category, assuming of course that there is a need. If there is no need in a particular category, Maaser should be given to the next lower level.

- One should not give all one's charity funds to only one poor person (Yoreh De'ah 257:9).
- Though a large percentage may be given to a poor Relative or to a Rebbe, it is best to give to other charities, other poor people, including support of Yeshivot (HaGaon R. Moshe -- Iggerot Mosheh, Yoreh De'ah I, Responsum 144).
- When one category has precedence over another, something must be left for the lower category (Rabbi Yechiel Michal Epstein).
- Only one half of the Maaser should be used for a Relative. Allocate a larger portion to poor of Relatives, than to non-Relatives, other categories of priority should be treated in the same way (Chatham Sofer Responsum 231).

- An individual is not obliged to provide all the needs of a poor person but he should give publicity to his situation in the community (R. Moshe Isserles)

The major aim of the institution of Maaser Kesafim was to help Torah Scholars and therefore a person should endeavor to use at least half of his Maaser for this purpose, provided the needs of his Relatives have been met (Chafetz Chayim -- Ahavath Chessed, ch. 19).

The proverbial Maaser Monkey Wrench: the importance of a priority list applies only to Charity Administrators, and an Individual Donor has the right to divide his Maaser as he chooses among those entitled to receive charity (Rabbi Moshe Feinstein).

Regardless of whether this is the case or now, I respectfully believe this should not affect our behavior, and a priority list should still be used when deciding to which Charities to give. The fact is that most Charities give their funds to a particular cause, and are not made up of Charity Administrators who support every facet and need of Am Israel. Therefore, the Individual Donor should insure that his Maaser is being used more properly by still taking into account the priorities of each charities you give to. Further, as we see above, one is obligated to support one's parents from his Maaser fund, in necessary, and so in truth the Individual Donor cannot give away his Maaser to anyone he chooses among those entitled to receive charity.

TO WHOM TO GIVE: THE NON-JEWS

"In our day when taxes must be paid to the government and these taxes are often withheld from one's wages, it must be surmised that one's 'income' is the amount that a person is left with after taxes." -- Rabbi Hayim Halevy Donin, To Be a Jew

After an in-depth study, I have concluded that in the United State approximately 30% of our income goes to the government, and perhaps one third of government's spending is on charitable activities, such as Medicare, Medicaid, welfare, social security, and education. As a result, the approximately 98% Non-Jewish population is receiving approximately 10% of our pretax income. As a result, I believe that we are giving enough to the Non-Jewish population. In an age when we are giving much of our money to Non-Jewish cases such as Easter Seals, Save the Whales, Good Will, etc., perhaps out of guilt or desire to assimilate, I think it is important to realize that the Non-Jewish community is receiving quite a lot. If you look at your taxes as a way to provide charity and peace to the nation and between Jew and Non-Jew, you should be happier about paying them! The conclusion arrived at is that the non-Jewish people are receiving through our taxes sufficient amounts from our taxes in support of the poor, the Jewish poor are not. Thus we should emphasize with our giving the blessing of the Jewish people.

WHAT ABOUT MY CHURCH OR SYNAGOGUE?

It is generally agreed that Maaser [poor Tithe] may not be used to cover an obligations of a church or synagogue that is NOT for "necessities of life". As a result most offerings and donations "over and above the poor Tithe" are to be used for essential needs of the church and synagogue like salaries, lighting, rent, etc., and Maaser [poor Tithe] and Festival Tithe money was not to be used.

TO WHOM TO GIVE: A SUMMARY

For the most part, you are allowed to give your Poor Tithe to whomever you want -- to whom you give charity to is not legal but rather moral (with the exception of supporting a Parent). Still it is better to give according to priority, and balance the way you give. Torah Scholars should receiving approximately half [remember that although they received the tithe 2 years out of 6, they received smaller amounts every year as well as God calls groups them with the stranger, widows, and orphans in Scripture], and other categories the remaining amount according to priority and then need. When there is an issue of saving a Life, all priority must be given to that. In fact, the 10% minimum no longer becomes valid, as the community can assess each individual whatever he can afford, without limit, to save the life.

The most praiseworthy type of giving charity is to set a fellow man, both Jew and non-Jew on his feet so that he does not require charitable aid nor need to ask for it (Yoreh De'ah, 249:1). Therefore one should insure that his children have a profession, and that his parents have a realistic retirement plan.

THE BIBLICAL TITHE...HAVE WE BEEN TAUGHT TO OBEY IT CORRECTLY?

"Ma'aser" is the Hebrew word for the tithe. A tenth part of agricultural produce or livestock which was "holy to the Lord" (Lev. 27:30-32). The Bible specifies various percentages of the crop that the farmer must allocate in accordance with given criteria as a religious offering to particular individuals. The custom of tithing is of ancient origin, as Abraham gave a voluntary tithe to Melchisedek (Gen. 14:18-20; cf.28:22). As part of the commandments "dependent on the Land [of Israel]," these tithing regulations are only applicable to produce grown there (Kid. 1.9). Such laws applied to the first six years of the seven-year cycle during which crops were grown; no tithes were given in the seventh SABBATICAL year (shemittah) during which the fields had to remain fallow. If you were not a farmer you were not expected to "tithe" but yet you were obligated to support and care for the poor as such conduct can be shown to be connected with receiving Eternal Life (more on that when dealing with other articles).

Initially, the farmer was required to give terumah (a "heave offering" or contribution) to the PRIEST (Ex. 29:28; Num. 18:8). There is no specification as to which particular priest must receive the terumah, and the decision as to whom it should be given was left to the farmer. Regarding the quantity involved, biblical law requires only that terumah be given and does not mention any minimal amount. Thus, the sages declared that giving "a single ear of wheat is enough to exempt an entire barn." By Rabbinic decree, however, terumah had to be no less than 1/60 of a farmer's crop: according to the Mishnah (Ter. 4.3), the average person gave 1/50, while generous people would give 1/40. The relevant laws are discussed in tractate TERUMOT of the Mishnah, Tosefta, and Jerusalem Talmud. In the absence of Temple and the absence of animal sacrifice, this commandment does not apply at this time.

Each year, after the separation of terumah, the farmer had to set aside one-tenth of his crop for the LEVITES as the regular "first tithe," ma'aser rishon (Num. 18:21,24). Which Levite actually received this first tithe was left to the farmer's discretion. Since the Levites, unlike the other tribes, were not given agricultural land of their own but lived in cities, the tithe enabled them to subsist and discharge their primary function - - teaching Torah to all Israel. Tractate MA'ASEROT of the Mishnah and Jerusalem Talmud (known as Ma'aser Rishon in the Tosefta) indicates the rules for this tithe. Today, since we do not have actual "Levites" and are without the Temple or Tabernacle, we have only "functional Levites" who are primary "teachers" of the people of G-d. Thus, this "Each Year Levitical 10% Tithe" would not apply as it once did, but will be reinstated once the Temple is rebuilt! Thus, Bet Emet has not chosen to teach this "commandment" at binding in this time due to the absence of "functional Levites" which attend to the ministry of the Temple.

The Levites were required to give one-tenth of the tithes they received, or one percent of the original crop, to the priests (again we do not have functioning priests without a Temple and this commandment does not apply at this time). This allocation was known as "a tithe of the tithe" (ma'aser min ha-ma'aser, Num. 18:26), or terumat ma'aser (Bik. 2.5). According to the Talmud (Yev. 86b), when EZRA returned to Erets (land) Israel from Babylonia, he found that the Levites had mostly not heeded the call to join the other returning exiles. In response, Ezra penalized the Levites by allowing the Israelites to give their first tithe to the priests, who were also descended from the tribe of Levi. Some have interpreted this talmudic passage to mean that the Israelites were actually required to give their first tithe to priests, and to withhold it from the Levites. This situation prevailed throughout the period of the Second Temple.

In the first, second, fourth, and fifth years of the seven-year shemittah cycle, the farmer had to set aside one-tenth of his remaining crop as the "second tithe," ma'aser sheni. This produce had either to be brought to Jerusalem and eaten there, or, if that was too difficult, it could be sold and the money used to buy food which had to be eaten in Jerusalem (Deut. 14:22-26). Thus the "SECOND TITHE" is often called the "FESTIVAL TITHE." The law of the second tithe enabled Israelites who "went up" to Jerusalem for the three PILGRIMAGE FESTIVALS (Passover, Pentecost, Tabernacles) to maintain themselves during their stay in the city. Detailed regulations concerning this tithe are to be found in tractate MA'ASER SHENI of the Mishnah, Tosefta, and Jerusalem Talmud. This "SECOND TITHE-FESTIVAL TITHE", the tithe of animals (Lev. 27:32) was, according to the rabbis, also consumed in Jerusalem and shared again with the LEVITES.

Let us summarize; we have the FIRST TITHE given yearly to support the Levite, the SECOND TITHE given 4 out of 6 years for the observance and celebration of the FESTIVALS.

In the third and sixth years of the shemittah cycle, the "POOR MAN'S TITHE" (ma'aser ani) replaced the normal second tithe of Deut. 14:28-29, 26:12. Since the FESTIVAL TITHE was not collected during the 3rd and 6th year, this 10% was moved to help the poor. This would mean one would have to allot from funds collected over 4 years sufficient amounts to celebrate the Festivals for "ALL" of the seven years. This "POOR TITHE" which was collected for 2 years out of 6 had to be distributed to the LEVITES (considered "poor" since he had no inheritance in the land), to the WIDOWS, ORPHANS, SICK, LAME, BLIND, GENTILE SOJOURNERS, ETC., but a cash equivalent might be given instead of the actual produce or animals..

So you see that in the days of the Temple the LEVITE-TEACHER received not only 10% from the LEVITICAL TITHE, but also "some" of the SECOND-FESTIVAL TITHE as well as "some" of the THIRD-POOR MAN'S TITHE. Thus, the TEACHER received support 6 out of 7 years from the people of G-d because of his dedication to both Torah and the people of Yahweh. In the seventh year, the fields were laid rest and what grew on its own from seedlings was again the heritage of the poor which included the LEVITE once again.

In order to summarize what I feel is quite complicated given its many variables, we see that over a six year period when some received yearly (the teaching Levite) and some did not, that THREE CATEGORIES surface from our study: LEVITES, FESTIVALS, and the POOR. Bet Emet Ministries, having tried to simplify this for worshippers today, and in light of the absence of the Temple and Tabernacle, has chosen to allot THREE CATEGORIES OVER SIX YEARS as applicable for today again in light of the absence of the Temple and a sacrificing Priesthood and Levitical ministry. Study of your Bibles will show you our responsibility to care for our teachers, worship the LORD through the Festivals, and take care of the poor.

Notice carefully, "un-tithed produce or animals", known as "tevel", might not be eaten until the appropriate tithes had been separated. Failure to take care of our responsibilities to our anointed teachers, failure to worship according to the PATTERN in the Bible before Yahweh our LORD through the Festivals, and failure to care for the poor, yet taking their "allotment" and using it for our own needs what every they be is considered ROBBERY BEFORE GOD! The talmudic sages feared that an unlearned person, called the AM HA-ARETS (Biblically ignorant children of G-d who knew not the commandments of G-d), might only give terumah and not the remaining tithes. They therefore ruled that any "suspect" produce bought from such a farmer also had to be tithed.

While these various laws were no longer observed by Jews living in the Diaspora (outside the land of Israel) after the destruction of the Second Temple, Rabbinic law still requires the tithing of produce grown in Erets Israel. Accordingly, some observant Israelis separate a very small amount from produce they have bought from other Jews, recite a prescribed benediction and then destroy this terumah. According to a formula devised by R.

Avraham Yeshayahu Karelitz, however, the different tithes are merged. Slightly more than one percent of the produce is set aside and its sanctity is then transferred to a specially reserved coin. Since tithes are no longer allocated to priests and Levites but may be fed to animals, those taken at source (e.g., by major food distributors and cooperatives) are sent to the different zoos in Israel. Processed Israeli foodstuffs exported abroad are usually tithed by the rabbinate, that endorses these products as religiously fit (kosher). Raw fruit and vegetables, however, are not necessarily tithed before export.

Two notable effects of the tithing system in ancient Israel were an emphasis of Jerusalem and the Temple as focal points of the Jewish religion and an aroused awareness that generous consideration had to be given to the less fortunate. Even today, a legacy of the terumah and ma'aser regulations may be seen in the symbolic allocation of up to one-tenth of one's income for the purpose of charitable donations.

Answer for yourself: Now having read this for yourself, does your actions and conduct in this area line up more with what is written in the Jewish Scriptures, the Word of God, or with you denominational guidelines, and would you call it sin since you and your church do not obey these Scriptures, in fact most likely violate them Sunday after Sunday? Something to think about; I guarantee you God does.

In closing, allocation of your tithes to areas other than the support of the teacher, observance and worshipful celebration of the seven Festivals of the Lord and care of the widows, orphans, sick, lame, and blind, etc., is a perversion of Yahweh's truth, and such brings the CURSE, defined accurately and Biblically as a loss of Godly blessings now and in this time as well as the world to come. But many will say "I am blessed;" I would only ask you this: "If you began to become obedient in this area, whereas you are not now, then should you expect more blessings from God let alone worship Him in Spirit and in Truth to a greater degree; and is that not what it is all about?" I hope this has been informative to you and you will begin to pattern your worship of the LORD in your tithes and offerings accordingly as stated in the Bible and not by denominational or non-denominational traditions which violate such truths. If your church will not allocate the money collected in this fashion then don't give to them for such is an "accessory" to robbery. Allocate your tithe accordingly. Such brings the Kingdom of God to others and your failure to do accordingly deprives others of God love...in a practical way. Shalom.

COULD WE BE UNDER A CURSE IF WE GIVE THE TITHE TO OUR CHURCH...AND NOT KNOW IT?

Answer for yourself: Do you know the difference between the "half-shekel tax" and the "tithe" and how they are to be used according to the Jewish Scriptures? If you are like most Christians today the answer is a resounding "no"!

Answer for yourself: Is it possible to tithe to your church Sunday after Sunday and G-d allow the curse of Malachi 3 to overtake you because the Church does not use the funds collected in the manner commanded by Scripture, and in such giving you become an accessory to the robbery of G-d?

Before you dismiss the above two questions as "foolish" I warn you not to do so.

Answer for yourself: Blessing is relevant. We all think and say we are "blessed," but have you ever wondered how much less of G-d you have in your life and in the life of your family because of sins of omission and ignorance?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible to learn where we have made mistakes and repent, whereby our conduct and behavior in an area like tithing, will bring the Scriptural blessings we read about but seldom experience? I believe the answer is "yes."

GIVING MONEY TO THE CHURCH: THE TITHE, THE HALF-SHEKEL TAX, AND THE CURSE OF MALACHI 3

Answer for yourself: Do you love God and do you connect your love of God with obedience of His Word? Then if you do then this article will awaken you to realities that the Church has never taught or shown you.

It gives me much pleasure to deal with a topic in this article that is not only widely misunderstood in Christianity today, but neglected by almost all churches. In this article you will quickly come to understand why. The tragic fact of the matter is that since we neglect or misunderstand the commandment in Exodus 30:11-16 concerning the "half-shekel" offering that allows for the financing of the Tabernacle, Temple, ministries and churches, we take erroneously from the Tithe delegated funds and misappropriate them in supporting such ministries and churches instead of righteously overseeing that they be used correctly as willed and commanded by God in the Holy Scripture. Let us investigate the matter at length in hopes that new understanding will lead to repentance in both our belief-system and our obedience and conduct in such matters before God and man.

THE HALF-SHEKEL TAX/OFFERING

Exodus chapter 19 records for us the events connected with Israel at Sinai and chapter 20 records for us the giving of the Ten Commandments. These "Ten" are better understood at ten "categories" from which all 613 commandments originate. The "ten" categories serve only as groupings whereby related commandments are grouped for better and more complete understanding. Along with the first four commandments deal with worship:

Exod 20:1 (KJV) And God spake all these words, saying, 2 I [am] the LORD thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. {bondage: Heb. servants} 3 Thou shalt have no other gods before me. 4 Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness [of any thing] that [is] in heaven above, or that [is] in the earth beneath, or that [is] in the water under the earth: 5 Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God [am] a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth [generation] of them that hate me; 6 And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments. 7 Thou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain; for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain. 8 Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. 9 Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work: 10 But the seventh day [is] the sabbath of the LORD thy God: [in it] thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that [is] within thy gates: 11 For [in] six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them [is], and rested the seventh day: wherefore the LORD blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.

The worship of God had to be organized and regulated by a pattern that would ensure its continuance to subsequent generations without change or deletion as when first given and commanded by God. To help this goal be realized God commanded that Israel build a Tabernacle that would both house God's Presence as well as serve as a teaching example for His correct worship, thus providing a pattern of worship for all time because God is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow. Beginning with Exodus chapter 25 God begins to command Israel to build the ark of the covenant, the table of showbread, the golden candlesticks, as well as the tabernacle itself. Exodus chapter 30 records for us that God "provides the remedy before the wound" in that He instructs His people concerning the financing of such ministry.

THE CONNECTION BETWEEN ATONEMENT AND RIGHTEOUS GIVING

Answer for yourself: Have you ever noticed where Jesus in the New Testament connects receiving Eternal Life with the giving of alms to the poor and were you aware that such "alms" comes from the proper giving of one's tithe?

Answer for yourself: If one does not tithe correctly, or is instructed by their Pastor or Church to do it wrong, then what effect does that have upon receiving Eternal Life?

Answer for yourself: Could "atonement" that is connected with the proper giving of the tithe be a part in one receiving Eternal Life?

These are dynamite questions!

Uniquely tied to the financing of organized worship of God is the concept of atonement for idolatry and false worship. The Rabbis instruct us that such "remedy" and "atonement" was provided before the actual sin of idolatry in the worship of the golden calf in Exodus 30. God's mercy and forgiveness was provided to Israel in giving them a way of providing atonement for their souls because of idolatry and false worship connected with the golden calf through the financing and promulgation of "true worship" by supporting organized Tabernacle worship with the half-shekel tax.

But you probably say that you are not in need of atonement for false worship or idolatry in your life. Oh brother and sister, how little you truly know if you are not an intense student of Scripture, the history and origin of Christianity, or the original language of the Bible for there is not one who attends contemporary Christian churches to whom this does not apply. "Not so", you might say; well such an answer betrays one's lack of serious study in these areas. I would challenge you to study this our for yourself as I diligently have for fifteen years and then the answer become very apparent. You only have to attend the Catholic church or ascribe to many of the doctrines taught in the Protestant churches today to be guilty of idolatry, and amazingly so, without your slightest awareness. More on that later, please keep reading.

Let us examine Exodus chapter 30 in detail:

Exod 30:11 (KJS) And the LORD <3068> spake <1696> (8762) unto Moses <4872>, saying <559> (8800), 12 When thou takest <5375> (8799) the sum <7218> of the children <1121> of Israel <3478> after their number <6485> (8803), then shall they give <5414> (8804) every man <376> a ransom <3724> for his soul <5315> unto the LORD <3068>, when thou numberest <6485> (8800) them; that there be no plague <5063> among them, when [thou] numberest <6485> (8800) them. {their number: Heb. them that are to be numbered} 13 This they shall give <5414> (8799), every one that passeth <5674> (8802) among <5921> them that are numbered <6485> (8803), half <4276> a shekel <8255> after the shekel <8255> of the sanctuary <6944>: (a shekel <8255> [is] twenty <6242> gerahs <1626>:) an half <4276> shekel <8255> [shall be] the offering <8641> of the LORD <3068>. 14 Every one that passeth <5674> (8802) among them that are numbered <6485> (8803), from twenty <6242> years <8141> old <1121> and above <4605>, shall give <5414> (8799) an offering <8641> unto the LORD <3068>. 15 The rich <6223> shall not give more <7235> (8686), and the poor <1800> shall not give less <4591> (8686) than half <4276> a shekel <8255>, when [they] give <5414> (8800) an offering <8641> unto the LORD <3068>, to make an atonement <3722> (8763) for your souls <5315>. {give more: Heb. multiply} {give less: Heb. diminish} 16 And thou shalt take <3947> (8804) the atonement <3725> money <3701> of the children <1121> of Israel <3478>, and shalt appoint <5414> (8804) it for the service <5656> of the tabernacle <168> of the congregation <4150>; that it may be a memorial <2146> unto the children <1121> of Israel <3478> before <6440> the LORD <3068>, to make an atonement <3722> (8763) for your souls <5315>.

Exodus chapter 30 records for us a census of everyone twenty years and above, for it would be these people who would worship the golden calf and commit idolatry, thus sealing their fate. Through the census they are enrolled to die in the wilderness. But notice the mercy of God "Everyone who is included in the census must pay a half-shekel . . . everyone of twenty years or more. . . The rich shall not give more, and the poor shall not give less, than the half-shekel (Exodus 30:14-15). In the days of Jesus the half-shekel offering amounted to about 88 cents, but before you get ecstatic, please understand the expenses involved in the running of the Temple, when divided by the number of men over the age of twenty, averaged only 88 cents. This unbelievably small figure attests to the fact that there was only "one Temple in town" as well as the enormously large population within the nation itself. This does not apply to us today in the same way, for in every city there are hundreds of religious institutions and churches, and if the "budget" of each church were to be divided by the male membership over the age of twenty I can assure you the amounts would be staggeringly high; so high in fact, that because of the proliferation of disunity as seen in Christianity today with over 22,000 different denominations, very few churches could support themselves and keep their doors open if they adhered to and obeyed this commandment and didn't rob from God the Tithe to make up the shortfall.. Let us keep reading.

Because of false worship and idolatry the children of Israel twenty years of age and older who participated in the false worship of the golden calf are sealed to die in the wilderness, but their sins could be forgiven if they repented of idolatry and brought a sin-offering in the form of a half-shekel that would atone for their sins of false worship of God. Once enlightened to the truth, they were no longer to contribute and support false worship and false religion in any form or fashion, but instead, turn 180 degrees and begin to support and propagate Biblical truths, thus turning their backs upon the religious traditions of men that made the Word of God of none effect and which can be exposed as error when compared with Biblical fact and not fiction. Simply said, they were to no longer follow lies and false worship when discovered, but repent and contribute to the spreading of Biblical truths and no longer support financially religious errors. This is a real urgent message for the Christian Church today which considers itself infallible and incapable of error, when just a little concentrated study by those seeking truth will expose multitudes of doctrinal errors and false worship when compared and contrasted with Scripture.

The problem is that too few study the ancient documents which reveal the errors when engrafted among Biblical truth. Too many study relatively recent materials from the Reformation onward, but if the mistakes were made long before in the second or third century, then they will never discover it unless they look for the earliest deviation from the faith of Jesus as it was handed down throughout history. They only reinforce error after error, not realize the inception of the original error. Instead of showing ourselves students of God's Word, whereby we rightly divide and interpret God's Word correctly (historically, culturally, politically, linguistically), multitudes sit in churches Biblically illiterate and ignorant of Biblical truth. They only covet what they hear repeated Sunday after Sunday, and when questioned about their beliefs and how their beliefs often contradict Scripture, they too easily pass such challenges off as the pursuits of heretics. How sadly they are wrong!

Again the support of churches and ministries which teach truth and not more erroneous traditions concerning more "golden calves" are to be supported by the half-shekel offering and NOT THE TITHE! If such religious institutions and churches teach provable Biblical errors they should not be supported at all!

Let me reiterate, nowhere does the Bible teach that churches, church budgets, or ministries are to be supported through the Tithe! Yet, that was my experience for most of my life in the contemporary American Christian Church, and most likely, it is yours as well. Support of ministries from the Tithe is called "ROBBERY" by God in the Book of Malachi.

What we fail to take into consideration is that "atonement" is connected to our faithful support of Biblical truth through offerings over and above the Tithe. Using the Tithe in place of the "half-shekel" offering does not bring the desired atonement according to Holy Scripture!

Supporting of institutions who uncompromisingly teach the truth of Scripture through offerings above the Tithe secures for the giver "ransom for his soul," since most likely we all have at one time or the other participated in neo-paganism done in Jesus' name or been involved in idolatry whether we knew it then or not. Thus the major importance in understanding this commandment and practicing it correctly in our lives.

Let us look at the Hebrew word for "ransom":

Lexicon Hebrew 3724 03724 kopher {ko'-fer} from 03722; TWOT - 1025b; n m AV - ransom 8, satisfaction 2, bribe 2, camphire 2, pitch 1, sum of money 1, village 1; 17

- 1) price of a life, ransom, bribe
- 2) asphalt, pitch (as a covering)
- 3) the henna plant, name of a plant (henna?)
- 4) village

The root word is:

Lexicon Hebrew 3722 03722 kaphar {kaw-far'} a primitive root; TWOT - 1023,1024,1025,1026; v AV - atonement 71, purge 7, reconciliation 4, reconcile 3, forgive 3, purge away 2, pacify 2, atonement...made 2, merciful 2, cleansed 1, disannulled 1, appease 1, put off 1, pardon 1, pitch 1; 1) to cover, purge, make an atonement, make reconciliation, cover over with pitch

- 1a) (Qal) to coat or cover with pitch

- 1b) (Piel)
- 1b1) to cover over, pacify, propitiate
- 1b2) to cover over, atone for sin, make atonement for
- 1b3) to cover over, atone for sin and persons by legal rites
- 1c) (Pual)
- 1c1) to be covered over
- 1c2) to make atonement for
- 1d) (Hithpael) to be covered

God's mercy is seen in providing you and I a means of atoning for past times where we participated in false worship by giving us a way whereby we can today make reconciliation with God because of our false worship. Literally we pacify His wrath over the idolatry we practiced. Notice carefully that this half-shekel atonement money is for atonement for sins done in rites and ceremonies that are considered as Law; literally what we do or once did thinking that it was both desired and commanded by God. It is through supporting churches and ministries, not with the Tithe but with the half-shekel offering over and above the tithe, that we literally cleans ourselves before God of past idolatries and receive the mercy of God; thus bringing reconciliation with God in these regards.

Further evidence is demonstrated that the offering we are to bring consists of a contribution of money as seen below when looking at the Hebrew word used in the verse for "offering."

Lexicon Hebrew 8641 08641 teruwmah {ter-oo-maw'} or terumah (Deut 12:11) {ter-oo-maw'} from 07311; TWOT - 2133i; n f AV - offering 51, oblation 19, heave 4, gifts 1, offered 1; 76

- 1) contribution, offering
- 1a) a heave offering
- 1b) any offering
- 1c) an offering to God
- 1d) an offering (of grain, money, etc)
- 1e) contribution

Notice also that this offering is to be used specifically for the "service" of the ministry of the congregation, regardless whether it was for the Tabernacle back then or churches today. The Hebrew word used for "service" is as follows:

Lexicon Hebrew 4150 04150 mow`ed {mo-ade'} or mo`ed {mo-ade'} or (fem.) mow`adah (2 Chr 8:13) {mo-aw-daw'} from 03259; TWOT - 878b; n m AV - congregation 150, feast 23, season 13, appointed 12, time 12, assembly 4, solemnity 4, solemn 2, days 1, sign 1, synagogues 1; 223

- 1) appointed place, appointed time, meeting
- 1a) appointed time
- 1a1) appointed time (general)
- 1a2) sacred season, set feast, appointed season
- 1b) appointed meeting
- 1c) appointed place
- 1d) appointed sign or signal
- 1e) tent of meeting

Notice carefully that the half-shekel offering was given by the congregation at an appointed place and at an appointed time; all of which took place around their meeting together.

The root word for "service" in the Hebrew is even more descriptive:

Lexicon Hebrew 3259 03259 ya`ad {yaw-ad'} a primitive root; TWOT - 878; v AV - meet 7, together 5, assemble

4, appointed 3, set 3, time 2, betrothed 2, agreed 1, appointment 1, gather 1; 29

- 1) to fix, appoint, assemble, meet, set, betroth
- 1a) (Qal) to appoint, assign, designate
- 1b) (Niphal)
- 1b1) to meet
- 1b2) to meet by appointment
- 1b3) to gather, assemble by appointment
- 1c) (Hiphil) to cause to meet
- 1d) (Hophal) to be set, be placed before, be fixed

Again, we see conclusively, that the half-shekel offering over and above the Tithe supported the meeting and assembling of the congregation for service unto the LORD. It covered not only the "place" where they met, but all expenses related to their "services." Notice carefully that this "atonement offering for their previous false worship" was to be placed before something or someone. It is not too hard to figure that it was placed before God as a sign of their repentance and atonement for past idolatries.

It is this "atonement" and "ransom for our souls" for past idolatries that serves as a "memorial" in behalf of the repentant before the LORD. Look at the Hebrew word for "memorial."

Lexicon Hebrew 2146 02146 zikrown {zik-rone'} from 02142; TWOT - 551b; n m AV - memorial 17, remembrance 6, records 1; 24

- 1) memorial, reminder, remembrance

The root word is:

Lexicon Hebrew 2142 02142 zakar {zaw-kar'} a primitive root; TWOT - 551; v AV - remember 172, mention 21, remembrance 10, recorder 9, mindful 6, think 3, bring to remembrance 2, record 2, misc 8; 233

- 1) to remember, recall, call to mind
- 1a) (Qal) to remember, recall
- 1b) (Niphal) to be brought to remembrance, be remembered, be thought of, be brought to mind
- 1c) (Hiphil)
- 1c1) to cause to remember, remind
- 1c2) to cause to be remembered, keep in remembrance
- 1c3) to mention
- 1c4) to record
- 1c5) to make a memorial, make remembrance

When we begin to Tithe correctly, and then take upon ourselves the commandment of the half-shekel offering to support true Biblical ministries which teach the "narrow way, then we bring ourselves before God for His remembrance of both our repentance and love for Him and His truth. Each time we support true ministries from offerings over and above the Tithe we cause God to remember our total dedication to His Word which we both hold, propagate, and finance as our responsibility before our brothers and sisters whom are still embedded in false teachings and man-made traditions that look religious, but when exposed to the light of Yahweh's Holy Torah, are full of dead men's bones.

Lastly notice that all were to support the going forth of the truths of God's Word equally. No one was to give more or less than the other. This ensures that the rich will not dominate the poor in the church, thus reinforcing that God is not a respecter of persons, and neither should Pastors or Preachers. Oh how God hates cliques in churches, those because of influence, power, or money have the "inside tract" with the Pastors, where the "blue color worker" is shunned for his inability to contribute more than the next person of higher social status. I have seen this game played first hand by the best of them when I Pastored full-time in the Metroplex of Dallas where the wealthy abound. But so do the widows.

As you can now clearly see, the Bible does not allow for support of ministry through the Tithe, but only through offerings above the Tithe.

Only part of your Tithe goes to support the "teacher," for those who labor hard in word and doctrine are worthy of double honor ("money" in Greek-thus we are not to muzzle the ox that treads out the grain and spiritual truths for the rest of us); but NEVER should the Tithe or part of the Tithe go to finance and support the ministry, the church, or the church's budget and expenses. That is relegated to offerings over and above the Tithe.

Lastly, this will be shocking to most Pastors and Preachers today, but women are exempt from the support of the Tabernacle, Temple, or Church according to Jewish Law. That means that no longer will widows have to give money to the church to buy God's favor as they have been erroneously told. Too often when Pastoring I encountered widows with children or unmarried women with children who struggled to eat and clothe themselves because they had been told that they would be robbing from God if they didn't give to the church. This abomination and false teaching is incorrect on two fronts: 1) women are exempt from supporting ministries based upon the example that women in Israel were exempt from giving to the Temple and Tabernacle in the form of the half-shekel offering, and 2) the Tithe is NEVER to be given to a religious institution to further ministry in any form whatsoever! However, women are still required to support with part of her Tithe the minister, the celebration of the Festivals and Sabbaths throughout the year, as well as support the poor, other widows, orphans, sick, etc.

In addition to the half-shekel offering, imposed annually on rich and poor alike for the maintenance of the Tabernacle and Temple and the Church, the citizens had to provide for the maintenance of the support of the poor, the Levites (teachers), and the celebration of Biblical Festivals and Sabbath. This much neglected teaching is responsible for making multitudes of good people guilty of "robbing God in Tithes and Offerings" for they contribute their Tithe moneys to religious institutions which do not place their gifts and offerings in the commanded and designated places required by God in Scripture. Again the traditions of men and your church have taken the place of the Bible and few are aware of this tragic sin because of their lack of Biblical knowledge. Thus, by default, being told they "rob God" if they don't give to the Church, in harsh reality, they "rob God" by giving to those religious institution which use their Tithe to run the Church instead of adhering to the half-shekel offering above the Tithe for support of the Church.

- Don't be guilty of robbing God by failing to place your Tithe in those places where Yahweh (God) has placed His name in Scripture as approved places where blessings can come from such obedience in giving.
- Likewise, don't be guilty of robbing God of your offerings as well as failing to support financially ministries that expose error and false worship with your offerings over and above the Tithe.

The paradox is ironic, but regretfully, our failure in obedience in both the Tithe and Half-shekel offerings are sin before God of the highest order for it brings the curse of Malachi 3 upon us And the supreme tragedy is that the curse comes because we trusted others to give for us according to the Scriptures (whether we knew them correctly or not...our spiritual leaders surely should). But in reality our Tithes and offerings above the Tithe are misrepresented and misapplied by those we trust; namely our Pastors and Preachers who use the funds we give to whatever pressing need they desire (regardless of Scripture). This is all done behind closed doors and with the assent of the multitudes with closed minds who are unknowing of God's commandments in these regards.

May God forgive us for our lack of study of His Word where these concepts can be discovered and adhered to by those concerned about obeying God more than men, thus ensuring the worship of our Father in Heaven in Spirit and in Truth, and not in the traditions of your church which again makes the Word of God of non-effect!

IF YOU WON'T BELIEVE ME-WILL YOU BELIEVE THE PROPHET HAGGAI?

A striking illustration of the results of selfishly withholding the half-shekel offering from the cause of God was given in the days of the prophet Haggai. After their return from the captivity in Babylon, the Jews undertook to rebuild the temple of the Lord; but meeting determined opposition from their enemies, they discontinued the work (quit contributing the half-shekel offering along with free will offerings since they were starting from scratch); and a severe drought, by which they were reduced to actual want, convinced them that it was impossible to complete the building of the temple.

"The time is not come," they said, "the time that the Lord's house should be built." But a message was sent them by the Lord's prophet: "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your paneled houses, and this house lie waste (God's house)? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts; Consider your ways. Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat, but ye have not enough; ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you, but there is none warm; and he that earneth wages, earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes." Haggai 1:2-6.

And then the reason is given: "Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home, I did blow upon it. SOUND FAMILIAR? Why? saith the Lord of hosts. Because of Mine house that is waste, and ye run every man unto his own house. Parallels must be made! The commandments of God concerning His House lie in waste while mankind runs to their own traditions! Look at the tragic results that come from not obeying the Word of God but relying on men's traditions instead..."Therefore the heaven over you is stayed from dew, and the earth is stayed from her fruit. And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the new wine, and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon cattle, and upon all the labor of the hands." Verses 9-12.

"When one came to a heap of twenty measures, there were but ten: when one came to the pressfat for to draw out fifty vessels out of the press, there were but twenty. I smote you with blasting and with mildew and with hail in all the labors of your hands." Haggai 2:16, 19.

Having already experienced God's curse for not giving and building God's house correctly and roused by these warnings, the people set themselves to build the house of God and build it correctly with God's blessings. Then the word of the Lord came to them: "Consider now from this day and upward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, even from the day that the foundation of the Lord's temple was laid, . . . from this day will I bless you." Verses 18, 19.

Today although God's House (the Church) is anything but laid waste as we examine the architectural monuments chiseled from marble built with the multiple Tithes belonging to the widows, the orphans, the sick, lame, and blind, there is no doubt that the Houses of God today suffer from a greater waste than in the days of Haggai the prophet. The Church today suffers from a famine of the Word of the Living God and lies in waste...devoid of many truths, which when adhered to will bring the supernatural blessings of God to our lives to which we are content to live without; continually blaming the Devil for blocking our blessing. The blame should be placed upon teachers of God's Word who are not capable of handling their positions and who have not prepared themselves adequately before God for such a high call.

We are warned to "CONSIDER OUR WAYS." It would do you well to begin to study the Bible as you never had to see if these things be so.

Let us not fail to learn from the example set for us by the people of Haggai's day who heard a message of correction and heeded it. Let us set ourselves to build the House of God correctly, properly giving offerings over and above the Tithe to support the Church where each male member over twenty years of age contributes monthly or yearly the same in order to finance the ministry. This will encourage the church to live within the budge of its congregation, and some may even be forced to close its doors. But don't loose heart, the home church is where it all started and the New Testament informs us that from such an environment all the world heard the Word of God; yet we are told today that with the multitude of mega-churches that we haven't enough satellites, radio and TV stations to reach the globe yet. Something is desperately wrong with the methods we have chosen to accomplish such a grand task.

Answer for yourself: Is God holding back His blessing because of our disobedience?

Answer for yourself: Are you tired of making excuses why many things don't work in the Spirit realm anymore? This was very embarrassing to me when in full time ministry when having to explain to the people why what they read in the Bibles about giving and blessings, for example, was not happening in their lives.

The answer is that we are robbing God of His Tithes and offerings as revealed in this article. It is obvious to the critical Bible student that our obedience is lacking in many areas, of which the Tithe and half-shekel offering are only the beginning.

Often I, having the same questions, would ask my spiritual authorities why what we are reading in the Bible was not our experience. Too often the same answer was given...."we lack faith." Dear Christian, it is not faith we lack...but OBEDIENCE! We failed to "CONSIDER OUR WAYS;" but I pray you won't let this courageous teaching be set upon a shelf somewhere to collect dust, and fail to CONSIDER YOUR WAYS in light of what you have just learned. Remember, it was only when the people of Haggai's day began to give correctly [both in Tithes and half-shekel offerings] and build the House of God CORRECTLY that God said "from this day will I bless you." What day? The day they began to give correctly!

There is only one thing for the "thinking Christian" to do; verify what I have taught you by your own Scriptural and Historical analysis, repent, ask for forgiveness before God, and begin to Tithe correctly and bring your support of Biblical Truth in the form of the half-shekel offering to those who dare courageously to preach the truth when is unpopular to do so in our religious society today. If you desire to learn the truth from religious fiction, I sincerely invite you to inquire as to how you may obtain more teachings that will ensure your life will be more Biblically correct and more pleasing to the God you love. Remember Jesus said "why do you say you love me and not obey me?"

Answer for yourself: Are we? May God bless you and yours. Shalom.

WHAT SHOULD WE GIVE TO OUR CHURCH? THE TITHE "OR" THE HALF-SHEKEL OFFERING & WHICH IS SIN AND BRINGS THE CURSE OF MALACHI 3 TO YOU AND YOUR FAMILY?

It gives me much pleasure to deal with a topic in this article that is not only widely misunderstood in Christianity today, but neglected by almost all churches. In this article you will quickly come to understand why. The tragic fact of the matter is that since we neglect or misunderstand the commandment in Exodus 30:11-16 concerning the "half-shekel" offering that allows for the financing of ministries and churches, we take erroneously from the Tithe delegated funds and misappropriate them in supporting such ministries and churches instead of righteously overseeing that they be used correctly as willed and commanded by God in the Holy Scripture. Let us investigate the matter at length in hopes that new understanding will lead to repentance in both our belief-system and our obedience and conduct in such matters before God and man.

THE HALF-SHEKEL OFFERING

Exodus chapter 19 records for us the events connected with Israel at Sinai and chapter 20 records for us the giving of the Ten Commandments. These "Ten" are better understood at ten "categories" from which all 613 commandments originate. The "ten" categories serve only as groupings whereby related commandments are grouped for better and more complete understanding. Along with the first four commandments deal with worship:

Exod 20:1 (KJS) And God spake all these words, saying, 2 I [am] the L-RD thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. {bondage: Heb. servants} 3 Thou shalt have no other gods before me. 4 Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness [of any thing] that [is] in heaven above, or that [is] in the earth beneath, or that [is] in the water under the earth: 5 Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them; for I the L-RD thy God [am] a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth [generation] of them that hate me; 6 And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me, and keep my commandments. 7 Thou shalt not take the name of the L-RD thy God in vain; for the L-RD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain. 8 Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. 9 Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work: 10 But the seventh day [is] the sabbath of the L-RD thy God: [in it] thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that [is] within thy gates: 11 For [in] six days the L-RD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them [is], and rested the seventh day: wherefore the L-RD blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it.

The worship of God had to be organized and regulated by a pattern that would ensure its continuance to subsequent generations without change or deletion as when first given and commanded by God. To help this goal be realized God commanded that Israel build a Tabernacle that would both house God's Presence as well as serve as a teaching example for His correct worship, thus providing a pattern of worship for all time because God is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow. Beginning with Exodus chapter 25 God begins to command Israel to build the ark of the covenant, the table of showbread, the golden candlesticks, as well as the tabernacle itself. Exodus chapter 30 records for us that God "provides the remedy before the wound" in that He instructs His people concerning the financing of such ministry.

Uniquely tied to the financing of organized worship of God is the concept of atonement for idolatry and false worship. The Rabbis instruct us that such "remedy" and "atonement" was provided before the actual sin of idolatry in the worship of the golden calf in Exodus 30. God's mercy and forgiveness was provided to Israel in giving them a way of providing atonement for their souls because of idolatry and false worship connected with the golden calf through the financing and promulgation of "true worship" by supporting organized Tabernacle worship with the half-shekel tax.

But you probably say that you are not in need of atonement for false worship or idolatry in your life. Oh brother and sister, how little you truly know if you are not a study of Scripture, History, or the Original Language of the Bible for there is not one who attends contemporary Christian churches to whom this does not apply. Not so, well study for yourself as I diligently have for fifteen years and the answer is very apparent. You only have to attend the Catholic church or ascribe to many of the doctrines taught in the Protestant churches today to be guilty of idolatry, and amazingly so, without your slightest awareness. More on that later, please keep reading.

Let us examine Exodus chapter 30 in detail:

Exod 30:11 (KJS) And the L-RD <3068> spake <1696> (8762) unto Moses <4872>, saying <559> (8800), 12 When thou takest <5375> (8799) the sum <7218> of the children <1121> of Israel <3478> after their number <6485> (8803), then shall they give <5414> (8804) every man <376> a ransom <3724> for his soul <5315> unto the L-RD <3068>, when thou numberest <6485> (8800) them; that there be no plague <5063> among them, when [thou] numberest <6485> (8800) them. {their number: Heb. them that are to be numbered} 13 This they shall give <5414> (8799), every one that passeth <5674> (8802) among <5921> them that are numbered <6485> (8803), half <4276> a shekel <8255> after the shekel <8255> of the sanctuary <6944>: (a shekel <8255> [is] twenty <6242> gerahs <1626>:) an half <4276> shekel <8255> [shall be] the offering <8641> of the L-RD <3068>. 14 Every one that passeth <5674> (8802) among them that are numbered <6485> (8803), from twenty <6242> years <8141> old <1121> and above <4605>, shall give <5414> (8799) an offering <8641> unto the L-RD <3068>. 15 The rich <6223> shall not give more <7235> (8686), and the poor <1800> shall not give less <4591> (8686) than half <4276> a shekel <8255>, when [they] give <5414> (8800) an offering <8641> unto the L-RD <3068>, to make an atonement <3722> (8763) for your souls <5315>. {give more: Heb. multiply} {give less: Heb. diminish} 16 And thou shalt take <3947> (8804) the atonement <3725> money <3701> of the children <1121> of Israel <3478>, and shalt appoint <5414> (8804) it for the service <5656> of the tabernacle <168> of the congregation <4150>; that it may be a memorial <2146> unto the children <1121> of Israel <3478> before <6440> the L-RD <3068>, to make an atonement <3722> (8763) for your souls <5315>.

Exodus chapter 30 records for us a census of everyone twenty years and above, for it would be these people who would worship the golden calf and commit idolatry, thus sealing their fate. Through the census they are enrolled to die in the wilderness. But notice the mercy of God "Everyone who is included in the census must pay a half-shekel . . . everyone of twenty years or more. . . The rich shall not give more, and the poor shall not give less, than the half-shekel (Exodus 30:14-15). In the days of Yeshua the half-shekel offering amounted to about 88 cents, but before you get ecstatic, please understand the expenses involved in the running of the Temple, when divided by the number of men over the age of twenty, averaged only 88 cents. This unbelievably small figure attests to the fact that there was only "one Temple in town" as well as the enormously large population within the nation itself. This does not apply to us today in the same way, for in every city there are hundreds of religious institutions and churches, and if the "budget" of each church were to be divided by the male membership over the age of twenty I can assure you the amounts would be staggeringly high; so high in fact, that because of the proliferation of disunity as seen in Christianity today with over 22,000 different denominations, very few churches could support themselves and keep their doors open if they adhered to and obeyed this commandment and didn't rob from God the Tithe to make up the shortfall.. Let us keep reading.

Because of false worship and idolatry the children of Israel twenty years of age and older who participated in the false worship of the golden calf are sealed to die in the wilderness, but their sins could be forgiven if they repented of idolatry and brought a sin-offering in the form of a half-shekel that would atone for their sins of false worship of God. Once enlightened to the truth, they were no longer to contribute and support false worship and false religion in any form or fashion, but instead, turn 180 degrees and begin to support and propagate Biblical truths, thus turning their backs upon the religious traditions of men that made the Word of God of none effect and which can be exposed as error when compared with Biblical fact and not fiction. Simply said, they were to no longer follow lies and false worship when discovered, but repent and contribute to the spreading of Biblical truths and no longer support financially religious errors. This is a real urgent message for the Christian Church today which considers itself infallible and incapable of error, when just a little concentrated study by those seeking truth will expose multitudes of doctrinal errors and false worship when compared and contrasted with Scripture. The problem is that too few study the ancient documents which reveal the errors when ingrafted among Biblical truth. Too many study relatively recent materials from the Reformation onward, but if the mistakes were made long before in the second or third century, then they will never discover it unless they look for the earliest deviation from the faith of Yeshua as it was handed down throughout history. They only reinforce error after error, not realize the inception of the original error. Instead of showing ourselves students of God's Word, whereby we rightly divide and interpret God's Word correctly (historically, culturally, politically, linguistically), multitudes sit in churches Biblically illiterate and ignorant of Biblical truth. They only covet what they hear repeated Sunday after Sunday, and when questioned about their beliefs and how their beliefs often contradict Scripture, they too easily pass such challenges of as the pursuits of heretics. How sadly they are wrong!

Again the support of churches and ministries which teach truth and not more erroneous traditions concerning more "golden calves" are to be supported by the half-shekel offering and NOT THE TITHE! If such religious institutions and churches teach provable Biblical errors they should not be supported at all!

Let me reiterate, nowhere does the Bible teach that churches, church budgets, or ministries are to be supported through the Tithe! Yet, that was my experience for most of my life in the contemporary American Christian Church, and most likely, it is yours as well. Support of ministries from the Tithe is called "ROBBERY" by God in the Book of Malachi.

What we fail to take into consideration is that "atonement" is connected to our faithful support of Biblical truth though offerings over and above the Tithe. Using the Tithe in place of the "half-shekel" offering does not bring the desired atonement according to Holy Scripture!

Supporting of institutions who uncompromising teach the truth of Scripture through offerings above the Tithe secures for the giver "ransom for his soul," since most likely we all have at one time or the other participated in neo-paganism done in Yeshua's name or been involved in idolatry whether we knew it then or not. Thus the major importance in understanding this commandment and practicing it correctly in our lives.

Let us look at the Hebrew word for "ransom":

Lexicon Hebrew 3724

03724 kopher {ko'-fer} from 03722; TWOT - 1025b; n m AV - ransom 8, satisfaction 2, bribe 2, camphire 2, pitch 1, sum of money 1, village 1; 17

- 1) price of a life, ransom, bribe
- 2) asphalt, pitch (as a covering)
- 3) the henna plant, name of a plant (henna?)
- 4) village

The root word is:

Lexicon Hebrew 3722 03722 kaphar {kaw-far'} a primitive root; TWOT - 1023,1024,1025,1026; v AV - atonement 71, purge 7, reconciliation 4, reconcile 3, forgive 3, purge away 2, pacify 2, atonement...made 2, merciful 2, cleansed 1, disannulled 1, appease 1, put off 1, pardon 1, pitch 1; 1) to cover, purge, make an atonement, make reconciliation, cover over with pitch

- 1a) (Qal) to coat or cover with pitch
- 1b) (Piel)
- 1b1) to cover over, pacify, propitiate
- 1b2) to cover over, atone for sin, make atonement for
- 1b3) to cover over, atone for sin and persons by legal rites
- 1c) (Pual)
- 1c1) to be covered over
- 1c2) to make atonement for
- 1d) (Hithpael) to be covered

God's mercy is seen in providing you and I a means of atoning for past times where we participated in false worship by giving us a way whereby we can today make reconciliation with God because of our false worship.

Literally we pacify His wrath over the idolatry we practiced. Notice carefully that this half-shekel atonement money is for atonement for sins done in rites and ceremonies that are considered as Law; literally what we do or once did thinking that it was both desired and commanded by God. It is through supporting churches and ministries, not with the Tithe but with the half-shekel offering over and above the tithe, that we literally cleans ourselves before God of past idolatries and receive the mercy of God; thus bringing reconciliation with God in these regards.

Further evidence is demonstrated that the offering we are to bring consists of a contribution of money as seen below when looking at the Hebrew word used in the verse for "offering."

Lexicon Hebrew 8641

08641 t@ruwmah {ter-oo-maw'} or t@rumah (Deut 12:11) {ter-oo-maw'} from 07311; TWOT - 2133i; n f AV - offering 51, oblation 19, heave 4, gifts 1, offered 1; 76

- 1) contribution, offering
- 1a) a heave offering
- 1b) any offering
- 1c) an offering to God
- 1d) an offering (of grain, money, etc)
- 1e) contribution

Notice also that this offering is to be used specifically for the "service" of the ministry of the congregation, regardless whether it was for the Tabernacle back then or churches today. The Hebrew word used for "service" is as follows:

Lexicon Hebrew 4150 04150 mow`ed {mo-ade'} or mo`ed {mo-ade'} or (fem.) mow`adah 2 Chr 8:13) {mo-aw-daw'} from 03259; TWOT - 878b; n m AV - congregation 150, feast 23, season 13, appointed 12, time 12, assembly 4, solemnity 4, solemn 2, days 1, sign 1, synagogues 1; 223

- 1) appointed place, appointed time, meeting
- 1a) appointed time
- 1a1) appointed time (general)
- 1a2) sacred season, set feast, appointed season
- 1b) appointed meeting
- 1c) appointed place
- 1d) appointed sign or signal
- 1e) tent of meeting

Notice carefully that the half-shekel offering was given by the congregation at an appointed place and at an appointed time; all of which took place around their meeting together.

The root word for "service" in the Hebrew is even more descriptive:

Lexicon Hebrew 3259 03259 ya`ad {yaw-ad'} a primitive root; TWOT - 878; v AV - meet 7, together 5, assemble 4, appointed 3, set 3, time 2, betrothed 2, agreed 1, appointment 1, gather 1; 29

- 1) to fix, appoint, assemble, meet, set, betroth
- 1a) (Qal) to appoint, assign, designate
- 1b) (Niphal)
- 1b1) to meet
- 1b2) to meet by appointment
- 1b3) to gather, assemble by appointment
- 1c) (Hiphil) to cause to meet
- 1d) (Hophal) to be set, be placed before, be fixed

Again, we see conclusively, that the half-shekel offering over and above the Tithe & supported the meeting and assembling of the congregation for service unto the L-RD. It covered not only the "place" where they met, but all expenses related to their "services." Notice carefully that this "atonement offering for their previous false worship" was to be placed before something or someone. It is not too hard to figure that it was placed before God as a sign of their repentance and atonement for past idolatries.

It is this "atonement" and "ransom for our souls" for past idolatries that serves as a "memorial" in behalf of the repentant before the L-RD.

Look at the Hebrew word for "memorial."

Lexicon Hebrew 2146 02146 zikrown {zik-rone'} from 02142; TWOT - 551b; n m AV - memorial 17, remembrance 6, records 1; 24

- 1) memorial, reminder, remembrance

The root word is:

Lexicon Hebrew 2142

02142 zakar {zaw-kar'} a primitive root; TWOT - 551; v AV - remember 172, mention 21, remembrance 10, recorder 9, mindful 6, think 3, bring to remembrance 2, record 2, misc 8; 233

- 1) to remember, recall, call to mind
- 1a) (Qal) to remember, recall
- 1b) (Niphal) to be brought to remembrance, be remembered, be thought of, be brought to mind
- 1c) (Hiphil)
- 1c1) to cause to remember, remind
- 1c2) to cause to be remembered, keep in remembrance
- 1c3) to mention
- 1c4) to record
- 1c5) to make a memorial, make remembrance

When we begin to Tithe correctly, and then take upon ourselves the commandment of the half-shekel offering to support true Biblical ministries which teach the "narrow way, then we bring ourselves before God for His remembrance of both our repentance and love for Him and His truth. Each time we support true ministries from offerings over and above the Tithe we cause God to remember our total dedication to His Word which we both hold, propagate, and finance as our responsibility before our brothers and sisters whom are still embedded in false teachings and man-made traditions that look religious, but when exposed to the light of Yahweh's Holy Torah, are full of dead men's bones.

Lastly notice that all were to support the going forth of the truths of God's Word equally. No one was to give more or less than the other. This ensures that the rich will not dominate the poor in the church, thus reinforcing that God is not a respecter of persons, and neither should Pastors or Preachers. Oh how God hates clique in churches, those because of influence, power, or money have the "inside tract" with the Pastors, where the "blue color worker" is shunned for his inability to contribute more than the next person of higher social status. I have seen this game played first hand by the best of them when I Pastored full-time in the Metroplex.

As you can now clearly see, the Bible does not allow for support of ministry through the Tithe, but only through offerings above the Tithe. Only part of your Tithe goes to support the "minister," for those who labor hard in word and doctrine are worthy of double honor (money in Greek-thus we are not to muzzle the ox that treads out the grain and spiritual truths for the rest of us); but never should the Tithe or part of the Tithe go to finance and support the ministry, the church, or the church's budget and expenses. That is relegated to offerings over and above the Tithe.

Lastly, this will be shocking to most Pastors and Preachers today, but women are exempt from the support of the Tabernacle, Temple, or Church according to Jewish Law. That means that no longer will widows have to give money to the church to buy God's favor as they have been erroneously told. Too often when Pastoring I encountered widows with children or unmarried women with children who struggled to eat and clothe themselves because they had been told that they would be robbing from God if they didn't give to the church. This abomination and false teaching is incorrect on two fronts: 1) women are exempt from supporting ministries based upon the example that women in Israel were exempt from giving to the Temple and Tabernacle in the form of the half-shekel offering, and 2) the Tithe is NEVER to be given to a religious institution to further ministry in any form whatsoever! However, women are still required to support with part of her Tithe the minister, the celebration of the Festivals and Sabbaths throughout the year, as well as support the poor, other widows, orphans, sick, etc.

In addition to the half-shekel offering, imposed annually on rich and poor alike for the maintenance of the Tabernacle and Temple and the Church, the citizens had to provide for the maintenance of the support of the poor, the Levites (teachers), and the celebration of Biblical Festivals and Sabbath. This much neglected teaching is responsible for making multitudes of good people guilty of "robbing God in Tithes and Offerings" for they contribute their Tithe moneys to religious institutions which do not place their gifts and offerings in the commanded and designated places required by God in Scripture. Again the traditions of men and you church have taken the place of the Bible and few are aware of this tragic sin because of their lack of Biblical knowledge.

Thus, by default, being told they "rob God" if they don't give to the Church, in harsh reality, they "rob God" by giving to those religious institution which use their Tithe to run the Church instead of adhering to the half-shekel offering above the Tithe for support of the Church.

Don't be guilty of robbing God by failing to place your Tithe in those places where Yahweh (God) has placed His name in Scripture as approved places where blessings can come from such obedience in giving. Likewise, don't be guilty of robbing God of your offerings as well as failing to support financially ministries that expose error and false worship with your offerings over and above the Tithe. The paradox is ironic, but regretfully, our failure in obedience in both the Tithe and Half-shekel offerings are sin before God of the highest order for it brings the curse of Malachi 3 upon us And the supreme tragedy is that the curse comes because we trusted others to give for us, and our Tithes and offerings above the Tithe are misrepresented and misapplied by those we trust; namely our Pastors and Preachers who use the funds we give to whatever pressing need they desire (regardless of Scripture). This is all done behind closed doors and with the assent of the multitudes with closed minds who are unknowing of God's commandments in these regards.

May God forgive us for our lack of study of His Word where these concepts can be discovered and adhered to by those concerned about obeying God more than men, thus ensuring the worship of our Father in Heaven in Spirit and in Truth, and not in the traditions of your church which again makes the Word of God of non-effect!

IF YOU WON'T BELIEVE ME-WILL YOU BELIEVE THE PROPHET HAGGAI?

A striking illustration of the results of selfishly withholding the half-shekel offering from the cause of God was given in the days of the prophet Haggai. After their return from the captivity in Babylon, the Jews undertook to rebuild the temple of the Lord; but meeting determined opposition from their enemies, they discontinued the work (quit contributing the half-shekel offering along with free will offerings since they were starting from scratch); and a severe drought, by which they were reduced to actual want, convinced them that it was impossible to complete the building of the temple.

"The time is not come," they said, "the time that the Lord's house should be built." But a message was sent them by the Lord's prophet: "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your paneled houses, and this house lie waste (God's house)? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts; Consider your ways. Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat, but ye have not enough; ye drink, but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you, but there is none warm; and he that earneth wages, earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes." Haggai 1:2-6.

And then the reason is given: "Ye looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it home, I did blow upon it. SOUND FAMILIAR? Why? saith the Lord of hosts. Because of Mine house that is waste, and ye run every man unto his own house. Parallels must be made! The commandments of God concerning His House lie in waste while mankind runs to their own traditions! Look at the tragic results that come from not obeying the Word of God but relying on men's traditions instead..." "Therefore the heaven over you is stayed from dew, and the earth is stayed from her fruit. And I called for a drought upon the land, and upon the mountains, and upon the corn, and upon the new wine, and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon cattle, and upon all the labor of the hands." Verses 9-12.

"When one came to a heap of twenty measures, there were but ten: when one came to the pressfat for to draw out fifty vessels out of the press, there were but twenty. I smote you with blasting and with mildew and with hail in all the labors of your hands." Haggai 2:16, 19.

Having already experienced God's curse for not giving and building God's house correctly and roused by these warnings, the people set themselves to build the house of God and build it correctly with God's blessings. Then the word of the Lord came to them: "Consider now from this day and upward, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, even from the day that the foundation of the Lord's temple was laid, . . . from this day will I bless you." Verses 18, 19.

Today although God's House (the Church) is anything but laid waste as we examine the architectural monuments chiseled from marble built with the multiple Tithes belonging to the widows, the orphans, the sick, lame, and blind, there is no doubt that the Houses of God today suffer from a greater waste than in the days of Haggai the prophet. The Church today suffers from a famine of the Word of the Living God and lies in waste...devoid of many truths, which when adhered to will bring the supernatural blessings of God to our lives to which we are content to live without; continually blaming the Devil for blocking our blessing. The blame should be placed upon teachers of God's Word who are not capable of handling their positions and who have not prepared themselves adequately before God for such a high call.

We are warned to "CONSIDER OUR WAYS." It would do you well to begin to study the Bible as you never had to see if these things be so.

Let us not fail to learn from the example set for us by the people of Haggai's day who heard a message of correction and heeded it. Let us set ourselves to build the House of God correctly, properly giving offerings over and above the Tithe to support the Church where each male member over twenty years of age contributes monthly or yearly the same in order to finance the ministry. This will encourage the church to live within the budge of its congregation, and some may even be forced to close its doors. But don't loose heart, the home church is where it all started and the New Testament informs us that from such an environment all the world heard the Word of God; yet we are told today that with the multitude of mega-churches that we haven't enough satellites, radio and TV stations to reach the globe yet. Something is desperately wrong with the methods we have chosen to accomplish such a grand task.

Is God holding back His blessing because of our disobedience? Are you tired of making excuses why many things don't work in the Spirit realm anymore? This was very embarrassing to me when in full time ministry when having to explain to the people why what they read in the Bibles about giving and blessings, for example, was not happening in their lives. The answer is that we are robbing God of His Tithes and offerings as revealed in this article. It is obvious to the critical Bible student that our obedience is lacking in many areas, of which the Tithe and half-shekel offering are only the beginning.

Often I, having the same questions, would ask my spiritual authorities why what we are reading in the Bible was not our experience. Too often the same answer was given...."we lack faith." Dear Christian, it is not faith we lack...but OBEDIENCE! We failed to "CONSIDER OUR WAYS;" but I pray you won't let this courageous teaching be set upon a shelf somewhere to collect dust, and fail to CONSIDER YOUR WAYS in light of what you have just learned. Remember, it was only when the people of Haggai's day began to give correctly [both in Tithes and half-shekel offerings] and build the House of God CORRECTLY that God said "from this day will I bless you." What day? The day they began to give correctly!

There is only one thing for the "thinking Christian" to do; verify what I have taught you by your own Scriptural and Historical analysis, repent, ask for forgiveness before God, and begin to Tithe correctly and bring your support of Biblical Truth in the form of the half-shekel offering to those who dare courageously to preach the truth when is unpopular to do so in our religious society today. If you desire to learn the truth from religious fiction, I sincerely invite you to inquire as to how you may obtain more teachings that will ensure your life will be more Biblically correct and more pleasing to the God you love. Remember Yeshua said "why do you say you love me and not obey me?" Are we? May God bless you and yours. Shalom.

WE MUST PAY OUR TITHES ONLY AT THE PLACE WHERE G-D HAS CHOSEN TO PLACE HIS NAME

Before proceeding it is mandatory that you have read and understood our previous article entitled: "The Biblical Tithe." It was in this article, if you remember, that we delineated the various Commandments concerning where G-d commanded His Tithe (The Lord's Tithe) was to be given, how often, and in what proportion. Possessing this information then we can move on to more serious studies.

During my tenure at Pastor at one of the largest charismatic churches in the Dallas-Ft. Worth metroplex, I believe no other teaching of Yahweh was so mistakenly taught from our pulpit, as well as by the majority of pastors of multitudes of churches in our land, including the television and radio airways, as the commandments concerning our giving of offerings and tithes. Let us remember that the Holy Scriptures must be our guide in faith and practice, and not our traditions no matter how "holy" we have come to believe they are, as often "FALSE TEACHINGS" come from our pulpits and we are unaware if we have not studied the Bible for ourselves in the matter. That is where I found myself years ago as I "BELIEVED EVERYTHING MY PASTOR TOLD ME;" never checking him out in the matter to "see if those things be so."

Few "believers" in the contemporary churches of today realize that Yahweh actually SPECIFIES THE PLACE one may LEGALLY pay their TITHES! However, "Satan influenced" FALSE TEACHERS want to keep this knowledge a secret because they "preach tithing" or "beg for money" on a regular basis, and they certainly can NOT BRING THE TRUTH on TITHING and still expect their deceived and manipulated followers to DONATE to them!

Nevertheless, the LAW OF YAHWEH is the ONLY TRUTH in which we can rely!

Answer for yourself: Let me ask you a very simple question. If the BIBLE TEACHES SOMETHING DIFFERENT ON A SUBJECT THAN WHAT YOUR PASTOR OR YOUR DENOMINATION TEACHES, THEN WHICH SHOULD YOU BELIEVE?

On the surface that seems almost too simple a question to ask, but I dare say almost ALMOST ALL CHRISTIANS I KNOW DISOBEY YAHWEH IN THEIR GIVING SUNDAY AFTER SUNDAY AND NEVER KNOW IT; always responding in hope that after they give that NEXT OFFERING YAHWEH WILL SURELY ANSWER THEIR PRAYERS AND GIVE THEM THAT "HUNDRED FOLD RETURN." The sad reality is that they are led by the "blind" to give, and give, and give, yet their ship never seems to come in.

Answer for yourself: WHERE IS YAHWEH IN ALL OF THIS?

We at Bet Emet Ministries do not want you money. Often we suffer ridicule and slander by good people who lack Biblical understanding for teaching the HARD FACTS OF THE BIBLE THAT FLY IN FACE OF MAN'S TRADITIONS THAT MAKE THE WORD OF OUR PRECIOUS YAHWEH OF NONE EFFECT. Such false teachings are to be "ridiculed" and "shamed openly" as YAHWEH COMMANDS IN HIS WORD (Deut 12 commands us to destroy, denounce, even ridicule openly FALSE TEACHINGS AND PREACHINGS that destroy and corrupt the LORD'S TRUTHS!). We are NEVER to speak derogatorily about others or ridicule them and their teachings UNLESS THEY PRACTICE IDOLATRY AND THEN WE ARE COMMANDED TO EXPOSE THEM RUTHLESSLY AND DESTROY THEIR ALTARS AND PLATFORMS THEY USE FOR FALSE WORSHIP WHICH DECEIVES THE MULTITUDES. Such MISPLACED WORSHIP (in our erroneous practice of giving OUR TITHES) is considered IDOLATRY BY YAHWEH AND HIS HOLY SCRIPTURES whether we like it or not! I have been guilty of this very "sin" through ignorance of His laws, but not more! SADLY, THE WORSHIP IN OUR GIVING OF TITHES AND OFFERINGS IS BEING DIVERTED FROM YAHWEH'S PLACE PRESCRIBED IN HIS HOLY SCRIPTURES. SUCH DIVERSION OF KINGDOM FUNDS ROBS YAHWEH AND HIS PEOPLE OF HIS BLESSINGS THAT COME FROM OBEDIENT GIVING. THIS IS THE WORSHIP OF MONEY AND MAN'S GOALS INSTEAD OF YAHWEH' KINGDOM! For this reason Mary and I are not man-pleasers, but rather choose to please our LORD and Savior for the truths He brings us that "open our blind eyes and deaf ears" in order that we may live a life more pleasing to Him, thus influencing others to SEEK THE LORD OF HEAVEN AND EARTH in obedience which is the ULTIMATE MANIFESTATION OF OUR LOVE FOR HIM!

We now enter into a deep study that will shed much light on proper giving as the Holy Scriptures teach. Once you see this for yourself we only ask that you honestly evaluate your experience in light of what you have learned.

THE LAW OF YAHWEH...DEUTERONOMY 12:5-8 SAYS:

Please note carefully what these Scriptures say: To THIS "CHOSEN PLACE" YOU ARE TO GO, and "THERE" you MUST PAY YOUR TITHES.

Answer for yourself: What is this "chosen place?" Is it your church? What if you found out that it was not?

Understand that we just read the LAW and COMMANDMENT of Yahweh....one of the 613 Laws of Yahweh, found in the first five books of your Bible. Such LAW AND COMMANDMENTS will never be taught by most of the preachers of our land because they are in the practice of using YAHWEH'S TITHE TO BUILD PERSONAL AMBITIONS (CALLED MINISTRIES) AND MORE TELEVISION STATIONS AND BUILDINGS, and let us be the first to say that this applies to the preachers of the "feast keeping" churches as well.

Answer for yourself: Does G-d allow for the TITHE to be used on these ventures? Before you say "yes" you need to keep reading; not only this article, but the remainder in our series on the tithe.

The Great Commission of taking into all the world the KINGDOM OF G-D BY TEACHING THEM NATIONS TO OBSERVE WHATSOEVER YESHUA COMMANDED HIS DISCIPLES HAS BEEN REPLACED TODAY WITH A MISSION OF BUILDING TV AND RADIO STATIONS, from which there is little Bible study or no Bible study at all; just the financing of lavish studios with lots of expensive decorations from where they continually beg for your money, asking incessantly to "send them your money today" in order to save the world. They say "if only you will send in your love gifts, G-d will reward you financially. Often such people who respond use their TITHE MONEY to finance these FALSE PREACHERS, and if they do, then such action shows a complete lack of understanding of what G-d has commanded in His Word concerning the proper use of the tithe. Usually they give you some neat things for your money, in other words you ARE LITERALLY BUYING RELIGIOUS PARAPHERNALIA such as tapes, books, plaques, glasses, sculptures lifetime memberships, etc. YOU ARE NOT GIVING ANYTHING! It saddens me but you could almost call it the CHRISTIAN SHOPPING NETWORK; in fact I saw such a program last week in Dallas that TICKED DOWN THE TIME REMAINING for unsuspecting PRECIOUS PEOPLE to send in their

$58.00 for 58 Blessings before TIME RAN OUT! These "THIEVES FOR G-D" cause the unsuspecting TO FINANCE THE KINGDOM OF THE PREACHER INSTEAD OF YAHWEH!

EXAMINING THE "PLACE" WHERE G-D HAS COMMANDED TITHES BE GIVEN

Now listen carefully. These "FALSE TEACHERS" AND "FALSE PROPHETS" who ENTERTAIN THE FLOCK instead of TEACHING THE FLOCK are SPOKEN OF in the prophecies written in your own Bibles, and it is through Yahweh's PROPHECIES that one MUST SEARCH in order to find the PLACE YAHWEH HAS CHOSEN TO ESTABLISH HIS NAME!

All over the world today you can find "THOUSANDS AND THOUSANDS OF PREACHERS WHO COME IN THE OWN NAMES with NO WRITTEN AUTHORITY FROM YAHWEH TO BACK UP THE MESSAGES THEY BRING OR THE DOCTRINES THEY TEACH."

We appeal to you to open your hearts to the "WAY, THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE" OF YAHWEH'S WORD and cast out the leaven of the false teachers whose doctrine cannot withstand the scrutiny and comparison with YAHWEH'S HOLY SCRIPTURES. We at Bet Emet Ministries believe the Bible Yeshua used, the Torah, and if someone teaches something opposite to the teachings of the Torah he is in YAHWEH'S WORDS A FALSE TEACHER AND A FALSE PROPHET, no matter how many degrees or positions he may have held in his denomination. HIS DENOMINATION IS NOT YESHUA'S DENOMINATION! TRUTH IS TRUTH AND ERROR IS ERROR! LET YAHWEH'S WORD BE HELD IN YOUR HEARTS OVER ALL FALSE TEACHINGS WHICH ABOUND!

LACKING WRITTEN AUTHORITY FROM YAHWEH FOR WHAT THEY TEACH ABOUT TITHING they falsely justify their selfish ambitions by teaching to the BIBLICALLY UNIFORMED (the majority of good people who attend the majority of churches in our country today) that "one" or "all" of the Laws of the Kingdom of Yahweh are "done away with." Yet there is absolutely NO SCRIPTURE to justify many of their "preaching." Many quote Paul in saying that "Christ is the end of the Law."

HAVE THE LAWS CONCERNING TITHING BEEN DONE AWAY WITH?

Answer for yourself: Have you ever wondered that if the Laws concerning tithing have been done away with (because according to Paul Christ is the end of the Law) then why do ministers repeatedly turn to Malachi and use it in their tithing "pitches" to their congregations.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever studied for yourself what the "storehouse" was, and if you had, then you would quickly realize that is has nothing to do with a "church" today; in fact, it is just the opposite of what the church is and does (practically). More on that later.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever looked up the word "end" in that Scripture (Romans 10:4) in your Strong's Concordance or Greek Lexicon?

The Greek word for "end" is Strong's # 5056. The Greek word is "telos": to set out for a definite point or goal, the point aimed at as a limit, the conclusion of an act or state, the result, ultimate result, a continual custom, finally, uttermost. This Scripture has nothing to do with YAHWEH'S LAW ENDING, AND IF ANYTHING, IT TEACHES THE CONTINUANCE OF HIS LAWS.

Answer for yourself: What did Yeshua say in Matt. 5:17:

Matthew 5

- 17. Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill.

Answer for yourself: Do you not realize that if you obey YAHWEH'S COMMANDMENTS as I am sure you will agree that Yeshua continually did, never disobeying his Father, then your life will be modeled to the goal of being like and living like Christ?

Answer for yourself: Are we not to imitate Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: Is he not "the point aimed at" as we reject the conforming influences in the world and choose rather to be transformed into the image of G-d as seen in Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: Are we not at the end of our lives to arrive at a point of conformity to Yahweh's Laws that we take upon ourselves the very stature of Christ?

Answer for yourself: Is G-d and His ways not the goal we pursue in life and model our lives after?

We at Bet Emet maintain without apology that it is IMPOSSIBLE TO PATTERN OUR LIVES AFTER THE G-DLINESS WE SEE IN JESUS AND HIS LIFE, SEEING HIM AS THE GOAL WE ASPIRE TO IN ALL CONDUCT, BEHAVIOR, FAITH AND PRACTICE, IF WE NEGATE OR BELIEVE THE LAWS OF YAHWEH HAVE PASSED AWAY! To say the Laws that Yeshua lived by and modeled for us by his obedience are "done away with" obliterate the GOAL TO WHICH WE ARE ASPIRE TO ATTAIN IN THIS LIFE!

Thus, THERE IS NOT SCRIPTURE TO JUSTIFY THE "PREACHING" OF SUCH FALSE DOCTRINE AS WE SEE IN OUR CHURCHES TODAY WHEREBY THE TITHE IS TO BE USED IN THE MANNER THAT THE VAST MAJORITY OF CHRISTIAN CHURCHES IN OUR LAND USE IT. We should be ASHAMED that we have let ourselves be led by "BLIND TEACHERS AND PREACHERS" WHO HAVE LED US TO SIN IN THE NAME OF JESUS BY DISOBEYING YAHWEH'S LAWS; ONE SUCH LAW IS THE LAW OF TITHING TO THE PLACE WHERE YAHWEH HAS PLACED HIS NAME!

IS IT POSSIBLE TO TITHE AND SIN?

I understand Yahweh's anger at the false teachings and false preachers that lead thousands and thousands of people to follow them in their deception, even though Yahweh warned over and over, that: "MANY FALSE PROPHETS (FALSE TEACHERS) will DECEIVE THE WHOLE WORLD," as we have read in Revelation 12:9. MANY FALSE PROPHETS (FALSE PREACHERS) will arise and WILL DECEIVE the many, as is clearly written in Matthew 24:11: "any MANY FALSE PROPHETS (FALSE PREACHERS) will rise and WILL DECEIVE THE MANY." Second Peter 2:1 states: "But there were also FALSE PROPHETS (FALSE PREACHERS) among the people, just as there WILL BE FALSE TEACHERS AMONG YOU, who will secretly bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Redeemer Who brought them, and bringing swift destruction upon themselves."

It is THE MANY FALSE PREACHERS, those who preach AGAINST the Law of Yahweh, which if obeyed would lead the giver to tithe properly, who are leading this world to commit SIN! Realize THE TRUTH of what Yeshua was saying in Matthew 24:12: "And because "INIQUITY" will abound, the LOVE of the many will grow cold." This is happening today in the churches of America WHEN WE GIVE TITHES DESIGNATED BY YAHWEH FOR THE POOR, THE FATHERLESS, THE SICK, ETC., AND BUILD BIGGER AMPHITHEATERS AND CHURCHES, THEREBY CONTINUALLY BUILDING CONTEMPORARY TOWERS OF BABEL THAT TEACH DOCTRINE THE VIOLATES THE BIBLE!

The word translated "INIQUITY" (And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me ye that work iniquity) is the word #458, in Strong's Greek Dictionary as used in Matt. 7:23, and means: "anomia," from #459, illegality, ie. violation of law or generally wickedness: iniquity, transgress, transgression of the law, unrighteousness. Strong's #459 means: "anomos," lawless, NOT SUBJECT TO JEWISH LAW, by implication a Gentile, wicked, without law, lawless, transgressor, unlawful, wicked.

Answer for yourself: Let us ask you: Is this a New Testament Scripture?

IT SURE IS! THEN SOMETHING IS WRONG WITH THE TEACHING THAT TELLS YOU THE LAW OF YAHWEH IS PASSED AWAY BECAUSE YOUR NEW TESTAMENT (RIGHTLY UNDERSTOOD IN THE ORIGINAL WORDS) TEACHES YOU ENTIRELY SOMETHING DIFFERENT THAN THE MAJORITY OF FALSE TEACHERS AND PREACHERS ON TELEVISION, RADIO, AND THE MANY STREET CORNERS TEACH.

Answer for yourself: Who are you going to believe?

Answer for yourself: Are we not supposed to teach the Bible?

Answer for yourself: Are we not to pattern our lives after the Bible?

Answer for yourself: Can you show me where we have the right to teach a tradition we received as a child and grew up revering as an adult in the FACE OF BIBLICAL FACT THAT PRONOUNCES SUCH BELIEFS AND TEACHINGS A LIE?

WE HAVE SINNED! WE HAVE LED OTHERS TO SIN IN IGNORANCE LIKE OURSELVES!

Paul teaches us that he "WOULD NOT HAVE US BE IGNORANT BRETHREN! We at Bet Emet only wish to teach you the Bible, not destroy Yeshua's church, BUT IF WE ARE TO BE CO-LABORERS WITH YESHUA, HOW DARE I TEACH SOMETHING DIFFERENT THAN THE ARCHITECT'S PLANS!

I just showed you that James Strong, author of his Concordance, calls this "LAW" that we violate (WHICH WILL CAUSE YESHUA TO TELL US TO DEPART FROM HIM) the "JEWISH LAW" which refers to the TORAH, or the FIRST FIVE BOOKS of the Bible. Yeshua said "BECAUSE THE BREAKING of the Law of Yahweh WAS ABOUNDING, the LOVE of the MANY was growing cold."

Answer for yourself: HAS NOT OUR LOVE FOR OUR NEIGHBOR GROWN COLD WHEN WE IN EFFECT DISOBEY THE COMMANDMENTS CONCERNING THE TITHE BY FAILING TO FEED, CLOTHE, EDUCATE, BUY MEDICINE OR EYEGLASS FOR, PROVIDE HEARING AIDS FOR THE DEAF AND WALKING CANES FOR THE LAME, DELIVER FROM WELFARE ROLLS MANY BY TEACHING A SKILL, ETC., AND IN ITS PLACE USE SUCH MONEY COMMANDED BY G-D TO BE USED ONLY IN THESE AREAS TO BUILD MULTI-MILLION DOLLAR BUILDINGS USED FOR BEGGING FOR MORE MONEY TO FINANCE SUCH EDIFICES THAT OUR CHILDREN WILL STRUGGLE THEIR WHOLE LIVES TO PAY?

In effect, Yeshua was CONDEMNING the FALSE PREACHERS in this world and does so today!

Let us examine what Yeshua says in Matt. chapter 24:5: "MANY FALSE PREACHERS would come AGAINST HIS NAME, AND WOULD DECEIVE THE MANY;" In Matt. 24:9 Yeshua teaches us that the breaking of Yahweh's Law sill abound, which shows that it is the "teaching" of these FALSE PREACHERS that causes the LOVE of the people to grow cold BECAUSE these FALSE PREACHERS "TEACH" AGAINST THE LAWS WRITTEN IN THE HOLY SCRIPTURES, "preaching" that they are "done away with."

These FALSE TEACHERS do not want you to keep Yahweh's Laws.

Answer for yourself: WHY?

If the people of this world OBEYED YAHWEH'S LAWS, then these same people would TAKE THEIR TITHES TO THE PLACE YAHWEH HAS CHOSEN TO ESTABLISH HIS NAME, RATHER THAN to the Churches and Assemblies where "MEN" have chosen to start "THEIR OWN RELIGIOUS WORKS." THESE FALSE TEACHERS ROB YAHWEH'S CHILDREN OF BLESSINGS ONLY WHICH YAHWEH WILL GIVE THROUGH OTHERS BY THE CORRECT DISTRIBUTION OF THE TITHE. THESE FALSE TEACHES build bigger TEMPLES and CHURCH BUILDINGS, MORE TELEVISION CHANNELS THROUGHOUT THE LAND, BUY MORE EXPENSIVE TELEVISION TIME IN STEAD OF FEEDING THE HUNGRY, CLOTHING THE NAKED, PROVIDING MEDICAL SERVICES TO THE POOR WHO CANNOT AFFORD THEIR OWN. I could go on but the tithe was NEVER MEANT to be used in the manner we see today!

Answer for yourself: Let me ask you, what does a widow woman with dependent children need more, her rent paid because she is sick, or to send in $40.00 a month for ten months in hopes that her "hundred fold" blessing will miraculously fall from the sky? I plead with those who read this newsletter to arise from religious slumber and wake to the truth contained in the Bible.

Many will feel we at Bet Emet have a "critical spirit" or are "bitter" because we ATTACK THE ERROR IN DOCTRINE taught as truths to the Body of Christ. I call you attention to Deuteronomy chapter 12:2-5 where we are instructed to "UTTERLY DESTROY ALL THE PLACES, WHERE IN THE NATIONS WHICH YE SHALL POSSESS SERVED THEIR G-DS, UPON THE HIGH MOUNTAINS, AND UPON THE HILLS, AND UNDER EVERY GREEN TREE: AND YE SHALL OVERTHROW THEIR ALTARS, AND BREAK THEIR PILLARS, AND BURN THEIR GROVES WITH FIRE; AND YE SHALL HEW DOWN THE GRAVEN IMAGES OF THEIR G-DS, AND DESTROY THE NAMES OF THEM OUT OF THAT PLACE. YE SHALL NOT DO SO UNTO THE LORD YOUR G-D, BUT UNTO THE PLACE WHICH THE LORD YOUR G-D SHALL CHOOSE ...TO PUT HIS NAME..SHALL YE SEEK..AND SHALL YOU COME."

Notice we are to "UTTERLY DESTROY" ALL THE PLACES...OF FALSE WORSHIP. Let me ask you a question:

Answer for yourself: IF YOU ARE GIVING YOUR TITHES AND OFFERING IN ERROR, IS THIS NOT A MANIFESTATION OF FALSE WORSHIP?

Answer for yourself: IS NOT YOUR HEART AND MIND LED ASTRAY IN CORRUPT WORSHIP WHEN WE GIVE OPPOSITE TO HOW THE BIBLE INSTRUCTS?

We are commanded to UTTERLY DESTROY FALSE WORSHIP. "UTTERLY DESTROY" are the same words in Hebrew corresponding to Strong's # 06: "break, destroy, destruction, cause to make to perish." Yahweh desires we DESTROY ALL SPIRITUAL UNTRUTHS. We are to "OVERTHROW" false altars diverting sacrifices and offerings not warranted by YAHWEH IN HIS HOLY LAW. WE ARE TO OVERTHROW FALSE WORSHIP; Strong's #5422 corresponds to "nathats" in Hebrew: "tear down, beat down, break down, cast down, destroy, overthrow, pull down, throw down." We are to "BREAK" the pillars of untruths that keep YAHWEH'S CHILDREN IN SPIRITUAL BONDAGE THAT BRINGS THE CURSES (absence of Blessings) TO THEIR LIVES. "BREAK" is Strong's # 7665 corresponding to "shabar" in Hebrew: "burst, break down, broken hearted, bring to birth, crush, destroy, hurt, tear." We are to "HEW DOWN THE GRAVEN IMAGES." "HEW" corresponds to Strong's # 1438 corresponding to "gada": "to destroy anything, cut asunder, cut down, cut off." Notice in Deut. 12:4 that "YOU SHALL NOT DO SO UNTO THE LORD YOUR G-D." In otherwords, WE ARE NOT TO DESTROY, CAUSE TO PERISH, TEAR DOWN, CAST DOWN, PULL DOWN, THE TRUTH ABOUT YAHWEH OR HIS LAWS. BUT WE DEFINITELY ARE TO DO THIS AND MORE TO FALSE TEACHINGS, DECEPTION, AND LIES THAT LEAD US TO SIN AND KEEP US FROM THE TRUTH OF YAHWEH'S WORD. Notice also we are "TO CAUSE BROKEN HEARTEDNESS OVER THE SINS WE HAVE COMMITTED ALL THE TIME BELIEVING WE HAVE BEEN HONORING YAHWEH WITH OBEDIENCE" and "BRING TO BIRTH" THE TRUTH TO OUR HEATS!

We at Bet Emet bring SCRIPTURAL FACT TO YOUR AWARENESS that you may "TEAR" your hearts and not your garments before Yahweh. We at Bet Emet have the anointing of Jeremiah as found in the Scriptures. Look at Jeremiah 1:5-10 one and notice the CALL OF JEREMIAH WHO WAS LIKEWISE SENT TO A RELIGIOUS PEOPLE TO CONFRONT THEM WITH THEIR SINS IN HOPE OF REPENTANCE:

Jeremiah 1

- 5 Before I formed thee in the womb I knew thee; and before thou wast born I sanctified thee, [and] I ordained thee a prophet to the nations. {ordained: Heb. gave}
- 6 Then said I, Ah, Lord G-D! behold, I cannot speak: for I [am] a child.
- 7 But the LORD said to me, Say not, I [am] a child: for thou shalt go to all that I shall send thee, and whatever I command thee thou shalt speak.
- 8 Be not afraid of their faces: for I [am] with thee to deliver thee, saith the LORD.
- 9 Then the LORD put forth his hand, and touched my mouth. And the LORD said to me, Behold, I have put my words in thy mouth.
- 10 See, I have this day set thee over the nations and over the kingdoms, to root out, and to pull down, and to destroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant.

We at Bet Emet, like Jeremiah, ARE NOT AFRAID OF THE FACES OF THE FALSE TEACHERS AND FALSE PROPHETS WHO SPREAD LIES AND DECEPTIONS IN YESHUA'S NAME CONCERNING THE TITHE OR OTHER ERRORS FOR THAT MATTER (and believe me they abound...you only have to study our websites to see them). Truly the Lord has put his hand and touched my mouth with YAHWEH'S UNCOMPROMISING TRUTHS. YAHWEH has given us the call at Bet Emet "TO ROOT OUT, AND TO PULL DOWN, AND TO DESTROY, AND TO THROW DOWN," but notice for what purpose...."TO BUILD AND TO PLANT!"

Answer for yourself: In otherwords, we desire that "fruit abound to your account" and if you disobey Yahweh in ignorance how can you expect rewards in the world to come my friend?

NOTICE, we are NOT TO DESTROY, THROW DOWN THE SACRED WORD OF YAHWEH.. "YE SHALL NOT DO SO UNTO THE LORD YOUR G-D."

Answer for yourself: If FALSE TEACHING AND FALSE PREACHING has PERVERTED YAHWEH'S TRUTHS ABOUT THE TITHE, IS THAT NOT DESTRUCTION OF HIS TRUTH?

Answer for yourself: WE ARE NOT TO DO SO UNTO THE LORD! THESE FALSE TEACHERS WHO TEACH OPPOSITE OF G-D'S WORD, ARE THEY NOT GUILTY OF DESTROYING YAHWEH'S WORD?

Answer for yourself: ARE WE NOT GUILTY IN MAINLINE CHRISTIANITY TODAY?

Answer for yourself: ARE YOU NOT BROKEN AND THE FALSE ALTARS OF YOUR HEAT AT COMING TO THE AWARENESS OF SUCH SINS?

Answer for yourself: ARE YOU NOT CONCERNING ABOUT YOUR REWARDS OR LACK OF REWARDS IN HEAVEN?

We call upon you to destroy the altars of man's teachings that live in your hearts THAT HAVE REPLACED THE ALTARS OF YAHWEH'S TEACHINGS WHERE ACCEPTABLE SACRIFICES CAN BE MADE TO YAHWEH!

NOTICE what Yeshua says concerning these FALSE TEACHERS AND FALSE PREACHERS "who do religious works ON THEIR OWN," telling us THEIR SENTENCE in Luke 13:22-28:

Luke 13

- 22 And he went through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem.
- 23. Then said one to him, Lord, are there few that are saved? And he said to them,
- 24 Strive to enter in at the narrow gate: for many, I say to you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able.
- 25 When once the master of the house hath risen up, and hath shut the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us; and he shall answer and say to you, I know you not where ye are from:
- 26 Then ye shall begin to say, We ate and drank in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets.
- 27 But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not where ye are from; depart from me, all [ye] workers of iniquity.
- 28 There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of G-d, and you [yourselves] thrust out.

Luke 13:26 teachers us that these "FALSE PREACHERS" in "RELIGIOUS WORKS" have proclaimed to their followers that they have "done the will of the Father" but in reality have not! Luke 13:27 teaches us that these "FALSE TEACHERS AND PREACHERS" who have promoted perversions and untruths, and promoted their own "RELIGIOUS WORKS INSTEAD OF THE WORKS OF G-D" are REJECTED! How horrible will the day of judgment be for both the "MANY WHO HAVE LEAD THE MULTITUDES AWAY FROM YAHWEH'S LAWS" as well as "THE MULTITUDES THEMSELVES"!" Do not let that be you!

Yeshua says "GET AWAY FROM ME, ALL YOU 'WORKERS OF INIQUITY'!"

By definition we find Strong's # 93 (iniquity) corresponding to "adikia" in Greek: "injustice, wrongful, unjust, unrighteousness, wrong." Although a different Strong's number from what we say in Matt. chapter 7, the meaning is the same. LACK OF SUBJECTION TO JEWISH LAW-YAHWEH'S LAWS RESULTS IN UNRIGHTEOUSNESS and WRONG CONDUCT AND WRONGFUL WORSHIP! SUCH WRONG AND UNRIGHTEOUS WORSHIP IS SEEN IN BRINGING YOUR TITHES AND OFFERINGS TO PLACES OTHER THAT WHERE YAHWEH HAS PLACES HIS NAME. This plainly shows that these "religious leaders" have TAUGHT that the LAWS OF YAHWEH are "done away with," effectively leading their followers to COMMIT SIN!

Therefore, BECAUSE these "workers of iniquity" teach the people to commit iniquity, or BREAK THE JEWISH LAW-YAHWEH'S LAWS, THEY ARE CUT OFF FROM YAHWEH, as we see in Isa. 59:2: "BUT YOUR INIQUITIES HAVE SEPARATED BETWEEN YOU AND YOUR G-D, AND YOUR SINS HAVE HID HIS FACE FROM YOU, THAT HE WILL NOT HEAR."

The same LAWS OF YAHWEH which tells you that ONE TENTH of all your increase belongs to Yahweh, also TELLS YOU WHERE TO TAKE YOUR TITHES!

Deut. 14:22 instructs you TO TITHE! Deut. 12:5-8 tells you "WHERE TO TAKE THAT TITHE...AND IT IS NOT YOUR CHURCH IF THEY ARE NOT APPROPRIATING THE

FUNDS IN THE COMMANDED AREAS AND IN THE COMMANDED AMOUNTS...FAILURE TO DO SO IS SIN...AND THEY MAKE YOU AN ACCESSORY TO ROBBERY OF G-D

Answer for yourself: How can we "accept" the one Scripture that tells us to "pay our tithes" while rejecting the other Scripture that tells us to "take our tithes TO THE PLACE YAHWEH HAS CHOSEN TO ESTABLISH HIS NAME?"

Such SALAD BAR CHRISTIANITY seen in the PICKING AND CHOOSING WHAT LAWS WE WILL AND WILL NOT OBEY IS SIN! For those who think they can "change" or "delete" EVEN ONE OF YAHWEH'S LAWS, they should read the next two Scriptures:

Deut. 4:2: "You shall NOT ADD to the word which I command you NOR SHALL YOU TAKE ANYTHING FROM IT, so that you may KEEP THE COMMANDMENTS OF YAHWEH your Father, which I command you."

Revelation 22:18-19: "For I testify to everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this Book: IF ANY MAN WILL 'ADD TO THESE THINGS,' YAHWEH WILL ADD TO HIM THE PLAGUES THAT ARE WRITTEN IN THIS BOOK: and if any man WILL TAKE AWAY from the WORDS OF THE BOOK OF THIS PROPHECY, YAHWEH WILL TAKE AWAY HIS PART OUT OF THE BOOK OF LIFE, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this Book."

Answer for yourself: What is the Book of Life? The metaphorical concept of a Book of Life dates from the Bible (Ex. 32:32, Mal. 3:16, Ps. 69:29); to be omitted or "blotted out" from the book means death. This idea was subsequently connected with the notion of an annual balancing of the heavenly books on the Days of Judgment (Rosh HaShannah and the Day of Atonement). The Sefer ha-Hayim is the Heavenly ledger containing the record's of man's deeds and conduct throughout the year. Evil men are erased from the Book of Life and not inscribed with the righteous. Judah ha-Nasi said "Know what is above you..and Eye that sees, and Ear that hears, and a Book in which all your deeds are recorded" (Avot. 2:1)., while R. Akiba declared that "the ledger is open, then hands records (Avot. 3:16). Three separate "books" are opened on Rosh HaShannah: one for the thoroughly wicked, who are immediately condemned to death; a second for the wholly righteous, who are inscribed and sealed for life; and a third for "intermediate" or average people, whose fate is held in suspense until the Day of Atonement when it is sealed.

Everyone is made a promise by Yahweh, either a PROMISE OF BLESSINGS OR A PROMISE OF CURSINGS. Those WHO DELETE FROM or ADD TO THE LAWS OF YAHWEH are certainly made a "promise"-a promise that their opportunity for spiritual life with its attending REWARDS will be removed from them! James 2:10-11 states: "For whoever keeps the WHOLE LAW, and yet offends in ONE POINT, he is GUILTY OF ALL."

Only YAHWEH has "LIFE" to give, and that is the reason Yeshua said in Matt. 4:4 that the only "WAY TO LIFE ETERNAL" IS THROUGH LIVING BY THE EVERY WORD THAT PROCEEDS OUT OF THE MOUTH OF YAHWEH." This is also why those who DO YAHWEH'S COMMANDMENTS are BLESSED in Revelation 22:13 BECAUSE they PRACTICE THE "EVERY WORD" OF YAHWEH.

Thus, each of us is responsible for paying our TITHES TO YAHWEH! First, by knowing "what" to TITHE UPON and THEN TO "SEEK THE PLACE" YAHWEH HIMSELF TELLS US....through his Prophets of old..WHERE HE HAS CHOSEN TO ESTABLISH HIS NAME."

DO YOU KNOW WHERE TO "LEGALLY" PUT YOUR TITHES?

Deuteronomy 12

- 5. But the place which the LORD your G-d shall choose out of all your tribes to put his name there, [even] his habitation shall ye seek, and there thou shalt come:
- 6 And there ye shall bring your burnt offerings, and your sacrifices, and your tithes, and heave offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your freewill offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and of your flocks:
- 7 And there ye shall eat before the LORD your G-d, and ye shall rejoice in all that ye put your hand to, ye and your households, in which the LORD thy G-d hath blessed thee.
- 8 Ye shall not do after all [the things] that we do here this day, every man whatever [is] right in his own eyes.

YAHWEH once chose Jerusalem as the PLACE TO ESTABLISH HIS NAME. However, YAHWEH REJECTED JERUSALEM....BECAUSE OF THE SAME THING THAT THE MAJORITY OF CHRISTIANITY IS DOING TODAY: REJECTING YAHWEH'S LAW, AND TURNING TO THE PRACTICE OF SIN INSTEAD! Jeremiah 23:9-11 teaches us why He rejected Jerusalem and reject us today if we practice sin instead of obedience to G-dly tithing:

Also let us read Jer. 23:14-17 and 26.27:

Jeremiah 23

- 14 I have seen also in the prophets of Jerusalem an horrible thing: they commit adultery, and walk in lies: they strengthen also the hands of evildoers, that none doth return from his wickedness: they are all of them to me as Sodom, and the inhabitants of it as Gomorrah. {an...: or, filthiness}
- 15 Therefore thus saith the LORD of hosts concerning the prophets; Behold, I will feed them with wormwood, and make them drink the water of gall: for from the prophets of Jerusalem is profaneness gone forth into all the land. {profaneness: or, hypocrisy}
- 16 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Hearken not to the words of the prophets that prophesy to you: they make you vain: they speak a vision of their own heart, [and] not from the mouth of the LORD.
- 17 They say still to them that despise me, The LORD hath said, Ye shall have peace; and they say to every one that walketh after the imagination of his own heart, No evil shall come upon you. {imagination: or, stubbornness}

- 26 How long shall [this] be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies? yea, [they are] prophets of the deceit of their own heart;
- 27 Who think to cause my people to forget my name by their dreams which they tell every man to his neighbor, as their fathers have forgotten my name for Baal.

BECAUSE OF SIN, BECAUSE OF THE BREAKING OF HIS LAWS, YAHWEH REJECTED THE LEVITICAL PRIESTHOOD AND THE PLACE WHICH HE HAD ONCE CHOSEN TO ESTABLISH HIS NAME! Matt. 23:37-38 states:

Matthew 23

- 37 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, [thou] that killest the prophets, and stonest them who are sent to thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under [her] wings, and ye would not!
- 38 Behold, your house is left to you desolate.

Notice the people of Yahweh murdered His messengers and stoned them who came to them with words of correction, reproof, instruction, and correction. Religious people usually fail to look within themselves to discern "if they be in the faith," FALSELY ASSUMING what their FALSE PREACHERS HAVE TOLD THEM IS SO...WITHOUT THEIR OWN VERIFICATION THROUGH STUDY OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES. Israel was not willing and their house (Temple) was DESERTED BY THE POWER AND PRESENCE OF YAHWEH. FOR REJECTION OF YAHWEH'S LAWS, and because we have disobeyed YAHWEH'S command in Deut. 12:13-14 where we are COMMANDED TO "TAKE HEED TO THYSELF THAT THOU OFFER NOT THY BURNT OFFERING (TITHES) IN EVERY PLACE THOU SEEST: BUT IN THE PLACE WHICH THE LORD SHALL CHOOSE..THOU SHALL OFFER THY BURNT OFFERINGS, AND THERE THOU SHALL DO ALL THAT I COMMAND THEE." Multitudes of voices clamor for your money today, readily to use Kingdom resources to build bigger monuments to men's dreams and architectural ingenuity. To the Biblically illiterate a bigger building is passed off as G-d's blessing, where in reality because they have used YAHWEH'S TITHE TO BUILD IT, it stands in heaven as a shame to the selfishness and perverseness of man's self-will in substituting the desires of men for THE WILL OF YAHWEH.

Answer for yourself: FINALLY, IS YAHWEH'S NAME PLACED TODAY IN THE MULTITUDES OF CHURCHES WHO FIRST OF ALL DON'T RECOGNIZE YAHWEH AS "THE NAME OF THE LORD" but rather call HIM BY TITLES INSTEAD OF HIS NAME?

Answer for yourself: Also, let me ask you, WOULD YAHWEH PLACE HIS NAME TODAY IN CONGREGATIONS AND CHURCH BUILDINGS THAT PERPETUALLY ROB HIM AND HIS PEOPLE OF HIS TITHES AND OFFERINGS?

Today the FALSE PREACHERS, when challenged by Ministries like Bet Emet WHO SUBMIT TO JEWISH LAW, respond the way the FALSE RELIGIOUS LEADERS DID in the time of Malachi. Let us examine in closing Mal. 3:6-12:

Malachi 3

- 6 For I [am] the LORD, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.
- 7. Even from the days of your fathers ye have gone away from my ordinances, and have not kept [them]. Return to me, and I will return to you, saith the LORD of hosts. But ye said, In what shall we return?
- 8 Will a man rob G-d? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, In what have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings.
- 9 Ye [are] cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, [even] this whole nation.
- 10 Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house, and prove me now with this, saith the LORD of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that [there shall] not [be room] enough [to receive it]. {pour...: Heb. empty out}
- 11 And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the LORD of hosts. {destroy: Heb. corrupt}
- 12 And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the LORD of hosts.

Notice in verse 8 these FALSE PREACHERS OF THEIR DAY SAID "WHEREIN HAD WE ROBBED THEE? YAHWEH, may His Name be praised forever, said "IN TITHES AND OFFERINGS." They were without excuse...they had the LAWS OF YAHWEH and THEY SINNED WITH KNOWLEDGE. WE are likewise GUILTY because we SIN IN IGNORANCE, having grown up in Christian Churches WHO NEVER LOOKED UP NOR TAUGHT THEIR MEMBERS TO LOOK UP THE WORDS OF THEIR BIBLES IN THE ORIGINAL LANGUAGES! Yeshua is a Jew! The revelation of our Bible is recorded in Hebrew and Greek, and not English.

Answer for yourself: Looking up such words as "goal" and "iniquity" should make the average Christian ponder if he has truly "WORSHIPPED THE FATHER IN SPIRIT AND TRUTH" or have you and I been led in ignorance to "ROB G-D IN TITHES AND OFFERINGS" by first of all BY NOT BRINGING THEM TO THE PLACE WHERE YAHWEH HAS PLACED HIS NAME ("the" is a definite article signifying a PARTICULAR PLACE... NOT COMMON... NOT TO EVERY PLACE YOU SEEST)?

"YAHWEH'S PLACE" where we are to bring our offerings and tithes has ALWAYS BEEN THE SAME PLACE....THE TITHE IS COMMANDED FOR 6 out of 7 years.

TEACHING LEVITE RECEIVED ALL THE "FIRST" TITHE (10%) EACH YEAR BECAUSE HE TAUGHT THE TRUTHS OF YAHWEH'S LAW TO HIS PEOPLE. NOWHERE in the Bible are TITHES TO BE GIVEN TO FALSE PREACHERS WHO TEACH YOU THE LAWS OF YAHWEH ARE PASSED AWAY! We at Bet Emet, understanding that the Temple, Priestly service, and Levitical service as one seen is no longer pertinent today. Thus, this "first tithe" is suspended until the building of the Temple.

LET US INVESTIGATE THE "SECOND TITHE." TWO of the remaining 6 years THE TITHE IS TO BE GIVEN TO THE WIDOWS, THE SICK, THE LAME, THE BLIND, THE INFIRM, etc. THE LEVITE IS ALSO INCLUDED IN THIS 10% FOR THESE TWO YEARS. THIS MEANS THAT "ALL" THE TITHE WAS SEPARATED EQUALLY AMONG THEM! Lastly, the REMAINING FOUR YEARS YOU ARE TO KEEP THE TITHE AND USE IT TO CELEBRATE AND REJOICE WITH YAHWEH OVER HIS HOLY DAYS AND FESTIVALS: Sabbath, Passover, Unleavened Bread, First Fruits, Pentecost, Rosh HaShanah, Yom Kippur, and Tabernacles. Also included in the Festival Tithe is sharing with the poor and Levite-teacher that they may likewise rejoice before Yahweh! TO THESE AND ONLY THESE CATEGORIES HAS YAHWEH PLACED HIS NAME AND APPROVAL REPEATEDLY THROUGHOUT THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENT! TO THESE DESIGNATED "PLACES" YAHWEH HAS REPEATEDLY PLACED HIS NAME AND HIS BLESSING.

NOWHERE will you find WRITTEN AUTHORITY in either the Old Testament or the New Testament to validate the practice of giving as PRACTICED BY THE VAST MAJORITY OF CHRISTIAN CHURCHES TODAY. I literally beg those who read this letter to please, please study the tithe for yourself. I am desirous that you inherit all our G-d desires to give you. It truly grieves my spirit that those in authority are often so closed minded that they cannot admit they are in error and change. You, but being led astray, keep from your neighbors the literal Kingdom of Heaven because G-d meets others needs through you and I; He is not sending manna from heaven anymore. If we don't know the truth, we shall never be free, and worse yet, we can never set others free and loose them who are bound.

Answer for yourself: Is that not what the real anointing does?

Please, please...let me challenge you, my friends, to listen to what I say and please take issue with me personally if you desire that we might look into the matter together in love to see if these things be so.

Since we at Bet Emet believe the Scriptures over Church tradition that violates it, we have no other choice to confront such heresy where we find it as it surfaces on every street corner, television, letter, etc. WHY you ask? Deut. 12:9 tells you: "For you are not yet come to the rest and to the inheritance, which the Lord your G-d giveth you!" We as Christians only have an earnest of what YAHWEH has in store for us. We are to lay away treasure daily by obeying the mitzvoth (COMMANDMENTS). In particular, Matt. 6 teaches this principle in relation TO GIVING ALMS WHICH IS PART OF OUR TITHE!

Answer for yourself: What rewards can we expect FROM a gracious, caring, and giving YAHWEH IF WE DISOBEY THE COMMANDMENTS THAT ARE THE VERY BASIS FOR SPREADING HIS KINGDOM?

Answer for yourself: Are we not guilty of financing "THE DREAMS OF THE MANY FALSE PREACHERS" INSTEAD OF THE NARROW WAY THAT LEADS TO LIFE...now in this time and the world to come?

We at Bet Emet plead with you that YOU TAKE HEED TO THYSELF THAT THOU OFFER NOT THY BURNT OFFERINGS IN EVERY PLACE THAT THOU SEEST!

WE MUST PAY OUR TITHES ONLY AT THE PLACE WHERE G-D HAS CHOSEN TO PLACE HIS NAME

Shalom.

WOULD GOD APPROVE OF HOW YOU HAVE BEEN TAUGHT TO TITHE? #1

It is understood that before you read this articles that you are familiar with the previous articles in this series as such background information is very helpful in seeing "the whole picture" as presented in the following two articles.

Before we begin let me see if we can agree on a premise before reading this article for after all, G-d is watching.

A Christian's religious belief system, when tested and exposed to contradictory facts from the Biblical text, Biblical languages, Biblical history, Biblical culture, and archeology, must in the Spirit of Truth and Repentance, be flexible enough to change because G-d is watching and desires truth in the inward parts of man.

Now if you can agree with the above statement, let us begin our search for truth concerning Christianity and the Tithe.

As we begin to rediscover the Faith once delivered to the saints, and as we prepare ourselves for the High Holy Days, it is important that we begin the new year in a different way than we finish the last year! Possibly one of the most misunderstood and incorrectly taught doctrines of the contemporary American Church today is in the area of the Biblical Tithe. Sadly most Christians, not possessing accurate Biblical knowledge concerning righteous giving as taught in the Bible, believe what they hear from the pulpit Sunday after Sunday concerning giving and the Tithe. The vast majority never question if what they are taught concerning the tithe is actually true or just tradition. That was me fifteen years ago. This was my plight...see if you can relate:

- I believed what my Pastor told me, because after all, he is the Pastor!
- It never dawned on me to check out for myself what the Bible actually taught concerning the Tithe.
- It never dawned on me that I was being led astray by my church and their position on giving.
- It never dawned on me that I could be sinning by giving my money to the church.
- It never dawned on me that I was consistently displeasing to G-d when giving money to my church.

Not until I did my own study did I find out everything in the Bible God gave concerning the Tithe and my responsibilities to Him in my giving. In hopes of enlightening all readers I give you this article. May God confirm these truths to you as he did me. The only problem you have is not a generous heart, but a lack of understanding concerning God and what he expects from you and your giving. You have heard your Pastor's desire for you to give, now learn what God says on the matter which most likely corrects your Pastor and your church.

Answer for yourself: Are you confident that you understand the principles of the Tithe as Jesus understood them?

Answer for yourself: Have you studied the Tithe for yourself in order that you could know if you are being taught error or truth by your Pastor or your Church?

Answer for yourself: Are you certain that your present tithing habits line up with Scripture?

Answer for yourself: Has your Tithe gone toward the areas that God instructed and commanded they go, or has your church used these funds in others areas not sanctioned by God?

Answer for yourself: What will you do when you finish reading this article and find out that you have not been tithing according to the Commandments of God and have in reality been disobedient to God in your Tithe and in actuality "robbing God" all these years, yet being falsely assured by your Pastor that you are in obedience to the Scriptures as he sees them?

TITHING AS TAUGHT IN THE BIBLE --WHY DIDN'T MY PASTOR TEACH ME THIS?

First I must share something of most importance which should mold your thinking as you read the rest of the article.

The Tithe belongs to God, not to the church, nor to the producer. It cannot be given to an apostate church without being given thereby against God, not to Him. It must be given therefore to godly causes and not go Pastor's needs or good ideas. Those to whom it was originally given, the priests and Levites, had charge of religion, education, and various other functions. The Tithe was paid six years in seven, the seventh being a rest for the land and the people.

Before going further we must examine the Biblical law concerning the Tithe. The Tithe is described in Lev. 27:30-33. A tenth of produce or production is claimed by God as His due and is holy or set apart for Him. If the owner wanted to retain this tenth (Tithe of his agricultural produce as fruit or grain). he could do so by paying its value plus a fifth.

Lev 27:30-33

- 30 And all the Tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree, is the LORD's: it is holy unto the LORD.
- 31 And if a man will at all redeem ought of his Tithes, he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof.
- 32 And concerning the Tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod, the tenth shall be holy unto the LORD.
- 33 He shall not search whether it be good or bad, neither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it and the change thereof shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.

First of all the Tithe is to be given to the Priest and Levites. It was to these ministers to whom it was originally given. They had charge of religion, education, and various other functions during the Temple period. We must remember that the Priesthood of the Temple disappeared in 70 A.D. with the destruction of the Temple by the Romans. Therefore we are no longer able to give to the Priest and the Levite. That part of the Tithe does not apply today and will not until the Temple is rebuilt. The Priests and the Levites do not function in the Temple today, but we must understand that we have "functional" Levites that do minister today.

Answer for yourself: What is a Levite?

A Levite was a "son of Levi" who was set apart for the service of the Tabernacle and Temple and were subordinate to the Priests. The Levite received the Tithe not because of blood lineage but because of his function to the people. Let me explain. The functions of a Levite were to preserve the Law of Jehovah in ALL its integrity and purity and to see that its requirements and duty was enforced. When the people settled in Canaan it was the duty of the Levites was:

- To guard the Tabernacle
- To open and close the Tabernacle
- To look after the cleaning of it and its furniture
- To prepare the show-bread for the Tabernacle
- To do whatever other baking was needed, along with work connected with the sacrifices
- They also taught and led music during worship
- They also assisted the Priests in slaughtering and skinning the animals for sacrifices and looked out after the Temple storehouse (a Tithe Barn that contained the food for the poor).

DOES YOUR CHURCH AND PASTOR MISREPRESENT THE TRUTH CONCERNING THE TITHE?

For years I hear my Pastor tell me that the "Church" was the Storehouse. For years I heard Malachi 3:10 quoted Sunday after Sunday..."bring all your Tithes into the Storehouse." I always thought this kind of funny that our Pastor would quote an Old Testament passage every Sunday to motivate us to obey God but yet hold to Dispensational Theology which taught that the Law had passed away. Funny, ugh? Of course the Pastor wanted all to understand that our church was "the Storehouse"! That way the Church could keep up with the Jones and maintain its prominence in the community. Nothing like competition between ministries to break loose the Child of God from his money which God desired be spent elsewhere. Most likely you have constantly heard your Pastor make reference to the same; that your church is the "storehouse" today.

Answer for yourself: Is your Church really "the Storehouse" as you have been led to believe or is this a clever deception intended to get your money?

Truthfully it depends. Unless your Church functions as a "food barn" the Church is not a Storehouse. Let me explain. As you will come to learn later in this article the "Poor Tithe" was collected two out of every six years. This "Poor Tithe" was agricultural produce which went to feed the widows, orphans, the sick, the lame, the blind, the homeless, etc. In other-words, the Biblical "Storehouse" was a food-barn. Understanding that 2 out of 6 years all the Tithe went to the poor, the sick, the lame, the blind, the homeless, (I will used 1/3 to represent the ratio of 2 out of 6 years), etc., that means for your Church to Biblically qualify as "the Storehouse" then 1/3 of your Church's total budget must go toward the benevolence ministry in your Church.

Answer for yourself: Does your Pastor diligently oversee that 1/3 of all the finances collected in the Tithe go toward the Benevolence Ministry in your Church?

Answer for yourself: Does your Church even have a Benevolence Ministry?

Answer for yourself: Can you see that if such funds do not go to this area, and in this percentage (1/3 representing 2 out of 6 years) that your Church is not the "Storehouse" but is in reality robbing from God by robbing from God's people what God commanded they be given in the Tithe?

Unless your Pastor and Church make sure that 1/3 of all funds collected in the Tithe go to the "poor" then they violate the Commands of God. Violation of the Law of God is considered sin in both the Old Testament and the New Testament. If you can be honest with the Biblical Text as well with yourself for just a minute, you will have to admit that most likely your Church and your Pastor have no right to claim that your Church is "the Storehouse." To make such a comparison is an out-right lie. It only succeeds to the extent it does because of the unquestioning trust given the Pastor by his flock and one's lack of Biblical knowledge. Both are lethal and lead to sin and disobedience before God. Such is the deception I was under for years and only extricated myself upon many years of prayerful study. In fact, when confronting the Senior Pastor as the last church where I Pastored in Duncanville, Texas, I asked him face to face where we found our authority to teach and handle the Tithe the way we do when we have explicit Scriptures commanding otherwise. You will be shocked at his answer: "What do you want us to do, tell the people we are wrong?" Did you hear that? Yes, tell them we have been mistaken and lead by example through repentance in our own lives.

Understand that the Levites distributed the food to the poor, widows, orphans, sick, lame, blind, deaf, etc. Every 2 years all the Tithe was commanded to be given to these areas alone, thus my reference to 1/3 as it represents 2 out of 6 years.

As you can see the Tabernacle in the wilderness and the Temple have ceased to exist. That part of Tithing does not exist as it once did. Yet you can see the principle of Tithing has never changed: that the "teachers, musicians, and janitors" who once received the Tithe should receive the Tithe today. There is nothing preventing us from obeying this part of the statute as God intended except the Greed and Biblical ignorance of our Church leadership. Maybe your Pastor does not qualify for the rebuke in this article; if not, you are very fortunate, but my experience teaches me that the vast majority of mainline Christianity stands guilty before God of robbing God and His people of the LORD'S Tithe.

Answer for yourself: How much of the Tithe in your church makes its way to your teachers, Sunday school teachers, your choir-members, and your janitors?

Answer for yourself: Have you got the courage to ask your Pastor or share this article with him?

As stated before if your church was like the ones I pastored at in Dallas for many years then these areas were constantly neglected. If you take the challenge and present your Pastors with his hard-hitting article, then I hope that when you inquire of your spiritual peers and head Pastors you don't receive the same reaction I did when confronting sin in the Church: "What do you want us to do, tell the people we were wrong?" Yes, that is a good start. Repentance is the order for the day.

Maybe you should ask your Pastor this Sunday why your church continues to collect the Tithe but not use it in the areas commanded by God. Remember God said "all the Tithe" was to go to these areas every 2 years. That means that at least 1/3 of the church's funds need to be given to these areas. That means 1/3 of the budget given every year to these areas.

Never forget that although Tithing as practiced in the Temple periods no longer exists. Yet, we still have a mandate from God to give the Tithe according to the principle and spirit of the Tithe: to the teachers, musicians, and "gate-keepers" in the house of God. I understand that the Tithe as it once stood no longer exists, but we are NOT exempt from Biblical commandments concerning giving to the poor, teachers, janitors, and to ourselves! That's right!

CAN YOUR PASTOR OR YOUR CHURCH LEADERSHIP COUNT TO SEVEN?

Now for a real shock!

The Tithe was paid for six years out of seven, the seventh year being a rest for the land and the people!

Answer for yourself: When was the last time your Preacher told you that God has not wished that you 'Tithe every seventh year'!

Answer for yourself: Why has this not been taught to you?

Answer for yourself: Should you not ask your teacher this Sunday? Maybe he does not know the Bible that well. That was my problem many years ago. Honestly, it is a rather difficult book to master. But it can be done. If we cannot master this Book from God then we should not teach it to others.

Answer for yourself: Surely your Pastor or Preacher wants you as well as himself to be obedient to God, doesn't he?

ABRAHAM TITHES BEFORE THE LAW WAS GIVEN TO MOSES....WHAT DO WE RECONCILE THIS FACT IN THE CHURCH?

Let us never forget that Abraham Tithed before the Mosaic Law was ever given (Heb. 7:2,4)

Heb 7:2

2 To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being by interpretation King of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of peace; (KJV)

Heb 7:4

4 Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils. (KJV)

I fully expect some to defend their disobedience to the Tithe by stating "we are no longer under the Law." Besides misinterpreting the Greek behind the English of this verse, they fail to grasp the truth about God's plan of giving in the Scriptures. Abraham lived 430 years before the Law was given to Moses, and he Tithed! Jacob, after his vision at Luz which occurred long before the Law of Moses, devoted a tenth of all his property to God in case he should return home in safety; and as stated before, this again was long before the Law of Moses. As you can see the incorrect argument used by the church (that the Law has passed away) has no bearing on tithing. Oh, by the way, the Law is eternal and never has or will pass away. Ask for our teachings on the Law and we can prove it to you.

"CORRECT TITHING" was required before the Law and is required by God today.

THE ONLY PROBLEM WE FACE TODAY IS THAT VERY FEW CHRISTIAN CHURCHES TEACH TITHING THE WAY JESUS UNDERSTOOD IT OR WOULD HAVE TAUGHT IT!

STUDY for yourselves to make sure that you are not being, taught error, or worse, being led to "rob God" by robbing those of the Tithe which God designated they should receive. Of these I make mention again: giving to the teachers, musicians, and custodians.

Answer for yourself: When we do it unto the "least" of God's children, or not do it correctly, do we not do it to Him also (Matt. 25:40)?

Let us move on.

TITHING ON THE NET OR THE GROSS?

The Tithe in antiquity, apart from Israel, was a tenth, or a tenth-tax paid to a human king, as God cites in I Sam.8:15-18. Having rejected the Lord God as King, Israel would now pay its Tithes to an oppressive human king who would lead them into bondage (I Sam. 18:18). God's requirement of the Tithe is simply the declaration that He is Lord and King over His covenant people. To deny the Tithe is to deny God's covenant and to deny that God is our Lord and King. It is simply another way of saying. "we have no king but Caesar". This is not only the cry of the chief priests who crucified Yeshua, but of the anti-lawlessness of those who crucify Jesus afresh today. The Tithe is a royal tax: it is God's claim on us a Lord and King. The Lord, in collecting the Tithe, did not require farmers to turn their crops and herds into cash because it was a 'tenth' of the flock or harvest literally. It was food-stuffs. This meant that if a man had 18 calves his Tithe amounted to only one, since no Tithe was possible on the last nine. On everything else it was the first tenth, but the flock or herd not being divisible, the Lord took the last of every 10. This appears in Lev. 37:30-39.

The Tithe is a tax not on our capital but our income or increase. It is not a tax on the ten percent of the fruit trees but the fruit thereof: It does not take the tenth of all the herd, but a tenth of the new calves or the herd or the lambs of the flock. Because it is the "first fruits" or "prior claim" that God has on us, it is the tenth "BEFORE" we, our dependents, or the state take their share. No one has a priority claim that outranks God's right or diminishes it. This settles the issue if we are to Tithe on the "gross" or the "net". We are to Tithe on the "gross."

THE TRUTH IS TO BE SUPPORTED BY THE TITHE

As stated before,. the Tithe was given to the Levites because they stored the animals and grain in the "STOREHOUSE" ( Malachi 3:10). These animals were stored until they could be used to feed the poor, widows, orphans, and strangers etc. As you have heard it said " now, I will show you something, that you have never seen before in Malachi 3:10", it is time to really see what you have never been taught by the Church. THE STOREHOUSE is NOT THE LOCAL CHURCH! IT NEVER HAS BEEN, AND IT WILL NEVER BE! IT WAS' A TITHE-BARN! IT WAS A BENEVOLENT CENTER! The Levites who received the Tithe yearly (since they were considered the poor of the land) then gave ten percent of the Tithe they received to the Priests yearly (Num. 18:26). The Levites, as stated earlier, had a very broad function in Israel. One of the most important functions is as "TEACHERS" (Deut. 33: 8-10).

Deut 33:8-10

- 8 And of Levi he said, Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with thy holy one, whom thou didst prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;
- 9 Who said unto his father and to his mother, I have not seen him; neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children: for they have observed thy word, and kept thy covenant.
- 10 They shall teach Jacob thy judgments, and Israel thy law: they shall put incense before thee, and whole burnt sacrifice upon thine altar. (KJV)

You can easily see that God desired that the Tithe be given to His teachers who taught the Law of God as given by Him to Moses.

Answer for yourself: Has your Pastors and Teachers taught you the Law and the Prophets as Moses did, or has your head and heart been filled with replacement religion as the corrupt fruit of Dispensationalism?

It is time for Christians to repent and quit playing church. It is time to quit financing and supporting religious institutions and churches that not only do not teach you the truth of God's Word but are above repentance when confronted with Biblical truths such as these. There is no way to reconcile the actions of the Christian Church and the Scriptures in the areas of tithing. Often these teachings, calling for repentance in a Christian's giving, are not accepted Christian Pastors and Evangelists because it would mean we would have to admit that we have been wrong about our prior teachings.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever stopped to contemplate what Jesus thinks of all the false teachers that misrepresent the Tithe to God's people? Or God for that matter?

Not only would Jesus rebuke these false teachers, but would teach you to observe the festivals if he were in your pulpit this coming Sunday. Oh, forgot. Jesus would not be in your church this Sunday for he observes the Sabbath and not the Day of the Sun as Rome does.

DOES THE TRUTH MUDDLE OR CLARIFY?

Often I have heard it said that these teachings on the festivals and the Tithe only "confuse the people". That is what my Senior Pastor told me once when addressing areas of my teaching. Simply, our doctrine at our Church was so unbiblical then sound Biblical Doctrine seemed foreign. Thus my resignation was inevitable.

Answer for yourself: Is it any wonder people are confused when they have never heard the truth before but only selfish lies propagated by the greed of Pastors and misplaced ambition?

Answer for yourself: Is it any wonder why people are confused when hearing such teachings when they are guilty of never studying the Bible in-depth and are not familiar with the Scriptural Doctrines or never studied them for themselves?

I believe that it is not so much that you are confused, but rather the many Pastors and Teachers that are contused! Yes, many are contused because they have not heard the truth before. They were not taught in Bible Schools the truth, but in place of truth accepted unquestioningly the denomination's teachings espoused through the school that they attended. Shame on us as Pastors who find the time to teach other people's "sermons" and "cassettes" when we have not devoted time for personal study whereby we seek out the truths of God's Word for ourselves, let alone for the people of God. May God have mercy on the teachers (Levites) come judgment day!

THE SECOND TITHE-THE FESTIVAL TITHE

The "Second Tithe" or the "Festival Tithe" required the assembling of the men of Israel in Jerusalem for the celebration of the festivals. They would normally take their families with them to rejoice in and before the Lord. This did NOT mean that they necessarily spent their time in worship services, but it does mean their rest and festivities were a rejoicing in the Lord. This "Second Tithe" is closely associated with the sabbath principle in that it also called for resting of one's soul. The modern family Christian summer conferences are closer to the meaning of the "Second Tithe" than just family vacations. We must keep this spiritual aspect in our sight.

Deut 14:22-29

- 22 Thou shalt truly Tithe all the increase of thy seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year.
- 23 And thou shalt eat before the LORD thy God, in the place which he shall choose to place his name there, the Tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the firstlings of thy herds and of thy flocks; that thou mayest learn to fear the LORD thy God always.

- 24 And if the way be too long for thee, so that thou art not able to carry it; or if the place be too far from thee, which the LORD thy God shall choose to set his name there, when the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:
- 25 Then shalt thou turn it into money, and bind up the money in thine hand, and shalt go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose:
- 26 And thou shalt bestow that money for whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, for oxen, or for sheep, or for wine, or for strong drink, or for whatsoever thy soul desireth: and thou shalt eat there before the LORD thy God, and thou shalt rejoice, thou, and thine household,
- 27 And the Levite that is within thy gates; thou shalt not forsake him; for he hath no part nor inheritance with thee.

Deut 16:3

- 3 Thou shalt eat no leavened bread with it; seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread therewith, even the bread of affliction; for thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt in haste: that thou mayest remember the day when thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt all the days of thy life.

Deut 16:13

- 13 Thou shalt observe the feast of tabernacles seven days, after that thou hast gathered in thy corn and thy wine:

Deut 16:16

- 16 Three times in a year shall all thy males appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose; in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles: and they shall not appear before the LORD empty:

The purpose of this Tithe was to rejoice before the Lord, "and thou shalt bestow the money for whatsoever thy soul desireth" in order to "rejoice, thou and thy household: and the Levite that is within thy gates." This second tax required by God was thus for the family's pleasure.

Answer for yourself: When was the last time you were told by your Pastor-Levite who is commanded to teach the truth, that God commanded you, as a non-Jewish believer in Him, to keep, observe, and attend the Festivals and Feasts before Him as a form of rejoicing?

Answer for yourself: When was the last time your Pastor or Evangelist (Levitical teacher) told you that God commanded you to rejoice with your Tithe of the 2nd and 5th year and take your family on a spiritual retreat or celebrate Passover, Shavuot (Pentecost/Weeks), or Yom Kippur?

This Commandment is all the more startling once you understand and see for yourself that Paul taught non-Jews in his 3 missionary journeys to keep and observe the Festivals. That's right, Paul taught his congregants to keep the Festivals and Feasts of the LORD.

Answer for yourself: Now that you know that another 1/3 of your Church's budget (the Tithe of the 2nd and 5th year) was to be used for keeping the Festivals and Feasts of the LORD, don't you find it strange that your Christian Church continues to collect the Tithe from you but never keeps or observes the Festivals themselves?

Answer for yourself: Can you continue to justify giving your money and Tithe to your Church after having been shown what I have to you in this article up to now?

Dearly beloved, we either love God and obey him or love or Pastor, Church, and tradition more. This is the bottom line. Either the Bible is our authority or else our tradition and acceptance by religious people or our Church is our authority. God deserves our best. Obedience is better than sacrifice.

WELL IF WE DO WHAT YOU SAY PASTOR CRAIG...WON'T THE CHURCH GO BROKE?

I can hear some of you saying "well if we do this then we cannot support the Church or pay its bills". That is true. I have heard it all before. It has been asked of me "how are we to support the Church if we told the people not to put their yearly "Tithe" into the Local Church as is their tradition"? Many say "this is always the way we have done it". My answer may be a shock to you. You see dearly beloved the organizational structure of the modern Church is foreign to the New Testament. The Early Church was many little 'HOUSE' churches that required little overhead, thus allowing for your obedience to the Tithe or tax for six out of seven years. By supporting the House Church one did not mortgage their rewards in Heaven one day. I have yet to see a House Church with a budget of $600,000 a year. Literally the running and maintaining of the Corner Church has robbed the needy of their Tithe promised to them by God as well as their obedience before God. The growth and maintenance of big business, disguised as the church, has robbed people of the Kingdom of God in their lives. Just think with me for a minute.

Answer for yourself: How much of God's Tithe, as shown to be Commanded given to the poor, the lame, the blind, the sick, the orphans, the homeless, etc., as well as Commanded given to yourself as a Child of God whereby you and your family can keep and observe the Festivals and Feasts of the LORD are diverted in unscriptural "black holes" such as a mortgage of a large building, the electric bills for such a super-structure needed to feed the lighting, the refrigeration, the heating, to building insurance, to remodeling, to sound systems, to video projection, to tape recording equipment, to various programs of the church, etc?

The above is not sin if done according to the Scripture, but nowhere, I said nowhere, does God allow the Tithe to be used for these things. Nowhere does God sanction the use of the Tithe for "goodly things" but only "Godly things!" These must be financially supported with money over and above the Tithe, but to take the Tithe and spend it for these "goodly things" robs God and His people from the Kingdom of God coming to them through you...the Church.

To take food from the hungry, clothes from the naked, medicine from the sick, eyeglasses from the blind, hearing aids from the deaf, walkers and wheelchairs from the crippled totally destroy God's intent for the Tithe. The Christian Church for the most part stands naked before God in need of clothing herself.

What is even more scary for the Christian to realize, is that when Messiah comes and judges those worthy of Eternal Life in Matthew 25:31-46, the verse criteria whereby he judges the nations is the same criteria to which the Tithe is to support.

Answer for yourself: If we as good Christians continue to Tithe incorrectly and disobediently, and let our Church spend the Tithe we give on whatever the Pastor or staff wants to as the churches did to which I was once affiliated, what will be our judgment since we supported with our Tithe things not sanctioned by God through the Tithe or Jesus in Matthew 25?

Answer for yourself: Can you see the connection with Eternal Life and proper Tithing?

Answer for yourself: What will happen to us come judgment day when Messiah reveals to all that the vast majority of Christianity and Pastors have robbed God and His people of the Tithe their whole lives, yet all the while mistakenly believing they have obeyed God because we did what our Pastor told us to do?

Answer for yourself: Understanding the following categories are those intended to be supported with the "Poor Tithe," are we to take seriously Jesus' comments that those who fail to support the sick, the lame, the blind, the widows, the naked, the hungry, those in prison, the thirsty, etc., are to be considered "cursed" and told to "depart into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels?"

Answer for yourself: Understanding the following categories are those intended to be supported with the "Poor Tithe," are we to take seriously Jesus' comments that those who fail to support the sick, the lame, the blind, the widows, the naked, the hungry, those in prison, the thirsty, etc., are told "to go away into everlasting punishment"?

Answer for yourself: Can you not yet see for yourself that if you fail to repent and continue to support your Christian Church which devours the Tithe that this is your sure reward come the Millennial Kingdom?

Answer for yourself: Can you not yet see for yourself that if you fail to repent and continue to support your Christian Church which devours the Tithe that this is your sure reward come the Millennial Kingdom?

Answer for yourself: Can you not yet see for yourself that if you continue to support with your Tithe, knowingly or unknowingly, such things as the Church's mortgage of a large building, electric bills for such a super-structure needed to feed the lighting, refrigeration, the heating, building insurance, remodeling, sound systems, video projection equipment, tape recording equipment...that you fail to allocate such money God intended to go only to support the poor, the naked, the blind, the sick, the lame, the blind, the crippled, etc?

For every dollar you give to your Church which they don't allocate to areas where God commanded they be spent, then you rob God and His children of that dollar. For every dollar mishandled by the Church, and I assure you it is in the billions, then that much less of the Kingdom of God comes to the people who need it and to whom it was promised by God and Jesus.

The Kingdom of God comes to people through people in God's Name as we manifest it on this earth. The majority of such manifestation of the Kingdom of God come through your love as sent to others as their needs are met in the Name of God and not the name of the Government, State or Welfare program. Salvation is of God and not the State of Texas or the American Government.

Answer for yourself: If our gifts and offerings and Tithes are misdirected by the church because of the failure of our Spiritual leaders, Pastors, or Evangelists to handle the Tithe according to Scripture, then are we not guilty of robbing God and His people of what God desired they have? We sure are. You should certainly see that by now.

THE HOUSE CHURCH BECOME A SUPER-STRUCTURE

The pagan Roman Emperor Constantine began to build "corner church houses" that practically did away with the church in the home. God knew what He was doing when He told us the church was to be in the home because it would not require $10,000 a month to just keep the lights on and cooled in the summer. The Bible teaches us that money given to "mortar and concrete" instead to people's needs violates the intent of the Tithe.

The Tithe is to finance the spread of the Kingdom of God.

Answer for yourself: So if we are not to use the Tithe to support the corner Church house, how is it to be done?

God commanded another tax over and above the Tithe that was to be used to support the Temple or the Church house. Whereas the Tithe varied among incomes, everyone paid the same 1/2 shekel tax that built the Temple (mortar and concrete). Everyone paid the same amount of tax! That was not the Tithe however! No one was neglected in order to support Ministry as does the Church today. Years ago, as a young Christian, I was told that it was God's will that we build a $16 million dollar building to the Glory of God. I believed my Pastor and invested many thousands of dollars toward the endeavor. I was ignorant of the Bible and the principles of Tithing at that time of my life and only had zeal. Scriptural knowledge was replaced by my zeal for God. For after all I loved God and Jesus. My emotions led me astray and into sin. I was led to sin by my Pastor. He was on television constantly and we were constantly assured we were right. After all I was led to believe that big Ministry means God's approval. I was wrong....so wrong.

Now knowing the Scriptures which I was not familiar with then, I followed my Pastor and today have the dubious honor of raping the Children of God of thousands of dollars which could have clothed, fed, nourished, and helped thousands of people. Knowing what God has taught me since, I now see the error of my ways. I have repented before God for giving "His" money to such a cause and asked for forgiveness. Our Tithe at that Church build a building which would one day go into foreclosure. Fitting tribute to such ignorance and sin on my part. But many today are led in "noble" causes that clearly are not Biblical and Godly. Good causes are not always "Godly causes". We must never take upon ourselves the undertaking of goodly causes if it means we neglect Godly causes. If only the Christian Church knew the Scriptures better. Jesus said "ye do err not knowing the Scriptures". Only if you study will you be able to recognize error when spoken from today's pulpits, otherwise, your emotion and zeal will lead you to follow error into sin. The blind follow the blind and they both fall into the ditch. That was me. That no longer has to be you.

THE THIRD TITHE

There was also a third Tithe (Deut. 14:28f.), every third year, or twice in seven years. Some Scholars feel that the correct reading makes this a substitute for the second tithe in the appointed year. Henry Landsell, in The Tithe In Scripture, called attention to I Tobit 1:6-8 in the Apocrypha, and to Josephus (Antiquities, bk. IV), as well as to Jerome (Commentary on Ezekiel, XIV, I, 565) and Chrysostom (Homily LXIV on Matt. 20:27), to this tithe. This Tithe was a kind of social welfare tithe, to be shared with lowly foreigners, not as a hand-out, but in common feasting and rejoicing before the Lord.

Well, you have just been introduced to the truth concerning the "tithe." One thing you can admit, you have not heard this message coming from the pulpits of your Church! Why not?

WOULD GOD APPROVE OF THE WAY YOU HAVE BEEN TAUGHT TO TITHE? #2

LET LOOK AT WHAT "CHRIST" SAID ON TITHING

Jesus, the personified Christ of Judaism, did not repeal the laws of tithing. We see for example, Jesus did not condemn the Pharisees for Tithing: "these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone", that is, "the weightier matters of the Law, judgment, (justice), mercy, and faith" (Matt. 23:23).

Answer for yourself: Have you taken to heart what I have shown you in this article and will you be able to say come judgment day that you have not neglected the Tithe and left it undone in your life?

Answer for yourself: Do you know that it is never to late to begin to devote yourself to the weightier matters of the Law such as justice and mercy as seen in obedience to God in Tithing?

Answer for yourself: Since reading this article thus far, have your Pastors and Preachers taught you correctly what the Bible instruct concerning the Tithe? For most of you this material is considered new if you will be honest with yourself and God.

I need to make an additional comment about the Levite-teacher. In addition to the "First lithe," the Second Tithe is recorded for us in Deut. 14:22-29 and was for Rejoicing before the Lord and the Levite, since was considered the poor of the land, was to be included in the celebration. The Levite at this time did not receive all the Tithe as he did every First and Fourth year.

Answer for yourself: When was the last time you were taught that part of your Tithe (the Tithe of the 2nd and the 5th year) was to be given to yourself as well as Levite in order to celebrate the Festivals?

Answer for yourself: When was the last time you were told the purpose of the second Tithe was to rejoice before the Lord "and thou shalt bestow the money on whatsoever thy soul desireth" in order to "rejoice, thou and thy household: and the Levite that is within thy gates"? Probably never.

This Second Tithe is required by God and is for your family's pleasure. You should also share it with the Levites who teach the "full counsel of God" and not denominational rhetoric. Because "the workman is worthy of his meat" there must be a substantial support for all who serve you in the Lord. I Timothy 5:17 says: "Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in the word and doctrine." The word "double honor" means double pay in the Greek.

Answer for yourself: Is it not the Lord's purpose that His faithful servants not live poorly?

IS ORAL ROBERTS RIGHT WHEN HE PREACHES "DON'T EAT YOUR SEED"?

When was the last time you were told that God wanted you to "eat your seed"? If you listen to Oral Roberts you have never heard that, but that is what God has said in His Word regardless of what Oral Roberts or other Charismatic teachers. That is right, God commanded you to eat your seed in the observance of Biblical Feasts and Festivals! The Second Tithe commands it (every 2nd and 5th year). Far too often your teachers have not done their homework properly. They have not studied the Word of God diligently. Nor have they told you the complete truth concerning the Tithe. Read it for yourselves. Ask your Pastor or Preacher why they have failed to share with you this part of the Tithe.

The "Second Tithe" is known as the "Festival Tithe". In a sense it is comparable to the modern idea of a family vacation, but with an enormous difference. Unfortunately, the Festivals of the Lord are often overlooked by the churches of today, but God's Word said they were to be celebrated forever!

Answer for yourself: Who is right....God or Oral Roberts?

Answer for yourself: What are you to do when you discover that non-Jewish believers like you and me, having turned from idols to serve the living God, and grafted into Israel as in the early Church, celebrated the festivals along side the Jews for 325 years until outlawed by the pagan Roman Emperor Constantine?

Answer for yourself: Did God, who is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow, change His mind, or was it His desire and intention for His people to change what He spoke to all mankind as seen in our Church tradition today which violates what God originally said?

I COR. 11:2 SHOULD TEACH US THE TRUTH AS NON-JEWISH BELIEVERS

Study to show yourself approved! We are highly disobedient when we neglect to obey the Tithe correctly or the Festival days of the Lord which it is to finance. The ideas shared in this article today were held by Jesus as well and were not an option to Jesus, James and Paul. Look at I Cor. 11:2 for proof.

2. Now I praise you brethren that ye remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances. as I delivered them unto you.

Answer for yourself: What "ordinances" was Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles (like you and me) bringing these Greeks in Corinth?

Answer for yourself: Was he bringing them Aristotle, Plato, or Socrates' teachings?

Answer for yourself: Was he bringing them Stoic or Epicurean philosophy and theology? No!

The word for "ordinances" in the Greek means "statutes" and is related to the root word meaning commandments, customs, decrees, laws, tasks, and appointments in time (set times).

Answer for yourself: Did Paul have a watch to determine what time it was? No.

But he understood the Festival structure of Israel. The Festivals were set times for God and man to meet and fellowship. They were appointed times where we become one with God and the churches of today too often rob you of this most holy and important time that God has set aside for you. It is time to the Church to share their Tithes with lowly foreigners, not as a hand-out, but in common Feasts and Festivals and rejoicing before the Lord.

REMEMBER THIS, JESUS DID NOT REPEAL OR ABOLISH THE LAWS OF TITHING. RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS AND CHURCHES, TEACHING FALSE DOCTRINES, HAVE ESSENTIALLY RAPED THE BODY OF MESSIAH OF TRUTH CONCERNING THE TITHE AS

WELL AS THE FESTIVALS.

As stated before Jesus did not condemn the Pharisees for tithing: "these ought ye to have done and not to leave the other undone: that is, "the weightier matters of the law, judgment (justice), mercy, and faith" (Matt. 23:23). These needy ones were also cared for every year by gleaning, and by gifts. The Tithe is not a gift to the Lord nor to the needy. It is God's tax. Only that which is above and beyond the Tithe is a gift or offering. This Tithe was to be laid up within the local community "STOREHOUSE" (Mal. 3:10). The poor were to come to a community feast and they "shall eat and be satisfied" (Deut. 14:99). The payment of this Tithe would bring God's blessing upon His people and upon all the work of their hands ( Deut. 14:29). No one is exempt from the payment of this Tithe! Let us not forget the Levite-Teacher, who teaches truth and not error, also is to be blessed with part of the "poor Tithe" for he is a living symbol of religion and Law in the community.

Answer for yourself: But would God have you support a Levitical teacher who has not taught you the truth?

Having "wrestled" with a Christian religious system that some feel is above repentance, God showed me that I was no longer to support such a system since coming to the truth or else I would now become a "PARTAKER OF HER SINS". Let us not forget that God gives "Jezebels" time to repent in the churches "of Thyatira" before He judges them as well as those who are her "bedfellows" (Rev. 2:21).

Answer for yourself: Now knowing the truth what will you do?

God holds you accountable for what you now know.

The purpose underlying the remembrance of the stranger and rendering him aid was a means by which Israel could spread the Word of God. Aid delivered to those who are in need is one of the oldest and most effective means for spreading the Kingdom of Heaven. All the more reason people are reached in the name of God through proper use of the Tithe which finances the Kingdom of God.

The "Poor Tithe" was also to be used for orphans and widows because God is "a father of the fatherless and judge of the widows" (Psm. 68:5). The fact that this tax was to be used for those who had lost the principle breadwinner of the family stresses God's concern for those who are without adequate protection and care. To be either is to be helpless. Since they are helpless God has appointed Himself as their Protector and Guardian. But God protects and guards through your righteous giving of the poor Tithe. This cannot happen as desired by God and to the degree He intends unless your Tithing is correct.

Look at Exodus:

And Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

If thou afflict them in any wise. and they cry at all unto me. I will surely hear their cry.

'I fend my wrath shall wax hot. and I will kill you with the sword: and your wives shall be widows. and you children fatherless.

Widows and orphans are especially helpless members of society because of their lack of a husband and father. This lack of continuing economic support means "chronic" poverty "unless" they are given aid periodically. This was one of the functions of the Poor Tithe in Israel. By aiding the fatherless and the widow as specific intervals, Israel would prevent the appearance of the problem of chronic and debilitating poverty. Yes, they would tend to remain poor, but there is a major distinction between being a poor member of an affluent society and existing in a perpetual state of chronic and destructive poverty (forcing one to turn to crime to survive). In addition such aid would prevent the breakup of the family unit through separation and divorce due to the lack of adequate financial support. This in turn brings social stability and promotes the Kingdom of Heaven. This principle is more readily understood if one recognizes that poor loans, rather than the Poor Tithe, were to be the means by which the poor of society were to be taken care of in Israel. These poor loans were emergency loans for the relief of emergency conditions. Since they were non-interest bearing, and were to be forgotten on the Sabbatical Year, they were the means of relieving "temporary" conditions of poverty (Deut. 15: 7-11). But those whose conditions tended toward chronic and permanent poverty were to be striven periodic and substantial assistance by the Lord's Poor Tithe. The Poor Tithe was to be used by "the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widows "which are within thy gates" ( Deut. 14:29). Notice that local giving was required because such giving presupposed that the "giver" knew local conditions.

Therefore, he would be without excuse if he failed to administer this Tithe correctly. He was to know the character of the people who were to receive his Tithe. This is almost impossible if you hand over the responsibility to Church leadership and yourself not have a hand in how your Tithe is spent. You, the giver, are held personally responsible to God for how and to whom God's Poor Tithe is administered. The Biblical principle is that we first give and meet the needs in our Jerusalem, next Judea, then Samaria, and only then the outer parts of the world. To give and meet the needs overseas and fail to meet the need of others sitting next to you in your pew, or your neighborhood is a sin against God.

The principle of the Poor Loan is that it is to be used to relieve temporary conditions that could lead to chronic poverty such as loans to pay for emergency medical expenses, relief of the unemployed, relief of financial problems, etc. In summary, the Poor Loan is to be given to the poor brethren who shows faith in his life. They are to be given to "enemies" as well as those whom we love. They are interest free. They require no security deposit and the loan is not to be longer than six years. If the loan is repaid in that time then it is to be canceled.

It seems we must address a few more important areas as we close this teaching. The poor were to receive ALL THE TITHE and not just a trickle-down from the overall Tithe as the churches of today practice. Giving a token amount from the overall budget of the Church does not cut it with God!

Answer for yourself: How much of the Tithe you give actually gets to the widows and orphans, let alone the Levite?

Answer for yourself: Does the Benevolence ministry get 1/3 of your Church's yearly income, and if not, why not now that you have seen for yourself?

Answer for yourself: Are you told to keep 1/3 of your yearly Tithe to help you, your family, and the poor celebrate, keep, and observe Passover, Shavuot (Pentecost), and Tabernacles, and if not, why not now that you have seen for yourself?

Too often the Preacher and the local organization (the Church budget) GETS THE MAJORITY IF NOT ALL OF IT! Too often the churches of today do not let the Tithe flow down Aaron's beard and it never gets to the feet (the congregation).

Having taught what Jesus both believed and would have taught about tithing, giving, and benevolence it is disappointing when one talks with fellow Pastors about these principles and you are only told "well I don't agree" or "we have always told the people this or that". I had one Pastor tell me that "we tell the people to give even if it hurts."

Answer for yourself: Would Jesus tell you to give to the building fund or rent for your Church till it hurts (because that is what your Church leadership needs it for)?

Answer for yourself: Would Jesus tell you to give your Tithe and go hungry?

Well that is in reality what the Church is doing, and worst of all, made you an accomplice to its theft of the poor when they collect money God destined to be used on the poor and use it for other causes such as the rent, insurance, etc.!

Once a Pastor many came to me and asked me to pray for their forgiveness since they had eaten their Tithe because they had no food.

Answer for yourself: Who is responsible for such bondage?

Were they ever so shocked when we opened the Word of God and exposed lies taught by their denomination passed off as truth to those not familiar with the Scriptures. The Bible teaches that those who teach error are "spots and blemishes" in the church: they are false prophets. They are those that deceive the flock God and this angers God. If you were without food in your house God would not only tell you but has ALREADY TOLD YOU to "eat your Tithe" as we have shown.

Answer for yourself: What about the seventh year?

Answer for yourself: Have you kept your Tithe? God says to but your Pastor may object. Shame on him for lying.

Remember Israel was sent into captivity for seventy years for tilling the soil the seventh year and tithing from it when God said to let the land "rest".

Answer for yourself: What blessings from God are we deprived of by our Pastors and Churches when we Tithe that seventh year?

Answer for yourself: Have we not learned anything from Israel's example or is our greed so great we don't care to obey God any longer?

We must study our Bibles if we are to live more Biblically obedient lifestyles.

Answer for yourself: Do you want God to bless the work of your hands?

God promised to bless you when you obey the Tithe.

Answer for yourself: Could God be withholding blessing from you and the churches of today because Christianity, for the most part, does not teach and practice the Apostle's Doctrine correctly and teach tithing incorrectly?

Answer for yourself: Would the God we love judge us even if we gave and gave but gave in error?

Ask Cain! Cain brought a sacrifice to God that came from a cursed source. God had previously cursed the ground. If we give our Tithe continually to the Church and not hold them accountable for how they spend the LORD'S Tithe and are unaware where it is applied will we be held blameless by God? Your teachers are without excuse!

Today, many people give generously to various causes, but their giving is impulsive and emotional. Often they are made to feel guilty as they are "whipped" and "driven" during the offering times in our churches. Many like to give to their churches or programs which will provide excitement and Hollywoodish productions: yet the poor and their needs take a back seat to the needs of the Pastoral Staff in order to solidify their jobs. Let's face it....in reality medical help and food are not given to the needed by the Church (1/3 of the budget) because the "show must go on!" Entertainment, utilities, bricks, and mortar get what God intended for His people. GOD IS WATCHING AND WILL JUDGE! GOD IS ALREADY JUDGING! How can America have so many churches, so many preachers on television, and we are losing our nation to sin, crime, drugs, Pornography, etc. God is judging. God's money must go to God's causes: Levites who teach the truth, musicians who sing the truth, yourself and your family at Festival and Sabbath times, and possibly most importantly, the poor, widows, the hungry, and orphans. The Tithe can no longer be channeled to "exciting" causes but must be given to Godly causes. The robbery must stop.

Are you ready to ask your Pastor such and Deacon Board some very pointed questions on how your Church is spending God's Tithe?

Help your Pastor and Preacher understand what we have shown you but don't be surprised if you don't get the reception you had hoped for, because if repentance is to come it must begin with Aaron's beard. You Pastor might have to get a real job. I quit robbing God and resigned the Church as it was structured in order to be more obedient in my life. He can too and still minister. I do.

It is my hope this teaching has helped you sort out for yourself God's design for Biblical Giving. Please pray about what has been shown you. What I have shared with you comes strictly from the Word of God. Please look up the Scriptures for yourself and speak to God about it. If this teaching has blessed you and instructed you "in a more perfect way" we would appreciate you pray about helping us at Bet Emet, as well as other Ministries like Bet Emet, who endeavor to return to the Faith once given to the saints. Correct understanding of God's Word and "rightly dividing it" will set you FREE! We hope you see us as one who tries to function today as a teaching Levite who is dedicated to truth at any price and who endeavors to restore Biblical Truth to the Christian Church as Jesus would have us do.

Answer for yourself: If Jesus did not intend to destroy the Law and contained within it the message concerning the Tithe, what gives us a right today to teach it differently today?

WHAT WAS YESHUA'S MESSAGE AND HAVE WE UNDERSTOOD HIM CORRECTLY?

The Apostle Paul wrote for the Gentile believers in Ephesus: "There is one body, and one Spirit . . . one hope . . . one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one G-d and Father of all . . ." Eph 4:4-6

Answer for yourself: Do you believe the above statement and passage as recorded for us in the New Testament? I sure hope so.

Well in you truly do, then you are in the minority of Christians worldwide who ascribe to this belief

I suppose my above statement is puzzling to most so let me explain, although it is not very far from the truth as I will point out to you in this article. I pray you have the courage to read this article in its entirety and respond to it by calling me to inquire about how you can come to "the faith (one and only) ONCE given to the saints" as Jude 3 instructs. If you fail to respond may the Lord have mercy upon you in the sure judgment which will be your lot if you fail to heed this warning..

Ephesians 4:4-6 (above) speaks of a unified body of believers called out around G-d's Messiah (understood as G-d's anointed messenger).

Answer for yourself: How many different Jesuses are there?

There was only one Yeshua and, in the beginning, he had only one group of followers. Even 10 to 15 years after the crucifixion, we still hear of only one group of followers. In the Book of Acts we find them sharing common meals on the Sabbath, collecting alms for less fortunate members [and not investing in stained glass cathedrals], praying together, and continuing to be one body of believers.

Answer for yourself: Since the Book of Acts provides for us a picture of "the church" which Yeshua said he would build, then shouldn't we expect to find his church in the same condition today? You would think so since the Book of Hebrews instructs us in 13:8: "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and for ever."

Well, the sad fact of the matter almost 2000 years later. . . . over 1,600,000,000 Christians around the world are divided into thousands of conflicting and competing manifestations of the faith of Yeshua which is "the faith once given to the saints" (called today denominations and non-denominations)!

Answer for yourself: Is there only one church or denomination in your town?

I bet if you look in the Yellow Pages of your telephone book or on the religion page of your local newspaper you'll see many denominations in your town which offer a multitude of conflicting and competing doctrines.

Answer for yourself: With all these conflicting denominations and churches, when asked, will they tell you and proclaim to others that they have "the truth"?

Answer for yourself: How can you tell which of these multitudes of church, if any, teach what Yeshua believed, and how can you tell which teach doctrines that Yeshua never believed?

Answer for yourself: Since there is ONLY "one faith" how can we justify the existence of these multitudes of conflicting faiths and denominations we see?

Answer for yourself: Can Yeshua believe and support the thousands of different and conflicting doctrines which are taught in his name as we see today?

Answer for yourself: If you took my offer and looked at the religious section of your newspaper were you not amazed at the multitudes of churches claiming they are the houses of truth?

Answer for yourself: How did we get "here" from "there" [thousands of competing denominations from just one Jerusalem church]?

Answer for yourself: What has happened in the last 2,000 years that caused the original Messianic Movement of Yeshua to explode into thousands of denominations which have nothing, or very little, to do with each other?

Answer for yourself: How can they all proclaim that "there is one body, and one Spirit, one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one G-d and Father of all" when there very existence disproves it?

Answer for yourself: Surely this organized form of chaos doesn't make much sense to you, does it"?

We at Bet Emet have found the answer to this dilemma. Please keep reading.

YET YOU CALL YOURSELF A CHRISTIAN ... "RIGHT"

"We can get a glimpse of what the word "Christian" means simply by looking at some of the people who have been identified as "Christians" - Constantine, Adolph Hitler, Jim Jones, David Koresh, Jimmy Swaggart, Jim Bakker, etc. The term "Christian" has become a catchall word that is used to describe the beliefs and doctrines of anyone who claims to believe in Yeshua. It has become such an abused term that the Catholic Encyclopedia defines the word "Christian" as follows: "A name first given to the followers of our Lord at Antioch (Acts 11:26). Since the rise of Protestantism the name has been used in so many different senses as to have become almost meaningless. . . ."

Answer for yourself: Do you think this is what Yeshua had in mind 2,000 years ago when he called out a people to be his church (called out assembly of like-minded believers)?

Answer for yourself: Do you really believe that Yeshua would have wanted his name attached to all the things that have been done "in his name" by people who called themselves Christians ?

Answer for yourself: Would you want your name attached to them (just think of the inquisition and the holocaust)?

Answer for yourself: What do you think Yeshua would say, or better yet will say, to the leaders of those thousands of conflicting and contradicting denominations when they die and meet him in person?

Answer for yourself: Do you think Yeshua is happy that denominational and non-denominational leaders are keeping his 1,600,000,000 followers divided, disunited, and competing with each other because they have not known and are being deprived of "his doctrine"?

Answer for yourself: How can thousands of different manifestations of Christianity, with doctrines that oppose each other, be possibly fulfilling the Great Commission by teachings others to observe those things commanded by Yeshua when they themselves don't?

Answer for yourself: Have I stimulated your thinking to the point where you are beginning to see that for the most part the majority of Christianity, as evidenced by their very existence, are not teaching his doctrine which promotes "one faith" and which he commanded be taken into all the world to Gentiles like you and me?

Answer for yourself: Do you consider yourself a part of Yeshua's church?

Answer for yourself: Can you be a part of Yeshua's church and not believe what he believed?

Answer for yourself: Can you be a part of Yeshua's church and not teach what he taught, or even teach the opposite?

Answer for yourself: If you are part of a church that teaches opposite to what Yeshua believed and taught, then are you more a part of man's traditions and man's church than Yeshua's church?

Answer for yourself: If you currently hold a belief system that opposes what Yeshua both taught and believed, then how can you justify to yourself that you follow in his footsteps and hold to the religious belief system approved of by him, let alone convince yourself that you somehow follow the "one faith" as Ephesians chapter 4 instructs?

Answer for yourself: Is the chaotic conflicting and contradicting conglomeration of denominations and non-denominations what Yeshua wanted?

Answer for yourself: Didn't he say, "A house divided against itself cannot stand"?

WHAT STANDARD APPLIES TO CHRISTIANITY: G-D'S WORD OR MEN'S TRADITIONS?

Christianity's most foundational doctrine - salvation - is based upon Yeshua. Take Yeshua out of the Christian doctrine of salvation and it collapses.

Answer for yourself: Therefore, since there was only one real Yeshua, and all of the thousands of denominations base their entire reason for existence upon him - shouldn't Yeshua's teachings, his faith, and beliefs be the standard for all forms of Christianity as well as for yourself?

Answer for yourself: Shouldn't every Christian doctrine be in harmony with the faith and beliefs of Yeshua and his Apostles who answered his call to a Great Commission that was to assure Gentiles coming to the same faith of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: As a non-Jewish believer, do you have the faith of Yeshua, and how can you prove both you and your church believe the same doctrines that Yeshua did and do not adhere to others which contradict his teachings?

Well that's not too hard for you because you can begin to study in a systematic way the beliefs held by Yeshua concerning his faith as it existed in the first century church. It is this faith that was taken by Yeshua's Apostles into all the world.

Answer for yourself: What would you do if you could be shown that several of your religious beliefs, when scrutinized with what the Bible really teaches when seen in the original language, are wrong and that Yeshua never held such beliefs, in fact believed just the opposite?

Answer for yourself: Could anyone really say that they not only don't agree with or care about the beliefs and faith of Yeshua, but even hold opposing and conflicting views to his - yet believe their eternal destiny, eternal rewards, and salvation are guaranteed by Yeshua?

Most Christians are well acquainted with the foundational doctrines of their church, denomination, or non-denomination, but know very little about the faith and beliefs of the real Yeshua. Let me point out that the reason I keep using the term "the real Yeshua" is to separate him from the hundreds of different "theological Jesuses" that have been created over the past 2,000 years by the Gentile church. The theological Jesuses are created, learned about, worshipped, and prayed to in Christian churches around the world every week. Amazingly, they are usually very different from the real Yeshua. The fact of the matter is that generations of Christians have never been introduced to the real Yeshua!

If Shown Your Religious Belief System Is In Error...Are You Willing To Change Your Religious Belief System In Order To Have A More Biblically Pleasing Life-style Before G-d?

The above question seems so innocent and you might expect everyone to say "yes" because they love G-d and Yeshua. But that is not the case, and in fact experience tells me that the vast majority of readers, after reading this article, will not respond. And for the life of me I cannot understand such complacency. I pray you will be different.

Over the years, having studied the Bible, Biblical history and culture, as well as Biblical languages, I, as well as others, have established guideline for study that has helped find our way through this great theological maze. I hope that you will agree to follow it because I know that if you do, you will come to understand that obedience to G-d is the highest form of love we can give Him.

HERE IS BET EMET'S FOUNDATIONAL PRINCIPLE

A Christian's religious belief system, when tested and exposed to contradictory facts from Biblical languages, history, culture, and archeology, must in the Spirit of Truth and repentance, be flexible enough to change

Answer for yourself: Do you find anything in the above statement that you find unacceptable?

Answer for yourself: Is there really any other way, if you truly want the truth?

Obviously, anyone who excludes any fact, refuses to allow their beliefs to be tested, or is so rigid that they choose to cling to false beliefs when shown a more perfect way rather than change, will never completely hold the truth. So please make the decision to follow the above guideline as you begin this journey to discover the real Yeshua. You will never be sorry.

Answer for yourself: What if you were given the choice of meeting with the real Yeshua or with the top theologians of your denomination? Which meeting would you attend?

Hopefully, every Christian would choose to meet face-to-face with Yeshua. Let's suppose that during the meeting Yeshua pointed out that some of your beliefs were wrong and had led you into sin. I know that you wouldn't hesitate for one second to change. Hopefully every Christian would follow Yeshua's position - even the theologians.

Answer for yourself: Could a person, who bases their salvation and eternal destiny upon Yeshua, disagree with his beliefs when shown they are in error ?

Answer for yourself: How many times have you heard someone say: "I want to be just like Yeshua"? Shouldn't every Christian want to be like him?

Answer for yourself: Are we like Yeshua when our religious beliefs and experiences contradict what both he and his Apostles taught? If you think your church's doctrines don't do that then you evidently have not studied the Jewish Jesus or are simply naive.

Answer for yourself: Since Yeshua is the one upon whom all of Christianity's belief system depends, could there be any higher goal than to be like Yeshua and have the faith of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: But how much time does your church really spend teaching you about him, how he lived, and Apostolic doctrine?

Answer for yourself: Do you know what the Apostolic Doctrine consists of? Could it be different from some of the things included in the New Testament and you not know it?

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that just saying that your church teaches Apostolic doctrine does not make it so?

Answer for yourself: When you read your Bible, how much time do you spend studying Yeshua's words?

Answer for yourself: If you are like the average Christian, you spend much more time on Paul's words. Why?

Since a majority of Christian doctrines are based on Paul's words, it only makes sense that they would spend most of the time reading his books.

Answer for yourself: When you read the Epistles and Paul's words, do you look up the English words in their Greek and Hebrew origins, thus assuring you have the real meaning intended for you?

Another reason that most Christians do not spend most of their time studying Yeshua's words is that, in many cases, they lack the necessary skills required to do so, and secondarily, the words when looked up seem very difficult to understand considering we have never been acquainted with them before. In other words the message we have heard as taught from the English of our Bibles is often very different from the message that comes from tracing backward the English translation into its original Greek and Hebrew meanings. Thus we seem to be confused and usually revert back to the English since we are more used to that. There is just ONE MAJOR PROBLEM WITH THAT APPROACH: GOD DID NOT GIVE US THE BIBLE IN ENGLISH!

Just compare several English translations to each other and you will quickly discover that there are many differing interpretations of Yeshua's words today. The problem is compounded when those thousands of denominations put their "spin" on them. Let's get down to the nitty-gritty.

Answer for yourself: If you have two English translations of Yeshua's words, and they contradict or conflict with each other, CAN THEY BOTH BE CORRECT?

Answer for yourself: If you read your English Bible and arrive at an understanding based upon your previous knowledge of the English word in question, but when looked up in the Greek or Hebrew you find a completely different concept than is conveyed in the English, then which are you to believe....the Greek or Hebrew meaning from which the English was to be a carbon copy, or a faulty English translation which can, upon diligent study, reveal that the two meanings are not the same?

Answer for yourself: Do we have the words of G-d and Yeshua if our English words in our Bible, when viewed and compared from the original languages, differ in concept and meaning?

Answer for yourself: Do you want to understand the words and concepts within the Bible as understood and spoken by Yeshua and his Apostles to which the Great Commission was entrusted, or will you settle for a poorly translated English version which does injustice to the original meanings in many places?

In order for healing to begin in Christianity's chaotic divided house, and if there be any hope to arrive at the "unity of the faith," each Christian must make it his or her personal goal to do everything in their power to discover the ancient original meaning of Yeshua's words. The first step on your journey to reach that goal is to ask some very simple questions:

Answer for yourself: What did the words of Yeshua mean to him when spoken in Hebrew?

Answer for yourself: What did the words mean as heard by his audience (Hebrews)?

Answer for yourself: Do you think the hearers of Yeshua's messages thought that they would have to wait thousands of years before they could understand correctly what Yeshua was saying since they did not have the English language and the English meanings assigned to these Hebrew words?

Answer for yourself: Do you think that the hearers of Yeshua and Paul would need a Webster's dictionary to understand Yeshua correctly?

Answer for yourself: Do you think that Yeshua needed a Webster's dictionary so he could provide them with an English understanding of what he was saying before they could rightly understand the words of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that many Hebrew religious concepts were NOT faithfully translated into the Greek for Gentile audiences?

Answer for yourself: What did the words of the Apostle Paul mean to him when spoken and written in Greek?

Answer for yourself: What did these Greek words mean to Paul's Gentile audiences?

Answer for yourself: Are these same Hebrew concepts taught by Yeshua to his Apostles which are intended for all nations in the Great Commission and as taught by Paul during his missionary journeys faithfully translated into Greek and later faithfully translated into English?

Answer for yourself: Are these Hebraic concepts taught by my church or has my church leaned upon a poor English translation for their doctrines?

Answer for yourself: After arriving at the original meanings of the words of Yeshua, the Apostles, and Paul, then does my church doctrines agree or conflict with the teachings of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: How can I know for sure that I have not been taught in error and that Pastor Craig is telling me the truth if I don't study to find these truths for myself and verify what Bet Emet is teaching?

Answer for yourself: If shown you have been in error about major truths and doctrines because you had not the correct meanings of Hebrew and Greek words, then having come to this new truth, do you feel compelled to share these new truths you learned with others? I would hope so

RIGHTLY DIVIDING AND INTERPRETING THE WORD OF G-D

There is only one way that you can discover the original meaning of the ancient messages of Yeshua, as well as the other words of your Bible. It is by learning to use G-d's Laws of Language. G-d's Linguistic Law continues to function in our world today. However, very few students of the Bible are aware of it, and even fewer know how to use it. This linguistic law is the standard which you can use to test any translation of the Bible or any group's interpretation of the words of its Bible. G-d's Linguistic Law looks so very simple but, in a very short while, you will discover that the results of its application are profound!

WE MUST LEARN HOW TO USE WORDS PROPERLY

A word is one or more symbols with an attached bundle of associations. The bundle of associations is a product of the author's or speaker's culture, historical time period, geographical location, and personal experiences. Words are the vehicles that transport thoughts. Our goal is to rediscover the original thoughts of the ancient authors and speakers of the words of our Bible. If we are unaware of G-d's Law of Language, we tend to project our modern beliefs into the ancient words of the Bible. Instead of discovering the original meanings of the words of the ancient authors, we may actually be building a theological wall that makes it impossible to see them. We must constantly keep in mind that our goal is to search for the original meanings for the author's or speaker's words. The original meaning for Yeshua's words is the only accurate one and any other's opinions are not important, but rather deceiving.

Answer for yourself: Don't you only want to accurately understand his messages?

Studying the Bible without adhering to the Laws of Language will assure you of error-laden translations, incorrect interpretations, and false doctrines are eagerly waiting for an uninformed reader!

AN AUTHOR'S CULTURE...A MAJOR FACTOR IN DISCOVERING THE ORIGINAL MEANING OF A PASSAGE IN THE BIBLE

Words do not mysteriously appear out of thin air. Symbols (letters) and "bundles of associations" (meaning) are not cryptically joined together without the intervention of a formal linguistic system. Words are the vehicles that transport the culture of a civilization. In order to accurately understand any message we must first learn as much as possible about the author's culture. The bundles of associations attached to author's words reflect his culture's way of looking at the world. It is through language that we receive the culturally imposed sets of values and beliefs of the author's society.

Culture is defined as the whole behavior and technology of any people that is passed on from generation to generation. Culture includes the knowledge, beliefs, morals, laws, religion, customs, concepts, habits, skills, institutions, and any other capabilities of a given people in a given time period.

We all think, act, and react in ways that have been primarily predetermined by our culture.

You cannot understand the words of people from a different culture if you can interpret them according to your culture

The reading of materials from another culture and time period, such as the words of the Bible, requires the reader to do preliminary groundwork in order to acquire a sensitive appreciation of the author's language and culture. Without understanding a passage from the author's language and culture, it will be impossible to accurately understand the message being conveyed. Accuracy demands we understand the passage exactly as the author meant for it to be understood.

DON'T BE DECEIVED ANY LONGER

Three traps await the unprepared student of the Bible who doesn't understand G-d's Linguistic Law. Such a person mistakenly supposes the following:

- (1) All languages must necessarily work out in somewhat the same fashion and words in one language automatically carry the same meaning when translated into another language. This is not always true for often a second language does not have a word that carries the same concept as in the first language.
- (2) The structure of the language of primitive groups is necessarily simple. Again this is not so for often words, in Hebrew for example, carry nuances that words in a second language like Greek and English do not.

(3) Words have the same meaning for everyone regardless of language and culture. Again this is not so true because words in a second language can either limit the original word and its meaning or enlarge upon it and give it a meaning not intended by the original speaker.

The last trap is the one that catches the most people. We have the tendency to consider our way of life as the best or correct way. We use our motives, habits, and values as the standard for evaluating others. We tend to scale or rate others by how much they are like or unlike ourselves. Naturally, we take for granted that our culture is superior to any other culture. We unconsciously assume that the words of another mean the same they do in our culture. Our culture is the yardstick by which we measure all other cultures or people. If they are like us, then we use terms such as these to describe them: right, good, progressive, superior, chosen, or true. If they are different, we have a tendency to use terms such as wrong, bad, backward, inferior, heathen, barbarian, foreign, or savage.

Every time we study our Bible, we must be aware of the tendency to project our culture into its words. If we fall into that trap, we will mistakenly view the biblical world as if it were just like our world today. The only way to accurately understand the words of our Bible is to view them in light of the author's or speaker's culture, its motives, habits, and values. We must always remember that familiar words in our everyday lives often take on new meanings, meanings that are often very different from G-d's intended meanings for us when we read and study His Word..

DISCOVERING THE REAL JESUS...THE YESHUA OF JUDAISM

Every time you open your Bible to Yeshua's words, pause and say, "Yeshua wasn't an American and I must view his words through his own Jewish culture." This is the only way to accurately understand his words and discover the original meaning. The purpose of this article is to provide you with information about the culture of Israel as it existed 2,000 years ago when Yeshua lived there. Our goal is not to tell you what to believe. It is only to help you test your beliefs and modify them as you discover error.

Let the healing begin today in Yeshua's divided house. Let's discover what Yeshua's words meant to him. In like fashion, having come to a truer knowledge of what the words of Yeshua, his Apostles, and Paul meant, then let our lives reflect them in repentance and subsequent adoption of a more Biblical life-style.

THE CHURCH THAT YESHUA PROMISED TO BUILD...DO YOU ATTEND THERE?

Answer for yourself: Do you belong to the church that Yeshua is building or to the one that man has been building over the ages of church history?

Answer for yourself: Has your church departed from the original intent of its founder, Yeshua Christ?

Answer for yourself: What was the original intent of Jesus for the church?

Answer for yourself: Does your church even know what the original intent that Yeshua had for his church?

These are interesting questions that must be answered.

After having been exposed to Greek and Hebrew I realized that it was very important to have the "correct" meaning for every word in the Bible. I pondered what the words of our Bible meant to the people who originally wrote or spoke them. Since I have always been an inquisitive person, I just had to look for the answers to the questions the Lord led me to. Some of you have gone along with me in my search for "truth" and we will continue until the "day of the Lord". The answers to the questions I pose to you are very important because the "answers" should determine the Standard by which we should live our lives and how our religious community governs itself. After several years of research I now know that what I had been taught by my "pastor" was simply not true or at least incomplete!

I have encountered many people who have told me that they wanted to know the truth. When they were told the truth and discovered that it differed, sometimes radically from their experience, they chose to ignore it because of the possible problems that it would cause at their church since it disagreed with their "church's teachings." Such is the matter of the current teaching.

The concept of the "church" is one that has been continually developing over many centuries and has seen little agreement as to the above questions concerning Yeshua's original intent for the church. Today there are numerous conflicts over the true meaning of what the "church" should be. To arrive at the true church as G-d would have it we must be bold in exposing myths to arrive at the truth. Repentance is the order of the day! The word "church" comes for the Old English word "kirke", meaning a "circle", especially a circle formed in pagan ritualistic worship! In almost every English translation of the Bible, the word "church" is used for the Greek word "ekklesia". "Ekklesia" is made up of two words "ek" meaning "out of", and "klesis" meaning "a calling". Thus you can easily see that the church is to be understood as people "called out of something". What are we to be called out from? I Thess. 1:9 teaches us that Gentiles, like you and me, are "called out" of paganism in order to "turn to G-d from idols to serve the living and true G-d". Thus, in the English Bible, when we encounter the word "church", it should be translated "the called out" or "the called out ones". The word "church" does not just mean an "assembly" as it has come to mean in today's language and experience. When any of the New Testament writers used the word "church" they spoke of "The Ekklesia", a people called out of the world by G-d, to be holy unto Him in some specific way. G-d desired we be "holy" which means "sanctified, different, apart from the norm".

Answer for yourself: If we are to gather as a group of people to just eat together, have meetings together, or have services together, are we manifesting the intent of Yeshua when he called us out of our darkness into the light of God's will for our lives? Hardly not!

Answer for yourself: If such a simple and important foundational concept can be lost due to mis-translation, how much other truths have we lost along the 1900 years of church tradition?

The answer to this question will boggle your mind as it did mine as I searched for the truth of God's Word for my life. Too easily can the identity of what Yeshua desired to be built be transformed into a structure that Yeshua can barely recognize today.

Answer for yourself: Once you realize that Yeshua (the Hebrew name for Yeshua) never used the word "church" in the manner as you have come to understand and experience, the question must be asked: "what did he intend it to both be and do"?

The answer will come as we reexamine the tradition of the original "church" as it relates to the true people of G-d.

We must never forget that the Hebrew Scriptures were translated into the Greek for the Greek speaking Gentiles that were later to come to the faith in the One true G-d of Israel. The Septuagint is the "Tanakh", or the Jewish Old Testament, which was translated from the original Hebrew to Ancient Greek language by 70 rabbis before the New Testament era. By the time of Yeshua (Yeshua), the Septuagint was widely available for study throughout the Hellenistic (Greek speaking and influenced) world. Correct understanding of the Septuagint is very important because it interprets the Hebrew Scriptures and Hebrew concepts into the Greek language and serves as a linguistic bridge between the Old Testament, which was written in Hebrew, and the New Testament, much of which was originally written in Hebrew, and later translated into Greek for the Greek speaking Gentiles.

The form of the word "ekklesia" is found in the Septuagint. It is translated from the original Hebrew word "Miqrā", which also means "called out". "Miqrā" is used 22 times in the Old Testament. Surprisingly, in each case it refers to the holy convocation (gathering, assembly) of Israel, the people of G-d, as they hear and obey the call to attend a feast and festival celebration (Ex. 12:16). Understand, that before Yeshua came, the Jewish mind (the mind of Christ is a Jewish mind) understood that the "Miqrā" and the "Ekklesia" are one-in-the same concept. When we translate from the Hebrew into the Greek the concepts should not change. Laws of Hermeneutics (interpretation) demand that each word, when translated, refer to the same concept identically, and in this case, the ones being called out are called out for a specific purpose; to celebrate the Feasts and Festivals of Israel! That should astound you!

Answer for yourself: When was the last time your Pastor told you that you gather together for the intent and purpose, as taught by Yeshua, to celebrate the Festivals of the Lord?

Answer for yourself: When was the last time your church celebrated Passover, Unleavened Bread, First Fruits, Pentecost, Rosh HaShanah, Festival of Trumpets, Day of Atonement, Tabernacles, let alone all the minor feasts? If this was the sole purpose for Yeshua calling believers out from Paganism, I wonder what Yeshua feels about the church today.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever tried to build a "house" without following the architect's plans? What would the finished product look like?

Answer for yourself: Would the architect (Yeshua) even recognize the "house" when it was completed?

Answer for yourself: What would the architect feel or say when confronted with his house that was a misrepresentation of what his heart had intended all along?

Answer for yourself: Would Yeshua even recognize the intent behind all the hay, wood, and stubble that men have used during 1900 years of "church history" in building the house we see today?

Answer for yourself: Would Yeshua recognize the "church today" as the "Miqla" of G-d? No he would not!

One may reason that since church is from Ekklesia, and Ekklesia is from Miqla, and Miqla is the called out of Israel, that the church of today is the Israel of G-d.

Answer for yourself: Sounds good, but where is the original intent of the builder?

We are called out for the express purpose to celebrate the festivals of the Lord, not just to meet together to eat, have meetings to establish programs, to worship. All this is important, but is wasted energy if we fail to understand the original intent of the architect (Yeshua). Our purpose is to meet to celebrate the Festivals and Feasts of the Lord. Without obedience to the master builder, Yeshua, our purpose is man centered, and not G-d centered.

Answer for yourself: Will the church ever study and wake up to the reality that we find in G-d and His Word?

Some have, and many more will as we come to the truth of the words of the Bible.

Yeshua said "I will build my assembly of called out ones (Ekklesia) and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." (Matt. 16:18). For a real treat, look up the real word used for "hell" in this verse. You will be really surprised to find that "hades" does not mean "hell" as you have been told. Call me when you find out and let's discuss it. Now back to the matter at hand. The Lord called His people to attend His holy feasts. Those that attended the festivals and feasts are the true "Miqla" or "Ekklesia" of G-d. To do otherwise is a poor copy of the original plans of G-d. This is the Hebraic and Jewish concept which Yeshua meant when he said, "I will build My Ekklesia." Yeshua was stating that he was going to build a gathering of people called out to celebrate God's feasts. An assembly of people were to be formed who would celebrate the revelation of Messiah in the appointed feasts of Israel.

Answer for yourself: But that is not news to you, or is it?

Answer for yourself: What has prevented your church from teaching this to you before now?

G-d never intended that His Ekklesia was to be a group of people divorced from the Hebraic and Jewish concepts of Miqla. The Miqla, or called out one, are always people who are to be linked to Israel, not to the early Catholic Church Fathers, to Luther, or to Calvin, or to the Charismatic movement of today. We are grafted into Israel, and Israel is NOT grafted into the Protestant church of today!

G-d never intended to have a Gentile church separated from the Hebraic church. Remember the first church that Yeshua said he would build was a Hebraic church and it existed for thirty years before any Gentile was admitted into the membership! That should tell you something. G-d never had two separate people. The middle wall of partition is destroyed today. G-d wants to make one holy people. This holy (separate) people resides in Israel. Rabbi Shaul (Paul) said, that the gentiles who trust in Yeshua's message are grafted into the tree of Israel (Rom. 11:17). Once grafted in, they are all, Jews and non-Jews, called together to feast on the Lord as we participate in the Festivals of the Lord.

Only when the Jewish people, together with spiritual Jews (Gentile believers), accept the call to become one Israel, will G-d's Ekklesia and Miqla be realized. Then, and only then will the "gates of hell" not be able to prevail against it!

Answer for yourself: Let me ask you, have you not wondered why you have not gotten more out of your church experience than you have?

Let me say that we can begin by looking at the conspicuous absence in most churches of the Feasts of the Lord.

G-d never intended for Jews to convert to a Gentile "church", but the opposite; Gentiles converted into a Hebrew church! We have missed the mark 180 degrees! No wonder we go to church and leave asking "is that all there is"? No, there is lots more, but only when we restructure the church in the Hebraic fashion that G-d originally intended. Celebration of the festivals must be the focus of what the church is all about.

This truth has been hidden for centuries. Yeshua full well understood what he was saying in Matt. 16:18, it is us who have misunderstood. His audience that day were Jews who understood his message. It is we Gentiles who failed to understand. The original understanding has been lost to the Gentile church because of its blind traditions that make the Word of G-d of non effect. It is time for believing Gentiles to regain the original intention of the Word of G-d concerning Ekklesia and Miqra. This will only happen when you decide to love the Word of G-d more than your traditions, especially when you traditions conflicts with the Word of G-d.

Answer for yourself: Who is right, G-d or your denomination?

When they conflict, I will accept G-d's opinion over the church's every time. Let us never again claim we are the church if we do not accept Yeshua's definition of what the church is to both do and be.

Your response is desired. Study to show yourself approved!

THE REAL YESHUA AND THE FOUNDING OF CHRISTIANITY

In the Western world, Christians imagine Yeshua as tall, probably with blond hair and beard, blue eyes, and wearing a white robe and an other-worldly expression. When one does critical research you will find that the Jews of the first century were "black" in color as their heritage comes from Egypt as Semites who intermarried with the black races of Egypt. Almost certainly, he was short by modern standards and dark-skinned. His black beard was long and untrimmed. He undoubtedly wore earlocks, the peyot (Egyptians wore their hair the same way) that are displayed today not only by the ultra-Orthodox but were once worn by all Jews as a matter of course. It is legitimate to infer this from the fact that Yemenite Jews, who had been separated from the mainstream of Judaism for many centuries, turned out to be wearing the earlocks when they were brought to Israel in 1948. The practice of cutting the rest of the hair close in order to emphasize the earlocks is modern and is not followed by the Yemenites. The New Testament is silent on the point, which was doubtlessly taken for granted at the time. We know from the Gospels that he wore fringes on his garments like other Jews. Like other Jews, he wore tefillin (called "phylacteries" in the Gospels) when he prayed formally, and perhaps at other times, and he took it for granted that others would do the same. He objected only when they were ostentatious in wearing them in public, as some did in his day. He observed the feasts and fasts, and he must have gone to the ritual bath on appropriate occasions to purify himself (before each Sabbath and before celebration of festivals and feasts; totaling at least 59 times a year), for we know from archaeological findings that the ritual bath (mikvah) was in common use in Yeshua's time. He said the customary blessings when he drank wine (Kiddush) and when he ate bread (ha-motzi). He washed his hands whenever he sat down to eat (considered a type of immersion), thought apparently his disciples sometimes neglected to do so, without being reproved by him.

He personally obeyed all the commandments, ethical and ritual, and took part in the sacrificial worship of the Temple when he was in Jerusalem. Like the prophets in whose tradition he stood, he objected to these things (ethical and ritual obedience to Torah) only when they were done mechanically, without the intention toward God that made them valid, and without the social morality that G-d demanded above all.

Yeshua was a faithful and observant Jew, according to the Halachah, the interpretation of the Torah, accepted in his day. He did not regard the Jewish Law itself as mechanical and ritualistic, or those who kept it carefully as spiritually decadent. He loved the Torah and observed it with the deepest faithfulness and spiritual dedication. He lived by it until his last breath.

The "real" Jewish Yeshua was in no way like the gentle "Gentile" manifestation of Yeshua, seen always as a meek and non-offensive teacher as portrayed in the Christian tradition. While he advocated the transcendence of anger to the point of loving enemies, he evidently did not always avoid it himself (take for instance the cleaning of the Temple). His criticism of all religious phoniness is as direct and even brutal as anything to be found in religious history. In this, he was the toughest of teachers. Yet his compassion for sinners is rightly regarded as remarkable, and it is this that marked him out as the bearer of a distinctive message concerning divine compassion.

If this message aroused opposition, and it seems that it did, it was not because it was un-Jewish. It was not. Rather, Yeshua's convictions concerning the compassion of G-d for sinners and the way human beings should imitate it went even beyond what some of the devout of his day had been able to imagine of G-d ("you have heard it said...but I say unto you"). And if Yeshua was scathing in his criticism of religious phoniness, it was not because he was opposed to Judaism, or regarded it as intrinsically defective, but because he wanted the Torah to be fulfilled by everyone as completely and perfectly as possible, from the heart.

His personal name was Yeshua, in the Aramaic he spoke, or Yehoshua in Hebrew, a very common name usually translated as Joshua. We get the form Yeshua from the Greek rendering of the Aramaic name Yeshua, which comes out as Iesous, which is Yeshua in Latin and also in English. His parents were Yossef and Mariam, or Miriam. He had brothers called Yaakov (James), Yosef, Shimon (Simon), and Yehudah (Judah). He also had sisters, but their names were not remembered.

Yeshua was probably born a few years before the date usually reckoned as the beginning of the Common or Christian era, during the reign of Herod the Great (4 B.C.E.). Unfortunately, we have no reliable means of ascertaining the exact date. The methods usually employed depend on the birth stories in Matthew & Luke, which have many obviously legendary elements, and in any case do not agree with each other (check it out for yourself). He died during the rule of the Roman governor, or Perfect, Pontius Pilatus, which lasted from 26 to 36 C.E. It seems certain that the Romans executed him because they regarded him as an insurgent, on account of his reputation as a claimant to the title of Messiah, whether or not he actually made the claim. The Gospels do tell a story of growing conflict between Yeshua and SOME of his fellow Jews {Sadducees and the Shammai Pharisees but not the Hillel Pharisees}, ending in a religious trial before the highest and most solemn court of his people, which condemns him for blasphemy on account of a claim to be the Messiah and hands him over to the Romans for execution. This is the basis of the ancient and long-standing belief that the Jews killed Christ.

Answer for yourself: Did the Jews kill Yeshua, believed by many to be the Messiah?

There are many stories in the Gospels that suggest that they did, but upon close examination seem exceedingly improbable. The Jews did not kill Yeshua because they had no reason to do so. He was not guilty of any religious offense. It is in the highest degree improbable that such a trial before the Sanhedrin as we read of in the Gospels of Mark and Matthew ever took place. What we read in the Gospels about the trial of Yeshua is the product of later Christian imagination, and it reflects Christian, not Jewish, views of the nature of the Messiah.

It was not the Jews but the Romans who killed Yeshua. They did it for their own political reasons; evidently, the Romans did believe him to be a claimant to the title of "The Messiah", although he made no such claim (such as promise to be the Messiah who would liberate Israel from Roman bondage). No doubt, the Romans correctly understood that from their own point of view a Messiah must be a rebel and an insurgent, since he is expected to deliver the Jewish people from pagan domination. In any case, enough people thought Yeshua was the Messiah (both Jewish and Romans) to constitute a political danger to Roman rule. No one should any longer imagine that it was the Jews who were the Christ-killers.

We cannot reconstruct the order of the events in Yeshua's life from the Gospels, because the writers of the Gospels (scholars will show you today that the apostles did not write them and many of Paul's epistles are frauds as well) did not know what it was themselves, as was already recognized in the second century. Nevertheless, it is possible to discover the kind of person Yeshua was and what he stood for, by a careful comparison of the gospel stories about him with what we know of the religious environment in which he lived (Biblical Judaism).

To imagine Yeshua in a thoroughly Jewish way is very difficult even for Jews, most of whom have been conditioned to think of him as some kind of Christian.

Yeshua was not and never would be a Christian or adhere to traditional Christian doctrines of today.

For Yeshua to believe the Christian doctrine over the Jewish Apostolic doctrine of the first century would be out-right sin in many instances.

For Christians, it takes real effort to see and understand Yeshua within the Judaism of his time. The degree of effort required reveals the anti-Jewish prejudice with which all Christians have been inflicted, including those who do not think they have such prejudices.

DID YESHUA FOUND CHRISTIANITY?

Even as recently at the late 1970's, a justly celebrated New Testament scholar entitled one of his books The Founder of Christianity. Like almost everyone else at the time, he assumed that Yeshua had been its founder.

Answer for yourself: But can we really imagine the Jewish Yeshua founding Christianity?

This is the first assumption we have to call in question.

Answer for yourself: How could this authentic and faithful Jew, living according to the Halachah [accepted and orthodox interpretation], have thought of founding a new religion in opposition to the one he loved and lived? To do so would have been absurd, not to mention sin!

The Prophets of the Bible were very critical of the Jews of their day, much more critical in fact than the Gospels represent Yeshua as being, but they never dreamed of founding a new religion. They envisaged a national repentance from all the sins they reviled, followed by divine forgiveness and the full restoration of Israel to its status as G-d's beloved people.

Answer for yourself: Could it have been otherwise with Yeshua?

Nevertheless, no new religion was founded in the name of any of the biblical prophets, and it is a fact that a new religion did grow out of Judaism in the first century. It was called Christianity. The name of Christianity comes from the title Christ (Christos, the Greek form of the Hebrew word meshiach, our word Messiah), but not from Yeshua's personal name. By the time the movement received the name by which it has ever since been known he was already most often referred to simply as Christ, Messiah. But there was no doubt which Messiah was meant.

There were also other first-century messianic claimants. No large-scale religious movement emanated from their careers, however. In the case of Christianity, its early leaders acted "in the name of Yeshua of Nazareth," whom they proclaimed as Messiah, or Christ.

Answer for yourself: Were they justified in invoking his name to legitimate their action in spreading a new religion?

The very name of Christianity shows that in its earliest days it was understood by everyone to be inseparable from the belief that Yeshua was the Messiah (Christ).

YESHUA COULD NOT HAVE FOUNDED CHRISTIANITY AS WE KNOW IT TODAY

The new religion that emerged from the events of the life and death of Yeshua contained too many divergent movements to have been the product of a single creative mind. At any rate, if Yeshua had intended to found a new religion, he did not succeed in doing so in any coherent form. Much more probably, he had no intention of doing so. The "real" Jewish Yeshua is not likely to have founded the movements that collectively constituted early Christianity.

Historians used to suppose that early Christianity was united in the legacy left by Yeshua; only later did disunity arise, as new and unorthodox interpretations of the tradition developed. We now think it was otherwise. Early Christianity moved in several divergent directions, and it was not possible to unify them by appealing to the authoritative teaching of a founder.

Only in the second century did it begin to be unified around a form of Gentile Christianity, as a result of strenuous efforts by some of its leaders, most of them associated with the Church of Rome. The effort was never completely successful, and in later centuries new forms of disunity set in.

If we look back to the state of the Christian movement at the end of the first century and the beginning of the second, we find amazing variety and diversity. Scholars usually group Christianity into three main tendencies, only one of which is at all familiar to us today.

This is Gentile Christianity, sometimes called by historians Early Catholicism, since it represents the earliest form of the Catholic church of history. It is the ancestor of all modern forms. But alongside it were two other movements, equally popular at the time, and in some places certainly more so, but not destined to survive. It would not have been obvious to an observer in the year 100 that early Catholicism, at that time largely a religion of urban slaves, and the underprivileged, was the movement of the future.

One of these competing movements was Gnosticism, which has come into public attention recently as a result of new discoveries. Another, now lesser-known movement was composed of Christian Jews [Ebionism], remaining faithful to their Jewish heritage, while adding to it a belief in Yeshua as the Messiah. Scholars refer to the various movements that attempted to remain faithful to "Christianity's" original basis in Judaism as Jewish Christianity.

Obviously, there were sharp disagreements between these movements. Gentile and Jewish Christianity soon parted company. In the second century, the Gentile or early Catholic church fought a sharp, and in the end, largely successful battle to rid itself of Gnosticism and to put down the independent Gnostic communities. At the same time, it stigmatized as "heretical" all those groups that still held on to Jewish observance. In other words Jewish Christianity was considered as heretical by Early Gentile Catholicism.

GENTILE CHRISTIANITY

Christianity (rightfully understood as Messianic Judaism) began with the preaching of the earliest Apostles of Yeshua, all of whom were Jewish. It made its appeal to Jews, and as a movement it differed from other forms of Judaism only in its belief that Yeshua was the Messiah. Soon its members began to preach to Gentiles and met with success, creating a distinct branch (Gentile) of their movement. Before long, its leadership was assumed by Paul, the great Apostle to the Gentiles. As the name the historians give it indicates, its members were Gentiles, and following the teaching of Paul, they did not consider conversion to Judaism a possible option. Under Paul's special teachings which opposed the Gospel of Messianic Judaism and the Jerusalem church, obedience to the Torah as the Word of G-d was too much for the majority of them, let alone circumcision. Such was a big mistake and would later cause the irrevocable severing of the Jews from the Gentiles as the people of G-d.

The Gentile community interpreted Paul's writings as meaning that Judaism was seriously defective.

considering that the new faith had superseded Judaism in the plan of G-d. In other words, Sinai, Moses, etc., was not sufficient because G-d had made a mistake giving them His teaching (the Torah), but all would be corrected by rescinding the Torah with Grace. Gentile Christianity soon came to think that the Jews had been rejected by G-d and lost their place as his chosen people, because of their rejection of their Messiah (read Hosea again and you will see that this is not true). They erroneously regarded those Jewish Christians who attempted to continue their membership amidst the Jewish people as neither Jews nor Christians, and they fought other Gentile Christians who wanted to retain within the later Catholic church customs practiced by Yeshua and the early Jewish-Gentile Church such as keeping the festivals of Passover, Pentecost, First-Fruits, Rosh HaShannah, Yom Kippur, and Sukkot. The Catholic church's substitution of pagan holidays for Jewish and Biblical holy days was blatant Idolatry and broke the first Two Commandments. As if that is not enough the Jewish concept of the Messiah was abandoned in favor of the "astral g-dman" from their prior mystery religions which were build around stellar and sun-worship. This community would rely on the corrupted Greek translations of the Hebrew Scriptures for their authority and rightfully so since they had been corrupted in translation by the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, in 200 B.C.E. when they purposefully corrupted the translation to include within it their unique understanding of this "stellar g-dman of sun-worship" (they lived in Egypt remember...sun worship flourished there).

Gentile Christianity differed from the earliest form of the new faith in more than one important way as detailed above. From the beginning Gentile Christianity had rejected the Torah, together with its commandments constituting the human side of the covenant with G-d. At the same time, it had radically reinterpreted the Jewish Bible (the book that Yeshua said that in the Law and the Prophets it was written of him), reading it as a complex web of prophecy of Christ (no longer a human Messiah but a g-dman from the heavens) & a presenting it as a systematic slander of Jews and Judaism.

Gentile Christianity soon developed beliefs concerning the role of Yeshua that differed greatly from those of the earliest Christians (Jewish as well as Early Gentile Christianity). Later Gentile Christians (following the first century) believed that Yeshua had brought forgiveness to individual sinners through his death, and they came to see him also as a cosmic redeemer, irrespective of the role or repentance in the Bible (again these concepts come from solar worship...see our website detailing this: <http://paganizingfaithofyeshua.netfirms.com>). These beliefs were largely based on the teachings of Paul, himself a Gentile convert to Judaism, who had begun the systematic adaptation of an originally Jewish message to a Gentile audience (he blended solar worship with Judaism). He, like them, must have been influenced by ideas drawn from the surrounding culture and environment which had paganism as its core.

The earliest Christians (first century Jewish believers) themselves, had not thought of Yeshua's death in this way because they knew that the Torah and the Tanakh has always taught that atonement comes through faith, repentance, prayer, alms, restitution, etc.

One has to look at sun-worship for the concepts of atonement as seen in Christianity today. Yeshua's death was something that required explanation in the light of their overriding belief that he was the Messiah; on the face of things it was incompatible with it, since it was not part of the destiny of the expected Messiah to be put to death. They believed, however, that with the resurrection of Yeshua the general resurrection of all the dead had begun. Perhaps they also saw his death as a martyrdom (the death of a righteous man "tzeddek" atoned for the sins of Israel...again this "belief" was held by the minority in Israel and only had its beginning with the great slaughter of Jews by Antiochus Epiphanies during the Maccabean war). They would not have regarded Yeshua's suffering on the cross as a unique way of obtaining forgiveness for their sins, since (like Yeshua himself) they knew that forgiveness was already freely available within the existing covenants to repentant sinners. The changes introduced by Gentile Christianity were therefore of major consequence, a fact masked from modern people due to their lack of understanding and study of the events of the first century.

Answer for yourself: Does it not sound preposterous to believe that Gentile pagans, once accepting the Messiah, are better interpreters of the Jewish Bible than the Jewish scholars and sages, since they had never seen it before, let alone studied it for thousands of years as had the Hebrews?

Salvation is of the Jews, was of the Jews, and will always be of the Jews...it is not of Rome or their corrupted Bibles

Gentile Christianity gained further momentum at a period near the end of the first century, when the original expectation of the Jewish originators of the new movement, that Christ would very shortly return and do all that had been traditionally expected of the Messiah (which was not done by Yeshua in his first coming), had died down. Instead of a literal return of Messiah Yeshua, they came to understand his Parousia as a spiritual coming or presence in 70 C.E. with the destruction of the Temple and the deliverance of the Messianic community of Jerusalem before the annihilation of the Jews by the Romans.

Yeshua had preached the imminence of the kingdom, or kingship, of G-d. After his death, his followers preached the arrival of the messianic age under his auspices. All the earliest Christians, whatever their other differences, were united in the ardent belief that the end of history had come, that it had only a few months or years to run before being utterly transformed into a new age. Such an age began after the destruction of the Temple in 70 C.E. as "the age of the Gentiles."

The Jewish Christians did not think of themselves as originators and shapers of a new religion but as those upon whom the duty had fallen of announcing this new age to their fellow Jews, in the name of Yeshua. But Yeshua did not physically return, and as the years passed, it became impossible to sustain the original tension of anticipation of his physical coming. Gradually, the new movement settled down into history to await the judgment of 70 C.E.

The expectation of a new age was too fundamental an element in the original Jewish heritage of the Church to be simply discarded by Gentile Christianity. It had to be retained in some form. In its original form, it meant very little to Gentiles, who had not learned to share the Jewish expectation that G-d would assert his sovereignty over a rebellious world and deliver his own people. And it did not seem that the expectation would not be fulfilled very soon, in any case.

The expectation of a new age, called eschatology by scholars, was reinterpreted by the Gentile church, now assuming the shape of a new religion. The original contrast between the present age and the new age to come, already dawning in the life of the Christian movement, became transformed into a contrast between the natural and the supernatural. Such a contrast was much easier to understand for pagans, especially the philosophically educated.

Now the Gentile Church thought of itself as privileged to be the bearer of a new supernatural life of grace, stemming from the incarnation of G-d in Christ, a divine-human life to which the sacraments of the church gave entrance (all the Gentile sun-worshipping nations had divine births and incarnations...it all began with Isis and Osiris in Egypt). The Church could then contrast itself with Judaism, which lacked this supernatural element of grace, stemming from G-d incarnate. Thus, a Jewish contrast between two historical ages in time became transformed into a Greek contrast between two metaphysical levels, this material world and an invisible, spiritual one.

The new Gentile Christianity became greatly assimilated to the Graeco-Roman culture in which it lived, as it rethought the whole Jewish heritage of Christianity, stemming from the Bible, in the terms of Greek philosophy. Soon the theology of the early Catholic Church would be expressed exclusively in Greek philosophical language, even when it was translated into Latin, and the simpler and more concrete language of the Jewish Bible reserved for popular preaching and devotion.

Greek philosophy was often monotheistic in its theology and ethical in its teaching about personal conduct, but it was pagan in origin and had no natural affinity with Jewish ways of thinking and acting. Gentile Christianity felt much more at home with this kind of pagan philosophy than with the Jewish heritage mediated to them through the original Christian preachers (Jewish), and through the Jewish Bible that had been bequeathed to them as the foundation of their faith. The Jewish Bible in Greek translation was for a long time their only Scripture, but they read and interpreted it in ways Jews would not have done (explained by the purposeful corruptions in special places as done by the Hellenistic Jews of Alexandria, Egypt in 200 B.C.E. see: <http://bennoah1.freewebsites.com>).

The reinterpretation of Jewish eschatology into Greek metaphysical terms led to extremely important changes in the pattern of religion by which the church lived. So effective and sweeping were these changes that it is now hard to imagine Christianity without them. Gentile Christianity, now developing into Early Catholicism, changed the whole pattern of religious life by its introduction of the sacramental system, to become the core of later Catholic Christianity. The sacraments are rituals (significantly called "mysteries" by Greek Christianity) believed to have a supernatural effect on the believing participant.

Like Jews themselves, which indeed they were, the earliest Christians knew nothing of sacraments. They did, of course, possess rites and rituals, especially immersion (mikvah) and the breaking of bread (ha-Motzi associated with Sabbath services), soon to be understood in a sacramental sense. Ideas that may have been the precursors of sacramental theology can be found as early as the writing of Paul. However, the rites which would become sacraments for the Gentile church were originally understood in a Jewish way. Indeed, Paul may have been the one responsible for transforming them into something Gentiles could understand and respond to, in the light of their experience of the pagan mystery religions of their own culture.

In other words they paganized Judaism and called it Catholic Christianity!

Greek ways of thinking in a Gentile church led to radical reinterpretation of rites originally understood with a Jewish frame of thought. It is most likely true that, as many historians have supposed, the model for the transformation was the Hellenistic mystery religions. These promised the initiate a new life through mysterious rituals of death and rebirth. Instead of understanding the words of Yeshua that a man must be "born again" in their Jewish context, they removed them from association with renewal and enhancement of one's relationship with G-d through the mikvah immersion bath, and translated the meaning to a mystical, heavenly experience patterned after the pagan mystery religions. Being "born again" was a Jewish concept that pre-dated John chapter 3 and was not created by Yeshua. G-d gave the concept as far back as the Garden of Eden and we see Adam was the first to be "born-again". Due to erroneous Gentile Christian teaching we have lost much of the truth G-d had given to his people, and we must diligently study to recover that truth for our generation.

The Jewish rites of incorporation into the community, circumcision and immersion, are not comparable in meaning to Christian baptism as it came to be understood by the Catholic church, and later by the Protestant church. They more closely resemble naturalization to citizenship of a new country. The earliest Christians must certainly have interpreted the "breaking of bread" as comparable to the Jewish common meals of religious significance, such as the meals taken together on the Sabbath (called the Lord's supper), or the Passover Seder.

Gentile Christians soon came to think of these rites as having a supernatural effect. They were supposed to transform the believer invisibly, bringing about spiritual effects humanly impossible to accomplish through the identification of the believer with Christ. Membership in a sacramental church meant participation in a supernatural or divine-human life of grace, sharing in fact the divine-human life of Christ (this is the same concept of being "in Osiris" as handed down in sun-worship).

The center of this transformation of Jewish into Greek, or in fact pagan, ways of thinking was the new Greek doctrine of Christ, now thought of as fully divine. From the second century on, theologians became centrally interested in the relationship of Christ to G-d and preoccupied with questions about the divine nature (Osiris was a g-d and his son Horus was the first g-dman). This is not a typically Jewish concern, since Jews regard the divine nature as beyond human comprehension, and suspect attempts to explain it as idolatrous.

Now the developing Gentile Christian myth presented a problem for monotheists.

Answer for yourself: How could two persons be divine?

Yet Gentile Christians were convinced that their redemption had been the work of no one less than G-d. It was now axiomatic to them that Christ was nothing less than divine. Indeed, it was his human nature, originally taken for granted, that now became problematic.

The model on which the theological solution was arrived at was Platonic and Stoic. The Greek philosophers of these schools had already thought of a Logos, or creative Word, the pattern on which the whole universe had been created, its immanent rationality or logic. Since the New Testament had described Christ as the Word of G-d, it was not difficult to identify this Word with the Word or Logos already spoken of in Greek philosophy. Again this concept of "the Word" and the "Logos" finds its origin in Egypt along with the evolution of sun-worship.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever asked yourself if Jehovah (YHVH) wanted to share with the Jewish people a Platonic concept from Greek philosophy? Does not sound right does it?

The author of the Fourth Gospel had already done so in his prologue.

Answer for yourself: Would John, a Jew, familiar with Jewish religion, write a letter to Jewish believers and use Greek concepts let alone continually say "which being interpreted mean" as if Jewish concepts would not be common knowledge to a Jewish audience?

Thus the theologians came to teach that G-d had created the world through His Logos, Christ, and had then redeemed it through him also. The Word or Logos was divine, but in a derivative sense.

In the second century, we find the theologians of the Gentile church thinking of Christ primarily as the Word, or Logos, of G-d, and even as a "second G-d." The latter term was too risky and threatening to the monotheism to which the church intended to adhere, and it was soon abandoned. Eventually, though not until the fourth century, the complex theology of the Trinity, which also incorporated the Holy Spirit on the same level of divinity, was worked out. Such a Trinitarian idea goes completely against Yeshua and his declaration of the Greatest Commandment in Mark 12, where he states..."Hear of Israel, I Am the Lord G-d, I am One".

Eventually this transformed Gentile church became the state religion of the Roman Empire, dominating the world in which Jews had to live. Now there arose a remarkable synthesis between Graeco-Roman culture of classical antiquity and the beliefs of the Christian movement, already transformed by the impact upon them of Greek and pagan ways of thinking. The Catholic church of history, including its Eastern wing that later became the Orthodox church, was the bearer of the synthesis into the Middle Ages. This classical Christian civilization is in turn the basis of modern culture.

From the pagan world from which they had come, Gentile Christians had inherited many prejudices against the Jews, and these prejudices played in to the anti-Jewish reading of Paul to create a very anti-Jewish outlook in the Gentile church from early times. Christian anti-Semitism is not the same thing as pagan anti-Semitism, though they are often thought to be continuous with one another. The destructive energy of Christian anti-Semitism is inconceivable without the myth that the Jews killed Christ, a myth absent from pagan anti-Jewish calumnies, many of which were also leveled against the early Christians. Nevertheless, there was little or nothing in the form of Christianity that these Gentiles were receiving to rid them of their preconceived attitudes of hostility and contempt toward Jews, or to cause them to read Paul's writing otherwise than as confirmation and intensification of these existing attitudes.

Gentile Christianity saw itself as a new and superior religion, intended for Gentiles, and adapted to their situation. It is not surprising that very soon theologians were arguing that the Jewish Bible should be discarded, and no longer incorporated in the Christian Scriptures. Looking back, it is in fact astonishing that it was not discarded in the second century by Gentile Christianity. The reason it was not discarded was its grounding in Judaism, which was necessary to give Christianity a pedigree deriving from an ancient past that people of that day thought a religion ought to have. And of course it was already basic to Christian faith that Yeshua had been the Jewish Messiah and that he had died on the cross and thus become the Savior of the world as a result of the rejection and hostility of the Jewish people. Such ideas, un-Jewish as they are, would have been unintelligible without the Bible as their background.

Because Gentile, or Early Catholic, Christianity has had this immense influence on the culture in which we all live today, Jews, Christians, and secularists alike, it is hard to imagine other forms of early Christianity except in this image. Yet, other forms did exist, and at the turn of the first and second centuries they were formidable rivals to Gentile Christianity. Bet Emet ministries is devoted to recovering and returning to the "real" faith of Yeshua as it existed both before and shortly following his death before the Gentile juggernaut of Rome altered and changed it beyond recognition today. Shalom.

THE SECOND TRANSFIGURATION OF YESHUA... WHICH YESHUA SHOULD YOU BELIEVE IN AND FOLLOW?

The historical Yeshua is of interest for many reasons. Not least of these is his towering cultural significance in the nearly two thousand years since his death. No other figure in the history of the West has ever been accorded such extraordinary status. Within a few decades of his death, stories were told about his miraculous birth. By the end of the first century, he was extolled with the most exalted titles known within the religious tradition out of which he came: Son of G-d, one with the Father, the Word become flesh, the bread of life, the light of the world, the one who would come again as cosmic judge and Lord. Within a few centuries he had become Lord of the empire which had crucified him.

For over a thousand years thereafter, he dominated the culture of the West: its religion and devotion, its art, music, and architecture, its intellectual thought and ethical norms, even its politics. Our calendar affirms his life as a dividing point in world history. On historical grounds alone Yeshua is the most important figure in Western (and perhaps human) history. Thus, simply as a matter of intellectual or historical curiosity, it is interesting to ask, "What was this towering cultural figure like as a historical person before his death?" Other questions naturally follow to those of keen perception:

Answer for yourself: Is the message attributed to Yeshua by the Gentile church the authentic message preached by Yeshua in the first century, or has it been modified and changed by unscrupulous men who followed?

Answer for yourself: If the Yeshua' message was changed (and it was), to what should I focus my attention and my life if I am to imitate Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: Is my life adhering to the ethical and moral teachings of Yeshua or have I unwittingly allowed myself to follow another Gospel?

To these questions we must have the answers, for our very own position and reward in the world to come will be determined to the answers given to those questions.

For Christians, these questions are significant for an additional reason. Yeshua is not simply a historical person, but considered by many to be the founder and central figure of their religion. Millions of Christians confess him each Sunday to be both Lord and Christ. Moreover, within the church, Christians talk about "following Yeshua," about "the life of discipleship" (which means to follow after Yeshua), and about "imitating Yeshua."

Thus what Yeshua was like as a historical figure would seem to be not only interesting but important, for what he was like, what his belief system consisted of, and what his priorities to life were provides the content of what following him means.

Answer for yourself: If we adhere to alternate belief systems that cause us to conduct ourselves differently than him, then how can we justify that we imitate Yeshua or follow Yeshua?

Simply, we cannot. Let me say it again for emphasis. It stands to reason that if our image, concept, and belief system concerning Yeshua is incorrect, then our "following" and "imitating" Yeshua is suspect, and quite possibly we have been led astray into disobedience instead of obedience by those who failed to discern the "real Yeshua."

"No way" you say, then please read on.

Yet, despite the fact that "Yeshua" is a household word, and despite his importance for the Christian life, what he was like as a historical figure before his death is not widely known, either in our culture or within the church itself. Instead, what he was like is seriously obscured by two dominant images of Yeshua: the first dominates the POPULAR IMAGE OF JESUS within both the church and our culture, the second has dominated much of New Testament SCHOLARSHIP in this century. Both scholarship and popular traditions concerning Yeshua have provided their own answers to the three central questions about the historical Yeshua:

- His IDENTITY (who was he)?
- His MESSAGE (what was central to his proclamation or teaching)?
- His MISSION (what was his purpose, what did he himself hope to accomplish)?

Unfortunately the answers provided by BOTH the popular traditions about Yeshua circulating in the churches as well as the dominant scholarly images hide rather than reveal what the "real" Yeshua was truly like. In order to be able to see Yeshua afresh, and truthfully correctly for the first time for many of us, we need to become aware of the images that obscure our vision.

THE POPULAR IMAGE OF YESHUA WITHIN THE CHURCH

The popular image is most familiar to Christian and non-Christian alike: the image of Yeshua as a divine or semi-divine figure, whose purpose was to die for the sins of the world, and whose life and death open up the possibility of eternal life. This popular image of Yeshua in the churches answers to the three questions of identity, purpose, and message. As the divinely begotten Son of G-d, he was sent into the world for the purpose of dying on the cross as a means of reconciliation between G-d and humankind, and his message consisted primarily of inviting his hearers to believe that what he said about himself and his role in salvation was true.

This popular image is widespread as attested by billboards and multiple evangelists which proclaim, "Yeshua died for your sins," suggesting that this was his purpose in a nutshell. Much of Christian preaching takes the popular image for granted. The celebration of the major Christian festivals (Easter) in our culture reinforces the image. Likewise, Christmas, with wise men and shepherds and angels, a manger and a star and a virgin, tells the story of his wondrous birth and thus calls attention to his divine identity; Easter focuses on his triumph over death.

The popular image has its roots deep in the past, indeed in the language of the New Testament itself as well as multiple pagan accounts of gods miraculously coming to earth only to die and resurrect. Among the gospels, the popular image of Yeshua finds its genesis in the Gospel of John, probably the most loved and familiar gospel. There Yeshua speaks of his identity in the most exalted terms known in his culture, especially in the magnificent series of "I am" statements: "I am the light of the world," "I am the bread of life," "I am the resurrection and the life," "I am the way, the truth, and the life," "Before Abraham was, I am." The self-proclamation of his own identity in the "I am" statements is buttressed by other passages in John: "The Father is in me and I am in the Father," "He who has seen me has seen the Father," "I and the Father are one." In a single verse, the fourth gospel sums up Yeshua's identity, purpose, message, and the proper response to him: "For G-d so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

The roots of the popular image also lie in the development of Christian theological thought and piety in the centuries following the composition of the New Testament. The creeds of the church express that development. The Apostles' Creed proclaims that Yeshua was "G-d's only son our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried; on the third day he rose again from the dead; he ascended into heaven from which he shall come to judge the living and the dead." In the Nicene Creed, Yeshua is spoken of as "the only begotten Son of G-d, begotten of his Father before all worlds, G-d of G-d, Light of Light, very G-d of very G-d, begotten, not made [that is, not created]; being of one substance with the Father." There, his purpose is described very simply, "Who for us men and for our salvation came down from heaven . . . and was crucified for us under Pontius Pilate."

Throughout the Middle Ages and into the modern period, this image of Yeshua as divine savior and Lord dominated Western worship, thought, art, and devotion. Centuries of Christians have taken it for granted that this image depicts what he was like as a historical figure. No wonder this image is so deeply rooted in the Christian imagination, as well as in our culture generally. Christian and non-Christian alike share it; what separates them is not the image, but whether or not they believe the image to be true.

SADLY THE POPULAR IMAGE OF JESUS CANNOT STAND THE TEST OF SCRUTINY

The popular image, certainly, is widely accepted. Yet as an image of the historical Jesus-of what Yeshua was like as a figure of history before his death-the popular image is not accurate. Indeed, it is seriously misleading. This statement, surprising though it is to many people (including the many unsuspecting within the church), is a bedrock conclusion of mainstream New Testament scholarship. It cannot be denied upon study and scrutiny of language, culture, and history.

Unknown to the majority within the church, "mainstream" biblical scholarship is the approach to Scripture taught in the seminaries of the mainstream churches in our country today. It is the product of using a historical method on the books of the New Testament, treating them as human documents rather than as divine documents guaranteed to be infallible by G-d. The reason being is that in depth study of the New Testament will result in discovery of fables, inaccuracies, as well as multiple contradictions that escape the attention of the casual reader of the Bible. Beginning in the seventeenth century and accelerating through the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, frank historical study and evaluation of the Bible is now the approach to Scripture taught in the theological schools of the majority of Christian churches (including, for example, Roman Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, United Church of Christ, Disciples of Christ, Episcopalians, the majority of Lutherans, and some Baptists). It is utterly foolish to our witness to claim infallibility and inerrancy in the light of conflicting facts and data which reveal otherwise. To do so you only deceive yourself as you have previously been deceived, as well as destroy any credibility to your message and witness.

The above conclusion flows out of the meticulous study of the New Testament documents over the past two centuries, most of it done by Christian scholars. Again this is unknown by the majority of those in the church. Of primary importance for the collapse of the inaccurate, yet popular image of Yeshua in scholarly circles is the sharp contrast between the portraits of Yeshua in John's gospel and the other three gospels (Matthew, Mark, and Luke), collectively known as the synoptic gospels (from the Greek root "seen together") because of their many similarities. John differs sufficiently that his gospel must be seen separately. If you will be honest with yourself, the portrait of Yeshua in John differs substantially from that given in the Synoptic Gospels. Which one is the "real" Yeshua? They cannot be the same man!

The contrast between the Yeshua of the Synoptic Gospels and the Yeshua of the Gospel of John was first developed by Johann Gottfried Herder in 1797. Through the influence of David Friedrich Strauss's two-volume Life of Yeshua (1835) the dichotomy of the conflicting images of Yeshua became one of the foundational conclusions of Yeshua scholarship. The reason for preferring Mark to John as more historical is quite simple. It is easier to account for a theological development from a Yeshua who did not explicitly proclaim himself or his identity (Mark) to a portrait in which his identity is explicitly proclaimed (John) as the very essence of his message.

Answer for yourself: The message of Yeshua changed, or did it?

Answer for yourself: Who changed his message from Mark to John? Or have we been led to focus upon the wrong message?

Answer for yourself: Has the popular message of Yeshua replaced the real message of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: Do you know the difference?

Answer for yourself: If Yeshua did consistently proclaim his identity, as John reports, what motive could an early Christian author such Mark have had for saying that Yeshua did not preach about who he was? There is none.

According to the Gospel of John Yeshua spoke often and openly about his exalted identity and purpose. However, the synoptic Gospels contain a very different picture. According to Mark, still judged to the earliest gospel by most scholars, Yeshua never proclaimed his exalted identity; it did not constitute part of his public teaching or preaching. Chapter 10 of Mark records for us where Yeshua was addressed as "Good Master." Familiarity with Judaism teaches us that this is a synonym for G-d Himself. Notice that only one verse attributed to Yeshua address his identity out of a total of 52 verses in the chapter. It would seem to me that his identity was not of paramount importance to him, or deemed by him to be important to others by the lack of discourse concerning correcting the mistaken assumption by one who came running to him. Only one verse deals with who he feels he is, but notice he deals exclusively with what one must do...not what one must believe to inherit eternal life. The silence of Yeshua about his own identity is matched by a corresponding silence on the part of the others who knew and followed him in Mark's narrative. This should strike you as remarkable as you have spent the majority of your Christian experience focusing on the identity of Yeshua as the way to salvation instead of his belief system which is understood as beliefs that lead to proper conduct, behavior, and obedience that leads to salvation. Indeed, on only two occasions was there an exchange between Yeshua and those he encountered regarding who he was. Both occasions were private, not public, and both were near the end of the ministry.

Answer for yourself: Does it again not seem strange to you that if our salvation is to be tied to believing a set of beliefs about Yeshua for salvation, that he only reveals a little about such and only to two people out of all mankind?

Answer for yourself: Have we missed the real purpose, mission, and message of Yeshua?

The two occasions are reported in Mark 8:27-30 and 14:53-65. In the first instance, shortly before Yeshua and his disciples began the final journey to Jerusalem, and in a setting where his disciples were alone with him, Peter said, "Thou art the Christ" (Mark 8:29; "Christ" is the Greek word for the Hebrew "Messiah," which means roughly "the anointed one of G-d"). This, the first time that any follower of Yeshua in Mark called him by an exalted title, contrasts sharply with John 1:29-51, where already in John's opening chapter both John the Baptist and several of Yeshua's disciples applied the grandest titles to Yeshua: Lamb of G-d, Son of G-d, Messiah (Christ), King of Israel. Strikingly, Yeshua responded to Peter's affirmation by ordering the disciples to say nothing about it to anyone (8:30), a restriction that was to last until after Easter (see Mark 9:9). Thus in Mark, neither Yeshua nor his disciples proclaimed Yeshua's identity during the ministry.

The second occasion in Mark was at the secret hearing before the high priest the night before Yeshua was executed; in response to the high priest's question, "Are you the Christ, the Son of the blessed?", Yeshua said, "I am" (Mark 14:61-62). Noteworthy is the fact that the high priest virtually had to "drag" the statement out of Yeshua, plus the fact that the Greek and Aramaic phrase behind "I am" can be translated either "I am" or "Am I?" It is interesting that both Matthew and Luke interpret Yeshua's response as ambiguous (see Matthew 26:64 and Luke 22:67-68).

Regardless of how one interprets Yeshua's response, the fact remains that Mark nowhere portrays Yeshua proclaiming his identity as part of his message. It should be noted that the spirit world knows who Yeshua was, even during his ministry; the voice "from heaven" at his baptism and transfiguration speaks of him as G-d's "beloved Son," and evil spirits recognize him as "Son of G-d" and "holy one of G-d." But it remains true there is no human proclamation of Yeshua's identity in Mark's gospel, either by Yeshua or others.

Throughout, Mark's gospel is dominated by "the Messianic secret"; though Mark clearly believed that Yeshua was the Messiah, his Messiahship was a secret during the ministry. As difficult it is to admit by a Christian, in Mark the proclamation of Yeshua's own identity and of the saving purpose of his death was not the message of Yeshua. He did not proclaim himself.

When once this fundamental contrast between John and Mark was seen, a great historical "either/or" presented itself to scholars. Either the historical Yeshua openly proclaimed his divine identity and saving purpose (John), or he did not (Mark). To put the issue most directly, Yeshua could not consistently proclaim his identity and at the same time not do so.

Answer for yourself: Thus the question became, "Which image of Yeshua is more likely to be like the historical Yeshua, John's or Mark's?"

The nearly universal answer given by scholars was "Mark." With that answer, the popular image's basis as a historical image disappeared.

The image of Yeshua as one who taught (as the essence of his message) that he was the Son of G-d who was to die for the sins of the world is not historically true.

The historical preference for Mark, with the implication that John is not very historical, is disturbing to some Christians. Indeed, it was to me when I first encountered it. John's gospel and the image of Yeshua which derives from it seemed to be the core of what I as a Christian was supposed to believe.

Answer for yourself: But is this the correct image and the "real Yeshua," or, is this a image of Yeshua projected by the "Gentile church" which found its compromising belief system included in writings which later could be considered "Scripture" by the Catholic Church?

The first Bible verse I learned was the famous John 3:16: "For G-d so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son . . ." The notion that Yeshua would not say that, and that he did not proclaim himself as a divine figure, is unsettling. Moreover, it seemed to invalidate John's gospel, implying that in many ways the Gospel of John was a "false" account of the ministry of Yeshua.

In one sense, that is true; for the most part, John's Gospel cannot be used as an infallible source of information about the historical Yeshua. But rather than invalidating John's gospel completely, that realization enables us to see more clearly what John's gospel truly is as it is immersed among accurate teachings of Yeshua as well as teachings that were never a part of Yeshua's message. John's Gospel, instead of being a picture of the historical Yeshua, it is about the risen living Christ of Christian experience. John's gospel comes out of the experience of the Gentile Christian community in the decades after the resurrection as well as after the destruction of the Temple in 70 C.E.. In it, the historical traditions about Yeshua are thoroughly transformed by the early Christians' ongoing experience of the risen Christ. John's gospel is the church's memory transfigured.

In their own experience (like today), these Christians knew the living Christ as the light of the world who brought them out of darkness, as the bread of life who nourished them with spiritual food, as the vine whose life coursed through them, and as the way and the truth which brought them to new life. And thus John portrayed Yeshua as all of these: as light, bread, vine, the way and the truth, G-d's "Word" become flesh. The remarkable affirmations about Yeshua in John's gospel are a powerful testimony to the reality and character of the resurrected, ascended, and living Christ. Rather than being the self-proclamation of Yeshua, they flow out of the post-resurrection experience of the early church, and their truthfulness is testified to by the experience of Christians ever since. John's gospel is "the spiritual gospel," as was recognized already by the Christian writer Clement of Alexandria near the end of the second century; it speaks of the significance of Christ in the spiritual life of Christians.

What is true of John's gospel is true of the popular image in general.

Both John's Gospel and the popular image of Yeshua are the product of projecting later Christian convictions, grounded in the experience of Christ through the centuries as a living divine reality, back into the period of the ministry itself.

The risen living Christ does possess the qualities of divinity; one with the Father, and therefore everywhere-present, all-powerful, and all-knowing. But though these statements are true about the risen Christ, they are not true about the historical Yeshua. Clearly, Yeshua as a figure of history was not "omnipresent," but was always in some particular place-in Nazareth, on the road, in Jerusalem, or elsewhere. Also, even though remarkable powers flowed through him, he was not "omnipotent," as even the gospels recognize. Neither should we suppose that he was "omniscient." As a first century Jew who learned what he knew in the context of his own culture and experience, presumably he shared many of the beliefs of his contemporaries, including beliefs about the world which we now think of as erroneous. The risen Christ, "seated at the right hand of G-d," does share all of the qualities of G-d. But the historical Yeshua did not.

The projection of divine qualities back onto Yeshua is very ancient. Not only can we see this to some extent in the New Testament itself, but it became especially prominent in what are known as the "apocryphal" gospels. The "apocryphal" gospels were gospels written by early Christians in the first few centuries of the church which did not make it into the New Testament. There Yeshua as an infant is already portrayed as having superhuman knowledge and power. From his crib, he points at the animals and makes them talk; on his journey into Egypt as a baby, he saves his parents from a dragon by killing it; as a five year old, he makes clay birds and then turns them into real birds. Clearly, what is happening here is that the experiential knowledge that the risen Christ is divine is unreflectively projected back onto the human Yeshua.

The tendency continues in the modern world. Some years back, a well-known evangelist suggested that Yeshua would have been the world's greatest athlete, and speculated about how quickly he could have run the mile. Behind this somewhat strange suggestion is the notion that Yeshua was a divine being with superhuman powers. But the portrait of Yeshua as a divine "superhero" has nothing to do with historical reality. Indeed, to the extent that the popular image sees Yeshua as a divine being who merely seemed to be human, the popular image is not only non-historical but also was declared to be heretical by the early church. The heresy is known as "docetism," from the Greek word dakeo, which means "to appear" or "seem." Docetism is the notion that though Yeshua appeared to be human, he was really G-d. Ironically, one of the earliest heresies is still thought and believed by many people, Christians and non-Christians alike. In fact, remarkable it has become not only the popular position attributed to Yeshua, but considered to be the orthodox Christian position regardless that at one time it was considered heresy by those who lived closer to the real historical Yeshua.

In short, the image of the historical Yeshua as a divine or semi-divine being, who saw himself as the divine savior whose purpose was to die for the sins of the world, and whose message consisted of proclaiming that, is simply not historically true. Rather, it is the product of a blend produced by the early Gentile church-a blending of the Gentile's church's memory of Yeshua with the church's beliefs about the risen Christ. The former was seen through the window provided by the latter. They remembered Yeshua with the "eye of faith," that is, in the light of Easter and afterward.

The blend was both natural and legitimate. It is what happens when a religious community looks back on its founder in light of their ongoing experience of him; and it is legitimate in that it speaks of what Christ is in the Christian life. Moreover, the image has nurtured the lives of millions of Christians over the centuries.

However, if what is wanted is a reasonably clear image of the historical Yeshua, then one must use a historical method which seeks to separate out the church's later beliefs from the traditions about Yeshua found in early Christian documents. If one wants historical answers to the questions of Yeshua's identity, mission, and message, one must first set aside the answers given by the popular image.

All of this is old news to anybody who has attended seminary or divinity school in the mainstream churches. It is also familiar to most people who have taken a religion course in a nonsectarian college. Yet it is still news to many (and perhaps most) people in our culture and in the church. In part, this is simply because of the endurance which popular images possess. But it is also because mainstream biblical scholarship has not generated a persuasive alternative image of the historical Yeshua. Instead, the image which has dominated New Testament scholarship throughout much of this century has made Yeshua seem both strange and irrelevant.

THE DOMINANT SCHOLARLY IMAGE OF JESUS

The realization that the popular image is not historical, accurate, or truthful led to the "quest for the historical Yeshua" in biblical scholarship. The beginning of the theological and historical movement known as the "quest for the historical Yeshua" is typically dated in 1778 with the anonymous and posthumous publication of an essay by Hermann Samuel Reimarus (1694-1768). His work is yet available as "Concerning the Intention of Yeshua and His Disciples" in H. Reimarus, Fragments, edited by C. H. Talbert and translated by R. S. Frank (Philadelphia: Fortress, 1970), 59-269. For a history of the quest up to 1900, Albert Schweitzer's The Quest of the Historical Yeshua is the classic work.

Answer for yourself: If the historical Yeshua did not proclaim himself as the Messiah and the Son of G-d, the divine savior who was to die for the sins of the world-if that was not his purpose and the content of his preaching and message-what then was he like, and what was his mission and message?

Though the quest in the twentieth century produced a wide diversity of answers to these questions, two traits emerged as dominant emphases in mainstream scholarship.

INCREASING HISTORICAL SKEPTICISM-CAN WE REALLY KNOW THE TRUTH CONCERNING JESUS?

First, there was an increasing historical skepticism about whether we can know the answers to these questions with any degree of probability. To some extent, this skepticism flowed out of the increasingly meticulous study of the origins of the gospels, especially form criticism and redaction criticism.

This century's scholarship has made it clear that not only John but also the Synoptic Gospels reflect the experience and beliefs of the early church. Form criticism, emerging after World War I, studied the way the traditions about Yeshua were shaped during the three or more decades that they circulated in oral form before being written down. Redaction criticism, developing largely after World War II, analyzed Matthew, Mark, and Luke as individual documents, as well as carefully comparing how each handled individual texts. Correctly treating the gospels as the products of particular authors writing for particular communities, redaction criticism focused attention upon the meaning intended by the, gospel writers themselves, and not upon the history behind the gospel.

Together with form criticism, redaction criticism has made it even more clear that every story and word of Yeshua has been shaped by the eyes and hands of the early church. By making us more aware of the ways the gospel writers and the early Christians before them during the oral period shaped their material in accord with their own needs and purposes. form and redaction critics have also made us more aware of the difficulties involved in using gospel texts as sources of information about the historical Yeshua.

The historical skepticism ignited by the careful study of the texts has been fueled by the multiplicity of diverse portraits of Yeshua constructed by scholars, ranging from a fairly traditional understanding of Yeshua as the servant and Son of G-d to Yeshua as a political revolutionary, or as one who expected the immediate end of the world.

These widely divergent portraits, all claiming to be based on the use of an objective historical method, have reinforced the notion that we really cannot know much about Yeshua at all, and the corollary notion that it is possible to construct almost any portrait of Yeshua one wishes. Prudent scholars thus tended to avoid the quest for the historical Yeshua and the middle portion of this century is commonly described in the history of scholarship as the period of "no quest." All that we can know directly, it was affirmed by many of these scholars, is "the Christ proclaimed in the preaching (or kerygma) of the early church." Kerygma is a Greek word which means "preaching" and has become a technical term referring to the early church's post-Easter message about Yeshua. It is often emphasized that the purpose of the gospels is essentially kerygmatic and non-historical, and whatever history they may contain has been thoroughly overlaid by the kerygma of the church. Scholars during the "no quest" period affirmed both the near impossibility as well as the theological unnecessary of trying to go behind the kerygma. Obtaining knowledge of the historical Yeshua thus was seen as both exceedingly difficult and theologically irrelevant. They were wrong!

THE IMAGE ITSELF: YESHUA ...THE ESCHATOLOGICAL PROPHET

This strong mood of historical skepticism was accompanied by a near consensus concerning what little can (and cannot) be known about Yeshua. Despite the diversity of portraits, there was considerable unanimity within the scholarly mainstream. This majority opinion of scholarship provides answers to the three questions of Yeshua' identity, message, and mission together comprise an image of Yeshua which became almost taken for granted in much of scholarship over the past sixty years.

Regarding Yeshua' own sense of identity, the growing historical skepticism produced a consensus. Whether Yeshua thought of himself as having any special exalted identity-as "Messiah" or "the Son of G-d"-we cannot know because of the very nature of the documents. When we do find such statements in the gospels (and they are few in our earliest sources), the careful historian (even if he or she is also a Christian) must suspect them as the post-resurrection perspective of Yeshua' followers projected back into the ministry. They may well be theologically true-that is, statements which appropriately describe what Yeshua had become in the life of the post-Easter church-but they may not be taken as historically accurate statements of what was said during the ministry itself. So also with the statements speaking of "dying for the sins of the world" as Yeshua' purpose or intention. Thus the image of the historical Yeshua as the divine savior who knew himself to be such, and whose mission was to complete that purpose, disappears. How Yeshua thought of himself and his purpose must be inferred from his message, not from statements of other's perceptions to whom he was. His message reveals his mission.

According to the consensus, from such an examination of Yeshua' message and mission we may surmise that he was an "eschatological prophet" or perhaps even "the eschatological prophet." The phrase needs some explanation. Eschatology is that branch of theology which concerns the "end time"-the end of the world, last judgment, and the dawning of the everlasting kingdom. An eschatological prophet is one who announces the end (Matt. 24). There is some evidence that some in the Jewish tradition near the time of Yeshua anticipated such a prophet, "one like unto Moses" or perhaps even greater than Moses, who would appear immediately before the end of time. To say that Yeshua was the eschatological prophet is to say that he saw himself as the prophet of the end who proclaimed the end of the world (age) in his own time and the urgency of repentance and obedience to the commands of G-d before it was too late. That was the core of his message and mission.

The consensus image of Yeshua as "the" eschatological prophet was grounded in the claim that the "Kingdom of G-d" was at the center of Yeshua' own message. So Mark describes Yeshua' mission in his advance summary at the beginning of his gospel: "The Kingdom of G-d is at hand, therefore repent!" (Mark 1:15). These are the first words attributed to Yeshua in Mark, his "inaugural address," and presumably Mark intends them as a shorthand summary of Yeshua' message and mission. It is Mark's answer to the question, "What was the core of Yeshua' proclamation?"

However, the consensus image also depends upon a particular interpretation of the phrase "Kingdom of G-d," namely that "Kingdom of G-d" is to be understood eschatologically as referring to the "final" Kingdom which would bring an end to earthly history as we know it, the "end of the world."

This eschatological understanding of Yeshua and of the Kingdom of G-d had its re-discovery primarily in the work of Albert Schweitzer (1875-1965) at the beginning of this century. He is most familiar to us as a world-famed medical missionary, Nobel prize recipient, and a modern "saint." But as a young man Schweitzer, prior to going to Africa, wrote two brilliant books that decisively shaped Yeshua studies for the rest of the century.

Calling attention to element of crisis running throughout the gospels and the statement about the coming of the "Kingdom of G-d" and "the Son of man" who would bring all earthly history to a close, Schweitzer taught that Yeshua expected these events in the immediate future and saw his death as playing a decisive role in bringing about the end. In Schweitzer's opinion Yeshua was mistaken; the end did not come, and he died perhaps realizing his miscalculation for the new age did not materialize. For Schweitzer, however, the story of Yeshua did not end there. Instead, Schweitzer spoke movingly of the spiritual Christ who still speaks to us, concluding his treatment of Yeshua with what have been called the most famous words of twentieth-century theology: He comes to us as One unknown, without a name, as of old, by the lake-side, he came to those men who knew him not. He speaks to us the same word: "Follow thou me" and sets us to the tasks which he has to fulfill for our time. He commands. And to those who obey him, whether they be wise or simple, he will reveal himself in the toils, the conflicts, the sufferings which they shall pass through in his fellowship, and, as an ineffable mystery, they shall learn in their own experience who he is" (Quest. 403).

For Schweitzer, the living Christ called him to Africa, even though Schweitzer's understanding of the historical Yeshua was of one who was profoundly misled by the eschatological beliefs of his day. For Schweitzer, the historical Yeshua thus became theologically irrelevant; only the Christ who still speaks to us is relevant for theology.

This, I feel, is a tragic mistake on his part, for without the correct understanding of the historical Yeshua' message and mission, it is far too easy for his message to be distorted today as a casual look at the diversity within the 2,000 different Christian denominations testify. Far too many have heard "Yeshua speak" things that contradict his historical teachings; many of which also contradict and distort his mission.

Though Schweitzer's work initially created a sensation and strikes many as outlandish when they first hear of it, his image of Yeshua as an eschatological prophet gradually became the consensus understanding among scholars. It is this image of Yeshua that became the dominant image in German New Testament scholarship and, through the influential role played by German scholarship, in much of North American scholarship. It is found in the work of Rudolf Bultmann (1884-1976), arguably the most influential New Testament scholar throughout much of this century; in Gunther Borokamm's Yeshua of Nazareth (New York: Harper, 1960; originally published in German in 1956), probably the most widely read scholarly book about Yeshua written in the last thirty years; and, in various forms, in the work of such influential scholars as Joachim Jeremias, Werner Kummel, Hans Conzelmann, R. H. Fuller, and the early works of Norman Perrin.

To be sure scholars also recognized that Yeshua spoke of the Kingdom as present and not only future, but the future imminent Kingdom continue to be emphasized. The image of Yeshua as one who proclaimed the end of the world and the urgency of repentance remained. Yeshua was one who expected the end of the world in his generation and called for men everywhere to repent in preparation for its coming.

Though the scholarly image of Yeshua as eschatological prophet is known only in relatively narrow circles, it has had its effect upon the life of the church, primarily through the education provided to the clergy. In addition to learning that the popular image is not historical, students in the seminaries of mainstream churches over the past several decades have basically learned two things about Yeshua: one, we cannot know much about him; and two, what we can know is a bit shocking and largely irrelevant to the life of the church. The image of Yeshua as mistakenly expecting the end of the world in his own time and calling people to repent because the end was near does not lend itself well to Christian preaching and teaching. Never have I heard a preacher say in a sermon, "The text tells us that Yeshua expected the end of the world in his time; he was wrong, but let's see what we can make of the text anyway."

As a consequence, among mainstream clergy there is often a strange silence about what Yeshua was like as a historical figure. Christian preaching about Yeshua is left to those who still think of the popular image as historical and who can therefore proclaim that image with confidence. When mainstream clergy do preach about Yeshua, understandably they tend to emphasize the kerygma, the message of the early church ABOUT Yeshua, and not Yeshua himself. No wonder the popular image has remained so dominant, for Christians are typically not exposed to a persuasive and compelling alternative image.

What is known is an unhistorical image, believed by some, disbelieved by others. Thus the two dominant currents of twentieth-century scholarship on Jesus-historical skepticism and eschatological emphasis -have made the historical Yeshua seem irrelevant. There is a widespread impression that what the historical Yeshua was like is not only difficult to know but also of no theological consequence-that is, of no significance for us today, whether we are in the church or outside it. Schweitzer said so explicitly, and much of subsequent New Testament scholarship has essentially agreed: the historical Yeshua is irrelevant.

There is some truth to this position.

Knowledge of the historical Yeshua is not essential but very beneficial if obedience to his message is of importance to you and your family.

Being a Christian does not require having accurate historical information. Generations of Christians, taking the gospel portraits at "face value" as historical accounts, have had incorrect historical beliefs about Yeshua that have done (without their knowledge) harm to their faith and piety.

In fact, failure to discern and correctly understand the historical Yeshua, his historical mission, and his historical message have led multitudes of Christians to be deeply seated in idolatry, observe pagan religious festivals in Yeshua's name, as well as robbing G-d in tithes and offerings all the while their clergy assures them that they are "right with G-d" if they believe and do as they are told by their church. For after all, Christianity does not concern itself with or consist primarily of having correct beliefs about the historical Yeshua, but consists of having a relationship with the 'theology created' living Christ.

There is one major problem!

Due to a mistaken image, mission, and message of the historical Yeshua and the acceptance of the erroneous popular image of Yeshua...we fool and deceive ourselves if we believe we have a good relationship with Yeshua and G-d if we (due to our misunderstanding) adhere to and practice a belief system contrary to what the historical Yeshua both believed and followed. His message was one of repentance and love for G-d and man as exhibited through a life-style that modeled ethics and morals based upon the Laws of G-d. Failure to understand correctly the historical Yeshua will guarantees you being led astray by your spiritual leaders who lack such knowledge and rely on their own inadequate understanding in presenting to you a mistaken image of the "real" Yeshua and his message. Faith without works or mistaken works is dead.

Let me stress that what the historical Yeshua was like is not irrelevant to the Christian faith, even if historical knowledge about him is not essential for salvation. Correct historical knowledge about Yeshua is necessary for blessings and rewards both in this world and the world to come. But be not mistaken any longer. Historical knowledge about Yeshua is necessary for understanding G-d's desired obedience and thereby attaining blessings from G-d. Because we lack such critical and necessary knowledge about the historical Yeshua which modeled accepted belief and obedience as a model for all today, we who have accepted the popular image of Yeshua and "faith only" have, in the lack of blessings, attributed and relegated to the blaming of Satan our lack of blessing. Sadly we fail to ask ourselves in the presence of unanswered prayer and the lack of blessings "is it I Lord?" Lacking such knowledge that would correct our belief system and our conduct, as well as our behavior, we are forced to designate Satan as our "scapegoat."

There are signs that the extreme historical skepticism that has marked most Yeshua study in this century is abating. Though it is true that the gospels are not straightforward historical documents, and though it is true that every saying and story of Yeshua has been shaped by the early church, we can in fact know as much about Yeshua as we can about any figure in the ancient world. In some respects, the quest for the historical Yeshua as a historical pursuit is no different from the quest for the historical Caesar. Though we know of these figures only in traditions preserved by their respective communities, we do not therefore conclude that we can know nothing about them. Our sources for the historical Yeshua are at least as good. To be sure, there is more of a "theological overlay" in the sources about Yeshua because of the early church's convictions regarding his ultimate stature, but this does not render historical knowledge impossible.

Though we cannot ever be certain that we have direct and exact quotations from Yeshua, we can be relatively sure of the kinds of things he said, and of the main themes and thrust of his teaching. We can also be relatively sure of the kinds of things he did: healings, association with outcasts, the deliberate calling of twelve disciples, a mission directed to Israel, and a final purposeful journey to Jerusalem.

Likewise, we can be relatively certain of the kind of person he was: a charismatic who was a healer, sage, prophet, and revitalization movement founder. By incorporating all of this, and not preoccupying ourselves with the question of whether Yeshua said exactly the particular words attributed to him, we can sketch a fairly full and historically defensible portrait of Yeshua. It is to this portrait we turn to lead a more meaningful Biblical life-style.

Sages, known in all traditional cultures, are teachers; they are "the wise" who teach a way of life. Prophets know the "mind" or "will" of the other world and announce that to their people. Finally, a revitalization movement founder stands within a tradition and either calls it to return to some earlier form or to a radicalized form. Yeshua, we shall see, was all of these.

By looking at the traditions about Yeshua we will not only be able to see him with considerable clarity as a historical figure, but we will also be able to see his extraordinary relevance for both contemporary culture and the church.

This relevance comes from his message and not the message about him formulated by the Gentile church long after his death.

Yeshua provides us with a way of seeing reality that is very different from and yet more comprehensive than the modern vision, and a model of being human at sharp variance from the modern model. The church's failure to recognize his true message [centered at obeying the Laws of G-d] and their blind acceptance of the "transformation" of his message [faith in Yeshua instead of living the faith of Yeshua] has led us to the sorry state of affairs we find today: the lack of miracles, the lack of prosperity, the failure and deceit of our spiritual leaders, etc.

When the message of Yeshua was replaced by a message about him the church lost its power, its obedience and the fear of G-d

Thus Yeshua has an intellectual as well as spiritual relevance. Indeed, he challenges much of what we take for granted. For Christians who seek to mold their lives of discipleship around what it means to follow Yeshua, what Yeshua was like when contrasted with the distorted image of him handed down by the Gentile church should be of more than a passing interest to those who wish to follow Yeshua.

To follow Yeshua means in some sense to be like him," to take seriously what he took seriously, to believe what he believed, to do those things which he did, and to renounce those things that are contrary to truth

Answer for yourself: I challenge you to be truthful with yourself: are there things Yeshua believed and taught that you don't [such as observance of Festivals, Sabbath, righteous giving to people instead of institutions], and if so...why?

Answer for yourself: If you believe things that Yeshua' didn't...why do you? Finally, if Yeshua believed, taught, and modeled things you don't...what stops you from changing?

This is the heart of the religion of Yeshua...repentance and obedience to the Law of G-d

Though this article is primarily a historical study, it is done with the recognition that the figure of Yeshua has been significant to generations of Christians, and with the conviction that he is of continuing and indeed crucial importance to the life of both church and culture. With this conviction in mind, Bet Emet Ministry as well as other ministries like it seek to recover the vision of the "real" historical Yeshua, a vision which can provide us with an alternative vision of life that is much more pleasing to G-d than one which accepts man-made traditions and leaves undone the very issues of a life pleasing to G-d that come only from accurate historical understanding of Yeshua and his belief system. This involves literally "how" and "what" we worship as pertaining to Biblical Feast Days and Sabbaths as well as worship in our giving [correct Tithing]. We do not gain G-d's pleasure when we give erroneously by giving to churches which fail to allot your gifts to the specific places commanded by G-d in His Word. This is where we must begin before we go on to the deeper teachings of Yeshua.

We must address the issues of the heart as manifested through correct conduct, attitude, and behavior; all the time realizing that if we contradict

Yeshua in our experience we are not pleasing to G-d.

For that reason, and that reason alone, it is of paramount interest we understand the "real" historical Yeshua and his belief system and what it means to you today regardless of what you have been instructed by the traditions of your Gentile Roman church or denomination. Yeshua is the model and it is he to whom we are to identify with, and if your church or denomination blurs his image, you must seek to discover the only Yeshua which you can securely put your faith and trust in...the historical Yeshua...the Christ of history and not the Christ of faith created by an anti-Semitic Gentile church who rejected his faith and religion and does so today some 2000 years later as well. Shalom.

DO YOU HAVE THE FAITH OF YESHUA (JESUS) OR FAITH IN YESHUA (JESUS)?

Many Christians suffer from what I call "double vision" when they behold Yeshua (Jesus). When he is referred to as "Jesus," they can vaguely envision him as a Jew. They almost never call him simply Yeshua, or "Jesus of Nazareth," or "the Nazarene," the way Jews do. They almost always refer to him as "our Lord Jesus" or as Jesus Christ. Yeshua the man may have been Jewish, but by deifying Jesus in a non-Jewish terms Christians have in essence read him out of his strictly Jewish context and distorted the real truths about him.

A related Christian problem is the inability to see Yeshua the Jew without also seeing him as the divine Christ the Jews had "rejected." This begins with the earliest documents of the Church & its sacred "scripture," the New Testament. To compound the issue, none of these scriptural writers were contemporaries of Yeshua. You might find that hard to believe but it can proven that the majority of the New Testament documents came from non-Jewish hands and not Jews, let alone the apostles. So much for "inspiration of Apostolic authority." The writers of these New Testament documents neither witnessed the events they described nor did they personally hear Yeshua say the words they quoted. This explains why so much paganism is put into the mouth of Jesus in the New Testament when any Jew knows that Judaism never taught nor believed much that comes from the mouth of Jesus in the New Testament (himself a Jew). The Four Gospels which have traditionally been regarded as the very oldest of the writings, are now almost universally understood by scholars to have actually been written after the time of Paul, or several generations after Yeshua died and by non-Jews no less! In fact no quote for a "gospel" can be found in any Christian writers' legacy until 200 A.D.! This is food for great concern! Although the Gospels sound as if they are contemporary eyewitness accounts, the Epistles of Paul were actually written closer to Yeshua's time than were the Gospels. And even they were not written during his lifetime.

Even more problematic, as Oxford scholar Geza Vermes has clearly demonstrated, is the fact that in his lifetime, Yeshua himself was most vague and evasive whenever asked whether he was indeed the Jewish Messiah. It was only after his death that first Paul, and then later, the writers of the Gospels, publicly proclaimed Yeshua as Messiah, and then developed their emerging new religion on the basis of their own perceptions of Yeshua which can easily be shown to have more in common with sun-worship and mystery religions than Biblical Judaism.

Let us concede for a moment that all of these records were not mere "hindsight" or a rewriting of Jewish religious history as a later generation of Gentile Christians saw it, but were based upon authentic oral traditions which remained faithful to the truth of past events, or of older teachings. Regardless of when or by whom they were written, what forcibly confronts a careful student of the Bible is the fact that both of them fail to deal fully with Yeshua, the man. Paul tells us very little about the life of Yeshua, and so he is hardly a good source in trying to uncover the Jewish Yeshua. From Paul we find only two references to what Jesus taught and both are "one" liners. From Paul we know only that Yeshua was crucified; that, as Paul believed, he was resurrected; that Yeshua had a brother named James; and that Yeshua taught that divorce was prohibited. As a basic architect of this new theology or as Paul became, the real founder of Christianity, Paul was not interested in who Yeshua was as a Jew and what he believed, but rather, in what he was in his own estimation based upon his "vision" on the Damascus road...called "his" gospel by Paul: the divine, redeeming savior of mankind, whose Jewishness is only incidental to a larger universal mission. To Paul, the human career of Yeshua was seen as merely an interval in the immortal life of a divine being. For Paul the teachings and the message of Jesus was not important as determined by the lack of presentation or reference to them by Paul who is credited with writing 2/3 of the New Testament; and only 2 sentences are devoted to what Jesus taught and believed by Paul! Not only that but Paul alluded to only "one" of Yeshua's teachings in all of his writings which have become "scripture" for the Christian Church, and as stated above, that was on the issue of divorce. In other words, the life and teachings of Yeshua was secondary to Paul's theology "about Yeshua". If we only had Paul's accounts we would know absolutely nothing about Jesus and what he stood for!

A careful search of the Four Gospels reveals how difficult it is to separate the human from the divine Yeshua, even when studying these Christian sources which proclaim to be eye-witness accounts of his life, which they are not. If one reads only the Synoptic Gospels one comes away with a human "messiah" of Judaism and that is what Judaism taught. But if one reads the Gospel of John you see the Essene's G-dman that comes from the core of Egyptian sun-worship and their astral worship. Of course other Gentile nations will fall prey to these ideas as well but understand that the New Testament presents two completely different views of Jesus. Unless I knew better I would think that he had two personalities and needed psychoterapeutic drugs. Two of these Gospels, Mark and John, do not even discuss or describe his birth or boyhood. Instead, they present us with a mature Yeshua. Despite many differences and contradictions among the Four Gospels concerning certain events in Yeshua's life, all of them have one overriding interest in common: the events of his final week on earth, which center on his impending death, yet these again are full of contradictions. Concerning these events, there is some confusion: the trial and crucifixion, in John, take place on the day prior to Passover; in the other three Gospels, these events occur on the first day of Passover. The resurrected Yeshua, in Matthew, appears in Galilee; Luke identifies the location somewhere else altogether in Emmaus, near Jerusalem. Mark does not contain an account of the reappearance of the resurrected Yeshua at all. Such discrepancies are numerous in the New Testament and conflicts among the passages abound to the discriminating reader. These discrepancies and problems are so vast that no one article could begin to touch them but you need to be advised that they exist and do so abundantly.

Answer for yourself: What does this say for our cherished doctrines of inerrancy and infallibility, let alone authority for such documents to build one's life and trust upon for eternity? You will have to answer that for yourself but there are answers for these difficulties and none of them are reassuring.

Inspiration is not the same as inerrancy and infallibility!

THE DEJUDIAZING OF JESUS IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

Infinitely more significant than these textual irregularities and inconsistencies is the fact that not only later generations of Christian theologians but the New Testament writers themselves seem much less interested in the Jewish ordinances, traditions, and message of Yeshua than they are in explaining why they regard him as their supernatural Messiah. They seem to forget that Israel and the Jews are the hope and light for the nations; even themselves. There is good historical reason for this. At first, these documents are made to look as if the writers, presumably Jewish, were addressing only their own fellow Jews, urging them to accept Yeshua as the foretold Jewish Messiah. In putting Yeshua forth in this manner to their own people, it was of little importance to convince them that he was actually one of them; that was taken for granted. When one begins a critical study of these documents the internal evidences alone in each of the 4 Gospels betrays non-Jewish authorship because errors and mistakes are common which any 5 year old Jewish child would not make let alone the Holy Spirit if He were behind such writings. Again, this is something quite disturbing when you see these things!

The Jewish people were already aware of Yeshua' message which was the same as the many prophets which had preceded him: G-d, Torah, repentance, and Israel. Yeshua was bringing the warning that the coming of the Kingdom was near along with judgment to those who will not repent. Yeshua knew what the Christian Church today does not; namely, the Kingdom of Heaven would not come nor Israel's Messiah and King be revealed unless Israel merited the Kingdom as G-d's Royal Priesthood for the world. The spiritual climate of Israel was such that they would miss their visitation and the Messiah would not be revealed and the prophecies not fulfilled. But this was not the fault of Jesus or any other who could be considered the Messiah in waiting.

THE FALSIFICATION OF THE CHRISTIAN'S BIBLES...BOTH OLD TESTAMENTS AND NEW TESTAMENTS

There is another problem that the Christian Church fails to understand at this point in the presentation of Jesus as the Jewish Messiah in the New Testament; namely, every Jew over the age of 5 years old knew fully well that the true Messianic Prophecies were not fulfilled before, during, or after Jesus' death. This made the selling of Jesus as Israel's Messiah hard if not possible for the Jew and does so today. This fact escapes the contemporary Christian because his "Christianized Bible" is full of false fulfillments that were created by purposeful mistranslation, misquotation, and lifting passages out of context, in order to present this Jesus of Rome's New Testament as the Messiah to the Gentile world. We must remember that the Gentiles of the world never knew what the true Jewish Scriptures really said concerning the Messiah. They knew no better and nether does 95 % of Christians today since they have never dreamed that their Bibles could be forged and are fraudulent in very important places dealing with Jesus.

It was extremely vital to writers of these New Testament documents to persuade others that Yeshua was indeed a "supernatural" Messiah. Let us not forget that conservative Biblical Judaism taught a human Messiah. One must look to the Essenes for this belief. This explains why it is that this aspect of Yeshua's divinity, rather than his humanity, unfortunately became the central concern & message of the New Testament authors or at least those who re-edited the New Testament documents at a later date. This Essenic theology from these apostate Egyptian Hellenized Jews became the theology of the later Christocentric Gentile Churches of history. Again, this was very easy for not only were the earliest Gentile Church Fathers taught by them in Alexandria, Egypt, but they, as sun-worshippers themselves, already had their dying g-dmen and Jesus was just made into "another" one. The true Jewish Scriptures never taught this, but when they were altered in such ways by the Essenes in 200 B.C.E. then the Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures would carry this idea and this Greek translation became the foundation for every Christian Old Testament that would come later (even the Latin of the Catholic Church would be influenced by it). As if that is not bad enough every quote in the New Testament is taken from these corrupted Greek texts. This means that many of the concepts espoused as "messianic" are in reality the fruit of sun-worship and have been applied to Jesus and few know this has occurred.

Later, when it appeared that the Jewish community would not accept the "divine" Yeshua as its Messiah, not only because such ideas were totally foreign to normative Biblical Judaism and their religious writings, but the prophecies went without fulfillment. After the Jew's rejection of this "non-fulfilling messiah, and after the Jew's rejection of this "divine Jesus" as Messiah instead of a human messiah anointed of G-d, then this "neo-pagan Christian message" was presented principally to the Gentiles, to whom the Jewish Bible, Jewish life, and traditions were alien, and in many ways too rigorous. To stress the Jewishness of Yeshua to a Jewish audience was totally irrelevant and even counterproductive considering the difficulties listed above. The Jewishness of Jewish fared little better when presenting him to the Gentile pagans as such Jewishness implied for them an ethical monotheism, let alone ethical and ceremonial rituals of Jewish religious teaching as given by G-d, which ironically, were given to not only the Jews but Gentiles as well as seen if one undertakes a serious study of the Torah and the Tanakh. Obedience and repentance has never been a popular message. It is not today as well! Easy believeism is the fruit of the corruption of the Christian's Bible as we literally are presented with a "get out of jail free" gospel. So not only the message of Jesus was changed but the ideas concerning the Jewish Messiah were altered in the selling of Jesus to the Gentile world as another in a long line of dying sun-g-dmen.

So instead of living the real message of Jesus the world is full of "believers" in the theology created around the identity of this man. Because of this the Kingdom of Heaven is postponed and will continually be until the truth is restored and there is a wholesale repentance within Christendom, not only concerning their idolatrous beliefs but their conduct and behavior as well since much that is sanctioned and taught by Christian Churches today is defined as sin in the Torah.

THE SUBORDINATION OF THE RELIGION OF YESHUA TO FAITH "IN" YESHUA

So upon examination of the evidence we find that the non-Jewish New Testament authors subordinated the "religion of Yeshua" (Sinai religion-Torah-Judaism) to their new religion-in-the-making; the "religion about the identity of Yeshua", which was centered not so much on his life, message, and teachings (which it should have been) as upon his mystical death and resurrection as emphasized by Paul. What the vast majority of Christians fail to realize is that Paul's Yeshua has more in common with pagan g-ds and false pagan religions than he does with Biblical Judaism and the Torah. But one must be educated in comparative religion to see and understand the above comment. This "Pauline Jesus" would later become crystallized as we have come to understand as "Pauline Christology", wherein all of life and creation are centered in the belief in the crucified and risen Christ. This unfortunately became the "official" salvation message of the post-Constantinian church of 325 A.D. Pauline Christology, and those who preached or accepted it, transformed the "religion of Yeshua" into the "religion about Yeshua"; no longer G-d's "anointed" messenger (anointed = messiah), but the eternal Christ who died to bring salvation to the whole world through his church.

We can now understand (as we see in Paul's writings) the Jewish ethical and religious teachings, traditions, and ordinances, as contained in the Torah, its laws, and the Hebrew prophets, were viewed as transcended, replaced, outdated, even overturned, by Paul's concept of the atoning death of Christ (as Paul would have us believe).

Answer for yourself: Once one understands how these New Testament documents were created and the origin for many of their religious concepts, one has to ask if G-d, the G-d of the Jewish Scriptures, agrees with what is said in certain places in the New Testament concerning Jesus...does he?

If you have never had the opportunity to study an unbiased look at the New Testament let alone its canonization and want to outside of the Christian box and closed mentality I strongly suggest you study:

PAUL'S MESSAGE AND YESHUA'S MESSAGE CONFLICT

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that Yeshua taught a completely different gospel for salvation than Paul taught? Have you ever noticed that?

Answer for yourself: But did Yeshua say that not one jot or tittle would ever pass away (Matt. 5:17)?

Answer for yourself: Who is right? Since these two different "gospels" contradict and conflict with each other in the "method" and "means" to obtain salvation then one thing is certain...only one is correct! Which one?

Answer for yourself: If you find out that Jesus is correct then the next biggest question to tackle is: Are you really a follower of Jesus?

The "identity" of Yeshua had become in Christian thought more important than what he stood for or the message he brought. In such a situation the Jewishness of Yeshua and his religion which was a model for all mankind was expressly rendered insignificant, as if it had never been a part of his coming. This explains why Yeshua, in Western countries, has been portrayed by artist and sculptors as if he were an Anglo-Saxon; and in other regions of the world as if he had lived and grown up in their own specific country as well. In bringing Yeshua to the world the vast majority of Christian churches have all but denied his Jewish heritage. To make this "Christ" accessible to everyone, he could no longer belong to one people in particular (Israel). His Jewishness was viewed as an impediment.

Thus, while Gentile Christianity borrowed the idea of messiah from Biblical Judaism, the pagans, whom they especially sought to convert to Christianity, were not taught about Yeshua the Jew, nor his message of salvation, only his deity and resurrection as the road to salvation. There is nothing new in this "revelation" at all; you only have to read about Osiris and Egyptian religion to see these same religious ideas, and don't forget that Egypt influenced the whole world.

This was done because the non-Jews of the world already had such prior beliefs concerning their solar-g-dmen and had to give nothing up to accept another g-dman. To teach the Jewish way of life would have ensured great difficulty in building a following. As stated, this presentation of Jesus as a sun-g-dman was not hard to do because familiar concepts tied to their pagan gods to which they were already familiar were "transformed" in a Jewish example of their g-ds. This "compromise" was an effective teaching tool and "bridge" used by Paul to reach the non-Jews and "soften" the acclimation of the Jewish faith to the non-Jews to which the concept of "Law" seemed foreign. Besides this was a personal justification to him since being rejected repeatedly by James and the Jerusalem church. I seriously doubt that Paul ever expected the results we have today because of his "hyperbole". So instead of Attis, for example, the concepts of Attis were attributed to Yeshua. In reality Yeshua became just another g-dman in the non-Jew's pantheon.

Most pagan converts to Christianity joined this universal religion of salvation because it offered each of them as individuals life everlasting. Its promises of eternal bliss for those who ONLY BELIEVED in its Savior was attractive to the multitudes of Gentiles because little commitment was needed let alone repentance. These non-Jews were "saved" by simple mental ascent to a religious doctrine concerning someone regardless of how they lived their lives because another had died for them. Again, dear ones, this is not a new teaching among the Gentile world since the same religious concepts originated with sun-worship thousands of years before Jesus was ever born. The only requirement was to "believe in Jesus" to have eternal life. Along with this concept was the partaking in the "supper of their god" whereby believers took the "blood" and "body" of their g-d...thus rendering them like their gods...immortal. These Gentiles have been eating their "g-ds" for thousands of years before Jesus; again nothing new. The Passover was turned into Communion and we lose the message again of Jesus as found in the Passover. The bread become the body of their g-d miraculously and they drink his very essence (his blood). This is pagan to the core; you just don't know because again this New Testament presents this idea as if G-d gave it to us! Besides, what Christian Churches keep the festivals? Easter has replaced the Passover for Christianity just like the "historical Jesus" has been replaced by the "Christ of faith;" just like communion has replaced the Passover as well.

Oh by the way...these Gentile religious concepts are totally foreign to Judaism and had been for over 4000 years!

Answer for yourself: Is it not strange that we never find in the New Testament passages that show us that Yeshua ever taught such doctrines for eternal life like the ones Paul did? Can you find one instance where Jesus told anyone to believe in his death, burial, and resurrection for eternal life? If you want to see what Yeshua taught for Eternal Life try Matt. 19!

Take time right now to read Matt. 19:16-30 and Mark 12:28-34. You should see that Yeshua's teachings contradicts the salvation messages taught by most churches today...of only "believe" in Jesus!

Over time we find added to the salvation message of Yeshua such things added as:

- the acknowledgment of his death,
- burial,
- and resurrection,
- as well as the virgin birth
- and incarnation

as necessary elements for salvation. Belief in a set of theological doctrines began to replace and would finally replace the religion as taught by Yeshua; which was one of faith in the One G-d of Israel & repentance and obedience according to the revelation of this One G-d as found in the Torah with its ethical and ceremonial commandments imposed on followers of G-d, both Jew and non-Jew, as their Covenant stipulations and responsibilities to be in right standing with G-d!

In summary the prophet Micah gives us a thumb nail sketch of the way to eternal life when he said in Mic. 6:8

"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy G-d."

Today Christianity is full of pastors and teachers which advocate, not explicitly but implicitly, the doctrine that conversion to Christ or belief in Christ involves "no spiritual commitment whatsoever". Those who hold this view of the gospel teach that Scripture promises salvation to anyone who simply believes the "facts" about Christ's identity as taught by Paul and who claims the gift of eternal life. There need be no real turning from sin, no resulting change in life-style, no commitment to G-d or the message of the Bible; not even a willingness to submit to the teachings and message of Yeshua. Obedience to the Laws of G-d are not necessary as we are no longer under such things. Those things, they say, amount to human works, which corrupt grace and have nothing to do with faith.

HOGWASH! I DARE ANYONE TO READ THE TORAH AND THE PROPHETS AND NOT SEE FOR YOURSELF WHAT G-D'S REAL MESSAGE OF SALVATION IS...IT IS NOT THE MESSAGE OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH TODAY...G-D DOES NOT CHANGE...MEN DO

A DEFICIENT DOCTRINE OF SALVATION...

The fallout of such thinking and Christian teaching is a deficient doctrine of salvation. It is justification without sanctification, and its impact on the church, as well as the world, has been catastrophic. The churches of today are populated with people who have bought into a system that encourages shallow and ineffectual faith. The majority of those sitting under such teachings are barren of any verifiable fruit in their lives. Most churches are dead institutions with little impact upon the world let alone their neighborhoods! Just pick up the newspaper and look at the headlines of this "supposed Christian nation" and you should ask yourself: "Where is the fruit of Christianity" on our streets of our nation? Jesus told us that we will know by the fruit. America prides itself on being a "Christian" nation...but look at the fruit of this country...if you have the honesty and courage to do so you will see that something is wrong with the message of the Christian Church that has produced such a sorry state in our country full of "Christians."

If you teach the wrong message you get the wrong results!

Yeshua gave this sobering warning: "Not every one who says to Me, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter the kingdom of heaven; but he who (believes or does?) does the will of my Father who is in heaven (notice the promise is not to those who just believe in Yeshua). Many will save to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and in your name cast out demons, and in your name perform many miracles?' And then I will declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from me, you who practice iniquity (lawlessness)'" (Matthew 7:21-22). Practicing lawlessness is the same as practicing TORAHLESSNESS.

Just consider ONE aspect of the "faith of Yeshua"; namely obedience to the festival structure G-d gave Israel. I have already demonstrated to you repeatedly in prior articles that celebration of the festivals of the Lord was not optional to the Jew as well as the Gentile G-d-Fearers who repented of his sin and became a part of the Israel of G-d. It was the pattern. There are many others to consider as well...beginning with proper obedience of the church to the Tithe for example.

2 Thess. 3:6 records Paul's command to the followers of Yeshua :

"Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Yeshua Christ, that you withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which he received of us."

Answer for yourself: What "traditions" could Paul have been bringing to these Gentiles in Thessalonica in Greece?

Within these traditions that Paul refers that was being brought to these Gentiles (who were turning from idols to serve the living G-d) was not to be more Greek philosophy or theology; he was to bring them the religion of Yeshua (Biblical Judaism) which was centered in the "faith of Yeshua" and not a "faith in Yeshua." Paul did not always do a good job here sorry to say...but that is a whole other can of worms when we deal with the real Paul of history and not the false picture painted of him in this "one book" we call the Christian Bible.

When we continue steadfastly in the Apostle's doctrines of Acts 2:42 we continue in the faith "of" Yeshua, not a faith "in" Yeshua.

Faith "in" Jesus would come later by those who would take Paul's writings and build a world religion on them. They would create in Jesus' name a new religion that would eventually end up completely separated from Jesus' faith and beliefs. And the world yet today does not know or even care to know that such a Gentile creationism is not any different from what they already believed as pagan Gentiles; namely, that they were "IN OSIRIS," or "in" their g-d whom they consumed in their Eucharists as they ate the body of their g-d and drank his blood. Little has changed.

Answer for yourself: Are you, as a follower of Yeshua, practicing a Torah observant life-style as Yeshua would have you do? Does your church and Pastor teach this or is his gospel that of Paul?

Answer for yourself: Are you a "true follower" of Yeshua and could you, after reading this article, consider yourself a "true follower of Jesus" as seen in the pages of the New Testament or can you begin to see that you have been led astray? Are you open to honest inquiry into the subject?

Answer for yourself: Is your church teaching you to sanctify the Sabbath as did believing Gentiles in the first century, or is your church substituting Sunday (Sun Worship Day) for the Sabbath?

Answer for yourself: Did you celebrate the festival of Passover this year or did you substitute the paganized cultic ritual of Ishtar (Easter) in place of it without full understanding of what you did? Or does your communion take its place?

Answer for yourself: Didn't G-d say that the Passover is to be celebrated forever?

Answer for yourself: Or will you be participating in the sanctification of a day set aside for fertility rites and fornication rituals as you celebrate EASTER this year as well as the other pagan feast days that have been adopted by the church?

Answer for yourself: Do you not know that to do so and observe Ishtar day (Easter) is idolatry?

That is violation of the First Commandment! Remember Yeshua said "depart from me" to those who thought they would be accepted by Yeshua. They felt they were accepted. They had been taught by their leader that they were accepted. They had been reassured by their religious leaders. BUT THEY WERE NOT ACCEPTED!

Yeshua was not speaking about an isolated group of fringe followers. There will be "MANY" on that day who will stand before G-d, stunned to learn they are not included in G-d's kingdom. I fear that multitudes who fill church pews in the mainstream of the evangelical movement will be among those turned away because they did not do the will of the Father. They have followed the "evolved Catholic theology of Paul" by the anti-Semitic early Gentile Church and are guilty today of having a "faith in Yeshua" instead of obeying "the faith of Yeshua."

Answer for yourself: Are you willing to risk it?

You have been conditioned to believe that because you recited a prayer, signed on a dotted line, walked an aisle, had an emotional experience, were slain in the spirit, spoke in tongues, or had some other experience, you are saved and should never question your salvation. Scripture encourages us to examine ourselves to determine if we are in the faith (2 Cor. 13:5).

Answer for yourself: Why the need to examine if it were not possible to be deceived?

Notice that the New Testament, even though it contains errors, also contains truth. In the Gospels, one can find the Jewish "pattern" whereby non-Jewish believers are to be taught to follow the faith of Yeshua and be united with the Jews in the Israel of G-d. The Great Commission teaches that the non-Jews are to be "taught to observe those things commanded by Yeshua".

Answer for yourself: Can you ever find Yeshua in the Gospels ever commanding the teachings of Paul be taught or teaching the same message of salvation the way Paul does in his literature? [THINK]

One must go the the Pauline literature to find where one is taught to have faith in Yeshua for salvation. One only need to see where Paul, himself a Gentile convert, came up with that belief...try Tarsus...these doctrine were taught there where Paul grew up! Coincidence?

Peter wrote, "give diligence to make your calling and election sure" (2 Pet 1:10). It is right to examine your lives and evaluate the fruit you bear, for "each tree is known by its own fruit" (Luke 6:44).

The Bible teaches clearly that the evidence of G-d's work in a life is the inevitable fruit of a transformed behavior (1 John 3:10). But just a change in religious routine or behavior, if it does not conform to the truths in G-d's Word, is worthless, or at best compromised. One erroneous religious practice is not better than another. Our worship is tainted and G-d is not loved properly. Such is not to be desired; either knowingly or unknowingly.

Answer for yourself: Has your behavior, practices, and beliefs changed since encountering the Hebraic understanding of the Yeshua of the first century as well as his Gentile followers? Have you ever investigated the Jewish Jesus for yourself?

Answer for yourself: Does your life pattern the the life-style of a follower of the religion of Yeshua whereby you observe the Sabbath, keep the Seven Biblical Festivals, Tithe correctly, etc.,?

Remember that faith that does not result in righteous living is dead and cannot save (James 2:14-17). Professing Christians utterly lacking the fruit of true righteousness that comes through obedience (not another Gospel of "grace only" as preached by most churches today) will find no biblical basis for assurance they are saved (1 John 2:4).

Real salvation is an ongoing process as much as it is a past event. It is the work of G-d through which you are "conformed to the image of his son" (Rom. 8:29; 13:11). It is past time to find out the truth about the historical Jesus.

Notice we are to pattern our lives around Yeshua, and how he lived, not have a "mental religious belief system in agreement with some established Pauline or Gentile Catholic theology concerning his identity as they perceived it over 1800 years ago".

Answer for yourself: Have you looked lately to see how Yeshua lived and worshipped? Are you attempting to do the same?

Genuine assurance comes from seeing the Holy Spirit's transforming work in one's life, not from clinging to the memory of some experience or your church's teachings when you discover they are incorrect. Yeshua would have you repent of your incorrect beliefs and adopt his. G-d, in his love, changes lives when one comes to him in Jesus' name, or in Mohammed's name, or even others. Such is the love of G-d for His children. It is time we love Him back in the ways He commanded, and when shown the ways we have been taught are in error, then repentance is the order of the day.

Answer for yourself: Are you certain that what your church has taught you is not in error in many places? Have you looked or do you have the courage to do so? Do you even know what these "ways" are, or have you assumed that because you are moved with emotion in church that you cannot be in error? Better look again! G-d desires our emotions be tied to truth and not falsehoods.

Since beginning these teachings, I have shared with you about biblical giving where 1/3 of your Tithe should go to the teaching Levite and priest, 1/3 to the poor, and 1/3 to yourself in order for your and your family to celebrate and observe not only the weekly Sabbath was the Seven Festivals of the LORD as well. This is just one example among many where the Christian Churches have made grave mistakes and taught you to do the same. Such disobedience in how the tithe is used by the church is sin!

Answer for yourself: How has this message affected you?

Answer for yourself: Are you still supporting churches that do not teach you the truth of G-d's Word as held sacred by Yeshua and taught by him from his Bible that was not corrupted as ours has as I have shown you?

One only need look at these three sites and study them in detail to see this full story unfold for yourself:

<http://bennoah1.freewebsites.com>

<http://geocities.com/faithofyeshua>

<http://paganizingfaithofyeshua.netfirms.com>

Answer for yourself: Is your church revealing to you the real Yeshua of the Scriptures and how can you know without your personal study?

Answer for yourself: Shouldn't you support only those who are teaching the uncompromising truths of G-d's Word?

The question is "not who is your pastor, but who is your teacher?"

Answer for yourself: Were you aware of what the Word of G-d says concerning how the tithe is to be used or have you assumed the way your church does it is correct? Once you learn the truth will you repent of the errors of your giving, or now will you?

Answer for yourself: Have you taken the grace of G-d to excuse yourself from correctly or giving at all?

Answer for yourself: Having seen, in our other websites, what a true believing Gentile believed and practiced in the first century, have you began to seek G-d about you and your family sanctifying the Sabbath?

Answer for yourself: How can you not begin to sanctify the Sabbath, or tithe correctly, once you have come to the truth?

Answer for yourself: Have you prayed about your commitment to celebrating the Festivals of the Lord instead of the pagan rites given to you by contemporary Christianity?

Remember Paul's admonition to depart from brothers teaching not the traditions of the faith of Yeshua. It is a shame that we have this admonition but it seems he, or his epistles accomplish just the opposite.

This is not a religious game! This is not something I do because I have nothing else to do. G-d has called me to seek out the "faith once delivered to the saints" and deliver it once again (reawakening to the Hebraic roots of the Christian faith is currently occurring around the world)! This really began with the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls and will continue until G-d comes again to gather His elect. Not all of Israel is Israel! I am obedient to the commands of the Lord to the best of my ability in my life have repented when I discovered I have been mistaken in my religious beliefs and practices. Study can show this to you beyond any doubt. The question is what you decide to study and unbiased sources are available.

Answer for yourself: Have you? Will you?

It truly disturbs me that after having taught many for the last couple of years that the ears of many saints seem to be dull to these warnings.

Answer for yourself: Where are the questions that should come from these teachings?

Answer for yourself: Are you hearing the message?

Answer for yourself: How can we refute what Biblical history, culture, and language can show you about the errors taught by the churches today? Have you looked into this for yourself?

Answer for yourself: Is your church and Pastor attempting to adhere to the original faith of Yeshua or has contemporary Gentile Christianity taken it's place?

Answer for yourself: Do you really care? I assure you G-d does!

Please read 2 Thess. 3:6 again. It is written to you. You should fall on your knees and thank G-d in heaven for revealing to you that you have been participating in idolatry and didn't know it. Now you do.

Answer for yourself: What is your response?

Let me quote Paul, "This I say therefore, and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk (most churches today), in the vanity of their minds, having their understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of G-d through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their hearts: who being past feeling ...." I pray you are not past feeling! (Eph. 4:17-19).

Let us be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive" (Eph. 4:14).

You have been deceived long enough. Care enough to get involved in the "faith of Yeshua". I invite you to attend our get together on Internet Radio as we begin to study and practice "the faith of Yeshua." Beginning May 5th, 2001, at <http://www.crusaderadio.com/> on Saturday nights at 8 PM Central time Bet Emet will begin on a weekly basis live teachings whereby we can educate the Christian community about things necessary for them to live a life pleasing to G-d whereby they can know for sure that what they both believe and practice is pleasing to G-d. We invite you to listen and respond to this ministry.

Answer for yourself: The big question: "do you really want to be like Yeshua?"

Don't answer out loud.....G-d may hear you!

Help us get this message out. Please consider supporting the spread of the faith of Yeshua as Bet Emet attempts to preach faith, obedience, and repentance to a world that knows not the faith once given to the saints, nor that that the time is short before the judgment of G-d. ## WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO THE REAL "CHRISTIANITY" AS GIVEN BY JESUS?

Answer for yourself: Why is "Christianity" divided up into over 2,000 competing denominations and sects?

Answer for yourself: Why do churches calling themselves "Christian" have so many differing beliefs and practices?

Answer for yourself: What happened to "THE" (one and only) faith once given to the saints when today we have over 2,000 different "flavors" to choose from?

Answer for yourself: What happened to the unity of the saints? Is G-d the Author of this incredible CONFUSION?

Answer for yourself: And what about you?

Have you ever really proved why you believe what you "believe"?

Answer for yourself: Or did you just grow up in "your" church, taking its doctrines and practices for granted--without deeply studying the Bible?

Answer for yourself: Did you like me accept everything you were told because a man you respected stood before you and told you "what was so?"

Answer for yourself: Could he have been wrong and you not know it?

Answer for yourself: Shouldn't you PROVE what you believe by the inspired Word of G-d?

Yeshua gives you this warning:

"For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many.... For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders; inasmuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect" (Matt. 24:5, 24 KJV).

Yeshua did not say that only a few would come in His name, but that many would come in his name--representing themselves as "Christian" preachers who proclaim Yeshua as the Christ--DECEIVING MANY!
In other words, there was to be a mass deception based on the false teachings of the many who would claim to come "in Yeshua's name."

Frankly, it is easy for religious teachers to appropriate the Son of G-d's name as a cloak for their personal doctrines (just watch Christian television for a while), whether or not what they say has any relationship to Yeshua's life, teaching or message at all! Sadly most Christians are not even aware that is occurring because of their lack of knowledge and understanding of G-d's Word. That is why Paul commanded his Gentile audience:

"PROVE all things; hold fast that which is good" (1Thess. 5:21 KJV).

Each of you is responsible to check up on the preaching you hear or read (like this article), whatever the source. Don't make careless assumptions! Be sure you know what the Bible really says!

The Apostle Paul also admonishes,

"For if he who comes preaches another Yeshua whom we have not preached, or if you receive a different spirit which you have not received, or a different gospel, which you have not accepted, you may well put up with it" (2 Cor. 11:4).....[good advice!].

Answer for yourself: Would you put up with "another Yeshua"?

Answer for yourself: Could you have been deceived into believing a false Christ and a false message purported to have come from Christ?

Answer for yourself: What will you do when you find out you have?

THE REAL TEACHING OF YESHUA

Remember, the real Yeshua was a circumcised Jew. He met in the synagogue and kept the Sabbath day. He kept the Ten Commandments as a way of life:

If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. (John 15:10).

Answer for yourself: Was Yeshua's commandments the Law of Moses which His Father had given him? You bet!

He inspired Peter to write, "Christ ...leaving us an example, that you should follow His steps: 'Who committed no sin, nor was guile found in His mouth'" (1 Peter 2:21-22).

Paul instructed the Christians of his day,

"Imitate me, just as I also imitate Christ" (1 Cor. 11:1).

Without question in the Christian Church, Yeshua is our example--the light that G-d sent into the world to show us how we ought to live. He did that by modeling the Commandments of G-d daily before the people.

The real Yeshua said,

"Why do you call Me good? No one is good but One, that is, G-d. But if you want to enter into life, keep the commandments" (Matt. 19:17).

He continually made clear by his life and his teachings that the way into G-d's Kingdom was not only to believe on him but to believe his message and to OBEY the laws and ways of G-d and--through the Holy Spirit--to develop godly character.

The real Yeshua based His teaching squarely on the spiritual law of G-d, the Ten Commandments. In fact, he came to "magnify the law and make it honorable" (Is. 42:21). If you will study the Sermon on the Mount in Matthew 5, 6 and 7, you will find that Yeshua did just that. He magnified the Ten Commandments, making them even more binding because Christians are to keep them in the "spirit" or intent--NOT just the letter. So now Yeshua's true followers must not only avoid murder, they are not to even have a hateful or demeaning attitude toward any other humans (Matt. 5:21-22).

The real Yeshua did not sanction weak marital commitments or easy, no-fault divorces (Matt. 19:1-9). He taught that not only are we to avoid committing adultery, but that a man must not even lust after a woman! Real Christians must "LIVE by... every word of G-d" (Luke 4:4)....and that means the Laws of G-d!

WHICH HOLY DAYS DID YESHUA KEEP....WHOM WE ARE TO "IMITATE" ....REMEMBER?

The biblical record states that Yeshua kept the biblical Sabbath and the biblical Holy Days [FESTIVALS] which G-d gave Israel. These are the days kept not only by Yeshua but also, according to the Greek New Testament, by his apostles for many decades after his death (Acts 2:1; 16:13; 17:1-2; 18:21).

Yet today it is only the few who follow the example of Yeshua and his apostles.

Answer for yourself: What happened? How did these biblical Holy Days get changed? You need to read Constantine's "Easter Letter" to see it for yourself!

Answer for yourself: Why do some say obedience to the Ten Commandments is not necessary for Christians today?

Answer for yourself: Why are divorces, broken homes and immorality skyrocketing in our so-called "Christian" nations?

Answer for yourself: Why have some of the greatest wars in human history been waged between the so-called "Christian" nations of Europe?

Notice the Apostle Paul's warning to the Ephesian elders near the end of his ministry.

"For I know this, that after my departure savage wolves will come in among you, not sparing the flock. Also from among yourselves men will rise up, speaking perverse things, to draw away the disciples after themselves. Therefore watch, and remember that for three years I did not cease to warn everyone night and day with tears" (Acts 20:29-31).

Writing near the end of the Apostolic Age, the Apostle Jude warned, "Beloved, while I was very diligent to write to you concerning our common salvation (inclusion with the salvation already offered the Jews), I found it necessary to write to you exhorting you to contend earnestly for the faith which was once for all delivered to the saints. For certain men have crept in unnoticed, who long ago were marked out for this condemnation, ungodly men, who turn the grace of our G-d into licentiousness and deny the only Lord G-d and our Lord Yeshua Christ" (Jude 3-4).

IS YOUR FOCUS ON THE MAN OR THE MESSAGE OF THE MAN?

Slowly but surely, clever men--inspired by the Adversary--began to focus the minds of Christians increasingly on the person of Yeshua instead of his message. While doing this, they subtly modified and finally did away with the real message Yeshua brought from the Father.

Many prominent church historians acknowledge this. In his excellent handbook on church history, The Story of the Christian Church, Jesse Lyman Hurlbut states, "We name the last generation of the first century, from 68 to 100 A.D., 'The Age of Shadows,' partly because the gloom of persecution was over the church; but more especially because of all periods in the history, it is the one about which we know the least. We have no longer the clear light of the Book of Acts to guide us; and no author of that age has filled the blank in the history. We would like to read the later work by such helpers of St. Paul as Timothy, Apollos and Titus, but all these and St. Paul's other friends drop out of the record at his death. For 50 years after St. Paul's life a curtain hangs over the church, through which we strive vainly to look; and when at last it rises, about 120 A.D. with the writings of the earliest church fathers, we find a church in many aspects very different from that in the days of St. Peter and St. Paul" (p. 41).

Answer for yourself: WHY was the church "VERY DIFFERENT" than when Peter and Paul were alive?

Answer for yourself: WHO gave its human leaders the authority to change basic doctrines and practices which were commanded to be continually taught by Yeshua in the Great Commission (teach them to observe those things I commanded you...remember they were his Father's Commandments)?

Mr. Hurlbut continues,

"As long as the church was mainly Jewish, the Hebrew Sabbath was kept; but as it became increasingly Gentile the first day gradually took the place of the seventh day" (p. 45).

"The forms and ceremonies of paganism gradually crept into the worship. Some of the old heathen feasts became church festivals with a change of name and of worship. About 405 A.D. images of saints and martyrs began to appear in the churches, at first as memorials, then in succession revered, adored, and worshipped" (p. 79).

How very clever these early false ministers were! First, the images were just "memorials." Then, after people adjusted to that little modification, the images were revered, then "adored," and finally "worshipped"!

Slowly, subtly, bit by bit, people were deceived by the word games of clever apostate strategists. The false teachers would tell the people, "We're not really changing anything. This is just a little upgrade, a clarification, just a different way of explaining the same things we have always believed."

The hapless sheep were led astray gradually--ever so gradually--as paganism took over the name of Christianity! People eventually came to accept the idea that all you had to do was believe on the name of Yeshua. These false religious leaders did not teach real repentance. There was no real counting the cost and dedication to obeying G-d's laws--to letting spirit of Yeshua as seen in his life and ministry live in you the same life he lived 1,900 years ago! Christians gradually accepted the teaching that the Ten Commandments were "nailed to the cross" (instead of that "part" of the Law which was against us..the curse for disobedience..read the passage again) or in some other manner done away. Strangely, they even began to venerate the cross itself--a horrifying object of torture and execution in the pagan Roman Empire!

The true message that G-d sent from heaven about the coming Kingdom of G-d, obeying G-d's laws, overcoming the self and preparing to rule with Messiah in the coming Kingdom--all this was slowly watered down and finally eradicated. Instead, a message was preached about the person of Yeshua --his "Christmas story" birth, his loving nature, his death on the cross--though cleverly omitting the fact that Yeshua personally lived the Ten Commandments and taught them as a way of life! These false preachers especially omitted teaching the Scripturally verifiable doctrine about the biblical Holy Days of G-d and the weekly Sabbath.

The people were left without any definite standard of behavior. They were told, "Accept Christ," "Love the Lord," "Love your neighbors" and other such generalities. But the specific way of life based on the Ten Commandments was cast aside. Therefore, gradually, people lost sight of the sinfulness of lying, cheating, stealing, committing adultery and even waging WAR on their fellow "Christian" nations as occurred in Europe. They simply didn't know what sin was!

The Bible says, "Sin is the transgression of the LAW" (1 John 3:4 KJV). If G-d's Law has passed away then it stands to reason that there is no more sin, but we know better than accept that. The Law is still in effect and should be our example in such things as worship, tithing, celebration of Festival days, and practical manifestations of our love for our fellow man. But the attention of "Christians" during the Dark Ages following the great apostasy became focused more and more on the worship of the virgin Mary, the veneration of idols and pleasing the local priest or bishop--whose word was often the "law."

Over the centuries, an entirely different approach to Christianity was foisted onto the people. "Another Yeshua"--as Paul warned about--was presented to the unsuspecting public.

"SOMETHING VASTLY DIFFERENT"

In his enlightening book, The Church's Debt to Heretics, Professor Rufus M. Jones tells us, "If by any chance Christ Himself had been taken by his later followers as the model and pattern of the new way, and a serious attempt had been made to set up his life and teaching as the standard and norm for the Church, Christianity would have been something vastly different from what it became. Then 'heresy' would have been as it is not now, deviation from his way, his teaching, his spirit, his kingdom.... What we may properly call "Galilean Christianity" had a short life, though there have been notable attempts to revive it and make it live again, and here and there spiritual prophets have insisted that anything else other than this simple Galilean religion is 'heresy'; but the main line of historic development has taken a different course and has marked the emphasis very differently" (pp. 15-16).

Answer for yourself: Isn't that a remarkable admission from a respected scholar of church history?

If Christianity had really followed Yeshua's life and teachings, then Christianity would have developed in a "VASTLY DIFFERENT" manner!

As Yeshua prophesied, many false teachers came in His own name (Matt. 24:5). They talked about Yeshua. They talked about "love." But they set forth a false Christ and a false message about His person--rather than faithfully preaching the message of the coming Kingdom of G-d, which the Father sent by Him.

Answer for yourself: The result?

CONFUSION AND DISUNITY REIGN

People are confused about true Christianity. Those who do believe in some form of Christianity are divided into hundreds and thousands of competing sects and denominations. Very few of them understand the original form of Christianity that Yeshua and his apostles taught and lived!

The "Christian" world is in a malaise. It is confused--and its moral system is impotent without the sure foundation of G-d's law. Secular forces are increasingly dictating the standards of conduct, whereas that used to be the prerogative of religious leaders.

We behold the spectacle of sexual perverts taking over more and more key posts in government, in education and even in some of the mainline churches! We behold the horrifying statistics about millions of unborn babies having their skulls crushed and being vacuumed out of their mothers' wombs! We have become numb to homosexual ministers who without shame dot the televisions of our country. We behold a society that is truly coming apart at the seams. We behold a society that will soon be directly PUNISHED by the Great G-d who gives life and breath to all.

Answer for yourself: Why?

*Because our peoples have been deceived into believing in "another Yeshua."
Because our people have lost contact with the true G-d and His revealed way of life.*

As Yeshua said,

"Not everyone who says to Me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father in heaven. Many will say to Me in that day, 'Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in Your name, cast out demons in Your name, and done many wonders in Your name?'

Please pay attention the this next verse and the Greek word used for "iniquity:"

And <2532> then <5119> will I profess <3670> (5692) unto them <846>, <3754> I never <3763> knew <1097> (5627) you <5209>: depart <672> (5720) from <575> me <1700>, ye that work <2038> (5740)iniquity <458>.

Let me say it another way:

And then I will declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from Me, you who practice LAWLESSNESS'" (Matt. 7:21-23)!

The Greek word for iniquity is as follows:

BDB/Thayers # 458 458 anomia {an-om-ee'-ah} from 459; TDNT - 4:1085,646; n f AV - iniquity 12, unrighteousness 1, transgress the law + 4060 1, transgression of the law 1; 15

1. the condition of without law
- 2.

because ignorant of it

3. because of violating it

4. contempt and violation of law, iniquity, wickedness

Let us look at the root word used:

BDB/Thayers # 459 anomos {an'-om-os} from 1 (as a negative particle) and 3551; TDNT - 4:1086,646; adj

AV - without law 4, transgressor 2, wicked 2, lawless 1, unlawful 1; 10

1. destitute of (the Mosaic) law

2. "of the Gentiles".....DID YOU NOTICE THE WORD
INCLUDES GENTILES LIKE YOU AND ME??????

3. departing from the law, a violator of the law, lawless, wicked

Answer for yourself: Do you not see that Yeshua is referring also to Gentiles who are ignorant of and who are destitute of the Mosaic Law?

Answer for yourself: Are you a violator of the Mosaic Law in areas such as worship, observance of Biblical Festivals or do you practice your church's pagan holiday, and are you a violator in giving your tithe to organizations who are using the money in ways contrary to how G-d said it was to be used....as contained and delineated in His Laws?

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO HAVING SEEN THIS FOR YOURSELF?

If G-d has opened your mind thus far to what I am saying, then I urge you to begin a genuine STUDY of the Holy Bible. You may wish to begin reading carefully and thoughtfully through every word of the New Testament. Look key words up in their original language. Get a Strong's Concordance and a Thayer's Greek Lexicon. Get for yourself a Stone Edition Tanakh which is a more accurate translation of the Hebrew Scriptures than your Christian Bibles. If you need help call us at Bet Emet Ministries and we will teach you how to use the study aids available.

Study the books of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John--then the book of Acts.

Answer for yourself: What did Yeshua say one should do to inherit eternal life (Matt. 19:17)?

Answer for yourself: Did he say the Ten Commandments were done away or were not important anymore (Matt. 5:17-20)?

Answer for yourself: Didn't G-d inspire the beloved Apostle John to say at the very end of the Bible that the true saints will keep the commandments of G-d (Rev. 12:17; 14:12)?

Study with an open mind and find out what Yeshua said about Christianity! Then, pray fervently and ask G-d for genuine understanding.

The plain TRUTH is that G-d has let this world go its own way for these almost 6,000 years of recorded human history. He is allowing people--under the influence of the self and the Adversary--to do their own thing. We are writing the lessons of human experience in suffering of every kind.

The selfishness of men's hearts and their greed and hatred for the Law has got men and women so confused that they don't know which end is up.

Speaking directly of a spirit battle just a few years ahead of us now, G-d's Word says, "So the great dragon was cast out, that serpent of old, called the Devil and Satan, who deceives the WHOLE WORLD; he was cast to the earth, and his angels were cast out with him" (Rev. 12:9).

Answer for yourself: Could you be one who was deceived?

Answer for yourself: What could be more clear than that?

Again, through the Apostle Paul, G-d states,

"But even if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing, whose minds the g-d of this age has blinded, who do not believe, lest the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of G-d, should shine on them" (2 Cor. 4:3-4).

You need to cry out to G-d for true understanding...and that also means reading between the lines when reading Paul for often Paul teaches true Biblical faith and at other times makes great compromises toward it in reaching the non-Jews. But this becomes easy once you learn the faith of Yeshua in-depth and then read Paul. One major key to understanding you should prove to yourself is that Yeshua and the original apostles taught the full Truth.

Carnal men in various ecclesiastical denominations, churches, and councils have NO AUTHORITY from G-d to change that teaching and that way of life!

For instance, we read that Yeshua said,

"If you want to enter into life, keep the commandments" (Matt. 19:17).

Later, He said,

"I have kept My Father's commandments and abide in His love" (John 15:10).

And after his recorded resurrection Yeshua commissioned his disciples,

"Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age. Amen" (Matt. 28:19-20).

Notice...Yeshua commanded them to teach others to OBSERVE THOSE THINGS THAT HE COMMANDED (remember his commandments were his Father's Commandments).

Answer for yourself: So the question you need to ask yourself is: "Who had the authority to CHANGE this direct command of Yeshua?"

Answer for yourself: Does your preacher have the right to preach something other than the truth as read and understood in the Bible (often only found when original languages are consulted)?

Answer for yourself: Who had authority to teach something else? Obviously, NO ONE.

Answer for yourself: Should you trust what your preacher or teacher says if they don't know Hebrew and Greek and are therefore unable to teach you the hidden meanings of words in the Bible which often are 180 contrary to what the English translation says? The ANSWER IS NO!!!!!!

Again, we read that Yeshua always kept the same seventh-day Sabbath that all the Jews were keeping (Luke 4:16). No church historian ever argues that point. Then we read that the Apostle Paul,

"as his custom was, went in to them, and for three Sabbaths reasoned with them from the Scriptures" (Acts 17:2).

Later, Paul

"reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, ...(Acts 18:4).

Still later, we find James--the presiding apostle of the Mother Church at Jerusalem--telling Paul some THIRTY YEARS after Yeshua' death....

"You see, brother, how many myriads of Jews there are who have believed, and they are all zealous for the law" (Acts 21:20).

Notice that Yeshua's church was still zealous for the Law over 30 years after his death

And we find Paul himself helping pay the expenses for some offerings to demonstrate that--in James's words--

"you yourself also walk orderly and keep the law" (v. 24).

Can you even imagine the outrage among the Jewish Christians that would have occurred if Paul--who was regarded as perhaps a little liberal on a minor sacrificial part of the law--was, in fact, advocating the ABOLITION of the Holy Sabbath day: one of the Ten Commandments, which G-d gave at Mt. Sinai and which Yeshua always taught and practiced! The UPROAR that would have occurred throughout the Jewish/Christian world would have made the Acts 15 discussion over circumcision seem like a cup of spilled milk in comparison!

THE EXAMPLE OF THE JERUSALEM CHURCH...DID THEY GET IT WRONG?

A vital clue to understanding the puzzle of a modern "Christianity," which directly contradicts the teachings and practices of Yeshua and the original apostles, is to study the way of life of the original Mother Church--the Church of G-d at Jerusalem.

Paul wrote the mainly Gentile church at Thessalonica (apply this to your church for you also are a Gentile church) :

"For you, brethren, became IMITATORS of the churches of G-d which are in Judea in Christ Yeshua" (1 Thess. 2:14).

Answer for yourself: Does your church imitate the Jewish doctrines and synagogues as they existed in Judea when this was written; for example in doctrines of atonement, repentance, salvation, tithing, sabbath, and Holy Days? Not hardly. Something tragic has happened to "the" faith once given to the saints and one only need look at the anti-Semitism of the early church fathers and the latter Catholic Church of Rome for the reasons! Nearly all church historians recognize that the earliest headquarters church was at Jerusalem-- and that it set the pattern for the teaching and way of life for apostolic Christianity.

A respected and thoroughly researched history of this period is Edward Gibbon's monumental work, The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Writing of the apostolic and post-apostolic period, Gibbon states,

"The first fifteen bishops of Jerusalem were all circumcised Jews; and the congregation over which they presided united the law of Moses with the doctrine of Christ. It was natural that the primitive tradition of a church which was founded only 40 days after the death of Christ, and was governed almost as many years under the immediate inspection of his apostle, should be received as the standard of orthodoxy. The distant churches very frequently appealed to the authority of their venerable Parent" (vol. 1, p. 389).

DID THE WHOLE OF THE LAW APPLY TO THE NON-JEWISH BELIEVER?

I should point out here that "the law" which the early Gentile Christians observed was NOT the complete law of Moses. That is a mistaken idea foisted off on church historians by the misguided theologians of the Middle Ages. What the Gentile Christians did observe were those parts of the Mosaic Law which applied to them for much of it did not. Basically it consisted of the Ten Commandments, which Yeshua had always taught and commanded--the spiritual law of Almighty G-d (Rom. 7:14) along with other Laws which previously made up the Noahide Laws from the Covenant of Noah. Along with this they were to practice Isa. 56 where, because they loved G-d, they would choose "those things that pleased G-d" and incorporate them into their life as well as both belief and practice. But because these early Christians observed the biblical Sabbath, many historians persist in calling it the "law of Moses" and try to lump it in with animal sacrifices. This is absolutely WRONG and it is deceptive!

But the knowledge that the early church kept G-d's law is everywhere. Will Durant, in The Story of Civilization, said,

"Most of the apostles, apparently spared in this persecution because they still observed the law, remained in Jerusalem with the Judaic Christians. While Peter carried the Gospel to the towns of Judea, James 'the Just,' 'the brother of the Lord,' became the head of the now reduced and impoverished church in Jerusalem. James practiced the Law in all its severity" (vol. 3, pp. 576-577).

It is clear that many historians recognize that even the early Gentile Christians observed the Sabbath, the biblical Holy Days and the obedient way of life taught by the original apostles

Answer for yourself: Who gave ANYONE authority to change all of this?

Speaking of the decades after the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D., Will Durant writes,

"Therefore Judaic Christianity waned in number and power, and yielded the new religion to be transformed by the Greek mind.... Judaic Christianity survived for five centuries in a little group of Syriac Christians called Ebionim ('the poor'), who practiced Christian poverty and the full Jewish Law. At the end of the second century the Gentile Church condemned them as heretics" (vol. 3, p.

577).

The truth of the matter is that Apostolic Christianity was preserved by many little groups here and there--far beyond the end of the 2nd century. That is why the Apostle John was inspired to describe a remnant of the true Church at the END of this age as those "who keep the commandments of G-d and have the testimony of Yeshua" (Rev. 12:17).

Answer for yourself: Will you be keeping the commandments of G-d which is the testimony of Yeshua when the Messiah comes?

Answer for yourself: Or will you continue to live in darkness and in ignorance of them, thus expecting the sure rebuke of Yeshua: depart from me ye who practice Lawlessness (not keep the Laws of Moses)?

He again identified G-d's true Church:

"Here is the patience of the saints; here are those who keep the commandments of G-d and the faith of Yeshua" (Rev. 14:12).

Oh, by the way, notice that we are to KEEP THE FAITH OF JESUS...not just have faith "in" Yeshua.

Answer for yourself: And what was Yeshua's faith: Gentile Christianity or Messianic Judaism? Biblical Messianic Judaism!

And at the very end of the New Testament, John was inspired to tell us,

"Blessed are those who do His (G-d's) commandments, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city"
(Rev. 22:14).

Yeshua also said,

"Enter by the narrow gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leads to destruction, and there are many who go in by it. Because narrow is the gate and difficult is the way which leads to life, and there are few who find it" (Matt. 7:13-14).

Answer for yourself: Some may ask, "Where is the remnant of that commandment-keeping Church today?"

The answer is looking you right in the face! Bet Emet Ministries, and other like us with this message, are continuing to teach that same way of life revealed in the New Testament. We are certainly the "little flock." But through these pages and other outreaches G-d is using us to proclaim to a potential audience numbering in the millions the true Gospel, which Christ and the apostles preached.

He is also using us to proclaim the end-time prophetic warnings, which G-d wants His people to receive. If you would like more information about the real Yeshua or about meeting with us as we "rightly divide" the Word of G-d, please write to us or call us. And if you are interested in a thorough historical account of where G-d's true Church has been all these years, write for past articles.

Yeshua said, "I will build My church, and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it" (Matt. 16:18). Though scattered and persecuted down through the centuries, that true Church still exists. True Apostolic Christianity is still being taught and practiced--and you have come in contact with it. Unfortunately it is not on every street corner or in every church today.

Answer for yourself: Will you ACT on the Truth that G-d is now revealing to you?

As startling as it might sound...the bottom line is this...

If you truly desire to be a follower of Yeshua you cannot be a Christian and hold to such teachings...

1. the Law has passed away
2. that we are under grace and not longer accountable for the Law (sorry Paul you missed it....<http://paulproblem.faithweb.com/>)
3. that the Festivals of the LORD have been replaced by pagan holidays to which Yeshua's name has been attached
4. that the Sabbath has been changed to Sunday
5. that Yeshua is part of a pagan trinity or g-dhead which has its origins in Babylonian religion and Egyptian religion, etc.

Let us study to show ourselves approved as we learn of the corruption of the New Testament and Paul's writings by the anti-Semitic Gentile Church of the early centuries. Shalom.

ANGELS AND THEIR ROLE IN SPIRITUAL WARFARE

Angels are an ancient element in Jewish tradition, first appearing in the earliest passages of the Hebrew Bible (The Old Testament), which date back some three thousand years. The Hebrew Bible (Tanakh) is the canonized religious literature of the Jews and was the Bible Yeshua used. It was composed and transmitted over a span of one thousand years, from about 1250 B.C.E. to about 200 B.C.E. Contained within are the books of Job and Daniel in which we find Satan making his most dramatic biblical appearances. While the date of the composition of the Book of Job is still a point of contention among scholars, the writing of the Book of Daniel can be dated almost precisely to the years 170-160 B.C.E., the period of the Maccabean Revolt against pagan Hellenism, the civilization of the Greek world.

The works comprising the Apocrypha & Pseudepigrapha were composed from 200 B.C.E. to 100 C.E. during the time of the Dead Sea Scroll people (inter-testamental period) and are literally filled with numerous accounts of angels working hand-in-hand with G-d in securing redemption for man. The word "Apocryphon" in Greek means "hidden" or "secret", referring to special teachings hidden from the common man that were only understood by the select few. The term "Apocrypha" is applied to the books of a religious nature that contained such "secret or hidden" truths, yet were not included in the Hebrew Bible. The "Pseudepigrapha" consist of books attributed by the author to great figures of past centuries, most of whom are mentioned in the Hebrew Bible. There is nothing "pseudo" about these writings except the are attributed to better or lesser known biblical personalities in hopes of getting the reader's attention. The exclusion of both the Apocrypha & Pseudepigrapha from the Hebrew canon resulted in their gradual disappearance from the Jewish scene. It is due to their translation into Greek and the preservation of many of them as an important part of the Bible of the Catholic Church that these books have survived.

THE RABBIS CONCERN:

The books of the Apocrypha & Pseudepigrapha, although they were in some ways related to biblical style and subject matter and were thoroughly religious in nature, were viewed by the Rabbis as dangerous to the faith. Their apocalyptic hysteria was detrimental to the Jewish state of mind during the terribly troubled years following the destruction of the Holy Temple in the year 70. The physical attributes of G-d they describe were disrespectful of the idea of G-d's incorporeality, which had been for so many centuries a central pillar of the Jewish faith. But most disturbing of all to the Rabbis was the "population explosion" of angels to the point that they nearly overwhelmed the Creator Himself. To the Rabbis this threatened to inundate Judaism with a new form of idolatry like we find in Gnosticism in Christianity. A hierarchy of angels was created with names derived from pagan pantheons. The Greek and Roman pantheons assigned g-ds and g-ddesses for every major force in nature. The Rabbis felt that the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha, with their profusion of angelic names and functions comparable to Greek and Roman g-ds and g-ddesses, posed a threat to Judaic monotheism. So the Rabbis suppressed and condemned all of the writing in this genre. But even with such suppression the numerous accounts concerning angels in the Pseudepigrapha, their proliferation served as the foundation for the incorrect "spiritual warfare" teachings and doctrines in the church of today.

Answer for yourself: Is this doctrine of spiritual warfare as practiced in the majority of Charismatic Churches correct or is it false?

Answer for yourself: Should more millions of dollars be given to subsidize such a fictitious war? Read on.

With the writing of the Pseudepigrapha we find the proliferation of writings concerning the angels and their confusing roles. Many seemed so close to G-d in their depiction that the Rabbis would not include such writings in the Hebraic canon for fear that they would impugn the Oneness of G-d since the angels were seen to act somewhat autonomously. The most essential Jewish credo is: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord our G-d, the Lord is One." The One G-d shares His sovereignty with no other. The One G-d needs help from no other.

Answer for yourself: So does such a One need angels?

The teachers of the Talmud sensed the danger inherent in the acceptance of angels: Angels could become objects of adoration, worship, and prayer, and G-d's Oneness could be seriously threatened. Over and over, Jewish teaching stresses that angels are not independent powers, rather, they are the agents of G-d. They have no independent wills of their own as does mankind. Even Satan, a fallen angel, is dependent upon the will of G-d. He couldn't touch Job without divine permission. He couldn't impose famine upon King David and his people without G-d's sanction. And Satan could not have lured Eve and Adam into sin without divine license to do so. Thus we can understand the Rabbis and their "de-emphasis" of angels to protect the Oneness & sovereignty of G-d. On the other hand, Christianity, which was born during this period, incorporated many of these writings into their version of Holy Scriptures, assuring their survival. The discovery of the Dead Sea Scroll in 1947 illuminated the period of these writings. The Scroll people (probably the Essene sect) developed their own notions of angelology apart from Scripture, thus we see similarities between the Dead Sea Scrolls and the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha, especially in regard to apocalyptic visions and hopes, and angels play a crucial role for both.

THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN GOOD AND EVIL

It has always been difficult to speak of the One G-d as creator of evil.

Answer for yourself: Why would an all-powerful G-d allow evil to exist if He is also (as claimed by Jewish & Biblical tradition) all merciful?

This is the most troubling of all theological questions. The book of Job is devoted entirely to a consideration of this question. Job, a just and a good man, sustains a series of calamities, all inflicted upon him by Satan, but with G-d's permission. Job eventually questions G-d's justice, ultimately denying the premise that G-d is just and good. Though G-d finally does respond to Job, His answer falls far short of addressing why bad things happen to good people. One thing is clear, Satan is somehow involved in evil, even if he is subject to G-d's will and purposes. I personally believe the purpose of Satan as the bearer of evil to the people of G-d is to cause people to turn toward G-d in repentance, thus bringing a condition of good. Seeing such a choice of choosing good or evil, we as G-d's image in the flesh, are to fear the evil and gravitate toward the good. Having the difference between good & evil made plain for us (through the ministry of Satan) and no longer blurred, since we all have eaten from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil (good & evil are mixed within man & often indistinguishable) we can then make a choice for "good" for ourselves, which puts us in control of our lives and pleases G-d.

In The Beginning:

The "serpent" of Genesis is identified in the Jewish faith as:

- 1) An angel (the Angel of Death).
- 2) He is also called Satan or Samael the prince of demons.
- 3) The Yetzer ha-Ra, the inborn evil inclination of every human being.

It is this "evil nature" that is constantly in conflict with the Yetzer-tov, the inborn inclination to do good. Thus, the "serpent" is always within us tempting us to commit self-destructive acts. G-d also gave man the capacity to resist temptation, to thwart evil, and to do good. As I understand it, the tree of knowledge represents both good and evil, for knowledge can heal as well as destroy. Man was "created in G-d's image" in the sense that he was endowed with the intelligence necessary to distinguish between good and evil and thus act accordingly. But with the ingestion of "good and evil" (mixed together in the fruit of the tree) man can no longer discern right from wrong and therefore sin and evil is unavoidable. It has been said that serpents are of our own making and they poison our lives as every sin we do creates a devil or demon who hounds us at every turn. Each of our good deeds creates a guardian angel at our sides to take us through fires and storms and sickness and heartache. The more good deeds, the more guardian angels. Thus we create our own company.

ROLE OF ANGELS AND EVIL

Answer for yourself: So how do we account for evil in a world created by a G-d who is all good?

It is said rebellious angels leave the divine presence and descend to earth to debase man, thereby engendering evil.

Answer for yourself: How can evil be overcome?

By harnessing the angelic forces for good that are always there for those who choose them.

Answer for yourself: What can man himself do to accelerate the eradication of evil?

He can begin to control evil by subduing his own corrupt inclinations and mastering his own satanic potential. Through all this imagery the basic Judaic theology still shines: There are both Michaels (good influences) and Azazels (evil influences) within us; Princes of Light and Princes of Darkness. And it is up to us to choose who will rule over us. As Moses said at the very outset of Israel's career as the people of G-d,

"Behold I place before you life & good, as well as death and evil; therefore choose life!"

The Devil [personified darkness as evil] assumes many disguises in Judaic literature as he endeavors to seduce, tempt, or entrap. In the Jewish faith it was understood that angels who do good, as well as the devil or Satan who does bad, are metaphors for aspects of our own natures. Good and evil are inherent in every human being. Life is an unending confrontation within ourselves between the best and worst of us, between the "angelic" and the "satanic."

What will prevail in the end?

THE ORIGIN OF SPIRITUAL WARFARE - 160 B.C.E.

I wish us to look at the book of Daniel where we find that angels appear with names. None of the angels introduced in the Hebrew Bible up to this point has a name. When pressed by humans to reveal their names, the angels would refuse because they were only messengers of G-d with no identity of their own. The Hebrew Bible zealously protected the idea of G-d's Oneness and was on guard against any implication that His omnipotence might be shared with another being. Then suddenly in the Book of Daniel, the angelic host (usually described as "The Holy Ones") is expanded, and two of them are even designated by name: Michael and Gabriel. Both are guardian angels who protect the people of Israel. We should remember as we study that the Book of Daniel, composed in 164 B.C.E., [Daniel had been dead 300 plus years] is the last of the 24 books that comprise the Hebrew Bible. It is a visionary work belonging to the genre described as apocalyptic. Apocalyptic writing deals with heaven and earth; revelations concerning Creation; the fall of angels and men; the origins of evil; the conflict between light and darkness; hell and heaven; resurrection; last judgment, and the end of days. Interesting stuff, ugh? Most of the books of the Apocrypha belong to this genre and most were composed from about the middle of the second pre-Christian century to about the year 100.

To understand properly the role of angels in spiritual warfare we must begin with the Babylonian empire (had captured Judah and the Jews were their captives) which was overthrown in 539 B.C.E. by Cyrus the Great of Persia, and for almost two hundred years after, most of the Jews of the world lived under the reign and influence of the Persian empire as well as their religion. In 333 B.C.E., Alexander the Great of Macedonia defeated the armies of Persia in the Battle of Issus, so Palestine came under the rule of Alexander and his successors. The Jews were now under Hellenistic rule (Greek). The limited religious tolerance that the Jews had enjoyed under both Persia and Greece came to an abrupt end with the advent of Antiochus IV to the throne of the Seleucid kings, whose dominions included Palestine in 175 B.C.E. Antiochus was bent on establishing the Greek way of life and religion throughout his realm, and insisted that all his subjects submit to the pagan practices of the state. He ordered the death penalty for the observance of such basic Jewish rituals as circumcision, the Sabbath, the dietary laws, and the worship of the One G-d of Israel. In effect, he was out to destroy Judaism. He was even helped by some upper-class Jews who embraced Hellenism, thus seeking to cast their destiny with what they perceived to be the new wave of the future. The ultimate sin and insult against the Jewish people was the placement of the statue of Zeus (the "Abomination of Desolation" of the Book of Daniel) in the very heart of the Holy Temple. That resulted in the Maccabean Revolt, which began in 168 B.C.E. and was led by the Hasmonians who were a priestly family. Ultimately, Judas Maccabee succeeded in ousting the Greek forces from Jerusalem in 164 B.C.E. The Holy Temple was cleansed and its Judaic rites were re-instituted.

It is against this background of Antiochus IV and the chain of events listed above that the Book of Daniel was written. The unknown author wrote as if the narrative took place during the reigns of Babylonian and Persian kings. Thus the book was intended to give heart to loyal Jews struggling to overcome their continued suffering & ordeal under Antiochus. The Book of Daniel paints a picture of the Jew surviving despite the flames of Antiochus' fury. In the third chapter we encounter the 4th man (angel of the Lord) in the fire. As seen before, Daniel had no doubt that the guardian angel of the Jewish people would again save them from Antiochus and that Judaism and its adherents would emerge unscathed from the fires of the enemy.

But Daniel wanted more for his people than the escape from a furnace. Deeply troubled about the future of his people, he worried about their ability to triumph over the kingdoms of paganism that successively rules over them. Daniel was moved to prayer and his dream was interpreted by Gabriel & Michael. They were the only angels designated by name in the Hebrew Bible, most likely because the Jewish people desperately needed a more concrete vision of G-d's intervention on their behalf during such trying times. The names also brought them closed to the G-d who seemed to have distanced Himself from His people as their Holy Temple was destroyed and a succession of enemies (Babylon, Persians, Medes, and Greeks) took turns undermining the foundations of Judaic survival. It was in this setting that Michael and Gabriel were more than simply interpreters of Daniel's visions. They also depicted the events of the future to brighten the hearts of the Jewish people during the dark Maccabean era. It would be they that would prophesy "the kingship & dominion and the grandeur of all the kingdoms under the heavens will be given to the people of the holy ones of the Most High. Their royal rule will last forever, and all the dominions will serve and obey it."

Such a pronouncement instilled great hope into a people floundering in deep despair, even many of which were beginning to believe that G-d had forsaken them. How could He?

Answer for yourself: What happened to the promises of the covenant of Abraham?

For the first time in the Hebrew Bible angels were forecasting a distant future. It was no accident that it occurred around 170 B.C.E. when the Jews were beginning to doubt the imminence of their redemption. The reassurances of the Archangels Michael & Gabriel as prophets possibly rescued the national morale. A pessimistic vision would once again permeate the writings of the apocalyptic texts as Imperial Rome began to choke the life out of the rebellious spirit of fiercely nationalistic Judeans, as the Jewish community of Palestine fragmented. Sects multiplied, and one of these sects set up headquarters in the Judean desert by the Dead Sea. Most likely, the Scroll people belonged to the Jewish sect known as the Essenes who were ascetics who gathered into communal groups, forsaked the quest of luxury, worked hard to eke out their livelihood, and believed that they were the elect, or the chosen of Israel. They believed that they were the only ones who adhered to the true covenant of the Lord, and by so doing, they would hasten the advent of messianic times. They prepared for the imminent apocalyptic battle between Sons of Light (themselves) and the Sons of Darkness (those who had strayed from the covenant and were led by the forces of Belial, which included all the enemies of the Jewish people). The Scrolls sect believed that the world of their day was in control of Belial and his evil forces, yet the showdown battle against Belial was near. They were confident of the approaching victory of the Sons of Light and used Daniel 12:1 as a proof text that they would be vindicated. This teaching of the Essenes was the foundation for the cosmic battle between "good" and "evil" as seen in the war between YHWH (good) and Belial (Satan-the evil one). It would be upon this foundation than another Jewish religious sect that came to be known as Christianity would emerge.

PERSIAN OR JEWISH RELIGION: YOU CHOOSE!!!

NOW LISTEN WELL: The concept of the Sons of Light in mortal combat with the Sons of Darkness represented something new within Judaism and was in many ways a manifestation of the dualistic doctrine propounded by Zoroaster about the year 600 B.C.E. Zoroaster had taught that there were two spirits in the world: One, the progenitor and propagator of evil, lived in darkness, and the other, devoted to goodness, dwelled in light. The goal of humans was to escape the snares of the evil spirit, Ahriman, and to embrace the spirit of light, Ahura-Mazda. These spirits, meanwhile, were engaged in constant war for the soul of man. Zoroaster believed that in the end good would prevail over evil and light would banish darkness in these cosmic struggle.

Dead Sea Scroll scholars believe that the teaching of Zoroaster significantly influenced the Scroll people's concept of an apocalyptic war of the "Sons of Light against the Sons of Darkness." Let us never forget that it would be these Dead Sea Scroll people who would become the foundation for a later religious movement called Christianity. We accepted their theology and continue to do so for the most part today. These scroll peoples gave emphasis to one of the fundamental themes of the Hebrew Bible; namely, that the potential for both good and evil is inherent in all human beings ever since Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit. The expulsion of Adam and Eve from the Garden of Eden was the result of the triumph of the evil inclination, as symbolized by the Serpent, over the good impulse, the word of G-d. Moses puts the concept clearly before his people Israel in one of his farewell orations in Deuteronomy:

"See, I set before you this day life and prosperity, death and adversity...Therefore choose life!" (Deut. 30:15)

NOW HEAR THIS: In the teachings of Moses and the prophets up to the time of the destruction of the First Commonwealth and its Holy Temple in 586 B.C.E. (before the Babylonian captivity and Persian influence of Zoroaster), good and evil are abstract concepts. But shortly after that, as a result of the Jew's close contact with Persian (Iranian) culture and the religion of Zoroaster (DUE TO THEIR CAPTIVITY FOR 70 YEARS), which prevailed during the Persian era of Jewish history (540-330 B.C.E.), "good" and "evil" were gradually personified. That means the concept of "evil" began to be associated with a "being" instead of the abstract concept as it had been understood since Genesis. Thus Satan becomes "bad and evil" regardless of the fact that it is accepted that he has no will of his own and is totally submitted to the sovereignty of G-d. He does only G-d's bidding.

NOW PAY CLOSE ATTENTION: When we look at Zech. 3:1 we see Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of the Lord, and Satan standing at his right hand as his adversary (to the angel of the Lord--thus also to Joshua). To correctly interpret this passage we must recall the times and context of the verse. The Persian King Cyrus had authorized the Jews who wished to do so to return from Babylonia to Jerusalem and to rebuild their Holy Temple. Under Zerubbabel's leadership several thousand Jews returned, but there were overwhelmed by the devastation they found and depressed by the poverty of the Jews who had remained in Jerusalem and its vicinities. The Babylonian Jews had left comfort behind because of their religious zeal soon began to think that rebuilding the Temple was an impossible task especially if it were to bear any resemblance to the magnificent Temple built by Solomon in 940 B.C.E. In spite of Zechariah's and Haggai's encouragement the people were despondent. Zechariah felt that the condition of the people (lost hope and faith) was the work of "a" satan (adversary) born out of the people's doubts about themselves, their G-d, and their destiny. They were not operating in faith but unbelief of the flesh reinforced by negativism.

Zechariah called upon his people to summon forth their "better angel" (hope and optimism). As inspiration, he relayed to us this vision of the angel of the Lord addressing satan: "The Lord rebuke you, O Satan! May the Lord who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you". Basically Zechariah reveals to his people the angel of the Lord as he rebukes the "flesh" or "the evil-inclination" with it's host of manifestations within his people (the evil-inclination operated as "a" satan or an adversary toward G-d's people and was obstructing them in rebuilding the Temple). It will be this evil-inclination which Satan would influence, thus influencing them not to re-build because of discouragement, laziness, slothfulness, unbelief, procrastination, idleness, etc. This was a test for them before G-d. Zechariah teaches us that Satan will influence our flesh or evil-inclinations to not obey the will of G-d. The choice again resides with men to obey G-d or disobey G-d. Satan only makes the choice plain and easy to distinguish (he clarifies the "good" from the "bad" and no longer is it indistinguishable or mixed as before.

It would be these Scroll peoples who felt that they were the saving remnant of Israel. Having turned their backs on the establishment they set out to live in their own idiosyncratic ways. Though their numbers were small, their dedication to what they perceived to be the rightness of their cause was all-consuming. They had at one time a charismatic leader whom they called "The Teacher of Righteousness." What became of him is unclear, though some scholars read into a vague passage in the Scroll writings that he was murdered, and perhaps became the model for Yeshua. What is clear is that the Teacher of Righteousness was opposed by an enemy designated as the Wicked Priest, also referred to as Belial ("Son of Evil"). The Scrolls depict a battle to the finish (spiritual warfare) between these two forces, the Sons of Light and the Sons of Darkness. The Scroll people were certain that they would ultimately prevail over the forces of darkness that dominated the world at the time. There would be an Armageddon in which the Scroll people would be instrumental in eradicating evil from the earth and bring the Messianic age. These Sons of Light had many angels in their armies. And the Sons of Darkness had many angels of destruction.

In summary, within every human are two angels: the Angel of Light and the Angel of Darkness. The one tends to promote all that is good; the other, all that is evil. Every human deed strengthens the hand of one angel or the other. So personal salvation is something that can be won or lost by the works of the individual. They did not believe in "once saved always saved" as many have come to believe today. In this belief concerning what one does as a response to one's faith, the Scroll people were fully in accord with the doctrine of normal Judaism and the religion of Yeshua.

While the Scrolls repeatedly stress the will of G-d in choosing those destined to be among the blessed (Sons of Light) and those destined to be counted among the cursed Sons of Darkness, it seems clear that the Scroll people did not regard these choices as arbitrary. G-d's knowledge of everything that was, is, and is to be would determine His choices. But the individual chooses his actions. That is a fundamental Judaic doctrine that is taught in so many biblical tales: Adam & Eve, Cain & Abel, Noah's defiance of the corruption of his generation, Joseph's resistance to sexual advances, etc. The prophets of Israel, from Amos through Malachi (700-300 B.C.E.) stressed the role of human choice as decisive in the destinies of both individuals and nations.

For the Scroll people, the yearning for personal salvation was acute and to be in the company of the angels was the ultimate bliss. The life of the Scroll people was defined by an incessant longing for proximity to G-d and His blessed company of Angels. To the Scroll people the doomed doers of evil were those who followed Belial, the Angel of Darkness and destruction. Belial is mentioned no less than 33 times in portions of the Dead Sea Scrolls. The Scroll people saw their own time as the era of Belial's dominion (ruler of this world). Belial figures prominently in the books of the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha as well, most notably in the Book of Jubilees and the Testament of the Tribes.

CLOSE-UP OF SATAN

"Satan has a bad reputation as the incarnation of evil, sin, temptation, even hell itself. Satan is the antagonist of G-d, who pits his hateful nature against the loving Deity, even plotting to unseat the Lord and to occupy His throne" That's a pretty incriminating picture just painted since the real Satan is a law-abiding citizen of the Angelic Host, an agent of G-d who goes about doing his job as faithfully as he knows how.

Answer for yourself: What is his job?

Job 1:1-12 1 There was a man in the land of Uz, whose name was Job; and that man was perfect and upright, and one that feared G-d, and eschewed evil. 2 And there were born unto him seven sons and three daughters. 3 His substance also was seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she asses, and a very great household; so that this man was the greatest of all the men of the east. 4 And his sons went and feasted in their houses, every one his day; and sent and called for their three sisters to eat and to drink with them. 5 And it was so, when the days of their feasting were gone about, that Job sent and sanctified them, and rose up early in the morning, and offered burnt offerings according to the number of them all: for Job said, It may be that my sons have sinned, and cursed G-d in their hearts. Thus did Job continually. 6 Now there was a day when the sons of G-d came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan came also among them. 7 And the LORD said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the LORD, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it. 8 And the LORD said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth G-d, and escheweth evil? 9 Then Satan answered the LORD, and said, Doth Job fear G-d for nought? 10 Hast not thou made an hedge about him, and about his house, and about all that he hath on every side? thou hast blessed the work of his hands, and his substance is increased in the land. 11 But put forth thine hand now, and touch all that he hath, and he will curse thee to thy face. 12 And the LORD said unto Satan, Behold, all that he hath is in thy power; only upon himself put not forth thine hand. So Satan went forth from the presence of the LORD. (KJV)

Satan did his work thoroughly, and as a result, Job became an impoverished and childless man. But he still remained faithful to G-d. Later we see G-d taunting Satan (2:3):

3 And the LORD said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that [there is] none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth G-d, and escheweth evil? and still he holdeth fast his integrity, although thou movedst me against him, to destroy him without cause.

But Satan persists, saying that as long as Job is not afflicted in his own body, he will retain his righteousness. With G-d's permission Satan then inflicts "a severe inflammation on Job from the sole of his foot to the crown of his head." Miserable Job seats himself on a pile of ashes, scratching his itching skin with a broken potsherd (3:9-10).

From the above passages, we learn some important notions as to the function of Satan in the tradition of the Hebrew Bible.

- Satan has no authority to initiate any action without the permission of G-d.
- His methods of attack is entrapment which is a legal procedure authorized by the highest court.
- Further, nothing in the text suggests that Satan takes delight in what he is doing.
- Satan's prerogative remains limited in the Hebrew Bible and even at that derives only from G-d.

It is in the pseudepigraphic literature of proto-Essenes that we see Satan begin a transformation that cast him in the role of G-d's adversary, ultimately as His opponent. This process of transformation has its roots in the Book of Genesis 6:1-7 with the idea of the "giants"---"Nephilim"

THE INFLUENCE OF PAGANISM AND THE ESSENES FAILURE

The above account seems to be a fragment of a much fuller story known to the author of Genesis that was probably heavily censored. It evokes some ancient myth about divine beings who had sexual intercourse with mortal women, who in turn produced prodigies of some kind. These were in turn called giants "heroes" or "men of renown." Men has sought endlessly for the identity of the divine beings in Gen. 6.

Answer for yourself: If angels, since when did they come to possess a sexual drive?

Answer for yourself: Were their marriages to mortal women forbidden?

Answer for yourself: If so, why doesn't our text say so?

Answer for yourself: Was the "wickedness of man on earth" connected with this union of "divine beings" with human females?

Answer for yourself: If so, how or why?

Answer for yourself: If G-d is all-knowing, how could He not have anticipated all of this when He created Adam and Eve and His armies of heavenly angels?

Some feel that the author of the story in Genesis was recording an unsavory bit of his people's folklore that is inconsistent with the doctrines of Mosaic monotheism. "Divine beings," to begin with, are incompatible with the idea of One G-d. To the extent that angels were messengers of G-d, they could fit into Jewish biblical tradition. However, angels, acting upon their own initiative & succumbing to their own desires, are a foreign element in the Hebrew Bible, as has just been demonstrated even with the angel names Satan.

The word "Nephilim" in the Genesis passage is somewhat obscure. Elsewhere in the Pentateuch they seem to be synonymous with giants. Still, the root of "Nephilim" in Hebrew means "to fall", and the concept of Fallen Angels was common to all Semitic peoples. Usually these were g-ds or demons who rebelled against a chief deity and were cast out of its presence only to reappear among mortals as malevolent incubi of one form or another (satans, devils, imps, monsters, and other evil things.)

The first full account of Fallen Angels is in the Pseudepigrapha. The people who wrote its various books were wrestling with the problems of ongoing Jewish catastrophes and were especially anxious to vindicate the G-d of Israel by disassociating Him from the evil that men do or the evil which had come upon Israel.

Take time and think of what I just said and how these Jewish clerics tried to explain the events happening to them and at the same time protect the image of a loving G-d who had promised them more

So they simply shifted the responsibility to other shoulders. Thy myth of the Fallen Angels suited this purpose well. This theory was reinforced by Enoch chapter 6 and other Essenes writings that now borrowed heavily from Persian religion for such concepts of dualism where two "powers" are in opposition and war. The Genesis 6 passage is illuminated in I Enoch 6! It is recorded in Enoch that a bad lot of angels are sexually aroused by ravishing human females. They know as angels (purely spiritual beings) that they cannot have intercourse with women/humans, but they commit the sinful deed anyway. They lead mankind astray and, before long, the earth with its people along with all creation are degenerate and in need of destruction. At this point, the good Archangels Michael, Uriel, Raphael, and Gabriel report this outrageous development to G-d (prosecuting attorneys in Heaven like Satan) and plead for justice and the end of evil. G-d agrees to their plea and promises to wipe injustice from the face of the earth. The rebellious and fallen angels who abandoned their high heaven would receive neither forgiveness or peace because they relished violence and reveled in murder. Ultimate triumph is assured as G-d will be the victor over evil. An invasion is launched upon the earth from heaven. The suffering of earth is due to the corruption introduced into the world by the offspring of the rebellious Fallen Angels. While sexual lust is at the root of the Fallen Angels in 1 Enoch, another version in 2 Enoch we find Satan's lust for power at the root cause of rebellion that casts Satan down from heaven. Satan, in 2 Enoch, is seen as an arrogant rebel who challenges G-d himself (2 Enoch will influence Origen in his connection of Luke 10 with Isa 14 as Satan who fights G-d for the throne-see handout). He inspires the abandonment of the service of G-d in humans. Satan sets up his own kingdom in an attempt to compete with G-d for the souls of men. We have 2 kingdoms fighting over the souls of men: G-d's and Satan's. Spiritual warfare explodes! A parallel for this is easily seen in I Kings and 2 Kings when we find the monarchs of Judah & Israel separated into two kingdoms: those like David, who did what is right in the eyes of the Lord, and those like Jeroboam, who did what was evil in G-d's eyes.

A third motive for the aberrant behavior of the Fallen Angels besides sexual lust and lust for power is found in another book in the Pseudepigrapha called the Life of Adam and Eve. Here Satan emerges as an all-too-human angel. When Adam was created, Satan refused to bow down before Adam despite the Archangel Michael's command that the entire angelic host do so. Adam had been made in the image of G-d; not the angels. Defiantly, Satan refused to worship Adam and became the ringleader of other rebellious angels who refused to bow & worship Adam. For such insubordination, Satan and his company were cast out of heaven onto the earth. Satan blamed Adam for his predicament, and sought vengeance by assuming the form of the Serpent, seducing Eve into sin, and then deriving satisfaction from seeing both Eve & Adam expelled from the Garden of Eden, much as he had been ousted from heaven.

Answer for yourself: If the Jewish tradition never regarded Satan as a rival of G-d or independent of His will, why does this concept exist at all?

The Hebrew word "Satan" means "adversary" (not of G-d but of humankind). The Jewish conception of G-d's omnipotence and absolute unity allow for no adversary in His domain. But G-d created humans and granted them free will, unlike angels. G-d endowed them with the capacity for both good and evil through freedom of choice like Adam had in the garden.

The Serpent in the Garden of Eden is the Satan within us all. He is the architect of our evil behaviors, but he can be resisted successfully. The antidote to his poison is the firm belief that his role is to put our souls through temptations in order that they choose the "good" and help restore the creation. Each Mitzvah obeyed helps repair the cracked creation. In that sense G-d intended Satan to fashion our moral character and lead us to conform and be moulded into G-dliness. Satan helps us choose to obey G-d and lay away "good", both for G-d and our accounts.

Judaism firmly believes that the precedent had been provided by biblical & Talmudic ancestors for the triumph or defeat of Satan. Abraham Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses, Aaron, and David all succeeded in facing down Satan. So did all who are called "tzadikim" (the righteous), especially Yeshua. None of the above were without human frailties or invulnerable to sin. Yet all overcame their evil natures & the flesh (including Yeshua) by rising above temptations and trials. With victory over the body of flesh we are assured, as they, of a vanquished Satan-within. In doing so, they achieved greater proximity to their unchallenged Creator. That, in the eyes of the Jewish tradition is the ultimate, most desirable goal of a human life.

Lastly let me ask you a question.

Answer for yourself: How reliable can be the book of Revelation that was itself a disputed book in the Christian Canon for one thousand years?

Answer for yourself: Should this book, that is very apocalyptic in language as was the Pseudepigraphic literature (Devil, Lake of Fire, etc.) be reconsidered as to it's inclusion alongside more conservative books like the Gospels?

Answer for yourself: How much should we rely upon Revelation to dictate our theology and not yet weigh equally the volumes of Pseudepigraphic literature that were not accepted?

We must remember that this type of literature was not accepted in the Hebraic canon and it is here we find what many would consider a literal translation of the Devil, Hell, and fire. Let me encourage you to possibly try to understand these problem passage metaphorically as we remember that when Yeshua saw Satan "fall" from heaven, he witnessed the praise reports of the seventy who returned with testimonies that men everywhere were taking upon themselves the yoke of the Torah and the Kingdom of Heaven. Such that submitted to the rule of G-d in their lives experienced the fall of "Satan" (the flesh to a Hebrew) and their evil natures to the "good" will of G-d for their lives. The warfare was internal, not external, and it remains so today. Shalom.

WHO ARE WE FIGHTING ANYWAY?

Most Christians readily profess that they are always eager to hear and learn from their Fathers Word. Seldom do they realize, though, that the first tenant of learning is found in the willingness to alter one's mistaken religious beliefs and viewpoints if necessary in order to incorporate truths which the Holy Spirit teaches you from your personal study of G-d's Word. You should see the truth in this from your own school and life experience, for continued learning is not possible if a particular ideology is valued in spite of vast evidence to the contrary: Just as it is not sufficient for maximum enjoyment of earthly life to get only a grade-school education (particularly these days), it is not sufficient to place your belief in traditions and denominations of man above what the written Word of G-d teaches when you study it out for yourself. Too often we have heard and rehearsed lies and never knew it as you will come to see in this article.

Like a pro-Pauline writer wrote in Hebrews 5 verses 12 through 14, many of today's Christians are like 'bottle babies in diapers', and have no teeth to even chew the 'meat' of G-d's Word. They are content instead to visit their 'nursery' each time the doors are open, and drink the same formula they have been fed all their spiritual lives. The Christian Church has failed to teach their people "HOW TO STUDY" the Bible; fearing that such knowledge will liberate them from the "passive mind control" practiced in Jesus' name Sunday after Sunday.

This paper is dedicated to raiding the denominational nurseries and just perhaps finding a few who are willing to put on the armor described in Eph 6:10-18 so that they may STAND in the battle that will comes on a daily basis to us all. With this introduction, let us truthfully understand Spiritual Warfare as taught by G-d, the original language of the Bible, culture, and history; and not by men who have failed to rightly divide the Word of G-d.

WE ARE AT WAR...BUT WHO WITH?

"Spiritual Warfare," one of the hottest topics preached in the pulpits of our land at present, is the new rallying cry in the church today. We are being told that taking the offensive against Satan and "binding" the various "evil spirits" that dominate this earth is the secret to world evangelization and personal victory and prosperity. Besides this, the preaching of spiritual warfare is a good way to sell "war bonds" as one cannot fight a war without financing it.

Answer for yourself: What better way to separate you from your money by having you give your tithe to finance an imaginary war instead of putting it in places commanded by the Bible where G-d has placed His Name? In other words we rob G-d to fight an imaginary war and widows and orphans go hungry in order to shoot cosmic bullets at at imaginary foe.

What an awesome power we wield! How appealing it is! Yes, Paul declared that we wrestle "against principalities [Archons in Greek], against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world" (Eph. 6:12).

Answer for yourself: But what did Paul mean?

He urged us to STAND against the wiles of [not attack] the devil and promised that with the "shield of faith" we could quench Satan's fiery darts [not shoot darts at him]. Paul said nothing about "binding" Satan or demons. Much less did he suggest that once the territorial spirit "controlling a city" was "bound," it could be taken "for G-d" and its inhabitants all converted.

Answer for yourself: With a church on every corner have you looked around your city lately for this victory over evil in our cities? Just look at the newspaper and ask yourself an honest question: Why are we not getting more results...is G-d impotent?

Answer for yourself: Did Paul intend we stand at attention and "curse endlessly the spirits in the heavens," send continuous commands of limitations directed toward "this and that" into the heavens or even worse, stomp our feet on the ground as a type of "binding the devil?"

If you will be truthful the vast majority of those who practice such Christian calisthenics get little more than hoarseness or sore feet! Yet a Charisma magazine cover pictures Youth With A Mission's John Dawson declaring: "Battles against evil spiritual forces controlling our cities can be waged and won." Dawson's book, Taking Our Cities for G-d: How to Break Spiritual Strongholds, is, according to Fuller Theological Seminary professor C. Peter Wagner, "the most important book on the subject ever written."

Answer for yourself: Is it really? In the foreword, Pastor Jack Hayford writes: This is a book of Holy Spirit insight... [into] the toughest problems we face on this planet today...." Let us investigate and see if this rhetoric can stand the test of scrutiny.

Sadly, as you will quickly see, such "most important insights ever written to control spirits supposedly controlling our cities" are NOT BIBLICAL!

LEANING NOT ON OUR OWN UNDERSTANDING...OR IS IT OK?

Dawson's book and the Charisma article give some impressive EXPERIENCES, which then become the basis for interpreting Scripture to mean what it clearly doesn't. We are never to interpret Scripture based upon our emotion, but by the original language, culture, and history as applied to the text. Listen well...our experiences should never interpret the Bible, rather, the Bible should interpret our experiences!

The major verse to justify the "territorial spirit" theory is Dan. 10:13. There it says that "the prince of the kingdom of Persia" withstood the angel Gabriel, preventing him for 21 days from reaching Daniel. However, Daniel was not praying for the conversion of Persia, but for prophetic insight concerning the last days! That insight (being brought by Gabriel) was what this "prince" opposed. Neither Daniel nor Gabriel "bound" this demon (if that's what this "prince" was); nor is there any hint that to do so would have resulted in some spiritual breakthrough for Persia. Yet this delusion is rampant today and leading many astray, and worse yet, cause multitudes and multitudes to sink their "finances," "offerings," and "tithes" in the purchase of "War Bonds" to finance an imaginary war in the fight with the Devil!

Consider, for example, a Charisma feature that promoted Larry Lea's "explosive 3-day Prayer Breakthrough" that was upcoming in Anaheim Convention Center several years ago. It promised that attendees would "take captive demonic strongholds over L.A. and the nation and make her one nation under G-d once more." Similarly inspired, 1300 pastors met in prayer to wage "spiritual warfare" for the "deliverance" of Los Angeles. Similar "prayer warfare" was conducted in many cities as I should know as I was an ordained Pastor for this church. Such zeal for souls is admirable, but any Berean (knowledgeable Bible student) would know that the method and goal are unbiblical. A full-page ad in Charisma pictured Larry Lea, the "Apostle of Prayer," in combat fatigues calling for 300,000 "prayer warriors" to join him in taking America for G-d and when this was achieved our "land was to be healed." Mr. Lea told millions in America, and the congregation in Rockwall, Texas, that G-d had told him to gather this "300,000 man prayer army," whereupon G-d was then to "hear from heaven and heal our land." This was to be the salvation of America! Little did I know at the time, but such false hopes contradicts the Bible and undermines the gospel and the purposes of Yahweh.

Salvation requires an individual response by a sinners not mass denunciation of demons by Christians. Several years ago Lea announced : "[Through] militant warfare in the spirit realm ... demonic strongholds keeping !he greater Los Angeles area and our country in bondage will be ... pulled down." YOU WILL KNOW THEM BY THEIR FRUITS!

Instead, America continues its accelerating slide into moral and spiritual chaos as foretold for the last days. The Miami Arena rang with the songs, prayers, and victory shouts of 10,000 enthusiastic Christians. They'd been promised a spiritual breakthrough by Larry Lea, who conducts "Prayer Break-throughs" across the country. The crusade was backed by 430 well- meaning local pastors. Identifying specific spirits-of violence, drugs, witchcraft, greed etc. that ruled Miami, Lea declared, "these spirits will not dominate this area." G-d, said Lea, had shown him "The Strongman of Greed" holding back the wealth of the wicked that belonged to Christians. "If we bind the Strongman of Greed, the wealth of the nations will be given to the Church!" Anticipating financial reward, the excited audience joined Lea in wielding an "imaginary sword" and hacking this demon and his cohorts to pieces. In the ensuing years since such endeavors there has been neither a reduction in violence, drugs, etc. in the Miami area, nor a transfer of the "wealth of the wicked" to Christians. Nor has there been any dramatic drop in homosexuality in San Francisco since Lea led Christians there to bind that demon. Nor have any cities anywhere been "taken for G-d," in spite of the many seminars and millions of dollars collected, such as those held at Jack Hayford's Church on the Way in Southern California, teaching a "take-over" that Scripture doesn't promise.

Answer for yourself: Does it bother none of the thousands of evangelical pastors involved that such "spiritual warfare" was never waged by Paul?

Answer for yourself: Why did this greatest evangelist of all time, who "turned the world upside down," never got the believers together to bind the evil spirits dominating Corinth, Ephesus, etc.; and let me tell you they were abounding with such false worship?

Think of what it could have meant to the church for the past 1900 years if Paul had only realized that a "spirit of greed" was keeping the wealth of the wicked from needy Christians and had given instruction in his epistles on "binding" this demon! But he didn't - and a Berean, searching the Scriptures, would conclude that this kind of "spiritual warfare" wastes valuable time and money. Such "false warfare" benefits only the "generals" (pastors) who collect the funds to finance such wars in the heavens. If you read the prior article on Angels and their role in Spiritual Warfare then you saw how this whole concept of cosmic warfare is pagan and originated in the Persian captivity and the fringe movement within Judaism. It is these Essenes who bought heavily into Persian religion in their apostasy from normative Judaism. We as Christians follow in their footsteps today shouting down imaginary foes yet fighting the imaginary war of the Persians in our Churches today.

Many say "the gospel has lost its power to convert modern man and needs help not only from "signs and wonders," but demons must be bound as well." John Dawson writes: "We need to overcome the enemy [Satan] before we employ other methods of ministry...." One of the most tragic examples of how this teaching corrupts the gospel is exemplified by Jack Deere, for 12 years on the faculty of Dallas Theological Seminary and once a leading theologian in Wimber's Vineyard movement. He was interviewed by Graham Banister in Sydney, Australia, at a Spiritual Warfare Conference taught by Wimber and his team to 5,500 church leaders who each paid $150 to attend. Banister asked Deere how he would define the gospel, and was told, "I'm not sure." Banister goes on to relate: Somewhat stunned, Bannister said, "I find that quite surprising-that you're not sure what the gospel is," to which Deere replied "I used to be just like you... thinking the gospel was simply justification by faith." Bannister again replied "Are you saying it's more than that?... What would you add to it?" "Deliverance" Deere said, "... things like demons and healing." Deere would add as an essential part of the gospel... the exorcising of demons and healing! Again the comment came from Bannister "But you're not sure exactly what should be included?" "No," Deere said, "not yet." "Would it be fair to say," concluded Bannister, "that you're in a state of flux since you joined the Wimber thing?" He responded, "We're always in a state of flux...." But on the gospel message? That means that he couldn't go back into that pavilion and tell those people the gospel without confusion!

He was also asked "When do you think you could do it?" And he said, "Maybe five years, maybe ten.... You, like me, sit probably stunned that one of the leading minds, if not the leading theological mind in the Signs and Wonders Movement, did not know what the gospel was!

Yet the gospel is the key to new life and victory! Believing the Scriptures and obeying them bring G-d's blessing and sets us free from all that once bound us. That problems in a Christian's life are due to inherited influence from ancestors who were involved in the occult or due to attacks of spirits that are in open rebellion to Yahweh, and since you are created in His image, you are objects of their wrath as well are not Biblical. When we receive the message of G-d and are baptized... we are grafted into Israel and made new creatures through G-d, and all the sins of the past are forgiven as baptism attests to prior repentance in our lives. Yes, we still face the enemies the Bible warns us about: the world and the flesh (the flesh is often called metaphorically Satan in the New Testament). Worldly-mindedness and fleshly lusts are mentioned far more often than the Devil or demons in Scripture. "Deliverance ministries" and "spiritual warfare" put far too much emphasis upon Satan as an entity and substitute misinterpreted experiences for truth. We are to "stand" and "resist," not attack, rebuke or bind Satan. We have no fear of him for greater is He (the LORD GOD) who is in us than he (Satan) who is in the world. Because we as children of G-d have died to our fleshly lusts and because of that Satan and his demons have no power over us "if we walk not after the flesh (remember that "Satan" in Judaism refers to the flesh and the evil nature within man), but after the Spirit" (Rom. 8:1).

Answer for yourself: Did you hear that?

Rom. 8:1 is conditional! This is no condemnation or punishment meted out to those who are "in" Christ Jesus (living in obedience to and in relationship with G-d through Yeshua's example). Being "in Christ" means we choose not to walk (live) after the flesh but after the Spirit.

How devastating it is to the faith of those in a church where week after week the pastor and elders, in the Name of Yeshua, COMMAND healings that don't occur! I watched Richard Roberts and his wife last week COMMAND the Word of G-d to go out and heal all illness and financial lack in their audience. No one seriously thought it would happen, nor did it. Such empty bravado makes a mockery of G-d's Word! Yes, G-d still heals in answer to prayer, as He wills, but what audacity to command Him to do so! How quickly we forget Isaiah who writes "command ye me?" This is Yahweh questioning the audacity of His people (the clay) to command their Maker (potter) to do their bidding! How preposterous that we could command G-d to do our bidding.

It is equally harmful to attempt to overcome sin with unbiblical "spiritual warfare" techniques. Of course, it's easier on the flesh, and the "in thing", to blame a demon rather than oneself who must repent. What the Bible calls the "works of the flesh" is sadly being blamed on demons instead of man! The true rebellion is on the heart, and not of the demons! The "demon of lust" or the "demon of sex" or the "demon of pride" has been cast out literally thousands of times from thousands of Christians, yet they continue to practice these sins for their situations changed little. This grievous error of focusing on demons and spiritual warfare instead of "rending our hearts and not our garments" denies G-d's indwelling, denies the advocacy of repentance, and relieves the Christian of his own responsibility to repent and pursue spiritual pursuits, and robs him of G-d's remedy! Yes, impressive experiences seem to support the belief that Christians can be demonized and that victory over sin requires exorcism, but Scripture denies it. Contextually when we read of Jesus "casting out spirits" we need to remember that this is first century terminology for "healings" of various diseases like epilepsy which they did not understand in their day.

To those who "believe on him," Yeshua said, "If ye continue in my WORD, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the TRUTH, and the KNOWLEDGE OF THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE" (Jn 8:31-2). Instead, they resisted the truth and tried to stone Him! They "believed" that Yeshua was the Messiah - but they had an unbiblical concept of a Messiah who would conquer the Romans and let them live in peace and prosperity. They would not accept him as their deliverer from the real enemy - self and sin within. Exorcising demons from Christians offers a false solution and leaves self untouched! A.W. Pink wrote: By nature our hearts are so filled with self-love and self-pity that there is no room for Christ. Many are willing to receive him for his benefits who have no love for his person and no resolution to bow to his Lordship.... G-d's truth alone sets free. What we believe determines how we live. G-d's Word gives light and life. Many times Bet Emet Ministries has noted how Roman Catholicism added to the gospel and thus destroyed it in large part. Contrary to many beliefs today, the salvation as taught in the Gospel is reinforced through rituals and sacraments. Modern "spiritual warfare" and "deliverance" ministries (like "Christian psychology") are sacramental rituals that have replaced Biblical Rituals and thus added to the gospel; such undermine G-d's Word and rob us of His real remedy that comes only from repentance and holiness. Spurgeon declared: Truly forgiven sinners dread the appearance of evil as burnt children dread the fire. Superficial repentance always leads to careless living. Pray earnestly for a broken heart.

Amazingly, as another example of contemporary error, John Wimber's "Power Evangelism" requires "signs and wonders" for sinners to believe the gospel, yet, Romans 1:16 assures us that "the GOSPEL [itself] is the power of G-d unto salvation to everyone who BELIEVES [it]." Paul declared, "It pleased G-d BY THE FOOLISHNESS OF PREACHING to save them that BELIEVE" (1 Cor. 1:21). Signs and wonders are not required for salvation according to the Bible, nor are they to be a prerequisite to belief and faith!

No matter how well intentioned, C. Peter Wagner and fellow Fuller Seminary professor Charles Kraft advocate "authoritative prayer." Instead of asking, "According to thy will," this kind of prayer COMMANDS G-d to do certain things. Satan and his minions are also COMMANDED; for example, to loose their hold upon a city, church, person or situation. Satan laughs at our foolish efforts since we have not rightly divided (interpreted) the Word. He's been "rebuked" and "bound" thousands of times, yet he carries on. That should make your wonder or ask some severe questions.

BUT WHAT ABOUT THE MILLENNIUM...WILL SIN CEASE?

Multitudes teach that Satan will not be bound until Christ's millennial reign (Rev. 20:1-9). Several problems are involved in these verses.

Rev 20:2 2 And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years, (KJV)

Answer for yourself: The word "thousand" is plural in the Greek and not singular (thus meanings thousands). Since Christianity teaches that Yeshua has been coronated as King Messiah for almost two thousand years at present, and since the Messiah will reign for "thousands of years," is it not proper to correctly understand his ruling and reigning as having been occurring for at least two thousand years, and we likewise ruling and reigning with him...in our hearts? No greater example of an "allegorical" understanding of a passage can be given as this is not intended to be understood "literally" as we have been taught.

Answer for yourself: If we submit to G-d's rule and reign over our life, are we not submissively subject to the rule and reign of the Word of G-d in our lives as exemplified by Jesus as well?

Answer for yourself: If we are submitted to his rule over our hearts, then has not our "satan" (Hebraically understood as the flesh) been bound (metaphorically)? Such a Hebraic interpretation is the only one possible for the text unless we do a grave injustice to the text as so many others have.

No longer should it be surprising to you to correctly understand spiritual warfare, remembering that the word "thousand" is plural and Satan, known in Hebrew as "the flesh" has been bound already for almost two thousand years as you yield your members not as instruments of unrighteousness but unto righteousness under the leading of the Spirit and His anointing in your lives.

Answer for yourself: Since "Satan" was metaphorically interpreted in Judaism and by Yeshua as "the flesh," [we saw that in the last article] can you not see that many of the New Testament passages have radically different interpretations than we supposed having we were taught to interpret them literally instead of allegorically and metaphorically?

The enemy to overcome is ourselves, not another apart from us.

If you submit to Yeshua as your King, then you become his ambassadors and you rule and reign with him NOW in your hearts. At the appearing of the Messiah, one will come and will rule physically-literally, but that is not yet. To pretend to bind Satan or demons before that time, and avoid rightly dividing the Scriptures where there are mentioned, is folly.

Satan is defeated in our lives through our commitment to Christ, love for G-d and obedience to His Word. Yes, demons are to be cast out of non-Christians when the situation requires it -be healed - but neither Christ nor His Apostles went on the offensive looking for demons to cast out. (See Acts 16:16-18, for example.) Let us never forget that Demonic involvement was usually understood as punishment for sin.

Answer for yourself: What about the "strongholds" that we are to pull down through spiritual warfare?

These are not demon fortresses, but rebellious false religious teachings and imaginations that exalt self above G-d's Word and which are overcome by "bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ" (2 Cor 10:3-6). Such religious imaginations cause us to disobey the LORD and substitute man's teachings for the commandments of Yahweh. 'Scripture declares, "RESIST the devil (resist your lusts and evil desires of your flesh which will destroy you) and he (adversary) will flee from you."

Answer for yourself: How again?

Through drawing close to and obeying G-d (James 4:7-8). Yes, Satan [flesh] "goes about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour, " but we RESIST him by being humble and "steadfast in the faith" (1 Pet. 5:6-9). Job overcame Satan by submitting to G-d's will: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him" (Job 13:15). Jude 9 tells us that Michael, the mightiest of angels, dares not rebuke Satan (the entity), but says "the Lord rebuke thee." We, too, in standing against Satan, take refuge in G-d's strength, wisdom and love. Consider Benny Hinn's exhortation: "If you want a healing tonight for your finances you get to that phone now and say I want to make a pledge and I want Benny Hinn to pray that G-d will break the "Devil of poverty" over my life ... get to the phones now... the quicker you do it the quicker your miracle comes.... In the mighty Name of Yeshua we come against the 'devil of poverty' in your life...! It truly is sad that we are made to think we can "buy" our prosperity from G-d or our deliverance from our own lusts and flesh that fights G-d on a daily basis.

A lesser-known TV evangelist promises, "the power of the 'spirit of debt' will be broken in your life ... a supernatural power to get wealth will be loosed into your hands." Neither diligence, prudence, a new job nor any other practical solution is needed. One needs simply to rebuke and bind the right demon and money will flow into one's pockets. Sadly, only the TV preachers get richer, while their followers are spiritually impoverished. A recent letter read over Christian television laments: "Dave, I have backslidden.... I told G-d to put up or shut up. If He was really who these men said He was, then why hasn't He blessed me with an overabundance in my bank accounts? ... I railed and cursed G-d ... My magical words and fetishes from ministries [didn't work]. Then it dawned on me. I had been raped!" That is the proper assessment. Spiritually raped by "name it and claim it religion," that takes advantage of the ignorance and lack of Biblical knowledge of the masses in Yeshua's name to gather riches for the "generals" as we wage war against a false enemy.

"We have found the enemy...and it is us"..not angels, but flesh.

Now I pray for discernment for the body of Messiah .

As a believer, you must trust Yahweh to live His life through you as you obey His Word! Christ neither "rebuked" nor "bound" Satan when tempted by him. Neither did Paul! He resisted him with the Sword of the Spirit - "it is written." As a Hebrew, and understanding "Satan" as an angelic entity and also understanding "satan" as the evil inclination (flesh), we like Yeshua, must rethink the wilderness temptation accounts in the Scriptures. We must do the same as Yeshua when he submitted his will to the will of his Father as he spoke the Scriptures over his life as his rule for life! Only through submission to the Word of G-d was he able to win the victory over his flesh that craved, bread, power and wealth.

Answer for yourself: Sound familiar?

The Word of G-d doesn't become effective in our lives by merely speaking it forth as a "positive confession." It must be understood correctly, believed and obeyed in the power of the Spirit. It is the truth ("Thy Word is truth") that sets us free and keeps us free from the world, the flesh and "satan." The real devil (destroyer) is our flesh that separates us from G-d and His blessings.

Answer for yourself: Are you free? Have you become "free" in your understanding of whom we are really fighting since reading this article? I truly hope so! Shalom.

THE REAL MEANING OF "BINDING AND LOOSING" IN THE BIBLE

Matthew 16:19

"I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven."

Matthew 18:18-20

"I tell you the truth, whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven. Again, I tell you that if two of you on earth agree about anything you ask for, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven. For where two or three come together in my name, there am I with them."

These two passages have caused considerable discussion in every era of the church. However, in recent years some have applied a new way of thinking about these passages that had not previously existed in the church

Answer For Yourself: Which way of thinking is correct?

It seems to me that applying a Hebraic way of understanding these terms would bring the maximum amount of light to the subject.

The Torah which God gave on Mt. Sinai formed the basis of relationship with Israel. It was both a simple and complex relationship. On the one hand the Torah was simple. Yet in daily life it often became complex. In the earliest days, Moshe himself both instructed the people in the Torah and decided complicated matters of law for them. Moshe said, "Whenever they have a dispute, it is brought to me, and I decide between the parties and inform them of G-d's decrees and laws." In time this became too much for Moshe alone and he appointed assistants. His father-in-law, Jethro, gave this advice: But select capable men from all the people-- men who fear G-d, trustworthy men who hate dishonest gain-- and appoint them as officials over thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens. Have them serve as judges for the people at all times, but have them bring every difficult case to you; the simple cases they can decide themselves. That will make your load lighter, because they will share it with you.

In time, this group of assistants in the Torah became an institution in their own right. Authority soon rested among the rabbi's to interpret the meaning of the Torah. They would consider the principles of the Torah, and decide issues. The decisions which they made had the force of the original Torah itself. Over the centuries, Rabbinical expansion of the principles of the Torah took place in all areas of community life.

The Rabbis were constantly called upon by their community to interpret scriptural commands.

Answer For Yourself: Was such-and-such an action permitted?

Answer For Yourself: Was such-and such a thing or person ritually clean?

The Bible, for example, forbids working on Saturday., but it does not define "work." As a result, the Rabbis were called upon to declare what an individual was and was not permitted to do on the Sabbath. They "bound" (prohibited) certain activities, and "loosened" (allowed) other activities.

In the Hebrew way of thinking, binding and Loosing is the interpretation of the Torah. Anyone who acted in this capacity was sitting in the seat of Moshe. It is easy to see why they used that term. Since Moshe had acted in this way when he was alive, interpreting the Torah, and since they were carrying on that tradition, they were sitting in his seat.

Yeshua himself acknowledged the authority that resided in the teachers of the Torah and among the Pharisees. Then Yeshua said to the crowds and to his disciples: "The teachers of the Torah and the Pharisees sit in Moshe's seat. So you must obey them and do everything they tell you. But do not do what they do, for they do not practice what they preach.

The early church recognized this authority and what it meant. Cyril of Jerusalem, writing in the mid-fourth century said, "The Scribes and Pharisees sit in Moses' seat; for it signifies not his wooden seat, but the authority of his teaching."

This authority found its highest expression in the Sanhedrin. Yet it existed down to the local town and synagogue level. Outside the gates of the excavated ruins of ancient Dan, I have had the opportunity to sit in a seat where once such decisions were made. There, the city elders gathered to "sit in Moshe's seat." Proverbs 31:23 gives us a sense for this: "Her husband is respected at the city gate, where he takes his seat among the elders of the land."

I believe it is in this context, and with this meaning, that Yeshua spoke the words which Matthew records. "I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven; whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven."

This is an important moment in the history of Judaism and the Church. Here is Yeshua, the Son of G-d, investing the power of Moshe into the hands of his disciples. They now become the ones responsible for interpreting the Torah. This is decisive for it represents the imposition of spiritual authority. It places within the context of the church the authority held by those who sit in the seat of Moshe.

Once the Church was established by Yeshua, we find that this authority continued on. In the beginning of the Church, it was the Apostles themselves who sat in the Seat of Moshe for the Church. The Church which took shape had a foundation.

He came and preached peace to you who were far away and peace to those who were near. For through him we both have access to the Father by one Spirit. Consequently, you are no longer foreigners and aliens, but fellow citizens with G-d's people and members of G-d's household, built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the chief cornerstone. In him the whole building is joined together and rises to become a holy temple in the Lord.

G-d gave the Levites as a gift to the Tabernacle.

I myself have selected your fellow Levites from among the Israelites as a gift to you, dedicated to the LORD to do the work at the Tent of Meeting. But only you and your sons may serve as priests in connection with everything at the altar and inside the curtain. I am giving you the service of the priesthood as a gift. Anyone else who comes near the sanctuary must be put to death.

When Paul wrote Ephesians, he drew upon this concept for the various roles in the Church. He described these workers in the Church as gifts. To them, a primary role was assigned.

It was he who gave some to be apostles, some to be prophets, some to be evangelists, and some to be pastors and teachers, to prepare G-d's people for works of service, so that the body of Christ may be built up until we all reach unity in the faith and in the knowledge of the Son of G-d and become mature, attaining to the whole measure of the fullness of Christ. Then we will no longer be infants, tossed back and forth by the waves, and blown here and there by every wind of teaching and by the cunning and craftiness of men in their deceitful scheming. Instead, speaking the truth in love, we will in all things grow up into him who is the Head, that is, Christ. From him the whole body, joined and held together by every supporting ligament, grows and builds itself up in love, as each part does its work.

The Apostles stepped into their role and took charge of the Church. We see their authority in the instructions to Titus especially, and also to Timothy. Paul told Titus to "straighten out what was left unfinished". Then he proceeded to instruct Titus on what to say to the older men, the older women, the younger women and the young men. He told Titus to "remind the people" of certain truths, which of course sets that truth on a higher priority level than some other truth.

We also see Apostolic authority being exercised in the Acts 15 Council. On that occasion, they met to discuss the requirements for Gentiles. The question was, how was the Torah to be applied to them.

Answer For Yourself: What was necessary for their salvation?

After hearing various sides of the question, James said, "It is my judgment, therefore, that we should not make it difficult for the Gentiles who are turning to G-d.

Answer For Yourself: What gave James the right to have a "judgment" in the first place?

He was exercising the authority of the seat of Moshe. Indeed, this was clearly more than just their opinions, for when they sent the letter out it was under the authority of what "seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us.." They were laying claim to divine authority as well as their own. Tertullian summarized the events of Acts 15: When first the Gospel thundered and shook the old system to its base, when dispute was being held on the question of retaining or not the Law; this is the first rule which the apostles, on the authority of the Holy Spirit, sent out to those who were already beginning to be gathered to their side out of the nations: "It has seemed (good)," say they, "to the Holy Spirit and to us to cast upon you no ampler weight than (that) of those (things) from which it is necessary that abstinence be observed; from sacrifices, and from fornications, and from blood: by abstaining from which ye act rightly, the Holy Spirit carrying you.

In making the Acts 15 decision, the Apostles and elders were sitting in the seat of Moshe, using the power of binding and loosing. If they did not have this power, then what different would their opinions make. However the Church has always recognized this authority. Once again, we turn to Tertullian, the Father of Latin Christianity, for his commentary on the authority of the Apostles and elders to make this decision.

Moreover, in that dispute about the observance or non-observance of the Law, Peter was the first of all to be endued with the Spirit, and, after making preface touching the calling of the nations, to say, " And now why are ye tempting the Lord, concerning the imposition upon the brethren of a yoke which neither we nor our fathers were able to support? But however, through the grace of Yeshua we believe that we shall be saved in the same way as the:." This sentence both "loosed" those parts of the law which were "abandoned, and "bound" those which were reserved. Thus the power of loosing and of binding committed to Peter had nothing to do with the capital sins of believers; and if the Lord had given him a precept that he must grant pardon to a brother sinning against him even "seventy time sevenfold," of course He would have commanded him to "bind" -- that is, to "retain" -- nothing subsequently, unless perchance such (sins) committed against the Lord, not against a brother. For the forgiveness of (sins) committed in the case of a man is a prejudgment against the remission of sins against G-d.

For Tertullian, this is evidence of binding and loosing. Again and again, we find the Apostles and elders acting in the authority of Moshe. In effect, the New Testament is the Apostolic application of the principles found in the Torah. The Church has always accepted the right of the Twelve Apostles to do this and gave to their writings the same force as what we call the Old Testament Scripture. In the same sense that Torah formed the basis of the Covenant with G-d, so the New Testament now forms the basis of our Covenant with G-d and we are thereby formed into the People of G-d.

Has this authority ceased in the Church. We say that the Church today has the right to apply the Scripture to issues that are not mentioned directly in Scripture, following the practices of "binding and loosing", and sitting in the seat of Moshe. That this power can be abused is evident in twenty centuries of church history. We have seen what happens when this authority is assumed by ever narrower aspects of the church. The term "ex cathedra" means "from the chair." Using this expression is an attempt by Roman Catholics to claim that the Church is infallible when it speaks "ex cathedra" because it is speaking from the "Seat of Moshe." But the "Seat of Moshe" was not for purposes of adding to the Scripture, but to give an official interpretation on areas that were not clearly spelled out.

In modern evangelical understanding, binding and loosing has nothing to do with the authority of the Church except as it might relate to spiritual warfare. This error in thinking springs from a fundamental error in understanding about the Gospel of Matthew. What many today do not understand is that the Gospel of Matthew was written in Hebrew. That Matthew was originally written in Hebrew is the unanimous view of the Church Fathers. Papias said, "Matthew put together the oracles of the Lord in the Hebrew language." Irenaeus said Matthew was written to the Jews: "The Gospel according to Matthew was written to the Jews. For they laid particular stress upon the fact that Christ (should be) of the seed of David." Cyril of Jerusalem also noted: "Matthew, who wrote the gospel, wrote it in the Hebrew tongue." These are not obscure figures. Rather, they form the mainstream of the early church.

At present, no original copy of Matthew has ever been found in the Hebrew. However, if these early fathers are correct, what exists in Greek is a translation of the Hebrew. As such, it is subject to certain weaknesses. Translations of this period often did not translate the sense of a passage, rather they tended to follow the actual or literal words.

In particular, Hebrew idioms did not always make the transition intact. We know when someone says "his eyes fell to the floor," not to take that literally. But consider the problem of a translator.

Answer For Yourself: What is an idiom, and what should be taken literally?

We see this weakness reflected in the translation of the term "good eyes" in Matthew. This is a Hebrew idiom for a generous person. But that is not particularly clear in the Greek.

Answer For Yourself: What about "binding and loosing" as spiritual warfare?

The idea of "binding" and "loosing" has risen to the forefront in some current teaching on spiritual warfare. What is interesting is the absence of these two ideas in the spiritual warfare that is mentioned in the Bible. If it were to be such an important part of warfare, one would expect to find it more prominently mentioned in the Scripture. In fact, it is most noticeable for its absence. In my opinion, far more emphasis is given to this idea than is warranted from the Scripture. At best, it is only a minor weapon among many weapons. More likely, it doesn't even exist as a weapon of spiritual warfare.

Answer For Yourself: Why do some believe that "binding and loosing" are aspects of our spiritual warfare?

Surprisingly, this is a new concept that has almost no history in the church.

The Belief that demons can be "bound" or that angels can be "loosed" is based upon a new interpretation of Matthew 16:10 and Matthew 18:18. These passages are interpreted to apply to spirit beings because of the phrases "bound in heaven" or "loosed in heaven." As the logic goes, since spirit beings exist in heaven, this passage must apply to them. (It is not clear how the passage could apply to demons which are not generally associated with heaven.)

What I call the "bind-loose theology" is heavily based upon a special interpretation of the "strong man" passages in Matthew 12:29, Mark 3:27, and Luke 11. In these passages, Yeshua is showing that only a superior power can drive out demons. He then uses the example of a well armed strong man who defends his house until someone stronger "attacks and overpowers" him, robbing him of his goods.

Luke's account emphasizes that the strong man is "attacked and overpowered," not mentioning anything about tying him up (binding). Matthew says the strong man must first be tied up before his house can be robbed. Mark, like Matthew, mentions that the strong man must first be tied up before the attacker can rob the house.

If Yeshua meant to give this story as an illustration of "binding," Luke missed the point entirely and is leading us astray from the message. Luke's failure to mention "binding" is not misleading, however, because the point of the passage is not about "binding," but about the effect of superior power.

This is the emphasis which Tertullian gave to it. Notice that Tertullian, following Luke, retains the concept of superior power without getting into "binding:" "Well, therefore, did He connect with the parable of "the strong man armed," whom "a stronger man still overcame," the prince of the demons, whom He had already called Beelzebub and Satan; signifying that it was he who was overcome by the finger of G-d, and not that the Creator had been subdued by another G-d."

Unfortunately, "binding the strongman" has become dogma in some circles. Many books in my library, whose authors I respect highly for their service in missions, builds their whole spiritual warfare concept around an improper interpretation of this passage. A better understanding is found in the historic interpretation of "binding."

I think caution regarding "binding and loosing" as spiritual warfare is in order. There are several reasons why I take this view:

First, no group or denomination in Christianity has ever interpreted these passages in this way before the last part of the 20th century. Of course, being a new doctrine or understanding does not necessarily mean the new doctrine is untrue. However, new doctrines need to be examined very carefully to see how they fit with the whole counsel of the Bible, and with the interpretation of that same Scripture over the centuries.

Second, over the centuries, the "binding" and "loosing" passages have been interpreted along the lines of the authority of the disciples to "sit in the seat of Moshe." This means interpreting Scripture and conducting the affairs of the Church. The Catholic Encyclopedia expresses this idea when it says, "These powers, consisting of a "binding" and a "loosing" in the spiritual order on earth, that is, all powers necessary to the well-being of the kingdom, were recognized by the apostles from the rabbinical terms for "binding," that is, of granting or forbidding, as contained in the Torah. The Catholic view, which is shared by the other branches of the historic Christian church, has always been that binding and loosing were part of the authority granted to the Church, and are expressed in the idea of the "power of the keys."

Third, only Matthew records this idea, probably because he was the only one, according to Eusebius and the others we have cited, to write his original text of the Gospel in Hebrew. The passage regarding "binding" and "loosing" is a Jewish idiom translated word for word from the Hebrew into the Greek.

Unfortunately, even though the words of the idiom were translated correctly, the meaning was clouded in such a literal translation.

Vine's Dictionary says "the application of the Rabbinical sense of forbidding is questionable." However, prior to expressing that conclusion, Vine does give this passage its classical "spiritual authority" slant when he says, "The Lord's words to the Apostle Peter in Matthew 16:19, as to binding, and to all the disciples in 18:18, signify, in the former case, that the Apostle, by his ministry of the Word of Life, would keep unbelievers outside the kingdom of G-d, and admit those who believed. So with regard to 18:18, including the exercise of disciplinary measures in the sphere of the local church; the application of the Rabbinical sense of forbidding is questionable."

Notwithstanding the questions raised by Vine, Dr. Roy Blizzard takes the historic view held by Catholics and Orthodox, but for a different reason. He cites Jewish texts to show that "binding" and "loosing" were the terms applied to the work of the rabbi's in interpreting Scripture, allowing some things but denying other based on their interpretation of the meaning of the Torah. So if the rabbi said you were not allowed to walk more than a few hundred yards on the Sabbath, he was "binding" certain behavior. Although Yeshua criticized the Pharisees for their hypocrisy, he did require his disciples to obey their interpretations. We have already shown Yeshua saying, "The teachers of the Torah and the Pharisees sit in Moshe's seat. So you must obey them and do everything they tell you."

Fourth, of the many passages dealing with spiritual warfare, there is a noticeable absence of any teaching regarding "binding and loosing." In my book, Hedges, I demonstrated that there is a great deal in the Bible about spiritual warfare, examining every passage in the Bible on the topic of the relationship between humans and spiritual entities.

Answer For Yourself: In light of the extensive Bible passages, why does Paul omit "binding and loosing" in his classic passage in Ephesians 6?

Answer For Yourself: Why does James only talk about resisting the devil, stopping far short of the idea of "binding"?

Answer For Yourself: Why only resist, when you could "bind"?

Answer For Yourself: Indeed, why is there no plain statement linking "binding" and "loosing" with any part of spiritual warfare?

The answer is that "binding and loosing," the way it is being taught in some quarters of the Church, is not adequately rooted in Biblical teachings on spiritual warfare.

What the Bible does say is that Satan will be "bound" and "loosed." However, the reference is to Satan being bound in the future. No one is binding him today.

"And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand. And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the Devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years. And cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season."

This future tense is the only proper application of this concept to spiritual warfare.

Fifth, if Satan is being "bound" as often as people are saying the words, their "binding" certainly does not last very long. If the "bind the devil" people are indeed "binding" the devil" somebody needs to figure out how long their "binding" of the devil lasts. Then, they could line up people all over the world on a "24-hour Bind Chain" to keep "binding" Satan, so he never gets loose again.

Some might suggest that only demons are being bound, not Satan himself.

Answer For Yourself: Is it possible, then, that we might eventually come to a point where all the demons are bound in chains of darkness and none are free to roam the earth?

Answer For Yourself: Would this leave only Satan alone to do all the evil work?

One problem with using "binding" and "loosing," as if it were a new aspect of spiritual warfare, is we are totally without support for just what it means to "bind" the devil. Who knows what it means.

Answer For Yourself: What can Satan do when he is "bound"? Unlike G-d, Satan is not omni-present. There is only one of him, and he is limited to one place at a time.

Answer For Yourself: According to this new interpretation of "binding," when one person has "bound" Satan, is he prohibited from doing anything to anyone else?

The further one probes this new idea of "binding," the more questions are raised. I am suggesting the reason all this becomes so imprecise when the details are exposed, is because the whole notion is without Biblical foundation. Yeshua had many contacts with the devil and demons, but He is never described as "binding" the demons. No New Testament writer ever describes anyone ever "binding" the devil.

In Luke 13, the sick woman was freed from her infirmity. It is plain enough that Yeshua was involved in a physical healing because he laid his hands upon her, something which is never done with someone under the power of a demon. It is unfortunate that the old King James uses the phrase "spirit of infirmity" because some have suggested this was a demon of infirmity.

Answer For Yourself: However, would Yeshua "loose" a demon?

Answer For Yourself: Would not "bind-loose" theology say the demon should have been "bound" rather than "loosed"?

The Luke 13 passage would not support the "bind-loose" theology. Indeed, this passage would have to be explained away because of Yeshua "loosing" the women from her infirmity.

In some respects, I am reluctant to speak against the current usage of "binding" because I hesitate to undermine anyone engaging in spiritual warfare. However, if there is no authority in the Scripture for this "binding," it is better to stop now than to continue building on sand. It is better to get back to biblical warfare than to continue on in a fools paradise. In war, firing blanks doesn't kill the enemy. We need effective warfare with live ammunition.

On the other hand, I believe G-d is able to understand our hearts rather than our precise words. I think G-d knows when we "bind" the devil that we are really praying "deliver us from evil," and He takes appropriate action, in spite of our theology or our words!

UNDERSTANDING ISRAEL AND PAUL'S CONCEPT OF SPIRITUAL WARFARE CORRECTLY

ISRAEL: THE MEANING OF THE NAME

The first mention of the name Israel was made by the angelic being who wrestled with Jacob. During their unusual encounter, Jacob asked the angel to bless him. In response, the angel called him Israel. The blessing is becoming "Israel."

Answer for yourself: Is being "Israel" a blessing? Yes.

Answer for yourself: What does the name "Israel" mean?

Answer For Yourself: How is being called "Israel" a blessing?

The answers to these questions provide a picture of, or at the very least, a standard for the children of Israel as well as every believer, for as Christians we are grafted into Israel and are a partaker of the root and fatness of the olive tree of Israel.

Jacob's name is derived from the root word a'kov, meaning to grab the heel, to overreach, to supplant. Jacob grabbed hold of his twin brother's heel during their birth and, fulfilling his name, ultimately acquired his first-born blessings by overreaching (taking matters into his own hands) supplanting. Such is the operation of the flesh of mankind.

God dealt with Jacob's nature during their confrontation in the wilderness. There Jacob met the Lord in repentance, for he "wrestled with the angel and prevailed; he wept and sought His favor" (Hosea 12:4). He confessed his name as his sin; literally to be Jacob (supplanter). After his repentant confession and after prevailing G-d gave Jacob the name of Israel. Please notice that Jacob did not

At Bethel, G-d appeared to Jacob and said: "You shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel shall be your name" (Genesis 35:10). Hosea said of Jacob's encounter with G-d: "He found Him at Bethel, and there He spoke with us, even the Lord, (G-d of hosts; the Lord is His name...Hosea 12:4-5).

G-d gave Jacob the name Israel, and at the same time, then G-d spoke with us. Through Jacob's blessing, G-d also spoke to the seed of Jacob: all who were in Jacob's loins when G-d called him Israel. He spoke to all who were to become Israel through Jacob. G-d spoke with us as believers today through Jacob.

His message is that through repentance, through perseverance, in the power and strength of the Almighty, people like "Jacob" can be given a new name (Israel) and a new character which can be pleasing to G-d.

Answer For Yourself: What does the name "Israel" mean? Let us investigate the matter.

Yisrael (Israel) comes from two words: sarah, a root word meaning to fight, to prevail, to have power as a prince; and el, meaning strength, might, especially as in the Almighty.

The Gesenius Hebrew Lexicon says Israel means "contender, soldier of G-d." Strong's Exhaustive Concordance says it means one who "will rule as G-d." The New Brown-Briggs Lexicon says that to be Israel is "to persist, to persevere."

Answer For Yourself: Do you see the connection of Israel meaning "a soldier of G-d who fights in the strength of G-d to prevail against something? I hope so for this will be the foundation for correctly understanding Paul and his message of spiritual warfare.

The Word tells us Jacob "wrestled with the angel" and that he had "striven with G-d." "Wrestled" and "striven" are both translated from the word sarah. In Jacob's encounter with the angelic being, he demonstrated an ability to stand as, prince. The Theological Wordbook explains: "Jacob's struggle was spiritual, in prayer, as well as physical. And in it the patriarch prevailed! Not that Jacob defeated G-d, but that he finally attained G-d's covenantal requirement of yielded submission to G-d and His will....and he persisted in refusing to let the angel of G-d go until he had blessed him" (until he was changed!).

We see the ultimate character change of mankind when he surrenders his heart unto G-d and his will for his life.

For these reasons Jacob's name was changed to Israel, meaning...A POWERFUL, PREVAILING PRINCE, A SOLDIER OF GOD; ONE WHO RULES WITH THE ALMIGHTY.

Answer For Yourself: Where Is Israel To Prevail?

Jacob's call to be Israel was issued to him as a man. It was a call to prevail. To prevail means to be able, to be strong, to gain mastery, to triumph over, to be victorious. That Israel (Jacob as a man) is called to gain mastery in this world is evident because we know that in Heaven there is nothing to triumph over; all things are already in order in Heaven. Therefore, Israel's triumph, Israel's prevailing, must happen here-in the earth.

Answer For Yourself: As Israel, is the Christian who is grafted into Israel to prevail in this life or the next? This life.

Israel must struggle against and gain mastery over spiritual wickedness in the earth. Such mastery must begin with "SELF" before we can have mastery over our environment and the things of which we exert influence.

The Apostle Paul said it more eloquently when he said "For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the powers, against the world forces of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly places" (Ephesians 6:12).

Answer For Yourself: Was Paul referring to spiritual warfare in the heavenlies where angels and demons are supposed to dwell, or did he have a more "down to earth" intention?

Answer For Yourself: How can we be sure of our answer?

Before you go off and start "binding" demons and devils, let us understand what Paul had in mind EXACTLY by understanding the original Greek words used in our Bibles and their proper meanings and interpretation as understood by both the writer and his hearers in the first century, which, unfortunately, have not been translated or interpreted correctly when rendered into the English language today.

In order to prove my point I present both the Strong's Concordance numbers for the Greek words as they are translated in our English Bibles for our consideration..

12 For <3754> we <2254> wrestle <3823> not <3756> against <2076> (5748) <4314> flesh <4561> and <2532> blood <129>, but <235> against <4314> principalities <746>, against <4314> powers <1849>, against <4314> the rulers <2888> of the darkness <4655> of this <5127> world <165>, against <4314> spiritual <4152> wickedness <4189> in <1722> high <2032> [places]. {flesh...: Gr. blood and flesh} {spiritual...: or, wicked spirits} {high: or, heavenly}

Paul tells us that we as believers wrestle against "principalities."

Answer For Yourself: How are we to correctly understand the meaning that Paul intended for us to have concerning this concept of "principalities"? That is easy for we only have to examine the original meaning of the word and the understanding it conveys. Such follows for your study.

The Greek word for "principalities" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 746 746 arche {ar-khay'} from 756; TDNT - 1:479,81; n f AV - beginning 40, principality 8, corner 2, first 2, misc 6; 58

- 1) beginning, origin
- 2) the person or thing that commences, the first person or thing in a series, the leader
- 3) that by which anything begins to be, the origin, the active cause
- 4) the extremity of a thing
- 4a) of the corners of a sail
- 5) the first place, principality, rule, magistracy
- 5a) of angels and demons

Answer For Yourself: In the Bible is the word for "arche" more often translated as "beginning" or "principality?" It is more often translated as "beginning;" for over 40 times it is rendered as "beginning" and only 8 times it is rendered as "principality."

Answer For Yourself: Is Paul saying that we are wrestling against the "beginning, the origin, and active cause of spiritual wickedness? Yes.

Answer For Yourself: Is Sin revealed in the Bible as the cause for the Fall and all Spiritual wickedness? Most assuredly.

The Greek word for "powers" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 1849 1849 exousia {ex-oo-see'-ah} from 1832 (in the sense of ability); TDNT - 2:562,238; n f AV - power 69, authority 29, right 2, liberty 1, jurisdiction 1, strength 1; 103

- 1) power of choice, liberty of doing as one pleases
- 1a) leave or permission
- 2) physical and mental power
- 2a) the ability or strength with which one is endued, which he either possesses or exercises
- 3) the power of authority (influence) and of right (privilege)
- 4) the power of rule or government (the power of him whose will and commands must be submitted to by others and obeyed)
- 4a) universally
- 4a1) authority over mankind
- 4b) specifically
- 4b1) the power of judicial decisions
- 4b2) of authority to manage domestic affairs
- 4c) metonymically
- 4c1) a thing subject to authority or rule
- 4c1a) jurisdiction

- 4c2) one who possesses authority
- 4c2a) a ruler, a human magistrate
- 4c2b) the leading and more powerful among created beings superior to man, spiritual potentates
- 4d) a sign of the husband's authority over his wife
- 4d1) the veil with which propriety required a women to cover herself
- 4e) the sign of regal authority, a crown

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling the power we have of choice and the liberty we have of doing as we please which is often contrary to the will of G-d, thus leading us into spiritual wickedness and sin? Most assuredly.

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling both the mental and physical powers of the body over our spirit man? I hope so.

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling the authority we exert over ourselves to influence ourselves toward spiritual wickedness or godliness? I hope so.

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling the power of rule or government we exert over ourselves as well as the power of others who exert their will and commands over us which they hope we will obey? Yes. This today is called "peer" pressure.

Answer For Yourself: Does Paul tell us that we are wrestling against the powers of choice (human choice)? Yes

Answer For Yourself: Does Paul tell us that we are wrestling against our liberty of doing as we please instead of what pleases G-d? Yes.

Answer For Yourself: Does Paul tell us that we are wrestling against physical and mental powers of the mind and body which could cause us not to submit our members unto G-d as instruments of righteousness? Yes.

Answer For Yourself: Does Paul tell us that we are wrestling against the power of rule or governmental rule (of G-d in this case) since His will and commands must be submitted to? Yes

The Greek word for "darkness" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 4655

4655 skotos {skot'-os} from the base of 4639; TDNT - 7:423,1049; n n AV - darkness 32; 32

- 1) darkness
- 1a) of night darkness
- 1b) of darkened eyesight or blindness
- 2) metaph.
- 2a) of ignorance respecting divine things and human duties, and the accompanying ungodliness and immorality, together with their consequent misery in hell
- 2b) persons in whom darkness becomes visible and holds sway

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling literally the ignorance of divine things which result in the knowledge of our responsibilities and duties not only to G-d but our fellow man as the Great Commandments attests? He sure does.

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling the lack of spiritual knowledge of G-d and His ways which only can come from study of G-d's Word? I hope so.

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling our own ignorance of G-d and His Word which culminates in conduct and behavior that G-d considers as sin? I hope so.

Answer For Yourself: Does Paul tell us that we are wrestling against ignorance of divine things on our part and thus our improper conduct that often results in immorality and ungodliness? Yes

The Greek word for "spiritual" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 4152 pneumatikos {pnyoo-mat-ik-os'} from 4151; TDNT - 6:332,876; adj AV - spiritual 26; 26

- 1) relating to the human spirit, or rational soul, as part of the man which is akin to G-d and serves as his instrument or organ
- 1a) that which possesses the nature of the rational soul
- 2) belonging to the Divine Spirit
- 2a) of G-d the Holy Spirit
- 2b) one who is filled with and governed by the Spirit of G-d
- 3) pertaining to the wind or breath; windy, exposed to the wind, blowing

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling the human spirit and soul which, although is made in the image of G-d, often chooses his own way which is not G-d's way and lives in spiritual wickedness due to the lust of his flesh and soul? I hope so.

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are battling the rational and human soul and not angels and demons in an imaginary fight against G-d in the heavens? I hope so.

Answer For Yourself: Having understood we are battling the beginnings of spiritual wickedness which we have discovered to be sin, then do you further see that Paul is telling us that we are not battling Satan, imps from hell, or demons, but rather are battling ourselves to see if we will submit our members and body unto G-d as instruments of righteousness and not unrighteousness? I hope so.

Answer For Yourself: Does Paul say that we are battling our own human spirits and our rational souls, which are a part of man, in order to bring them into submission to the will of G-d? Yes.

Answer For Yourself: Is a battle involving Satan against G-d anywhere mentioned in the thoughts of Paul? No.

Answer For Yourself: Then if this passage had no bearing or meaning for the Apostle Paul regarding Satan and his demons, then why should I force such an interpretation upon the verse which explicitly you can see for yourself that nowhere is such an interpretation intended? We should not!

Lexicon Greek 2032 epouranios {ep-oo-ran'-ee-os} from 1909 and 3772; TDNT - 5:538,736; adj AV - heavenly 16, celestial 2, in heaven 1, high 1; 20

- 1) existing in heaven
- 1a) things that take place in heaven
- 1b) the heavenly regions

- 1b1) heaven itself, the abode of G-d and angels
- 1b2) the lower heavens, of the stars
- 1b3) the heavens, of the clouds
- 1c) the heavenly temple or sanctuary
- 2) of heavenly origin or nature

Answer For Yourself: Did you see anywhere Paul was saying we are to bind demons and devils? No.

Answer For Yourself: Then why do you do it and will you continue? The real enemy is mankind who rebels against G-d, and not Satan, for in the Book of Job, we find that Satan can do NOTHING of his own without the expressed permission of G-d. Where is the warfare there?

Answer For Yourself: Do you see that the whole of Paul's focus was on the soul (mind) of man which is in rebellion to G-d? I hope so..

Answer For Yourself: Do you see that we have been misled our whole lives into thinking we are to shoot prayers into the heavens to blind bad angels and loose good angels, when Paul originally intended that we yield not our members as instruments of unrighteousness? I believe you are beginning to see the light of correct Biblical exegesis.

Answer For Yourself: Does Paul give us another example that corroborates the above teaching? Yes. G-d's people are directed to destroy "arguments and every pretension that sets itself up against the knowledge of G-d" (2 Corinthians 10:5).

AND SO IT IS FOR THE HEIRS OF ISRAEL

As Israel, the people of G-d are called to fight (as representatives of G-d) while on this earth. They are to fight a strong fight of faith and they are to prevail against the flesh of mankind which desires to exalt itself above the Spirit of G-d!

This understanding, however, must be tempered with the fact that, "flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of G-d" (1 Corinthians 15:50). G-d is Spirit. Therefore, to inherit His Kingdom, which is the Kingdom of Israel, one must be a spiritual being. The call to be Israel begins here, with people who are living in flesh-and-blood bodies. With G-d the seed is first sown in a natural body; then it is raised in a spiritual body (1 Corinthians 15:36-50). So it is for Israel: the call is twofold...it begins the physical realm and it is culminated in the spiritual.

For this reason we must question the concept of separating Israel into physical and spiritual camps because...ISRAELITES ARE PHYSICAL PEOPLE WHO ARE CALLED TO A SPIRIT-LED LIFE.

Jacob was called to be Israel (a powerful, prevail): prince-a warring prince who was to fight the spiritual battle of the Spirit G-d of Israel. Let us now examine how G-d said He would bless this one who was called to rule with Him. Shalom.

WHAT'S ALL THIS FUSS OVER LUCIFER?

This may be a surprise to you but the word "Lucifer" appears only one time in the King James translation of the Bible. Also surprising is the fact that in other translations it does not appear even one time! The verse in which the King James Bible uses the word "Lucifer" is Isa. 14:12, which states: "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! How are thou cut down to the ground, which did weaken the nations!"

Now if you spoke or studied in Hebrew (let us not forget that is the language originally used in the Bible) you would find that the Hebraic translation of the verse reads differently: "How you have fallen from the heavens, shining star, son of the morning! You who weakens the nations are cut down to the ground." Notice that the word "Lucifer" is not in the original text of the Bible at all!

In fact, Isa. 14:12 is the only place in the entire King James Bible that the word "Lucifer" appears. The word "Lucifer" never appears in the Hebrew text.

Answer for yourself: Then why is it in your and my Bible?

It should not be.

Answer for yourself: What about the inerrancy and infallibility question?

Answer for yourself: Are our Bibles correct or have then been tampered with?

Answer for yourself: And if we can prove that doctrines were "created" for selfish ends, then can we recognize them?

Answer for yourself: And after recognizing them will we continue to play into the hands of those who created these man-made doctrines by adhering to them in our churches?

I want you to read the context of the verses that surround these verses in Isaiah. After you have read them you should notice that the name "shining star, son of the morning" refers to the king of Babylon, and not the Devil.

Now I must ask you:

Answer for yourself: Why did the translators of the King James Bible of 1611 A.D. insert the word "Lucifer: in Isa. 14:12?

Answer for yourself: How did the words "Lucifer" and "Satan" become to mean the same individual?

Answer for yourself: If we can prove in this instance that words were added to our Bible to create or perpetuate a man-made doctrine, then has it occurred at other places in our Bibles and can we know where it occurs?

Answer for yourself: What are we currently practicing in our churches as part of our worship of God is directly attributed to "additions" to the text by men with "hidden agendas?"

Answer for yourself: When we locate such man-made traditions and doctrines, do we continue to follow such fables & false doctrines in our worship of G-d?

Answer for yourself: Are we truly worshipping our G-d in "Spirit and in truth?"

The word "Lucifer" is Latin for:

- 1) Phosphorous
- 2) Venus as the morning star
- 3) The light-bringer which announces the dawn

The name "Lucifer" is sometimes applied to the planet Venus as the evening star as well. Interestingly enough, the passage in Luke 10:18 ("I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven") was thought by some to refer to the Isa. 14:12 passage in which the star was used metaphorically for the king of Babylon. According to the Funk and Wagnalls Dictionary of Folklore, Mythology, and Legends of 1984 this "Lucifer" would become the chief of fallen angels and the name for Satan before his rebellion. "Lucifer", as a name given to the devil, comes from this passage, which the early Catholic Church Fathers interpreted, without any corroborating evidence, as relating to the apostasy & punishment of angelic leaders. Such an application was tied to the King of Babel according to Keil & Delitzsch in their Commentary on the Old Testament. Thus we now find that the Devil is become the chief of the fallen angels or evil spirits. Thus we find in Christian theology today that his personal name was originally Lucifer or light-bearer (Isa. 14:12) and is the term applied for the king of Babylon. "Lucifer", in religion, is a name that was thus given to Satan by early Christians and was adopted without question in the middle ages because no one sought to study the Scriptures in Hebrew.

Let's summarize:

- 1) The words "Lucifer" and "Satan" have been connected by the erroneous association of Isa. 14:12 with Luke 10:18.
- 2) This association was made by Roman Catholic Church Fathers after the deaths of the Apostles.
- 3) The association of the "Devil" as "Satan" is a fabrication of Christian theology.
- 4) This is not the only religious fabrication in the Christian faith today.

Answer for yourself: Do you know the others?

One of the church fathers who was the leading proponent in creating this man-made theology which connected "Satan" with "Lucifer" was Origen. He is known for writing "The prophet says, 'How is Lucifer, who used to arise in the morning, fallen from heaven! He who assailed all nations is broken & beaten to the ground...' Most evidently by these words he is shown to have fallen from heaven, who formerly was Lucifer, and who used to arise in the morning...Nay, even the Saviour Himself teaches us, saying of the devil, 'Behold, I see Satan fallen from heaven like lightning...'"

It is Origen who established for us today the link between Isa. 14:12 & Luke 10:18. Origen took two verses completely out of their original context and created a new doctrine for the church. From the time of Origen onward Lucifer & Satan become synonymous.

Hebrew scholars of the Jewish faith never associated Satan with the verse found in Isaiah. It would be the early Greek Catholic Fathers who would re-define the meaning of these two scriptures and create a new identity for Satan. This error in Christian theology became part of Christian beliefs around 210-225 A.D. This concept has been in place for over 1700 years and is rarely questioned today. But it should be. I don't want to shock you but you better be seated for this. There are many who see in these verses materials derived from a Canaanite myth concerning Helal, the Day Star or Lightgiver, son of Shahar the Dawn. Many connect with this myth the ultimate conflict of good versus bad as manifested on earth. We know today that there was a god Shahar in Canaanite (Ugaritic) mythology who was the god of dawn or the morning star. Connected to this myth is Helal the son of Shahaar. Connected again to both is the mythological concept of the "mount of assembly of the gods in the far north" which is also the point around which all the constellations turned. It was here, also, where the summit of the heavenly mountain & throne of the Most High was located. The passage in Isa. 14:12 preserves for us the Canaanite for a nature myth, which tells of the attempt of the morning star to scale the heights of heaven, thus surpassing all other stars only to be cast down to the earth by the victorious sun. Thus we see in this myth the story of the aspiring of a minor deity to reach the highest heaven where the supreme god dwelt. The goal of such was to replace the supreme ruler with the minor ruler. Such later was borrowed to describe the king of Babylon and his ambition for prominence which tragically ended in his downfall.

Let me ask you:

Answer for yourself: Did early Christian theologians substitute the name of "G-d" in the place of "the Canaanite most High god"?

Answer for yourself: Did early Christian theologians substitute the name "Lucifer" or "Satan" in the place of "Helal, son of Shahaar?"

Answer for yourself: Have you heard this Canaanite account preached in your churches before but with new characters and identities?

Think of the numerous commentaries that have been written, sermons that have been preached, and prayers that have been prayed, which assume that Lucifer and Satan are one and the same.

Answer for yourself: Why is this false-doctrine perpetuated by Protestant denominations, seminaries, pastors & teachers of churches, and the Catholic Church?

Answer for yourself: Why have few discovered this error? Do they not have the resources to discover this lie?

You may be surprised to find out that they are aware of the error because many of their books document it.

Answer for yourself: Then why don't they preach the truth about this addition to the scriptures?

This is not only a matter of ignorance, but deception. Once this false-doctrine became part of the Christian Belief System there was no limit to the innovative teachings which would be built around it.

According to the Bible, except for I Chron. 21:1, Satan is not a proper name referring to a particular being and a demoniac one who is the antagonist or rival of G-d. It is, in its original application, understood as a common noun meaning an adversary who opposes and obstructs. It is applied to human adversaries in I Sam. 29:4 where the Philistine questioned David's loyalty to them in battle and were fearful that David would become a "satan" against them in battle. In II Sam. 19:22 David accused the sons of Zeruiah of being "satans" to his restoration to the throne of Israel. In I Kings 11:14 the Lord raised up "a satan" against Solomon in the person of Hadad the Edomite who stood against Solomon in his idolatries. In I Kings 11:23 & 25 we see G-d raised up another "satan" against Solomon as an adversary to his rule.

Satan (meaning adversary) as a verb is used of prosecution in a law court (Psm. 109:6) and the role of an antagonist in general (Psm. 38:20-21; 109:4,20,29). The angel of the Lord who was sent to obstruct Baalam in Num. 22:31 was chosen by G-d to fulfill the role of "a satan" in order to oppose and obstruct Baalam. G-d sent "satan" to Baalam. This angel was accomplishing good for G-d but was a "satan". The will of G-d would be done because of the testing and trial of Baalam. There is nothing in the Hebrew to suggest that this "opposition" presented to Baalam was the permanent function of that or any other particular angel. "The Satan" as a role or function of a particular angel first appears around 520 B.C. in Zech. 3 and then in Job 1-2.

In I Chron. 21:1 it states that "Satan stood up against Israel and moved David to number Israel". Notice there is no article before the noun, thus more than likely Satan seems to be a real proper name. In Zech 3, Satan acts as a prosecutor in a celestial court. In Job 1-2 Satan questions Job's integrity and suggests to the Lord that Job be tested to prove his love and commitment to G-d. In all these accounts "Satan" or "satans" are clearly in subjection & subordinate to G-d. In neither of the accounts listed are there "warfare" occurring between The G-d and His Satan or satans. The only warfare going on is between men's flesh in it's submission to the will and purposes of G-d. Satan, the angel, is clearly obedient to all of G-d's commands is unable to act of his own free will and cannot do anything without G-d's permission. Nowhere is he in any sense a rival of G-d. In I Chron. 21:1, it states that Satan is said to have incited David to take a census of Israel, which resulted in the death of 70,000 Israelites (21:14). If we contrast that with 2 Sam. 24:1 it states "the anger of the Lord was aroused against Israel, and He (G-d) moved David against them to say, 'Go number Israel and Judah'". G-d caused David to take the census. Notice that one scripture blames the census on Satan and the other on G-d.

Answer for yourself: How do we reconcile?

It is rather simple. G-d is David's adversary (satan-small "s") since David is relying on the flesh for the defense and protection of Israel instead of G-d. G-d being angered in David's rejection of Him and His protection and provision, dispatched an adversary (satan) to David. It happens that the adversary (satan) dispatched happened to be "the" Satan, himself. Satan obeys G-d's wishes and judges David and Israel for the king's transgression and sin.

Answer for yourself: Did Satan fight G-d or David?

Answer for yourself: Who disobeyed G-d?

Answer for yourself: Who needed to repent here; Satan or David?

You be the judge. Next month, we will talk about Persian dualism and the concepts that have birthed the erroneous teachings concerning spiritual warfare in today's churches. G-d is not fighting Satan but the "satans" (men-as adversaries to the will of G-d in the earth) created in the image of G-d. You got it! G-d fights the flesh of men to submit to the Spirit of G-d, thus accomplishing His purposes, and not ours.

Answer for yourself: It's exciting to finally know the truth, isn't?

THE BINDING OF DEMONS OR THE HEALING OF DISEASE?

As to the nature of the six thousand devils supposed to be referred to in Mark, I hardly know what answer to give in light of what you have heard preached from the pulpits of your churches most likely. The reason being that most who read this article will be highly skeptical of the views expressed therein having up to this time done little research into the areas addressed in this article. However, that does not alter the truth of the matter. The vast majority of the readers of this article have little or no training in Hebrew or Greek studies which are of utmost importance in assuring that we come to the correct interpretations when reading our English translations of the Bible. That disadvantage has relegated the vast majority of Christians today to the limitation of interpretation of the Bible in English only. If we do not have the correct meaning of the words originally spoken and written which are contained in our Bibles, then we do not have the correct meaning of what God intended for us to know. Not only that, but the vast majority of those who teach the Bible in Bible schools as well as the vast majority of Pastors and Teachers in the Churches of this land lack such necessary skills to interpret the Bible correctly in its original language. Thus the majority, having to lean on their own understanding as well as their own personal experiences, are limited to interpretations that lend well to their experience and their limited knowledge, in other words, they use the English meanings of words which are shaped by their culture to teach the eternal truths of the Bible which are only understood correctly when viewed through a Greek or Hebraic interpretation. The result is that we as Christians are taught incorrectly and do not receive God's truths. This should not be so!

This is a major problem in our Gentile churches today. More often than not, without the original meanings of the words originally selected by the Holy Spirit for our instruction, we fail to grasp the CORRECT meaning of the WORDS and the resultant MESSAGE that God is conveying to us, His people. The fruit of such misinterpretation is the sad fact that the vast majority of Bible believers today are often led into beliefs and conducts that are diametrically opposed to what God desires and commanded for His people. Again, such is, in the final analysis, sin and we should repent when shown the errors of our ways. Such is the way of Godliness and Holiness; the paths to which we are destined to walk.

So far most of you can agree with what I have said, but get ready for the shock of your life as I will show you that a great majority of Christianity today is founded upon an imaginary spiritual warfare where we have this supposed "counter god of this world" fighting God Omnipotent for the souls of men. If you have not read our previous article "The Role of Angels In Spiritual Warfare" please request one for in this article I chronicle in order the development of this hideous false doctrine of dualism and spiritual warfare that has for too long taken man's attention away from God and refocused it upon Satan, His disciplining Angel. You may not be aware, but such was the same error that affected the early church in such heresies called "Gnosticism" which focused upon Angels more than God. Today, we only put a "different spin" upon it, but the very core of spiritual warfare message as preached in the vast majority of Christian churches today has its roots in Gnosticism (a doctrine which many of the New Testament books refute!).

Still, without such information that is revealed in this article, we often fall prey to erroneous teachings that come from the personal persuasion of whoever is speaking. What I present for you in this article should be conclusive proof for you in helping you arrive at a better understanding of terms in the Bible too long misunderstood by the vast majority of Christian Pastors and teachers; such terms as "demons" and "devils."

I write this article not to just inform you only, but to let you know that such "imaginary warfare" that floods our televisions upon the religious channels of television and radio media, as well as our service and worship times, only replaces the time that should be devoted to the worship of God only. Not only that, but it also robs God and His Kingdom of His finances entrusted to you which should be given correctly through your Tithe which has been diverted by such false teachings on spiritual warfare in the efforts of Pastors to have you purchase their "war bonds" in order to defeat Satan in this imaginary war. The simple problem is that we have misunderstood the message of Paul as well as many of the English words in our Bibles which come from Greek and Hebrew sources which, in their original meanings, do not carry the connotations we have given to the English words. Thus, our religious beliefs are often in error as well as our conduct and behavior which is based off of such an erroneous understanding. Let the following arguments presented here concerning "devils" and "demons" bring you to repentance in your religious belief system as well as your resultant conduct where you are no longer tossed by every wind of doctrine that man can create to lead you astray, and most often, structured to have you do what the speaker desires.

RIGHTLY DIVIDING AND INTERPRETING THE WORD OF GOD

If by "devils" are meant the ugly imps and hobgoblins supposed to be the "angels" of the great Devil of Gentile theologies such as Latin, Greek, Protestant, and Pagan theologies, I have to confess that I know nothing about their nature, having no acquaintance with them personally, and finding nothing upon the subject in the Bible when Biblical words are correctly interpreted according to the Laws of interpretation.

For such "religious fiction" you had better turn to Roman Catholic Priests or Charismatic clergy behind their pulpits or on the television who deal in theological mysteries such as these, and have devoted so much of their time in dueling with "devils" and "demons." They, of course, can tell you all about their nature, which must be extraordinary, seeing that they can live in fire and brimstone for five thousand years or more, without being consumed, or manifesting the least repentance for their wickedness and unmitigated cruelty upon mankind.

I rather think, that the nature of the priests who profess to hold the keys of purgatory, as well as their Charismatic sooth-saying offspring is more devilish than the imps or hobgoblins themselves; for these supposed religious leaders seldom lead their flocks to obedience to the commandments of God, which according to the Apostle Paul in I Corinthians 7:19 where he states "Circumcision is nothing and un-circumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God;" implying that the observance of the Commands of God is EVERYTHING! These unqualified ministers add hypocrisy to their Biblical error by further enslaving their flocks by building the walls of Biblical ignorance higher and higher each Sunday by gorging themselves on the wealth of the living in pursuit of building their earthly kingdoms, ministries, and church buildings instead of building-up the people of God and leading them to repentance and greater obedience in their lives. Such is the Gentile system of religious today masquerading as the religion of Yeshua, mis-called Christianity which Jesus (Yeshua in Hebrew) never taught or propagated.

Answer for yourself: Don't you want to believe like Yeshua' believed about the spirit world?

Back to the subject at hand...the correct understanding of "demons" and "devils" as understood by a first century Rabbi named Yeshua, for after all, do you not want the "mind of Christ?" If so, we need to understand and believe about all things presented by God in the same manner as did our redeeming Messiah. To do otherwise guarantees our error and often our sin. The subject there presented is intricate, but not inexplicable. It has a solution; but whether that which is about to be presented be the right one, you the reader must decide for himself as you compare the facts presented with the stories and myths you heard preached. I only ask that you believe nothing I present here, but let it only lead you to your own in-depth study of the sources to see if what I shared with you is true. To God be the glory for His Word is not bound, except to those who will not look into it for themselves.

CORRECTED TRANSLATION OF MARK 5:120

Before entering upon an exposition of this subject, it is necessary to have before us a corrected translation of the text obtainable only in the GREEK ORIGINAL LANGUAGE. This becomes indispensable, because the words "devils" and "the Devil" do not appear in the original Greek from which our English Bibles and translations derive; but are given and inserted by the translators of our English Bibles as their current interpretations and opinions in the case. This means that those who translate from Hebrew and Greek to English often render in our English Bibles "words" which reflect their PREVIOUS PERSONAL RELIGIOUS INTERPRETATIONS upon a matter which is INFLUENCED BY THEIR PAST RELIGIOUS DENOMINATIONAL PERSUASION AND DOCTRINE instead of being rigorously literal in the translation from the Greek and Hebrew. In other words, we receive "as the Word of God" nothing more than their PERSONAL OPINION!

Answer for yourself: Do you grasp the magnitude of what I have just revealed to you?

For most of my life, I like you, believed that I could trust and believe every word in my Bible as "God breathed." That my dear brother and sister in Christ is not the case as I quickly found out in my Seminary training. The difference between myself and others, I suppose, is that I believe such changes matter to God, and should matter to us, because often such changes in the text lead the believer to a behavior or conduct that often opposes what God commanded we do. Even though Christ died for us and made grace available to all, that gives us not a license to turn our heads to such things which when evaluated correct our religious beliefs and conducts. If you cannot agree with such a statement, let me invite you to commit murder or adultery for it also should not matter if you use that type of reasoning. Having proved my point, let us proceed with out study in Mark.

Mark 5:1 (KJS) And they came over unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gadarenes. 2 And when he was come out of the ship, immediately there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit, 3 Who had [his] dwelling among the tombs; and no man could bind him, no, not with chains: 4 Because that he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces: neither could any [man] tame him. 5 And always, night and day, he was in the mountains, and in the tombs, crying, and cutting himself with stones. 6 But when he saw Yeshua afar off, he ran and worshipped him, 7 And cried with a loud voice, and said, What have I to do with thee, Yeshua, [thou] Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that thou torment me not. 8 For he said unto him, Come out of the man, [thou] unclean spirit. 9 And he asked him, What [is] thy name? And he answered, saying, My name [is] Legion: for we are many. 10 And he besought him much that he would not send them away out of the country. 11 Now there was there nigh unto the mountains a great herd of swine feeding. 12 And all the devils besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may. enter into them. 13 And forthwith Yeshua gave them leave. And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea, (they were about two thousand,) and were choked in the sea. 14 And they that fed the swine fled, and told [it] in the city, and in the country. And they went out to see what it was that was done. 15 And they come to Yeshua, and see him that was possessed with the devil, (demonized, better understood as "the malignantly affected one") and had the legion, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid. 16 And they that saw [it] told them how it befell to him that was possessed with the devil, and [also] concerning the swine. 17 And they began to pray him to depart out of their coasts. 18 And when he was come into the ship, he that had been possessed with the devil prayed him that he might be with him. 19 Howbeit Yeshua suffered him not, but saith unto him, Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee, and hath had compassion on thee. 20 And he departed, and began to publish in Decapolis how great things Yeshua had done for him: and all [men] did marvel.

"(Pantes hoi daimones" in Greek, rendered "all the devils", is "a reading," says the best Biblical authorities, "which should properly be omitted from the text, (although there is not sufficient evidence to justify its removal from the text.)"

REMARKS UPON THE PASSAGE IN MARK

Mark in the foregoing text speaks of only "one man" as issuing forth to meet Yeshua. We learn, however, from Matthew that "two demonized ones met him." Both accounts are correct; for if there were two, there must have been one; and as the conversation of Yeshua was held with but one of them, and Mark's purpose was to record the dialogue as well as the wonderful cure, he confined his narrative to the one who replied, with only an incidental allusion to the other.

Having directed the reader's attention to one in particular, he tells him what was the matter with him. He says in Luke 8:29 that he was "a man in/with a vicious spirit," or as we should express it in English, "a man 'of, a vicious/unclean spirit." Let us examine the words used by Luke in their original language by observing their original meanings from the Greek:

Luke 8:29 (For <1063> he had commanded c3853> (5707) (5625) <3853> (5656) the unclean <169> spirit <4151> to come c1831> (5629) out of <575> the man <444>. For <1063> oftentimes <4183> <5550> it had caught <4884> (5715) him <846>; and <2532> he was kept <5442> (5746) bound <1196> (5712) with chains <254> and <2532> in fetters <3976>; and <2532> he brake <1284> (5723) the bands <1199>, and was driven <1643> (5712) of <5259> the devil <1142> into <1519> the wilderness <2048>.)

The Greek word used for "unclean" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 169 169 akathartos {akath'artos} from 1 (as a negative particle) and a presumed derivative of 2508 (meaning cleansed); TDNT 3:427,381; adj

AV unclean 28, foul 2; 30

- 1) not cleansed, unclean
- la) in a ceremonial sense: that which must be abstained from according to the levitical law (usually connected to sin or the results of sin.....ie. disease)
- lb) in a moral sense: unclean in thought and life

The Greek word used for "spirit" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 4151 4151 pneuma {pnyoo'mah} from 4154; TDNT 6:332,876, n n AV Spirit 111, Holy Ghost 89, Spirit (of God) 13, Spirit (of the Lord) 5, (My) Spirit 3, Spirit (of truth) 3, Spirit (of Christ) 2, human (spirit) 49, (evil) spirit 47, spirit (general) 26, spirit 8, (Yeshua's own) spirit 6, (Yeshua's own) ghost 2, misc 21; 385

- 1) a movement of air (a gentle blast
- 1 a) of the wind, hence the wind itself
- l b) breath of nostrils or mouth
- 2) the spirit, i.e. the vital principal by which the body is animated
- 2a) the rational spirit, the power by which the human being feels, thinks, decides
- 2b) the soul
- 3) the disposition or influence which fills and governs the soul of any one
- 3a) the efficient source of any power, affection, emotion, desire, etc.

The Greek word for devil is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 1142

1142 daimon {dah'eemown} from daio (to distribute fortunes); TDNT 2:1,137; n mlf AV devils 4, devil 1; 5

- 1) in the NT, an evil spirit

Please notice before continuing that the references to "spirit" refer not to air or wind, but the "spirit" or vital principal by which the "BODY" is animated, ie. the soul (the mind, will, and emotions) of man which causes a disposition or influence by which the person is governed, thus culminating in emotions and desires that literally energize his conduct and behavior. NOWHERE, let me say again, NOWHERE in the reference to an "unclean spirit" is there any reference to "heavenly angels that rebels against God such as Satan or Satanic possession, but literally refers to the human element in man ALONE" which often rebels against God and incurs God's punishment....in this case physical and emotional disease as we shall see.

Just for your information, according to the Laws of Noah and the Mosaic Laws, when one acknowledges a force outside of God which is opposed to God (dualism...good forces fighting bad forces which are in a cosmic struggle) or in conflict with God, such as the erroneous teachings being espoused by many concerning spiritual warfare today, one commits blasphemy! This should be alarming to you for when one was proven guilty of blasphemy the court system of the Bible demanded one's death! That means those who ascribe to the spiritual warfare message today in the Church of Yeshua, where Satan is fighting God for the souls of men, are guilty in God's eyes of blasphemy and are worthy of death! Many Christians teachers and preachers will not agree with such a statement, but they only have to study harder to find the facts of the above statement are true. May God forgive us.

Please notice that in conjunction of the definitions presented above, the reference in the same verse to "the devil" is Hebraic parallelism referring to the "unclean spirit" mentioned previously in the same verse which we have seen in reality refers to the human mind, will, and emotions of man which often lives contrary to God and His Law. Now listen closely. Such a spirit is truly "the devil" as defined in the New Testament as "an EVIL spirit" of man which rebels against God. In other words it is not Satan the Angel fighting God, but man fighting God! Such is truly evil would you not say yourself?

Luke says, he was a man "who had demons/devils" [please remember the above context as determined by the very words from the Bible when we saw the reference was to the flesh of man is fighting God....for this must define our understanding of the verse]; which he afterwards expresses in the singular number by "the unclean spirit" (Luke 8:29) and "the demon/devil" (Luke 8:29). In other words Luke calls the flesh of man in opposition to God as unclean spirit or a demon/devil. Again Luke's reference is not to angelic creatures.

First of all, please notice the loose construction between "PLURAL" ("many demons/devils" in verse 30) and "SINGULAR" use (the unclean spirit/the devil in verse 29 )as used by the writer in describing the condition affecting this man. This is our first "tipoff" in further coming to a correct understanding of the passage, for something cannot be both singular and plural in "number." Yet, the use of the "plural" can in Hebrew (remember that the Bible is a Hebrew document) refer to INTENSITY. More on that later, just don't forget it.

Matthew then comes in, and in effect tells us why Luke uses the plural first, and then the singular. First, he informs us what "a demon" is; that is, such demons as afflicted the people whom Yeshua cured. Please bear in mind in our study from this point on this major distinction: Is Yeshua fighting and binding Satan in the Heavens in Spiritual Warfare as we have been taught today, or is Yeshua doing something entirely different from what we have been told or led to practice yourself ?

NOW LETS LOOK A LITTLE DEEPER

In his 17th chapter, verses 14 -23, he says, that a certain man brought his son to Yeshua to be cured; and in telling him what sort of disease he was troubled with, says, that his boy is "moonized" (if I may be permitted to explain in Greek terms the supposed influence of the moon upon the human brain), or as in the common version, "lunatic"; and "badly affected".

Matt. 17:14 And <2532> when they were come <2064> (5631) to <4314> the multitude <3793>, there came <4334> (5627) to him <846> a [certain] man <444>, kneeling down <1120> (S723) to him <846>, and <2532> saying <3004> (5723), 15 Lord <2962>, have mercy <1653> (5657) on my <3450> son <5207>: for <3754> he is lunatick <4583> (5736), and <2532> sore <2560> vexed <3958> (5719): for <1063> oftentimes <4178> he falleth <4098> (5719) into <1519> the fire <4442>, and <2532> oft <4178> into <1519> the water <5204>.

The Greek word for "lunatick" is as follows: Lexicon Greek 4583

4583 seleniazomai {selayneead'zomahee} middle voice or passive from a presumed derivative of 4582;; v

AV be lunatick 2; 2

- 1) to be moonstruck or lunatic 2) to be epileptic
- 2a) epilepsy being supposed to return and increase with the increase of the moon. This meaning is doubtful as the Greeks knew nothing of epilepsy.

Answer for yourself: Does this malady refer, to a physical malfunction of the body, in other words, a physical sickness such as epilepsy or emotion sickness? It sure does!

Answer for yourself: Did this young man suffer from a disease of the central nervous system called epilepsy? He sure did.

Answer for yourself: Is there any mention of Satan as an angel or demon possessing this young man in defiance to God? None whatsoever!

The Greek word for "sore" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 2560 2560 kakos {kakoce'} from 2556; TDNT 4:1091,*; adv

AV be sick + 2192 7, be diseased + 2192 2, evil 2, grievously 1, sore 1, miserable 1, amiss 1, sick people + 2192 1; 16

- 1) miserable, to be ill
- 2) improperly, wrongly
- 3) to speak ill of, revile, one

Answer for yourself: Again, does it appear that this young man had a miserable physical and emotional disease which was evil in the eyes of mankind? Sure does.

The Greek word for "vexed" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 3958

3958 pascho {pas'kho} including the forms (patho {path'o} and pentho {pen'tho}), used only in certain tenses for it apparently a root word; TDNT 5:904,798; v AV suffer 39, be vexed 1, passion + 3588 1, feel 1; 42

- 1) to be affected or have been affected, to feel, have a sensible experience, to undergo
- la) in a good sense, to be well off, in good case
- lb) in a bad sense, to suffer sadly, be in a bad plight
- lbl) of a sick person

Answer for yourself: Can you now see the overwhelming evidence that the references have absolutely nothing to do with cosmic warfare between God and His Angels, even Satan, but only the results of sin in the world; namely...sickness and disease as seen in this very sick young man who had epilepsy?

Before we continue, please understand that we have established we are speaking about physical diseases and that in verse 18 it is recorded for us that Yeshua, in dealing with this physical or emotional malady such as epilepsy "rebuked the devil" from this young man.

Answer for yourself: Did Yeshua rebuke the Devil in verse 18? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Was sickness and disease seen by Yeshua to be the manifestation of destruction toward the body, the temple of the Holy Spirit; in other words did Yeshua see disease as the "adversary" which is the definition of the word for the "devil"? Yes

Answer for yourself: Do you see that Yeshua was not rebuking an angel, but rebuking physical or emotion disease which was to him the "devil" and an "adversary" of man? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Are you beginning to see more clearly just who and what was the devil was in the understanding of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: Should we not accept the same "religious belief system" concerning Satan that Yeshua held? Think about this for a minute.

Answer for yourself: Should we not have the mind of Christ and understand the devil as Yeshua understood him which in this instance referred to a physical or emotion sickness? You should say "yes" to this one.

Answer for yourself: Who puts disease and sickness upon man? That old Devil who is fighting God...right? You may be surprised to find out differently.

Please notice Exodus 15:26, all the time understanding that this is the first mention of diseases in the Bible. According to the Law of First Mention as a rule of Biblical Hermeneutics (interpretation) let us correctly understand how man receives diseases:

And said, if thou wilt diligently heartier' to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, arid wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I (GOD) will put none of these diseases upon thee which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD that healeth thee.

Answer for yourself: Who puts disease upon man God or Satan? God said he does.

Answer for yourself: Does God use Satan to put disease upon man? Yes, but more on that later.

Answer for yourself: As hard as it will be for you to grasp this since you have been taught religious errors regarding this most of your life, can you now see how Satan and God work together to influence mankind to come to repentance and Godliness by creating conditions that force men back to God?

This bad effect of the moon was referred to earlier in this article (which planet is styled "Serene" by the Greeks); hence the verb in the text is rendered "moonized" in a succeeding verse where Matthew styles it as "the demon". In other words with the limited medical understanding of the first century, we have an account of a man trying to convey to us today his view of disease as understood in his day and time which is crude by our measure. Often we see superstitions mixed with truth as we today have greater understanding than our predecessors concerning disease today.

I am sure you are familiar yourself with the often used expression "it must be a full moon" in describing things that go unnaturally in your own life. Little has changed since then.

SO WHAT HAVE WE DISCOVERED SO FAR?

One sense of the word "demon", therefore, is to be understood as the "morbid affection of the brain and nervous system", from whatever cause, and is to be understood as characterized by different physiological effects.

In the case before us it was mistakenly attributed to the influence of "the moon"; and because of the disease and its manifestations it was understood to paralyze the organs of speech, thus it is called in Mark 9: 17, "a dumb spirit".

Such are the pathological terms by which the people of those days designated their corporeal afflictions, which the gracious and benevolent physician of their time, who "bore their infirmities," took upon himself. They were as ignorant of the real cause of disorder and disease as the most learned pathologists of our day possess. They called their diseases "demons," dumb, lunatic, etc.; also "unclean spirits," or spirits of uncleanness, unhealthy conditions of the affected; and, therefore, they were rendered Mosaically unclean. The terms are not so "scientific" as ours are supposed to be; but certainly as expressive of the real cause of disease as our more descriptive terms such as "Chorea Sancti Viti", the Dance of St. Vitus, which describes muscular "twitchings which pass by that name.

To say of a doctor in treating such disease, that he had cast "St. Vitus" out of a person, would neither prove the indwelling nor existence of such a "saint," "ghost," "angel," or "spirit" possessing such a one; when in reality the reference made is to a physical malady that affects the body. But in reality, St. Vitus has really as much to do with sickness as six thousand "devils" have to do with intense madness and mental illness, or a dumb disembodied ghost with lunacy and epilepsy which are diseases of the nervous system. The existence of "devils" or "demons" affecting people as agents of spiritual warfare, thus opposing God, can no more be proved from the nomenclature of Hebrew pathology, than St. Vitus' from our fanciful designation of diseases.

Please hear me, the New Testament writers expressed themselves on the subject of disease "in the language of the people" of their day, without undertaking to reveal to them more precise knowledge concerning it than they already possessed. They just didn't possess the sophisticated knowledge available today. The Jewish notion concerning "disease and demons" is admittedly practically ignored by all others to this day. Such a Bible based belief grounded in the Hebrew is sadly rejected and unheard of today; namely "that all diseases are laid upon mankind by the hand of God as corrections for their transgressions of his law". Today, most in Christianity lack that these Hebraic understandings as they have been taught incorrectly concerning spiritual warfare and have therefore come to blame a "third party" at war with God as the culprit for disease instead of ourselves. In doing so, how convenient that we remove all responsibility from mankind for the conditions of sickness we have received which is ultimately traced to man's sin and disobedience toward God.

As it is written in their law, "If thou wilt diligently hearken to the, voice of the Lord thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, "I will put" none of those diseases upon thee which "I have brought" upon the Egyptians; for I am the Lord that healeth thee. "

From this, it is clear, that it is NOT disembodied ghosts of wicked men, or devils from hell, or "the Devil" himself who has such hatred toward God that he vindictively destroy a creation made in the image of God. It should by now becoming more clear to you that the causes of lunacy, dumbness, madness, and so forth, which are referred to as "demons" in the Bible are ultimately only the manifestation of mankind's mortality manifested in various sicknesses that attack his mind and body as a result of sin and transgression of commandments. But be not mistaken, it is Yahweh that puts diseases on both Jews and Gentiles and not a "pseudoimp" from hell who is fighting God. The sad reality of the matter is that it is "man himself," not Satan, demons, or devils, who is fighting God, but man by not submitting to the complete rule and reign of God for his life. Such conduct receives the chastisement of God for His love for us is such that He cannot allow us to live in such a condition, but lovingly brings correction, much of which we falsely interpret as "evil." Thus not wishing to attribute anything "evil" to God, we created entities to carry the burden of such evil (bringers of sickness), thus protecting the character of God. Such is the current concept of Satan as understood in the Christian churches of our land.

"If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law, O. Israel, then the Lord, " says Moses, "will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses of long continuance. Moreover, he will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, which thou wast afraid of, and they shall cleave unto thee. Also every sickness, and every plague, which are not written in the book of this law, them will the Lord cause to ascend upon thee, until thou be destroyed. "

Physical or natural evil is chastisement and punishment for sin; and because the Serpent was the cause of its introduction into the world (which God used to test Adam and Eve), he stands today as the symbol of what is "adverse" to human happiness. Hence, that system of evil within the flesh and in the world, which he originated, adverse to God, to righteousness, and to health, is surnamed "Satan," or Adversary, "that old Serpent." This is Sin's symbol: so that the Israelites dying from serpent bites, because of transgression, looked to the Serpent lifted up by Moses for their cure. The serpent there lifted up and exalted by Moses before the people represented "sin" which was to be condemned in the flesh of a crucified Messiah, for this is the cure for all believers who looked to God for His remedy prepared before the wound (Messiah crucified before the foundation of the world). Hence, Serpent-sin, or Satan, and disease, are as cause and effect. Thus, the woman incurably diseased is said to have been bound of Satan (disease understood as an adversary to mankind and his quality of life as the result of sin) for eighteen years. This is the case with Israel and the rest of the world to this day. They are bound of Satan, correctly understood as the principal of sin of man working out its rebellion thought our flesh and our lives in rebellion to God which brings the curse of God through disease and death. This is the true understanding in Biblical Judaism for Satan and should be ours as well as Christians if we truly want the mind of Messiah to be ours as well. Such a bondage to sin that operates as our Adversary and Satan, from which none can free themselves, is overcome by our repentance and obedience to the loving commands of God. The eternal penalty of which was only overcome by "the Son of man at Yahweh's right hand, for it is God through His Messiah that paid the price "it is he that healeth thee," O World, as the Lord hath said. It was natural, then, that diseases were generally referred to as "Satan," "demons," and "devils;" thus representing particular afflictions that should be designated by the word "demon taken in an evil sense," instead of a good one, in which also it is sometimes used.

Having then been taught that we are to understand by a pathological demon "a man whose brain and nervous system are morbidly affected", we can now correctly understand what Luke means by a man having "demons". Luke says that the man [Legion] "had demons a long time"; and which demons, as I said before, he styles as a "unclean spirit," and a "demon." Matthew phrase, parallel and expletive of Luke's, is "demonized exceedingly fierce".

Answer for yourself: Do you see that the reference to "demons" in the New Testament, as used by both Luke and Matthew meant only that people had received illness and punishments from God as chastisement for their sin?

Answer for yourself: Do you see that what was described as "demons" which people "had," were nothing more than the manifestations of physical illness that currently afflicted the people?

Answer for yourself: Do you better understand now, that the diseases [referred to as "devils" and "demons" by the Gospel writers of the New Testament] were originally sent by God and delivered by Satan and his angels, but that they [Satan and his angels] were no longer present with the individual, only the results of their mission which was to bring God's redemptive judgment in the form of sickness to those requiring it?

Answer for yourself: Where in any of this is the theology of dual spirits in the heavens fighting it out for the souls of men as we hear today in the traditional spiritual warfare message of the Charismatic church?

Answer for yourself: Where in any of this do we find God battling Satan or demons in heavenly realms?

Answer for yourself: Where in any of this do we find the need to "bind the devil" or "cast the Angel Satan out of someone?"

Answer for yourself: Since Satan obeys God as we find in the Book of Job, and brings disease and punishment upon mankind only as God directs, does it not make more sense to "cast out the leaven" of sin from our lives and our fleshly members instead of the "agent who brings to us from God's hand what we deserve?"

Answer for yourself: Since God sends Satan, do you see how futile it is to "bind Satan" for in reality we are trying to bind or block God's will for our lives which is often seen in the bringing of the punishment we deserve for sin or sickness intended to cause us to seek God?

Answer for yourself: Since God sends Satan, to you see how futile it is to "bind Satan" for in reality we are trying to bind God Himself?

CAN WE COUNT CORRECTLY?

The plural, "demons," is not then a plurality of persons or beings as in being possessed of multitudes of demons or devils [Legion]; but in Hebrew a plurality is reflective of the concept indicating "intensity". An editor uses the plural "we", though speaking of himself only. Majesty does the same as "we the King" or as in "our image." These are plurals of intensity that the Hebrew language is so familiar for and for which the English language does not know or make allowance. In other words, we should understand that the one who had "demons/devils" was "severely sick;" not just slightly affected, but possibly so sick that he nears death. A man demonized so as to be exceedingly fierce, is to have demons [in this instance referring to mental illness, even a legion of them {intensity} thus not slightly affected, but severely demented]; and to be "in" or of "a vicious spirit," temper, or disposition; and where even incurable, or to be untamable. For those who are unaware, mental illness often manifests itself in violent behavior, not only to others but to the sick party himself. Having expressed the intensity and the maliciousness of the madness by using the plural of "demons," Luke returns to the singular number, and says, "It" seized him many times, and bursting the bonds, he was driven by the demon into solitary places" (Luke 8:29). This is his way of telling us that not only was the demonized man not always so fierce; but that his madness came upon him by paroxysms (recurrent spells), when nothing could bind him. Also included in this plurality of usage of "demons" is the thought that he is afflicted with only one malady or sickness, yet it is one sickness which is very severe in nature.

Men may be mad, mentally ill, and uncontrollably ferocious, and yet retain their memory, and the rational use of many of their cerebral faculties. The country of the Gadarenes was "over against Galilee," where Yeshua began to make proclamation of the gospel of the Kingdom, and to perform his wonderful cures. "And his fame," says Matthew, "went throughout all Syria; and they brought unto him all sick people, taken with diverse diseases and torments, and the "demonized", and "moonized",and paralytic: and he healed them. [Again, please understand and don't force your current charismatic interpretation upon the text where what is meant in a Hebraic sense is that the people were afflicted physically with various diseases and illnesses many of which were of an emotional nature]. And there followed him great multitudes from Galilee, and Decapolis, and Jerusalem, and Judea, and the farther side of the Jordan."

The man whose name was Legion was an inhabitant of the region of Decapolis, beyond the Jordan. It cannot therefore be supposed that, when all this stir about Yeshua existed in his country, he was unacquainted with the cause. On the contrary, he was doubtless cognizant of all that had been said and done by the "Great Light" that had shone forth so extraordinarily in the surrounding darkness; and being a Jew, was not ignorant that when Christ (Messiah) appeared he would punish the wicked as well as reward the righteous. Let us never forget his condition is directly attributable to his sin and his unrighteousness. Remember Yeshua headed a blind man, and after the healing warned him to "sin no more or a worse thing would come unto him." This "demonized" (mentally ill) man had a habit also of running at people to attack them, "so that," says Matthew, "no person was able to pass by through that way." Let the reader bear these things in mind, and he will understand how this son of Abraham, "When he saw Yeshua at a distance," came to "run towards him."

Though mad, and exceedingly fierce, he was not destitute of apprehension of evil. He recollected that Yeshua was called "the Son of God the Most High," and that he possessed wonderful power. As he ran up, that power encountered him in the words, "Unclean spirit, from the man begone!"

Answer for yourself: From what you have learned in this article so far, was Yeshua casting an angel, a hellish imp or demon spirit from the pit of hell from the man or only healing him physically and emotionally? You should by now say "healing him physically and mentally."

The pronouncement of Yeshua laid him prostrate before the Lord. He fell down before him. He was afraid now, lest this power within Yeshua should be exerted against him as a sinner, as the power of his neighbors had been, to bind him with fetters and chains, which had no doubt proved very tormenting. He, therefore fearing punishment from the Messiah of God, exclaimed with a loud voice, "What hast thou to do with me, O Yeshua, Son of God the Most High? I conjure thee by God not to torment me!"

In this encounter between sinner and Yeshua, "the time" was not come for "the judgment". Yeshua's mission was one of mercy, which rejoiced against judgment; and of that mercy there was an abundance for him and his associate in woe (there were two). Yeshua then kindly asked him, "What is thy name?" But not yet in his right mind since suffering from some form of mental illness, he called himself "Legion" [meaning intensity again]; and gave as a reason, that he, and what Luke terms "demons," the intense affections which he lived with were many; that is, equal to many. "My name is Legion, for "we" are many" (remember plurality means intensity), or as Luke says, "because many demons (manifestations of his sickness) were with him." In other words, It is Legion (severely, severely sick); for I am demonized exceedingly fierce (very sick).

Still prostrate before him, and uncertain what was to become of him, "he" entreated Yeshua earnestly that he would not send "them" away from the country." Let us not misunderstand the context here, for here the man of unsound mind is the speaker. Under the impression that he was not alone, but in company with many, he says, "Pray do not send "us" out of the country! But send us unto the swine, that we may break in upon them." These two madmen had been accustomed to fall upon all that came in their way; and being still delirious, they wanted to likewise fall upon the swine and thereby drive the swine into the lake, thus choking them. These were the ravings of delirium as fruits of mental illness; and as the man called himself "many demons," Mark attributes these ravings to "all the demons" [the ravings of this madman was due to his mental illness], if indeed the reading is to be accepted, which is equivalent to attributing them to the man himself bearing that name.

At the crisis of the cure of these men, Yeshua concluded to adopt the suggestion to send the sickness and emotional disease into the swine.

Answer for yourself: Why does Yeshua follow the suggestion of the madman?

It was contrary to the law of God for men to raise swine for food since being classified by God and the Bible as "unclean" food. It was off-limits to mankind. It would be a vindication, therefore, of God's law, to destroy the whole herd as the judgment on sin; and Yeshua determined to do it. He undemonized the men [healed them mentally and physically], and demonized the swine [afflicted them with the same mental illness]. Matthew says that Yeshua ordered the unclean spirits of the men to "Begone!" that is, Be healed; and let your madness seize upon the swine. The result immediately followed. The men were forthwith restored to soundness of mind, while the maddened swine rushed violently into the lake, and perished in its waters.

FINAL THOUGHTS ON SATAN

The concept of Satan, as found in the earliest books of the Bible, reveal little concerning him, but of that which is revealed it portrays him as an obedient creature. The reason we have different ideas concerning his obedience is that passages in the Old Testament referring to rebellious men and Kings have been mistakenly interpreted as if they referred to Satan which they do not. In Hebrew, and let us not forget that Yeshua is a Hebrew and believe the Hebrew doctrine of the Bible, the "Satan" is merely a servant of God who performs his service unto God by causing men to choose between "good and evil," thus causing man to reveal to both God and themselves what is really in their hearts. He acts as an adversary to man, but always on God's behalf. It was, for instance,

Satan who stood in the path of Balaam's ass in order to prevent Balaam going where God did not want him to go. Through newer translations of this episode we see the writer referring to Satan as an "angel of the Lord", thus erasing the traces of the devil's honest youth.

This original Satan did admittedly have a tricky side to him, which is perhaps not surprising given his line of work is to test men and try to deceive them into disobedience. In "Job" it was he who suggested putting the old man to the test. Yet he did so strictly within the limits approved by the boss (God). The evil archrebel found in Christian and some limited later Jewish writers such as the Essenes was as yet nowhere in sight.

Even before the perversion of "dualism" [good god versus bad god] crept into Biblical Judaism in the return from Babylon captivity, the real rebelliousness attributed to Satan began to set in around the 7th century BC, when some Jewish scribes gave Satan a more sinister role in order to explain divisions in the house of Israel. How could David, the rightful king of the Jews, have imposed his unpopular polltax upon God's people? He must, it was said, have been under the influence of a mischievous being.

Similarly, writers who described the strife among Jews after the Maccabean revolt in the 2nd century BC cited an enemy of God who had fomented apostasy. Again we have the creation of an "evil" Satan in order to explain away the evilness of the human heart. This explained how even Jews could go badly wrong. Just blame it on another...namely Satan. Remove human responsibility for the results and effects of sin. Thus a few limited Jewish groups used the figure of Satan to recast their sectarian conflicts as battles between good and evil; that is, to demonize their opponents. Christians, which were in the beginning part of Judaism, then inherited a Satan whose name could be invoked to make demons of their adversaries: pagans, heretics and, perhaps most consequentially for European history, the Jews who had invented such a "role" for him in the first place. When Satan is seen in the setting of an evolving religion, his development from servant to fiend becomes comprehensible.

In the turmoil of 1st century Palestine, the gospels must be seen as a species of campaigning propaganda. St. Mark, for example, wanted to let the Romans off the hook in order to redirect the blame for Yeshua's death on to the unconverted Jews; it was they and not the Romans who were the immediate ideological rivals of the first Christians. The later gospel writers, particularly the gentile St. Luke, warmed to this theme. St. John went so far as to make Yeshua himself condemn the Jews as Satan's offspring. St. Matthew was more eager to establish Yeshua's claim to be the prophesied king of the Jews, so he tended to demonize not all of the nation of Israel but just recalcitrant factions of it.

By the 2nd century it was no longer the case that most Christians were converted Jews. For the Gentile Christian Church after the second century, in the absence of the Jewish authorities as Torah and Bible interpreters since the destruction of the Temple and the enforced dispersion from Jerusalem, the true understanding for the oral traditions concerning "demons" and "devils" was lost for the Gentile church and such traditions before the canonization of the New Testament lapsed back into the pagan backgrounds and superstitions. The challenge was no longer unconverted Judaism but paganism. It was the spirits pagans worshipped who had to be identified as the creatures of Satan. These "daimones" became for Christian writers "vile demons". The notion of the demonic developed the unambiguous connotation of evil that it bears today and which the vast majority of Christians world-wide accept out of a lack of understanding of its true Hebraic understanding.

There has always been much more to evil than the political dimension. But that dimension is far from being just history. Consider the words of a preacher at a Republican Party caucus in Louisiana on February 6th: "We knew Pat [Buchanan] could not lose, because God is looking for a man who will stand up...against the Devil's man now in the White House." Such vilification of a foe is not, as the liberalminded may think, an absurd misuse of the notion of Satan. It is, as we have shown largely what the new "role" of Satan was invented for.

I hope this article has been both enlightening and stimulating as we at Bet Emet Ministries endeavor to help you return to "the faith once given to the saints" which unfortunately we do not possess today without much study and repentance. May God bless your efforts to please Him! Let me leave you with a concluding though....according to the Laws of Noah as referenced by James in Acts 15 and Acts 21 as "necessary" and which "seemed good to us and the Holy Spirit" any belief in any form of dualism or cosmic duality of powers in cosmic conflict is considered blasphemy. Let us repent and return to the truth and the faith once given to the saints. Amen. Shalom.

WHAT WAS THE JEWISH BELIEF ABOUT THE MESSIAH IN THE FIRST CENTURY?

"I believe with complete faith in the coming of the messiah" (from Rambam's Thirteen Principles of Faith).

Answer for yourself: What did Judaism teach about the Messianic Age in the first century?

Answer for yourself: What does Judaism have to say about the messianic age today and has its teachings changed?

Answer for yourself: What sort of person will the messiah be?

Answer for yourself: What is the purpose of a "messianic age"?

Answer for yourself: Would G-d allow belief in a false messiah?

Many people, both Jew and non-Jew, ask these and other questions about the Jewish belief concerning the coming of the messiah.

WHAT ARE SOME OF THE SPECIFIC PROPHECIES THAT THE MESSIAH THAT THE JEWS EXPECTED WOULD FULFILL?

- Jews will lead in Spiritual Guidance (Zechariah 8:23)
- World Peace (Isaiah 2:4)
- The Nile River in Egypt will run dry (Isaiah 11:5)
- World Knowledge of G-d (Isaiah 11:9)
- No more Death (Isaiah 25:8)
- Resurrection of Ancestry (Isaiah 26:19)
- Ingathering of all Jews in Israel (Isaiah 43:5)
- Joy and Gladness to the Jews (Isa. 51:11)
- Non-Jews will help Jews materially (Isaiah 60:5)
- Each tribe will receive its inheritance (Ezekiel 37:14)
- Building of the 3rd Temple in Jerusalem (Ezekiel 37:46)
- No More Weapons of War (Ezekiel 39:9)

Answer for yourself: Did the above Messianic prophecies become fulfilled in and Yeshua or his ministry?

WHAT CHRISTIANS NEED TO HEAR...WHAT JUDAISM BELIEVED ABOUT THE MESSIAH IN THE FIRST CENTURY

The answer for the above question as to if Jesus fulfilled the Messianic prophecies in the first century is "NO"!

The noun "prophecy" describes a "prediction of the future, made under divine inspiration" or a "revelation of G-d." The act of making a prophecy is the verb, prophesy. As you might be aware there is a great difference of opinion as to if the Messianic prophecies of the Bible have been fulfilled yet or not depending to whom you ask...a Jew or a Gentile Christian.

Answer for yourself: Why is that?

Simply said as you have been reading in our ministry's articles is that the Christian Bibles we have inherited as Christians and followers of Jesus are corrupted and falsified when compared with the Hebrew Bibles from which they were supposed to come. The prophecies concerning the Messiah have been altered in our Christian Bibles in many, many places and changed; many are created out of thin air or by the manipulation of the Hebrew Scriptures to create a "fulfillment" when in reality there were none. The Gentile world in the first century who knew not Hebrew nor the Hebrew Scriptures in their original state had no idea that the "corrupted versions" of them that they were presented later were not true to the original Hebrew. This can be said for the quotes of these falsified translations we find in the New Testament as well as many are nothing more than further quotes from the purposefully corrupted Greek translation by the Essenes that made their way into the Gentile's Old Testament.

This explains why the Jews look to the coming of their Messiah and do not consider Jesus as a serious Messianic contender since the Hebrew Scriptures were unfulfilled. You can change these Hebrew Scriptures all day long but the Jewish people who know Hebrew and their Hebrew Bibles know better. It is we uneducated Gentiles who do not! Yet when these same Hebrew Scriptures are forged and corrupted and adulterated almost beyond recognition by the Essenes and later the Early Church Fathers in producing their versions of the Sun-g-dman from the Jewish "human" Messiah then we have find that these literary falsifiers found the necessity to "create" fulfilled prophecies to give validity to their Solar creation...the Christ of Faith. The historical Jesus and the Jesus of history vanishes and the Christ of Cosmic faith moves to the forefront. As Christians and followers of Jesus who have never seriously studied their faith and the corruption of their Christian Bibles (both Old and New Testaments) then this information is startling to say the least. It is a horrible experience to learn as a Christian adult that your Christian Bible is forged in many, many places and that the "picture" presented to you concerning Jesus is a lie and because of this "skewed" picture of Jesus that your religious beliefs up to this point in your life has caused you to live in idolatry and blasphemy and you never knew it. This corruption of the true Hebrew Scriptures and their presentation as such in the Christian's Bible explains why the Jews don't accept this "Roman Gentile Jesus" of the New Testament; they are looking for a Jewish human Messiah that Moses and the Prophets spoke and not a Cosmic personification of the Sun transformed into an incarnational-virgin born Sun-g-dman who fails to fulfill the Hebrew Scriptures as stated above.

This might seem perplexing and almost impossible to believe to the normative Christian but I assure you is not to the Jew who knows his Hebrew Bible and the prophecies within it that has remained unchanged through the thousands of years that the Jewish people have died to preserve these precious Divine truths. The reason for such a dichotomy as found in Judaism and Christianity today concerning "fulfilled" vs "nonfulfilled" Messianic prophecy is simply because the Old Testaments of the Jews and Christians disagree extensively in the readings of the Prophets and the Writings from which many of these Messianic prophecies originate. If one undertakes an unbiased study of such discrepancies, as I have which consumed me over 5 years, he will find that the Jewish Bible was purposefully corrupted when translated into Greek and many pagan astral and solar/sun-worship religious beliefs were mixed in the Greek translation by Hellenized Essene Jews of Alexandria, Egypt, which had long departed from normative Biblical faith. These Egyptian

Hellenized Jews needed a divine book that give their group religious clout in Alexandria so they simply came up with one which did that would challenge the Jew's own book; but at the same time the Divine Revelation of YHWH was altered and few know of this today....that is unless you undertake critical and tedious study into these areas. Let me assure you that many have and their lives are never the same following such a study.

Answer for yourself: But how can that be...we both have the SAME Old Testament? No we don't. As an ordained Christian Pastor I found out over years of intensive study and comparison of manuscript evidences that my Christian Bible and Old Testament was not accurate in hundreds of places when compared to the Jewish Hebrew Scriptures.

After such study I had to admit that in reality I did not really know what the true Messianic prophecies really were as I found out that my Christian Bible was full of many man-made created "fulfilled" prophecies that made it look as if Yeshua was fulfilling prophecy after prophecy, when in reality they were not Messianic prophecies in the first place. What is totally amazing is that many of these "fulfilled" prophecies that were later applied to Jesus were originally written concerning a sun-g-dman/savior of the Gentiles which had it's origin all the way back in Egypt and beyond. Rome just continued with what they already had...one more sun-g-dman was no problem for Rome which was into sun-worship anyway and let us not forget that ROMAN CHRISTIANITY gave us the New Testament. Your study has to begin here to find out the truth about the Messiah of Israel and the "sun-g-dman/savior of the Gentiles."

So we must begin our study by coming to the realization that there is a major difference between a Messianic prophecy and a man-made non-messianic prophecy which is presented as such in the New Testament. We have to deal with each text in our Christian Bibles and compare it to the Hebrew first then trace it's translation into the Greek and later the English in order to verify to our own satisfaction that the Hebrew Scriptures have been translated correctly in our Christian Bibles. When we find those that are not then understand we have found not the truth but lies and these passages and the doctrines that they espouse must be rejected and in their place the truth of Biblical Judaism be inserted since it was to the Jews that G-d gave His Divine revelation and not the Gentile world.

Eph 2:12 12 That at that time ye [Gentile world] were without Christ [Messiah], being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without G-d in the world: (KJV)

It is time to listen to the Jewish people as the light of the World and recover their truth; not only from them but their Bible as well.

- What does Judaism have to say about the messianic age?
- What sort of person will the messiah be?
- What is the purpose of a "messianic age"?
- Why did G-d allow the belief in false messiahs to spread?

Following this article will be an exhaustive examination of text after text to verify that we as follower of Jesus and as Christians we have the Divine truth that G-d intended we receive from Israel and their Bible. See these articles for yourself and the evidence will overwhelm you by what you learn and see for yourself. You only have to read!

IN CLOSING

Many people, both Jew and non-Jew, ask these and other questions about the Jewish belief concerning the coming of the messiah. While an article of this size cannot possibly address such an important topic with the thoroughness that it deserves, it can present the basic points in the hope that it will lead to further study of the subject.

In his monumental work Mishneh Torah, Maimonides (1135-1204) spelled out the fundamental Jewish concept of the messiah as it was handed down by the Jewish people and their scholars, from generation to generation, from the time of the prophets. In his concise and lucid manner, the great Jewish philosopher and jurist herewith presents us with a clear picture of the promise which G-d made to the Jewish people.

MISHNEH TORAH, HILCHOS MELACHIM XI-XII

"The King Messiah will in some future time come, restore the kingdom of David to its former power, build the Temple, bring together the scattered of Israel, and all the ancient laws will again be in force. Sacrifices will be offered, and years of release and Jubilees will be kept as prescribed in the Torah. Whoever does not believe in him, or does not hope for his coming, shows a lack of faith not only in the prophets, but also in the Torah. For the Torah testifies concerning him in the words: "And the Lord your G-d will again bring back your captivity, and show mercy unto you, and again gather you from all the nations. If your outcasts be at the ends of the heavens, from there will the Lord gather you, and the L-rd will bring you into the land which your fathers possessed" (Deuteronomy 30:3-5).

You must not imagine that the messiah must prove his messianity by signs and miracles, doing something unexpected, bringing the dead to life, or similar things. The principle thing is this: the statutes and precepts of our Torah remain forever, and nothing can be added to them or taken from them.

If, therefore, a descendant of David earnestly studies the Torah, observes what the written and oral Torah enjoins, causes all Israelites to act similarly, exhorts those who are lax in the performance of the commandments, and fights the wars of the Lord, he may possibly be the messiah. If he does not succeed, or is killed in war, it is certain that he is not the messiah promised in the Torah. He is like all the other noble and good kings of the House of David who have died, and G-d only caused him to rise in order to try us thereby, as it is said, "And of the wise some will stumble, and through them the people will be tested, purified, and made white, till the time of the end comes; for there is yet a vision for an appointed time" (Daniel 11:35).

Also, Jesus the Nazarene, who imagined that he would be messiah and was killed, is alluded to in the book of Daniel, as it is said, "And the sons of the transgressors among thy people will rise, in order to establish a vision, and will stumble" (Daniel 11:14). Can there be a greater stumbling then this? All the prophets said that messiah will be a redeemer and a savior to the Israelites, will bring together their outcasts, and will strengthen their obedience to the Divine precepts, but he (Jesus) caused destruction by the sword to Israel, the dispersion of those left, and their humiliation. He changed the law, and misled many people to worship a being beside G-d.

But the thoughts of the Creator of the universe cannot be understood by any human being, for the ways of men are not His ways, nor their thoughts His thoughts. For all the events connected with Jesus, and with Mohammed that rose after him, served only to pave the way for the King Messiah, who will reform all mankind and lead them to the unanimous service of G-d, as it is said, "For then will I turn to the peoples a pure language, that all may call by the name of G-d, and serve him unanimously" (Zephaniah 3:9).

How can this be done? Almost all people have, through them (Jesus and Mohammed) become acquainted with the idea of messiah, with the words of the Torah and the Divine precepts. Through them the knowledge of the Bible spread even unto the remotest islands and unto many nations 'uncircumcised' in heart and uncircumcised in flesh. These nations seek to justify their disobedience to the precepts of the Torah. Some of them say that these precepts are Divine, but are not in force at present, and were never intended to be permanent laws.

Others maintain that they must not be taken literally, as they are mere symbols, the meaning of which has already been explained by their 'messiah'. But when the true King Messiah will rise, he will prosper, be high and exalted. All will then at once know that it was falsehood what their fathers have inherited, and that their prophets and their teachers have misled them.

It is not because they desired to have dominion over all lands and nations and be honored by all people, or because they desired to have plenty to eat and drink and other pleasures, that the wise men and the prophets longed for the days of the messiah, but because they would then be at leisure to study the Torah and its teachings without being interrupted by any oppressor, and would thus make themselves worthy of life in the World to Come.

There will not be in those days any famine, war, jealousy, or quarrel, because the good things will be in plenty and even luxuries will be found everywhere. All people will busy themselves with trying to know the Lord. Therefore, the Israelites will be great sages, knowing things which are at present hidden. They will obtain a knowledge of their Creator as far as possible by human understanding; "For the earth shall be full with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea" (Isaiah 11:9).

THE ORIGIN OF THE MESSIANIC IDEA IN JUDAISM

The oppression of the Jews by the foreigner aroused in them thoughts of a Messiah and the need for a Redeemer!

Though the Christian idea of the Messiah, or in Greek parlance, the Christ, is one of a divine redeemer, it is quite different from the older, Jewish conception of a Messiah, a warrior who would free them from their enemies and institute the kingdom of G-d on earth in which the Jews would be the elite.

The Messiah is perfectly described in the Book of Daniel written about 200 years before Yeshua [notice the real Daniel did not write it] when the Jewish state was oppressed by the Greeks. Even then Jews were seeking a Saviour.

...and, behold, one like unto the son of man came with the clouds of Heaven, and came even to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all the peoples, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed. Daniel 7:13 -14

The description above should be familiar to most Christians as it parallels the description of the expected Messiah from the Gospel of John where we find more of a "super-human" Messiah than a "human" Messiah.

In the non-canonical Psalms of Solomon, written not by Solomon, the king, but by unknown authors between 70 and 40 BC - only about 70 years before Yeshua, we get a detailed description (edited here for brevity) of what Israel expected and looked forward toward in their Messiah. In this book [The Psalms of Solomon] which is unfortunately not in our Bibles, the Messiah of the house of David shall gather the nation together and evict the foreigners from Jerusalem.

- O G-d, raise up unto them their king, the Son of David that he may reign over Israel thy servant. And gird him with strength that he may shatter unrighteous rulers, and that he may purge Jerusalem from nations that trample her down to destruction. He shall destroy the godless nations with the word of his mouth. At his rebuke the nations shall flee before him. All nations shall be in fear before him.*
- Wisely, righteously he shall thrust out sinners from the inheritance. He shall destroy the pride of the sinner as a potter's vessel. With a rod of iron he shall break in pieces all their substance and he shall reprove the sinners for the thoughts of their hearts. And he shall purge Jerusalem making it holy as of old.*
- And he shall gather together a holy people whom he shall lead in righteousness. And he shall divide them according to their tribes upon the land, and neither visitor nor stranger shall remain with them any more.*
- And he shall judge the tribes of his people which has been sanctified by the Lord. And he shall not suffer*

- unrighteousness to lodge any more in their midst, nor shall there dwell with them any man that knoweth wickedness, for he shall know them that they are all sons of G-d.*
- And he shall be a righteous king, taught of G-d, over them, and there shall be no unrighteousness in his days in their midst, for all shall be holy and their king the anointed of the Lord. The Lord himself is king, the hope of him that is mighty is through his hope in G-d.*
  - He will bless the people of the Lord with wisdom and gladness, and he himself will be pure from sin, so that he may rule a great people and relying on his G-d throughout his days he will not stumble; for G-d will make him mighty by means of his holy spirit, and wise by means of the spirit of understanding, with strength and righteousness.*
  - His hope will be in the Lord: who then can prevail over him? He will be mighty in his works and strong in the fear of G-d; he will be shepherding the flock of the Lord faithfully and righteously and will suffer none among them to stumble in their pasture. He will lead them all aright, and there will be no pride among them that any among them should be oppressed.*
  - He shall judge peoples and nations in the wisdom of his righteousness. And he shall have the heathen nations to serve under his yoke.*

Take time and re-read the above description of the expected Messiah of Israel. You will note that a pacifist preaching goodwill to all men was not the Jews' best idea of a leader suitable to free them from the yoke of their oppressors. The chief heathen nation was, by the time of Yeshua in the first century AD, the Romans. The political position of the Jews under the Romans seemed hopeless. Consequently popular Jewish hopes were of this imminent redeemer, this warrior king, born in the image of and of the line of King David, a supernatural being sent by G-d who would overthrow the foreigners, impose Jewish authority over the world and institute a kingdom of G-d on earth which he would rule assisted by the Jews as the elite. The Messiah had become a fervent belief.

These visions of G-d giving dominion of a kingdom to his Messiah, an everlasting kingdom which encompassed all peoples and nations, ignited the torch of Jewish nationalism for several centuries. Leaders of varying degrees of credibility were to step forward from the death of Herod to the defeat of Bar Kosiba claiming to be the Messiah of G-d.

Both the Hebrew word, Messiah, and the Greek word, Christos, mean one who is anointed, or rather it is always given as meaning one who is anointed. Actually Messiah is made up of the Egyptian root MS, as in Moses, meaning a child or, if the child is male, a son, and the Hebrew word, iah which is G-d. Thus Messiah means literally "Son of G-d". The Christian gospel writer Matthew identified Jesus Christ with Moses, whose name is also of course "a son".

Answer For Yourself: If Moses is the Egyptian word for a son who was he a son of? If you know anything about Egypt and their religion Moses was the "son of G-d" or the "son of Ra."

Answer For Yourself: Was Moses also a Messiah? He was! Moses was adopted by Pharaoh's daughter who found him in the bulrushes. And a Pharaoh was a god (according to Egyptian religion).

Moses's brother, the priest Aaron, died and was buried at a place called Moseroth, Moserah or Mosera, the site of the Israelite camp near Mount Hor. Curiously Mosera can be read as Egyptian for Son of Ra or Son of G-d, Ra being the Egyptian word for god. The father of Moses and Aaron, according to the Old Testament, was Amram interpreted as the Hebrew for exalted people when it is plainly a corruption of the Egyptian Amun-Ra. Amun-Ra was the high G-d - Amun meaning the Hidden One - of the Egyptians. From the time of the pyramid builder, Cephren in the IVth dynasty all Pharaohs were considered to have been Ra's son, in other words they were Sons of G-d or Messiahs. Mosera is the purely Egyptian word from which the compound word Messiah was constructed. It is the same word, with roots in a different order, as Rameses, the name of several Pharaohs - Sons of G-d. One of the inscriptions of Rameses the Great records Amun-Ra addressing the Pharaoh with words familiar to a modern Christian:

I am thy father. I have begotten thee like a god.

The Pharaoh replies:

I am thy son. Thou hast given me the power of a god.

Thus both Moses and his brother were considered Sons of G-d, both were literally Messiahs. Moses and Aaron combine the roles of king, priest and prophet. Later David was identified as the Great King and Moses took the single role of the prophet, but it is plain that, in leading the Israelites out of Egypt, his role was that of king as well as prophet.

Jochebed, Amram's wife was also his Aunt. This ties in with the practice of the Pharaohs whose title came through the female line. Thus they usually married their sisters to become king but could marry their mother's sister - their maternal aunt - or even their mother - to succeed to the throne. Plainly the Israelites led away from Egypt by Moses, a Messiah, were thoroughly Egyptianised and ruled by a Pharaoh-like king, if not an actual dissident Pharaoh. It seems the word Messiah, a Son of G-d, came into the Jewish religion from Egypt.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE MESSIAH CONCEPT

From the time of exile in Babylonia the word messiah took on the meaning of a G-d-sent saviour or deliverer. The Jewish concept was not of a divine Messiah: as the extract from the Psalms of Solomon makes clear, he was entirely human, though possessing G-d-given supernatural powers. Judaism had become strictly monotheistic - it had only one god and it was a heresy for Jews to think otherwise - even their Messiah could not be regarded as divine. A Jew proclaiming a Messiah as a god at the time of Yeshua would have been stoned for blasphemy. But it was no blasphemy to claim to be a Messiah, a man. Under the Romans most Jews felt they had suffered enough and were expecting a man of power backed by the supernatural might of G-d to lead the people to freedom. The idea of a saviour Messiah spurred Jewish nationalism. From 4 BC to 135 AD several Messiahs were proclaimed as the Jews yearned for an end to the trials and indignities of Roman rule. Each led an unsuccessful revolt and died.

PARADOX: SUFFERING SERVANT VS A WARRIOR KING

Failure fertilized the growth of another concept, the suffering servant. The despised and rejected servant of G-d in Isaiah would suffer to redeem the world in a spiritual rather than physical sense. The suffering servant was a personification of the sufferings of the Jewish people rather than a model for their Messiah. But the Messiah had to be demonstrably of the highest morals as the moral judge of mankind. Possibly some Jews thought that suffering ensured great virtue and gave supernatural power. A suffering Messiah could have been part of G-d's plan to save the people. They expected the Messiah to suffer as the Jewish nation had. There is evidence of this in the Dead Sea Scrolls.

The contradiction of Daniel which pictured a glorious Messiah was resolved by the Messiah's glorious second coming when the world would end and the faithful would be saved. From this probably came the Christian idea of Christos meaning a divine redeemer, an incarnate G-d Yeshua who deliberately suffers, dies and is resurrected to atone for the inherent sins of mankind. Certainly the importance of the suffering Messiah concept largely emerged out of the events of the intertestamental years rather than before - many scholars believe it only reached prominence as a justification of Christianity.

Most ordinary Jews, though, were fed up with suffering. They had incessantly been humiliated by foreign rulers with only the Maccabees providing any hope. Submission had got them nowhere. Gentle Yeshua could not have fitted their preferred image - a warrior, a king David, a superman on the lines described in Daniel.

ORDER OF EVENTS IN THE MESSIANIC ERA

Answer for yourself: In spite of the failure of the Messianic prophecies to be fulfilled Christianity continually teaches that the Messiah has come in the person of Jesus/Yeshua. The Jewish people today do not recognize Yeshua as Messiah because of this failure of the Messianic prophecies to be fulfilled. Who is right?

The following is taken from Faith Strengthened by Isaac Troki, from pp32-38, and are paraphrased by me for the most part. These are signs that signal the coming of Messiah. When these things occur and are visible for all to see then and only then look up for your redemption draws nigh. You be the judge if these things occurred or were accomplished by Jesus during his earthly ministry or has happened since. Shalom.

- The ingathering of the Ten Tribes, and their union with Judah and Benjamin under the dominion of one king of the house of Judah (see Ezek. 37:16-22)
- The rise of Gog from Magog [Magog = from Gog], and their incursions into the territory of Israel (Ezek 38 and 39, also Zech 14:12)...
- The Mount of Olives shall be rent asunder (see Zech 14:4), "And his feet shall stand on that day on the mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem, and the mount of Olives shall be rent asunder in the midst of the east and the west, so as to become a very extended valley"
- The river of Egypt dry up, and the Euphrates divided into 7 wadis, so that the exiles can cross them dry-shod prior to the gathering of the exiles of Judah (see Isaiah 11:15,16).
- Ezekiel 47 "...The waters issued out from under the threshold of the house eastward.... And by the river shall grow all trees for meat, whose leaf shall not fade, nor the fruit thereof be consumed. It shall bring forth new fruit according to his month. Because their waters they issued out of the sanctuary, and the fruit thereof shall be for meat, and the leaf thereof for medicine." See Zechariah 14:8, "And it shall be in that day that living waters shall go out from Jerusalem, half of them toward the former sea, and half of them toward the hinder sea, in summer and in winter shall it be." Joel 4:18, "It shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall flow with waters [many of the rivers of Judah are dry wadis, that flow only on occasion when there is a lot of rain]; and a fountain shall come forth of the - house of the L-rd, and shall water the valley of Sheetim."

- The fulfillment of Zech. 8:23 "They will say (to the Jews), we will go with you, for we have heard that G-d is with you."
  - The annual pilgrimage of the remnant [after the war of Gog] of all nations to Jerusalem "to bow down to ... the L-rd of Hosts," etc. see Zech 14:17
  - The celebration of Shabbat, and the new moons by all the Gentiles.
  - The total extinction of idolatry. See Isaiah 2:18, "And the idol he will consume completely;"
  - Unity of faith shall prevail throughout the world. See Isaiah 45:23. "I have sworn by myself, a word of righteousness is gone out of my mouth, and shall not be reversed, That to me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear." Zech 14:9, "And the L-rd shall be a King over the whole earth; on that day shall the L-rd be one and His name one" ["i.e. the L-rd alone shall be worshipped and shall be invoked by His true name."--note from JPS Tanakh]

There are 10 more events to occur. This is only half of the list. NONE of them have occurred, so the messiah has not yet come in the opinion of the Jews, and let us remember it was to them he was promised. They, of all people, should know what to expect. If Yeshua is the Messiah these events were not accomplished by him or his followers following his resurrection. They yet await fulfillment. To those who say a second coming provides the platform for such fulfillments need look into what prompted the origin of such a teaching of a "second coming." After finding out that the original teaching of a "second coming" applied to the Essenes' Teacher of Righteousness originally, then we are hard pressed to say that such a teaching was a Divine revelation concerning Jesus. But yet not knowing the future only time will tell, but to say that Yeshua is "the" Messiah, when these Messianic events go lacking, must find the reason for such a declaration out of emotion only as the facts of history and the Jewish Bible do not lend support to such a belief. David Flusser, a very well known Jewish scholar today, says it best when asked if he thinks Jesus is the Messiah: "I will approach him and ask: 'been here before?'" Time will tell will it not?

WHAT DID G-D PROMISE US: A JEWISH MESSIAH OR A CHRISTIAN MESSIAH? #1

THE JEWISH IDEA OF MESSIAH IN BIBLICAL TIMES

It is crucially important to make something very clear: The great Hebrew prophets were not seers, crystal-ball gazers, or magical diviners. "To prophesy," as the Hebrew language itself indicates, is "to give utterance" to great moral truths, not to deal in end-of-the world scenarios. These towering Jewish teachers spoke to their own generations, to men of high or low position without the least regard for power or rank—to all who flouted or perverted the moral law of G-d. They frequently risked their lives, and often suffered rebuke and privation.

But a strange fate was to overtake the words and pronouncements which these and other Hebrew prophets brought to bear on the events of their own time. Later generations, living under changed and dramatically different circumstances, turned back to these "prophecies" meant for their own time and endowed them with the magical powers of foretelling and prediction. To later generations, these prophecies were quoted as intended not only to foretell distant, unknown future events, but to be "signs" of the wonders G-d would perform against all manner of evil at the very end of time itself!

A few examples from Isaiah can help us understand how prophets came to be seen as "foretellers" of the distant future, rather than serving as moral prods to the corrupt rulers of their own day. In the eighth pre-Christian century, a prophet known as Isaiah, a native of Jerusalem, was pondering the question of how to save his beloved city, and with her, the entire kingdom of Judah. Isaiah had analyzed the efforts of King Pekah of Israel (in the north) and King Rezin of Aram to force his own kingdom of Judah into a coalition against the expanding Assyrian empire (Isaiah 7-8). He urged his own government not to enter any such alliance, warning that neither Israel nor its Aramean ally would succeed, and both would surely be defeated. Behold, he said, "a young woman shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel . . . For before the child knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land before whose two kings you are in dread will be deserted" (7:14ff).

Jewish scholars are of one mind concerning what it was that Isaiah was trying to achieve. The historical context makes it abundantly clear that he was essentially analyzing the moral and political forces of the world in which he lived, hoping to convince his compatriots to accept his own analysis of the situation, as he understood it. Of course, the prophets used parables, similes, and metaphors; these helped to endow their eloquent public orations with drama and clarity.

Orlinsky describes the moment in this fashion:

Read in this light [Isaiah's parable] the reference to the young woman and her child becomes nothing more than a dramatic measure of time, a warning that before the unborn child will be old enough to know the difference between good and evil, the Lord will bring devastation on Judah's enemies. [Later Gentile Christian generations introduced an additional error, namely, that the pregnant young woman in question was a virgin. The Hebrew word in Isaiah 7:14, almah, means "young woman"—even one recently married

—not Virgin.] A similar statement was made by Isaiah in this very connection about his own wife and child, whom he called symbolically Maher-shalal-hash-baz, literally, The spoil speeds, the prey hastes," the double name referring to the two kingdoms of Aram and Israel (Isaiah 8:1-4). Yet when passages of this sort were read in a later and wholly different set of conditions, as Christianity has done, they laid the basis for the common belief that the prophets were foretellers and that their gift was based not merely on their power of analysis of an immediate situation, but that it derived from divine inspiration and implied distant and mystical promises (Harry Orlinsky, Ancient Israel (Ithaca, New York: Cornell University Press, 1954), p. 157).

Nowhere is such reading of the Prophets led to gross deception as when dealing with the "anointed" of G-d. Our term is in the English translated as "Messiah". Let us continue our investigation.

THE ANOINTED ONE

The biblical idea of the messiah is, nevertheless, rooted in the primary meaning given to it in the message and teachings of several Hebrew prophets. In' the Bible, a "messiah," literally "the anointed one," was the product of the prophetic belief that after the destruction of the Temple of Solomon (586 B.C.E.), G-d would restore his people to the land, under the rule of a descendant of the house of David. But the word "messiah" must be understood from its original biblical context. Anyone who was selected by G-d through his prophets to be the ruler of his people was regarded as "his messiah"—the anointed one.

In this way, Saul, Israel's first king, was called "the Lord's anointed," and so were other kings like David and Zedekiah. Even King Cyrus of Persia, whom the Second Isaiah regarded as G-d's agent for destroying Babylonia and restoring Israel to its land, is called "G-d's anointed ones (45:1). Always, and in every biblical case, the "anointed one" is a human, not a divine being. This is something the Christian Church has failed to realize! And as for the connection to King David, Bible readers will remember that when the first Babylonian exile was indeed terminated and the people restored to their land, it was Zerubbabel, of the house of David, who led the restoration.

Clearly, from the Hebrew Bible itself, there is no warrant whatever to consider the Jewish idea of a messiah in superhuman terms, or to endow "the anointed one" called "mashiach" with any of the miracle-making attributes which his first Jewish disciples had ascribed to Yeshua of Nazareth. Not a single word in the Hebrew Bible, Jewish scholars maintain, can be brought forward as proof that Yeshua as Messiah was already pointed to, in Hebrew Scripture, long before his own arrival in time. To arrive at that kind of messiah—a messiah with a capital "M"—who would become the Christian Christ, we have to look elsewhere. This is where it gets interesting.

Having understood now, in general terms, what G-d promised the Jewish people concerning their "Messiah" to come, let us focus on how a Jewish Messiah became a completely different entity...a Gentile Messiah for the Christian Church.

Answer for yourself: Where, then, shall we look to find clues explaining the metamorphosis of a Jewish Messiah into a Gentile Christian Messiah?

HOW THE MESSIANIC IDEA CHANGED IN RABBINIC TIMES

The idea of a superhuman, anointed leader is the product of a much later time, and the result of changed circumstances. The view that G-d would send a Messiah (with a capital "M") at some early or distant future time to intervene directly in defending Israel against its oppressors—or for that matter, to protect all of the righteous against the wicked—is a development that occurs only in later rabbinic times, many centuries after the older Hebrew prophets. The trigger for these new views was, in fact, the oppressive, imperial rule of Rome. Seeking desperately to find some comfort and national hope in this difficult time of Roman oppression, Jews began to look for new answers that might mitigate their dark feelings of entrapment in the meshes of an all-powerful, arrogant, and pagan empire of Rome.

In these circumstances, which occurred only a few decades before the beginning of the Christian Era, a number of sects began to sprout within the Jewish community, each with a "formula" intended to serve as a way out of national despair. Many of these "sects" had their own rendition of Messianic salvation for Israel. One thing was common to all these Jewish sects; namely, they all needed and cried out for an imminent salvation from Roman oppression. Until recently, what we knew about the nature of some of these Jewish sects derived principally from the pen of the leading Jewish reporter of his times, the historian Josephus. From him we learn of the existence of at least four such groups: Pharisees, Sadducees, Essenes, and "the Fourth Philosophy." This last sect got its unusual name because Josephus described the first three sects as "philosophies," and lacking a name for the last, he merely gave it a number. It should be noted that since Josephus, although a Jew, was writing for Greek readers and often indulged in propaganda rather than straightforward reportage—we should read him with many grains of salt. For example, we must be very skeptical of his description of the Pharisees as Stoics and the Essenes as Pythagoreans. Moreover, it will soon become clear why we must not—indeed we can not—assume that these four groups of Josephus accounted for all the sects that may have existed. Of them, only two, the Pharisees and Sadducees, are mentioned in the New Testament, or in the Talmud of the rabbis.

Briefly, we can say that the Pharisees comprised the main rabbinical party. They asserted that henceforward, lay teachers, not only the priests, by reason of their learning and piety, could interpret Scripture. The second of these parties was the Sadducees, a priestly sect whose literal interpretation of the Torah-law the Pharisee-rabbis regarded as much too rigid. The latter were liberal, broad-constructionists, when it came to applying the traditional laws to their own times. The Sadducees, according to Talmudic sources, were a conservative, upper-class party of priestly aristocrats who, it is believed, derived their name from that of Zadok, the High Priest in the days of King David. Pharisees, called "perushim," in Hebrew, meaning the "people who set themselves apart from the rest of the community," and therefore since out of the mainstream of society, became the name given to these forerunners of rabbinic Judaism by the Sadducees. This epithet was intended derisively to suggest that the Pharisees were "schismatic," "deviationist," and "separatist." The Pharisees themselves usually referred to their own group as "haverim," or "members of the fellowship"; as "hahamim," the sages or teachers of Israel; or, as scribes, "soferim." From the Sadducees, we have inherited no literature at all, while the Talmud, that vast repository of law and learning which was accumulated from the first century B.C.E. to the sixth century C.E., is the product of the ruling Pharisee-party. As for Josephus' "Fourth Philosophy," we should understand it not as a "philosophy" at all, but as a band of activist "guerrillas," sporadic and loosely organized, whose answer to the oppressiveness of the Romans was more militaristic than spiritual.

But it is the Pharisees who set the stage for two separate, conflicting, and amazing phenomena. They first ensured Jewish survival after the fall of Jerusalem in 70 C.E. by expanding Judaism into a world religion, capable of and interested in receiving new converts into the fold. At the same time the "oral law," their Talmudic reinterpretations of biblical laws, created the conditions necessary for a national religion like Judaism to live on, even when its people were dispersed throughout the world, exiled from their beloved Jerusalem and its central sanctuary, the Temple.

It is within the matrix of these Pharisaic teachings that the rabbinic idea of the Messiah emerges, connected in spirit to the older expectations of the prophets, yet altered to a great extent to suit their view of the national crisis facing Israel under Rome. While the biblical prophets stressed the nature of the age called "the End of Days," the Pharisees focused, as well, on the person of their Messiah, who gives The Messianic age its very name. In their view, although the Messiah may be endowed with special powers, as the future King of Israel, he is a human being; only an agent of G-d, and never an atoning Savior as Christians later believed. He is expected to attain for Israel the idyllic blessings of the prophets. He is a comforter of his suffering people, Israel. Never is he seen as a suffering, or atoning Messiah. He was to defeat the enemies of Israel, restore his people to the land, reconcile them with G-d, and introduce a period of universal, spiritual, and physical bliss. He was, indeed, to be many things in one: prophet, comforter, warrior, judge, king, and teacher of Torah! He would appear as the successor of the house of David, to rule his people "at the end of days." Then, at the climax of human history, the Messiah together with his people was to serve as the instrument by which the sovereignty of G-d was established on earth.

It would be a serious mistake and a grievous misreading of the Pharisees to conclude that they were seized by mystical leaps of faith, or that they had concentrated their spiritual energies on Forcing G-d's hand" to send a Messiah forthwith, quickly, to put an end to their earthly miseries under Rome. They were much more preoccupied with life on this earth, and in the process, centered their attention on performing mitzvot, divine commandments, here on earth, as prescribed in the Torah-law of Moses. It was in this essential way that they transformed Judaism into a system of monotheistic ethics. The Talmud, the recorded result of their efforts in this direction, is ample testimony of their dedication to the perfection of man and the building of a just society in this world.

Having understood the above, and understanding that Christianity accepts and teaches a completely different Messiah than the one G-d promised the Jews, as seen in the Old Testament.

The Christian, in order to uncover the origin of Messianic concepts he accepts today, has to look beyond the Pharisees to the various apocalyptic sects to find the roots for his Messianic beliefs. The Pharisees were indeed innovators, but still in the center of the conservative community life of Second Temple Judaism. The latter apocalyptic sects were on the fringe of Judaism. This is all the more revealing when we understand that Yeshua was a Pharisee and not an apocalypticists that advocated military uprising to bring in the Kingdom of G-d. To believe as Yeshua believed about the Messiah, one has to separate the beliefs of the Pharisees as over against the Essene apocalypticists concerning the Messiah.

APOCALYPTICS: THE ESSENES AND THE "DEAD SEA SECT" AND THEIR INFLUENCE ON THE CONCEPT OF THE MESSIAH

The greatest archaeological excitement of the century, sometimes bordering on commotion, has been about the Essenes, who for so long had been regarded as a quaint and unique Jewish sect, but about whom very little was known. Like the Sadducees, the Essenes, it appeared until a few decades ago, had left the world without a trace; they had no known literature or written record. All of this changed with the discovery in the late 1940s of the now famous "Dead Sea Scrolls."

The Essenes, like other Jewish apocalyptic sects of the time, rooted their basic doctrine in their fervent expectation of the imminence of "the end of days." With its advent, according to Essene writings, evil was to be destroyed and Israel would finally be freed from the "yoke of the nations"—freed from its political and military subjugation by Gentile powers. In varying degrees of intensity, all of these sects shared a common belief: either preceding the great event, or during the "final era," G-d would raise up (some even believed had already raised up) for himself a community of "elect" who were destined to be saved, as a nucleus of the future Israel. For two hundred years, beginning with the first century B.C.E. until the fall of the Temple in 70 C.E., this relatively small but deeply pious sect had split off into a variety of highly organized communities—not unlike monastic orders—who had dedicated themselves to living in a state of religious purity to await the great day coming which they believed was soon to occur during their lifetimes.

For decades now, some scholars have been suggesting that since the dominant theme of early Christianity is the "renunciation of life," as part of its messianic expectancy, its connecting link to Judaism, if not its very origin, was to be found in the Essene sect or some variant of it. Indeed, some like Heinrich Graetz, the great nineteenth century Jewish historian, believed that John the Baptist was himself an Essene—or at least deeply influenced by this unusual Jewish sect. He and other similarly minded scholars felt that if we could somehow know more about their beliefs and practices than Josephus had sketchily detailed, we might also find the "missing link" between Pharisaic Judaism and early Christianity. Then, in 1947, ancient Hebrew scrolls, dating to a time very close to the era of John the Baptist and Yeshua, were discovered near the Dead Sea. It was later determined that they were the work of a Jewish sect that dwelled nearby along the shore of the sea at a place called Qumran. Ever since, the sect of the scrolls was called the "Qumran or Dead Sea Sect," and to this quaint group the attention of a host of Jewish and Christian scholars around the world now turned. In their initial excitement, some were even sure that this was the very apocalyptic sect to which John the Baptist belonged, and from whose sectarian teachings he had drawn his repetitive refrain: "Repent now, for the Kingdom of heaven is at hand!"

This is not the place to delve deeply into the vast new scholarly literature that has been developing around these important archaeological finds. I believe, however, that it will simply no longer do for anyone seriously interested in understanding the origins of the Jewish-Christian schism to mouth old sayings about "the blindness of the Jews" in "rejecting" Yeshua. Let me explain in detail.

A SUBSTITUTE JUDAISM...THE GIFT FROM THE APOCALYPTICS

We now discover that the models for the first Christians had pre-dated John the Baptist and Yeshua by over a century. These were Jews who lived as a small sectarian community at Qumran, presided over by their chief ruler and priest, their Teacher of Righteousness (or "Righteous Teacher"). They practiced a religious way of life that was already, one hundred and more years before the time of Yeshua, at the farthest fringes of the organized community. It was the sectarian Jews who had "rejected" current Judaism in whole by fleeing to the desert. It was they who established a "substitute" Judaism, not the organized community. It was they who established a "substitute" Messiah; the Messiah that the Christians hold sacred today instead of the Jewish Messiah of the Jewish Scriptures as found in normative Judaism.

WHAT KIND OF A "SUBSTITUTE" JUDAISM WERE THEY PROMOTING?

They, the Essenes, lived an ascetic life, set apart from other Jews in their Judean desert habitat near the Dead Sea. According to one of their scrolls, "The Manual of Discipline," as scholars now call it, they were apocalyptic who had left the evil priests (Sadducees) in Jerusalem, to dwell together in ritual and ethical purity in the desert, there to await the coming of the Jewish messiah who would "right" all wrongs. Many investigators believe that these Essenes anticipated the arrival of three separate and distinctive messiahs within Dead Sea writings: a priest-messiah, a king-messiah, and a prophet-messiah. They ardently believed in the Torah-law of Moses, regarding themselves as its most pious and pure fulfillers, in contrast to the "wicked priests"—the Sadducees—who administered the cultic ritual in the Jerusalem Temple. As a community, they regarded themselves as constituting "G-d's elect" who had entered into a "new covenant" to help all of Israel return in purity to the first covenant, the law G-d gave them at the hand of Moses at Sinai. It was never their intention to do away with the Law or replace the Law of G-d with grace as we have been told today. The key personality of the sect was their Teacher-Priest. It was he who had led his followers into this new Mosaic covenant, formed them into this religious order, and instructed them in the meaning of the scriptures, adding his own teachings and prophecies. He remained the martyred leader of the order, adored, venerated, and expected to play a part in the messianic age of the future.

Some of the commotion created by the discovery of the sect's scrolls was centered in the mistaken conclusion some scholars had jumped to: they were sure that, at long last, direct evidence had been unearthed of Yeshua, and they loudly trumpeted their belief that Qumran's Teacher of Righteousness was none other than Yeshua himself! When all the clamoring had died down, and especially after dating tests of the documents were made, it became clear that Qumran's Teacher of Righteousness had lived almost a century before the time of Yeshua.

By now, many believe that this teacher may have been Onias the Righteous, who, according to Josephus, was stoned to death in 65 B.C.E. The scrolls refer to the "Wicked Priest" and to the "Man of the Lie," and it is suggested that the "Wicked Priest" referred to the leader of the Sadducees, and the "Man of Lies" to the head of the Pharisees. Both of these larger parties were opposed to Onias, and both seem to have blamed his death on the other. In any event, while other apocalyptic sects had stressed either the kingly or the prophetic attributes of the messiah they anticipated, the Qumranites were essentially geared to the ideal type of the messiah-priest, their Teacher of Righteousness, and believed that either he or one of his progeny would soon lead Israel in the imminent "end of days."

THE DEAD SEA SCROLLS DEBUNK THE NOTION THAT THE JEWS REJECTED YESHUA...THE MISSING LINK HAS BEEN FOUND FOR THE JEWISH REJECTION OF YESHUA

What actually emerges from a careful study of this Dead Sea sect is a clear refutation of the claims of Christianity concerning Israel's "rejection" of Yeshua—not to speak of the recurrent physical and mortal terror which have been inflicted on generations of Jews in the name of those claims. It is wrong to use loaded words like "rejection" when describing the relationship of a far-out messianic sect like the Qumranites to the central Jewish community led by the Pharisees. The Pharisees did not accept the Essene theology. It is as simple as that. Since the people followed the Pharisees, they would neither accept Essene theology in mass. However, neither "totally" rejected the other or read them out of Jewish life. Theirs were simply different religious approaches to the overwhelming Jewish problem of their time: how to survive the Roman oppressor. The Sadducees had remained static, drawing their religious program and inspiration principally from the Temple, which they controlled. The Essene groups, of which the Qumranites, we now know, were an integral part, turned their minds away from this world, and sought to override and transcend the Roman problem, by relying on messianic intervention: peace and well-being for Israel would be achieved with the imminent "end of days." The Pharisees, or scribes, comprised the only party with an essentially pragmatic, this-world view, with a program that was compatible with the looming possibility of a broad and protracted dispersion of the Jews without the imminent intervention of a Messiah who would personally correct Israel's plight.

It was the Pharisees who gave meaning to the synagogue, as a "small sanctuary"—one that could survive anywhere in the world, even should the Temple fall or Jerusalem be destroyed. In their academies of Torah-learning, where they assiduously searched and re-searched the enduring and universal applications of Scripture, they set the stage for Judaism as a world religion. There, scholars, later to be known as Rabbis," sought to enlarge the meaning of the older biblical religion of cult and sacrificial altar, and to apply with new and creative spiritual energies the teachings of Moses and of the other Hebrew prophets. Although these Pharisees, like all other religious people, could not live only as rational men—they too, were deeply pious, and sometimes mystical—they did not eschew the rational. The Pharisees held to a patient messianism: they were unwilling to force G-d's hand, then and there, to bring an immediate end to human history. This, perhaps, is why the Pharisees regarded fellow Jews—the mystical Essenes and their like as persons unwilling or incapable of submitting to the day-to-day rational, human quest to overthrow evil and to build by just and ethical means the better world G-d had commanded as their Jewish duty. For the Pharisees, total and other-worldly absorption into the mystical realms of messianic speculation seemed to be an evasion of religious responsibility. Man needs G-d, they believed; but G-d, those Pharisees were bold to proclaim, needed man, as co-creator of the present and future human community. So now you understand the opposing theological conflicts between the Pharisees and the Essenes. It was a conflict over methodology more than it was over substance. Both believed in the coming of a Messiah, but how salvation and redemption was to be achieved lied at the core of the opposition.

What is important for our study is the fact that Christianity adopted the Essenic view of the Messiah over that of the Pharisee position. Such is the division between Judaism and Christianity today.

So now we have it, the "hard" archaeological evidence of the Qumran literature, and are thus able to open up the long-shut book of Essene history and religious thought. As a result, we also have a better fix on the question of the Jewish "rejection" of Yeshua and his Jewish followers, the sect of the "Nazarenes," who may be regarded as proto-Christians. Judaism did not reject Yeshua as Messiah, but as an Essene Messiah...as a Solar G-dman. Since this was Gentile Christianity's position, it had to be rejected as well. And we also have the so-called "missing link" between Judaism and Christianity, inscribed in the scrolls of that Essene-like sect, the Qumranites.

Upon analysis, however, the long-sought missing link turns out to be much more than a link; it is also our earliest source of radical Christian departure. Which is to say that several generations before the birth of Yeshua the Essene-Jewish movement which had served as a model, spiritual paradigm, and hope for Israel had already departed far out of the mainstream of Pharisaic Jewish life concerning the Messiah and the methodology of Messianic redemption. Had there been no Pharisees, Judaism would probably have died with the death of the Temple and the loss of Jerusalem. Pharisaic, or more properly, rabbinic Judaism, saved biblical religion for all men, and for all time. It saved the Jews from despair in exile, and from spiritual dehydration in their wide and vast dispersions. If it were not for rabbinic Judaism, the biblical books, prophets, teachings, laws—indeed, the monotheistic inspiration itself—would probably have become as strange, remote, and unknown to us as all the forgotten religions of the ancient world.

The scroll-discovery is also important as a reminder that the Jews of Qumran, like their fellow Essenes, had opted for a Judaism of another style, one that was not destined to survive within the Jewish world, but which, in effect, did become the cornerstone of the future Christian church. To the majority of Jews in their day, the Essenes and their various off-shoots seemed to have strayed very far from the biblically correct Judaism they were taught by their Pharisee teachers. It turns out, then, that the earliest forerunners of Yeshua and the Nazarenes were themselves fringe sectarian Jews whose philosophy and practice of religion was already regarded as unacceptable by the principal Jewish community, long before Yeshua even arrived on the scene.

With this new knowledge now at hand, it strikes me as willful and prejudiced for many Christians to continue to maintain even today, as they have steadfastly done for almost twenty centuries, that the Jews rejected Yeshua. It was not Yeshua, as such, they refused to follow, but also virtually thousands of their fellow Jews, members of one or another Essene-type sect whose apocalyptic fixations seemed to them excessive, non-rational, and thus unattractive. Yet were it not for Paul, it is possible that the Nazarenes would have remained within the Jewish fold, despite their minority status and their radical messianic claims. After all, there were other small Jewish splinter sects who had also made claims in behalf of a messiah of their own.

WHAT DID G-D PROMISE US: A JEWISH MESSIAH OR A CHRISTIAN MESSIAH? #2

THE JEWISH IDEA OF MESSIAH IN BIBLICAL TIMES

In the previous article I shared with you the dynamics for how the Biblical Messiah and concepts concerning with him were altered by apocalyptic sects within Second Temple Judaism. As you saw for yourself you now understand how the apocalyptic Essenic believers in Messiah attached their beliefs to Yeshua in hopes of deliverance and salvation from the Roman yoke of bondage. Up to this time we have only theological diversity within Judaism. Notice I said "within Judaism". Now let us focus on how the Messianic Ideal, as taken from Jewish Scriptures, broke from Judaism and literally created for itself a new religion patterned after pagan mystery religions. Let us proceed.

THE FOUNDING OF A NEW RELIGION...NO LONGER A VARIANT FORM OR SECT OF JUDAISM...BUT A PAGAN MANIFESTATION OF JUDAISM...THANKS PAUL.....

But with the coming of Paul, a generation after the time of Yeshua, the Nazarenes would wholly adopt his views—a theology so far removed from the strict monotheism Jews had nurtured that it would be obvious that Paul was, in fact, founding a new religion. Indeed, he himself understood this, for he had successfully held out against James, the brother of Yeshua, who had urged a "mission" only to their fellow Jews, while Paul turned his attention to the pagan, gentile world as the major target for his Christianizing. Paul's religion used Judaism as its base, but it was equally indebted to the pagan and Greek mystery cults he had known in his native town of Tarsus, in Asia Minor, while still known by his Hebrew name of Saul. Pauline religion was thus no longer only a variant form of Judaism and to expect Jews to accept his paganized reinterpretation of their own ancestral heritage as the "real Judaism" is not merely wrong; it is nothing less than far-fetched, wishful thinking.

Answer for yourself: In what way did Paul's new religion, which constitutes the basic Christian theology that has endured through the centuries, differ from, and even appear to subvert, the meaning of Judaism itself?

PAUL THE THE PAGAN CULTS

The New Testament, as a result of Paul's radical revamping of Jewish doctrines and his borrowings from pagan cults, differs fundamentally in major respects from all Jewish literature, including the apocalyptic, messianic writings of some small sects; or the Dead Sea scrolls; or any rabbinic works. "The New Testament," writes one Jewish scholar, Tells us about the death of a god who was resurrected on the third day. Unless the death of a divine figure marks the end of an outworn religious cult, like the death of Pan, it can be given meaning only in terms of a scheme of salvation: and this is how the New Testament interprets it.

The death of Yeshua atones for the sins of mankind, who can escape damnation only by sharing in his death and resurrection.

Answer for yourself: Where in Jewish literature is the concept of the death of G-d to be found?

The answer is simple: nowhere.

Such a concept as the death of a g-d, associated everywhere in the ancient world with the renewal of nature in the spring, was banished forever from Judaism by its theology of a G-d superior to nature.

Hyam Maccoby, "Christianity's Break with Judaism," Commentary, August, 1984, p. 39, states: "Maccoby, correctly in my view, links Paul with the pagan Gnostic sects. Earlier, he wrote: 'It used to be thought that the Gnostic sects, of which there were many, were all heresies derived from Christianity, but it seems probable that Gnostic sects existed before Christianity began, and it may be closer to the facts to explain Pauline Christianity in terms of Gnosticism rather than the reverse . . . In Gnosticism there was a Savior (in Greek, 'Soter') who was one of a Trinity of divine beings . . . He redeemed mankind by his suffering and then ascended to Heaven to sit by the side of the Father in glory. An interesting and significant fact is that the Gnostic writings, even before the birth of Christianity, were bitterly anti-Jewish.' Accordingly, Maccoby pointedly concludes: The bulk of Paul's adherents certainly had a pagan Hellenistic background which enabled them to respond to the Gnostic aspects of his teaching" (Revolution in Judaea (New York: Taplinger, 1981), p. 88.

The above information is available to the reader from hundred of sources that exist today. This I assure you is not an isolated example or some weird idea I cooked up. The reason most are not aware is that they have never know that such materials exposing the falsehood of their Messianic beliefs exist. I found them by accident when looking and studying in-depth. Others who never study or look never find them.

Answer for yourself: But if this is the Jewish view, are there no Christians who see these matters in a similar vein?

Unfortunately, the answer is mostly negative.

Answer for yourself: What of Christian scholars? Are they not also committed to "objective research," and do they not also seek to reconstruct the past through true scholarship?

Again, the reply is hardly positive. Very few of them are willing to open up a wide and ranging discussion of these topics with laymen; and even within their own circles, a certain conservative reticence reigns—this because many academic Christians are also ordained clergymen, whose intention is to preserve the older tradition, not amend it. Their paychecks depend upon it. They continue to hold to the "consensus" of church tradition, for the most part. Few indeed have written for general consumption and discussion what A. Powell Davies has done so compellingly in his popular book on the scrolls:

"The traditional view of the founding of Christianity taken by the typical layman is that Yeshua preached its gospel, died as Messiah and Redeemer, arose from the dead and founded the Christian church, which spread out through the world, beginning with the work of the apostles. Or, if he does not believe in the Resurrection, he supposes that the apostles, moved by the spirit of Yeshua, founded the church upon his gospel . . .

. . . In any case, he assumes the originality of Christian doctrine, and it does not occur to him that much of it existed previously (except perhaps as it was foreshadowed by Moses and the prophets), or that a great deal of it is indebted to sources that do not appear in the Bible.

What the layman does not know, and the scholar does, is that there were many Pagan deities for whom quite similar claims were made and in whose names were preached quite similar doctrines. Mithras was a Redeemer of mankind; so were Tammuz, Adonis, and Osiris. The view eventually taken of Yeshua as a Redeemer was not a Judaic concept; nor was it held by the first Christians in Palestine. The Messiah the Jews and the Judaic Christians expected was not the Son of G-d but a messenger from G-d, not one who saved by blood-atonement but one whose salvation came from his rule of the earth in a Messianic kingdom....

... It was when Christianity spread out into the Pagan world that the idea of Yeshua as a Savior G-d emerged. This idea was patterned on those already existing, especially upon Mithras. It was the birthday of Mithras, the 25th of December (the winter solstice) that was taken over by the Pagan Christians to be the birthday of Yeshua. Even Sabbath, the Jewish seventh day appointed by G-d in the Mosaic Law and hallowed by his own resting on this day after the work of Creation, had to be abandoned in favor of the Mithraic first day, the Day of the Conquering Sun...

... In the Mediterranean area during the time of Christian expansion, nowhere was there absent the image of the Virgin Mother and her Dying Son. Originally, it was the earth itself that was the goddess, virginal again with every spring. Her son was the fruit of the earth, born only to die, and in dying, to be implanted once more in the earth, as the seed that would renew the cycle. This was the "vegetation myth" from which the drama of the "Savior-God" and the "Mater Dolorosa" was drawn, soon to be elaborated ...

... These examples are but the barest indications of what must be encountered in the quest for historicity in the New Testament scriptures ...

... This obviously does mean ... that when there are new suggestions, such as those arising from the discovery of the (Dead Sea) Scrolls, it is entirely appropriate to give them full consideration. If they are disturbing to the consensus, or quasi-historical field of reference, formerly arrived at by scholars, it may be because we need a new consensus (A. Powell Davies, The Meaning of the Dead Sea Scrolls (New York: New American Library, 1961), pp. 89-92).

DO YOU HAVE THE COURAGE TO RESEARCH WHAT YOU ARE SEEING FOR YOURSELF?

Several truths now emerge. In the first instance, there can be no doubt that in its origins what we now call Christianity was a Jewish sect. The first followers of Yeshua, we have seen, were sectarian Jews—not yet full-blown Christians—who differed from other Jews principally in believing that their messiah-claimant had not died but would soon return to resume his interrupted mission of liberating his people from Roman rule. It was Paul, as we have seen, tilting toward the pagans after the days of Yeshua, whose missionary zeal latched onto ideas anchored in the Greek and pagan mystery cults. In so doing, he denationalized Judaism, divided faith from Biblical facts, and transformed the meaning of the death of Yeshua into a world-wide invitation to share in the salvation offered by his atoning sacrifice. One would hardly expect the mass of Palestinian Jews, with their undiluted loyalties to their own people, to accept his bidding. But as the eminent classicist Michael Grant has shown, even "the Jews of Asia Minor [who were acculturated to Greek ideas] mostly rejected Paul because they regarded his doctrine of the divinity of Yeshua Christ as a blasphemous betrayal of their tradition of monotheism.

So Paul turned to the Gentiles instead, infusing his reinterpretation of Yeshua's message, at times, with some degree of Hellenism in order to make it more palatable" (Michael Grant, From Alexander to Cleopatra: The Hellenist World (New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1982), p. 79). In the process of becoming the Apostle to the Gentiles, Paul also became the "arch-apostate" of the Jews.

Indeed, Grant suggests that Paul not only changed but also subverted the teachings of Yeshua. "Comparisons," he notes, "between the instruction ascribed to Yeshua and to Paul scarcely even touch on the most vital difference between them. The faith which Paul himself came to hold, and desired others to hold with him, was faith in the Crucifixion and Resurrection of Yeshua Christ and in the consequences of those events for mankind. This was by far the most important part of his beliefs and his preachings and teachings, and it means that they can scarcely be compared at all with those of Yeshua. For, even if Yeshua in his last days came to foresee his own violent death as in some way redemptive, this idea had manifestly not stood in the forefront of his ministry which, throughout his career, had centered instead upon the dawning and shortly to be consummated Kingdom of G-d. It was scarcely surprising, then, that Paul showed so little interest in Yeshua's life. What the two men preached was quite different, and the Christianity that we have today is largely Paul's creation" (Michael Grant, Saint Paul (New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1976), p. 194).

How Paul won the day in his desire to attract new converts has been pithily described by one acute observer:

The infant Church was split in twain on the issue of the validity of Mosaic precepts for Gentile proselytes. The Gentile converts brought with them into Christianity their own legalist and cultural system; they viewed with abhorrence the civilization and law of Jewry, both on theological and national grounds. Peter and the so-called "Judaizing" group championed the opinion that no Gentile could enter Christianity except through the gate of Judaism; Paul on the other hand urged the admittance of Gentiles without circumcision and observance of Jewish food-laws. The Council of Jerusalem discussed these problems and attempted to fix rules for future action. The Gentile group in the Christian communion triumphed; Paul, though at moments he relapsed into adherence to the Old Law, rejected its authority and literal validity for Christian believers (Louis I. Newman, Jewish Influence on Christian Reform Movements (New York: Columbia University Press, 1925), p. 9).

Paul, however, could never fully resolve the internal Jewish contradictions of his Christianizing theology, which, as I have been seeking to demonstrate, has remained at the heart of the continuing Christian problem. Paul needed to retain his ties to his Jewish heritage in order to validate Yeshua as the true Messiah. This is why some regard him as a Jewish "loyalist" who was still able to think of himself as a committed Pharisee even after his conversion. "Brethren," he said, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees." (Acts 23:6.) Yet Paul also needed to discard the Jewish nation—his very own—as a living organism, since it was the essential vehicle of the ongoing expression of the fullness of the Jewish faith he was rejecting, as surpassed by Christ. It thus turns out that Paul needed the Jews for their past—but as for their future, as a "real-life" people, I believe that he needed them not at all. He was preoccupied as the Apostle to the Gentiles. The future he foresaw for Jews was only as a Christianized "Israel"—either converted in this life, or restored to Christ in the world to come.

Even when Paul referred to "Israel" as the "old stock whom G-d will not forever reject and which could flower again," which Israel did he really mean? "Paul takes Israel seriously," a Jewish writer correctly observed, "but it is an Israel in which no Jew believed. The Israel of Paul is a theological construction and a theological necessity; it is an intermediate device which must be employed [by him] that the pagan world be redeemed in Christ—at which point, hopefully in the spirit of Romans (11:1-24), G-d might return to graft on once more the broken shoots of the old stock of Israel. Israel is for Paul and for the Christian the first thought and the last [in the end of days] but the middle is all of Christ. Such a use of the presence of Israel cannot be less than a falsehood in our Jewish] sight."

In my view, I also see him as guilt-ridden, ambivalent, and, at times even a self-hating Jew, whose relationship to his Pharisaic roots after his "conversion to Yeshua" on the road to Damascus bears all the marks of the love-hate mechanism of many another apostate. To prove the zeal of their new love, they often go to odd lengths to reject their old one. Following what sociologist Lewis Coser has said about the nature of social conflict—"the closer the relationship, the more intense the conflict"—Paul's volatile and often contradictory views about the destiny of a Christless Jewry may perhaps be traced to his obsessive remorse and his wrenching, inner conflicts as an apostate Jew.

Finally, to conclude this discussion of what the generations after Paul had made of Yeshua as the Christ, I rely on the historical record to substantiate my claim that Christians have a moral, psychological, and spiritual problem, not only with Jews and Judaism, but also with themselves. To that record I would also add this personal, admittedly, subjective, intuition: I continue to ask myself whether Christians— unwittingly, and even unconsciously—have perhaps often understood (as did Paul, on many introspective, mystical occasions) that it was they who were the renegades—from Judaism. It has been said that the renegade is one whose "attack on the values of his previous group does not cease with his departure, but continues long after the rupture has been completed." It strikes me that this psychological side of The Christian problem"—its "protesting too much" against Judaism for long centuries after the initial rupture took place—has not been sufficiently probed or discussed.

The position which sees Christianity as the religious heir of Judaism is a rather extravagant view, as we have seen. It should be clear that Yeshua himself could never repudiate, deny, revile, or wish to expunge his own people from the annals of history and of human hope. Even if, in the confusion or insecurity of their own hearts, some Christians still feel that they "owe" Jews nothing, they surely owe Yeshua this much: to resolve this Pauline-Christian problem they have made of the Jews, in his name. Shalom.

ANCIENT TRADITIONS OF THE MESSIAH...& THE BORROWING OF PAGAN CONCEPTS

We have a hard task ahead of us. Since growing up in Christianity, as did most of this ministry's readership, we grew up the the traditional Christian teachings concerning Israel's Messiah. We heard week after week the passages contained in the New Testament as applied to Jesus which in our minds convinced us that he is the Messiah of Israel. Over and over we heard the "oral traditions" concerning Jesus as recorded for us in the New Testament and over time the picture of Israel's Messiah was permanently fixed in our minds. Before Fortunately for me before Seminary I had begun to read books on the "Jewish perspectives" of Christianity and continued to do so after graduation. I knew the "Gentile Christian" stance on Jesus but was deficient on the "Jewish understanding" of Biblical Messiah. At that time I figured that there would be little difference between the two because I had been told my whole life by my spiritual authorities that the reason the Jews don't see in Jesus what I do is that G-d had chosen to "blind" them to this fact in order that I, an non-Jew, could see Jesus as the Messiah. But somewhere in my heart and mind I realized that this just did not make sense in light of the fact that G-d also had called Israel to be a light to the Gentile nations [you and me] concerning all things spiritual, and that included their Messiah.

Answer for yourself: How do we reconcile the picture of the Christian Messiah and the Jewish Messiah which are opposite in so many different theological positions?

Well there is a way of course but it is slow and tedious let alone expensive as one must equip himself with the necessary materials to engage in such a comprehensive study. Over the years of my Christian Pastorate I continued to read about a Jewish Jesus and contrast that with what I had been taught by my Gentile teachers. Slowly I began to see a different picture than the one presented in the New Testament concerning Jesus. As book after book was researched, as history was examined from hundreds of sources, and as I patiently prayed through these difficult times of reconciling my "Gentile beliefs about the Messiah" as over against the "Jewish beliefs about their Messiah" I came to the very troubling conclusions and it all began with the FACT that my Christian Book [The Christian Old Testament] was a forgery when compared with the Jewish Scriptures. This of course opened a can of worms of unlimited proportions. Since Seminary I was equipped to do the kind of studies that the normal Christian is not and I began to set out diligently to find the truth of the matter because I believed it mattered to G-d, Jesus, and should matter to me, what we believe since our actions or lack of them are related to our "religious beliefs." Along the way I discovered I had learned about a "Gentile Messiah" in the disguise of solar-g-dmen and what I thought was the "Jewish Messiah called Jesus" as pictured in the New Testament had little to do with Judaism. In fact such a "Christian Messiah" never lived because the Jesus of the Bible was a Jew who never departed from his faith nor ever displaced it in order to create a new religion like we have today in his name.

Answer for yourself: Need I remind you that he was a Jew and not a Catholic, Baptist, Methodist, 7th Day Adventist, let alone a Gentile?

Along the way I learned that my Gentile beliefs concerning Israel's Messiah had been contaminated with sun-worship and was aghast to find so. Then the horrible realization struck me; I was an idolator and never knew it! That about killed me and through many profuse tears and prayers I begged G-d for forgiveness for allowing myself to be deceived in this most important part of my life. I realized that if I had loved G-d more than I did earlier in my life then I would have drawn closer to Him and in so doing my errors of religious belief would have been exposed sooner. I am a firm believer that the closer you draw to G-d in "truth and obedience" the light of His revelation expels the darkness in all parts of one's life; whether in conduct or beliefs. Today I live with the regret of lost time when my love for G-d was seen by Him, but not me, as an abomination. I hope to help multitudes reconsider these very important issues in their lives by making available the necessary information whereby they can not only become aware of the truth that has been held back from them by the anti-Semitic Gentile Christian establishments for almost two millennia, but be so challenged to begin such a through study on their own to see for themselves that the things I researched out and share with them are indeed the truths from G-d long kept from them. Having the ability to see both "sides" of the Messianic coin "so to speak" will the the reader be able to make an intelligent decision concerning these very difficult issues.

To begin such a study we must begin at the beginning. That means we must start with the Messianic idea of Israel and what G-d had taught them and what Israel was prepared to both know and recognize in their soon coming King.

THE ANOINTED ONE

In Israel the term "anointed," from which we draw the term "messiah," was related to three different classes of people.

The High Priest

"Remarkably and characteristically, the term Mashiah - of which 'Messiah' is the Anglicized form - had preceded the Messianic concept by many centuries. Originally, in Biblical usage, it simply meant 'anointed', and referred to Aaron and his sons, who were anointed with oil and thereby consecrated to the service of G-d." - Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"And you shall put them upon Aaron your brother, and upon his sons with him, and shall anoint them and ordain them and consecrate them, that they may serve me as priests." - Exodus 28:41

"The legitimacy of the priesthood...was supposed to descend lineally from Aaron through the Tribe of Levi. Thus, throughout the Old Testament, the priesthood is the unique preserve of the Levites. The Levite high priests who attend David and Solomon are referred to as 'Zadok'- though it is not clear whether this is a personal name or an hereditary title." - Baigent, Leigh & Lincoln, The Messianic Legacy

"The High Priest, in particular, was termed 'the Anointed [Mashiah] of God'.

The King

With the establishment of the monarchy, the same term was applied to the king: he was 'the Anointed of the Lord' because he was installed in the high office by receiving the sacrament of anointment." - Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"The adversaries of the LORD shall be broken to pieces; against them he will thunder in heaven. The LORD will judge the ends of the earth; he will give strength to his king, and exalt the power of his anointed." - 1 Samuel 2:10

Solomon is anointed by Zadok, thereby becoming 'the Anointed One', the 'Messiah' - 'ha-mashi'ah' in Hebrew." - Baigent, Leigh & Lincoln, The Messianic Legacy

"Your throne, O G-d, endures for ever and ever. Your royal scepter is a scepter of equity; You love righteousness and hate wickedness. Therefore G-d, your G-d has anointed you [in the Greek of the Septuagint, enchrisen se, has made you Christ] with the oil of gladness above your fellows." - Psalm 45:6-7

The Prophet

"A third type of the divinely elected, the prophet, could also undergo the ceremony of anointing: Elizah, we read, was commanded by G-d to anoint Jehu as king over Israel, and Elisha as prophet in his own place." - Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"And Jehu the son of Nimshi you shall anoint to be king over Israel; and Eli'sha the son of Shaphat of A'bel-meho'lah you shall anoint to be prophet in your place." - 1 Kings 19:16

"Still in early monarchic days the person of 'the Anointed of the Lord' came to be considered sacrosanct: to harm him or even to curse him, was a capital offense." - Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"But David said, 'What have I to do with you, you sons of Zeru'iah, that you should this day be as an adversary to me? Shall any one be put to death in Israel this day? For do I not know that I am this day king over Israel?'" - 2 Samuel 19:22

"A further development of this concept can be seen in the belief that G-d provided special protection to His anointed king. The Psalms contain several references to the idea of divine intervention for 'the Anointed of the Lord', the idealized Davidic king:" - Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"Now I know that the Lord saveth His Anointed [Mashiah], He will answer him from His holy heaven With the mighty acts of His saving right hand." - Psalms 20:7

"While David was king of Israel (tenth century B.C.E.), the belief developed that his House would rule forever, not only over Israel but also over all the nations:" - Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"The G-d who giveth me vengeance, And bringeth down peoples under me.... Therefore I praise Thee, O Lord, among the nations. And will sing unto Thy name, Who increaseth the victories of His king And dealeth graciously with His Anointed, With David and his seed for evermore." - 2 Samuel 22:48-52, Psalms 18:42-52

In the seventh century B.C.E., Judah and its capital were besieged by the Assyrians. Micah prophesied deliverance by someone from Bethlehem, the home village of the house of David, in terms that are resonant with Messianic expectations centuries later:

"Now you are walled about with a wall; siege is laid against us; with a rod they strike upon the cheek the ruler of Israel. But you, O Bethlehem Eph'rathah, who are little to be among the clans [or rulers] of Judah, from you shall come forth for me one who is to be ruler in Israel, whose origin [Hebrew 'goings out' ] is from of old, from ancient days [olam or from days of eternity]. Therefore he shall give them up until the time when she who is in travail has brought forth; then the rest of his brethren shall return to the people of Israel. And he shall stand and feed his flock in the strength of the Lord, in the majesty of the name of the Lord his G-d. And they shall dwell secure, for now he shall be great to the ends of the earth." - Micah 5:1-5

"The word 'olam' is derived from the primitive root alam, meaning to veil from sight, to conceal. An analysis of the passages where olam appears shows clearly that the word does not express 'eternity' or 'everlasting' as it has been frequently translated in the King James Version. Rather, it simply expresses a duration, a time during which a person, thing, or state of a thing exists - literally an age of time which has a definite beginning and conclusion. the duration of an age in scripture is sometimes defined and sometimes undefined." - Dallas E. James, "Putting the Sword to Churchianity"

ZOROASTRIAN PRECEDENTS FOR THE MESSIANIC IDEA

The "Spirit of G-d" and the "Evil One"

"After the Exile of the Jewish people and later through contacts with Jews of the Diaspora in many parts of the Mediterranean world, Zoroastrian concepts influenced Jewish thought. Certain ideas about last things, salvation, and Satan (the Evil One) stem from Zoroastrianism." - Ninian Smart, The Religious Experience of Mankind

"...The Persian Mazda worshippers looked for the birth of a Savior from a virgin mother." - Frederick Thomas Elworthy, The Evil Eye

"We worship the guardian spirit of the holy maid Esetât-Jedhri, who is called the all-conquering, for she will bring him forth who will destroy the malice of the demons and of men." - Sacred book of Zoroaster

"The old Persian faith was an abstract and subtle religion, offering many new ways of looking at divinity and the idea of the holy. Its influence upon the minds of Jewish scribes and rulers, men like Nehemiah and Ezra, was probably greater than surviving evidence can show. There are, however, numerous hints of this influence in the Old Testament. The 'Spirit of G-d', for example, that moves on the face of the waters in the opening of Genesis is a most remarkable idea...Yet in surviving Persian writings the idea of a 'spirit of god' is a common one." - John Romer, Testament

"The Spirit of the Lord G-d is upon me, because the Lord has anointed me; he has sent me to bring good news to the oppressed..." - Isaiah 61:1 (Deutero-Isaiah 5th C. B.C.E.)

"The Babylonian Captivity had exposed the Jews to the Zoroastrian pantheon, with its good gods headed by Ahura Mazda ('G-d of Light') and its bad god headed by Ahura Manah or Ahriman ('G-d of Darkness'). This led to the belief that the prolonged overlordship that outlasted the captivity was the fault of the bad gods, rebel messengers who has refused to obey Yahweh's orders.

"Alternative versions of the seraphs' original disobedience were postulated, the most popular being that they were the sons of the gods who had sired the giants by illegally recreating with mortal women. Such rebels had to have a leader, and since the concept of a divine antagonist, a Jewish Ahriman, had been assimilated before there was any speculation as to the antagonist's identity, he was simply styled the Enemy (ha-satan). The first reference to the Enemy as a male in Jewish mythology was made by Zechariah in 520 B.C.E." - William Harwood, Mythologies Last G-ds: Yahweh and Yeshua

"And the Lord said to Satan, 'The Lord rebuke you, O Satan! The Lord who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you! Is not this a brand plucked from the fire?'" - Zechariah 3:2

Death and Resurrection

"Similarly, some of the optimistic Persian notions of the afterlife seem to have entered into the later Books of the Prophets in the Bible. A rare view of the traditional Israelite afterlife (the afterlife is not often mentioned in older biblical writings) is briefly glimpsed in the tale of Saul's meeting with the dead Prophet Samuel, who is 'called up' by the Witch of Endor (1 Samuel 28:7-21) from a kind of Hades; it is a shadowy survival." - John Romer, Testament

"The king said to her, 'Have no fear; what do you see?' And the woman said to Saul, 'I see a god coming up out of the earth.' He said to her, 'What is his appearance?' And she said, 'An old man is coming up; and he is wrapped in a robe.' And Saul knew that it was Samuel, and he bowed with his face to the ground, and did obeisance." - 1 Samuel 28:13-14

"But in the Book of Isaiah, which was certainly compiled after the Babylonian exile, a full-blown theory of death and resurrection is implicit throughout, a forerunner of one of the major themes of the New Testament." - John Romer, Testament

"Thy dead shall live, My corpses shall arise, Awake and sing Ye dwellers of the dust, For a dew of light is thy dew And the earth shall bring forth the shades." - Isaiah 26:19

"Greek geenna represents Aramaic gehinnam, which in turn represents Hebrew ge-hinnom, an abbreviation of the full title, 'valley of the son of Hinnom'. The name probably is that of the original Jebusite owner of the property. In the Old Testament this is a geographical term which divides ancient Jerusalem (Zion) from the hills to the south and west. It is the modern Wadi er Rababi, which joins the Wadi en Nar (the Kidron) at the southern extremity of the hill of Zion.

"The valley was a point on the boundary between Judah and Benjamin (Joshua 15:8, 18:16). This usage is reflected in Nehemiah 11:30. The valley had an unholy reputation in later Old Testament books because it was the site of Tophet, a cultic shrine where human sacrifice was offered (2 Kings 23:10; 2 Chronicles 28:3, 33:6; Jeremiah 7:31, 19:2 ff, 32:35). It is called simply 'the valley' (Jeremiah 2:23). Because of this cult Jeremiah cursed the place and predicted that it would be a place of death and corruption (7:32, 19:6 ff). The valley is referred to, not by name in Isaiah 66:14, as a place where the dead bodies of the rebels against Yahweh shall lie. Their worm shall not die nor shall their fire be quenched..." - John L. McKenzie in Endtime: The Doomsday Catalogue

"The authors of Enoch (150 B.C.E) [adapted] the physical Gehenna to the mythology of Zarathustra to produce an Essene/Pharisee purgatory, identical with the Christian Hell except for the lack of permanence. Prior to Yeshua, the Essenes had pictured Gehenna as a monstrous torture chamber that sinners needed to endure as the only method of cleansing them of their sins and making them fit for the afterlife of the saints. It was not...the suffering through which a sinner was purified, but rather exposure to the sacred power of Fire. Zarathustra did not quite deify Fire, but he saw it as an aspect of the divinity of Ahura Mazda." - William Harwood, Mythologies Last G-ds: Yahweh and Jesus.

"Their spirits are going to be thrown into a blazing furnace. They are going to be wretched in their immense agony, and into darkness and chains and burning flames...you will have no peace....We have been tortured and destroyed and not hoped to see life from day to day." - 1 Enoch 98:3, 103:7-10

The author of Revelation, over 200 years later, would write of how Hades itself would be consumed by fire: "Then death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. The lake of fire is the second death." - Revelation 20:14

MESSIANIC PROPHECIES FROM THE AGE OF EXILE

Cyrus the Great

"...After the period of exile, other major themes of both Judaism and Christianity also begin to appear in the Bible, not the least import of which is the idea of the Messiah - the 'Anointed One'. Cyrus the Great is the first biblical person to be given this title." - John Romer, Testament

(All books from Deuteronomy to 2 Kings were constructed from various texts, such as the court narrative of King David, by D, the Deuteronomist, most probably a single author living in the age of exile - c. 550-540 B.C.E. Deutero-Isaiah, who wrote about Cyrus, lived c. 530 B.C.E.)

"Thus saith the Lord...that hath said of Cyrus: 'He is My shepherd, and shall perform all My pleasure, even saying of Jerusalem, 'She shall be built', and to the Temple, 'Thy foundation shall be laid'."

"Thus saith the Lord to His Anointed [Messiah] to Cyrus whose right hand I have holden to subdue nations before him....'I will go before thee and make the crooked places straight...' - Isaiah 44:28-45:2

"The Greek historian Herodotus claimed to know many different stories of Cyrus's death, but pointedly, he tells the version in which the king is berated by a queen of the barbaric Scyths. Far away beyond the River Oxus, Cyrus invades the Central Asian steppes, only to be told that he is thoroughly aggressive and 'insatiate of blood'. The Scyths then kill him in the ensuing battle and their queen fills a wine-skin with human blood, she seeks out Cyrus's corpse and stuffs the head of the 'Lord's Anointed' into the wine-skin to take the revenge which this man of war deserves." -Robin Lane Fox, The Unauthorized Version

"Later, biblical scribes redefined the term [Messiah] so that it came to mean, quite specifically, a son of the House of David, a defender of the Children of Israel who will establish a new era on earth and a new kingdom with its capital in Jerusalem." -John Romer, Testament

Victory Over Gog and Magog

"The word of the Lord came to me: 'Son of man, set your face toward Gog, of the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him and say, Thus says the Lord G-d: Behold, I am against you, O Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal; and I will turn you about, and put hooks into your jaws, and I will bring you forth, and all your army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed in full armor, a great company, all of them with buckler and shield, wielding swords; Persia, Cush, and Put are with them, all of them with shield and helmet; Gomer and all his hordes; Beth-togar'mah from the uttermost parts of the north with all his hordes--many peoples are with you'." -Ezekiel 38:1-6

"The shape of the future occupies a prominent place in the prophecies of Ezekiel, who lived in Babylonia....Among his prophecies are two which subsequently became the basic building blocks of the Messianic myth. One is that of the great apocalyptic war of Gog and Magog, and the other his famous vision of the dry bones." -Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"And I saw, and behold, there were upon them sinews, and flesh came up, and skin stretched upon them on the top, but spirit was not in them. And He said to me: Prophecy to the spirit, prophesy Son of Man, and say to the spirit: Thus saith the Lord G-d: From the four winds come, O spirit, and breathe into these slain ones so that they may live! And I prophesied as He commanded me, and the spirit came into them and they live, and they stood upon their feet, an army, very, very great. And he said to me: Son of Man! These bones are all the House of Israel." -Ezekiel 37 7-14

SON OF ADAM?

"In the Hebrew Bible, the phrase 'son of Adam' is used in three different senses.

1. The phrase is employed to refer to the human species as insignificant creatures in the presence of G-d."

"How then can a man be righteous before G-d? How can one born of woman be pure? If even the moon is not bright and the stars are not pure in his eyes, how much less man, who is but a maggot - a son of man, who is only a worm!" - Job 25:4-6

2. "The phrase was also used to identify human beings as next to G-d in the order of creation."

"When I consider your heavens, the work of your fingers, the moon and the stars, which you have set in place, what is man that you are mindful of him, the son of man that you care for him? You made him a little lower than the heavenly beings [or 'than G-d'] and crowned him with glory and honor. You made him ruler over the works of your hands; you put everything under his feet..." - Psalms 8:3-6

3. "The Jewish scriptures portray the human being as the agent to exercise control over every living creature

(Genesis 1:28). This ideal decisively shaped Jewish visions of the end of history." - Robert W. Funk, Roy W. Hoover, and the Jesus Seminar, The Five Gospels

"G-d blessed them and said to them, 'Be fruitful and increase in number; fill the earth and subdue it. Rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of the air and over every living creature that moves on the ground.'" - Genesis 1:28

"Ezekiel claimed, in chapter after chapter (2:1, 3:1, 4:1), that Yahweh habitually addressed him as Ben Adam. This salutation, usually translated 'son of man', is more accurately rendered 'descendant of Adam', or simply 'human'. Because the title ben Adam carried the implication that the person so styled was the second Adam it came to be viewed as a title for the messiah, once the concept of a messiah was invented in post-exilic days. Both the Book of Daniel (7:13) and the Book of Enoch (46) referred to Ben Adam in terms that persons with a messiah-belief were bound to view as messianic." -William Harwood, Mythologies Last G-ds: Yahweh and Jesus

"Ever since Ezekiel, 'Son of Man' has been a designation signifying special nearness to G-d of the person so called."

Ezekiel's "prophecy of Resurrection in contemporary with the destruction of the First Temple of Jerusalem (586 B.C.E.). Ezekiel, however, had no Messianic idea in mind; the purpose of his prophecy was theological-political-psychological: he wanted to implant the belief in a speedy return to their own land into the hearts of the despairing Judean exiles in Babylonia."

"Just as Moses had brought the Children of Israel to the threshold of the Promised Land and then died, so the Messiah leads them to victory over Gog and Magog, culminating in the elimination of Armilus [their Satanic master], and then fades away, disappears from the scene." -Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"As for you, son of man, thus says the Lord G-d: Speak to the birds of every sort and to all beasts of the field, 'Assemble and come, gather from all sides to the sacrificial feast which I am preparing for you, a great sacrificial feast upon the mountains of Israel, and you shall eat flesh and drink blood. You shall eat the flesh of the mighty, and drink the blood of the princes of the earth--of rams, of lambs, and of goats, of bulls, all of them fatlings of Bashan. And you shall eat fat till you are filled, and drink blood till you are drunk, at the sacrificial feast which I am preparing for you. And you shall be filled at my table with horses and riders, with mighty men and all kinds of warriors,' says the Lord G-d." -Ezekiel 39:17-20

"It is G-d who resurrects the dead, who judges the pious and the wicked, who sits with the saintly at the great feast, who pours wine into their cups, who entertains them by dancing before them, who teaches them the new Torah, and who receives the homage of the entire rejuvenated, and sanctified world. Where is the Messiah in all this? We are told nothing of him, and were it not that in the earlier phases of the Messianic myth we were assured that he would, after the ultimate victory, reign in Jerusalem as the Prince of Peace, we would not even suspect that he is present."

"Thus, and in this primarily, the Messiah proves to be essentially a Moses figure, and Moses to be the accurate prefiguration of the Messiah. Both are Redeemers, but neither of them has a part in the great era to whose threshold they lead their people at the price of their lifeblood." -Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"In Christian tradition, where so much in the Old Testament is taken as a symbolic prefiguring of the events of the New, Moses is - inevitably, one might almost say - taken to prefigure Jesus, who was the superior and culminating figure." -David Daiches, Moses - Man in the Wilderness

"For this man was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honor than the house. For every house is builded by some man; but he that built all things is G-d. And Moses verily was faithful in all his house as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after; but Christ as a son over his own house; whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end." -Hebrews 3:3-6

MESSIAH BEN JOSEPH AND MESSIAH BEN DAVID...IS JESUS IN ANY OF THIS?

"About half a century after Ezekiel, there lived in Babylonia the anonymous prophet of consolation and Israel's national restoration, usually referred to a Deutero-Isaiah. This great poet-prophet spoke repeatedly about the 'Servant of the Lord', describing the call, mission, sufferings, death and resurrection of this mysterious individual." -Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"Behold, My Servant whom I uphold, My Elect whom My soul wanteth: I have put My spirit upon him; he shall send out justice to the nations." -Isaiah 42:1

"As to the identification of the 'Servant', there is no scholarly consensus to this day. The debate is divided into 2 camps: those who understand the "Servant" as the corporate nation of Israel and those few who believe in the the Aggadah, the Talmudic legend, and identify the "Servant" with the Messiah, and understands especially the descriptions of his sufferings as referring to Messiah ben Joseph."

"Messiah ben Joseph, also called Messiah ben Ephraim, referring to his ancestor Ephraim, the son of Joseph, is imagined as the first commander of the army of Israel in the Messianic wars. He will achieve many signal victories, but his fate is to die at the hands of Armilus in a great battle in which Israel is defeated by Gog and Magog. His corpse is left unburied in the streets of Jerusalem for forty days, but neither beast nor bird of prey dares to touch it. Then Messiah ben David comes, and his first act is to bring about the resurrection of his tragic forerunner." -Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

After reading these short summary quotes it would seem that my Christian ideas concerning Messiah ben Joseph are completely wrong!

"Wondrously show thy steadfast love, O savior of those who seek refuge from their adversaries at thy right hand. Keep me as the apple of the eye; hide me in the shadow of thy wings, from the wicked who despoil me, my deadly enemies who surround me. They close their hearts to pity; with their mouths they speak arrogantly. They track me down; now they surround me; they set their eyes to cast me to the ground. They are like a lion eager to tear, as a young lion lurking in ambush. Arise, O Lord! confront them, overthrow them! Deliver my life from the wicked by thy sword, from men by thy hand, O Lord, from men whose portion in life is of the world." - Psalm 17:7-14

"The tremendous cruelties of the age [of exile] were rejected in visions of a Second Coming leading to a new Heaven and new Earth. This vision, that had first been seen and recorded by prophets in Babylon, was now celebrated in the Book of Psalms, that wonderful collection of hymns ancient and modern designed for use in the new Temple that Zerubbabel built in Jerusalem [between 520 and 515 B.C.E.]. All illness, all wickedness will be banished from the earth, they tell us; Jehovah's Law will be written not on papyrus not on scrolls of vellum but on men's hearts, so that they will grow in understanding of their G-d. It was a dream of paradise, a paradise prepared for the nation that kept Jehovah's Law." - John Romer, Testament

"The Lord swore to David a sure oath from which he will not turn back: 'One of the sons of your body I will set on your throne. If your sons keep my covenant and my testimonies which I shall teach them, their sons also for ever shall sit upon your throne.' For the Lord has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his habitation: 'This is my resting place for ever; here I will dwell, for I have desired it. I will abundantly bless her provisions; I will satisfy her poor with bread. Her priests I will clothe with salvation, and her saints will shout for joy. There I will make a horn to sprout for David; I have prepared a lamp for my anointed. His enemies I will clothe with shame, but upon himself his crown will shed its luster'." - Psalms 132:11-18

"...The author of 4 Ezra [350 B.C.E.] unmistakably refers to the Messiah...when he puts words in the mouth of G-d to the effect that after four hundred years (counted from when?) My son the Messiah shall die." - Raphael Patai, The Messiah Texts

"And whosoever is delivered from the predicted evil shall see My wonders. For My son, the Messiah, shall be revealed, together with those who are with him, and shall gladden the survivors four hundred years. And it shall be, after those years, that My son, the Messiah, shall die, and all in whom there is human breath. Then shall the world be turned into the primeval silence seven days, as it was at the first beginnings..." -4 Ezra 7:27-30

THE THIRD SIBYLLINE ORACLE

"How beautiful on the mountains are the feet of him who brings the news, announcing peace, bringing good news, announcing salvation, saying to Zion, 'Your G-d reigns as king!'" - Isaiah 52:7

"The Sibylline Oracles comprise various Jewish and Christian poems, written in Greek and purporting to be the (often political and minatory) prophecies of various famous prophetesses of the ancient world."

The Third Sibylline Oracle, "written around the middle of the 2nd century BC in Egypt...tells how G-d sends a savior king who puts an end to all war and grants deliverance to the Jews. The reference is to some Hellenistic Egyptian ruler, either Ptolemy VI Philometor or his successor. The concluding section of the oracle prophesies a kingdom that G-d will raise up. The hopes of Isaiah are echoed as the Jerusalem temple becomes the goal of pilgrimage for all the nations, the conditions of paradise return, and universal peace prevails....All this is done by G-d, who is referred to throughout the oracle as 'the great King'. Additions were made to the Third Oracle in the 1st century BC. They prophesy the coming of a 'holy prince' who will rule over a universal kingdom, inaugurated by the fiery judgment of 'the great king, immortal G-d.' Again all this takes place on Earth." - John P. Meier, A Marginal Jew - Rethinking the Historical Jesus, Vol. 2.

"The Egyptian Sibylline tradition is remarkable for its lack of the otherworldly dimension so characteristic of the apocalyptic literature. There is no talk of angels and no expectation of resurrection." - John J. Collins, "The Kingdom of G-d in the Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha"

CONCLUSION

If you are somewhat acquainted with the history of Israel you are familiar with the captivity of Israel by Babylon. You might think that assimilation of "pagan-ideas" into Jewish beliefs only began with the Babylon captivity but I can assure you that is not true. Ever since Israel became a nation following the Egyptian experience and the Exodus we find the assimilation of neighboring Gentile country's religious beliefs in with the Jew's religious beliefs. It might be best said that the Jewish people were not against "borrowing religious beliefs" from those in which they had contact; either through travel, trade, war, etc. I realize that this is not comforting especially in light of the traditional Christian teaching that Israel was G-d's chosen people but the facts of archeology, Biblical history, linguistics, textual analysis, etc., all tell the same story. What is important for our study is the fact that the multitude of various religious concept concerning "the" Jewish Messiah were not an original idea with them. Many of these "beliefs" concerning the Messiah were picked up along the history of the nation by the various methods described above.

So as I have shown you the concepts of the Messiah are drawn from many ancient beliefs...some of which were pagan concepts.

Answer for yourself: Does this fact destroy the whole of the "Messianic concept" of Israel? No!

This does not discount the reality of the coming redeemer promised by Samuel to David. But we need to be aware that the picture of the Messiah we have inherited from our churches and synagogues are build upon many different manifestations of "redeemer" type figures. What should concern both the Jew and the Christian is the ability to "filter out" those aspects of solar-myths which have become attached to the Jewish concept of the Messianic Redeemer over time. To this effort Bet Emet Ministries has devoted itself and continues to present such information to our valued readership. More in other articles in this series. Shalom.

WHAT WAS TO BE THE ROLE OF THE MESSIAH?

There were as you say many DIFFERENT beliefs regarding the Messiah among various groups of Jews in the BCE period.

To me it seems highly probable that the first-century Jewish Nazarenes in the time of Yeshua had a rather different understanding of "Messiah" from that of pagan converts later in the century. These pagan converts added a new ingredient, namely the notion of a divine Son of a divine Father and earthly mother, who can bring salvation -- a concept that looks far more akin to the divine son of a union between a god and a woman, prominent in so many first century Hellenistic religions of the pagan cultures from which the early Gentile converts came, than to the JEWISH understanding of Messiah son of DAVID as the anointed Crown Prince eligible to ascend the throne of Judah.

We do have two HEB/OT texts that point to the concept or symbol of an eschatological Messiah. One is Daniel 9:25-26, which appears to refer to a Jewish-style Messiah, the "anointed" one of David's line, who will rebuild Jerusalem (and presumably lay claim to the throne?). That idea seems par for the course, especially in light of the earlier text in Deutero-Isaiah (ch. 45:1) where the prophet identifies as "G-d's anointed" Cyrus (!), who, as Isaiah's listeners certainly knew, was not a biological son of David at all. This very fact points strongly to what has consistently been the primary Jewish view of the messianic role, i.e., that the Messiah will get the Jews and their land back together --either (as Cyrus in fact did) by sending Jewish exiles back to their land, or (as Yeshua's followers probably expected of him) by restoring Jewish hegemony over the land by kicking out the Roman rulers and restoring the Davidic throne.

Certainly (as someone pointed out earlier) that's what the Romans seem to have thought the Nazarenes were claiming about Yeshua - since this seems to be why they crucified him. As for a Messiah who can bring personal salvation and help people into the afterlife, I don't see where this was ever a Jewish view of the Messiah's task -- he was to be a Redeemer of the people and the land, but only G-d Himself had the power of individual salvation.

WHAT'S THE PRACTICAL RELEVANCE OF THESE DISTINCTIONS?

It's surely significant that this separation between a redeeming Messiah and a saving G-d was perceived as so important by those who created the early Jewish liturgy, that they put it right at the beginning of the central Amidah prayer (recited three times daily by traditionally observant Jews). No doubt whoever composed it wanted to underscore at the outset the difference between a purely human Redeemer and a Divine Saviour, which Jews perceived as two entirely distinct concepts that had somehow become conflicted in Christianity. Year after year, I'm amazed at how few (Jewish, Christian, or other) have any awareness of these rather crucial differences between Jewish and Christian understandings of Messiah.

We need to be able to differentiate between an apocalyptic, eschatological messiah and the more mundane "anointed leader," who could be a king or a high priest.

WHAT ARE THE REQUIREMENTS FOR BEING “THE” MESSIAH?

- The revelation of his identity must be announced by Eliyahu haNavi (Mal. 3:1, 23-24).
- He must be a human being, born in the natural manner of natural parents (Isaiah 11:1).
- He must be a Jew (Num. 24:17, Deut. 17:15).
- He must be a member of the tribe of Judah (Gen. 49:10).
- He must be a proven direct descendant (natural son of natural son of natural son) of King David (II Sam. 7:12-16, Is. 11:10, Jer. 33:17, Ps. 89:29-38, I Chron. 17:11).
- He must be a descendant of Solomon and no other son of David (I Chron. 22:10, II Chron. 7:18).
- The Jewish people must be gathered from exile to their Holy Land (Is. 11:12, 27:12-13).
- The third Temple must be rebuilt, as will Jerusalem (Michah 4:1).
- There must be global peace (Is. 2:4, 11:5-9, Michah 4:3-4).
- He must prevail upon all his fellow Jews to :Torah observance with a complete heart and unfair commitment (Is. 10:20-22). Assumed as secondary evidence, or indications, under both this and the next criteria are linguistic proficiency, charisma, use of mass media, being a Torah-true Jew himself, and thus guiding his fellow Jews in G-d's ways.
- He must influence the entire world -- every individual of every nation-- to abandon and be ashamed of their former idolatry/paganism/atheism, and acknowledge and serve only the One True G-d of Israel (Is. 11:9-10, 40:5, Zeph. 3:9).
- He must execute justice (Is. 11:3-6).
- World leaders will honor him and send him gifts, for his right to rule Israel will be undisputed the world over (Is. 11:10, 42:1-4, 49:7-8, 23).

Most of the above are summed up nicely in Ezekiel 37:24-28. Note as well that nobody fulfilling even any 12 of the 13 above cannot have been or be the real Moshiach. Many groups of people, even learned Jews, have been fooled through history, not only by Christianity's founder and others (Bar Chochba, Shabtai Tzvi, bar Kochva, etc.). May the "real Messiah" be revealed soon, speedily, and in our days. An honest assessment of the "true" Messianic prophecies in the Jewish Bible will reveal that Yeshua did not fulfill all of the above. This allows for the coming of Messiah for these to be accomplished. If it is a resurrected Yeshua or a "returning" Yeshua, so be it. But with the non-fulfillment of the "true" Messianic Prophecies then the identity of "the" Messiah remains a mystery. Only time will tell who the "real" Messiah is to be and if he has been here before. Arguing "emotional" sentiments does very little good, if not harm. Let the facts of the Jewish Scriptures speak for themselves and let this criteria, and this criteria alone, determine whom the Jewish Messiah is to be . The Spirit and the Bride say come.

WHAT KIND OF A MESSIAH DOES THE JEWISH BIBLE TEACH US TO LOOK FOR?

In the Hebrew Bible, G-d declared to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob that their descendants would inherit a land of their own. In later biblical history, Scripture foretells of a future redemption which will be brought about through an anointed agent of the Lord. Such a kingly figure, the early prophets maintained, would be a descendant of David and that his throne would be secure for all time. Eventually there arose the view that the house of David would rule over both the Northern and Southern Kingdoms as well as neighboring peoples. Later the eighth-century prophets such as Amos and Hosea predicted the destruction of the nation because of its iniquity, yet in accordance with the divine promise they prophesied that there would be an ingathering of the exiles and the dominance of the Israelites over surrounding nations. Such suffering was to serve as a means of moral reform: Israel is to endure devastation before such redemption can take place. Then the Lord will have compassion upon his chosen people and return them to their former glory. This message of destruction and restoration continued in the ministries of later pre-exilic prophets: for such figures as Isaiah, Micah, Zephaniah and Jeremiah G-d would in time deliver the Israelites - they would not be cut off forever. A new redemption, they proclaimed, would bring about a new spiritual life. In the post-exilic period, the message of hope and consolation was a predominant theme: again the prophets reassured the nation that G-d would be reunited with his people and Zion would undergo future glory. The theme of a future redemption was echoed in the Psalms: there, too, the promise of a future king became a predominant theme. Finally, the Book of Daniel predicts the coming of a divinely appointed deliverer-the Son of Man is to be given dominion over all the earth.

FROM THE PATRIARCHS TO PRE-EXILIC PROPHECY

The term 'Messiah' is an adaptation of the Hebrew HaMashiah ('the Anointed'); in time it came to refer to the redeemer at the End of Days. Although there are no explicit references to such a figure in the Torah, the notion of the redemption of the Jewish nation is alluded to in the promises made to the patriarchs. Thus, in the Book of Genesis, Abraham is told that he will be the father of a multitude:

And I will make of you a great nation, and I will bless you, and make your name great, so that you will be a blessing. I will bless those who bless you, and him who curses you I will curse; and by you all the families of the earth shall bless themselves. (Genesis 12:2-3)

Again, in Genesis 26:3-4 Abraham's son Isaac is told that his descendants will be as numerous as the stars and that through them all nations will be blessed:

I will give all these lands, and I will fulfill the oath which I swore to Abraham your father. I will multiply your descendants as the stars of heaven, and will give to your descendants all these lands; and by your descendants all the nations of the earth shall bless themselves.

Finally, Isaac's son Jacob is reassured in a dream that his offspring will be as the dust of the earth, the source of G-d's blessing to all peoples:

And he (Jacob) dreamed that there was a ladder set up on the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven; and behold, the angels of G-d were ascending and descending on it! And behold, the Lord stood above it and said, 'I am the Lord, the G-d of Abraham your father and the G-d of Isaac; the land on which you lie I will give to you and to your descendants; and your descendants shall be like the dust of the earth, and you shall spread abroad to the west and to the east and to the north and to the south; and by you and your descendants shall all the families of the earth bless themselves.' (Genesis 28:12-14)

Although these verses do not express a clear conception of the Messiah, they form the background to the evolution of the doctrine of the deliverance of the nation.

In the Book of Samuel the notion of redemption through a divinely appointed agent was explicitly expressed: here Scripture asserts that the Lord had chosen David and his descendants to reign over Israel to the end of time. Thus 2 Samuel 23 proclaims:

Now these are the last words of David: The oracle of David, the son of Jesse, ... the anointed of the G-d of Jacob ... The G-d of Israel has spoken, the Rock of Israel has said to me: When one rules justly over men, ruling in the fear of G-d .... Yea, does not my house stand so with G-d? For he has made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things and secure. (2 Samuel 23:1, 3, 5)

In this passage David is depicted as the anointed in the sense that he was consecrated for a divine purpose.

Of similar significance are the verses in 2 Samuel and 1 Chronicles where Nathan the prophet assured the king that his throne would be established for all time and that his throne would be secure forever. Speaking to David about the construction of the Temple, he declared:

Thus says the Lord of hosts, I took you from the pasture, from following the sheep, that you should be prince over my people Israel; and I have been with you wherever you went, and have cut off all your enemies from before you; and I will make for you a great name, like the name of the great ones of the earth. And I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in their own place ...(2 Samuel 7:8-10)

This early biblical doctrine assumed that David's position would endure through his lifetime and would be inherited by a series of successors who would carry out G-d's providential plan. With the fall of the Davidic empire after the death of King Solomon, there arose the view that the house of David would eventually rule over the two divided kingdoms as well as neighboring peoples. In the words of the eighth-century prophet Amos:

'In that day I will raise up the booth of David that is fallen and repair its breaches, and raise up its ruins, and rebuild it as in the days of old; that they possess the remnant of Edom and all the nations who are called by my name,' says the Lord who does this. (Amos 9:11-12)

Yet despite such a hopeful vision of Israel's future, the pre-exilic prophets were convinced that the nation would be punished for its iniquity. Warning the people of impending disaster, Amos spoke of the Day of the Lord when G-d would unleash his fury against those who had rebelled against Him. This would not be a time of deliverance, but of destruction:

'Woe to you who desire the day of the Lord!', he declared. 'Why would you have the day of the Lord? It is darkness, and not light' (Amos 5:18).

Here the prophet portrayed such a day in the most negative terms:

Therefore thus says the Lord, the G-d of hosts, the Lord: 'In all the squares there shall be wailing; and in all the streets they shall say, "Alas! alas!" They shall call the farmers to mourning and to wailing those who are skilled in lamentation, and in all vineyards there shall be wailing; for I will pass through the midst of you'. (Amos 5:16-17)

For Amos the Day of the Lord will be bitter - feasts will be turned into mourning and songs to lamentation (Amos 8:10). Those who are secure in Samaria will go into captivity, and Israel will be driven into exile (Amos 6:7; 7:17).

For Amos, then, the Day of the Lord is the necessary result of sin: this fearful prediction serves as the backdrop to deliverance. Before Israel can be redeemed, the nation is to suffer exile, destruction and slaughter. Only after such terrible events will the house of David be restored to its former glory and the kings of the house of David rule over the ten tribes. At the time of salvation there will be an ingathering of the exiles and Israel will rule over all foreign powers.

Like Amos, Hosea believed that G-d would punish his people for their sinfulness. Predicting the end of the Northern Kingdom, he prophesied that the people will be exiled to Assyria and Egypt:

They shall not remain in the land of the Lord; but Ephraim shall return to Egypt, and they shall eat unclean food in Assyria. (Hosea 9:3)

Such suffering, however, is to serve as the means to moral reform. Israel is to endure the pangs of childbirth before redemption can come (Hosea 13:13). Such chastisement is to bring about repentance and dedication to the covenant. Then the Lord will have mercy on his chosen people and exalt them among the nations:

Hosea 6:1-3 1 Come, and let us return unto the LORD: for he hath torn, and he will heal us; he hath smitten, and he will bind us up. 2 After two days will he revive us: in the third day he will raise us up, and we shall live in his sight. 3 Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the LORD: his going forth is prepared as the morning; and he shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth. (KJV)

There is thus a direct link between destruction and redemption. According to Hosea, although the people shall be deprived of their king this situation will change once the Israelites mend their ways and return to the Lord:

For the children of Israel shall dwell many days without king or prince, without sacrifice or pillar, without ephod or teraphim. Afterward the children of Israel shall return and seek the Lord their G-d, and David their king; and they shall come in fear to the Lord and to his goodness in the latter days. (Hosea 3:4-5)

Echoing Amos, Hosea predicted that the Day of the Lord will be great and abundant: it will result in earthly prosperity and bliss:

I will be as the dew to Israel; he shall blossom as the lily, he shall strike root as the poplar; his shoots shall spread out; his beauty shall be like the olive, and his fragrance like Lebanon. They shall return and dwell beneath my shadow, they shall flourish as a garden. (Hosea 14:5-7)

The captives and the exiles shall return to their own land, and in another passage Hosea prophesied that the order of nature will be fundamentally altered:

'And I will make for you a covenant on that day with the beasts of the field, the birds of the air, and the creeping things of the ground; and I will abolish the bow, the sword, and war from the land; and I will make you lie down in safety, (Hosea 2:18).

Here in embryonic form is the concept of perfect peace in the end of days. Drawing faith from the closing chapters in the history of Northern Israel, both Amos and Hosea predicted a future age in which the glories of the Lord would be manifest in the land.

FROM ISAIAH TO THE FALL OF THE SOUTHERN KINGDOM

The Book of Isaiah begins by explaining that what follows is an account of the prophecies of Isaiah concerning Judah and Jerusalem. In the first prophetic oracle the prophet presents G-d as disappointed with his people because of their iniquity. Nonetheless he predicted the eventual triumph of G-d's kingdom on earth:

It shall come to pass in the latter days that the mountain of the house of the Lord shall be established as the highest of the mountains, and shall be raised above the hills; and all the nations shall flow to it, and many peoples shall come, and say: 'Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the G-d of Jacob; that he may teach us his ways and that we may walk in his paths.' For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. He shall judge between the nations, and shall decide for many peoples; and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. (Isaiah 2:2-4)

This future vision, however, is overshadowed by calamity. In chapter 2 Isaiah levelled criticism against idolatry, foretelling that such rebellion against G-d will bring about the destruction of the Temple. After discussing the place of Assyria in G-d's providential plan of devastation, Isaiah returned to the promise of salvation. A child will be born, he stated, who will be the Prince of Peace yet this promise is placed into the context of G-d's dissatisfaction with his people. According to the prophet, G-d will use Assyria as an instrument of punishment. Only a faithful remnant will remain, from which a redeemer will issue forth to bring about a new epoch in the nation's history:

There shall come forth a shoot from the stump of Jesse, and a branch shall grow out of his roots. And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him ... He shall not judge by what his eyes see, or decide by what his ears hear; but with righteousness he shall judge the poor, and decide with equity for the meek of the earth; ... The wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the lion and the fatling together. (Isaiah 11:1-2, 3-4, 6)

In another passage, the prophet presented a song of praise which is to be sung on the day of Israel's redemption:

In that day this song will be sung in the land of Judah: 'We have a strong city; he sets up salvation as walls and bulwarks. Open the gates, that the righteous nation which keeps faith may enter in. Thou doth keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee Trust in the Lord for ever, for the Lord G-d is an everlasting rock.' (Isaiah 26:1-4)

A contemporary of Isaiah, the prophet Micah prophesied in the Southern Kingdom from 750 to 686 B.C.E. Condemning both Samaria and Judah for their wickedness, he declared that G-d will bring about judgment of the people: Samaria will be reunited and the places of idolatry destroyed. Yet despite this dire prediction, the prophet wished to reassure the nation that it would not be utterly cut off. G-d, he stated, has a purpose for them in the future:

I will surely gather all of you, O Jacob, I will gather the remnant of Israel; I will set them together like sheep in a fold, like a flock in its pasture, a noisy multitude of men. (Micah 2:12)

Confident in the restoration of the people, he looked forward to an age of prosperity and fulfillment. Like Isaiah he predicted a time of messianic redemption. All nations, he declared, will go to the mountain of the Lord and dwell together in peace; in those days swords will be turned into ploughshares and each man will sit under his vine and fig tree:

For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. He shall judge between many peoples, and shall decide for strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more; but they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree, and none shall make them afraid. (Micah 4:2-4)

The prophet Zephaniah was active in Judah during the reign of Josiah in about 625 B.C.E. Like the prophetic figures who preceded him, he warned against the nation's unfaithfulness: in his view, impending destruction would be the result of sinfulness. The great Day of the Lord is at hand, the prophet announced - it will be a time not of fulfillment but of calamity:

a day of distress and anguish, a day of ruin and devastation, a day of darkness and gloom, a day of clouds and thick darkness, a day of trumpet blast and battle cry against the fortified cities and against the lofty battlements. (Zephaniah 1:15-16)

Nothing will be able to prevent this outpouring of G-d's wrath; nonetheless, such devastation will not totally overwhelm the people. In the final part of his book, Zephaniah called on the Israelites to wait for G-d's vindication: he will gather the nations and pour out the heat of his anger. But at that time he will change the speech of all nations so that they will call on the name of the Lord and serve him with one accord. Knowing that their chastening is over, the people can exult. Certain of G-d's loving kindness, the nation can look forward to restoration and renewal.

'Sing aloud, O daughter of Zion,' he declared. 'Shout, O Israel! Rejoice and exult with all your heart, O daughter of Jerusalem' (Zephaniah 3:14). Confident of the future, the prophet declared in G-d's name:

'Behold, at the time I will deal with all your oppressors. And I will save the lame and gather the outcast, and I will change their shame into praise and renown in all the earth. At that time I will bring you home, at the time when I gather you together; yea, I will make you renowned and praised among all the peoples of the earth, when I restore your fortunes before your eyes,' says the Lord. (Zephaniah 3:19-20)

In 626 B.C.E. Jeremiah was commissioned as a prophet during the reign of Josiah - his ministry continued until the destruction of Judah. Jeremiah's earliest prophecies date from the time of Josiah: Judah, he stated, had forsaken G-d and in consequence will be punished. What is now required is repentance: if the inhabitants refuse, G-d will send forth an invader to subdue the country:

Flee for safety, O people of Benjamin, from the midst of Jerusalem! Blow the trumpet in Tekoa and raise a signal on Beth-hac-cherem; for evil looms out of the north. (Jeremiah 6:1)

Although persuaded that the country was doomed, Jeremiah was certain that the Lord will not completely destroy his people: a remnant will return with a new king at its head:

Behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will raise up for David a righteous Branch, and he shall reign as king and deal wisely, and shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. In his days Judah will be saved, and Israel will dwell securely. (Jeremiah 23:5-6)

In his view, this new redemption will bring a new spiritual life for the Israelites. The Lord will create a new heart for his people and pour out a new spirit upon them:

Behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah, not like the covenant which I made with their fathers when I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, my covenant which they broke, though I was their husband, says the Lord. But this is the covenant which I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord: I will put my law within them, and I will write it upon their hearts; and I will be their G-d, and they shall be my people. (Jeremiah 31:31-33)

For Jeremiah, in this blissful time a noble king filled with fear of the Lord will rule over the people:

Behold, the days are coming, says the Lord, when I will fulfill the promise I made to the house of Israel and the house of Judah. In those days and at that time I will cause a righteous Branch to spring forth for David; and he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. In those days Judah will be saved and Jerusalem will dwell securely. And this is the name by which it will be called: 'The Lord is our righteousness.' (Jeremiah 33:14-16)

POST-EXILIC PROPHECY

Dwelling in Babylon, the prophet Ezekiel began his ministry seven years before the conquest of Jerusalem. Like the earlier prophets, he castigated the Jewish people for their iniquity - because they had turned away from G-d further punishment will be inflicted upon them. Yet, despite the departure of G-d's glory from the Temple, Ezekiel reassured the nation that it will not be abandoned:

'Thus says the Lord G-d: I will gather you from the peoples, and assemble you out of the countries where you have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel' (Ezekiel 11:17).

In this spirit the prophet offered words of comfort and hope after the fall of Judah. In his view, G-d takes no pleasure in the death of sinners; what he requires instead is a contrite heart. Using the image of a shepherd and his flock, Ezekiel reassuringly declared that G-d will gather his people from exile and return them to the Promised Land:

For thus says the Lord G-d: Behold, I, I myself will search for my sheep, and will seek them out. As a shepherd seeks out his flock when some of his sheep have been scattered abroad, so will I seek out my sheep; and I will rescue them from all places where they have been scattered on a day of clouds and thick darkness. (Ezekiel 34: 11-12).

This prophecy is followed by a further vision of restoration - the Lord promises that cities will be reinhabited and their ruins rebuilt. Such national restoration, the prophet continued, will be accompanied by personal dedication to the law. This reassurance was reinforced by Ezekiel's vision of dry bones: although the nation had been devastated, it will be renewed in a further deliverance:

As I prophesied, there was a noise, and behold, a rattling; and the bones came together, bone to its bone. And as I looked, there were sinews on them, and flesh had come upon them, and skin had covered them ... Then he said to me, 'Son of man, these bones are the whole house of Israel. Behold, they say, "Our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost; we are clean cut off." Therefore prophesy, and say to them, Thus says the Lord Cod: Behold, I will open your graves, and raise you from your graves, O my people; and I will bring you home into the land of Israel . . . And I will put my Spirit within you, and you shall live, and I will place you in your own land ...' (Ezekiel 37:7-8,11, 14)

This vision is followed by a description of a future king who will rule over his people. Under his dominion Jerusalem will benefit from the promises of the covenant:

My servant David shall be king over them; and they shall all have one shepherd. They shall follow my ordinances and be careful to observe my statutes. They shall dwell in the land where your fathers dwelt that I gave to my servant Jacob; they and their children and their children's children shall dwell there for ever; and David my servant shall be their prince for ever. (Ezekiel 37:24-25)

Like Ezekiel, Second Isaiah was anxious to offer words of consolation to those who had experienced the destruction of Judah. In place of oracles of denunciation, the prophet offered the promise of hope and restoration. According to Second Isaiah, the Lord will return in triumph to Jerusalem as a shepherd leading his flock:

'He will feed his flock like a shepherd, he will gather the lambs in his arms, he will carry them in his bosom, and gently lead those that are with young' (Isaiah 40: 11).

All the world will witness this act of deliverance and declare that the G-d of Israel is Lord.

In chapter 49 the prophet depicted the servant of the Lord through whom salvation will be brought to the ends of the earth - he (singular pronoun referring to the whole of the nation) will be mocked and despised. This theme is further developed in chapter 53:

He (singular pronoun referring to the nation) was despised and rejected by men; a man (singular pronoun again referring to the nation) of sorrows, and acquainted with grief, and as one from whom men hide their faces he was despised, and we (Gentile kings are speaking) esteemed him not. Surely he has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; yet we esteemed him stricken, smitten by G-d, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; upon him was the chastisement that made us whole, and with his stripes we are healed. (Isaiah 53:3-5)

Second Isaiah concluded with a vision of the future glory of Zion: G-d will be reunited with his people, and all will be fulfilled.

Echoing the predictions about the restoration of Zion in Second Isaiah, Third Isaiah emphasized the role of the Jewish people in G-d's providential plan. Through Israel's redemption all nations will be blessed, and the Temple will become a focus of worship for all peoples. Chapter 60 continues with a description of the glory of Zion. Jerusalem will be honored throughout the world because of G-d's greatness. This theme is developed in the next chapter which speaks of a figure on whom the Spirit of G-d will rest; he will liberate all captives, bring tidings to the afflicted, and rebuild Zion:

The Spirit of the Lord G-d is upon me, because the Lord has anointed me to bring good tidings to the afflicted; he has sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to those who are bound; ... They shall build up the ancient ruins, they shall raise up the former devastations; they shall repair the ruined cities, the devastations of many generations. (Isaiah 61:1, 4)

At this time Jerusalem will be acknowledged as the place where the Lord's redeemed dwell. Although G-d will judge those who have been unfaithful, the promise of restoration is offered to all who are loyal to him. Here Third Isaiah spoke of a new heaven and a new earth that will be created at the end of days:

'For behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former things shall not be remembered or come into mind. But be glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create; for behold, I create Jerusalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy . . . The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, the lion shall eat straw like the ox; and dust shall be the serpent's food. They shall not hurt or destroy in all my holy mountain.' (Isaiah 65: 17-18,25)

The prophet Haggai, together with Zerubbabel, engaged in the rebuilding of the Temple. In a series of discourses he described the glories of the rebuilt Temple. G-d, he declared, is with his people. No longer is he determined that they should be punished because of their iniquities as he was when he used the Assyrians and Babylonians to accomplish his purposes. G-d, he stated, will be victorious over Israel's enemies. In this context, he emphasized that the Lord has chosen Zerubbabel as his servant- he is to be G-d's signet ring:

The word of the Lord came a second time to Haggai on the twenty-fourth day of the month, 'Speak to Zerubbabel, governor of Judah, saying, I am about to shake the heavens and the earth, and to overthrow the throne of kingdoms; I am about to destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the nations, and overthrow the chariots and their riders; and the horses and their riders shall go down, every one by the sword of his fellow. On that day, says the Lord of hosts, I will take you, O Zerubbabel my servant, the son of She-alti-el, says the Lord, and make you like a signet ring; for I have chosen you, says the Lord of hosts.' (Haggai 2:20-23)

Zechariah, a contemporary of Haggai, also focused on the importance of rebuilding the Temple. Although the Lord had punished Judah by sending its inhabitants into exile for seventy years, the nation has suffered sufficiently. Now G-d's mercies will be made known to his chosen people - the land will prosper and G-d's dwelling will be established in Jerusalem. Prophesying about such a glorious future, Zechariah foretold that a king will come who will reign over the people. In a vision of hope, the prophet described this messianic figure who will be a descendant of David. He shall enter the city in triumph riding upon an ass:

'Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Shout aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem! Lo, your king comes to you;

triumphant and victorious is he, humble and riding on an ass, on a colt the foal of an ass' (Zechariah 9:9).

According to Zechariah, G-d will redeem his people - he will strengthen them and bring them back to Zion; the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be as though they had never been rejected:

I will signal for them and gather them in, for I have redeemed them, and they shall be as many as of old. Though I scattered them among the nations, yet in far countries they shall remember me, and with their children they shall live and return. (Zechariah 10:8-9)

Like Haggai and Zechariah, the prophet Malachi was a post-exilic prophet who was active after the exiles returned from Babylonia. In his view, Israel's sinfulness caused the Lord great distress. In order to remedy such transgression, G-d resolved to send his messenger to prepare the way for the Lord's entry into his Temple:

'Behold I send my messenger to prepare the way before me, and the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple; the messenger of the covenant in whom you delight; behold he is coming, says the Lord of hosts' (Malachi 3:1).

However, because of their iniquity the people will not be able to deal with such a message - the coming of the Lord will thus not bring about Israel's redemption. Rather, it will be like a refiner's fire which will purify the nation.

The prophet insists that the promise of G-d's forgiveness and restoration will be fulfilled. Even though Israel has been iniquitous, G-d will return to his people if they seek him. In a final section of the book, Malachi described the Day of the Lord: it will be a time of destruction for the wicked and reward for those who fear his name. In conclusion Malachi announced that G-d will send the prophet Elijah before the Day of the Lord so that the nation will be reconciled:

Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes. And he will turn the hearts of the fathers to their children and the hearts of children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the land with a curse. (Malachi 4:5-6)

THE PSALMS AND DANIEL

In addition to predictions about a future redemption of Israel found in the prophetic writings, the Book of Psalms contains numerous references to divine deliverance. The first of the messianic psalms begins with tumult. The world is in agitation - kings and princes have rebelled against G-d and his anointed. Yet, the Lord will prevail:

He who sits in the heavens laughs; the Lord has them in derision. Then he will speak to them in his wrath, and terrify them in his fury, saying, 'I have set my king on Zion, my holy hill.' I will tell of the decree of the Lord: He said to me, 'You are my son, today I have begotten you. Ask of me, and I will make the nations your heritage, and the ends of the earth your possession.' (Psalm 2:4-5)

The allusion to the enthronement of the king is echoed in Psalm 110; here there is the same promise of victory over the enemies of the Lord:

The Lord says to my lord: 'Sit at my right hand, till I make your enemies your footstool.' The Lord sends forth from Zion your mighty sceptre. Rule in the midst of your foes! (Psalm 110:1-2)

The subsequent verses promise defeat of Israel's enemies:

He will execute judgment among the nations, filling them with corpses; he will shatter chiefs over the wide earth. (Psalm 110:6)

Other Psalms, traditionally attributed to King Solomon, present a different picture of this future king: he is the righteous ruler and the guarantee of the nation's prosperity:

Give the king thy justice, O G-d, and thy righteousness to the royal son! May he judge thy people with righteousness, and thy poor with justice! Let the mountains bear prosperity for the people, and the hills, in righteousness! May he defend the cause of the poor of the people, give deliverance to the needy, and crush the oppressor! (Psalm 72:1-4)

For the Psalmist there is a fundamental link between the righteousness of the king and the fruitfulness of the land. Repeatedly the moral character of his rule is expressed:

For he delivers the needy when he calls, the poor and him who has no helper. He has pity on the weak and the needy, and saves the lives of the needy. From oppression and violence he redeems their life; and precious is their blood in his sight. (Psalm 72:11-14)

Continuing the theme of kingly rule, Psalm 21 states that the king is G-d's beloved whom he has given long life, victory, glory and majesty:

Thou has given him his heart's desire, and has not withheld the request of his lips. For thou doth meet him with goodly blessings; thou doth set a crown of fine gold upon his head. He asked life of thee; thou gavest it to him, length of days for ever and ever. His glory is great through thy help; splendor and majesty thou doth bestow upon him. Yea, thou doth make him most blessed for ever; thou doth make him glad with the joy of thy presence. (Psalm 21:2-6)

Connected with this notion of kingly rule, Psalm 132 contains G-d's promise to David that a scion of his dynasty will always reign in Israel:

The Lord swore to David a sure oath from which he will not turn back: 'One of the sons of your body I will set on your throne. If your sons keep my covenant and my testimonies which I shall teach them, their sons also for ever shall sit upon your throne.' (Psalm 132:11-12)

In summary then the Book of Psalms depicts the king as the Anointed of the Lord; he is placed by the Lord on his throne, proclaimed as his son, and appointed to maintain righteousness and justice throughout the land. Through his actions he conveys divine blessing to his people, fertility to the soil, and victory over foreign powers. Ruling over the entire world, his throne is established for all time.

Turning from the Psalms to the Book of Daniel, a different picture is given of such a divinely anointed deliverer. According to tradition, Daniel lived in Babylonia in the sixth century B.C.E. during the final days of the Babylonian empire; most scholars, however, contend that the book was written in the second century B.C.E. Chapters 7 to 12 consist of a series of dreams foretelling future events. The first was a vision of beasts - a lion, a bear, a leopard and another creature terrifying in appearance. Each of these beasts symbolizes an empire: the lion corresponds to Babylonia; the bear the Medo-Persian empire; the leopard that of Alexander the Great; the fourth Rome. The theme is that Babylonia will be succeeded by these other empires until G-d's everlasting reign will be established. Here Daniel referred to one like the Son of Man who will be given dominion over all the earth:

I saw in the night visions, and behold, with the clouds of heaven there came one like a son of man, and he came to the Ancient of Days and was presented before him. And to him was given dominion and glory and kingdom, that all peoples, nations, and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom one that shall not be destroyed. (Daniel 7:13-14)

In the next vision a ram representing the Medo-Persian kings is succeeded by a goat-this denotes the king of the empire established by Alexander the Great. According to some scholars Daniel 8:23-25 refers to the coming of the Syrian King Antiochus IV, an enemy of the Jews:

'And at the latter end of their rule, when the transgressors have reached their full measure, a king of bold countenance, one who understands riddles, shall arise. His power shall be great, and he shall cause fearful destruction, and shall succeed in what he does, and destroy mighty men and the people of the saints.'

These visions are followed by Daniel's prayer for deliverance despite the Israelites' sinfulness. Here Daniel appealed to G-d's mercy to deliver his people from their plight. In a response, Daniel was assured concerning the future of Jerusalem and the coming of the Anointed One:

Seventy weeks of years are decreed concerning your people and your holy city, to finish the transgression, to put an end to sin, and to atone for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal both vision and prophet, and to anoint a most holy place. Know therefore and understand that from the going forth of the word to restore and build Jerusalem to the coming of an anointed one, a prince, there shall be seven weeks. (Daniel 9:24-25)

This supplication is followed in chapter 10 by a vision of the last days. On the twenty-fourth day of the first months a man clothed in linen whose loins were girded with rich gold of Uphaz appeared on the Tigris. In a series of speeches, he strengthened and encouraged Daniel, revealing to him later kings who would reign during the period of Greek rule. This passage is followed by prophecies concerning an unknown king, and a final assurance that the Lord will remain faithful to his people:

And there shall be a time of trouble, such as never has been since there was a nation till that time; but at that time your people shall be delivered, every one whose name shall be found written in the book. And many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt. And those who are wise shall shine like the brightness of the firmament; and those who turn many to righteousness, like the stars for ever and ever. (Daniel 12:1-3)

There you have it...a composite picture of what the Jewish people expected. This again is the same picture the non-Jewish believer must examine to find the truths about the coming Messiah. Shalom

WHAT WERE THE JEWS TOLD BY G-D TO EXPECT IN THEIR MESSIAH AND IN MESSIANIC TIMES?

One only has to be familiar with the Old Testament in order to understand what the Jews were told by G-d to expect in Messianic times. The selected passages are representative of the very many which are in the Bible. Of course, the Messiah has the function of presiding over the Messianic world, and his role as ruler is alone the reason for his being G-d's anointed! Therefore, the Messiah cannot be contemplated apart from the Messianic Era and the Old Testament Scriptures which define both him and what he is to both do and accomplish.

First, let's explain the word "Messiah." The Hebrew word "moshiach" is simply a word meaning "anointed one." Messiah or Moshiach is a title of honor which was given to ancient Hebrew kings. The Hebrew Messiah is to be a divinely appointed human being, with an earthly mission from G-d for the Chosen People and, through them, all mankind.

It is of interest to learn that the Bible does not always tell of a personality being the Messiah. Sometimes only Messianic occurrences are described, with G-d being the redeemer who brings about His people's rescue. At other times, the collective house of David, the whole people of Israel, is meant when expressing Messianic powers. It should be grasped that the Messiah is not described as the redeemer, but as the head of the redeemed people. G-d is the Redeemer of His people. The Lord's spirit and strength will be upon His anointed, yet, there is no merging of identity indicated. In other words, "the Messiah is not G-d"!

When the Messiah is mentioned as a person, however, he is certainly of lofty spiritual stature. He has wisdom, discernment and righteousness. He obeys G-d. He administers justice and judgment successfully as a perfect leader in the kingdom of G-d on earth, a kingdom which will exist eternally.

A SNAPSHOT OF WHAT THE MESSIANIC KINGDOM...LED BY THE MESSIAH...WAS TO BE LIKE

The Chosen People will reside in G-d's kingdom in Zion forever. Israel's enemies will be destroyed. The Hebrew people will have material abundance and spiritual excellence! There will be full joy, fruitfulness, tranquility, safety, and well-being. The Torah will be perfectly followed in a new, profound way. G-d's laws will be written on the hearts of the people so they cannot be broken or neglected. The people will be spiritually perfect, free from transgression, and sin will be overcome. G-d's spirit will be in the midst of the people and the Temple will be rebuilt permanently.

Moreover, all nations will look to Israel's spirituality, praise it, submit to it, and through Israel's light be guided to G-d and religious excellence! Idol worship will end. Peace will cover the earth, with oppression, suffering, and war at an end. What a glorious vision of earthly bliss and spiritual perfection for the Hebrews and Gentiles in Judaism's Messianics! It would be too mild to call it the supreme golden age of mankind, but that is, in essence, the vision.

It is plain that the promises of the Messianic times did not flower when a portion of the Hebrew people returned from exile in Babylon to Jerusalem. The Second Temple was not the Messianic Temple. No Messiah had built it. It was missing the Ark of the Covenant and essential holiness. Moreover, it was destroyed, which cannot be the fate of the Messianic Temple. Nothing which occurred during the time of the Second Temple approximates the Messianic expectations. Indeed, the consequences of captivity continued even in the return from Babylon. G-d promised all tribes would be returned and gathered, but they were not. And so, the Messiah is awaited and still awaited.

The people of Israel have been brought into great misery, almost total destruction, due to sinfulness through disobedience to G-d's Torah. But, G-d wants to bring His people back to righteousness, not to punish them only. Therefore, although harshly treated by G-d, the remnant will repent and return to G-d, be given His help, and receive great blessing in the latter days. This blessing is the redemption. At the time of the redemption the Jewish people will all be gathered from exile throughout the earth into the Promised Land. With Israel's enemies destroyed, the Chosen People will build the land to which they have returned and prosper there for eternity. As a light to the Gentiles, Israel will bring all the world to worship G-d and have spiritual perfection, all this while material abundance is the Jew's happy lot.

As a Christian Pastor for over 15 years I noticed that in the contemporary Christian Church that there is a profound ignorance of the Old Testament. That being so there is a profound ignorance as well as what the real Messianic promises made to Jewish people really are. When accustomed to reading the New Testament almost exclusively one is continually reinforced with prophecies being fulfilled on almost every page by Jesus. After many years of investigative research into manuscript evidence I came to the conclusion that there was just one major problem that the normative Christian was not aware. Namely, the many presented "fulfilled prophecies" in the New Testament suffered from several problems that the Christian would never be aware of; that being that these "fulfilled" prophecies as applied to Jesus thereby making him to be "the" Messiah were fraudulent when compared with the Jewish Bible from which they were supposedly translated!

- Jewish texts and phrases are lifted out of their places in the Hebrew Scriptures and given meanings in the New Testament which, at best, are forced as applied in the New Testament
- Preceding many of the prophetic verses which are quoted is the assertion, "What was said through the prophet was thus fulfilled." in this way the writers of the Christian Scriptures endeavored to show that the Tanakh anticipated and predicted the events recorded in the New Testament, when a close inspection of the Jewish Bible shows the clear adulteration of the passage as presented in the New Testament
- Those happenings, then, are presented as the fulfillment of the Hebrew Scriptures and are considered proof texts when again close examination of the Jewish Bible, when compared with these New Testament "fulfillments" will prove otherwise
- The techniques employed to establish proof include citation of verses out of context, mistranslation, and misquotation.
- Sometimes a figurative or poetic phrase is mistaken for a straightforward statement and vice versa.
- Sometimes sayings of different writers, living in different places, and in different centuries are run together.
- Often two or more of these methods are used in a single quotation.

Since the above has occurred on the pages of your New Testaments, and you are not aware, and coupled with that the lack of in-depth understanding of the Old Testament and the true "Messianic prophecies" I think it is well past time that the followers of Yeshua, as well as those who call themselves "Christians" become familiar with what the real Messianic prophecies are which were given to the Jewish people throughout their history by the Prophets.

THE SORROW...BUT YET THE PROMISE

Leviticus 26:15-17,31,38,44, "And if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant:. . . And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you: and ye shall flee when none pursueth you. And I will make your cities waste, and bring your sanctuaries unto desolation,. . . And ye shall perish among the heathen, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up. And they that are left of you shall pine away in their iniquity in your enemies' lands;. . . (If they confess). . . I HAVE PRESENTED PASSAGES OF MESSIANIC EXPECTATIONS WHICH ARE CLEARLY UNFULFILLED. THEREFORE, WITH COMPLETE CERTAINTY, JUDAISM KNOWS THE MESSIAH HAS NOT YET COME

Let's list in review all the Messianic expectations which are Biblically prophesied and are awaited in Judaism. These expected happenings must arise at the time of the Messiah. The Scriptures tell us this.

In those days, the Messiah is to preside over the land which has the Messianic expectations happening or fulfilled. We have the material prosperity expectations:-the Promised Land-fruitfulness-happiness-well-being-safety and no fear-peace-animals harmless-enemies destroyed-enemies wealth and service. In addition, we have the spiritual expectations: -We know Israel's Redeemer is the Lord G-d of Israel-His Chosen People will be made great-Israel will be free from sin-Idol worship will end-A new heart will perfect human righteousness in Jews-The Torah will be everlastingly observed-Israel's righteous conduct will be a spiritual light to the nations-Judaism will be the one worldwide religion-G-d will be exalted, glorified, and sanctified by His Chosen People-The redemption will be forever-G-d's spirit will be in the midst of Israel-The Temple will be permanently and perfectly rebuilt-Repentance is the means of returning to G-d for His forgiveness-Finally, we are to have Elijah the prophet, some strange happenings, the Day of Judgment, the war of Gog and Magog, and the designation of "latter days."

Answer for yourself: Can you find Jesus Christ in any of this or any of this in the Jewish History since the first century A.D.?

The answer is that "no" you cannot.

But the reason for the failure of these "Biblical prophecies" to be fulfilled, either by Jesus or another

"anointed" of G-d, can be easily understood when one become a little more familiar with what was "REQUIRED" by the people in order that they "merit" the Kingdom and her King. Failing their role and calling as a "Holy Nation" and "Royal Priesthood," and after seeing such requirements from the Biblical Text for the manifestation of the Kingdom and her King, and being familiar with the history of the period, both spiritually and morally, one is not hard pressed to understand why these momentous promises of G-d were not fulfilled through the life of G-d's anointed. Again I stress the failure was not with the messenger or the message both preached and taught, but the conditions of the hearts of much of the religious leadership of Israel in the first century as well as many of the people of first century Israel. That is why when Yeshua had sent the seventy out and upon the return of his men with their testimonies, upon hearing the conspicuous absence of any mention of "repentance, or sorrow for sin, and the lack of turning from sin" Yeshua made the next gesture which is rather unfitting for such a successful outing....he said basically "I am going to die." It simply would not happen and he knew it.

So in conclusion, the above were the prophecies that the Jewish people had been given by G-d and told to expect to occur when the "anointed" of the Lord comes. These events did not happen.

There are two points that need to be said in closing.

- No wonder the Jewish people, when reading the New Testament, don't see in Jesus their Messiah...the events prophesied and connected with such a Messiah did not and have not yet since occurred and can be connected with no man.
- Lastly, when one understand the true Messianic prophecies as delineated above, and then when one looks at the New Testament where "fulfilled prophecies" are occurring on every page, it should make one wonder why what you just read above is not occurring in the New Testament as associated with Jesus. Instead, what we sadly find upon in-depth examination, are multiple misquotations of the Jewish Bible, multiple misapplication of Scriptural passages, numerous verses completely taken out of context, completely fabricated passages that never existed in the Jewish Bible, verses given Prophetic authority to which they never gave, many pagan myths recorded and applied to Jesus as if confirmation that he is the "Messiah," and many verses where bits and pieces have been "welded" together to make prophecies and all these have been cleverly applied to Jesus and events in his life and are called "Messianic fulfillments" when almost all of them were never such. This is a very deep and difficult study; make no mistake about it.

But if you are like myself, and desire truth over religion, and want the truth about Yeshua and who he truly was, what he was to do, and how G-d used him, then that requires a ruthless reevaluation not only of redactive Biblical history but a ruthless investigation of the Jewish Bible and how its translation was corrupted whereby ultimately the true Messianic passages above were completely not addressed in the New Testament and "falsified prophecies" used in their place. Simply said there has been a great deception foisted upon millions of people and had it not been for the Jewish people who often failed G-d, to their credit is the fact that they, unlike our Gentile anti-Semitic Fathers, never changed the revelation of G-d. Possessing such a revelation to this day, and being familiar with the true Messianic passages, the Jewish people stand unconvinced that Jesus was their Messiah. Knowledge is the key, but of course implied is knowledge of the truth and the real Messianic prophecies.

I believe that one day "the" Messiah will come. Who knows who it will be? What if it just happened to be Jesus? What would you do? What if not? The real issue is that we are to be honest with the Jewish Text and the Messianic prophecies in it, as well as the alterations of it when translated into Greek, as well as the corruption of the Christian Old Testament as taken from the Greek, and by default all of the corrupted quotes thereby used from it in the New Testament, and if we know the truth about the history of the period both before and following the times of Jesus, it is hard to say he is the Messiah. One might lean upon emotion to verify a cherished belief but the facts remain. So for me, knowing what I have uncovered, the jury is out. But salvation with G-d was never based on "if" you believe so and so is the Messiah. Such is just tradition we find in the Christian Church again lined to bogus passages in the New Testament, especially the Fourth Gospel. So we have no recourse other than to await the coming of G-d's Messiah and maybe, just maybe when asked "who are you" we just could hear "Yeshua." But then maybe again we will not. Time will tell.

MAIMONIDES....HIS THOUGHTS ON THE MESSIAH

"I Believe With Complete Faith In The Coming Of The Messiah...."

(from the Thirteen Principles of Faith)

Answer for yourself: What does Judaism teach about the Messianic Age?

Answer for yourself: What does Judaism have to say about the messianic age?

Answer for yourself: What sort of person will the Messiah be?

Answer for yourself: What is the purpose of a "messianic age"?

Answer for yourself: Why did G-D allow the belief in false messiahs to spread?

Many people, both Jews and non-Jews, ask these and other questions about the Jewish belief in the coming of the messiah. While a short paper of this size cannot possibly address such an important topic with the thoroughness that it deserves, it can present the basic points in the hope that it will lead to further study of the subject.

In his monumental work Mishneh Torah, Maimonides (1135-1204) spelled out the fundamental Jewish concept of the messiah as it was handed down to us, generation after generation, from the time of the prophets. In his concise and lucid manner, the great Jewish philosopher and jurist herewith presents us with a clear picture of the promise which G-D made to the Jewish people.

Mishneh Torah, Hilchot Melachim XI - XII.

The King Messiah will in some future time come, restore the kingdom of David to its former power, build the Temple, bring together the scattered of Israel, and all the ancient laws will again be in force. Sacrifices will be offered, and years of release and Jubilees will be kept as prescribed in the Torah. Whoever does not believe in him, or does not hope for his coming, shows a lack of faith not only in the prophets, but also in the Torah. For the Torah testifies concerning him in the words: 'And the L-rd your G-D will again bring back your captivity, and show mercy unto you, and again gather you from all the nations...If your outcasts be at the ends of the heavens, from there will the L-rd gather you...and the L-rd will bring you into the land which your fathers possessed...' (Deut. 30:3-5)

You must not imagine that the messiah must prove his messianity by signs and miracles, doing something unexpected, bringing the dead to life, or similar things. The principle thing is this: the statutes and precepts of our Torah remain forever, and nothing can be added to them or taken from them.

If, therefore, a descendant of David earnestly studies the Torah, observes what the written and oral Torah enjoins, causes all Israelites to act similarly, exhorts those who are lax in the performance of the commandments, and fights the wars of the L-rd, he may possibly be the messiah. If he does not succeed, or is killed in war, it is certain that he is not the messiah promised in the Torah. He is like all the other noble and good kings of the House of David who have died, and G-D only caused him to rise in order to try us thereby, as it is said, 'And of the wise some will stumble, and through them the people will be tested, purified, and made white, till the time of the end comes; for there is yet a vision for an appointed time.' (Dan. 11:35).

Also, Yeshua the Nazarene, who imagined that he would be messiah and was killed, is alluded to in the book of Daniel, as it is said, 'And the sons of the transgressors among thy people will rise, in order to establish a vision, and will stumble' (Dan. 11:14). Can there be a greater stumbling then this? All the prophets said that messiah will be a redeemer and a savior to the Israelites, will bring together their outcasts, and will strengthen their obedience to the Divine precepts, but he (Yeshua) caused destruction by the sword to Israel, the dispersion of those left, and their humiliation. He changed the law, and misled many people to worship a being beside G-D.

[Craig's Commentary...it saddens me to read the above about Maimonides' views on Yeshua for his attitude and perspective is in response to the oral traditions and legends both fictionalized, created and attached to the memory of Yeshua through Christian theology. What we find in Maimonides' views is a "renegade Jew." Such charges as "changing the law" and "idolatry" laid at the feet of Yeshua is possibly the saddest fruit of Christian doctrine and theology and has discolored the true perspective of such a righteous preacher of repentance for almost all Jews since]

But the thoughts of the Creator of the universe cannot be understood by any human being, for the ways of men are not His ways, nor their thoughts His thoughts. For all the events connected with Yeshua, and with Mohammed that rose after him, served only to pave the way for the King Messiah, who will reform all mankind and lead them to the unanimous service of G-D, as it is said, 'For then will I turn to the peoples a pure language, that all may call by the name of G-D, and serve him unanimously' (Zeph. 3:9).

How can this be done? Almost all people have through them (Yeshua and Mohammed) become acquainted with the idea of messiah, with the words of the Torah and the Divine precepts. Through them the knowledge of the Bible spread even unto the remotest islands and unto many nations 'uncircumcised' in heart and uncircumcised in flesh. These nations seek to justify their disobedience to the precepts of the Torah. Some of them say that these precepts are Divine, but are not in force at present, and were never intended to be permanent laws. Others maintain that they must not be taken literally, as they are mere symbols, the meaning of which has already been explained by their 'messiah'. But when the true King Messiah will rise, he will prosper, be high and exalted. All will then at once know that it was falsehood what their fathers have inherited, and that their prophets and their teachers have misled them.

It is not because they desired to have dominion over all lands and nations and be honored by all people, or because they desired to have plenty to eat and drink and other pleasures, that the wise men and the prophets longed for the days of the messiah, but because they would then be at leisure to study the Torah and its teachings without being interrupted by any oppressor, and would thus make themselves worthy of life in the World to Come.

There will not be in those days any famine, war, jealousy, or quarrel, because the good things will be in plenty and even luxuries will be found everywhere. All people will busy themselves with trying to know the L-rd. Therefore, the Israelites will be great sages, knowing things which are at present hidden. They will obtain a knowledge of their Creator as far as possible by human understanding; 'For the earth shall be full with the knowledge of the L-rd as the waters cover the sea.' (Isaiah 11:9).

Answer for yourself: Can we say that Isaiah 11:9 is fulfilled today because of Yeshua or his ministry?

WHO ARE WE TO BELIEVE IN? THE HEBREW MESSIAH OR THE CHRISTIAN MESSIAH?

Christian missionaries to the Jews don't want to shock the Jew by handing out leaflets which proclaim Jesus is God. This belief is kept in the background, waiting for the potential convert to become interested by the declaration of Jesus being our own Hebrew Messiah. After all, if Jews are waiting for the Messiah (the Moshiach), maybe Jesus is he. But, Jews are not waiting for God. Consequently, the missionaries merely declare Jeshua ben Joseph is the Moshiach. His being God the Son of the Christian Trinity is advanced to the potential convert later. The full-page ads of the so-called "Jews for Jesus" organizations don't say a word about the Trinity, not a single word. Well, Jews need not contemplate this non-Jewish concept of a triune God.

If you are a regular reader of Bet Emet Ministries you know that we teach and have shown on many occasions that Jesus did not claim to be God incarnate and that he believed in the God of unity of the Hebrew Scriptures. The concept of the Trinity does not affect Jews, because it has no basis in the Hebrew Bible. Because of that it should not affect the Christian either, but sadly it does.

IS CHRISTIANITY'S CHRIST THE JEWISH MESSIAH?

However, Jews are deeply concerned about the Hebrew Messiah. Christians don't seem to be concerned about the Hebrew Messiah because they have one of their own; namely the Christian Messiah. The both are not the same! The Jewish Scriptures are filled with words of Messianic expectation. Both Jews and Christians wait for him daily. The question which is of interest to us is whether Christianity's Christ is the Hebrew Messiah.

Answer for yourself: Have Jews neglected to recognize that Jesus is their Messiah, because Christianity has claimed him as God the Son?

Answer for yourself: If it were possible to separate the Christologic Christ from the Jewish Jesus, would we then be able to find the truth about the Moshiach of the Hebrews? In other words, let's put aside the claims of Christianity and discover if Jesus fits the role of the Hebrew Messiah, as Judaism understands him from our own Scriptures. Let's first look at the attributes of the Messiah and the Messianic Era expectations as presented in the Hebrew Bible. Then we can ascertain if Jesus fulfilled the Messianic requirements and if he, indeed, is the Moshiach of the Jewish people.

Clearly, if his role was not that of the Messiah, as expressed in the written word of God, the Hebrew Scriptures, what Christianity has made of the Messiah is not Judaism's concern. Instead, if such can be proved then it become a nightmare of unimaginable proportions to the Christian believer. However, it certainly would be of very great concern and importance to the Jews if it could be shown from the Jewish Scriptures that Yeshua's life and accomplishments were that of the expected Messiah.

Answer for yourself: Has the Hebrew Messiah already come? We must use traditional interpretation of Biblical Messianic passages to find our answer. What do you think we will discover?

Answer for yourself: Have the Jews been in error through the centuries in their refusal to accept Yeshua as the Hebrew Messiah?

Answer for yourself: When they refused to succumb to conversion, and instead suffered martyrdom for Kiddush Ha-Shem (sanctification of God's name), were they wrong?

Answer for yourself: When persecution, torture, and death could be avoided, were the Jewish leaders and people mistaken to remain with their Judaism? How easy it would have been to accept conversion to Christianity. They could have prospered socially, and economically, and obtained peace in a diaspora of disdain and degradation for Jews. Actually, it is surprising that so few were lost to Judaism due to conversion. It seems surely a "sign" that Judaism's remnant in dispersion remained steadfast, even when offered the choice of the Christian cross or the Christian curse!

WHAT I UNCOVERED WHEN I STUDIED THIS OUT FOR MYSELF...THE GREEK TRANSLATION OF THE JEWISH BIBLE AND THE MESSIANIC PROPHECIES ARE CORRUPTED!

We shall find in the following articles that Jews have rejected Jesus as the Hebrew Messiah because of their intimate and profound knowledge of the Jewish Holy Scriptures, together with their devotion to the God of Israel! Scriptural passages are the basis of Judaism's understanding of the Messiah and Messianic expectations. Much must be fulfilled. Much must be established. The Messiah's tasks are still to be accomplished according to the Jewish Masoretic Text.

But this is not the case with the Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures? Why?

I can honestly say that one of the greatest revelations that I have had over the last 20 years of Bible study is the revelation that the Greek translation of the Jewish Bible is an abomination before G-d. Hundreds of Jewish Scriptures were butchered and purposefully altered by the Essene translators of Alexandria, Egypt, with the expressed purpose of giving "Scriptural authority" to the previously existing religious beliefs which can be shown upon study to be a mixture of Judaism and Egyptian Sun-worship. The Messiah of the Jewish Scriptures was cleverly altered in the Greek translation to where he is almost unrecognizable by traditional Judaism. This is why the Jews who knew the Hebrew Scriptures could and would not accept the Greek translation of the Jewish Bible back then as well as now. They know what billions of good Christians were never told; namely, that the Word of G-d was "added and taken away from" in an attempt to restructure the Jewish Messiah into a form more palatable to the Gentile nations of the world. Simply said, such destruction of Divine Revelation concerning the Jewish Messiah and the substitute of a man-made solar g-dman as the personification of Sun-Worship is the reason today that we have both a Hebrew Messiah and a Gentile Christian Messiah. If you take the Jewish Masoretic Bible and compare the "Messianic prophecies" within it with the Greek translation of them done in 200 B.C.E. or the later Christian Old Testaments in English which came from it, or the Christian New Testaments which came from the corresponding Christian Old Testaments which came from the Greek, you will be simply horrified at what you see. Hundreds of very important and critical passages in the Hebrew are purposely mistranslated, misquoted, and lifted out of context in order to give a sense of "fulfillment" to events that are connected with the life of Jesus in one way or the other. Other "fulfilled" New Testament Scriptures are simply just made up and given prophetic authority in order to pass them off to the unsuspecting Gentile audience of their day. Guess what? It still works today!

What you need to understand and do is two things:

- Having never read into this matter for yourself you should not believe anything I have

- said...without your personal intense study into this matter to verify what I have said is true.
- You need to begin today.

This explains why the Jews of yesterday and today continually tell the Christian that there remains unfulfilled Jewish Scriptures that must be fulfilled before he can believe in anyone as "their Messiah." Christianity has tried to avoid the unfulfilled Messianic hopes by either minimizing them or changing them to fit their Christology. What I chronicled for you above was the "changing" of them to fit a pattern of sun-g-dmen both by the Essenes of 200 B.C.E. as well as Greek and Latin Church Fathers much later once they had possession of the documents from which the New Testament was to emerge.

WHAT DID THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH DO WHEN SUCH DECEPTION WAS NOTICED BY OTHERS?

When this could not be done, they advanced the time of fulfillment to a "second coming." Well, it must be understood that the Biblical foundation of Messianic hope cannot be disregarded or changed to suit Christianity's circumstances. It must be understood that belief that Jesus is the Messiah has to measure up to verses as written in the Hebrew Scriptures and not the forged and fraudulent Greek Septuagint (or the later Christian Old Testaments and New Testaments which quoted only from them). Expectations must be satisfied as written in the Hebrew and not the Greek (or English). After all, this is where the hope of the Messiah originated. If we find Messianic expectations unfulfilled in traditional terms, other terms will not do! What God says will occur is exactly what will occur. God said it clearly and repeatedly in His Holy Book and the Jews not only had it 2000 years ago but do so as well today. It is the Christian Community who has never read or seen this Jewish Holy Book. Literally, and I don't want to hurt anyone, but the Christian has never read the Word of G-d yet until he lays down his King James Bible (or other Christian translations that are tied to the abominable Greek translation) and buys and reads the Jewish Masoretic Text (called the Tanakh).

Moreover, what is to occur is to occur when expected, which is at the arrival of the Messiah. The Messiah's achievements cannot legitimately be placed forward to a future time, a "second coming," unless this is explicitly described in these holy verses. By now, it should be of no surprise to you to learn that no such double arrival, in order to accomplish the Messianic Era, is written in the Jewish Bible. The Scriptures do not describe a Messiah coming, dying, not achieving, leaving, returning, and then making the Messianic times a reality. Nowhere is it said that the Messiah is to return after having once failed in doing what the Messiah is to do. A "second coming" as well as Christologies, both, have absolutely no foundation in Judaism's Bible! Such a "second coming" is anticipated only in the New Testament, and we shall examine this error later in future articles.

Consequently, if the Scriptural expectations for the Messiah are unfulfilled and no "second coming" is propounded, it would appear that the Christian Messiah (Christ) and Hebrew Messiah (Moshiach) are two different entities! What I propose to do in this series of articles is present the Scripture as it was written in the Jewish Bible and understood by traditional Judaism as over against how it was later changed or altered and later viewed by the Greeks and later Gentile Christians. In so doing we can see together how the Messianic concepts once given to the Jews were altered and changed over time whereby we have ended up with a Hebrew Messiah (Moshiach) and a Christian Messiah (Christ).

BUT THERE IS ONE THING YET TO SAY...AND BOTH MY JEWISH AND CHRISTIAN FRIENDS NEED TO HEAR IT

I have not casually approached this subject. In fact the hours of study into these areas amaze me, let alone my wife and friends. Having taken this subject very seriously I am fully persuaded today on points that both the Jews and Christians will gladly accept and reject. I would ask you patience as you read the entire website and pertinent articles in these selected areas to fully understand both sides of this very delicate issue. So I will close with the reiteration of facts and not hypothesis. The facts are:

The Jewish Scriptures were altered in very important and sensitive spots by the Alexandrian Essenes in order to produce a "translation" that had G-dly authority which just so happened to agree with their existing religious belief system which was not normative Biblical Judaism, but a mixture of Judaism and Egyptian Sun-Worship whereby the human messiah of Judaism became the personified solar G-dman of the Greek Old Testament.

All subsequent translations of Christian Bibles, except the Latin, come from this corrupted Greek translation. Jerome could not use it because of it contained so many errors of which I speak when compared with the Hebrew. This means that among the pages of your English Old Testament [since taken from this corrupted Greek Old Testament] you are reading passages which you think G-d gave holy men of old concerning His Messiah which in reality G-d never did, and when these are compared line upon line with the Jewish Bible either do not exist as written in your English Bible or exist in a completely different wording or context. In fact Egyptian Sun-Worship has been personified in the form of a man with supernatural features and he is passed off by Alexandrian Essenes, the the Greek Fathers which were schooled under them in Alexandria, Egypt, as a Divine Revelation under various names of important Jewish Prophets and you, never suspecting this, read your English Old Testament as if inspired, infallible, and inerrant. The Jewish prophets never said much of which they are quoted for in the Greek Old Testament. I suggest you begin such a study to see this for yourself.

When reading your Christian Old Testament you read these "altered" passages and prophecies concerning this "anointed one" and they are burned into you mind and you recall them at a second's notice when asked about the Jewish Messiah; all the while not knowing that such was never written about the Jewish Messiah in the first place because you have never known of this corruption in the translations you both use in your personal life as well as in your church.

To compound matters you read the New Testament which quotes from your corrupted Christian Old Testament and again you never know what you are reading in Paul's name or in the various Gospels are nothing more than the rehash of forged, fabricated, misquoted, mistranslated, fraudulent and corrupted Jewish passages in the first place. The result of this whole deception is that you attribute to Jesus ideas and concepts that to you make him "your" Messiah but all the while the Jew who knows his own Jewish Tanakh stands in bewilderment at what you believe about Jesus and refused to accept such "good news" about Jesus. Any wonder now why?

But here is where it gets sticky and this is my personal interpretation after doing all the hard homework for 16 years. There are many reasons why the prophecies of the Jewish Bible COULD NOT HAVE BEEN FULFILLED in the first century no matter who might have been the Messiah in waiting. The failure of their fulfillment cannot be blamed on the failure of any one man, let alone Jesus. The failure of the Jewish Prophecies to be fulfilled lays at the feet of a holy nation and a royal priesthood who failed their calling. Failing such a calling guaranteed the Kingdom would not come and with it no King! Yeshua knew that and accepted the fate of his nation after the rejection of his Kingdom message which he had preached there for 3 years in Galilee. The Olive Tree had borne no fruit and Yeshua knew quite well that judgment was to come not only on the messenger but the nation as well.

That sure muddled everything now did it not? Here is a guy who tells you that you cannot believe your Christian Bibles and that Jesus is not the Jewish Messiah but the Christian Messiah as based off fraudulent and forged Jewish Scriptures which make him so at the expense of truth as found in the Jewish Bible. But what both the Jews and Christians need to know is that the Messiah could not have been revealed in the first century in the first place. That means that there is just no way to know if Jesus/Yeshua was or could have been, or was not to be "the" Messiah in the first century. Funny though is that through his name 1/3 of the world has come to the knowledge of G-d and saving faith; although much of the teaching and theology connected with Jesus is wrong. For me personally this is something I still ponder and the thoughtful result is simply this: When Messiah appears I hope to ask him this: "Been here before" because it just might be Yeshua. But if not, I will gladly greet and welcome whoever comes in the name of the Lord. Please don't get mad at me straddling the fence on this one; it is a hard subject as I told you. I refer to a Hebrew scholar named David Pflusser who said he will ask the Messiah when he comes the very same question. I feel I am in good company especially if you know of and have read any of Mr. Pflusser's writings.

For me I don't know who the Messiah will be but I BELIEVE that there was a good chance, if everything had happened according to schedule, that the anointed of the Lord could have emerged in the first century and it just might have been Yeshua. But it did not happen that way. There is simply no way to tell who might have been the "anointed of the Lord" because the Jewish Scriptures were not fulfilled. Only through that way was the identify of the "servant" to be known. What I resent is that the Holy Word of G-d was altered and made to look like a sun-g-dman was written among the scriptures to validate the mixture of Judaism and Sun-Worship of the Essenes of 200B.C.E. and that these "solar" corruptions were later applied to Jesus in the New Testament as if they were "fulfilled Messianic prophecies" when they are not. There is a big difference saying "thus being fulfilled by the prophet" in the New Testament and the truthful prophet and what he said in the Hebrew! Trust me on that!

Giving millions of people, if not billions, a false belief about Jesus whereby many fall into idolatry because the religious documents that they trust are forged and they don't know it, is a crime of unimaginable proportions. But such has been done. Either Jesus fulfilled the Jewish Scriptures or he did not. But you have to know what they are and what they say before any belief about Jesus should be attached to any idea of Messiahship. To take the false and fraudulent corrupted passages in the Christian OT and NT and accept a belief about the Messiah and attach such a personal belief to Jesus is foolhardy to say the least; especially now since you have been altered to the fact of such a corruption of the Jewish texts. You have no other option but to study to find out the truth for yourself then no man can lie to you any longer; whether on purpose or by accident.

Just for your information it would be this very same "solar theology" which will be cherished by these Essenes some 200 years later and also later applied to Jesus following his death. Such oral traditions were soon fixed to his life and death and we have not been able to shake ourselves free from them some 2000 years later. Many of these "oral tradition" from astral-worship will find their way onto the pages of your "inspired New Testament." This is why when reading of Jesus in the New Testament you have a Hebrew Messiah and a Christian Messiah and both are at odds. Said another way that is why you have a human messiah and a G-dman Messiah. The Essene religious solar belief system permeates the New Testament as Acts 6 states:

Acts 6:7 7 And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith. (KJV)

It would be these Essenes "priests" who would bring their corrupted Judaism, their Greek LXX and its adulterated passages into the Jesus Movement following his death since now identifying his death with that of their prior martyred Teacher of Righteousness.

Now, in the articles that follow I will attempt to study out the various passages and prophecies that are applied to Jesus as qualification and guarantee of his Messiahship. We must remember that if it can be shown that the Jewish passages never said such things then to build a belief that Jesus as the Messiah, or G-d no less, is not only wasted energy but an affront to G-d who alone deserves our worship. I firmly believe G-d is pleased when His children have and know the truth. I firmly believe that any lie that is cherished by overzealous and emotionally led individuals, when exposed as such, must be cast down since the knowledge of the truth has set them free from sin and destruction brought on by deceit and lies. G-d, and Jesus no less, receives no honor when we believer or propagate lies in their names. Baruch HaShem.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF A JEWISH MESSIAH TO A CHRISTIAN CHRIST...THE PAGANIZATION OF THE JEWISH MESSIAH

Belief in the coming of the Messiah has always been a fundamental part of Judaism. Thus, for example, Maimonides counts the belief in the Messiah as one of the thirteen cardinal principles of Judaism. It is a concept that is repeated again and again throughout the length and breadth of Jewish literature.

There have been many people in Jewish history who have claimed to be this Messiah. The most famous, of course, was Jesus. His followers therefore gave him the title Christ. Mashiach — the Hebrew word for Messiah — literally means the "anointed." The Greek word for "anointed" is Christos, and thus, Christ is really just another word for Messiah.

Although Christians claim that Jesus was the Messiah of the Jews, there are a number of important differences between the way the Jew looks at the Messiah, and the way the Christian does. It is most important to know these differences.

THE JEWISH MESSIAH

The Jewish concept of the Messiah is that which is clearly developed by the prophets of the Bible. He is a leader of the Jews, strong in wisdom, power and spirit. It is he who will bring complete redemption to the Jewish people, both spiritually and physically. Along with this, he will bring eternal peace, love, prosperity, and moral perfection to the entire world.

The Jewish Messiah is truly human in origin. He is born of ordinary human parents, and is of flesh and blood like all mortals.

As described by the Prophet (Isaiah 11:2), the Messiah is "full of wisdom and understanding, counsel and might, knowledge and the fear of G-d." He has a special feeling for justice, or, as the Talmud put it (Sanhedrin 93b), he "smells and judges." He can virtually sense a man's innocence or guilt.

The Prophet (Isaiah 11:4) goes on to say that the Messiah will "smite the tyrant with the rod of his mouth, and slay the wicked with the breath of his lips." Evil and tyranny will not be able to stand up before the Messiah.

Still, the Messiah is primarily a king of peace. Jewish Sages therefore teach (Derech Eretz Zuta : 1): "When the Messiah is revealed to Israel, he will only open his mouth for peace. It is thus written (Isaiah 52:7), 'How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of the messenger who announces peace.' "

The first task of the Messiah is to redeem Israel from exile and servitude. In doing so, he will also redeem the entire world from evil. Oppression, suffering, war and all forms of godlessness will be abolished. Mankind will thus be perfected, and man's sins against G-d, as well as his transgression against fellow man, will be eliminated. All forms of warfare and strife between nations will also vanish in the Messianic age.

Most important, the Jewish Messiah will bring all peoples to G-d. This is expressed most clearly in the Alenu prayer, which concludes all three daily services:

"May the world be perfected under the kingdom of the Almighty. Let all humans call upon Your Name and turn all the world's evildoers to You. Let everyone on earth know that every knee must bow to You . . . and let them all accept the yoke of Your kingdom."

We find a very similar thought in the High Holy Day Amidah, where we pray, "Let all creatures bow before You. May they form a single band and do Your will with a perfect heart."

The Jewish Messiah will thus have the task of perfecting the world. He will redeem man from servitude, oppression and his own evil. There will be great material prosperity in the world, and man will be restored to an Eden-like existence, where he can enjoy the fruits of the earth without toil.

In the Messianic age, the Jewish people will dwell freely in their land. There will be an "ingathering of the exiles," when all Jews return to Israel. This will eventually bring all nations to acknowledge the G-d of Israel and accept the truth of His teachings. The Messiah will thus not only be king over Israel, but, in a sense, ruler over all nations.

Ultimately, redemption comes from G-d alone, and the Messiah is only an instrument in His hands. He is a human being, consisting of flesh and blood like all mortals. He is, however, the finest of the human race, and as such, must be crowned with the highest virtues that mortal man can attain.

Although the Messiah may achieve the upper limit of human perfection, he is still human. The kingdom of the Jewish Messiah is definitely "of this world."

Judaism is a religion based on a people serving G-d. It is from the Jew that G-d's teachings emanate to all humanity. The redemption of Israel must therefore precede that of the rest of mankind. Before G-d redeems the world, He must redeem His oppressed, suffering, exiled and persecuted people, returning them to their own land and restoring their status.

The ultimate promise, however, is not limited to Israel alone. The redemption of the Jew is closely linked to the emancipation of all humanity as well as the destruction of evil and tyranny. It is the first step in man's return to G-d, where all mankind will be united into a "single band" to fulfill G-d's purpose. This is the "Kingdom of the Almighty" in the Messianic Age.

Although the Messiah may occupy a central place in this "Kingdom of Heaven," he is still not the primary figure. This position can only belong to G-d Himself.

This, in brief, is the concept of the Jewish Messiah.

THE CHRISTIAN CHRIST

The primary figure in Christianity is its Messiah. Its very name indicates that Christianity is completely based on the personality of the Messiah. As mentioned in earlier articles, the name "Christ" comes from Christos, the Greek word for Messiah. The Christians are thus those who make the person of the Messiah central to their teachings.

The first major difference between the Jews and the early Christians was that the Christians believed that the Messiah had already come, while the Jews believed that he was yet to come. At first, this was the main point of controversy.

The Jews had one minor objection to the Christian Messiah, and that was the fact that he had been unsuccessful. Judaism had always taught that the Messiah would redeem Israel in a political sense, and Yeshua had failed to accomplish this. Instead, he had been scourged and humiliated like a common rebel, and finally crucified along with two ordinary thieves.

Answer for yourself: How could the career of Yeshua be reconciled with the glorious picture of the Messiah as taught by the Prophets of Israel?

The early Christians faced this dilemma, and, in justifying Yeshua as the Messiah, readily altered the entire concept. These new Messianic ideas were developed in by the writer of the Gospel of John, and even more so in the Epistles of Paul.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF A JEWISH MESSIAH INTO A CHRISTIAN CHRIST

If we look in these sources, we find a gradual transition. The Messiah of the Jew progressively becomes transformed into the Christ of the Christian. This can be traced in a series of logical steps.

- Yeshua was totally unsuccessful in redeeming the Jews politically, and therefore the early Christians could no longer look upon this as the task of the Messiah. His redemption had to be given a new meaning. They therefore taught that his mission was not to redeem man from political oppression, but only to redeem him from spiritual evil.
- Once the Messiah's mission was redefined, it could also be expanded. Political oppression was a special problem of the Jews, but spiritual evil is worldwide. The early Christians therefore began to teach that Yeshua had come to redeem the whole world (universal perspective). They rejected the view that he would come to redeem the Jewish people and their land first, and only then redeem the rest of the world. The Messiah's reign is therefore universal, but only spiritual. The kingdom of Yeshua is thus "not of this world."
- Yeshua had been scourged and humiliated like a common rebel. His followers felt, however, that he had only preached repentance and good works, and therefore could not be a common rebel. They were then faced with an important and difficult question. If Yeshua was the true Messiah, then why did G-d allow him to undergo such frightful suffering? Why was he subjected to crucifixion, the most painful and shameful death of all? Why did G-d not save him from all this?

For his followers, there could only be one answer. The fact that Yeshua was scourged, humiliated and crucified had to be the will of G-d. But still, another question remained. If Yeshua did not sin, what purpose could there be in his suffering and death?

For this, the early Christians found a most ingenious solution. The only answer could be that he suffered and died because of the sins of mankind.

Answer for yourself: But the question was still not completely answered. Had there not been suffering and death before this? Why did Christ himself have to suffer and die? What sin was so great that it required his sacrifice?

- The early Christians answered that this was required to atone for the sin of Adam. All mankind is descended from Adam, and therefore, all inherit his sin. This "original sin" cannot be erased with good works, or even with ordinary human suffering. The only thing that could eliminate it was the death of Yeshua.

The Messiah of the Christians therefore willingly went to a disgraceful and painful death in order that humanity might be redeemed from this "original sin." Mankind is therefore redeemed from evil, sin, suffering, death and the powers of Satan only by the blood of Christ.

Support for this belief was found in the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, where the Prophet speaks of G-d's suffering servant, who "bore the sin of many." But take special note of what I say next. Such concepts cannot be found in the Jewish Tanakh but only in the altered Greek translations of it! Those who taught such concepts had to look outside the Jewish Bible to find such "twisted Scriptures" that would allow such a belief. Instead of interpreting it to refer to the persecuted people, Israel, the early Christians claimed that it referred to Yeshua (read our articles on Essene corruption of the Jewish Scriptures when they were translated as well as our series on Isaiah 53 for proof of what I say).

Answer for yourself: But still the question remained, how could the career of the Redeemer end in such a shameful death?

The story had to be given a sequel. Such an epilogue was found in another traditional Jewish belief, namely, that of the Resurrection of the Dead. The early Christians therefore taught that Yeshua had risen from the dead, and furthermore, that he was the first one to do so. Therefore Yeshua was not mortal like other men.

- Yeshua' followers could not bring themselves to say that G-d had forced this suffering and death upon His Messiah. Therefore, they had to say that the will of the Messiah was exactly the same as the will of G-d, even when it came to his crucifixion. But how could a mere mortal undertake such suffering? The early Christians replied that Yeshua was not a mere mortal. Since his will was so uniquely related to that of G-d, he had to be related to G-d in some special way.
- During his lifetime, Yeshua often spoke of G-d as "my Father in Heaven." For the Jews, this was a common poetic expression, and one that is still used in Jewish prayers. For the pagan gentiles, however, it had a much more literal connotation. The Greeks already had legends about men who had been fathered by gods who had visited mortal human women. Legends like these had even sprung up about such eminent men as Plato, Pythagoras, and Alexander the Great. Why should Yeshua be any less? They therefore interpreted his poetic expression quite literally, to mean that he had an actual genetic relationship with G-d. Yeshua therefore became the "son of G-d," conceived when the Holy Ghost visited Mary. As the "son of G-d," Yeshua was not susceptible to sin or even death.

The death of Yeshua was therefore only temporary. The only reason why it was needed at all was to atone for the sin of Adam. His followers taught that Yeshua was resurrected for eternity and ascended to heaven. There he sits at the "right hand of G-d," even higher than the angels.

This was the first step toward the deification of Yeshua, and it was not very difficult for the pagan world to take the second step. Yeshua was credited with such statements as (John 10:30), "I and the Father are one." He had also spoken of (Matthew 28:19), "The Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost." It was easy for the paganized Christians to identify Yeshua with the "Son."

Yeshua therefore became G-d-man—one person with two natures. He is G-d and man at the same time. This is the Essene's Messiah but not the Messiah of the traditional Jews! Christians therefore soon found themselves speaking of Mary as the "mother of G-d."

- Still, there were many Messianic prophecies that Yeshua had failed to fulfill. The early Christians therefore taught that he would return to the world again in a "second coming." The Day of Judgment will then occur, and Yeshua, having taken his seat at the "right hand of his Father," will judge every man who has ever lived. Those who believed in him will be delivered, while those who did not will be eternally damned to hell.

It is only after this judgment that Satan will be conquered. Evil will then end, sin will vanish, and death will pass away. The powers of darkness will thus be eliminated, and the kingdom of heaven established.

- In this world, meanwhile, all prayer must be addressed to Yeshua. The Christian therefore concludes every prayer "in the name of Yeshua Christ our Lord." In this sense, Yeshua is the mediator between G-d and man.

This, in essence, is what the early Christians did to the Jewish concept of the Messiah. The Messiah ceased to be a mere man, and passed beyond the limits of mortality. They taught that man cannot redeem himself from sin, and therefore G-d, clothed in the form of the Messiah, had to freely shed his own blood to redeem mankind. Since Yeshua did not fulfill the most important Messianic prophecies, they expected him to return to complete this task in a "second coming."

At first, Christians expected that this "second coming" would come very shortly, and prayed that they would see it in their lifetime. When their prayer was not answered, they began to hope that it would come a thousand years after Yeshua's death. This was the millennium or "thousand year kingdom." Finally, after a thousand years passed and Yeshua still had not returned, they postponed his "second coming" to an indefinite time.

We therefore see that the early Christians were forced to radically alter the Jewish concept of the Messiah in order to explain Yeshua's failure. This, compounded with the pagan influence in the early church, gave birth to a Messianic concept totally alien to Judaism.

NO WONDER THE JEWS REJECTED A PAGANIZED MESSIAH

Therefore it is not very difficult to understand why the Jews totally rejected the contentions of Christianity.

First of all, the Jews had a tradition, well supported in the teachings of the Prophets, that the Messiah would bring about major changes in the world. The "spiritual kingdom" did not in any way fulfill these prophecies. The Jews were furthermore unconvinced by the answer of the "second coming" since it was not even hinted at in Biblical literature, but was later written "backwards" into the Gentile Church's New ## Testament as an attempt to explain the failure of Yeshua to manifest himself as the Messiah of the Jewish Bible.

Thus, first of all, the Jew found absolutely no evidence to support Yeshua's claim to having been the Messiah. On the other hand, Yeshua's lack of success appeared to repudiate it.

Even more important, however, was the fact that the Christians had logically developed their belief in Yeshua in such a manner that they radically altered many of the most basic Jewish beliefs. Even such a basic concept as G-d's unity was threatened by their teachings. Even if the evidence of Yeshua's Messiahship was more concrete, its logical consequences would have to be rejected.

THE ALTERATION OF G-D'S WORD AS CONTAINED IN THE NEW TESTAMENT...AN ATTEMPT TO TRY TO SUBSTANTIATE CHRISTIAN BELIEFS THAT OPPOSED WHAT THE PROPHETS TAUGHT

The early Christians tried to justify their contention by finding hints of it in the Jewish scriptures. They went over the entire Bible with a fine tooth comb, looking for any evidence, however flimsy, to prove that Yeshua was the Messiah, and that their entire logical structure was in accord with ancient Jewish teachings. In many cases, they were not above using verses out of context, changing texts, and even purposely mistranslating them, in order to prove their point and their "unique" interpretation of the Scriptures. One today would call such actions by this group a "cult." One needs no further evidence than the fact that most modern Christian Bible scholars totally reject almost all the "proofs" of the early Christians. Indeed, some of the best refutations of these "proofs" may be found in contemporary Christian Bible commentaries.

Most important, Christianity tried to set itself up as the new "Israel," and looked upon the Jews as utterly rejected by G-d. It therefore taught that Judaism was a corrupt and dying religion, with little hope of growth or success.

The Jews, on the other hand, did much more than argue this point with words. They refuted it by embarking upon one of the most creative periods in their history. The entire scope of Talmudic literature was developed essentially during early post-Christian times.

Thus, to the Jews, the strongest refutation of Christianity was the fact that Judaism itself remained alive and vital. The Jew has found that he can both exist and flourish without accepting Christian beliefs. He believes that the Messiah is yet to come, and that at that time, the truth will become known and the Jew will be justified before all the world. To this I concur wholeheartedly. Shalom

THE PERSIAN INFLUENCE UPON THE JEWISH MESSIANIC BELIEF (INFLUENCE UPON THE ESSENES)

Among no people was the longing for redemption so lively and the expectation of a speedy end of the world so strong as among the Jews. Since the Babylonian captivity (586/536 B.C.) the former Jewish outlook upon the world had undergone a great change. Fifty years had been spent by the Israelites in the land of the stranger. For two hundred years after their return to their own land the Jewish people were under Persian overlordship and religious influence. As a consequence of this they were in close connection politically and economically with the Achaemenidean Empire, and this did not cease when Alexander overthrew the Persian power and brought the whole Eastern world under Greek influence. During this lengthy period Persian modes of thinking and Persian religious views had influenced in many ways the old Jewish opinions, and had introduced a large number of new ideas.

- First of all the extreme dualism of the Persians had impressed a distinctly dual character upon Jewish Monotheism. G-d and the world, which in the old ideas had often mingled with one another, were separated and made to stand in opposition to each other.
- Following the same train of thought, the old national G-d YHWH, in imitation of the Persian Ahuramazda (Ormuzd), had developed from a G-d of fire, light, and sky into a G-d of supernatural purity and holiness. Surrounded by light and enthroned in the Beyond, like Ahuramazda, the source of all life, the living G-d held intercourse with his creatures upon the earth only through the instrumentality of a court of angels. These messengers of G-d or intermediate beings in countless numbers moved between heaven and earth upon his service.
- And just as Angromainyu (Ahriman), the evil, was opposed to Ahuramazda, the good, and the struggle between darkness and light, truth and falsehood, life and death, was, according to Persian ideas, reproduced in the course of earthly events, so many Jews too ascribed to Satan the role of an adversary of G-d, a corrupter of the divine creation, and made him, as Prince of this world and leader of the forces of hell, measure his strength with the King of Heaven.

It is certain that the old Israelite YHWH only attained that spiritualized character for which he is nowadays extolled under the influence of the Persians imageless worship of G-d.

In the struggle of the two opposing worlds, according to Persian ideas, Mithras stood in the foreground, the spirit of light, truth, and justice, the divine “friend” of men, the “mediator,” “deliverer,” and “saviour” of the world. He shared his office with Honover, Ahuramazdas Word of creation and revelation; and indeed in most things their attributes were mingled. An incarnation of fire or the sun, above all of the struggling, suffering, triumphant light, which presses victoriously through night and darkness, Mithras was also connected with death and immortality, and passed as guide of souls and Judge in the under-world. He was the “divine son,” of whom it was said that Ahuramazda had fashioned him as great and worthy of reverence as his own self. Indeed, he was in essence Ahuramazda himself, proceeding from his supernatural light, and given a concrete individuality. As companion in creation and “protector” of the world he kept the universe standing in its struggle against its enemies. At the head of the heavenly host he fought for G-d, and with his sword of flame he drove the Daemons of Darkness in terror back into the shadows. To take part in this combat on the side of G-d, to build up the future kingdom of G-d by the work of a life-giving civilization, by the rendering fruitful of sterile wastes, the extinction of noxious animals, and by moral self-education, seemed the proper end of human existence. But when the time should have been fulfilled and the present epoch come to an end, according to Persian belief, Ahuramazda was then to raise up from the seed of Zarathustra, the founder of this religion, the "virgins son," Saoshyant (Sraosha, Sosiosch, which signifies the Saviour), or, as it ran according to another rendering, Mithras himself should descend upon the earth and in a last fierce struggle overwhelm Angromainyu and his hosts, and cast them down into the Nether World. He would then raise the dead in bodily shape, and after a General Judgment of the whole world, in which the wicked should be condemned to the punishments of hell and the good raised to heavenly glory, establish the "millennial Kingdom of Peace." Hell itself was not to last for ever, for a great reconciliation was to be finally held out even to the damned. Then Angromainyn also would make peace with Ahuramazda, and upon a new earth beneath a new heaven all were to be united to one another in everlasting blessedness. Please understand that these "religious ideas" persisted long before the Jewish people were ever captives of the Persians and were only later introduced into these concepts following the Persian conquering of Babylon and the acquisition of the previous Babylonian Jewish captives.

These ideas entered the circle of Jewish thought and there brought about a complete transformation of the former belief in a Messiah.

THE JEWISH CONCEPT OF THEIR MESSIAH BEFORE THE PERSIAN INFLUENCE

Messiah-that is, the Anointed (in Greek, Christos) originally signified the king as representative of YHWH before the people and of the people before YHWH. According to 2 Sam. 7:13 he was placed in the same relation of an obedient "son" to his "father," in which the whole people was conscious of standing (Ex. 4:22; Deut. 32:6; Hosea 11:1). Then the opposition between the holy dignity of the "Anointed" of G-d and the humanly imperfect personality of the Jewish kings and their failures led to the ideal of the Messiah being transferred to the future and the complete realization of the rule of YHWH over his people being expected only then. In this sense the ancient prophets had already celebrated the Messiah as an ideal King of the future, who would experience in the fullest sense the high assurances of YHWH'S favor, of which David had been deemed worthy, since he would be completely worthy of them. They had described this future Messiah as the Hero, who would be more than Moses and Joshua, who would establish the promised glory of Israel, dispose the people anew, and bring YHWH'S religion even to the heathen. They had glorified him in that he would span the heavens afresh, establish a new earth, and make Israel Lord over all Gentile nations. In this they had at first understood the Messiah only as a human being, as a new David or of his seed-theocratic king, divinely favored prince of peace and just ruler over his people, just as the Persian Saoshyant was to be a man of the seed of Zarathustra. This "anointed" Messiah was always to be a man and not a G-dman or sun-g-dman. Thus in this sense a Cyrus, only a human being, the deliverer of the people from the Babylonian captivity, the rescuer and overlord of Israel, had been acclaimed Messiah (Isa. 44:28; 45:1).

THE FURTHER DEVELOPMENT OF THE CONCEPT OF THE HUMAN MESSIAH INTO SOMETHING MORE THAN A MAN

But over time, just as Saoshyant had been undesignedly transfigured in the imagination of the people into a divine being and made one with the figure of Mithras, so also among the prophets the Messiah was more and more assigned the part of a divine king. He was called “divine hero,” “Father of Eternity,” and the prophet Isaiah indulged in a description of his kingdom of peace, in which the wolf would lie down by the lamb, men would no longer die before their time, and would enjoy the fruit of their fields without tithe, while right and justice would reign upon earth under this king of a golden age as it had never done before. Secret and supernatural, as was his nature, so should the birth of the Messiah be. Though a divine child, he was to be born in lowly state (Isa. 9:6; Micah 5:1). The personality of the Messiah mingled with that of YHWH himself, as though it were G-d himself of whose ascending the throne and journey heavenwards the Psalmists sing (Psm. 47:6,9; 62:12).

THE INFLUENCE OF APOCALYPTIC LITERATURE

Up to now we only see just a handful of examples where the Jewish prophets ascribed "Divine" attributes to the expected deliverer; their Messiah. It is one thing to say that the Messiah is "G-dly" and a whole other to say the Messiah "is G-d." But now with the advent of apocalyptic literature the concept of the human Messiah who is anointed by G-d will drastically change and become literally G-d. These alternations of the Messiah between a human and a divine nature appear still more clearly in the Jewish apocalypics of the last century before and the first century after Christ. Thus the Apocalypse of Daniel (about 165 B.C.) speaks of one who as Son of Man will descend upon the clouds of heaven and will be brought before the “Ancient of Days.” The whole tone of the passage leaves no doubt that the Son of Man (barnasa) is a superhuman being representing the Deity. Owing to the fact that the book of Daniel was written around 165 B.C. yet the historical Daniel lived two centuries earlier one is not hard pressed to understand that this is a form of literature is a perfect example of "Pseudepigrapha" or false authorship of a supposed "divine" writ where one also easily sees the blending of prior Persian religious thought mixed with Jewish prophetic thought. Please understand that at this time in Israel the "canon" of accepted "Divine" literature was basically closed but many who wished to promote their own unique understanding of "prophecy" would draft and author documents in the names of long dead "heroes" and claim that such was "found" in order to slip in their documents under the disguise of being written by recognized Biblical heroes or prophets of the ancient past. This is why the book of Daniel is included in the historical books of the Jewish Bible today and not the prophetic books where one might expect to find it. Such is a major example of most apocalyptic literature owing primarily to the Essene's influence where they departed long ago from normative Judaism and gravitated toward a more apocalyptic understanding of social-political-religious events where they blended Persian/Zoroastrian, Buddhist, and Pythagorean beliefs with Judaism and passed it off as "Divine."

To this new "divine/human" Messiah the majesty and kingdom of G-d have been entrusted in order that, at the end of the existing epoch, he should descend upon the clouds of heaven, surrounded by a troop of angels, and establish an everlasting power, a Kingdom of Heaven. In the picture-language of the Essene Enoch (in the last decade before Christ) the Messiah, the “Chosen One,” the “Son of Man,” appears as a supernatural pro-existing being, who was hidden in G-d before the world was created, whose glory continues from eternity to eternity and his might from generation to generation, in whom the spirit of wisdom and power dwells, who judges hidden things, punishes the wicked, but will save the holy and just (Enoch. xlv.-li). Indeed, the Apocalypse of Esdras (the so-called fourth Book of Esdras) expressly combats the opinion that the judgment of the world will come through another than G-d, and likewise describes the Messiah as a kind of “second G-d,” as the “Son of G-d,” as the human incarnation of the G-dhead (4th Esdras chap vi.1 sqq).

In all of this the influence of Persian beliefs is unmistakable, whether these arose in Iran itself directly, or whether the idea of a G-d-appointed king and deliverer of the world was borrowed by the Persians from the circle of Babylonian ideas. Here this conception had taken deep root and was applied at different times now to this king.

- Just as in the Persian religion the image of Saoshyant, so also in the Jewish view the picture of the Messiah wavered between a human king of the race of David and a supernatural being of divine nature descended from heaven.
- And just as in the Persian representation of the coming of Saoshyant and the final victory of the Kingdom of Light there would be a preceding period during which threatening signs would appear in the heavens, the whole of nature would find itself in upheaval and mankind would be scourged with fearful plagues, so also the Jewish Apocalypse speaks of the “woes” of the Messiah and describes a period of terror which would precede the coming of the Messiah.

The coming of the power of G-d was looked upon as a miraculous catastrophe suddenly breaking in from on high, as a conflagration of the world followed by a new creation. The Jewish agreed with the Persian view in this also, that it made a heavenly kingdom of undisturbed bliss “in the light of the everlasting life and in likeness of the angels” follow the earthly world-wide empire of the Messiah. This they imagined on exactly the same lines as the Persian Paradise. There would the holy drink of the “Water of Life” and nourish themselves on the fruit which hang upon the “Tree of Life.” The wicked, on the other hand, would be cast into hell and suffer in fearful torments the just punishment of their sins.

The conception of a resurrection of the dead and a last judgment had hitherto been strange to the Jews. In pre-exilic days they allowed the body to die and the soul after death to go down as a shadow without feeling into Hades (Sheol), without disturbing themselves further about its fate. Now, however, with the doctrine of the destruction of the world by fire and the general judgment, the idea of personal immortality entered the world of Jewish thought. Thus it is said by Daniel that on the day of judgment the dead will rise again, some waking to everlasting life, others to everlasting perdition. “But the teachers will shine as the brightness of heaven, and those who led the multitude to justice as the stars for ever and ever.” With the acceptance of personal immortality the whole tone of religious thought was deepened and enriched in the direction of thought for the individual. Former Jewish morality had been essentially of a collective kind. It was not so much the individual as the people viewed collectively that was looked upon as the object of divine solicitude. At this point the position, the road to which had been already prepared by the prophets, was definitely established, that the individual hoped for a personal religious salvation and as a consequence felt in direct personal relationship with YHWH. G-d indeed remained, as the Persians had taught them to understand him, the superhuman lord of heaven enthroned in pure light, the source of all life, the living G-d. His metaphysical qualities, however, his dazzling glory and unconquerable might were ever more and more overshadowed by his moral attributes: goodness, grace, and mercy appeared as the most prominent features in the character of YHWH. G-d seemed a loving father who leads his children through life with kindly care, and without whose consent not a hair of one of his creatures could be touched. The strong tendency within Judaism, represented by the upper currents of pharisaic rabbinism, continually drew the national boundaries closer, and was ever more anxiously occupied with a painfully strict observance of the letter of the law and a conscientious observance of ritualistic ordinances. Ethics threatened to be extinguished under a system of conventional rules of an essentially juristic nature. Yet all the while a more human and natural morality was arising, an inward piety, warm-hearted, popular, and sound, which broke through the narrow limits of Jewish nationalism, and sent a fresh current into the heavy atmosphere of official legality. It was then that the groundwork of later Christian ethics was laid in the purified morality of the psalms, aphorisms, and other edificatory writings of a Job, Baruch, Jesus son of Sirach, etc. It was then that the Jewish Monotheism set itself to extend its sway beyond the boundaries of its own land and to enter into competition with the other religions of antiquity, from which it was to draw back vanquished only before a matured Christianity.

THE TWO MESSIAH THEORY

There are two basic versions of the two Messiah theory:

- The "rabbinic" two Messiah theory which held to a Messiah the son of Joseph, sometimes called "Ephraim." who would come and suffer to redeem his brothers (like the patriarch Joseph); and a Messiah the son of David who would come and rule from David's throne forever.
- The "Qumran" two Messiah theory which held to a Priestly Aaronic Messiah and a Kingly Messiah.

In order to understand the Messianic theory of the Nazarenes and Ebionites it is important to understand these two theories. I will first document each version of the two Messiah theory, then I will show evidence that both theories existed in the first century. I will also show that the two versions of the theory are related to each other. Finally I will show that the NT shows an awareness of the two Messiah theory and relates to it.

A RABBINIC THEORY

The first of the two Messiah theories is the "Rabbinic" theory. The Rabbi's have always recognized an apparent conflict between certain Messianic passages. For example: R. Alexandri said: Rabbi Joshua opposed two verses: It is written:

- And behold, one like the son of man came with the clouds of heaven. (Dan. 7:13)
- Whilst it is written: [behold, your king comes to you...] lowly, and riding upon an ass! (Zech. 9:9) (b.San. 98a)

The Rabbinic "two Messiah" theory was one of several answers that the Rabbis found for these contradictions. It delegated the lowly, suffering servant passages to Messiah the son of Joseph (sometimes called Ephraim); and the Kingly passages to Messiah the son of David. A good example of the Ephraim Messiah in Rabbinic literature is a Midrash in which the Messiah is being warned by G-d of what awaits him:

Their sins will be upon you like a yoke of iron. They will choke your spirit. Because of their sins, Your tongue will cleave to the roof of your mouth. Do you accept this? If not, I will remove the decree from you. The Messiah replies: "Master of the worlds, how long will this last? G-d replies: "Ephraim, my true Messiah, ever since the six days of creation you have taken this ordeal upon yourself. At this moment, your pain is my pain". Messiah replies: "Master of the worlds, I accept this with gladness in my soul, and joy in my heart, so that not a single one of the House of Israel should perish. Not only for those alive, but also the dead. It is enough that the servant be like the Master. (Midrash Pesqita Rabbah 36)

Rabbi Dosa (who lived around 250 CE) was a chief advocate of the two Messiah theory. The Talmud records that he taught regarding Zech. 12:10: What is the cause of the mourning [of Zech. 12:12]--... It is well according to him who explains that the cause is the slaying of Messiah the son of Joseph, since that well agrees with the Scriptural verse: And they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, And they shall mourn for him as one mourns for his only son. (Zech. 12:10) (b. Sukkot 52a)

THE APOCALYPTIC-ESSENE VIEW

Now the Qumran community also believed in two Messiahs:

They shall govern themselves using the original precepts by which the men of the Yahad began to be instructed, doing so until there come the Prophet and the Messiahs of Aaron and Israel. (Manual of Discipline/Community rule 1Qs Col. 9 lines 10-11; from The Dead Sea Scrolls A New Translation by Wise; Abegg and Cook p. 139)

Two Messiahs are also evident in 1QSa, 1Q28a where the two Messiahs are pictured at a future Messianic banquet table. Now it has been stated in recent years that the two Messiah theory did not exist in the first century. These theorists claim that a "suffering servant" Messiah who dies was invented to get Bar Kokhba off the hook. However the Talmud tells us that Bar Kokhba failed, not because he was a suffering servant Messiah, but because he was not a Messiah of any kind whatsoever. Moreover First century sources attest to both the idea of a suffering servant Messiah and the two Messiah theory. The earliest sources for the two Messiah theory are the Dead Sea Scrolls and Targum Jonathan. Targum Jonathan identifies the pierced one of Zech. 12:10 as the "Messiah son of Ephraim." Targum Jonathan was supposed to have been written in the first century by Jonathan ben Uziel the student of Hillel.

Answer for yourself: Another question that arises is, can the priestly Messiah of the Qumran community be identified with the suffering servant Messiah?

The answer is, I believe, yes. The critical clue lies in the way that the Dead Sea Scrolls use Is. 61:1-4.

One document among the scrolls (11Q13) applies Is. 61:1-3 to a priestly eschatological figure who is called "Melchisedek" the document then speaks of a "Messiah" who is called the one "anointed of the spirit" (Is. 61:1) and to whom Is. 62:2 is also applied. This "Messiah" is identified as the figure spoken of in Is. 52:7 and as the Messiah who is "cut-off" in Dan. 9:26. This implies a connection to the suffering servant in Is. 53 who is also cut-off. A final clue is found in 4Q521 which also applies Is. 61:1 to the Messiah and which closely parallels Mt. 11:5 (which will become important later).

Answer for yourself: Finally, was there to be two Messiahs or one Messiah?

There does seem to have been confusion on this issue. While 1QS 9:10-11 refers to the "Messiahs of Levi and Israel," the Damascus Document three times refers to the "Messiah of Levi and Israel" (12:23; 14:19; 19:10).

Answer for yourself: Was there a question as to whether these would be two Messiahs or one?

A tradition found in Midrash Rabbah may provide the answer: Like Moses, Messiah will be revealed, then hidden, then revealed again. (Bamidbar Rabbah 11:2)

Now as for how these concepts were perceived by the Nazarenes: Mt. 11:2-3 And when John had heard in prison about the works of Messiah, he sent two of his students and said to him: "Are you the coming ONE or do we expect ANOTHER?"

Yeshua responds by quoting from Is. 35:5-6; 26:14 and (get this) Is. 61:1. This statement (In Mt. 11:5) parallels 4Q521 so closely that both contain "raise the dead" which is NOT in Isaiah. Yeshua is clearly referring to a key known list of criteria for the Kingly Messiah (John already knew Yeshua was the suffering one) and which cited Is. 61:1 the critical material which ties all of the Messiah's together in the Qumran literature (remember, very good evidence indicates that John had broken off from the Qumran community.)

LK. 17:25 but first he must suffer many things and be rejected by this generation. Clearly this verse shows that the suffering Messiah first concept existed in the first century and was being cited by Yeshua.

In Heb. 5-7 the writer characterizes Yeshua as a priestly Messiah and as an antitype of Melchisedek. Like 11Q13 Paul uses a high Christology (Heb. 1; 11Q13 calls Melchisedek El and Elohim and replaces YHVH with Melchisedek in quoting from Is. 61). Both tie the work of Melchisedek to the Day of Atonement (11Q13 2:7; Heb. 8-10) Clearly Paul sees Yeshua as the Priestly Messiah characterized by the Qumran community as well as a suffering servant Messiah and Kingly Messiah.

Time will tell if he was right in light of so many unfilled Prophetic Messianic Scriptures awaiting fulfillment by the true Messiah.

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that, although the Messianic prophecies were not fulfilled in the first century, that Yeshua was "revealed" to some in the first century as "Messiah ben Yosef" but then hidden to be revealed another day as "Messiah ben David" and at that time the Messianic prophecies will be fulfilled?

It is impossible to say for sure but the scenario is worthy of consideration and we cannot rule it out completely.

THE DESCENT OF THE MESSIAH FROM DAVID

The greatest hope of the religious Jews throughout the ages has been the hope of the Messiah, a Jewish man who is to bring peace on earth and set Israel at the head of the nations. In the Talmud, a collection of traditions and commentaries from the Post-Biblical period (from about 300 B.C.E. until about 500 C.E.), there are two messiahs mentioned--one who suffers and is rejected by his people and another who reigns gloriously. The Suffering Messiah is called Messiah Son of Joseph (Mashiach Ben-Yosef) because, like Joseph, he is rejected by his brothers. Thus, this Messiah is rejected by Israel. The Glorious Messiah is called Messiah Son of David (Mashiach Ben-David) for two reasons. First of all, like David he will reign gloriously over Israel and subjugate the other nations under Israel. The second reason that he is called Messiah Son of David is that he must be a physical descendant of David, according to the Tenach (Old Testament). For the purposes of this study, we are going to talk about the descent of the Messiah Son of David.

The first mention that the Glorious Messiah must come from David is found in II Samuel 7:12-16:

When your days are over and you rest with your fathers, I will raise up your offspring to succeed you, who will come from your own body, and I will establish his kingdom. He is the one who will build a house for my Name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. I will be his father, and he will be my son. When he does wrong, I will punish him with the rod of men, with floggings inflicted by men. But my love will never be taken away from him, as I took it away from Saul, whom I removed from before you. Your house and your kingdom will endure forever before me; your throne will be established forever (NIV).

In this Biblical passage, G-d is promising that the Davidic dynasty would be eternal. If the Davidic king were to commit sin, he would be punished in things of this world, but the dynasty would never be cut off. Beginning with this promise, Israel's Messianic expectation was to have the blessing of G-d by living under the "Lord's Anointed" (Messiah comes from the Hebrew Mashiach, which means "anointed one"). This expectation increased under Solomon, the king who built the First Temple. Every king of Israel was the Messiah for his generation, including even Saul (I Sam. 24:9-10, etc.). Also, the High Priest was called "the priest that is anointed" (Heb. Haccohen Hammashiach, Lev. 4:3,5,16). Sometimes, even a prophet was anointed to begin his ministry (I Kings 19:16).

After the reign of Solomon, with all the peace and prosperity that accompanied it, the hopes of the people for a lasting peace were dashed by the division of the kingdom into Israel (the 10 northern tribes) and Judah (the kingdom of the South, with Judah and Benjamin, the Temple, the Levites from the whole country, and Rehoboam, the Davidic King; cf. II Chronicles 11:5-14). For all the years up to the Babylonian captivity, the Messianic hope was that the Davidic King would eventually reunite the two kingdoms and restore the glory that existed in the days of Solomon.

By the time of Isaiah, it was obvious that there was going to be a great punishment from G-d, instead of the awaited glory. The kings of Judah became worse and worse, in spite of the strong warning of seeing Israel taken captive by Assyria in 722 B.C.E. Since the reign of Manasseh (II Kings 21:1-18), it was certain that the captivity of Judah would occur, as threatened by G-d in Deuteronomy 28:36-48. For this reason, in chapters 40-66, Isaiah stops exhorting Judah to repent (because they wouldn't listen), and focuses on the Suffering Messiah, the Glorious Messiah, and the glorious future for Israel way beyond the coming captivity (see chapters 42,53,60,61,65,66).

Some believe, but not all, that Isaiah 40-66 is not the work of another author, but rather of the same author in other circumstances. The sins are similar, but worse: perverting the case of widows and orphans (10:1-2, cf. 59:4-9), religious hypocrisy (29:13, cf. 58:2-4), etc. The idolatry condemned is worse than in the first part of the book. In 57:4-5, Isaiah condemns idolatry in high places, religious prostitution, and the sacrifice of infants to Molech, practices common in the reign of Manasseh (II Kings 21:6; II Chronicles 33:6). In 57:7 Isaiah condemns worship in high places (Hebrew, bamot), a practice common before, but not during the captivity. During the captivity it was not possible because Babylon is flat and has no mountains. In fact, none of the above condemned practices existed during the exile in Babylon. Thus we see that Isaiah 40-66 refers to the period of Manasseh.

After Manasseh there was an almost continuous chain of bad kings up until the Babylonian captivity: Amon (II Kings 21:19-26), Jehoahaz (23:31-35), Jehoiakim (23:36--24:7), Jehoiachin (24:8-16), and Zedekiah (an uncle of Jehoiachin, not in the royal line, 24:18-25:7). The only exception was Josiah (22:1--23:30), a good king who took away idolatry (23:24-27). However, the sin of Manasseh had been definitive in bringing on Judah the exile (23:26) in spite of these reforms.

In the times of Jeremiah, just as Israel was going into exile, G-d made two declarations that appeared contradictory about the last Davidic King over Judah, Jehoiachin (or Coniah). The first declaration was that, of his physical descendants, no one would ever sit upon the throne of David, in spite of the fact that they would continue to inherit the rights to sit on it. In Jeremiah 22:28-30 G-d says:

Is this man Jehoiachin a despised, broken pot, an object no one wants? Why will he and his children be hurled out, cast into a land they do not know? O land, land, land, hear the word of the Lord! This is what the Lord says: "Record this man as if childless, a man who will not prosper in his lifetime, for none of his offspring will prosper, none will sit on the throne of David or rule anymore in Judah (NIV)."

Nebuchadnezzar took Jehoiachin to Babylon, where Shealtiel was born and continued the royal line, but no one from this line ever sat on the throne of David again because of this curse -- even Shealtiel's son Zerubbabel, who was a prominent leader of the return from exile.

The second declaration by G-d through Jeremiah, which appears to contradict the first, is in chapter 33:14-17:

"In those days and at that time I will make a righteous Branch sprout from David's line; he will do what is just and right in the land. In those days Judah will be saved and Jerusalem will live in safety. This is the name by which he will be called: The Lord Our Righteousness." For this is what the Lord says, "David will never fail to have a man to sit on the throne of the house of Israel (NIV)."

As we put together the two declarations, we note that, from Jehoiachin onward, the heirs of the Throne of David cannot sit on it, but that the line will not lack a man to sit upon the throne. There was also promised a "Righteous Branch," a man who would raise up the Throne of David and who would also sit upon it. Beginning, then, with the deportation into Babylon, the expectation of the Messiah, Son of David, became a longing for the appearance of a future figure. The Israelites could see the descendant of David in each generation, but he was not anointed (Messiah for his generation) nor did he reign, because of the curse of Jehoiachin.

Answer for yourself: How could this dilemma be resolved? How could one be born in the royal line of David and inherit the rights to the Throne of David without being a descendant of Jehoiachin and inheriting the curse also?

Many creative attempts to explain this prophecy can be found throughout Church History as well as answers written within the New Testament. Such answers run the gamut from the creation of a virgin birth scenario to remove the Christ-child from human lineage as well as convoluted and conflicting genealogies in the Gospel of Matthew and Luke where are pure nonsense if one tackles such a study. In reality these genealogies are but rubbish and poor attempts to get "Yeshua" out of the cursed lineage.

Answer for yourself: Is there an answer to this Jehoiachin problem? Stay tuned.

MESSIAH TO DESCEND FROM JEHOIACHIN & ZERUBBABEL-HOW CAN THAT BE?

Many Jewish authorities teach that Yeshua (Jesus) cannot be the Messiah and persuade many to forsake their belief in him as a contender for the future Messiah. Admittedly this is a very difficult subject for Christians to honestly evaluate but I contend that although the evidence is strongly against proving Yeshua could be the Messiah because of the failure of the fulfillment of the Messianic prophecies, it is yet not possible to say dogmatically that he could not have been the Messiah "in waiting" in the first century. Events beyond his control were responsible for the prophecies not being fulfilled and both the Jewish people and their scholars as well as Christians need to see both sides of this problem clearly. But to say dogmatically that the curse of Jeconiah precludes any consideration of Yeshua possibly being the Messiah is not accurate. What I maintain is that we just cannot know for certain. Let me explain this "Jeconiah" problem.

Often Jewish authors prey upon the lack of Biblical understanding of the masses of Christianity today. Sadly, when the whole of the matter is presented we often get a different picture than the one first presented by such men like Rabbi Singer (at least in some aspects as most of what he presents is fool-proof and his scholarship is impeccable).

Let me preface this article by saying I support wholeheartedly Rabbi Singer's agenda: to prevent the assimilation of his Jewish people into Christianity whereby they accepted a paganized rendition of Sinai faith and a neo-paganized rendition of the Jewish Messiah. But in the process, in order to fully prevent such an occurrence which only destroys G-d's "chosen people" as they learn the ways of heathen mixed with "selected righteousness," he distorts or withholds pertinent data that keeps open the door for consideration of Yeshua as even a possible candidate for being the Messiah. Understandably Yeshua did not fulfill by any means the Messianic prophecies pertaining to the Jewish people, but without a doubt the coming of Messiah to us was for the "lost sheep of the House of Israel" which today are the Gentile peoples of the world. It is the views of Bet Emet that in the return of Ha Meschiah he comes for his people; the Jewish people to fulfill the promises of Torah and Prophets. Many feel Yeshua is disqualified for such consideration because of the curse on Jeconiah and his lineage. This simply is not accurate and I will share with you why this "curse" does not preclude consideration of Yeshua as being the "possible" Messiah of Israel.

Rabbi Singer and others have proven the disability of the virgin birth through changes in the translations from Hebrew to Greek and we have inherited such corruptions in Christianity unawares today. However, because of a curse in the genealogy of Yeshua, it is presumed that the seed of Jeconiah (which happens to be Yeshua) cannot reign upon David's throne, thus disqualifying Yeshua for any possibility of being Messiah (admittedly not the Messiah the Jewish people were promised).

Answer for yourself: However, have many lacked the pertinent Biblical information that would allow for Yeshua possibly being considered as yet a possible candidate for the coming Messiah? Let me state again, I understand why Rabbi Singer has "slanted" his teaching, but does the "end justify the means?" G-d will have to be the judge of the matter. Let us investigate this startling prophecy in depth, for if we cannot disprove Rabbi Singer and others, and fail to find answers for the curse, then we have no other recourse than to accept the virgin birth in order to allow any possibility of his potential Messiahship and that is impossible once you know the facts.

COMING TO TERMS WITH THE JECONIAH CURSE

Jehoiachin is the grand-father of Zerubbabel who was a descendant within the Messianic lineage through Solomon. Both Jehoiachin and Zerubbabel are listed within Yeshua's ancestry in the Brit Hadasha (New Covenant) in the book of Mattiteyahu (Matthew 1:12 ). Zerubbabel also appears in the genealogy of Yeshua written by the physician Luke (Luke 3:27).

Mattiteyahu's genealogy traces Yeshua through his father, Joseph; Luke's genealogy traces Yeshua's ancestry through his mother Miriam's side.

There is a problem which does occur in lineage as regarding Jehoiachin, who is also known as Jeconiah (or Coniah). The prophet Jeremiah records a denunciation of him:

Thus saith the Lord, Write this man childless, a man that shall not prosper in his days; for no man of his seed shall prosper, sitting upon the throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah. Jeremiah 22:30).

The scripture appears to pronounce a threefold "curse" upon Jehoiachin :

- He would be childless
- He would not prosper
- His offspring would not prosper on the throne of David.

In light of this "curse" there appears to be a great obstacle regarding the Messianic line, and especially Jehoiachin's inclusion within it. There is widespread opinion that the denunciation of Jehoiachin through G-d's prophet was irrevocable. This would effectively preclude him from being within the messianic lineage. That means that Jesus could not be the Messiah. Before jumping hastily to this opinion, it is well to examine some arguments against this view.

The first "curse," that Jehoiachin would remain childless, was definitely lifted. The Tenach makes it clear that Jehoiachin was, in fact, prolific and sired Shealtiel, Malchiram, Pedaiah, Shenazar, Jekamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah, and Asir (I Chronicles 3:17-18).

Jehoiachin was king of Judah when the children of Israel were taken captive into Babylon, and was imprisoned there. The second "curse," that Jehoiachin would be 'a man that shall not prosper in his days,' was also lifted by G-d, for we read: And it came to pass in the ... year of captivity... [the] king of Babylon ... did liberate Jehoiachin... from prison; And he ... set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon...(II Kings 25:27-28).

Answer for yourself: Thereby, if G-d could forgive Jehoiachin, to the extent of lifting the first two "curses" against him, it is plausible that the third one could be lifted as well; otherwise, Messiah could not descend from Solomon through Jehoiachin? This problem was resolved in the following manner:

Nebuchadnezzar took [Jehoiachin] and put him in prison. ... The Jewish religious Council gathered to consider the matter for they feared that the Davidic kingdom would come to an end, of which it is written, 'His throne shall endure before me as long as the sun' (Psalm 82:36). What can we do in order to help that the Scriptures might be fulfilled? We will go and plead with the governess, and the governess will plead with the queen and the queen with the king. ... Rabbi Shabatai said that [Jehoiachin] did not leave prison until he repented fully and G-d forgave his sins and ... his wife got pregnant as it is written, 'Shealtiel his son, Asir his son.'

Shealtiel means, "I asked of G-d." Asir means "prisoner." Hence, the rabbis understand that Jehoiachin asked G-d to forgive him while in prison and that G-d indicated his forgiveness by giving him sons.

The returning exiles from Babylon in 539 B.C.E. appointed Zerubbabel to be their prince.

Answer for yourself: Why?

They obviously did not think that the "curse" was still in effect since Zerubbabel was a direct descendant of Jehoiachin. Moreover, the post-exilic prophets exalt Zerubbabel, and place their hope for Israel in him. Hence, for example the prophet Zechariah exclaims:

Who are thou, O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain; & he shall bring forth the headstone of it with shoutings... . The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundation of this house; his hands shall also finish it.. . For they shall rejoice, and see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel...(Zechariah 4:7, 9-10).

It is fair, then, to assume that whatever the denunciation against Jehoiachin, it was pardoned by G-d, even as the king of Babylon pardoned Jehoiachin and released him from prison? I believe it is; thus the Messiah would not be prevented genealogically from being of the seed of David, Solomon and Hezekiah through Jehoiachin to whom the Messianic promises were given.

Some may not be satisfied with the rationale presented in favor of the removal of the "curse" from Jehoiachin, thus permitting the Messiah to descend directly from him. This position would appear to effectively preclude Yeshua from being the Messiah. Yet, by some intermarriage within the Davidic family, Zerubbabel, the grandson of Jehoiachin, through Nathan, the son of David, was Yeshua's ancestor on his mother, Miriam's side. Hence, even should Jehoiachin present a stumbling stone, still Yeshua traces his ancestry back through David on his mother's side. But such a possibility of "intermarriage" is not known for sure, but I find comfort in the two examples of G-d's forgiveness and restoration. The "pattern" allows for Yeshua to still be in the "running" for being the "possible" Messiah. Yet the problem remains that few, if any, real Messianic prophecies were fulfilled by Yeshua and this is how one was to determine if the Messiah had come.

Concerning the selection of the One who shall inherit the throne of David, it is well to remember the word of the Lord to Zerubbabel that it is "not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit" (Zechariah 4:6). The Messiah would be a descendant of David, but his claim would not be enhanced by might." (This "might" could refer to the usual transfer of the kingdom to the firstborn ("Reuben, thou art my first born, my might, and the beginning of my strength. Genesis 49:3 Genesis Rabbah). Neither would his selection be enhanced by "power" as, for example, when mighty kings exercised their powers and bestowed their rights on whatever descendants they pleased. Instead, the selection would be by the Holy Spirit - the Ruach Hakodesh.

I believe that this sufficiently answers the presumed difficulty in excluding Yeshua as Messiah because of our inadequate understanding of the curse on Jeconiah. Yet other difficulties remain and with these we must wrestle.

DID JESUS FULFILL THE MESSIANIC PROPHECIES IN THE JEWISH BIBLE...OR JUST THE CHRISTIAN BIBLE?

We said in an earlier article that the Christian Messiah (Christ) and Hebrew Messiah (Moshiach) are two different entities! Now, let's read carefully the Hebrew Bible passages about the Messiah and see if Jesus fits these Messianic expectations. At a later time, and already on another website, the "man-made 'fulfilled' prophecies" have been addressed and it is not my intention to address them in this article. What I do wish to do, however, is to acquaint the Christian reader with what the Jew was told to expect from the Messiah, because until they know this in detail then they do not possess understanding why the Jews reject their "Christian" Jesus.

TAKE YOUR PICK...BUT YOU CANNOT HAVE BOTH

Daniel 7:13-14, ". . . one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, . . . And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him: his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed."

Zechariah 9:9-10, ". . . thy King cometh unto thee: he is just, and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, . . . and he shall speak peace unto the heathen; and his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth."

It seems, curiously, two very different appearances of the Messiah are depicted in the Bible, as interpreted by Christianity. But actually, Daniel describes the Messiah's arrival before God in heaven, not on earth. Read it again and see. The arrival can be described fancifully, as in Zechariah, because it lacks relevance to the Messianic expectations. What is completely relevant is what he achieves. And both Daniel and Zechariah agree that the Messiah is to have an earthly kingdom, whose dominion shall be throughout the world. It shall be a non-ending kingdom, teaching peace. The Messiah will have great honor and service from all people, and he will save the people of Israel from earthly troubles. These are the descriptions of the Messiah and his rule.

I we can be honest we must admit that Jesus does not fit these descriptions because of several reasons:

- He did not rule a kingdom on earth.
- Nothing is said about coming one way (on an ass), leaving (dying), and returning another way.
- Christianity's interpretation notwithstanding, there is no Christologic other-worldly kingdom spoken of here in either verse. The Messianic kingdom is depicted as earthly and interpreted as such in Judaism. It is so interpreted because that is precisely what is written as seen below:

- Daniel 2:44, "... the God of heaven (shall) set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: . . . and it shall stand for ever."
- Daniel 7:18, "But the saints of the most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever."
- Psalm 89:3-4, "I have made a covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my servant, Thy seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy throne to all generations. Selah."
- II Samuel 7:8,12-13,16 (I Chronicles 17:7,11-12,14), "... say unto my servant David, ... I took thee. . . to be ruler over my people, over Israel: . . . I will set up thy seed after thee, . . . and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build an house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom for ever. And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever."

God will create a kingdom which will last for all time. In it the Messiah and those after him will rule His Chosen People, Israel. The Messiah is to build a Temple for God which will be everlasting, as the kingdom will be everlasting.

If it somehow escaped you let me be the first to tell you that there is no such kingdom created. There is no such Temple built. Jesus did not make this happen. Also, note that the Messiah himself is not to exist forever. It is his kingdom which will last forever, not he. And it is given that the saints of the most High, which are the Israel People, will eventually self-rule. That is what these passages impart.

- Numbers 24:17, 19, "... there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel, ... Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion. . ."
- Psalm 72:8, 11, "He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth. Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him."
- Isaiah 11:10, "And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious."
- Daniel 7:2 7, "And the kingdom and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints of the most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him."

All countries and people will look to the Messiah of the Hebrew people and serve him. Again we must be honest with the facts and admit that besides Jesus' lack of rule over an earthly kingdom, he never had dominions under him, serving and obeying him. Moslems, Hindus, and Buddhists, etc., certainly are not under his rule, in this world or any other. In fact, not only was he not served by nations, but the Romans put him to death. Not only was he not obeyed and glorious, but Jesus' death was apparently against his own desires and certainly inglorious, hanging between two thieves.

- Isaiah 11:1-2,4-5, "And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots: And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord;. . . with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth: and he shall smite the earth: with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins."
- Jeremiah 33:15, "in those days, and at that time, will I cause the Branch of righteousness to grow up unto David; and he shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land."

The Hebrew Messiah will properly administer God's desires for human beings' goodness and virtue. He will, with excellence, judge, rebuke, and punish the evil-doers in this world. He will perform justice and righteousness for the poor and meek. Notice that the designation of his rule is "the earth" and "in the land." This eliminates Christianity's interpretation of heavenly judgment. And plainly, Jesus was not then, and is not now, in the land righteously judging in the Messianic kingdom on earth as described.

Answer for yourself: In addition, can it be said in any rational manner that God the Son of the Trinity possesses "the fear of the Lord," when he is supposed to be the selfsame in a unity?

- Psalm 72:7, "In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth."
- Isaiah 52:7, "How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth!"
- Isaiah 9:6-7, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: . . . Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. ."

In the thriving kingdom of the Messiah, there will be endless peace and justice. He will have a government ruling over righteous people who flourish and know the God of Israel, who is their rescuer. Again it must be said that Jesus did not establish peace on earth or rule over a kingdom of righteous people. Note also, the "child" is not Christianity's Christ child at all, who had no government.

- Psalm 28:8, "The Lord is their strength, and he is the saving strength of his anointed."
- Jeremiah 30:9, "But they shall serve the Lord their God, and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them."

These verses are presented to show that there is a clear differentiation between the Lord God and the Messiah. Please take note that Christianity has joined the two and made their Messiah God himself. Such is idolatry of the highest magnitude!

- Psalm 89:3, ". . . I have sworn unto David my servant."
- II Samuel 7:8 (I Chronicles 17:7), ". . . say unto my servant David, Thus saith the Lord of hosts, I took thee. . ."
- Ezekiel 34:23-24, "And I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them, even my servant David;. . . And I the Lord will be their God, and my servant David a prince among them. . ."

The Messiah is to function as the servant of God. He will be God's shepherd. Again please take notice that God and His servant are separate entities, with God bringing the Messiah into his position. Nothing is said here, or elsewhere in the Hebrew Scriptures, about the Messiah being the substance of the Lord God, which Christianity believes. Even the New Testament similarly makes a clear differentiation between God and Jesus Christ, but in practice accepted Christian doctrine and dogma does not. Nevertheless, Christianity has blended the two.

- Isaiah 19:20, ". . . for they shall cry unto the Lord because of the oppressors, and he shall send them a savior, and a great one, and he shall deliver them."
- Isaiah 55:3-4, ". . . I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, a leader and commander to the people."

Psalm 18:50, "Great deliverance giveth he to his king; and showeth mercy to his anointed, to David, and to his seed for evermore."

The Messiah of the Hebrew people is sent by God to rescue God's Chosen People. Jews will have deliverance through the Messiah. What is unfortunate, but true, is that Christianity's Messiah has been made the cause of great troubles for the people of Israel, rather than the opposite. God promised deliverance, not further oppression.

- Ezekiel 37:24-25, "And David my servant shall be king over them; . . . they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them. And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children for ever; and my servant David shall be prince for ever."

With the Messiah as king, the Jewish people are to inherit the Promised Land forever. The Davidic dynasty of the Messiah is established as God's royalty for all time. And the people will follow the laws of God and do them in this Messianic kingdom. Please take time to notice that for two thousand years after Jesus there has not been any Jewish kingdom in the Promised Land with the Messiah and those following ruling.

- Psalm 132:9-12,15,17, "Let thy priests be clothed with righteousness; and let thy saints shout for joy. For thy servant David's sake turn not away the face of thine anointed. The Lord hath sworn in truth unto David;. . . If thy children will keep my covenant. . . their children shall also sit upon thy throne for evermore. I will abundantly bless her provision. . . There will I make the horn of David to bud. . ."
- Jeremiah 23:4-6, "And I will set up shepherds over them which shall feed them: and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, neither shall they be lacking, saith the Lord. . . . I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth. In his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely. . ."
- Jeremiah 33:14, 16, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will perform that good thing which I have promised unto the house of Israel and the house of Judah. In those days shall Judah be saved, and Jerusalem shall dwell safely. . ."

In the time to come, the Messiah and his Davidic descendants will rule forever over the people of Israel who will have kept God's Covenant. The Messiah will supervise and dispense justice and judgment in the earth. It says, "in the earth."

People will have plenty and live in abundance, with no fear. They will be rescued and live in safety. Please take time to notice these questions:

- Does Jesus fit this picture?
- Either then or now, have the Jewish people dwelt in safety and plenty?

The quotes of the passages above state that in the time of the Messiah the people of Israel "shall dwell safely." As this is the description of the Messianic age for the Hebrew people, it is obvious that it has not arrived! As Jesus does not fit this outline of Messianic achievement, it is similarly obvious that he is not the Hebrew Messiah! The Hebrew Messiah has not come as of yet. The Holy Bible is our source and we must never forget that we are speaking of the Jewish Masoretic Text and not the corrupted versions which we find in the Christian Old Testaments which provide the quotes for the Christian New Testaments. Whatever else he may be in Christianity, Jesus is not the Messiah of the Hebrew Scriptures awaited in Judaism.

In summary, from the Biblical passages about the Messiah as taken from the Jewish Tanakh, it is evident that Jews reject Jesus as the Messiah because they know he did not perform the role or accomplish the tasks of the Messiah, as written. We are not in the Messianic Era. We do not have the Messianic expectations fulfilled. Neither Jews nor the earth has peace, abundance, safety, and happiness.

THE REALLY HARD QUESTION THAT THE CHRISTIAN MUST ANSWER

The real question is not why Jews do not believe Jesus was the Hebrew Messiah but why Christians do, when the Messianic times did not unfold as prophesied in the Jewish Book of God! There is really no answer they can offer which can satisfy this simple question. It is clear that the Christian Christ has a supposed function which differs from the one given in the Hebrew Bible for the Messiah. Christ's mission, as explained in Christianity, is to offer personal salvation through vicarious atonement. The Messiah's mission of earthly redemption is changed by Christianity into heavenly salvation. But, their belief does not concern us here. We just want to make it understood that Judaism's Messiah and Christianity's Messiah are not the same in essence or function.

The Hebrew Scriptures' Messiah is Judaic. The early followers of Jesus did hope he was this Messiah. His Jewish followers fully understood the need for the Messiah to accomplish his mission of being the ruler in God's earthly Messianic kingdom. This was their hope. When he died without the Messianic hopes being achieved, they must have been very disappointed. But, instead of complete discouragement at his execution by the Romans, they were somehow prompted to expect his imminent return. In this return, he would fulfill the expectations. Needless to say, Jesus did not return in their lifetime as they had expected and the New Testament reported was to occur.

The early Church had to minimize Messianic expectations and orientation and postulate that Jesus would return at some future unknown time. They still await his second coming. The trouble with this is that, although Christians can await his return to earth, they have absolutely no basis for this happening in any of the Hebrew Bible's prophecies! Nothing at all is written about a second coming to complete what a first coming left undone. Their await is Christologic, not Messianic.

With great hope and reason, Jews also await. But, as non-Jews also await what God has promised in the Hebrew Scriptures. The Messiah is to come to fulfill all the marvelous expectations as written. Judaism is permeated with the faith of his coming, and though he tarry, he shall surely appear. If it turns out that the Messiah, when he appears is "Jesus" then I shall be very happy that it is so because the identity of the person is not nearly as important as what he will accomplish. However, if it turns out to be another "so be it," for after all G-d is behind it and not man. I think we can intelligently live with this. The only thing that saddens me is the corrupted Sun-Worship of the Essenes contained in the New Testament and applied to Jesus which the unsuspecting and unknowledgeable reader accepts without question and thus is erroneously led to believe that such personified events of solar-worship are "fulfilled prophecies" that proves the Messiahship and identity of Jesus as G-d. Such is blatant idolatry and millions never know...that is until they die and are told face to face by YHWH.

If you have both the desire and courage for such a difficult study into how Sun-Worship became "fulfilled prophecies" in the Greek Old Testament and later became the very substance for the Christian's Old Testament and quotes in the New Testament then you only have to begin a methodical study of one of this ministry's websites.

This is such a difficult subject for the Christian to embark upon I strongly suggest you be armed with prayer and love for G-d whereby you fully understand that with every lie exposed and cast down and replaced with "truth" then your relationship with G-d and the Creator is strengthened and not weakened. ## BUT MY NEW TESTAMENT SAYS IT'S A FULFILLED PROPHECY...YOU MEAN ITS NOT?

I can remember my shock the first time a friend of mine, whom I respect very much, mentioned to me that almost all of the many prophecies in the New Testament which are believed to be "fulfilled prophecies by Jesus" were in reality not fulfilled at all! He went on to say that in the Gospel of Matthew, for instance, that the prophecies that are believed by Christians to be "fulfilled" are really not "fulfilled" prophecies after all in spite of what the New Testament and the writer of the Book of Matthew said. At first I could not believe it; surely he was mistaken for at that time in my life my scholarship concerning the Bible was only at an infant state. All I could say was that I had been taught and heard preached that Jesus had fulfilled "what was written" because it said so and that my preacher had said so. After all when reading the New Testament these "thus being fulfilled what the prophet said" passages sure sounded like they had Divine authority and I cold remember reading something like that in the Old Testament before. After being challenged in this way the first thing I did was to look at my center reference in my study Bible and began to look for an Old Testament Scriptural references which would surely prove my friend wrong and my Christian religious belief system correct. As I was looking up my reference my friend said something that would change the course of my life: "But Craig, your Christian Bible is a fraudulent translation of the Jewish Hebrew Scriptures...the Jewish Masoretic Text (the Jewish Old Testament) does not read the same way your Christian Old Testament reads. I remember saying to myself: "Surely he is mistaken or even crazy." For after all as a Christian Jesus was my "Messiah." But that was then and now, some sixteen years later after years of hard-nosed dedicated scholarly study, I can no longer say and believe what I did then. I now realize that my friend was right; my Christian Bible was a fraud in many places and I never knew it. But I do now and I wish to inform you of this sad plight in hopes your worship of G-d be no longer be contaminated with idolatry because you own and believe in a forged translation of the Jewish Bible.

As you can imagine this information presented to me by my friend stopped me on a dime. I thought to myself "What evidence does he have to back up such a claim". Surely, I thought to myself, he could not be correct.

After "growing up in the LORD" for these last 16 years I can say without a doubt that my friend was 100% correct in his assessment of the Christian Bible and its mistranslations. I had be led to believe that my Christian Bible was inspired and infallible since I was a child. I had lived my whole life, up to then, with the notion that my Christian KJV was inspired, infallible, and inerrant. I can remember my shock, my devastation, and my anger as it all settled in over the next few days and years. After a considerable time of intense study into this subject I came to the undeniable conclusion that I had a book that even my Pastors don't know is altered in hundreds of places. If they did know then never told me. Now understand after 16 years of intense Bible study and after being awakened to this matter I cannot look at my Christian Bible and believe it without searching out the truths for myself. I had to begin a serious investigation of every line and ever precept. It has taken my 16 years to do this, and such results finally led to my resignation as a Pastor of a mega-church in Dallas. I had not been teaching the "truth" and had been associated with the greatest cover-up in the history of mankind. My repentance and tears flowed continually throughout the years as I tried to justify keeping my position as a Pastor. Finally my shame and my knowledge would have me

"come out of the unclean thing." No longer could I justify with my presence a Replacement Religion that opposes the very things that Yeshua both loved, lived, and taught. I have today been able to master from the Jewish Masoretic Texts the problem passages which confront us in the Christian Bible. The rub comes for the Christian in the fact that the vast majority of these "corrupted and falsified and purposefully mistranslated passages" are Messianic in perspective.

Let me say up front that even though I can and will share with you how the Torah, Prophets, and Writings have been literally butchered over the centuries by various Bible translations, and even thought many of these when viewed from the Jewish text, turn out to be non-Messianic prophecies, I still hold a faith and belief that when Messiah comes it most likely will be Yeshua. But I could be wrong. It really does not matter but I am moved by 2000 years of history where this man, for better or worse, has been the center figure in the faith of over 2 billion people. Where there is smoke there is fire. I deal with this issue on this and other websites of this ministry where we look into why the prophecies, the real and true Jewish prophecies, were not fulfilled in the first century. No matter whom the Messiah was to be, they would not have been fulfilled and any Messianic movement was doomed to failure. But at the same time I refuse to "take away or add to the Word of G-d," the Jewish Masoretic text, in order to create "fulfilled scripture" which makes it look as if Yeshua is the Messiah when the original texts never said the things the New Testament says they did. Many people have "beliefs" about Yeshua, and many varieties of them exist in the world today. Regardless, I want the truth and only the truth about this man. Falsification of Christian Bibles in order to create "fulfillments" about Yeshua that were never true in the first place does neither G-d nor me, or even you , any good.

I HAVE HEARD THIS MY WHOLE LIFE...WHAT ABOUT YOU?

"What are the mathematical odds of any one person fulfilling all of the messianic prophecy?
Obviously the scriptures could only have been talking about Jesus."

On the face of it, this sounds like a good argument. And if you read all of the Christian scriptures, there are lots and lots of "prophecies" that needed to be fulfilled, and, according to your New Testament, Jesus fulfilled every one of those "prophecies" as they appear in the Christian bible. You need to understand that the reason that I put "prophecies" in quotes is that nearly every "prophecy" quoted in the book of Matthew is non-Messianic! Some of them are even made up. Many are "quotes" of non-existing Jewish Scriptures. And the one or two prophecies that are Messianic have been butchered to such a degree that they are untrue to the originals in the Masoretic text or taken out or purposefully taken out of context by the authors of the Christian bible.

Answer for yourself: Why was this done?

Simply said, since the original prophecies in the Jewish Tanakh were not fulfilled by anyone in the first century, then in the selling of Jesus as "the" Messiah to the Gentile nations, who never knew the prophecies in the first place, it was necessary to alter them in order that Jesus of the Gentile Church could "fulfill" them. The unsuspecting and Tanakh deficient Gentiles would never know the difference. This would work for the Biblically ignorant Gentiles but it is an entirely different story with the Jews who were familiar with the Jewish Palestinian Text and could spot the forgery! That is why the LXX (Septuagint) was never accepted by those who could read Hebrew in the first century; they knew better. With the dying out of Hebrew and the Jews only able later to speak Greek then the Greek LXX had to be used. The errors and the purposefully alterations, over time, were not noticed any longer. For those who knew Hebrew and the Palestinian Masoretic Text in the first century it was impossible to believe in any Jewish Messianic pretender who did not fulfill the prophecies that they had both cherished and looked forward to for over hundreds and thousands of years.

WHAT TECHNIQUES WERE USED BY GENTILE CHRISTIANS TO

FALSIFY THE JEWISH TEXTS IN THE CHRISTIAN BIBLES?

There is a specific structure that is used in the Christian bible that manipulates (sentences) in the Tanakh (Yeshua's Bible). I will provide an example using contemporary terms.

Let me give you again the mechanics involved in textual manipulation whereby we end up with something different in meaning that the original author intended.

1. Jewish texts and phrases are lifted out of their places in the Hebrew Scriptures and given meanings which, at best, are forced.
2. Preceding many of the prophetic verses which are quoted is the assertion, "What was said through the prophet was thus fulfilled." In this way the writers of the Christian Scriptures endeavored to show that the Tanakh anticipated and predicted the events recorded in the New Testament and associated with the life of Jesus. In other words, events in his life were back-written and given prophetic authority as it they had been "prophesied."
3. Those happenings, then, are presented as the fulfillment of the Hebrew Scriptures and are considered proof texts.
4. The techniques employed to establish proof include citation of verses out of context, mistranslation, and misquotation.
5. Sometimes a figurative or poetic phrase is mistaken for a straightforward statement and vice versa.
6. Sometimes sayings of different writers, living in different places, and in different centuries are run together.
7. Often two or more of these methods are used in a single quotation.
8. Often there was never such a prophecy and the reference to one is "made up". Even if it was a prophecy, it has nothing to do with the Messiah.

There are a dozen "prophecies" in the book of Matthew. In the examples that follow, will see that they all fall into one or more of these none deceptive categories above.

BUT WHY WAS THE NEW TESTAMENT WRITTEN IN THIS MANNER?

The answer is simple. When you have a result that you want to prove, it's a lot easier to start from the end and go backwards. Having a religious belief then you proof text to find passages that support your position, and not finding them or enough of them, then you create them! Again we must understand the Jews will know the difference, but if you are targeting another group, like the non-Jews often hundreds and thousands of miles away, a little deception with the texts will be noticed by no one; except G-d who knows better!

Answer for yourself: Do you know what the Jewish Masoretic Text/Palestinian Text is, and do you have one or have you ever read it? Have you ever compared it line upon line whereby the "Messianic passages" are compared to see if they read the same?

Before you say "yes," since your Christian Bible often says that it is taken from the Masoretic text, you must realize how Bibles are put together. Your Christian Bible is an eclectic text. This is a fancy word meaning the "best manuscripts" were consulted and some were taken from here and others from there. It is more like a collage or a mixture of "best" texts, at least in the mind of the Bible committee which put it together and decided what was "best" depending on their existing denominational religious belief system. Of what I am speaking is the Jewish Tanakh which is faithful to the Jewish Masoretic text from start to finish. The Christian OT cannot make that claim since a knowledgeable comparison will reveal the alterations of which I speak. This is important for this reason: Since every New Testament quote in the New Testament is taken from the corresponding Christian Old Testament, then it is of major importance to the Christian if it can be shown that the Christian Old Testament is not faithful to the Jewish Scriptures!

So when you read or hear a passage from the New Testament and identify it as a "Messianic fulfillment" since you have never owned or read the true uncorrupted Jewish Palestinian Canon or the Jewish Masoretic Text, you are unable to recognize a "misquote, or a mistranslation, or a verse taken completely out of the context intended by the original author! Since lacking such a text that is faithful to the Jewish Masoretic text, the Bible Yeshua both knew and used, and since most Christians today do not have the skills to read Hebrew, then you would never know of these purposeful mistranslations, misquotations, and verses which have been twisted out of their original context.

Since not possessing this knowledge then it is easy to be misled by one who comes to you and shows you a Christian translation of the Jewish Bible or quotes passages in the New Testament supposedly taken accurately from the Jewish Bible or says: "What are the mathematical odds of any one person fulfilling all of the messianic prophecy? Obviously the scriptures could only have been talking about Jesus."

Hosea 4:6 6 My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, ... (KJV)

The unprepared Christian, not knowing any different, is led astray every time. And the other side of this coin is that when you provide the refuting evidence for the supposed "fulfilled prophecy", most will discount it as "impossible" and fewer still will take the challenge and procure a Jewish Tanakh (Jewish Masoretic Text) and compare the wordings between the Jewish Texts and their Christian Bible to see who's correct and who's in error.

Isa 28:10 10 For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little: (KJV)

If we but followed the admonition of Isaiah the Prophet you would not have this problem, but few study like this. If they only knew the great need for such disciplined study.

So the purpose of these articles that follow is to inform you of this sad situations that exists in Christianity which so few know or understand has happened. We will begin to elaborate on this point by presenting the "prophecies" in the order in which they occur in the book of Matthew along with the evidence which will either prove them to be "fulfilled" or "fraudulent". You can be the judge and make an intelligent decision once you know the facts from fiction.

Shalom.

FALSE PROPHECIES OR FULFILLED MESSIANIC PROPHECIES...WHICH IS IT?

TWO THINGS THE NORMAL CHRISTIAN ALMOST NEVER LEARNS:

Most Christians I know and come in contact never heard that their Christian Bibles are full of "forged Messianic prophecies" that were crafted to sell Jesus to the Gentile nations as the "Jewish Messiah."

What you most likely fail to understand is that many of these non-Jewish nations themselves looked for incarnations of their sun-g-ds as such false solar myths had previously prepared the Gentile nations of the world to expect (the solar men had come and were to come again). Such g-dmen had come in the histories of the non-Jews throughout the whole world and were destined to reappear as promised in the varieties of sun-worship. By the crafty manipulation of particular texts by the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, a whole "theology" was created originally about this "sun-g-dman" and only later applied to and elaborated upon when applied to those believed to be this "re-incarnation" of the sun-g-d. Later the same corrupted texts from the Greek Bible were applied to the Jesus of history. This clever solar-theology which we find in the Greek Old Testament, since a terrible mistranslation and corruption of the Jewish Bible, served as the pattern for further solar-g-dmen as well as Jesus. Simply said If you were like me I grew up hearing repeatedly that my Christian Bible (Old Testament) and the New Testament, were "inspired, infallible, and inerrant" my whole life. It never dawned on me that this might not be the case; not until I went to Seminary and did follow up studies in this regard for ten years following my graduation and my Master's degree. When this "fact" is brought to the attention of a typical Christian emotion always responds with disbelief that such a condition exists or that they have fallen victim to such a deception.

Some attempt to explain these discrepancies by claiming that the Hebrew Bible was altered after the New Testament was written. But a supplement to The Revised Standard Version, a Protestant Bible, states otherwise. Such falsification of the Messianic prophecies in the Christian Bible happened a long time ago and it paved the way for the later publication of a corrupted and adulterated Christian Bible that contains such falsifications (and seldom do Christians stumble onto this fact).

Not possessing this knowledge, they like I, are relegated to quoting and memorizing and attributing such passages in our Christian Old Testaments and New Testaments to Jesus as if they are "Divinely fulfilled" prophecies that prove he is the long awaited Jewish Messiah.

But there is just one problem. The Jews, who have the Jewish Masoretic Text, from which our Christian Bibles should have been translated without errors, do not believe what we do about Jesus and the Messiah.

Answer for yourself: The only way we, as well as the Jews, were told to recognize the Messiah is if the prophecies were "fulfilled" and if they were altered and read completely different, and if we don't know it, then how can it be said for sure that Yeshua is the Messiah or that he fulfilled what was necessary to be the Messiah of Israel? Surely this is a difficult subject and emotion does not guarantee that you arrive at the truth of the matter.

Answer for yourself: Can it be demonstrated that the Jewish Masoretic Text, the Jewish Bible, reads completely different in these crucial Messianic prophecies than what the Greek and all Christians translations have led the Christian to believe?

Let me save you the trouble of scratching your head for an answer because the Jewish Bible reads completely different in these crucial Messianic passages. It is for us, the concerning Christians of the world as well as the followers of Yeshua to find out why and where these "frauds" are among the passages of our Bible. This means that we must separate, if possible, what are Divine revelations from corrupted mistranslations. This is a difficult and time consuming study but necessary. It is like looking for the "needle in the haystack;" but in this situation we are looking for "fraudulent and purposefully mistranslated, misquoted, and lifted out of context passages" that are NOT faithful to the original and have been "twisted" to present a set of beliefs about Jesus which simply are not true. This is not a quick nor easy study as it will pull at your heart and your head till you get mad or even cry. I did both quite often as I undertook such a serious study years ago. All the while I had to remember that G-d never intended we believe a lie or an untruth about Him or Yeshua. Let us never forget that it is not "truth" that sets anyone free, but it is the "knowledge" of the truth that does. Our only fault is that we were not given "truthful knowledge" by our spiritual peers in the Christian church; either because of their failure to possess it or their duplicity to go on with the "program." Neither satisfies the hungry hearts of G-d's children who want to both know Him and worship Him in Spirit and in Truth.

Now let us return to this "Christian Problem."

The Hebrew Old Testament was translated into Greek at Alexandria (285--246 B.C.) in order to provide a copy for the library there, and as a service to the many Greek--speaking Jews. It is known as the Septuagint, a word that suggests the seventy--two scholars whom it is thought were engaged to make the translation, but this is nothing more than engrossing fiction to persuade the masses that such a translation had Divine blessing (you only have to read the introduction to the Septuagint to see what the scholars have to say about it...it is anything but Divine ..and has been called "the worst translated book in the history or mankind"...but yet it became the foundation for all subsequent Christian Bibles no less). The Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible was known to the world 246 years before the birth of Jesus. Therefore, it could not have been altered after the emergence of Christianity. The sad truth of the matter is that the Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures was altered in many places BEFORE the New Testament to render it closer to the theology of the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, who were promoting their own brand of sun-worship and solar myths and sun-g-dman in the form of an already credible book known to many as the Jewish Masoretic Text (Tanakh). Sadly those Jews, as well as Gentile Greeks, who could not read Hebrew, were relegated to reading the Greek translation and never knowing that "key selected passages were altered" to come in line with existing Essene solar belief already inherited in Egypt concerning their sun-g-dmen. Egypt, if you remember, was the center of sun-worship for the world anyway. In order to fortify their theological positions in Alexandria, the religious mecca of the world in their day, the dishonest Essenes now crafted a corrupt translation, whose "corruptness" was known only to those who could read Hebrew and compare the two versions (the Greek translation with the Hebrew translation). This appalling translation was done in order to give "Divine Authority" to the the Essene theological positions as against their theological opponents of the day. The Essenes now were equipped with a Divine Book that said "their religious belief system" was not only the correct one but from G-d no less! Besides this, the New Testament writers drew all their quotes from this "corrupted Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures" which means that many of the supposed "Messianic prophecies" believed to be fulfilled by Jesus are nothing more than the personified actions of the sun-g-ds and sun-g-d men of the world. But let us not be too hard on the Greek Fathers for most were educated in Alexandria, Egypt, and fell prey to the same theological deception as you and I. Not being able to read Greek, let alone Hebrew, the comparisons of these corrupted passages was beyond their capability. Can you relate? But thank HaShem that in the age in which we live such drawbacks no longer stop the honest seeker of truth from coming to this knowledge as many good books and honest people have done this study long before me and the results of such comparative study is today made available to all.

As if these errors were not enough, we have the testimony of the early Church Fathers where they admit that much of the New Testament was later altered and "fixed" in order to justify and strengthen their already existing theological positions concerning this solar g-dmen which, knowing or unknowingly, they both inherited and promoted through the soon to be established organized Catholic Christian Church which controlled the religion of the world and the minds of their followers for almost 1500 years.

Answer for yourself: But can you believe me? Should you? Simply said you have not done the homework in this branch of study and you should not believe anything I say. Only let these studies propel you to your own study where you can personally verify what I have said is the "gospel truth." Since now understanding these facts it is paramount that the intelligent Christian look personally into these "myths" about the Christ and compare them with the true Jewish Masoretic Text to see if each of these Messianic prophecies have been distorted, altered, purposefully mistranslated and misquoted, and taken out of context for some theological agenda to which they have fallen prey.

HAVE YOU HEARD THE SCHOLARS AND THE EARLY CHURCH FATHERS SPEAK? WELL I HAVE AND IT IS TIME YOU DO!

The statements by Church leaders and pioneer researchers speak for themselves:

Dr. Herbert Marsh, Nineteenth--Century English Bishop:

It is a certain fact that several readings in our common printed text are nothing more than alterations made by Origen, whose authority was so great in the Christian Church (A.D. 230) that emendations which he proposed, though, as he himself acknowledged, they were supported by the evidence of no manuscript, were very generally received (. Michaelis, Introduction to the New Testament, ed. Dr. Herbert Marsh (London, 1828), vol. 2, p. 368).

Johann Lorenz Von Mosheim, Eighteenth--Century Ecclesiastical Historian:

Not long after Christ's ascension into heaven, several histories of his life and doctrines, full of pious frauds and fabulous wonders, were composed by persons whose intentions perhaps were not bad, but whose writings discovered the greatest superstition and ignorance. Nor was this all; productions appeared which were imposed upon the world by fraudulent men, [such] as the writings of the holy apostles" (Von Mosheim, Ecclesiastical History (London, 1810), vol. 1, p. 109).

Johann Salomo Semler, Eighteenth--Century Theologian:

The Christian doctors never brought their sacred books before the common people; although people in general have been wont to think otherwise, during the first ages, they were in the hands of the clergy only (Rev. Robert Taylor, The Diegesis (Boston, 1873), p. 48).

William Wake, Eighteenth--Century Archbishop of Canterbury:

It would be useless to insist on all the spurious pieces which were attributed to St. Paul alone, in the primitive ages of Christianity (Wake, Genuine Epistles of the Apostolical Fathers (London, 1719), p. 98).

Lucius Coelius Firmianes Lactantius, Third--Century Church Father:

Among those who seek power and gain from their religion, there will never be wanting an inclination to forge and lie for it (Conyers Middleton, D.D., Letters from Rome (London, 1752), vol. 1, p. 51).

St. Gregory, Fourth--Century Bishop of Nazianzus, writing to St. Jerome:

A little jargon is all that is necessary to impose on the people. The less they comprehend, the more they admire. Our forefathers and doctors have often said not what they thought, but what circumstances and necessity dictated (C. F. Volney, The Ruins (Boston, 1872), p. 177).

Dr. Conyers Middleton, Eighteenth Century:

There never was any period of time in all ecclesiastical history in which so many rank heresies were publicly professed nor in which so many spurious books were forged and published by the Christians, under the names of Christ, and the apostles, and the apostolic writers, as in those primitive ages. Several of these forged books are frequently cited, and applied [in] defense of Christianity, by the most eminent fathers of the same ages, as true and genuine pieces (Middleton, vol. 1, p. 59).

Dr. I. Hooykaas, Nineteenth--Century Reverend:

Not one of these five books (four Gospels and Acts) [was] really written by the person whose name it bears, and they are all of more recent date than the heading would lead us to suppose (Drs. H. Oort, I. Hooykaas, and A. Kuneh, The Bible for Learners, trans. Philip A. Wicksteed (Boston, 1878), vol. 3, p. 24).

St. Faustus, Fifth--Century French Bishop:

Many things have been inserted by our ancestors in the speeches of our Lord which, though put forth under his name, agree not with his faith; especially since—as already it has been often proved—these things were written not by Christ, nor [by] his apostles, but a long while after their assumption, by I know not what sort of half Jews, not even agreeing with themselves, who made up their tale out of reports and opinions merely, and yet, fathering the whole upon the names of the apostles of the Lord or on those who were supposed to follow the apostles, they maliciously pretended that they had written their lies and conceits according to them (Taylor, Diegesis, p. 66).

It is certain that the New Testament was not written by Christ himself, nor by his apostles, but a long while after them, by some unknown persons, who, lest they should not be credited when they wrote of affairs they were little acquainted with, affixed to their works the names of the apostles, or of such as were supposed to have been their companions, asserting that what they had written themselves was written according to these persons to whom they ascribed it (Ibid., p. 114).

To strengthen belief in the resurrection of Jesus, St. Irenaeus invented many stories of others being raised from the dead (Doane, Bible Myths And Parallels In World Religions, p. 231).

As Jeremiah Jones, an eighteenth--century reverend, comments:

Such pious frauds were very common among Christians even in the first three centuries; and a forgery of this nature, with the view above mentioned, seems natural and probable (Ibid).

The following statement illustrates the attitude of the early Church fathers towards truthful reporting and the gullibility of the masses:

St. Augustine, Fifth--Century Bishop:

I was already Bishop of Hippo when I went into Ethiopia with some servants of Christ there to preach the Gospel. In this country, we saw many men and women without heads, who had two great eyes in their breasts; and in countries still more southly, we saw people who had but one eye in their foreheads (Taylor, Syntagma of the Evidences of the Christian Religion (Boston, 1828), p. 33).

The earliest Church officials saw nothing wrong with fooling the ignorant masses, reasoning that they were ultimately saving a populace steeped in unrighteousness, as the New Testament testifies:

I Peter 4:3

Let the time that is past suffice for doing what the Gentiles like to do, living in licentiousness, passions, drunkenness, revels, carousing, and lawless idolatry.

BETTER RETHINK AND STUDY TO FIND THE TRUTH ABOUT PAUL AND "HIS GOSPEL" AS HE CALLS IT IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

The authors of the New Testament had a powerful personality to emulate in Saul of Tarsus (Paul), who openly advocated "pious fraud" and "lying"

Answer for yourself: Read the following quotes taken from what you and I were told was an "inspired, infallible, and inerrant" document and tell me that G-d put his stamp of approval on such lying..if you can. Can you?

Romans 3:7--8

But if through my falsehood G--d's truthfulness abounds to His glory, why am I still being condemned as a sinner? And why not do evil that good may come, as some people slanderously charge us with saying? Their condemnation is just.

I Corinthians 9:20--23

To the Jews I [Paul] became a Jew, in order to win Jews; to those under the law, I became as one under the law, that I might win those under the law. To those outside the law I became as one outside the law...that I might win those outside the law. To the weak I became weak, that I might win the weak. I have become all things to all men, that I might by all means save some. I do it all for the sake of the gospel, that I may share in its blessings.

II Corinthians 12:16

But granting that I myself did not burden you, I was crafty, you say, and got the better of you by guile.

Philippians 1:18

What then? Only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is proclaimed, and in that I rejoice.

The veracity of the New Testament accounts is called all the more into question considering that Paul wrote more than one half of it!

BUT PAUL IS NOT THE ONLY ONE GUILTY OF PURPOSEFULLY MISREPRESENTING THE JEWISH SCRIPTURES IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

Besides deliberately deceiving the people, the authors of the New Testament, if honestly unfamiliar with the Hebrew Bible, regardless distorted many facts. As you read the following understand these are not all used as "Messianic fulfillments" but only given to you to show you how prolific such misrepresenting of the truth actually is in the New Testament.

Answer for yourself: Where is the handiwork of the Holy Spirit in what follows?

II Chronicles 24:20--21

Then the spirit of G--d took possession of Zechariah the son of Jehoiada the priest;...and they conspired against him, and by the command of the king they stoned him with stones in the court of the House of the L--rd.

New Testament Distortion Matthew 23:35 ...that upon you may come all the righteous blood shed on earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah the son of Barachiah, whom you murdered between the Sanctuary and the altar. Zechariah was the son of Jehoiada, not Barachiah.

I Samuel 21:2

Then David came to Nob, to Ahimelech the priest, and Ahimelech came to meet David trembling, and said to him: "Why are you alone, and no man with you?"

New Testament Distortion Mark 2:25--26 And he [Jesus] said to them: "Have you never read what David did, when he was in need and was hungry, he and those who were with him; how he entered the House of G--d, when Abiathar was high priest,..."

Ahimelech was high priest at that time. Only after his death (I Samuel 22:18) did his son, Abiathar, succeed him:

I Samuel 30:7 And David said to Abiathar the priest, the son of Ahimelech

II Samuel 5:6--7 And the king and his men went to Jerusalem against the Jebusites....David took the stronghold of Zion, the same is the city of David.

New Testament Distortion Luke 2:4--5 And Joseph also went up from Galilee, from the city of Nazareth, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David, to be enrolled with Mary, his betrothed wife who was with child. Jerusalem, not Bethlehem, is called the "city of David."

Genesis 11:26 When Terah had lived seventy years he became the father of Abram....

Genesis 12:4 ...Abram was seventy--five years old when he departed from Haran.

Genesis 11:32 The days of Terah were 205 years and Terah died in Haran.

New Testament Distortion Acts 7:4 Then he [Abraham] departed from the land of the Chaldeans, and lived in Haran. And after his father died, G--d removed him from there into the land [in which] you are now living. Abraham left Haran when Terah was 145 (70+75), which was sixty years before Terah died (205 – 145).

Genesis 46:27 And the sons of Joseph, who were born to him in Egypt, were two souls; all the souls of the house of Jacob that came into Egypt were seventy.

New Testament Distortion Acts 7:14 And Joseph sent and called to him Jacob his father and his kindred; seventy--five souls.

Joshua 24:32 The bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up from Egypt, were buried in Shechem, in the portion of ground that Jacob bought from the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem, for one hundred pieces of money; and they became the inheritance of the children of Joseph.

New Testament Distortion Acts 7:15--16 And Jacob went down into Egypt, and he died, he and our fathers, and they were carried over to Shechem and laid in the tomb that Abraham had bought for the sum of money from the sons of Hamor of Shechem. Only Joseph was buried in Shechem, and Jacob bought the plot, not Abraham.

Exodus 14:22 And the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea on dry land; the waters were a wall to them on their right side and on their left.

New Testament Distortion I Corinthians 10:1 I want you to know, brethren, that our fathers were all under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, and all were baptized to Moses in the cloud and in the sea.... One is baptized in water, not under a cloud, and the Jews stood on dry land, not in the sea itself.

Numbers 25:9 And those that died by the plague were 24,000.

New Testament Distortion I Corinthians 10:8 We must not indulge in fornication as some of them did, and 23,000 fell in a single day.

Galatians 3:16 Now the promises were made to Abraham and to his seed. It does not say, “and to his seeds,” referring to many, but, referring to one, “and to your seed,” which is Christ.

The Hebrew word zera (seed) is invariably used in the singular when referring to progeny, whether one person or many are meant [again Paul misleads his readers due to "his gospel" and for theological advantage...by claiming prophetic authority for his unique doctrines which were never held by those he quotes ....and his readership, being non-Jews, surely did not know the difference...do you?]. For example, wherever G--d promised to bless Abraham's “seed,” his descendants were intended:

Genesis 13:16 I will make your seed as the dust of the earth; so that if one could count the dust of the earth, then your seed would also be counted.

Genesis 15:13 Then the L--rd said to Abram: “Know for sure that your seed will be sojourners in a land that is not theirs, and they will be slaves there, and they will be oppressed for four hundred years.” Genesis 26:4 ...and I will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and will give to your seed all these lands...

Genesis 22:17 ...I will surely bless you, and I will surely multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand upon the seashore; and your seed shall possess the gate of their enemies; and through your seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because you have hearkened to My voice.

Exodus 24:6--8 And Moses took half the blood and put it in basins; and half the blood he sprinkled on the altar. Then he took the Book of the Covenant and read in the hearing of the people; and they said: “All that the L--rd has spoken we will do and obey.” And Moses took the blood and sprinkled it upon the people, and said: “Behold, the blood of the covenant that the L--rd has made with you in accordance with all these words.”

New Testament Distortion Hebrews 9:19--20 For when every commandment of the law had been declared by Moses to all the people, he took the blood of calves and goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled on both the book itself and all the people, saying: "This is the blood of the covenant which G--d commanded you." The Book of the Covenant was not sprinkled with blood.

Genesis 47:31 And he [Jacob] said: "Swear to me." And he [Joseph] swore to him. Then Israel [Jacob] bowed himself upon the head of his bed.

New Testament Distortion Hebrews 11:21 By faith Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph, bowing in worship over the head of his staff. Joseph bowed upon the head of his bed, not his staff.

GETTING PREPARED FOR THE MOST IMPORTANT STUDY OF YOUR LIFE

Some attempt to explain these discrepancies by claiming that the Hebrew Bible was altered after the New Testament was written. But a supplement to The Revised Standard Version, a Protestant Bible, states otherwise. I alluded to the following "facts" earlier in this article. After having read the above examples of quotes of scholars and Church Fathers, as well as the conflicting passages, the following is presented again to make a lingering impression because it is FACT and can be proven upon serious investigation of the corruption of the Jewish Scriptures; the Bible Yeshua used!

The Hebrew Old Testament was translated into Greek at Alexandria (285--246 B.C.) in order to provide a copy for the library there, and as a service to the many Greek--speaking Jews. It is known as the Septuagint, a word that suggests the seventy--two scholars whom it is thought were engaged to make the translation. The Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible was known to the world 246 years before the birth of Jesus. Therefore, it could not have been altered after the emergence of Christianity. The sad truth of the matter is that the Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures was altered in many places BEFORE the New Testament to render it closer to the theology of the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, who were promoting their own brand of sun-worship and solar myths and sun-g-dman in the form of an already credible book known to many as the Jewish Masoretic Text. Sadly those Jews, as well as Gentile Greeks, who could not read Hebrew, were relegated to reading the Greek translation and never knowing that "key selected passages were altered" to come in line with existing Essene solar belief already inherited in Egypt, the center of sun-worship for the world anyway. In order to fortify their theological positions in Alexandria, the religious mecca of the world in their day, the dishonest Essenes now crafted a corrupt translation, which was known only to those who could read Hebrew, in order to give "Divine Authority" to their theological positions as against their theological opponents of the day. Besides this, the New Testament writers drew all their quotes from this "corrupted translation of the Jewish Scriptures" which means that many of the supposed "Messianic prophecies" believed to be fulfilled by Jesus are nothing more than the personified actions of the sun-g-ds and sun-g-d men of the world.

As if these errors were not enough, we have the testimony of the early Church Fathers as well than much of the New Testament was altered and "fixed" in order to justify and strengthen their already existing theological positions concerning this solar g-dmen which, knowing or unknowingly, they both inherited and promoted through the soon to be established organized Catholic Christian Church which would come to control the religion of the world for almost 1500 years.

Since now understanding these facts it is paramount that the intelligent Christian look into these "myths" about the Christ and compare them with the true Jewish Masoretic Text to see if each of these Messianic prophecies have been distorted, altered, purposefully mistranslated and misquoted, and taken out of context for some theological agenda to which we have fallen prey.

This is not an easy study...it is a sad study! It was not easy for me as an ordained Pastor no less and it will not be for you. All that I can say is G-d is not the author of lies and deceptions. Mankind has that dubious honor so without further delay let us see if we really have "the faith once given to the Saints" by the Jerusalem Church or if we are immersed in pagan sun-worship dressed up to make it look as it is a Divine revelation from G-d about Jesus. Either the true Jewish Messianic prophecies were fulfilled by Jesus or they were not. Once seeing the facts and both sides of the two conflicting Bibles, then you can make an intelligent decision. However, lacking such knowledge and as of yet not making a personal comparison of the forgery of the Jewish Bible, you fall prey to "faith alone" and though sincere it is without question, once seeing the evidence, "sincerely wrong." You might not know this yet but I assure you the Jewish Rabbis and Jewish people, as well as Yeshua and G-d know how good minded Christians have fallen for the "lie." It is time we come to the knowledge of the truth and then what you do is up to you....you can either discount what you learn or you can repent of the idolatry that you and I have followed [without knowing] and adjust your worship of the Father in order that from now on your worship of the Creator not be tainted with idolatry but be done in both Spirit and in Truth. Shalom.

SINCE THE PROPHECIES WERE NOT FULFILLED THEN WHO WAS JESUS....MESSIAH OR PROPHET?

We have shown, in the previous articles, that Jesus did not preside in the Messianic kingdom and did not achieve what the Messiah is to do on this earth (according to the Jewish Scriptures). Consequently, he was not the Hebrew Messiah described in the Bible.

DICHOTOMY: JEWISH OR CHRISTIAN MESSIAH?

Christianity has assigned him a function as the "Christian Messiah," but make no mistake about it....he is not the Messiah as awaited in Judaism. What Jesus is in Christianity is not of concern to Judaism because the prophecies were not fulfilled by him. This will be hard for Christians to hear let alone even investigate, but for those who interpret Scripture within the traditional meanings, and who are familiar with the corruption of the Jewish Masoretic text by the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, as well as how these "solar myths" were later applied to Jesus Christ, then it is very obvious to those "learned in such areas" that the Jesus of history and the Moshiach that the Jews were told by the Prophets to expect are obviously different figures.

SOME THINGS NEED TO BE UNDERSTOOD BEFORE WE PROCEED

Not everyone is at the same level of understanding and knowledge, thus it is hard to "walk together" until such information is obtained. When dealing with the subject of Jesus and the Messianic promises there are those who respond angrily when their core beliefs are challenged. Others will say "he is not a historical figure because nothing outside the New Testament alludes to his existence." One thing is for certain; namely, that there is nothing outside of the New Testament that explicitly speaks of his existence. To say that this is problematic is an understatement. But that is not our study for today.

But in these series of articles Bet Emet wishes to deal with the "Messianic texts" both in the Tanakh as well as the corrupted Christian's Old Testaments, and thus by default the equally corrupted quotes as found from this Christian Old Testament as found in the New Testament. In order to do so we have to make some assumptions; namely, that the man described as Jesus in the New Testament is "a historical person." So for those further advanced in your studies I would ask for some grace here as we attempt to educate our vast readership to what the "true" Messianic promises really were in the first place and their fulfillment, or lack of, as well as their relationship to the Jesus of the New Testament. For there is one thing is for certain, and I testify from experience as an ordained Pastor who at one time knew no better, the vast majority of the Christian Church never are taught correctly concerning the "true" Messianic prophecies. For this to be done we have to assume and come from the perspective that the Jesus as found in the New Testament was a "real person."

Also it must be said that in such a quest for truth we chosen not to deal with the "paganized Gentile accounts of false g-ds" as applied to Jesus in the New Testament. We wish to deal strictly from a Jewish viewpoint of Jesus as found in the New Testament. We will read and approach the New Testament as if we were Jews in the first century and walked with Jesus and pick from among the New Testament it's "Jewish parts" which give us a more correct picture of the "historical Jesus." Only in this way, and understanding the Jewish hopes and Scriptures, can one make a credible analysis of the Messianic hope of Israel and see if anyone fulfilled those hopes and Scriptures. Again, for this to be done one has to be familiar with the true Jewish Bible, its Messianic prophecies, as well as how they are carried over correctly, or not carried over correctly in the New Testament. In this way then we shall be able to evaluate accurately if the Jesus of the New Testament fulfilled the Jewish Scriptures and prophecies or if "false prophecies" and "false fulfillments" of fraudulent prophecies and corrupted translations of the "true Messianic prophecies" have been applied to him and events in his life as to make it look to those not familiar with the Jewish Bible as if he had fulfilled the Messianic hope. Simply, this is the selling of the "Jesus of the New Testament" as the Messiah to those who don't know the Jewish Bible and what the true Messianic prophecies really are in the first place. Such was the Gentile world of the first century and we are little better off today since the Jewish Bible was corrupted and few, if any Christians, are aware of such facts or have seen these corruptions when comparing the Jewish Tanakh with their Old and New Testaments.

When we are finished we should be able to accomplish several things:

- Obtain a greater knowledge of "what is" and "what is not" a true Messianic prophecy
- Recognize how, what ways, and in what places the Jewish Masoretic Text has been altered when translated into the Greek. Once seeing this it is easy to trace such "corruptions of the Jewish text" as it become the Christian Old Testament and the further quotes taken from it as found in the New Testament today.
- Realize which of the Messianic prophecies, if any, have been fulfilled and those which remain unfulfilled and yet today await the coming of the Messiah for their fulfillment.
- A greater understanding why the true Messianic prophecies were not fulfilled in the first century and understanding where the failure lay for their unfulfillment.
- And finally come to the truth of the matter if Jesus, or anyone as of yet, can truly be called "the Messiah" of Israel.

Here, in this article, I wish to share with you how the New Testament associates Jesus and the Messianic hopes when in reality such a scenario, in the strictest sense, does not exist. When one possesses the above knowledge [the corruption of the Masoretic Jewish Text when translated into Greek, the falsification of Jewish prophecies to mimic sun-worship by the Essenes of Alexandria, Egypt, and their later association with Jesus in the New Testament by these same Essenes] then Jesus the Jew and Messianic hopes will be separated from the Messiah-Christ of Christianity! We do this because it is of interest and it is a reasonable question to ask in light of the above information: "Who was Jesus"? Again it is necessary to say that many make the charge that since the Jesus of the New Testament cannot be found outside of the New Testament that such a "character" is not a historical person. Be that as it may, it is not my attention to get into this sticky subject in this article, but rather approach the texts as if he were. That is a study for another day....believe me!

FACTS ABOUT THE JESUS OF HISTORY...THE JEWISH JESUS OF THE FIRST CENTURY

First, let's get a little background into Jesus' world. Jesus grew up in the beautiful Galilee, which unfortunately was under an unhappy political situation. There was oppressive Roman occupation. The Jewish people longed to rid their land of the unjust foreign rulers. There was great unhappiness over burdensome taxes, poverty, and disease. Devoutly religious people fervently prayed for the appearance of the Messiah to take away their worldly tribulations and bring to them the glorious Messianic promises. Pseudo-Messiahs were known to have appeared. The world of Jesus was psychologically prepared for the day of the Messiah's coming, the day of political, material and spiritual redemption. The words, "Repent, for the kingdom of G-d is at hand," were easily listened to and believed.

Now, let us submit a short summary of what Jesus' association with the Messianic expectations may have been. This story is possible from the Jewish viewpoint. True, it cannot be proved. However, it is just as true that it cannot be disproved.

As we have said, Jesus' world was religiously emotional, waiting for the Messiah to appear. He was, and would have been, caught up in this Messianic passion. Mentally he was able, in some way, to accept himself as G-d's messenger. In some mystical way, he saw himself as part of the vision of hope. He was a leader and a charismatic preacher and personality. The Jews who followed him throughout the Holy Land were gripped by his zeal and the aura surrounding him. Jesus preached repentance in order to enter into the Messianic kingdom of G-d. His message was right! He performed miracles, or should I say G-d performed miracles through him, in order to attract multitudes to his Judaic message. He said he was sent by G-d to do G-d's will. He said his message was for the Jewish people only. Others would convert to Judaism, and join his people.

He performed miracles and had a successful ministry. G-d was glorified by the miracles he performed, not Jesus. People who had faith G-d could cure them were cured by Jesus. But, miracles were not a sign Jesus had any God-like or Messiah-like power, for evil people, Jesus' disciples, and even natural processes could perform miracles also. Of course, the Hebrew Bible abounds with G-d's miracles performed through human beings. In fact, both Jesus and his disciples did not believe miracles were a sign of his being special. If anything, Jesus tried to hide the fact he performed cures, cast out devils, raised the dead, etc., by asking those he helped not to tell about it to others.

Jesus preached about the necessity for repentance. He advised the multitudes that the kingdom was coming soon, so they should get back to doing what G-d has asked them to do through the Scriptures. Never did he preach to the multitudes a message that belief in his future death and resurrection would make vicarious atonement for their sins!

Read that again.

He never preached about his supposed vicarious atonement. His message of repentance was the traditional one of Judaism.

Some may have thought he was a prophet, and he said so himself. The people who followed him were confused about the mysteries of the kingdom as well as about who Jesus was. Very strangely, his own disciples were not made aware of his Messianic claim, according to the New Testament, until a certain time. Then, again to the writers of the New Testament, when Jesus did say he believed he was the Messiah, he asked for secrecy. Adding to this amazing situation, even after he openly laid claim to being the Messiah his disciples "doubted" him. Even after his disciples supposedly heard G-d call him His Son, they still doubted him. Indeed, some even doubted after viewing him supposedly risen from the dead. Jesus' disciples, again according to the New Testament, lacked faith in him and his power, lacked understanding of his religious teaching, and, most surprisingly, lacked even the slightest comprehension of his alleged role as a vicarious atoning savior.

When he was killed by the Romans as a political danger, a presumed king of the Jews, those who believed he was the Messiah must have been aghast because the Messiah was not to die but triumph over Israel's enemies.

In desperation, with no Biblical basis, but with a clinging to hope, they stretched his activities into a "second coming" in hopes the prophecies could yet be fulfilled by Jesus. Jesus' followers deemed necessary his return to fulfill the function of Messiah, as Biblically indicated (of course the Bible to which I refer is the traditional Jewish Palestinian text..the real Masoretic Text). The generation around Jesus waited for his return during their lifetime, as stated in the New Testament. Those after his generation, disappointed that the expectation of his second coming came to naught, advanced his return to an unknown future time. And so, the non-Jewish environment in which Christianity thrived, after the parting from its Judaic roots, accepted the Messiah in terms of an indefinite and far in the future (two thousand years now) return. There is no Hebrew Scriptural foundation for this belief of Christianity.

Jesus' Jewish followers, who believed in repentance and the kingdom of G-d on earth, and who were attracted to his message by the miracles he performed, left him as recorded in the New Testament. History records the same thing. Why?

Answer for yourself: Was it because his mission as Messiah was seen false at his execution and only magnified at the failure of his return where his followers had hoped the prophecies would then be fulfilled? But time rolled on and the prophecies were never fulfilled, and now we find ourselves 2000 years later waiting their fulfillment as well! You need to know that the Messianic identity is not to be found in miracles because many did them. The proof is in the "pudding" they say and these people expected the hopes of the Prophets to be fulfilled. They were not.

Let us now continue now with the Scriptural verification of the Judaic understanding of the life of Jesus as well as questions as to who he was and what his mission was as presented in the pages of the New Testament (as seen from a Jewish perspective).

JESUS WAS SENT TO DO G-D'S WILL

John 5:30, "... I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father, which hath sent me."

John 7:16-17, "... My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of G-d, or. . . of myself"

John 8:26-29, "... I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him. . . . I do nothing of myself but as my Father hath taught me, . . . And he that sent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always those things that please him."

John 12:49, "For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak."

Jesus believed he had a special mission from G-d and a special relationship with G-d. He believed he knew G-d's will in a unique way. His mission was to do G-d's will, which is expressed in G-d's doctrine written in the Scriptures and known to Jews. His actions were derived from his feelings about G-d's desires, not his own. In reading these verses, we readily see, using unbiased judgment, that Jesus' mystical feelings about his special relationship with G-d did not impinge on G-d's sovereignty.

JESUS CAME TO JEWS ONLY...NOT THE GENTILES

Matthew 15:24, "But he answered and said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

Mark 1:38, "And he said unto them, Let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also; for therefore came I forth."

Matthew 10:5-7, "These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Matthew 7:6, Mark 7:27, "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, . . . Let the children first be filled: for it is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it unto the dogs."

Jesus said his mission was for Jews only and told his disciples also to preach only to the people of Israel, Jews alone. His mission was to teach in the towns of Israel. His message was the message of Judaism concerning the coming of the kingdom of G-d, the Messianic earthly kingdom of G-d. He preached repentance so that those separated from G-d would be accepted by G-d into the Messianic kingdom.

GENTILES WERE EXPECTED TO CONVERT TO JUDAISM-BUT NOT AS PAUL BELIEVED TO CHRISTIANITY

Romans 9:24-26, (Paul) "Even us,. . . not of the Jews only, but also of the Gentiles. . . As he saith, . . . I will call them my people, which were not my people; . . . And it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people; there shall they be called the children of the living G-d."

Answer for yourself: What is wrong in the above verse?

Paul took this from Hosea 1:10, in which it is quite clear that the "people of Israel" are meant, not Gentiles...Paul applied it to Gentiles when the original intent of the Prophet was different...this is wrong!

Jews will be returned to G-d through repentance and become beloved.

John 10:16, "And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd."

Now before you go reading into the passage that Jesus was referring to Gentiles in Christianity we need to read Isaiah 56:6,8, "Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the Lord. . . every one that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant; The Lord G-d which gathered the outcasts of Israel saith, Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him."

Also read Ezekiel 34:23-24, "And I will set up one shepherd over them,. . . even my servant David;. . . And I the Lord will be their G-d. . . "

These two passages are the background. In reading them we see that they depict the gathering of the Gentiles to Judaism through the light of Israel in the time of the Messiah and not the creation of a new Gentile religion which replaces Biblical Judaism! The non-Jew was expected by G-d to become part of His people and not create a separate religion which persecutes His people. I guess G-d did not see it coming! The Hebrew Bible does not describe the Messiah getting a "second people," but that the Gentiles convert to Judaism (either full conversion or part-conversion). Furthermore, it is G-d's voice which will be heard and obeyed. The Davidic Messiah will be the leader of the people of Israel, not their G-d. Through this Davidic Messiah those who have ears to hear will know that G-d is speaking through His anointed.

BUT MIRACLES PROVE JESUS IS THE MESSIAH ...DON'T THEY?

At this point, it would be interesting to discover what meaning the performance of miracles had in the ministry of Jesus. In spite of all the anti-Judaism sentiment in the New Testament, it is said repeatedly that the Jewish masses followed Jesus in his preaching activities throughout the Holy Land.

Answer for yourself: How did he attract people?

Let's look into the enormous excitement he created when he did miraculous things. Apparently, G-d performed miracles through Jesus, in large part, in order to attract the multitudes to his message. The miracles were not a sign of his having G-d's power, but of functioning for G-d. It was G-d's miracles. We know this because it was G-d who was praised, and G-d whom the people glorified, and G-d in whom they had faith. Furthermore, we see in the Bible that miracles are not of themselves a sign of holy power, but can be performed by the ungodly also. We should know, too, that miracles can be accomplished by nature's process itself. Jesus' followers were supposedly capable of performing miracles also. Therefore, this further strengthens the argument against miracles being a sign Jesus had the power of G-d in a unique manner, as his followers were assuredly not special like Jesus is claimed to be in Christianity. Now, we'll quote Scripture for all of the above.

JESUS WAS FOLLOWED BY THE MULTITUDES BECAUSE OF THE MIRACLES OF HEALING THE SICK, CASTING OUT DEVILS, RAISING THE DEAD, ETC.

Matthew 12:15, Matthew 14:14,36, "... and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all;. . . And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick. And besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole."

Mark 3:7-8 (Matthew 4:24-25) (Luke 6:17), "... and a great multitude from Galilee followed him, and from Judea, And from Jerusalem,. . . when they had heard what great things he did, came unto him."

Luke 5:15, Luke 6:18-19, Luke 7:21, "But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him: and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities. And they that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed. And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for there went a virtue out of him, and healed them all. . . he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto many that were blind he gave sight."

John 6:2, John 12:9,11, "And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased. Much people of the Jews. . . came not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead. . . by reason of him (Lazarus) many of the Jews. . . believed on Jesus."

JESUS PERFORMED MIRACLES IN G-D'S NAME TO GLORIFY G-D

Matthew 15:30-31, "And great multitudes came unto him, and he healed them: Insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the G-d of Israel."

Mark 2:12, Mark 5:19, "And immediately he arose, took up the bed, and went. . . they were all amazed, and glorified G-d. Jesus. . . saith unto him, Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee. . ."

Luke 9:43, Luke 17:15, Luke 18:43, Luke 19:3 7, "And they were all amazed at the mighty power of G-d,. . .

And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified G-d, And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying G-d: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto G-d. . . the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise G-d with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen."

FAITH IN G-D CAUSED HEALING...NOT FAITH IN JESUS!!!

Luke 8:48, Luke 17:19, Luke 18:42 (Matthew 9:22) (Mark 5:34) (Mark 10:52), "And he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole;. . . And he said unto him, Arise, go thy way: thy faith hath made thee whole. And Jesus said unto him, Receive thy sight: thy faith hath saved thee."

THE UNG-DLY ALSO CAN PERFORM MIRACLES

Matthew 7:22-23 (Luke 13:2 7), "Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

Matthew 24:24, "For there shall arise false Christs, (Messiahs), and false prophets, and shall show great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect."

Acts 8:9-11 (author) "But there was a certain man, called Simon, which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one: To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of G-d. And to him they had regard, because of the long time he had bewitched them with sorceries."

JESUS' FOLLOWERS ALSO CAN PERFORM MIRACLES

Mark 3:14-15 (Matthew 10:1), "And he ordained twelve, . . . to have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils:"

Mark 16:17-18, "And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils;. . . they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

THE HEBREW SCRIPTURES DESCRIBE G-D'S MIRACLES WHICH HUMAN BEINGS PERFORMED

Exodus 17:5-6, "And the Lord said unto Moses. . . thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so. . ."

Numbers 11:2, "And the people cried unto Moses; and when Moses prayed unto the Lord, the fire was quenched."

Numbers 21:8-9, "And the Lord said unto Moses, . . . And Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived."

Joshua 10:12-14, "Then spake Joshua to the Lord. . . and he said in the sight of Israel, Sun, stand thou still. . . and thou, Moon. And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed. . . And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the Lord hearkened unto the voice of a man. . ."

I Kings 17:1,16, "And Elijah. . . said. . . As the Lord G-d of Israel liveth, . . . there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word. And the barrel of meal wasted not, neither did the cruse of oil fail, according to the word of the Lord, which he spake by Elijah."

II Kings 1:10, "And Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, If I be a man of G-d, then let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty."

II Kings 2:8, "And Elijah took his mantle, and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, so that they two went over on dry ground."

II Kings 2 :21-22, "And he (Elisha) went forth unto the spring of the waters, . . . and said, Thus saith the Lord, I have healed these waters; there shall not be from thence any more death or barren land. So the waters were healed unto this day, according to the saying of Elisha which he spake."

II Kings 5:10,14, "And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean. Then went he down, . . . according to the saying of the man of G-d: and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean."

HEBREW SCRIPTURES & MIRACLES OF REVIVING THE DEAD

I Kings 17:20-22,24, "And he (Elijah) cried unto the Lord, and said, O Lord my G-d, hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son" And he stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried unto the Lord, and said, O Lord my G-d, I pray thee, let this child's soul come into him again. And the Lord heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived. And the woman said to Elijah, Now by this I know that thou art a man of G-d, and that the word of the Lord in thy mouth is truth."

II Kings 4:32-35,3 7, "And when Elisha was come into the house, behold the child was dead, and laid upon his bed. He went. . . and prayed unto the Lord. . . . and he stretched himself upon the child; and the flesh of the child waxed warm. . . . and the child opened his eyes. Then she went in, and fell at his feet,. . . and took up her son, and went out."

II Kings 13:20-21, "And Elisha died, and they buried him. . . . as they were burying a man, . . . they cast the man into the sepulchre of Elisha: and when the man was let down, and touched the bones of Elisha, he revived, and stood up on his feet."

We have just observed that the performance of miracles was not the identifying mark that one was or was not the Messiah for many were used by G-d to heal others. Observe also that the credit for the miracles performed is given to the Lord G-d. No one, not Moses, nor Joshua, nor Elijah, nor Elisha, whose miracles are reported, claimed special powers for himself. They merely are said to be men of G-d through whom G-d performed the miracles. They functioned for G-d. If we supposed Jesus to be a "good" Jew then there would be no difference; especially in light that Judaism NEVER taught that the Messiah was to be G-d! So any miracles, if done by Messiah (whether in the past or future) are not to glorify him but only the Creator G-d.

HEBREW SCRIPTURES & MIRACLES OF ASCENDING TO HEAVEN

Genesis 5:24, "And Enoch walked with G-d: and he was not; for G-d took him."

II Kings 2:11, ". . . and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven."

This special happening to Elijah can be compared to the account of Jesus allegedly ascending to heaven in Luke 24:51, ". . . he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven." Both Enoch and Elijah had special ascents. Our conclusion on this point is that no matter what Christianity makes of Jesus' supposed ascent, he could not be called unique in this occurrence reported in the New Testament.

MIRACLES ARE NOT A SIGN OF JESUS' SPECIAL HEAVENLY NATURE

Luke 17:5, "And the apostles said unto the Lord (Jesus), Increase our faith."

If the miracles Jesus performed were to prove he had God-like power, as Christianity believes, or that he was the Messiah, which is also their belief, the miracles proved no such thing to his own disciples. This verse relates that all the disciples, whom he taught and who witnessed his miracles, needed more faith in him and his message (think).

Mark 8:11 -12 (Matthew 12:38-39) (Matthew 16:1-4) (Luke 11:29), "And the Pharisees came forth, and began to question with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, . . . Why doth this generation seek after a sign? verily I say unto you, There shall no sign be given unto this generation."

Obviously, the people as well as Jesus himself did not believe that the miracles he performed were a sign of his special nature. For a "sign from heaven" is requested and denied, apart from the miracles Jesus had been performing. They knew what few Christians today know; namely, that the performance of miracles attested not to the Messiah but only the fulfillment of expected promises and prophecies made by the Holy men of old.

JESUS PREACHED REPENTANCE FOR THE KINGDOM, NOT VICARIOUS ATONEMENT

Matthew 6:10,13, (Luke 11:2), "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. . . . For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen."

It is G-d's earthly kingdom which Jesus preached.

Luke 4:18-19, ". . . he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; . . . heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, . . . sight to the blind, . . . liberty (to) them. . . bruised, To preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

Please notice that nothing is said about belief in Jesus' dying for mankind's sins in order to make vicarious atonement. The word "gospel" here is associated with Judaism's teachings. And it is Judaism that the historical Jesus always taught.

Luke 8:1 (Luke 10:9), ". . . he went throughout every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of G-d..."

Mark 1:14 (Matthew 4:23) (Matthew 9:35) (Matthew 10:7), ". preaching the gospel of the kingdom of G-d."

Luke 4:43 (Luke 9:2,11) (Luke 12:31), ". . . I must preach the kingdom of G-d to other cities also: for therefore am I sent."

Jesus' mission was to preach the good news, the glad tidings, the gospel of the kingdom of G-d. These terms, which Christianity has taken for its meaning of Christology, actually refer to Jesus' preaching of the earthly kingdom of G-d, the Messianic kingdom. There is not one word said about his message being vicarious atonement, because it was not.

Mark 1:15, Mark 6:12, "... the kingdom of G-d is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel. And they went out, and preached that men should repent."

Luke 5:32 (Matthew 9:13) (Mark 2:17), "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

Matthew 4:17, Matthew 6:33, Matthew 10:7, "From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. But seek ye first the kingdom of G-d, and his righteousness;... And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand."

What most Christians fail to realize is that the many of the promises and prophecies of G-d are "conditional." The Messianic Kingdom was not going to "just" happen; Israel had to merit it as well as her King by rising to her calling as a Holy Nation and a Royal Priesthood. If Israel failed in this regard the Kingdom on Earth would not appear; nor would her King be revealed to the world. Therefore you now better understand the priority of "repentance" in the Kingdom message as found taught by Jesus, John the Immerser, and Peter. Without repentance and a return to obedience to the Commandments of G-d the promises and prophecies of G-d would not be realized by that generation and they were responsible as not only a light to the nations but they were to be the "first fruits" for the others nations of the world in this regard. If Israel failed, all mankind will be deprived of the benefits of the Kingdom of Heaven on this earth.

Answer for yourself: What was Jesus' message? Was it the same as being taught by the vast majority of Christian Churches today who go by his name? Is repentance the heart of the Gospel message you hear or is it just part of a "new member's" class?

The real Kingdom message taught by Jesus was that Jews should repent and return to obedience of the Commandments of G-d, for the Messianic kingdom was coming soon and return to G-d was necessary for acceptance into the kingdom. Basically the Jews, through repentance, was to merit the Kingdom of Heaven, not only for themselves, but by being a Royal Priesthood of such a Kingdom they were to be mediators for the non-Jews coming to G-d. This message is totally within the framework of Judaism as revealed in the Holy Bible.

Jesus did not preach Christology. As surprising as this fact may be, Jesus' preaching was within the confines of Biblical Judaism, as Jews interpret the Jewish religion. Jesus did not preach or teach anything close to the salvation messages taught by the Gentile Churches of today. Once understood, and seen for yourself, this is very problematic for the Christian who is a "thinking believer."

JESUS CONSIDERED HIMSELF A PROPHET AS DID THE MULTITUDES

Mark 6:4 (Matthew 13:57) (Luke 4:24) (John 4:44), "But Jesus said unto them, A prophet is not without honor, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house."

Matthew 21:11,46, "And the multitude said, This is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee. . . . they feared the multitude, because they took him for a prophet."

Luke 7:16, Luke 13:32-33, Luke 24:19, "... they glorified G-d, saying, That a great prophet is risen among us; And he said unto them,. . . for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem....Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word before G-d and all the people:?"

John 6:14, John 7:40, "... when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world. Many of the people. . . said, Of a truth this is the Prophet. . ."

The above passages state that Jesus, as well as his followers, considered that he was in the category of a prophet.

Answer for yourself: Can you envision the person who considers himself sent by G-d to be the Messiah calling himself merely a prophet?

Although both are holy, they are worlds apart in function. And as for G-d the Son of the Trinity calling himself a prophet-well, you contemplate it.

Acts 3:22 (Acts 7:3 7) (RE: Deuteronomy 18:15,18), "For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A prophet shall the Lord your G-d raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you."

So Jesus, according to the New Testament, is supposed to be the special prophet Moses asserted would arise for the people.

Answer for yourself: But is he? Is Jesus the fulfillment of Deut. 18?

Answer for yourself: First, what are the attributes of a prophet?

APPROACHING A RATHER DIFFICULT SUBJECT...WHAT IS TRUTH?

As we begin to tackle this difficult issue we must be reminded that the New Testament is not infallible history; in fact it is anything but that. The New Testament is written for theological purposes and has an agenda to present a "belief system" about Jesus. In so doing we find the exaltation of Jesus in the New Testament way beyond what any Messiah was ever to be. Such a depiction of course is false when bearing in mind what the Jewish Scriptures promised about the Messiah. That being so, we cannot believe everything we read in the New Testament concerning Jesus needless to say. The only way to be assured what we read about Jesus is true, or might be true, is to know both what Biblical Judaism teaches and then compare this knowledge with the picture we find of Jesus in the New Testament. Only in this way can we come close to the truth about the Jesus of the New Testament because both Jesus and the Messiah were to be Jews. When we find "un-Jewish" depictions of Jesus or even the concept of the Messiah in the New Testament then we can rest assured that we have found falsehoods and theological inventions that do not find their origin in G-d.

Jesus like the prophets, chastised the Hebrew people for not doing G-d's will, for turning from G-d's laws. But, the prophets justified their pronouncements on G-d's Torah, never on their own authority and it is common place that the Jesus of the New Testament often refers to his own authority for what he teaches. The Prophets always gave to G-d His supremacy and to G-d's laws their immutability. Jesus, however, as presented in the New Testament anyway, did not follow this tradition of the prophets. His justification seemed to be on his own authority. But, once one sees for himself the exaltation of both Jesus and the Messiah as contained in the New Testament far beyond what the Old Testament taught concerning G-d's anointed, it is rather easy to see how Jesus was "crafted" to become one greater than Moses and if not greater, definitely equal to G-d himself by some of the writers of the New Testament. It was natural with literary creationism by the writers of the New Testament to separate Jesus from the crowd and an easy way to do such a thing was to exalt the authority of Jesus above all others.

Also, see here that the special prophet announced by Moses would be "like" Moses, not greater, but just like him. Certainly, this is not Christianity's view of Jesus Christ. One must take into account in this issue that with so much error as found in the New Testament and with the abundance of purposefully misrepresented "facts" to the contrary, it is not certain that the historical Jesus actually presented himself in such a manner as if he spoke or came in his own authority, or if he considered himself greater than Moses. Such could easily be the work of the writers of the New Testament to separate Jesus from those other "anointed ones of G-d" and make Jesus the icon of a new religion.

THERE WAS GENERAL CONFUSION ABOUT WHO JESUS WAS

Matthew 13:10-11,13 (Mark 4:11-12) (Luke 8:10), "And the disciples came, and said unto him, Why speakest thou unto them in parables" He answered and said unto them, Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given. . . . they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand."

Matthew 16:13-16 (Mark 8:27-29) (Luke 9:18-20) (Mark 6:14-15) (Luke 9:7-8), ". . . Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist: some, Elijah; and others, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets. . But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ (Messiah), the Son of the living G-d."

There was confusion and difference of opinion among the people as to who Jesus was. Actually, Jesus said he spoke in parables and this often left the people bewildered and lacking knowledge of the mysteries of the kingdom. On the other hand, Jesus said he gave his disciples knowledge of the Messianic kingdom. Understanding this they should have known he was the Messiah, if he believed he was. Yet the picture in the New Testament is contradictory on this issue. This important information would have been part of the mysteries of the kingdom. Yet, the disciples are portrayed by the New Testament writers as if they did not know this supposed fact. Peter had to venture an opinion when asked by Jesus who he thought Jesus was. If Jesus had divulged that he was the Messiah, Peter would not have had to be asked to give an opinion as to his identity.

Clearly, Christianity has a choice here. Either Jesus lied, and did not give his disciples the mysteries of the kingdom, as he said he did, or Jesus did not believe himself to be the Messiah. If you read what Jesus said in Matthew 16:17, and take as truthful the picture we find of Jesus in the New Testament, then when we consider passages like the following...". . . (my Father) hath. . . revealed it (that Jesus is the Christ) unto thee (Peter)," the conclusion which must be drawn is that Jesus did not include his being the Messiah in his revelation of the secrets of the kingdom. The conundrum is Christianity's.

THERE WERE DIFFERENT OPINIONS ABOUT WHO JESUS WAS, INCLUDING THE MESSIAH

John 3:2, ". . . Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from G-d: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except G-d be with him."

Here Jesus is seen as a holy teacher, addressed as "Rabbi." The miracles he performed are seen as evidence of his being close to G-d.

John 6:68-69, "Then Simon Peter answered him,. . . And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living G-d."

Yet, right after this assurance of belief comes the revelation that Judas Iscariot, one of the disciples, will betray Jesus. There is evidently something missing in the sureness of the disciples' belief.

John 7:41, "Others said, This is the Christ. . ."

We read before that many said he was a prophet. Here, others said he was the Messiah. Opinions did vary. They yet vary still today.

Mark 11:9-10 (Matthew 21:9) (Luke 19:37-38), "And they cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord. .

Some people ventured to think Jesus was the Messiah. However, others believed him to be John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah, a prophet, a teacher-rabbi, a miracle worker of G-d, or even a mad man.

John 1:49, ". . . Rabbi, thou art the Son of G-d: thou art the King of Israel."

A man here expressed his belief that Jesus was the expected Messiah because of the great things he did. This, of course, was one of the differing opinions about Jesus before the expectation of his Messianic fulfillment collapsed when he was executed by the Romans.

YET...AT TIMES JESUS SEEMED TO BELIEVE HE WAS THE MESSIAH

Matthew 18:11 (Luke 19:10), "For the Son of man is come to save that which was lost."

John 4:25-26, "The woman saith unto him, I know that Messiah cometh. . . Jesus saith unto her, I that speak unto thee am he."

Matthew 26:63-64, ". . . tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of G-d. Jesus saith unto him, Thou hast said. . ."

John 18:3 7, ". . . Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world. . ."

Luke 7:20,22 (Matthew 11:2-4), ". . . they said, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another? Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard. . ."

Unlike the confusion and uncertainty about the identity of Jesus as seen in the above texts, Jesus, in these passages, seems to avow that he believed he was the Messiah of the Jewish people. In the usage of the term "Son of man" the Messiah could be interpreted, even though in many other passages this term simply means "man."

Answer for yourself: What can be made of this?

It is not unimaginable that a man caught up in the extreme Messianism of the times could go one step further and believe he was the man with the Messianic mission from G-d. He, it seems, had a strong spiritual relationship with G-d. Others have thought themselves to be the Messiah, why not Jesus? At his immersion he had a Word from G-d that set the course of his life. He definitely had a call on his life and his compassion and vision propelled his life to its ultimate conclusion. He was unique, however, in that a new religion was built around him as Messiah. But his was not his doing but is attributable to Paul and other non-Jews who would ultimately reject Judaism and dress their pagan beliefs in Jewish and Biblical "dress." His assertion (or perhaps hope) of being the Messiah, nevertheless, as seen today, is just as invalid as other false Messiahs' claims in light of the Messianic prophecies not being fulfilled.

JESUS INFERRED HE WAS NOT THE MESSIAH

Matthew 20:28, "... the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. ."

Remember that it is written that the Messiah is to be ministered unto. For example, read Psalm 72:11, "Yea, all kings shall fall down before him: all nations shall serve him." Jesus's Messianic status, therefore, at least as described by this New Testament writer, is doubtful due to his description of Jesus (Son of man) in this verse.

JESUS' DISCIPLES DID NOT HAVE FAITH AND DID NOT UNDERSTAND

Mark 7:18 (Matthew 15:17), "... Are ye so without understanding also? Do ye not perceive, that whatsoever thing from without entereth into a man, it cannot defile him;"

Matthew 16:8-9, "... O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread? Do ye not yet understand, neither remember the five loaves of the five thousand, and how many baskets ye took up?"

Matthew 14:31, "(to Peter). . . Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him... O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?"

Matthew 17:19-20, "Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out? And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief. . ."

Matthew 21:21 (Luke 17:6), "(to disciples).. . If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree.. ."

Mark 4:39-40 (Matthew 8:25-26) (Luke 8:24-25), "And he. . . said unto the sea, Peace, be still. . . . And the wind ceased, . . . And he said unto them, Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith?"

Proximity to Jesus, being those in his chosen group, and being taught by him still left the disciples with doubts about Jesus' power, ignorance of his claimed mission, and general lack of faith.

Mark 8:31-33, Mark 9:31 -32 (Matthew 16:21 -23) (Matthew 17:22-23) (Luke 9:44-45), "And he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, . . . and be killed, and after three days rise again. And Peter. . . began to rebuke him. . But. . . he rebuked Peter, saying, . . . thou savorest not the things that be of G-d, . . . For he taught his disciples, and said unto them, The Son of man is delivered into the hands of men, and they shall kill him: and after that he is killed, he shall rise the third day. But they understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask him."

The above should be read very carefully. The supposed vicarious atonement of the Messiah-Christ is newly taught to the disciples by Jesus. This occurred after the disciples had been with Jesus for quite a while. The Hebrew Messiah they expect is not of this teaching, and they do not comprehend Jesus' description of what is supposed to happen to him. We know this because Jesus is reprimanded by Peter who says Jesus should not say he will die. Peter was shocked to be told that Jesus, who he believed was the Messiah and, therefore, should have success and world dominion, instead was to die. Peter was not ignorant of his Old Testament was was fully aware of Messianic expectations and this was news to him. Further on, we find that all the disciples are confounded by this new teaching. And well they should have been, for Messianic vicarious atonement has no place in Hebraic Biblical revelation.

John 21:12, "... And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? knowing it was the Lord."

This is a perfect example of non-reasoning within a verse. Why would they "not dare to ask him" unless there was doubt involved. And then it says "knowing it was" which is unbefittingly planted on the first part. Yes, doubt existed even at seeing Jesus after his alleged resurrection.

Matthew 28:16-17, "Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them. And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted."

You have just read another extraordinary passage. At the end of Matthew's writings, some of Jesus' disciples are said to doubt. They saw Jesus after his supposed rising from the dead and did not believe in it. They doubted the resurrection in the same way they could not understand when Jesus told them that he would be killed and rise on the third day. Remember, Jesus said the disciples were given the mysteries of the kingdom. We are left wondering what Jesus' revelations included, if the disciples knew nothing about Christologies. It appears that Jesus' kingdom of G-d mysteries were not those of Christianity. Even assuming that only then, at the end, were they allowed to know the mysteries, Christianity still has explanation difficulties. For, if they were given the mysteries, why didn't they understand the mysteries given to them?

DISCIPLES EXPECTED A SECOND COMING OF JESUS SO THAT THE MESSIANIC HOPES WOULD BE FULFILLED

Matthew 24:3, "... the disciples. . . saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?"

Acts 1:6-7, "... they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel? And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power."

Acts 3:20-21, "And he shall send Jesus Christ, . . . Whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which G-d hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets. . ."

From these verses, we grasp the fact that Jesus had not performed as his disciples anticipated he should in the role of the Messiah. Biblical revelation remained unfulfilled. As Jews, the disciples knew that the Messiah must be in an earthly kingdom of G-d. The Christologies of death-resurrection-vicarious atonement-did not correspond to or satisfy the Messianic expectations. Therefore, in desperation, they reflected on, and took needed comfort from, Jesus returning to earth to complete what must be done.

EXPECTATIONS OF A SECOND COMING ARE UNFULFILLED

Matthew 16:28 (Mark 9:1) (Luke 9:2 7), "Verily I say unto you, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom (kingdom of G-d with power)."

Luke 21:31-32 (Matthew 24:33-34) (Mark 13:29-30), "So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the kingdom of G-d is nigh at hand. Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass away, till all be fulfilled (done)."

Matthew 10:23, "... for verily I say unto you, Ye shall not have gone over the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be come."

Luke 12:37,40 (Matthew 24:44), "Blessed are those servants, whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching:. . . Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not."

Luke 19:11, "... they thought that the kingdom of G-d should immediately appear."

Acts 1:4, "And, being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me."

Romans 16:20, "And the G-d of peace shall bruise Satan under your feet shortly. . ."

I Corinthians 7:29, "But this I say, brethren, the time is short: it remaineth, that both they that have wives be as though they had none. . ."

I Thessalonians 4:15, "For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord..."

Hebrews 1:2, Hebrews 10:37, "(G-d) Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, . . . For yet a little while, and he that shall come will come, and will not tarry."

James 5:8, "Be ye also patient; establish your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh."

I Peter 4:7,17, "But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer. For the time is come that judgment must begin. . ."

I John 2:18, "Little children, it is the last time: . . . even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time."

Revelation 22: (7)12,20, "And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be. He which testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly. . ."

These quotations say it clearly. The second coming was at hand, coming quickly, within the lifetime of the generation standing then. Despite II Peter 3:8, "... one day is with the Lord as a thousand years . . ." the promise was to come within the lifetime of the living generation at that time, two thousand years ago. This, according to the "inspired and inerrant New Testament" was Jesus' promise and the understanding and belief of the early followers of Jesus. But, it did not occur as promised in the New Testament, did it? Something is wrong and the failure is not with Jesus but the "theological agenda of the New Testament." The promise, however, did create a spark in the early Church which must have helped make it dynamic and successful.

SOME JEWS LEFT JESUS AT HIS DEATH-SOME DID NOT

Faithful Jews returned to mainstream Judaism after the hopes of Jesus being the Messiah collapsed when he was put to death by the Romans. These Jews gradually gave up apocalyptic hopes and dreams following the failure of the Messianic hope of the first century, the failure of the prophecies to be fulfilled, the failure of "the" anointed man of G-d to emerge to accomplish such things, and the two wars of 70 A.D. and 135 A.D. These Jews who returned to basic Judaism, it is interesting to observe, were the only authentic "Jews for Jesus" who ever lived. For they were truly observant Jews who hoped that Jesus was the Messiah as prophesied in the Hebrew Bible. Hoping was not wrong. Neither is today. As a former Christian I tell others that G-d used Jesus, although a counterfeit Jesus, to get me to him. The only Rabbi that came knocking on my door as my "light" was a mixed up theological Rabbi that had both mixture of Judaism and pagan Gentile religions. I wish I had learned the truth about Jesus in the beginning, but that was not to be. Emotionally I can identify with Christians to look to Jesus as "their" Messiah because in a rather unique way he is responsible for my knowledge of G-d because it was in and around him, and his legacy, both right and wrong, that I came to the saving knowledge of G-d. But that does not make him the fulfiller of Messianic prophecies. I wish that they had been and Jesus would have been the one to do it; but it was not to be. It is our hope that the Christian, when he encounters such truthful teachings as given by Bet Emet as well as other ministries, he will be able to intelligently evaluate the evidence presented and when found to be mistaken, like the Jews of the first couple of centuries, he will then return to the faith of the historical Jesus, to basic Judaism where as a non-Jew a place waits for him. It is here, in the real faith of Jesus we wait for the Jewish Messiah.

Sadly, some misdirected Jews continued in the Pauline-Christologic belief and were the first converts to the new religion of Christianity. For these converts, a new interpretation of Jesus' life took precedence over traditional Biblical Messianic expectations. This was wrong however as history attests. Hebrew Messianism became Christologic, with expectations delayed, distorted, and demoted in importance. Such is the hidden leaven of Sun-Worship as filtered through sects of Judaism as they strayed from center.

Jesus' followers believed Jesus and his teaching of repentance for the kingdom of G-d. Repentance, turning back to G-d, was part of their Jewish heritage. The Scriptures taught them of the earthly kingdom of G-d and the Day of the Lord, Judgment Day. Jesus, through his miracles, attracted Jews and awakened them to the righteousness required by G-d for entrance into the kingdom and the nearness of it! All this his followers could and did accept, as believing Jews.

I have tried to show you in this article that Jesus' message was Judaism's and that the miracles he performed were not indicative of any G-d-like or Messiah-like stature. He did have a special closeness with G-d. He did G-d's will in urging Jews to repent, return to G-d's requirements of us, and be ready for the coming kingdom. His miracles drew people to him and his Judaic message. Hopes that he was the Hebrew Messiah terminated at his death by Roman execution. Christianity takes it from there.

WHAT COULD HAVE BEEN...BUT WAS NOT?

One's hope or belief in Jesus as the Messiah of the Jewish Bible is unfounded in light of the fact that the Messianic prophecies were not fulfilled by him in the first century. Be that as it may we must try to divorce our emotion from such study and ruthlessly consider the possibility that even if the Messiah was present in the first century he could not be revealed to the masses owing to the lack of the spiritual maturity of G-d's Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood. Considering the poor spiritual state of the religious leaders as well as the nation, the Messianic Kingdom could NOT have appeared along with her King without the necessary repentance as was preached in the Kingdom message. The repentance did not come and the fruit of Israel was inspected and found wanting. All that I am saying is that regardless if the Messiah walked among first century Israel the Messianic Kingdom could not have appeared given the spiritual state of that "Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood" of the first century, and by default neither could her King. The Messianic Kingdom was aborted.

If you understand what I just said, and if you have read our series of articles on "Why The Messianic Prophecies Were Not Fulfilled" then there is something that must be said to be honest to both truth and to both sides of this Messianic question.

- If the conditions that were necessary for the unveiling of the Messiah were not present in first century Israel then it is impossible to say "so and so" is not the Messiah.
- Equally true is the fact that in the failure of the Messianic prophecies to be fulfilled it is impossible to say "so and so" is the Messiah.

We have a problem for both Judaism and Christianity in these simple statements. Too much energy is lost in angry debates of "who is" or "who is not" the Messiah. I believe time is better spent in properly understanding what the true Messianic prophecies are so that when they begin to be fulfilled we can at that time look up for our redemption draws night.

Understanding the above dichotomy allows for one to believe as he chooses regarding the "anointed of G-d." The identity of the Messiah is yet in doubt and will be so until the true Jewish prophecies are fulfilled. Once the Christian's Old and New Testaments are investigated as to their reliability in the faithful translation of the Jewish Bible then one sees exactly why I am saying what I am saying. This is something I hope both our Jewish readers as well as our Christian readers can understand. This means that in spite of such comments in the New Testament that are attributed to Jesus concerning his "Messianic status" we really cannot know for sure if he, or anyone, was truly the Messiah in the first century because of the events and conditions just described. We just cannot be sure either way! So today we have two camps; those who deny Jesus is the Messiah and those who do not. Considering the situation as just described neither camp can be sure! With G-d all things are possible so when we begin to think we can "out-think" G-d we are set up to fail. What the Jews need to hear as well as the Christians is that the failure of the Messianic promises to be fulfilled does not negate the possibility that the Messiah walked among them "unrevealed." Only time will tell in this regard if he did. I am sure when we meet G-d face to face we will know for sure. Without such fulfillments it is foolish to say "so and so" is or "is not" "the" Messiah. We simply cannot tell given all the facts.

Needless to say, the New Testament is Christianity's Holy Book and is filled with passages of Christologic import: Jesus Christ's death is the vicarious atonement-Belief in his resurrection is the Christian hope for salvation-Eternal life is offered only through belief in Jesus as Savior-Jesus has G-d's power and glory. This is incompatible not only with Judaism, but with contradictory passages in the selfsame New Testament. In this article I have attempted to return Jesus to his faith...to Biblical Judaism! Christianity can present their "Christ," but they cannot deny their Jeshua ben Joseph:

- He taught Jewish ethics
- He believed the law of Moses should be observed eternally
- His G-d is Judaism's G-d of unity, not the Trinity
- Personal salvation is obtained through "Judaism"

Judaism presents G-d and His Chosen People and the Hebrew Messiah of G-d's earthly kingdom. When we ask who Jesus was, this should be your answer.

THE JEWISH REFUSAL TO ACCEPT JESUS AS THE MESSIAH

Answer for yourself: Have you ever wondered why the Jews refuse to believe that Jesus Christ was the Messiah when it seems so "evident" to the New Testament reader that Jesus "fulfilled" the prophecies expected of "the" Messiah?

The answer to such a question is best answered by "knowledgeable" Jews who know well their Jewish Bibles. When asking such a Jew who has a close relationship both with G-d and the Jewish bible his typical response would be: "How is it possible for us to believe that he was the Messiah, as we do not see any actual proof of his Messiahship throughout the prophetic writings?" If probed a little deeper a typical "knowledgeable" Jew would further respond: " There are many incontrovertible proofs in support of our conviction that Jesus was by no means the Messiah."

This always bothered me as a child, young man, and a Seminary student when it seemed so simple to me when I read my Bible; but that was before I discovered how my Christian Bible had been so terribly forged from the Hebrew Scriptures from which it was supposedly faithfully translated....but was not

Answer for yourself: What are some of these "incontrovertible proofs" that would prove that Jesus was not the Hebrew Messiah?

The Messiahship of Jesus rests or falls on many facts; yet there are reasons why the Messianic prophecies were not fulfilled by him or anyone during the first century. But before we look at that let us examine some of these "proofs" that the Jewish people have that discount Jesus from being their Messiah. Let us look at them first in summary form and then in "commentary."

JESUS IS NOT THE HEBREW MESSIAH BECAUSE OF:

- His pedigree
- His actions or lack of actions
- The period in which he lived
- The fact that, during his existence, the promises were not fulfilled which are to be realized on the advent of the expected Messiah, whereas the fulfillment of the conditions alone can warrant a belief in the identity of the Messiah.

JESUS' PEDIGREE ACCORDING TO THE NEW TESTAMENT

Let me say at first that after 15 plus years of in-depth study that the Jewish people as well as all of Christendom have much to learn and "unlearn" concerning Jesus and the possibility of him being the Messiah. After all is said and done the Jewish people are unwarranted in discounting the Messiahship of Jesus even though the prophecies were not fulfilled one they come to the knowledge of "why" these expected Messianic prophecies were not fulfilled in the first century. Yet at the same time the Christian must upon presentation of the facts concerning the forgery of his Christian texts in order to "sell" Jesus to the Gentile world in the wake of the failure of the Messianic prophecies being fulfilled repent of his false beliefs connected with Jesus and accept the Jewish Bible and like the Jews await the unveiling of the Messiah. It may just turn out to be Jesus; but if not, we will surely both accept whomever who "comes in the name of the L-rd." Now let us both Jew and Gentile learn through unbiased study.

The New Testament presents a lot of problems to the Jew who reads it. Many of these problems are overlooked by Gentile Christians because of the Gentile Christian's failure to grow up with knowledge of the Old Testament as well as the continued teaching from the New Testament almost exclusively in the Gentile Churches. But the problems with this New Testament abound as you shall now see.

As to the pedigree of Jesus as taught in the New Testament then it was impossible for Jesus to be a descendant of David which is necessary to be the Jewish Messiah, being merely affiliated to him through Joseph, as is testified in the Gospel. For in Matthew, chap. 1 it is written, that Jesus was born of Mary during her virginity, and that Joseph knew her not until she had given birth to Jesus. According to this statement, the pedigree of Joseph can be of no avail to Jesus since the blood line (to David through Joseph's since the blood line comes physiologically through the male), and at the same time it is quite evident that the ancestry of Mary was unknown to the authors of the Gospel. But even the relationship of Joseph to David is wanting in proof, there being a discrepancy between Matthew and Luke in their account of his pedigree, which appears clearly when we compare the Gospel of Matthew, chapter 1 with that of Luke, at the end of chapter 3. Here we see conflicting testimonies; and where that is the case no belief can be attached to either statement. Surely the Holy Spirit is not confused on the issue like the authors of these New Testament accounts. The prophets, on the contrary, predicted that the expected Messiah should be no other than a descendant of David and any "virginal" birth (conception) destroys the blood lineage.

THE WORKS OF JESUS ...OR...THE LACK THERE OF

As to the works of Jesus, we find that he says of himself, Matthew 10:34. "Think not that I am come to make peace on earth; I came not to send peace but the sword, and to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law." Now mind you this is recorded in a book believed by the vast majority of Christians to be "inspired, infallible, and inerrant." Taking such by faith then we have to believe that such a statement was indicative of the mission of Jesus as recorded in the New Testament. On the other hand, we find Holy Writ attributing to the true and expected Messiah actions contrary to those of Jesus as recorded in this New Testament. We see here that Jesus says of himself, he is not come to make peace on earth, whereas Scripture says of the true and expected Messiah, in Zechariah 9:10, "And he shall speak peace unto the heathen," etc. Jesus says he came in order "to send the sword on earth," but Scripture says, Isaiah 2:4: "And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Jesus says he came "to put father and son at variance," etc, but Malachi says (at the end of his book) that "before the coming of the true Messiah the prophet Elijah shall appear, and turn the heart of the fathers to their children, and the heart of the children to their fathers." Jesus says, concerning himself, Matthew 20:28, that he is not come to be served by the son of man, but to serve others. Concerning the true Messiah, however, Scripture says, Psalms 78:11 "Yea, all kings shall prostrate themselves before him; all nations shall serve him." And Zech. 9:10, "His dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the end of the earth." Thus states also Daniel, 7:27, "And all rulers shall serve him and obey him."

THE TIME PERIOD IN WHICH JESUS LIVED

A couple of things needs to be said before we read the following. The identity of the Jewish Messiah is not known for sure today because the events of the Messianic age never occurred and there was no "anointed" of the L-rd to lead such a world-wide revolution. The time period that Daniel has prophesied had come and gone and at 70 A.D. the Kingdom of G-d did not materialize as had been expected. Jesus was murdered a generation earlier than when the Messianic Kingdom was to appear and did not live out his life as normally expected where he could have been alive at that time and yet available to be "anointed above measure" which would be expected of Israel's Messiah. Jesus' untimely death made it impossible for him to fulfill Daniel 9 correctly; unless of course he was raised from the dead or returned in some supernatural way...which of course never happened. It is my belief that if the Messiah was expected to be revealed by this 70 A.D. and since none came forth then if such Messianic prophecy is of G-d then he was among us but yet was never revealed for reasons discussed elsewhere. That means Jesus could easily have been "the" Messiah in waiting; but of course this is an assumption as it could possibly been another as well. We have to make certain that emotion does not take the place of literal facts in looking at this most difficult issue. But he was killed. Now what? So we are left with the Hebrew Bible and the Greek forgeries which unfortunately were perpetuated in later Latin and English Old Testaments and New Testaments. It is to these we look now with an attempt to discern truth from among them.

As to the period of his existence, it is evident that Jesus did not come at the time foretold by the prophets; for they predicted the advent of the Messiah to happen at the latter days, see Isaiah 2:2, "And it shall come to pass in the latter days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established on the top of the mountains," etc. Further we read there, verse 4, concerning the king Messiah, "And he shall judge among the nations and arbitrate among many people, and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruninghooks," etc. This has not happened even yet!

Thus is also recorded in Scripture concerning the wars of Gog and Magog, which are to take place in the time of the king Messiah. Ezekiel 28:8 says "After many days thou shalt be visited; in the latter years thou shalt come into the land that is brought back from the sword." Not only that but the Messiah is to have a triumphant entry into Jerusalem AFTER this Gog and Magog war and Jesus never did this although attempts are made to make it seem as if this was fulfilled.

The same is evident from Hosea, 3:5, "Afterward shall the children of Israel return, and seek the Lord their G-d, and David their king, and shall revere the Lord and His goodness in the latter days." Following the days of Jesus instead of the Jewish people being "gathered" history records that they were "scattered."

So we read also in Daniel 2:28 "And (G-d) maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days." Which passage refers to the subsequent prophecy in verse 44, "And in the days of these kings shall the G-d of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the sovereignty shall not be left to other people," etc. This kingdom has not be set up yet! Hence we see clearly that the prophets predicted that the coming of the true Messiah would happen at the "latter days," and not before. So this is very problematic I must say owing to the failure of G-d to raise Jesus or send him back in some fashion or send another in is place. The Word of G-d makes such "religious beliefs" about Jesus very difficult owing to the fact that what was expected never materialized.

THE PROMISES OF THE JEWISH PROPHETS

We have to consider the promises contained in the words of the prophets, which were not fulfilled in the time of Jesus, but are to be realized in future at the time of the true Messiah, who is still expected. They may be classed under the following headings

- (a.) At the time of the king Messiah there is to be only one kingdom and one king, namely, the true king Messiah. But the other empires and their rulers shall cease at that period, as we read in Daniel 2:44, "And in the days of these kings shall the G-d of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever." Whereas, we now actually see that many empires, different in their laws and habits, are still in existence; and that in each empire a different king is ruling; consequently the Messiah is not yet come.
- (b.) At the time of the king Messiah, there is to be in the world but one creed and one religion, and that is the religion of Israel, as is proved by Isaiah 52:1, "Awake, awake, put on thy strength, O Zion; put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem, the holy city: for henceforth there shall no more come into thee the uncircumcised and the unclean." And further (chap. 66:17), "Who sanctify themselves and purify themselves [we prefer the literal translation of this obscure passage to the unwarranted and still more obscure translation of the Authorized Version] in the gardens, behind one in the midst of them who eat the flesh of the swine, and the abomination, and the mouse, shall be consumed together saith the Lord." "And (ver. 23) it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, shall all flesh come and worship before me, saith the Lord." Moreover, it is written in Zechariah (14:16), "And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles." In the same book (chap. 8:23) we read, "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men of nations of diverse languages shall take hold, even shall take hold of the skirt of a Jew [Authorized Version renders it 'of him that is a Jew'], saying, We will go with you; for we have heard that G-d is with you." There are many other passages in that book to the same effect. Honest evaluation of the world's religious situation shows that this "one creed and one religion," better known as Biblical Judaism where the non-Jew finds his place "engrafted" into the Israel of G-d, is not a reality as of yet. Instead of Christianity converting all mankind to Biblical Judaism the reverse is actually true; namely, converting Christianity attempting to convert all mankind to a paganized form of Biblical Judaism where all within it are tainted by idolatry and blasphemy. Few Christians experience or understand the true grafting into the Israel of G-d (THINK!).
- (c.) At the time of the Messiah, the idolatrous images and their memorial, as also the false prophets and the spirit of profanity are to vanish from the earth, as may be seen in Zechariah 13:2, "And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols from the earth, and they shall no more be remembered, also I will cause the prophets and the unclean spirit [literally 'the spirit of uncleanness'] to pass away from the earth." So also it is written in Isaiah 2:18. "And the idols he shall utterly abolish." So it is also said in Zephaniah 2:11, "The Lord will be terrible unto them, for he will cause all the G-ds of the earth to waste away, and men shall worship Him, every one from his place, even all the isles of the heathen."

Needless to say one only needs to look to 1.5 billion Roman Catholics on this planet to know that this has not happened yet and therefore to say Messiah has come is foolish in the wake of the failure of this to have occurred.

(d.) At the time of the Messiah, there will be no sins and iniquities in the world, particularly not among the Israelitish nation. Thus we find in the law (Deuteronomy 30:6), "And the Lord thy G-d will circumcise thine heart and the heart of thy seed to love the Lord thy G-d with all thine heart and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live." Again, in Zephaniah 3:13. "The remnant of Israel shall not do iniquity, nor speak lies, neither shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth." Again, in Jeremiah 3:13. "At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord, and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem, neither shall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil heart." Again, in Ezekiel 36:25. "And I will sprinkle clean water upon you: from all your impurity, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you. And I will give unto you a new heart, and a new spirit will I put within you, and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments and do them." Moreover, see Ezekiel 37: 23. "Neither shall they defile themselves any more with the idols nor with their abominations, nor with their transgressions, and I will save them out of all their dwelling-places wherein they have sinned, and I will cleanse them, and they shall be my people, and I will be their G-d, and David my servant shall be king over them, and they shall have one shepherd, and they shall walk in my judgments and observe my statutes and do them."

Again this did not occur with Jesus and therefore until this occurs then we cannot be certain who the Messiah actually is to be.

(e.) At the time of the king Messiah and after the war with Gog and Magog there will be peace and tranquillity throughout the world, and men will no longer require any weapons of war. So it is written in Isaiah 2:4, "And they shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Also Ezekiel 39:9, states, "And they that dwell in the cities of Israel shall go forth and shall set on fire and burn the weapons, both the shields and the bucklers, the bows and the arrows, and the handstaves and the spears, and they shall burn them with fire seven years (ver. 10.) so that they shall take no wood out of the field, neither cut down any out of the forests, for with the weapons shall they kindle the fire." With these words agrees the prophecy of Hosea 2:20, according to the division of chapters in the Hebrew Bibles, (in the English version it is chap. 2 ver. 18.) "and I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the earth, and I will make them to lie down safely." So says also Zechariah 9:10, "And the battlebow shall be cut off, and he shall speak peace unto the heathen," etc.

(f) At the time of the king Messiah there will be peace in the Holy Land between the ferocious and domestic animals, so that they will, not injure each other, and much less injure a human being, as is evident from the following prophecies of Isaiah 11: 6, "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion, and the fatling together, and a little child shall lead them." (Ver. 7) "And the cow and the bear shall feed together; their young ones shall lie down together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox." (Ver. 8) "And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice's den." (Ver. 9) "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord," etc. and (65:25) "And the wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the bullock, and dust shall be the serpent's meat. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith the Lord." Also Ezekiel 36:25, "And I will make with them a covenant of peace, and will cause the evil beasts to cease out of the land, and they shall dwell safely in the wilderness, and sleep in the woods." (Ver. 28.) "And they shall no more be a prey to the heathen, neither shall the beast of the land devour them," etc. Also Hosea 2:20, or in the English version, 18) "And in that day will I make a covenant for them with the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of heaven, and with the creeping things of the ground," etc. Needless to say again the laws of nature have not changed and the Messiah has not come to fulfill these prophecies...so we await the unveiling of the Messiah today.

(g.) At the time of the Messiah there will be no troubles, cares, and anxieties, among the restored Israelites, who will then be blessed with a prolonged and more happy life, as is foretold in the following passages of Isaiah (65:16). "He who blesseth himself in the earth shall bless himself in the G-d of truth, and he that sweareth in the earth shall swear by the G-d of truth, because the former troubles are forgotten, and because they are hid from mine eyes." (Ver. 19) "And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and joy in my people, and the voice of weeping shall no more be heard in her, nor the voice of crying." (Ver. 20) "There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that bath not filled his days, for the child shall die a hundred years old, but the sinner being a hundred years old shall be accursed." (Ver. 21) "And they shall build houses arid inhabit them, and they shall plant vineyards and eat the fruit of thein." (Ver. 22) "They shall not build and another inhabit, they shall riot plant and another eat, for as the days of a tree shall be the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of their hands." One only needs to pick up the daily newspapers which are filled daily with the terrorism done to Israel to know that the Jewish Messiah has not come and the true Messianic prophecies remain unfulfilled and again I caution you to understand that it is in the fulfillment of these true Messianic prophecies that we learn the identity of the Jewish Messiah and false fulfillments do no good in determining the identity of the Jewish Messiah.

(h.) At the time of the Messiah the Shechinah (effulgency of divine presence) shall return to Israel as in former days, and the people of Israel increase in prophecy, wisdom, and knowledge, as may be seen by the following quotations from the prophets. Ezek. 37:26 states: "Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will establish and multiply them, and set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore." (Ver. 27) "My residence also shall he among them. Yea, I will be their G-d, and they shall be my people." (Ver. 28) "And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore." (lb 39:29) "Neither will I hide my face any more from them, for I have poured out my Spirit upon the house of Israel, saith the Lord G-d." (lb. 43:7) "And he said unto me, Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever," etc. (lb. 48: 35) "And the name of the city from that day shall be, 'The Lord is there'" (Joel 2:27) "And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your G-d, and there is none else; and my people shall never be ashamed." (lb. 3:1; in the English Version 2:28) "And it shall come to pass afterwards, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions." (lb. 3:17) "So ye shall know that I am the Lord your G-d dwelling in Zion my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through it any more." (lb. 3:21) "For I will avenge their blood that I had not avenged, for the Lord dwelleth in Zion." (Zec. 2:14; in the English Version, 2:10) "Sing and rejoice, O daughter of Zion, for, lo! I come and dwell in the midst of thee, saith the Lord." (Isa. 11:9) "For the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." (Jer. 31:34) "And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for they shall know me, from the lowest of them to the highest, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and remember their sin no more." As stated repeatedly we await the fulfillment of this as well as the unveiling of the Jewish Messiah who will accomplish this.

Answer for yourself: Are we capable of honest evaluation of the evidence and the facts surrounding the promises made by the Hebrew prophets?

The above indications pointed out by the prophets as indispensable attributes of the true Messiah, have not been fulfilled in Jesus the Nazarene. Nor have we hitherto seen realized the prophetic assurances already named, or others that we have omitted, to avoid verbosity. And we therefore arrive at the just conclusion, that the true and expected Messiah has not yet come. We simply cannot in all truthfulness point to anyone as the Jewish Messiah until these events and prophecies be fulfilled. In him alone all the predicted attributes undoubtedly will be manifested, and through him alone and in no other way, the scriptural promises will be accomplished.

So we wait and wait we must.

I believe with perfect faith in the coming of the Messiah. No matter how long it takes, I will await his coming every day.

CAN WE TRUTHFULLY SAY YESHUA IS THE MESSIAH "FOR SURE"?

When the "True" Moshiach comes there will be no doubt. It is said, "His arrival will be as evident as the hand on your arm." Asking then if the Moshiach has come in those days will be the same as asking is "Is this my hand?" His arrival will be accompanied by the following:

- Universal peace and freedom.
- Resurrection of the of G-d's people.
- Regathering of the clans of Israel.
- The Torah will go forth from Jerusalem.
- Rebuilding of the Temple
- Resumption of animal sacrifices in the Temple, and
- All nations will come to the land of Israel to observe Succoth.

With the historical Yeshua came:

- Instead of universal peace came the wars...of 66 c.e. and 135 c.e.
- Instead of a resurrection, over a million Jews were killed and thousands sold in to slavery.
- Instead of a regathering, there was diaspora.
- Instead of the Torah going forth from Jerusalem, the Torah was declared dead.
- Instead of a Temple being rebuild, one was destroyed.
- Instead of the continuation of animal sacrifices, they ceased.
- Instead of all nations observing Succoth in Jerusalem, the Holy day was prevented from being observed in Jerusalem.

All of these signs are found in Ezekiel 37, plus, more. Biblically, then Yeshua could not possibly be the Moshiach of Israel...at least not yet. Furthermore, no where in the Tanach is there found a prophecy that the Moshiach will come on two occasions. None...zero. But again we cannot rule that out in light of what is taught in the Daniel 9 prophecy. More on that later.

I am positive that Yeshua existed. I do not doubt he was of King David's lineage, but not of the bogus lineages found in Matthew and Luke. Those linages come from the hands of Gentiles, as does practically all of the "New Testament." If a Christian can pull away from all the pagan concepts of Christianity for but a moment, they will realize that first and foremost, the Messiah is to be a man, a king like David, not a "G-d" as was Buddah, Mithra or Krishna. His purpose is to unify all Israel, not just Judah and to remove all the foreign influence found within it's borders. The Moshiach will return Israel to the holiness and the glory found in the days of David and Solomon.

I am sure that Yeshua believed himself to be the Moshiach as events occurred in his life that reinforced his belief, and that he, Yeshua, attempted to honor the messianic goals to remove the Romans, the Herodians and the corrupt priesthood. Unfortunately for him, the Romans, the Herodians and the Sadducean priesthood objected. They captured Yeshua and at least two of his lieutenants and summarily executed them for treason by crucifixion as was the custom of the Romans.

Paul, a gentile convert to Judaism probably from Mithraism of the city of Tarsus, had a gnostic experience on the way to Damascus and will preach the "gnostic savior" and we, not knowing this, believe this to be "christian doctrine" today. Mithraism entered the Roman Empire through the port of Tarsus from Persia in 60-70 B.C.E. He, Paul, then used Judaism as a basis of legitimacy and his pagan experiences as a basis of a new religion which eventually became known as Christianity. Conceptually, Christianity is much closer to Mithraism or Krishnaism than it is to Judaism. If you find this hard to believe, the you need to read some of the many good books on this subject that exists today. We at Bet Emet have several websites whereby this information can be accessed. Krishna alone has some 385 similarities with Yeshua of Nazareth. The evidence is staggering. Take the time to investigate these following sites to find such information yourself and pay special note to the bibliography of books that will detail for you such "plagiarism" of paganism by the early Christians.

PREREQUISITES TO RECOGNIZING THE MESSIAH

The Bible is transparent on the subject of the role of the messiah. It should be noted that although there are many sections throughout the Jewish scriptures that vividly describe how the world will be forever transformed with the arrival of the messiah, very few are about the messiah personally. The vast quantity of messianic scripture in Tanakh depicts the state of perfection that the world will achieve at the end of days. It is quite clear from the vantage point of Tanakh that the significance of the messiah himself pales in comparison to the utopian age that his arrival will usher in.

The reason Judaism does not accept the Christian messiah is because Yeshua fulfilled few if any of the messianic prophecies clearly foretold in the Jewish scriptures (Torah, Prophets, Writing). On this web site, as well as others, I have devoted considerable space to exposing all the New Testament's misquotations, mistranslations, and misapplications of the Jewish Holy Scriptures in an effort to create a new religion...a religion of Rome that used Yeshua as the "glue" to hold their political and military empire together. On your study trail and after you have seen the seventy or so examples presented for your evaluation, there will be little doubt in your mind of the conspiracy and deception by the New Testament writers who literally have written "another gospel" and caused 2.5 billion people on this planet to fall away from "the faith once given to the saints". Let me remind you that it is "this faith", "the" faith of Yeshua which once went into all the world for non-Jews. Today that faith no longer exists outside the Jewish community. Such is the tragic loss for the non-Jewish believe in G-d.

OVERVIEW OF CENTRAL MESSIANIC PROPHECIES WITHIN THE JEWISH BIBLE

The following is an overview of the central messianic prophecies outlined in the Jewish scriptures that all Christians and Jews agree are messianic. To these we should have the courage to ask this question: "Were these prophecies fulfilled or conditions achieved through Yeshua's ministry"?

End To Evil And Sin

The Messianic era will mark the end of evil and sin:

- Ezekiel 37:23: "They shall not defile themselves anymore with their idols and with their abominations and with all their transgressions.. "
- Zephaniah 3:13: "The remnant of Israel will not do any wrong, and they will not speak lies nor shall a deceitful tongue be found in their mouth."
- Zechariah 13:2: "It shall be in that day .. that I shall cut off the names of the idols from the earth and they shall no longer be remembered; and I shall also remove from the earth the [false] prophets and the spirit of impurity."
- Malachi 3:19: "For behold the day comes burning like a furnace, and all the wanton sinners and everyone that does wickedness shall be stubble .. that to them shall not be left root and branch."
- Isaiah 60:21: "Your people shall all be righteous, they shall inherit the land forever.."
- Jeremiah 50:20: "In those days and in that time, says G-d, the iniquity of Israel shall be searched for but it will not be, and the sins of Judah - but they shall not be found.." [Sukah 52a; Eliyahu Rabba ch. 4; Bereisht Rabba 48:11; Pesikta Rabat 33:4; and Yalkut Shimoni, I: 133, on Genesis 33:13, p. 42a.]

Universal Worship Of G-d

Mashiach shall mend the whole world so that all shall serve G-d in unity [Hilchot Melachim 11:4].

- Zephaniah 3:9: "For then I shall turn to the peoples a pure tongue that all shall call upon the Name of G-d to serve Him with one consent."
- Isaiah 2:2-3 and Michah 4:1-2: "..The mountain of G-d's House shall be established at the top of the mountains and it shall be raised above the hills, and all the nations shall stream to it. Many peoples shall go and say, 'Come, let us go up to the mountain of G-d, to the House of the G-d of Jacob, and let him [Mashiach] teach us of His ways and we shall go in His paths;' for from Zion shall go forth Torah, and the word of G-d from Jerusalem" [Isaiah 60:14; and Zechariah 8:23].
- Zechariah 9:16: "..every one that is left of all the nations that came against Jerusalem shall go up from year to year to bow before the King, G-d.."
- Zechariah 14:9: "G-d shall be King over the entire earth. In that day G-d shall be One and His Name One."

Restoration of the Bet Hamikdash...The Temple

Mashiach shall restore the Bet Hamikdash in Jerusalem (the Temple) [From the sources it appears that Mashiach will build the third Bet Hamikdash...Vayikra Rabba 9:6; Bamidbar Rabba 13:2; Shir Rabba end of ch. 4 etc.; followed by Rambam, Hilchot Melachim 11:1 and 4. From other sources it follows that the third Bet Hamikdash is built by the Almighty Himself (Zohar I:28a, 114a, 183b and III:221, Zohar II:240b!); followed by Rashi and Tossafot on Sukah 41a, Rosh Hashanah 30a, and Shevu'ot 15b]. Secondary sources include Torah Shelemah, Beshalach 15:17 (especially note 211); and Sha'aret Zohar on Sukah 41a (see there; and R. Menachem M. Schneerson shalita, Likkutei Sichot Vol. XI, p. 98 note 61; Vol. XVII, p. 418; and Vol. XXVII, p. 204f; for ways to reconcile the two views).

- "...and I will set My sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore. My temple also shall be with them. Yes, I will be their G-d and they shall be My people. And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when My sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore. -- Ezekiel 37:26-28 (See also Ez. 40-48; Is. 33:20; Isa 2:2ff)

World Peace?

The awareness and knowledge of G-d will remove the narrow-minded dispositions that lead to strife and war. It will be an era of peace and harmony - in the Holy Land, and throughout the world [Leviticus 25:18-19 and 26:5; Jeremiah 23:6 and 33:16; Ezekiel 28:26 and 34:25-28; Joel 4:17].

- Isaiah 2:4 and Michah 4:3: "...they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks. Nation shall not lift a sword against nation, nor shall they learn war any more." [Michah 4:4 continues: "Each man shall sit under his vine and under his fig-tree, and none shall make them afraid.."]
- Hosea 2:20: "...I shall break from the earth the bow, the sword and warfare, and I shall make them lie down securely."
- Zechariah 9:10: "...the bow of war shall be cut off, and [Mashiach] shall speak peace unto the nations.. "

This new attitude of mankind will also be reflected in the animal world:

- Isaiah 11:6-9: "The wolf shall dwell with the lamb and the leopard shall lie with the kid, and a calf with a lion's cub and a fatling together, and a small child shall lead them. The cow and the bear shall graze, their young ones shall lie down together, and the lion shall eat straw like cattle. An infant shall play over the hole of an asp, and the weaned child shall put out his hand over the eyeball of an adder. They will not harm or destroy on all My holy mountain, for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of G-d as the waters cover the sea."
- Isaiah 65:25: "The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like cattle, dust shall be the serpent's food. They shall not harm nor destroy in all My holy mountain, says G-d" [Hosea 2:20].
- "And he [Messiah] shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." -- Isaiah 2:4
- "He [Messiah] will destroy death forever." -- Isaiah 25:8
- "Then the inhabitants of the cities of Israel will go out and make fires and feed them with the weapons -- shields and bucklers, bows and arrows, clubs and spears; they shall use them as fuel for seven years." -- Ezekiel 39:9

Universal Knowledge of G-d?

The Messianic era will be a time of universal awareness, perception and knowledge of G-d:

- Isaiah 11:9: (cf: Habakuk 2:14): "...the earth shall be full of knowledge of G-d as the waters cover the sea."
- Isaiah 40:5: "The glory of G-d shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see together that the mouth of G-d has spoken."

"In the present world, the Shechinah manifests Itself only to certain individuals (prophets); in the time to come, however, 'the glory of G-d shall be revealed and all flesh shall see together..' [Vayikra Rabba 1:14]. The Messianic era will thus witness a manifestation of Divinity even as occurred with the revelation at Sinai; [Tanchuma, Bamidbar: end of par. 17; and Tanya, ch. 36. Cf: Sha'ar Ha'emunah, ch. 25; and see note following].

- Isaiah 52:8: "...for eye to eye they shall see as G-d returns to Zion."
- Jeremiah 31:32-33: "...I shall put My teaching in their inward parts and write it in their heart, and I shall be to them for G-d and they shall be to Me for a people. They shall no longer teach one another, and a man his brother, saying 'Know G-d,' for they shall all know Me - from the least of them to the greatest of them.."

The Divine spirit will be upon the people, endowing them with the power of prophecy and vision:

- Joel 3:1-2: "...I shall pour out My spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your elders shall dream dreams, your young shall see visions. In those days I shall pour out My spirit also upon the servants and handmaids ["The Holy One, blessed is He, said: 'In the present world [only] certain individuals prophesied; in the world to come, however, all Israel will be made prophets, as it is said, 'It shall come to pass afterwards that I shall pour out My spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy..'"; Tanchuma, Beha'alotecha: end of par. 16. Cf: Tikunei Zohar 18:36b; and above, note 10a].

- Note Igeret Teyman, end of ch. 3, that there will be a restoration of prophecy even before the actual manifestation of Mashiach. Cf Likkutei Sichot, vol. II: Balak, p. 588f.]
- "All who survive of all those nations that came up against Jerusalem shall make a pilgrimage year by year to bow low to the King Lord of Hosts and to observe the feasts." -- Zechariah 14:16
- "And the Lord shall be king over all the earth: in that day shall there be one Lord, and His name one." -- Zechariah 14:9
- "Thus said the Lord of Hosts: In those days, ten men from nations of every tongue will take hold -- they will take hold of every Jew by a corner of his cloak and say, "Let us go with you, for we have heard that G-d is with you." -- Zechariah 8:23

Resurrection of the Dead?

- "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust, for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." -- Isaiah 26:19
- "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." -- Daniel 12:2
- "Behold I will open your graves and raise you from your graves, My people; and I will bring you into the Land of Israel. You shall know that I am G-d when I open your graves and when I revive you from your graves, My people. I shall put My spirit into you and you will live, and I will place you upon your land, and you will know that I, G-d, have spoken and done, says G-d." (Ezekiel 37: 12-14)

Resurrection of the Dead is another of the 13 fundamental Principles of the Faith (Rambam, Article 13), distinct from that of the Messianic redemption. It will occur after the redemption, the very last event of the Messianic era (see Zohar I:139a), thus in a way distinct from it. Even so, there are various stages in the process of resurrection itself, with some individuals rising before all others. Moses and Aaron, for example, will be present already in the very early period, when the Bet Hamikdash will be re-established, in order to guide the order and procedures of the Temple-service (see Tossafat on Pesachtm 114b; and cf. Devarim Rabba 3:17 and similar passages). A number of other saints, too, will be revived at various stages prior to the general resurrection of the dead (see R. Joseph Albo, Ikkarim IV:35; R. David ibn Zimra, Teshavot Radvaz III:no. 644; R. Daniel Tirani, Ikret Hadat (Ikret Dtntm), vol. II: Yoreh De'ah 36:66; Sdei Chemed, Kuntres Hakelalim, s.v. mem:klal 218; and the sources cited there).

For the whole subject of the resurrection, see especially Sanhedrin 90a-92b; Pirket deR Eliezer ch. 33-34; R. Saadiah Gaon, Emunot Vedet'ot, sect. VII; Rambam, Ma'amar Techtyat Hametim; Ramban, Sha'ar Hagemul; R. Chasdai Crescas, Or Hashem III:4, ch. 1-4; and R. Menachem M. Schneerson shalita, Teshuvot Ubi'urim, ch. 8 and 11 (offering a comprehensive and systematic analysis of this subject).

Ingathering of Israel?

- "I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather you from the west. I will say to the north, "Give up," and to the south, "Keep not back, bring My sons from far, and My daughter from the ends of the earth. -- Isaiah 43:5-6. (See also Jer. 16:15; 23:3; Is. 11:12; Zech. 10:6; Ez. 37:21-22)
- Through Mashiach shall be effected the ingathering of all the exiles of Israel (Bereishit Rabba 98:9; Midrash Hagadol on Genesis 49: 11.7).
- Deuteronomy 30:3-4: "G-d, your G-d, shall bring back your captivity ...and He will return and gather you from all the nations whither G-d, your G-d, has scattered you. If your banished shall be at the utmost end of the heavens, G-d, your G-d, shall gather you from there, and He shall take you from there."
- Isaiah 11:11-12,16: "It shall be on that day that G-d shall again set His hand for a second time to acquire the remnant of His people that shall remain from Assyria and from Egypt, from Pathros and from Cush and from Elam, from Shinar and from Chamat and from the islands of the sea.. There shall be a highway for the remnant of His people that shall remain from Assyria, as there was for Israel on the day they went up from the land of Egypt."

- Isaiah 43:5-6: "Fear not, for I am with you; I will bring your seed from the east and gather you from the west. I shall say to the north, 'Give up,' and to the south, 'Do not hold back, bring My sons from far and My daughters from the end of the earth.'"
- Amos 9:14-15: "I shall return the captivity of My people Israel and they shall build the waste cities and settle .. I shall plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be plucked out of their land that I have given them, says G-d, your G-d."
  - Jeremiah 23:7-8: "Therefore behold, days shall come, says G-d, that they shall no longer say, 'As G-d lives who has taken up the children of Israel from the land of Egypt;' but 'As G-d lives who has taken up and brought the seed of the House of Israel from the north country and from all the countries where He had banished them,' and they shall dwell in their land."
  - Ezekiel 39:25, 27-29: "..Now I shall bring back the captivity of Jacob and I shall have compassion on the whole House of Israel, and I shall be zealous for My holy Name .. When I shall have returned them from the nations and gathered them from the lands of their enemies.. They shall know that I am G-d, their G-d, in that I exiled them to the nations and gathered them unto their land and I will not leave any one of them there. I will no more hide My face from them, as I will pour out My spirit upon the House of Israel.. "
  - Additional sources for the ingathering of the exiles are: Isaiah 27:12, 49:8-9, and 60:4; Jeremiah 30:2 and 31:7; Ezekiel 34:11-13 and 37:21; Zechariah 8:7-8; etc.

The Ten Tribes of the Northern Kingdom of Israel, exiled by the Assyrians before the destruction of the first Bet Hamikdash (II-Kings, ch. 17), and dispersed beyond the river Sambation and the 'Mountains of Darkness,' will also return [Sanhedrin 110b; Bamidbar Rabba 16:25; Tanchuma, ed. Buber, Shlach-Hossafot:6; Pesikta Rabaty 32:10 (ed. Friedmann, ch. 31). Cf Ramban, Sefer Hage'ulah, sha'ar I.

This Divine promise of the return and restoration of Israel is unconditional. It will occur even if the people should not want to return:

- "That which arises in your mind shall not come to pass, namely that which you say, 'We shall be like the nations, like the families of the countries, to serve wood and stone.' As I live, says the Lord G-d, I shall surely rule over them with a mighty hand and with an outstretched arm and with fury poured out. I shall take you out from the nations and gather you from the lands in which you were scattered, with a mighty hand, an outstretched arm and with fury poured out.. I shall pass you under the rod and bring you into the covenant.. For on My holy mountain, on the mountain of the height of Israel, says the Lord G-d, there shall all of the whole House of Israel serve Me .. when I bring you out from the nations and gather you from the lands where you were scattered, and I shall be sanctified in you in the eyes of the nations. You shall know that I am G-d when I bring you to the earth of Israel, to the land about which I raised My hand to give it to your fathers." (Ezekiel 20:32-37, 40-42)
- "Therefore say to the House of Israel, Thus said the Lord G-d: I am not doing (this) for your sake, House of Israel, but for My holy Name which you profaned among the nations wither you came. I shall sanctify My great Name that was profaned among the nations, that you profaned in their midst, and the nations shall know that I am G-d, says the Lord G-d, when I shall be sanctified in you before their eyes. I shall take you from the nations, and I shall gather you from all the lands, and I shall bring you to your land. I shall sprinkle pure waters upon you and you shall be purified from all your sins, and I will purify you from all your idols.." (Ezekiel 36:22-25)

Blissful Utopia: The End Of Disease And The Death It Produces

- The Messianic era will witness ultimate physical and spiritual bliss. All will be healed [Beretshit Rabba 20:5]. The blind, the deaf and the dumb, the lame, whosoever has any blemish or disability, shall be healed from all their disabilities: "The eyes of the blind shall be clearsighted, and the ears of the deaf shall be opened.. the lame shall leap as a hart and the tongue of the dumb shall sing.." (Isaiah 35:5-6). [Beretshit Rabba 95:1; Tanchuma, Vayigash: 8 and Metzora: 2 (and see ed. Buber, Vayigash:9 and Metzora:7)].
- Death itself shall cease, as it is said, "Death shall be swallowed up forever and G-d shall wipe the tears from every face.." (Isaiah 25:8) [Pesachim 68a; Shemot Rabba 30:2. See also Midrash Tehilim 145:1].

- There will be a life of ease [Eliyahu Rabba ch. 4]. Our physical needs will be taken care of by others, as it is said, "Strangers shall stand and feed your flocks and aliens shall be your plowmen and your vinedressers (Isaiah 61:5)" [Isaiah 49:23 and 60:10-12].
- The earth will manifest extraordinary fertility, yielding an overabundance of every kind of produce, and trees growing ripe fruits every day. Zion's wilderness will be made "to be like Eden, and her desert like the garden of G-d" (Isaiah 51:3). "I will call for the grain and increase it .. and I will increase the fruit of the tree and the produce of the field.." (Ezekiel 36:29-30) ".. The plowman shall overtake the reaper, and the treader of grapes him who sows seed; and the mountains shall drip sweet wine, and all the hills shall melt" (Amos 9:13) [Leviticus 26:5; and Joel 4:18, and see Vayikra Rabba 17:4, and Pesikta deR Kabana, ch. VII, p. 65cf, and the notes there. See also Hosea 2:23f].
- "At that time there will be neither famine nor war, neither envy nor strife. All good things will be bestowed in abundance, and all delicacies will be accessible like dust" [Hilchot Melachim 12:5. Cf: Midrash Tehilim 87:3 ("gold and silver will be like dust")].
- The wondrous events and conditions of the Messianic era will completely overshadow all and any miracles that happened before then, even those associated with the exodus from Egypt (Jeremiah 23:7-8; Berachot 12cf.).
- In Rambam's view the Messianic era will not see a setting aside of the laws of nature, but "the world will follow its normal course. The only difference between the present world and the Messianic days is delivery from servitude to foreign powers (Berachot 34b)." The prophecies of supernatural events and conditions are to be understood figuratively. (Hilchot Melachim 12:1-2; and cf. Hilchot Teshuvah 9:2). Even so, Rambam himself qualifies this view as a personal opinion and interpretation, allowing for the possibility that everything may be quite literal. (Ma'amar Tachiyat Hametim, sect. 6. Cf. Hilchot Melachim 12:2 that no one is in a position to know the details of the events to occur until they have come to pass etc.).
- As noted by the commentaries on Hilchot Melachim, Rambam's view is fraught with many difficulties, as even he himself enumerates events and conditions (not the least of which would be the resurrection of the dead) which are clearly beyond the normal course of the laws of nature (cf. notes 22, 41; 51 and 68). One resolution to this problem is by distinguishing between two general periods in the Messianic era: a first stage following an essentially natural order, and a later stage marked by supernatural events and conditions. [R. Yitzchak Abarbanel, Yeshu'ot Meshicho, Iyun Hashlishich. 7. For a comprehensive analysis of this subject, see Likkutei Sichot, Vol. XXVII, pp. 191-206. Cf. also Or Hachayim on Exodus 21:11 and Numbers 24:17].

Even so, these Divine blessings are not an end in themselves. They are but a means towards a higher goal: Our longing for the Messianic era is not for the sake of dominating the world, to rule over the heathens, or to be exalted by the nations. Nor is it that we might eat, drink and rejoice,;. "have much produce and wealth, ride horses and indulge in wine and song, as thought by some confused people" [Rambam, Perush HaMishnah, Introduction to Sanhedrin ch. 10).

It is, rather, to have relief from the powers that presently do not allow us to be preoccupied with Torah and mitzvot properly [Hilchot Teshuvah 9:2].

Our aspirations are to be free to devote ourselves to Torah and its wisdom, with no one to oppress and disturb us. We long for that time because there will be an assembly of the righteous, an era dominated by goodness, wisdom, knowledge and truth. It will be a time when the commandments of the Torah shall be observed without inertia, laziness or compulsion (other version: "worries, fear or compulsion").

The sole preoccupation of the whole world will be to know G-d. The Israelites will be great sages: they will know things that are presently concealed, and will achieve knowledge of their Creator to the utmost capacity of human beings, as it is said, "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of G-d as the waters cover the sea." (Isaiah 11:9) [Hilchot Melachim 12:5 Cf. Netzach Yisrael, ch. 42].

Answer for yourself: Now, has this happened yet, and has the Messiah come?

DO YOU WANT THE HONEST TRUTH?

Looking back at all of these prophecies, we can clearly see Yeshua has not fulfilled these necessary prophecies that would give him the distinction of being called "the" Messiah. Possibly a Second Coming will provide the opportunity needed for these to be fulfilled either by Yeshua or whoever comes as Messiah. But such an idea is pure speculation. Without a doubt, if we look at the Bible as our point of reference, Yeshua fell short of fulfilling any of the major messianic prophecies; he was never anointed as King, he never ruled Israel, and the world was certainly not perfected in his time. In addition, he was not preceded by the return of the prophet Elijah. This is not meant to denigrate Yeshua in anyway or to say he was not "a" Messiah or that his ministry to the world is not of ultimate importance. But the text is the text and we must not develop religious beliefs based on emotion especially when the text proves otherwise. We must be faithful to the Word of G-d and let the chips lie where they fall. To suggest Yeshua is the Jewish Messiah is, in effect, saying that G-d was lying to the Jewish people when he promised a Messiah from the house of David who would fulfill all of the prophecies. G-d does not lie. Shalom.

IS JESUS THE MESSIAH?....LET US EXAMINE THE FACTS

I begin this article with my conclusion and not my introduction. I do this in order that the readers won't "turn me off" before they finish reading the article, for much of which they will disagree with follows. But truth is truth and facts are facts. It is those who are not aware of truth and facts who are deceived. Now my conclusion.

I guess what I disprove of so much at Bet Emet Ministries, is attributing to Jesus "fulfillments" of Scripture which are in reality not fulfillments. Because of the hundreds of errors, mistranslations, and misquotations in the New Testament, it is impossible to say for sure that Yeshua is "the" Messiah. And this does not take into account the unfulfilled prophecies in the Old Testament, nor the constant reassurance to Yeshua's followers that he was to return in their lifetime as the New Testament attests. Guess what? He did not do it as it says.

Answer for yourself: So where are we left in our belief in Yeshua as the Messiah?

I have chosen to adopt the position of a famous Jewish scholar in Jerusalem today...David Flusser. When asked if he believes Yeshua is the Messiah he said..."when Messiah comes, if it be in my lifetime, I will walk up to him and ask: "Is your name 'Yeshua'" and "have you been here before"? I think that when Messiah comes then, and only then, can we know for sure if it is in reality Yeshua, and if not, I am sure no one will reject him because it disagrees with their prior theologies. Now on with the article as I substantiate why a knowledgeable believer will have a hard time saying for certain that Yeshua is the Messiah (at least at this time).

If Christians merely believed that Yeshua was their messiah, this belief would be of little concern to the Jews. Their claim, however, is not that Yeshua is the Christian Messiah, but the Jewish Messiah, the Messiah of the Jews, the Messiah foretold by the Jewish Prophets. Christians then attempt to prove this belief by quoting a book that they cannot read in the original language, the Hebrew Bible.

Certain Christian missionary groups have now set up a front organization called "Jews for Jesus," through which they entice naive Jews to Christianity with an old and discredited argument. "Don't become a Christian," they will argue, "remain a Jew, — however, while you remain a loyal Jew, accept Yeshua as your 'Messiah.' "

In view of the confusion created by the many false claims of missionary groups, Jews, as well as Christians, must be armed with the facts to substantiate the conviction that almost everything Christians claim for Yeshua as the Jewish Messiah is false. This rather startling conclusion can be easily substantiated if one is diligent to study on this web site [and others: <http://faithofyeshua.faithweb.com>] the seventy or so articles whereby I expose how the New Testament writers have repeatedly taken Jewish Scriptures out of the Old Testament and purposefully mistranslated them, misapplied them, misquoted them, and taken them completely out of context from what the original Prophet intended in his message. This was done in order to present a case to the non-Jewish believers in G-d that Yeshua had fulfilled these passages and was the intended "fulfiller" of such prophecies. This was an easy hoax to pull upon the non-Jewish masses who were unfamiliar with the Old Testament Scriptures. It is just as easy today as the vast majority of Christians have since the beginning had a very shallow understanding of the Old Testament Scriptures and continue to do so today as well. They they just don't know when reading the New Testament that the context of the original writer had nothing to do what so ever with Yeshua.

PROBLEMS ABOUND FOR THE CHRISTIAN POSITION...BUT FEW RECOGNIZE THEY EXIST

The following few "problems" will point out some of the glaring discrepancies and inconsistencies in the missionaries' arguments:—

Problem: The Jewish Messiah is to be a human being born naturally to husband and wife. He is not to be a god, nor a man born of supernatural or virgin birth, as Christianity claims.

Nowhere does the Jewish Bible or Prophets say that the Messiah would be a god or G-d-like. The very idea that G-d would take on human form is repulsive to Jews because it contradicts the concept of G-d as being above and beyond the limitations of the human body and situation. Jews believe, according to the Jewish Scriptures, that G-d alone is to be worshipped, not a being who is His creation, be he angel, saint, or even the Messiah himself.

Nowhere does the Bible predict that the Messiah will be born to a virgin. In fact, virgins never give birth anywhere in the Bible. This idea is to be found only in pagan mythology. To the Jewish mind, the very idea that G-d would plant a seed in a woman is unnecessary and unnatural.

Answer for yourself: After all — what is accomplished by this claim?

Answer for yourself: What positive purpose does it serve?

The claim that Mary did not have natural relations with her husband must have made the Jews of that time suspect her of wrongdoing. The New Testament (the Christian Bible) admits as much when it says (Matthew 1:19), "Then Joseph her (Mary's) husband, being a just man, and not willing to shame her in public, decided to divorce her quietly." The whole idea of virgin birth serves no purpose, except to attract pagans to Christianity.

Problem: The Jewish Messiah is expected to return the Jews to their land. Yeshua was born while the Jews still lived in their land, before they had gone into exile. He could not restore them to their land because they were still living in it!

Problem: The true Messiah is to rebuild the Temple in Jerusalem — but Yeshua lived while the Temple was still standing.

Problem: The Jewish Bible says that the Messiah will redeem Israel. In the case of Yeshua, the very opposite took place. Not long after his death, the Holy Temple in Jerusalem was destroyed, Jerusalem was laid to waste, and the Jews went into exile to begin a 1900-year-long night of persecution—largely at the hands of the followers of this self-styled "Messiah!"

Problem: The Prophets in the Bible foretold (Isaiah 45) that when the Messiah comes, all the nations of the world will unite to acknowledge and worship the one true G-d. "The knowledge of G-d will fill the earth. The world will be filled with the knowledge of G-d as the waters cover the seas" (Isaiah 11:9). Nothing of this nature took place following the death of Yeshua. On the contrary, Islam developed and became the religion of the Arabs and many other nations, Christianity broke up into many conflicting sects which were constantly at war with each other, and a large part of the world continued to worship idols. Even today the world is far from the worship of one G-d.

Problem: When the true Messiah comes, his influence will extend over all peoples who will worship G-d at the Temple in Jerusalem. The Prophet says, "For My House will become the House of Prayer for all the Nations." This has obviously not yet taken place, and, therefore, the Messiah has not yet come.

Problem: During the time of the Messiah a new spirit will rule the world, and man will cease committing sins and crimes; this will especially apply to the Jews. The Torah (in Deuteronomy 30:6) says that "G-d will circumcise your heart and the heart of your children to love G-d." The Prophets taught: "And your people are all righteous, they will inherit the earth forever" (Isaiah 60:21); "In that day I will seek the sins of Israel and there will be none" (Jeremiah 50:20); "I will give you a new heart and a new spirit—and you will obey My laws and commandments and do them" (Ezekiel 36:26,27). Soon after the time of Yeshua, ignorance of G-d and even ignorance of science and philosophy filled the earth, as the "Dark Ages" overtook the world.

Problem: The true Messiah is to reign as King of the Jews. Yeshua's career as described in the New Testament lasted all of three years, at the end of which he was crucified by the Romans as a common criminal. He never functioned as anything but a wandering preacher and "faith healer"; certainly, he held no official position or exercised any rule of any kind.
